Mr. T. B. Dowman desires to inform the farmers and others of the neighborhood, that he has installed the latest and best roller process for the manufacture of buckwheat flour. He will give as good a turnout of flour as any mill in the county.

GREATEST BARGAINS
EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY,
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE
CONSOLIDATED
CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out in the work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m is the best place to buy

Where

MEATS

AT

CREUTZBERG'S

Old Reliable Up-to-Date

Meat Market

WITHOUT A DOUBT.

HOMER E. TURNEY,
Proprietor.

P. S. I pay the highest CASH market price for beef, pork, veal, mutton and lamb.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Stockholders' Meeting.

The aunual meeting of the stockholders of the Garrett County Telophone Co., will be held at Hoyes, Md., on the 14th Day of January, 1911,

at the hour of 10.30 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and any other business that may come up at that time.

C. V. GUARD, Secretary.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season

Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

The Baltimore News

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Published Every Afternoon, Including Sunday

A Newspaper for the Home, for the Family Circle

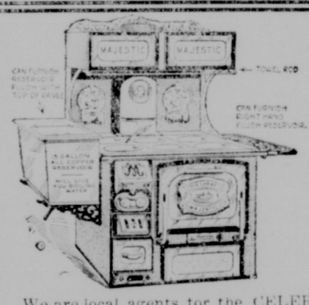
Covers thoroughly the news of the city, State and country.

Complete market reports.

Buy it from your local newsdealer or order it by mail.

One month	25c.	Six months	$1.75
Three months	60c.	One year	$3.50

The Baltimore News, Baltimore, Md.



MAJESTIC RANGES

For Coal or Wood

HONEST GOODS.

HONEST PRICES.

We are local agents for the CELERRATED MAJESTIC RANGES—the Ranges with a national reputation. Nothing better is made in the stove line. Goods which are cheap, but not good, are dear at any price.

Why you should have a Great and Grand Majestic Range in your Kitchen—

It cuts the fuel bill in halt because it is riveted air-tight, HOLDS the heat where it belongs, and has the proper arrangement of flues.
It is used by your neighbor, who would have no other.
It browns bread all over just alike without turning.
Has large warming closets with the right kind of doors. The only warming closets that you can clean.
It is made in any size and style desired.
It is made of better and heavier material than any other.
It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron.
It costs a little more, but lasts much longer.
It is the only range made that has a ventilated ash pit.

S. LAWTON & SONS, Oakland, Md.

The Home Paper Gives you the reading matter in which you have the greatest interest—the home news. Its every issue will prove a welcome visitor to every member of the family. It should head your list of newspaper and periodical subscriptions.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

The regular meeting of the stockholders of the Garrett National Bank of Oakland, Maryland, will be held at its banking house on

Tuesday, January 10, 1911,

at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of any other business that may come before them.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank of Kitzmillerville, Maryland, will be held at its banking house on

Tuesday, January 10, 1911,

from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of electing a board of Directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of any other business that may be brought before them.

E. J. HAMILL, Cashier.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank of Oakland, Maryland, will be held at its banking house on

Tuesday, January 10, 1911,

from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of any other business that may be brought before them.

R. E. SLIGER, Cashier.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

Pursuant to the required legal notice a meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank of Friendsville, Maryland, will be held at its banking house on

Tuesday, January 10, 1911,

at 10 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of such other business that may lawfully be done.

NORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Circumstances and lawyers alter cases.

Anyway, the unwritten law seems to have a lot written about it.

We are a good deal happier because of a lot of things we don't know.

Without the shedding of blood there seems to be no way of conquering the air.

Brag about a girl to her female friends if you would discover her faults.

The Seine seems to have acquired the Ohio river habit in getting over banks.

If you can't get what you want why don't you quit wanting it? It is merely a state of mind.

When the doctor tells a man to diet, the patient proceeds to refuse all the things he dislikes.

A regular feature of the Monday morning papers is the list of dead and injured among Sunday autoists.

Laura Jean Libbey, who advocates the kissless courtship, is pushing the most unpopular propaganda on record.

It is alleged as proof of a New York man's insanity that he was no good at bridge whist. This is very Gothamesque.

Our idea of a strong minded woman is one who insists that she would rather have her clothes comfortable than fashionable.

A new card game popular in England is called "Dabbit." It should be explained that many Englishmen have chronic colds.

A boy committed suicide because he was compelled to give up school. It is not feared that there will be many cases of this sort.

Don't blame the faithful hen for rots, spots, leaks or specks. Her part of the work was all right. The storage companies did the rest.

A scientist who recently tried to hypnotize a dog was bitten by the animal. He should have begun by making the dog believe it had no teeth.

Doctor Wiley advises against cold-storage turkey. That is very well, but he should first break that handsome bird of indulging in the cold-storage habit.

An English peer is to marry an East Indian princess. This precedent once established, may introduce dangerous competition in the matrimonial title market for American heiresses.

A Chicago woman refuses to pay for photographs which she recently had taken, because she thinks they make her look too old. The photographer should hasten to get a new retoucher.

A tree trimmer who had to look up all the time in his work has gone insane. That ought to be a warning to those enthusiastic persons who spend most of their time on the aviation field.

With a string of aviators touring the country like a circus, possibly it won't be long before we see the sky fenced off with canvas and young hopefuls climbing in under the clouds to see the show.

A man says that he is going to start a paper in New York that will be free from the faults of the other journals there. It ought not to be hard to start one, but keeping it going is apt to be uphill work.

People ought to clean house oftener. Now here's a New York man had an old trunk kicking about the house for five years before he opened it and found that somebody had carelessly left a dead person in it.

English lords who object to the use of American dollars in the British campaign will have the full sympathy of French counts and German barons, who think American dollars should be devoted to the securing of personal pleasure only.

News from different portions of the Aleutian region indicates that there have been great volcanic activity and earthquake shocks in that quarter. The disturbances continued for four days. This information affords fresh evidence that the scientists are correct in regarding the neighborhood of Alaska as a center of remarkable seismic activity.

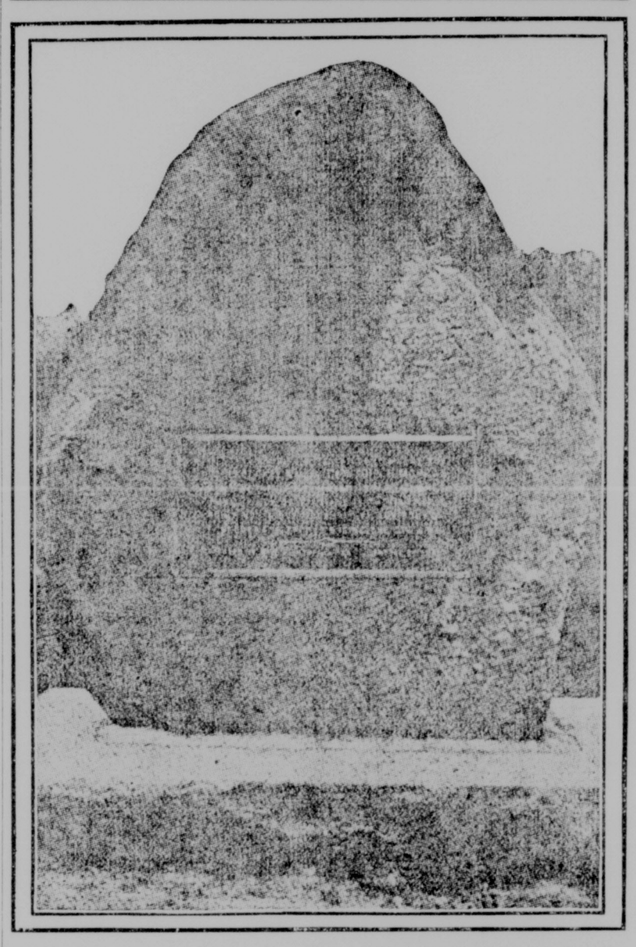
A big mackerel jumped aboard a schooner in Massachusetts waters and provided a good breakfast for the crew. The rivalry of the Ananias Club has apparently not hurt the vitality of the familiar fish-story tellers.

The suggestion is made that a good way to conserve the forests would be to use cement and steel to build with instead of lumber. This might conserve the forests, but it would not conserve either the iron ore and coal supplies or the builders' bank account.

The World's Wonders

STRANGE THINGS FOUND IN VARIOUS PORTIONS OF THE EARTH

High Water Mark of Civil War



The accompanying picture shows the granite marker set on an Ohio farm to indicate the farthest point north reached by any body of Confederate troops in the War of the Rebellion. It also marks the surrender place of the famous rebel leader, Gen. John H. Morgan. The stone has been set on the Crubaugh farm in Columbiana county, near Wellsville, but a few miles back from the Ohio river.

If the reader will look on the map, he will find that the place is farther north than Gettysburg, Pa. The idea of suitably marking the place was conceived by the late W. L. Thompson, a former well-known song writer and publisher, of East Liverpool. The marker was put in place last year and the tablet was then cast, but the latter was not put on until this year, when the dedication exercises were held. The principal address was made by Major George W. Rue, now of Hamilton, O., to whom Morgan surrendered at the place shown by the marker. Major Rue then belonged to the Ninth Kentucky cavalry, a regiment that had been chasing the raider for some time. The capture took place on July 26, 1863.

TEACHER BUILDS ODD HOME

A house up in the trees is the unusual home being built in Minneapolis by Prof. C. F. Dight of the chair of materia medica at the University of Minnesota.

When people ask Mr. Dight why he is building his house ten feet or more off the ground, his reply is: "Why do you build your houses on the ground?" Afterwards, however, he explains.

Mr. Dight says he is building his house high for three reasons: First, that the ground is low and damp, owing to the proximity of Minnehaha creek; second, that he gets a better view, and third, that he gets more air and sunshine.

The queer house is supported on iron piles. It is 18 by 22 feet, with a cupola big enough for another room. It has two living rooms and the usual accessories. Outside it is of rough plaster and tile, the floor being of wood laid on cement. The floors are double spaced and a hot water heating system will keep warm air under them. There are 15 windows in the house, and under every window is a lattice work, admitting more air. This will be arranged so that some of the air can be cut off in severe weather, although the house is designed as an all-year house.

Mr. Dight is a bachelor and intends to occupy his air bungalow all alone unless he decides to install some worthy medical student in the cupola.

COW GOES ON A CIDER JAG

The inmates of the Clinton (Mass.) almshouse were deprived of their usual supply of milk several days recently on account of the inebriety of the poor farm cow. One Saturday morning it was a difficult task for John Ewart, the warden of the poor farm, to get the cow into the barn. The animal staggered, and, believing that the cow was ill, the warden telephoned to a veterinarian. When the latter arrived he gave one look at the cow and said: "That cow is drunk."

Investigation bore out the truth of his statement. The cow had found her way to a pile of cider apples and had eaten so much of the fruit that she could neither see nor walk straight.

VOICE EXPERT TRAINS RAT

J. W. Wallace, instructor in voice culture of Canal Dover, O., has been training a small rat he captured. The rodent now will leap over a pencil, stand on its hind legs at his commands, give two squeals for "yes" and one for "no," besides doing a multitude of other things. Wallace expects to place it on exhibition.

GREAT SPHINX CRUMBLING

The great Egyptian Sphinx, the oldest and most colossal statue in the world, is rapidly crumbling away. It has stood for sixty centuries, but now it is vanishing at the breath of modern civiliatzion. The great irrigation works recently carried out in Egypt have radically changed the exceedingly dry climate, which made the astounding longevity of Egyptian stone monuments possible. Under old conditions these might be expected to last forever, as far as weather was concerned. Now there are 15 to 18 days heavy rainfall in the year, whereas formerly there was only an hour's rain a day for a week. The increased humidity combined with the mild frost at night in winter, is rapidly disintegrating the stone Sphinx, and it is feared the head will fall. So modern science will bring about destruction of the great figure which was hoary with antiquity when Moses led the Children of Israel away from its shadows towards the Promised Land.

PURGATORY ISLAND, IRELAND

There is a tiny island on Lough Derg in County Donegal, Ireland, known as St. Patrick's Purgatory, so called from an old tradition that St. Patrick once banished from it the evil spirits which were supposed to exist there. After this the island became a place of pilgrimage, which commences on June 1 and terminates on August 15; during the remainder of the year the island is tenantless. The time usually passed on the island by each pilgrim is three days, which are spent in prayer, the food and drink consisting of one meal in the twenty-four hours of oat cake and tea without sugar or milk. About 6,000 pilgrims visit the island annually.

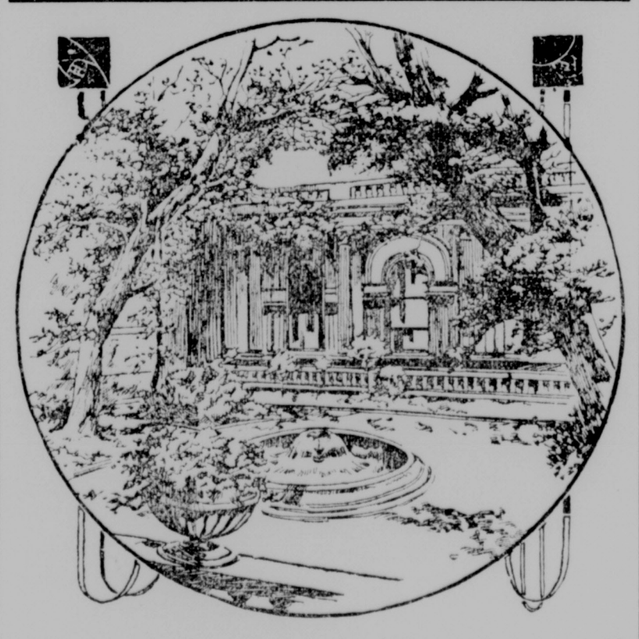
Garden of Bank of England



London possesses many more curious features than are set down in the average guide book, not a few of them unknown even to those who reckon themselves among the most devoted sons of Cockayne. How many know, for instance, that there is a garden in the middle of the Bank of England? Yet such is literally the fact. It is situated just inside the Threadneedle street entrance to the bank, on the left hand side, leading to the Bill office, and presents a delightful haunt of ancient peace amid the city's "central roar." About thirty-six yards long by some twenty-five yards wide, the garden has a fountain in the center, graveled paths, and a couple of trees, one of them of considerable size, the whole forming a quadrangle, with the bank buildings running all around. The reader may well wonder how, right in the heart of the city, where land is probably more valuable than anywhere else in the world, this garden came into existence.

The history of the matter is rather curious. This quaint old garden is in reality the churchyard of the vanished church of St. Christopher-le-Stock—so-called because of its proximity to the Stock market (fish and flesh), which formerly stood where the Mansion house is today. St. Christopher's was pulled down in 1781, when the bank was being enlarged, and the garden of today is its old churchyard. It is said that one cause of the demolition of the church was the fear lest it should ever be occupied by rioters to the danger of the bank, the premises of which were completely overlooked from its tower—fear which was doubtless intensified by the "No Popery" riots of 1870, when, it way be remembered, some of the rioters marched to the bank and tried to break in.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE

Number of State Institutions Is Double During the Past Two Years.

Sixteen state sanatoria, 28 county hospitals and 21 municipal hospitals for tuberculosis have been erected and provided for since January 1, 1909, says a recent bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Within the last two years the number of state institutions for tuberculosis has doubled, and the number of county and municipal institutions has increased from about 30 to 80. The expenditures of public money for the treatment of tuberculosis also has more than doubled. Not less that $3,000,000 of state money was appropriated for tuberculosis institutions in 1909, when 43 legislatures met, and over $600,000 in 1910, when only 11 legislatures were in session. The appropriations of counties and cities for tuberculosis hospitals and sanatoria in the last two years will aggregate fully $2,500,000, bringing the total of official appropriations for tuberculosis hospitals up to over $6,000,000 in the past two years.

In spite, however, of this good showing, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis states that not one-tenth of the public provision for tuberculosis that is needed has been made. More than 250,000 tuberculosis patients are constantly without proper institutional treatment.

SKIN BEAUTY PROMOTED

In the treatment of affections of the skin and scalp which torture, disfigure, itch, burn, scale and destroy the hair, as well as for preserving, purifying and beautifying the complexion, fallible. Millions of women throughout the world rely on these pure, sweet and gentle emollients for all purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery, and for the sanative, antiseptic cleansing of ulcerated, inflamed mucous surfaces. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp, Boston, Mass., sole Proprietors of the Cuticura Remedies, will mail free, on request, their latest 32-page Cuticura Book on the skin and hair.

MONOCLE

Choly Glim—Beg pardon, my good man, but how can I find the customs office?

Jack Tar—I'll tell ye, mate; shift yer lantern from starboard to port and foller the twist in yer face.

Kept Umbrella Thirty Years.

A faithful old umbrella which has shielded the family of Dr. James A. Mullican of Greenwood avenue from the storms of 30 years, was stolen on Sunday. During the rain on that day the physician lent the umbrella to E. A. Seck, and while the latter was in a store some one stole it.

"The umbrella belonged to my father and has been in the family for more than thirty years," said Doctor Mullican the other night. "It has been covered several times.

"To persons who are unable to keep the same umbrella for more than thirty days this may seem incredible, but it is true," concluded Doctor Mullican with a smile.—Chicago Tribune.

The Modern Way.

A couple of young men on the Market street viaduct the other evening offered a new version of an old saw. After they had passed a couple of auburn-haired damsels one of the young men took his stand at the curb and gazed up and down the bridge.

"What are you looking for?" inquired his companion.

Pointing to the red-headed girls, the young man answered: "I'm trying to see a white automobile."—Youngstown Telegram.

WONDERED WHY.
Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 pounds. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

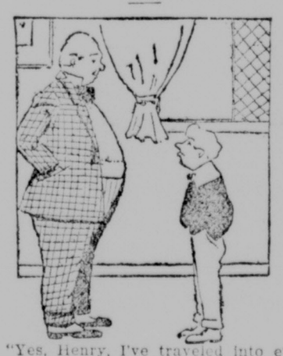
THE CENSUS OF CANADA

ITS GROWTH IN TEN YEARS PAST.

A census of the Dominion of Canada will be made during 1911. It will show that during the past decade a remarkable development has taken place, and, when compared with the population, a greater percentage of increase in industries of all kinds than has ever been shown by any country. Commerce, mining, agriculture and railways have made a steady march onward. The population will be considerably over 8,000,000. Thousands of miles of railway lines have been construction since the last census was taken ten years ago. This construction was made necessary by the opening up of the new agricultural districts in Western Canada, in which there have been pouring year after year an increasing number of settlers, until the present year will witness settlement of over 300,000, or a trifle less than one-third of the immigration to the United States during the same period with its 92,000,000 of population. Even with these hundreds of thousands of newcomers, the great majority of whom go upon the land, there is still available room for hundreds of thousands additional. The census figures will therefore show a great—a vast—increase in the number of farms under occupation, as well as in the output of the farms. When the figures of the splendid immigration are added to the natural increase, the total will surprise even the most optimistic. To the excellent growth that the western portion of Canada will show may largely be attributed the commercial and industrial growth of the eastern portion of Canada. All Canada is being upbuilded, and in this transformation there is taking part the people from many countries, but only from those countries that produce the strong and vigorous. As some evidence of the growth of the western portion of Canada, in agricultural industry, it is instructive to point out that over 100,000 homesteads of 160 acres each have been transferred to actual settlers in the past two years. This means 25,000 square miles of territory, and then, when is added the 40,000 160-acre preemption blocks, there is an additional 10,000 square miles, or a total of 35,000 square miles—a territory as large as the State of Indiana, and settled within two years. Reduced to the producing capacity imperative on the cultivation restriction of 50 acres of cultivation on each 160-acre homestead within three years, there will be within a year and a half from now upwards of 5,000,000 additional acres from this one source added to the entire producing area of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In 1901, at the time of the last census of Canada, successful agriculture in the Provinces of Monitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was an experiment to many. There were skeptics who could not believe that it was possible to grow thirty, forty and even fifty bushels of wheat to the acre, or that as high as one hundred and thirty bushels of oats to the acre could be grown. The skeptics are not to be found today. The evidence of the hundreds of thousands of farmers is too overwhelming. Not only have the lands of western Canada proven their worth in the matter of raising all the smaller field grains, but for mixed farming, and for cattle raising there is no better country anywhere. The climate is perfectly adapted to all these pursuits as well as admirable for health. The Dominion government literature, descriptive of the country, is what all that are interested should read. Send for a copy to the nearest Canadian government representative.

ACCURACY



"Yes, Henry, I've traveled into every corner of the globe."

"The globe is a spherical body, uncle. Therefore it has no corners!"—Chips.

The Happy Man.

"I hear she is to be married. Who is the happy man?"

"Her father."—Lippincott's.

Worth Its Weight in Gold.

PETTIT'S EYE SALVE strengthens old eyes, tonic for eye strain, weak and watery eyes. Druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

Some men are always looking for a chance to earn money, and some are satisfied if they merely get it.

In case of pain on the lungs Hamlins Wizard Oil acts like a mustard plaster, except that it is more effective and is so much nicer and cleaner to use.

Some women wear big hats because they have small heads.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The noblest motive is the public good.—Virgil.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Circumstances and lawyers alter cases.

Anyway, the unwritten law seems to have a lot written about it.

We are a good deal happier because of a lot of things we don't know.

Without the shedding of blood there seems to be no way of conquering the air.

Brag about a girl to her female friends if you would discover her faults.

The Seine seems to have acquired the Ohio river habit in getting over banks.

If you can't get what you want why don't you quit wanting it? It is merely a state of mind.

When the doctor tells a man to diet, the patient proceeds to refuse all the things he dislikes.

A regular feature of the Monday morning papers is the list of dead and injured among Sunday autoists.

Laura Jean Libbey, who advocates the kissless courtship, is pushing the most unpopular propaganda on record.

It is alleged as proof of a New York man's insanity that he was no good at bridge whist. This is very Gothamesque.

Our idea of a strong minded woman is one who insists that she would rather have her clothes comfortable than fashionable.

A new card game popular in England is called "Dabbit." It should be explained that many Englishmen have chronic colds.

A boy committed suicide because he was compelled to give up school. It is not feared that there will be many cases of this sort.

Don't blame the faithful hen for rots, spots, leaks or specks. Her part of the work was all right. The storage companies did the rest.

A scientist who recently tried to hypnotize a dog was bitten by the animal. He should have begun by making the dog believe it had no teeth.

Doctor Wiley advises against cold-storage turkey. That is very well, but he should first break that handsome bird of indulging in the cold-storage habit.

An English peer is to marry an East Indian princess. This precedent once established, may introduce dangerous competition in the matrimonial title market for American heiresses.

A Chicago woman refuses to pay for photographs which she recently had taken, because she thinks they make her look too old. The photographer should hasten to get a new retoucher.

A tree trimmer who had to look up all the time in his work has gone insane. That ought to be a warning to those enthusiastic persons who spend most of their time on the aviation field.

With a string of aviators touring the country like a circus, possibly it won't be long before we see the sky fenced off with canvas and young hopefuls climbing in under the clouds to see the show.

A man says that he is going to start a paper in New York that will be free from the faults of the other journals there. It ought not to be hard to start one, but keeping it going is apt to be uphill work.

People ought to clean house oftener. Now here's a New York man had an old trunk kicking about the house for five years before he opened it and found that somebody had carelessly left a dead person in it.

English lords who object to the use of American dollars in the British campaign will have the full sympathy of French counts and German barons, who think American dollars should be devoted to the securing of personal pleasure only.

News from different portions of the Aleutian region indicates that there have been great volcanic activity and earthquake shocks in that quarter. The disturbances continued for four days. This information affords fresh evidence that the scientists are correct in regarding the neighborhood of Alaska as a center of remarkable seismic activity.

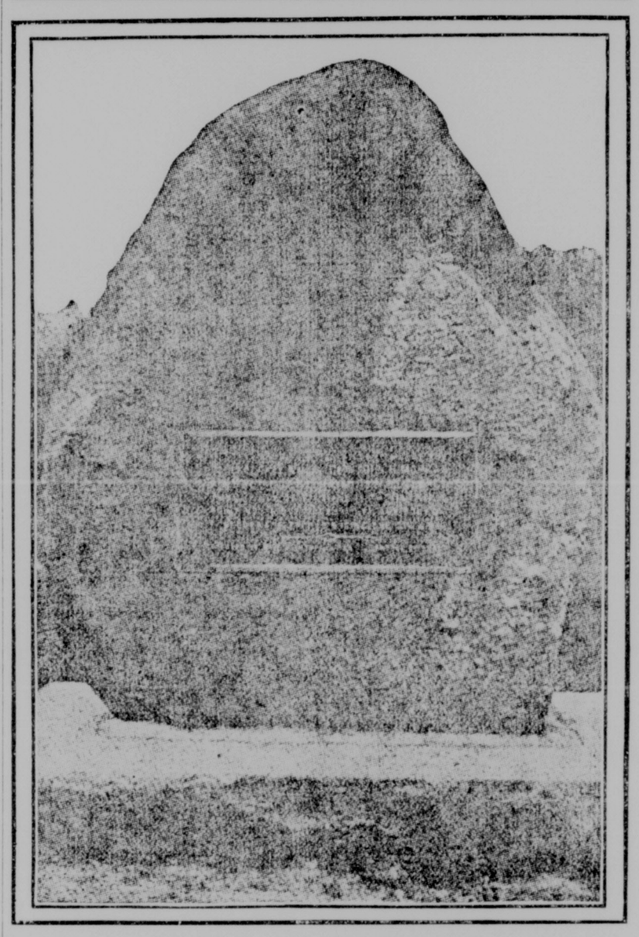
A big mackerel jumped aboard a schooner in Massachusetts waters and provided a good breakfast for the crew. The rivalry of the Ananias Club has apparently not hurt the vitality of the familiar fish-story tellers.

The suggestion is made that a good way to conserve the forests would be to use cement and steel to build with instead of lumber. This might conserve the forests, but it would not conserve either the iron ore and coal supplies or the builders' bank accounts.

The World's Wonders

STRANGE THINGS FOUND IN VARIOUS PORTIONS OF THE EARTH

High Water Mark of Civil War



The accompanying picture shows the granite marker set on an Ohio farm to indicate the farthest point north reached by any body of Confederate troops in the War of the Rebellion. It also marks the surrender place of the famous rebel leader, Gen. John H. Morgan. The stone has been set on the Crubaugh farm in Columbiana county, near Wellsville, but a few miles back from the Ohio river.

If the reader will look on the map, he will find that the place is farther north than Gettysburg, Pa. The idea of suitably marking the place was conceived by the late W. L. Thompson, a former well-known song writer and publisher, of East Liverpool. The marker was put in place last year and the tablet was then cast, but the latter was not put on until this year, when the dedication exercises were held. The principal address was made by Major George W. Rue, now of Hamilton, O., to whom Morgan surrendered at the place shown by the marker. Major Rue then belonged to the Ninth Kentucky cavalry, a regiment that had been chasing the raider for some time. The capture took place on July 26, 1863.

GREAT SPHINX CRUMBLING

The great Egyptian Sphinx, the oldest and most colossal statue in the world, is rapidly crumbling away. It has stood for sixty centuries, but now it is vanishing at the breath of modern civiliatzion. The great irrigation works recently carried out in Egypt have radically changed the exceedingly dry climate, which made the astounding longevity of Egyptian stone monuments possible. Under old conditions these might be expected to last forever, as far as weather was concerned. Now there are 15 to 18 days heavy rainfall in the year, whereas formerly there was only an hour's rain a day for a week. The increased humidity combined with the mild frost at night in winter, is rapidly disintegrating the stone Sphinx, and it is feared the head will fall. So modern science will bring about destruction of the great figure which was hoary with antiquity when Moses led the Children of Israel away from its shadows towards the Promised Land.

PURGATORY ISLAND, IRELAND

There is a tiny island on Lough Derg in County Donegal, Ireland, known as St. Patrick's Purgatory, so called from an old tradition that St. Patrick once banished from it the evil spirits which were supposed to exist there. After this the island became a place of pilgrimage, which commences on June 1 and terminates on August 15; during the remainder of the year the island is tenantless. The time usually passed on the island by each pilgrim is three days, which are spent in prayer, the food and drink consisting of one meal in the twenty-four hours of oat cake and tea without sugar or milk. About 6,000 pilgrims visit the island annually.

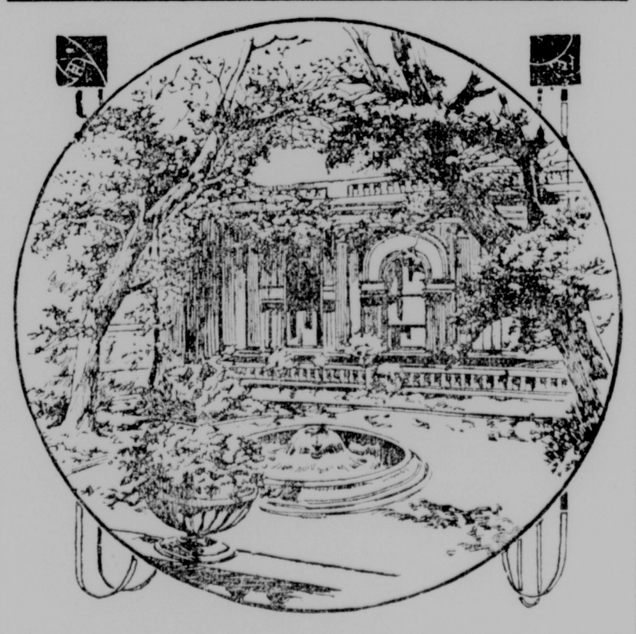
Garden of Bank of England



London possesses many more curious features than are set down in the average guide book, not a few of them unknown even to those who reckon themselves among the most devoted sons of Cockayne. How many know, for instance, that there is a garden in the middle of the Bank of England? Yet such is literally the fact. It is situated just inside the Threadneedle street entrance to the bank, on the left hand side, leading to the Bill office, and presents a delightful haunt of ancient peace amid the city's "central roar." About thirty-six yards long by some twenty-five yards wide, the garden has a fountain in the center, graveled paths, and a couple of trees, one of them of considerable size, the whole forming a quadrangle, with the bank buildings running all around. The reader may well wonder how, right in the heart of the city, where land is probably more valuable than anywhere else in the world, this garden came into existence.

The history of the matter is rather curious. This quaint old garden is in reality the churchyard of the vanished church of St. Christopher-le-Stock—so-called because of its proximity to the Stock market (fish and flesh), which formerly stood where the Mansion house is today. St. Christopher's was pulled down in 1781, when the bank was being enlarged, and the garden of today is its old churchyard. It is said that one cause of the demolition of the church was the fear lest it should ever be occupied by rioters to the danger of the bank, the premises of which were completely overlooked from its tower—fear which was doubtless intensified by the "No Popery" riots of 1870, when, it way be remembered, some of the rioters marched to the bank and tried to break in.

TEACHER BUILDS ODD HOME

A house up in the trees is the unusual home being built in Minneapolis by Prof. C. F. Dight of the chair of materia medica at the University of Minnesota.

When people ask Mr. Dight why he is building his house ten feet or more off the ground, his reply is: "Why do you build your houses on the ground?" Afterwards, however, he explains.

Mr. Dight says he is building his house high for three reasons: First, that the ground is low and damp, owing to the proximity of Minnehaha creek; second, that he gets a better view, and third, that he gets more air and sunshine.

The queer house is supported on iron piles. It is 18 by 22 feet, with a cupola big enough for another room. It has two living rooms and the usual accessories. Outside it is of rough plaster and tile, the floor being of wood laid on cement. The floors are double spaced and a hot water heating system will keep warm air under them. There are 15 windows in the house, and under every window is a lattice work, admitting more air. This will be arranged so that some of the air can be cut off in severe weather, although the house is designed as an all-year house.

Mr. Dight is a bachelor and intends to occupy his air bungalow all alone unless he decides to install some worthy medical student in the cupola.

COW GOES ON A CIDER JAG

The inmates of the Clinton (Mass.) almshouse were deprived of their usual supply of milk several days recently on account of the inebriety of the poor farm cow. One Saturday morning it was a difficult task for John Ewart, the warden of the poor farm, to get the cow into the barn. The animal staggered, and, believing that the cow was ill, the warden telephoned to a veterinarian. When the latter arrived he gave one look at the cow and said: "That cow is drunk."

Investigation bore out the truth of his statement. The cow had found her way to a pile of cider apples and had eaten so much of the fruit that she could neither see nor walk straight.

VOICE EXPERT TRAINS RAT

J. W. Wallace, instructor in voice culture of Canal Dover, O., has been training a small rat he captured. The rodent now will leap over a pencil, stand on its hind legs at his commands, give two squeals for "yes" and one for "no," besides doing a multitude of other things. Wallace expects to place it on exhibition.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE

Number of State Institutions Is Double During the Past Two Years.

Sixteen state sanatoria, 28 county hospitals and 21 municipal hospitals for tuberculosis have been erected and provided for since January 1, 1909, says a recent bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

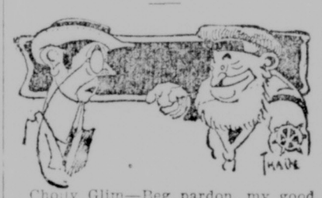
Within the last two years the number of state institutions for tuberculosis has doubled, and the number of county and municipal institutions has increased from about 30 to 80. The expenditures of public money for the treatment of tuberculosis also has more than doubled. Not less that $3,000,000 of state money was appropriated for tuberculosis institutions in 1909, when 43 legislatures met, and over $600,000 in 1910, when only 11 legislatures were in session. The appropriations of counties and cities for tuberculosis hospitals and sanatoria in the last two years will aggregate fully $2,500,000, bringing the total of official appropriations for tuberculosis hospitals up to over $6,000,000 in the past two years.

In spite, however, of this good showing, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis states that not one-tenth of the public provision for tuberculosis that is needed has been made. More than 250,000 tuberculosis patients are constantly without proper institutional treatment.

SKIN BEAUTY PROMOTED

In the treatment of affections of the skin and scalp which torture, disfigure, itch, burn, scale and destroy the hair, as well as for preserving, purifying and beautifying the complexion, fallible. Millions of women throughout the world rely on these pure, sweet and gentle emollients for all purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery, and for the sanative, antiseptic cleansing of ulcerated, inflamed mucous surfaces. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp, Boston, Mass., sole Proprietors of the Cuticura Remedies, will mail free, on request, their latest 32-page Cuticura Book on the skin and hair.

MONOCLE



Choly Glim—Beg pardon, my good man, but how can I find the customs office?

Jack Tar—I'll tell ye, mate; shift yer lantern from starboard to port and foller the twist in yer face.

Kept Umbrella Thirty Years.

A faithful old umbrella which has shielded the family of Dr. James A. Mullican of Greenwood avenue from the storms of 30 years, was stolen on Sunday. During the rain on that day the physician lent the umbrella to E. A. Seck, and while the latter was in a store some one stole it.

"The umbrella belonged to my father and has been in the family for more than thirty years," said Doctor Mullican the other night. "It has been covered several times.

"To persons who are unable to keep the same umbrella for more than thirty days this may seem incredible, but it is true," concluded Doctor Mullican with a smile.—Chicago Tribune.

The Modern Way.

A couple of young men on the Market street viaduct the other evening offered a new version of an old saw. After they had passed a couple of auburn-haired damsels one of the young men took his stand at the curb and gazed up and down the bridge.

"What are you looking for?" inquired his companion.

Pointing to the red-headed girls, the young man answered: "I'm trying to see a white automobile."—Youngstown Telegram.

WONDERED WHY.
Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 pounds. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

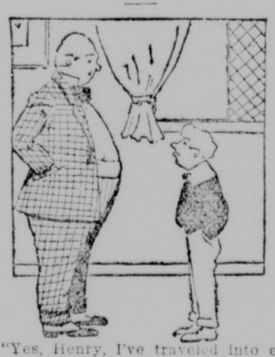
THE CENSUS OF CANADA

ITS GROWTH IN TEN YEARS PAST.

A census of the Dominion of Canada will be made during 1911. It will show that during the past decade a remarkable development has taken place, and, when compared with the population, a greater percentage of increase in industries of all kinds than has ever been shown by any country. Commerce, mining, agriculture and railways have made a steady march onward. The population will be considerably over 8,000,000. Thousands of miles of railway lines have been construction since the last census was taken ten years ago. This construction was made necessary by the opening up of the new agricultural districts in Western Canada, in which there have been pouring year after year an increasing number of settlers, until the present year will witness settlement of over 300,000, or a trifle less than one-third of the immigration to the United States during the same period with its 92,000,000 of population. Even with these hundreds of thousands of newcomers, the great majority of whom go upon the land, there is still available room for hundreds of thousands additional. The census figures will therefore show a great—a vast—increase in the number of farms under occupation, as well as in the output of the farms. When the figures of the splendid immigration are added to the natural increase, the total will surprise even the most optimistic. To the excellent growth that the western portion of Canada will show may largely be attributed the commercial and industrial growth of the eastern portion of Canada. All Canada is being upbuilded, and in this transformation there is taking part the people from many countries, but only from those countries that produce the strong and vigorous. As some evidence of the growth of the western portion of Canada, in agricultural industry, it is instructive to point out that over 100,000 homesteads of 160 acres each have been transferred to actual settlers in the past two years. This means 25,000 square miles of territory, and then, when is added the 40,000 160-acre preemption blocks, there is an additional 10,000 square miles, or a total of 35,000 square miles—a territory as large as the State of Indiana, and settled within two years. Reduced to the producing capacity imperative on the cultivation restriction of 50 acres of cultivation on each 160-acre homestead within three years, there will be within a year and a half from now upwards of 5,000,000 additional acres from this one source added to the entire producing area of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In 1901, at the time of the last census of Canada, successful agriculture in the Provinces of Monitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was an experiment to many. There were skeptics who could not believe that it was possible to grow thirty, forty and even fifty bushels of wheat to the acre, or that as high as one hundred and thirty bushels of oats to the acre could be grown. The skeptics are not to be found today. The evidence of the hundreds of thousands of farmers is too overwhelming. Not only have the lands of western Canada proven their worth in the matter of raising all the smaller field grains, but for mixed farming, and for cattle raising there is no better country anywhere. The climate is perfectly adapted to all these pursuits as well as admirable for health. The Dominion government literature, descriptive of the country, is what all that are interested should read. Send for a copy to the nearest Canadian government representative.

ACCURACY



"Yes, Henry, I've traveled into every corner of the globe."

"The globe is a spherical body, uncle. Therefore it has no corners!"—Chips.

The Happy Man.

"I hear she is to be married. Who is the happy man?"

"Her father."—Lippincott's.

Worth Its Weight in Gold.

PETTIT'S EYE SALVE strengthens old eyes, tonic for eye strain, weak and watery eyes. Druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

Some men are always looking for a chance to earn money, and some are satisfied if they merely get it.

In case of pain on the lungs Hamlins Wizard Oil acts like a mustard plaster, except that it is more effective and is so much nicer and cleaner to use.

Some women wear big hats because they have small heads.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The noblest motive is the public good.—Virgil.

LOVE TO RULE HUMAN BROTHERHOOD

By REV. W. H. MEDLAR
Pastor of Linden Hills Congregational Church, Minneapolis

TEXT—A new commandment give I unto you, that you love one another.—John XIII, 34.

This was a new idea that Jesus proclaimed to men. It was a fruit that ripened in the genial atmosphere which he himself brought into the world. This social consciousness or love for others was a plant of slow growth. The world had already arrived at a good age when it began to recognize this great principle.

Think for a moment of the genesis or evolution of love. When we note the difference between the ancient time, when the tribe or clan was the only bond between men, all outside being considered enemies, and these modern times when a peace conference at The Hague unites the leading nations of the earth, we can see that a great change has taken place in the thoughts of men and nations toward each other. This is a creation far greater than the physical worlds.

Something of the geologist's sense of time must be appreciated. Ages and eons rather than years or even centuries must be considered. The impassioned reformer needs to be trained to patience in his anticipation of these best things.

It took nearly 100 years for this country to insert the anti-slavery clause, which Thomas Jefferson rejected, into the Declaration of Independence. This star, not yet risen in Washington's time, came to the horizon on Lincoln's day.

The encroachment of the sea upon the continent is not more steady and resistless than the climbing of the masses of humanity into the prerogatives and favorable conditions once monopolized by the few. Well furnished homes, with musical instruments, higher education, amusements, luxuries that once were limited to the rich and noble, are today becoming the widespread heritage of the common people.

One characteristic of President McKinley's administration was making nearly a hundred appointments from the ranks of the laboring man.

The classes of intelligence, wealth and leisure are no longer looking with stoical indifference upon the multitude in their pitiful ignorance, but with sympathetic attention to the causes which produce and the forces which may change these unhappy conditions. When all grades of society will begin to co-operate in raising mankind to the highest possible level, then it will be recognized that the life is more than meat and the body than raiment, and man will have gone far in entering upon his universal kingdom.

Christian socialism teaches that the individual cannot live unto himself, and that the social individual is the necesary unit of feeling. A maximum of relationship with every kind of peoples is the substance of the true individual.

What, then, do we mean by the awakening of social consciousness—this love for our fellows? It means that we are clearly awakening to the tug of common life—the beat of its heart, the thunder of its tread. Does the mother recognize the tug of her child, perhaps at the skirts of her dress, or as the little hand wiggles into hers by her side. The tug of 100,000 coal miners, in their oppression and wronged conditions! When this common life of humanity, with its toil and sweat, became organized, the tug could no longer be resisted. Selfish and materialistic capital, with its greed, had to give way. So must the social consciousness in the right of others be compelled to come to standards of justice and mutual rights.

There is the tug of 10,000 children from dusty, grimy, poorly ventilated factories. Their cry is for freedom.

The cry is for better prenatal conditions. Formation is more important than reformation. Marriage laws need reconstruction to prevent irresponsible births of children. Children entering life with such low vitality, because of the vice or overworked condition of the parents that they cannot compete in the struggle of life, and hence are thrown upon society as paupers or criminals.

The tug of patriotism, how it penetrates and burrows into the soul. Great life purposes are laid aside. Glad delights are exchanged for endurance of pain. This is the tug of the nation for its safety. So also should the soul awaken to the universal cry of the race for freedom and safety.

It is to the interests of all sides that the readjustment of the social classes should come as a steady evolutionary process rather than as a social catastrophe. It is unchristian to regard human life as a mere instrument or chattel for the production of wealth.

Fraternal redemption can only come when the brotherly idea is fully recognized. We have passed the age of heroes and institutions and have come to the era of the people.

Well has Jesus said, "A new commandment give I unto you, that ye love one another." Jesus Christ, a new circle, a new center, a new atmosphere is necessary. Now for a leavening. Let this new life sift into every nook and crevice and corner of human life and human society. "He that saith I love God and loveth not his brother is a liar."

TEMPERANCE NOTES

TEMPERANCE GAIN IN AFRICA

Substantial Advance Made When Government Buys Rights of Long-Privileged "Concessionaries."

Reports from South Africa show that a substantial step in advance has recently been made by the temperance cause in that country. A serious abstacle to the development of sober habits among both natives and settlers has been removed by the action of the British government in purchasing the rights of the long-privileged "Liquor Concessionaries" which still obtained.

The "liquor concessionaries" in South Africa have for many years been opposed by the temperance forces of the country, who desired to see the temptation which they induced wherever they went abolished, since, though their numbers were limited, the liberty they possessed made them a real danger.

The history of these people is a peculiar one. Many years ago the Cape government granted to twelve men, and their eldest or surviving son, for three generations, the right to sell spirits wherever they chose in return for services rendered. Certain conditions were attached to this privilege, one of which was that no natives were to be supplied. The "liquor concessionaire," as he was termed, had a free hand, and traveled the up-country districts with a wagon full of spirits, outspanning where he pleased, and remaining as long as it paid him to do so.

The clergy and missionaries contended against the continuance of this privilege, as did the traders, but the permit was held, and the authorities were unable to recall it. Three of the original concessionaires left no successors, and their right died with them; other holders infringed the rule as to supplying natives, and by so doing forfeited their rights; but others still continued the trade.

By degrees, the number of those who could carry on this trade diminished, but for several years past the last holders of the privilege were commonly known even in the most remote places where they practised their special privilege. The concessionaire made his own prices, which were always less than those charged at the hotels and stores; but as some of these men were the proprietors of three or four fully spanned and equipped wagons, it is possible they equalized the reduction in prices by an equal reduction in quality. According to a recent report from the colony, however, the government has at last succeeded in purchasing the rights of the remaining holders, and most of the evils which followed the trail of the liquor concessionaire's wagon will be abated, to the decided advantage of the whole country.

METHODS OF LIQUOR DEALER

Salesman Employed by Certain Brewery Tells of Inside Facts—Couldn't Stand Drinking.

A man who was formerly employed as salesman by a certain brewery gave up his employment because he could not stand the drinking he was expected to do. In speaking of this to an acquaintance he said:

"Until you know what they are up to from the inside you have but a faint idea of the methods of the liquor men. In the eight months of employment by the brewery I learned more about shady methods than I ever suspected before. In three months before an election I personally spent for the brewery more than $1,800 to help fix the voters so that the town would not go dry. The wets won the election by eight votes. In that town the brewery cleaned up more than $1,800 per month above all expenses, so it could well afford to buy votes, and it did buy them and pay for them in cold cash."

In speaking of the methods of the police in his town, he said the music had been ordered out of the saloons in order to force the saloon men to pay the police for restoring the privilege of which they had been deprived. He also said that whenever the mayor of the town planned a raid on saloons that were violating the law, the chief of police would call up the saloonkeepers on the 'phone and "put them next," so that nothing would be found by the raiders.

He said local saloon men were paying large sums to be kept posted as to who was working against them, and these men were being photographed and pointed out to all members of the Liquor Dealers' association.

Kaiser as Temperance Advocate.

A short time ago much interest was roused by the report of the Kaiser's lecture to German students on the evils of beer drinking. It was also affirmed that his imperial majesty was practically an abstainer. However this may be, it is now asserted in special reports to the English press from Germany that it is the Kaiser's personal wish that the troops taking part in the extensive manœuvers shall be "as abstemious as possible in the direction of intoxicating liquors." It is also affirmed that his majesty sets a perfect example himself by drinking only non-alcoholic beverages during the period—usually mineral waters."

Mistletoe Is Dangerous.

Few people who know mistletoe only as a desirable feature of Christmas decorations understand that the plant is a parasite dangerous to the life of trees in the regions in which it grows. It is only a question of time, after mistletoe once begins to grow upon a tree before the tree itself will be killed. The parasite saps the life of the infected branches. Fortunately, it is of slow growth, taking years to develop to large proportions, but when neglected, it invariably ruins all trees it reaches.

English Women Smoke Pipes.

The latest fancy of the woman-smoker is a pipe—not the tiny affair that suffices for the Japanese, but a good-sized brier or a neat meerschaum. The pipe is boldly carried along with a gold card case and chain-purse. For some time now the cigarette has given place to a cigar, small in size and mild in quality. Women said they were tired of the cigarette, and wanted a bigger smoke. —London Mail.

Cripple Rides Bicycle.

George Anstey, aged 12, a cripple, of Leicester, England, is one of the most remarkable cyclists in the country. Both his legs are withered and useless, but the Leicester Cripples' Guild has provided him with a two-wheeled pedalless machine, with a padded tube covering the axle bar. Across this he lies face foremost, and with wooden clogs strapped to his hands he propels himself along the streets and roads in a marvelously rapid manner. He has complete control of the machine, his hands acting as pedals, steering gear, and brake combined.

Pretty Good Definition.

We hear some funny things in Fleet street sometimes, and the following definition of the height of aggravation, by a gentleman in rather shaky boots, whom we encountered in a well-known hostelry the other day, struck us as being particularly choice.

"The 'eight of haggravation, gentlemen," said this pothouse humorist, setting his pewter on the counter and looking round proudly, with the air of one about to let off a good thing, "the 'eight of haggravation—why, trying to ketch a flea out o' yer ear with a pair of boxin' gloves."—London Tit-Bits.

An Alaskan Luncheon.

Runners of woven Indian basketry, with white drawnwork doilies at each of the 12 covers, were used on an oval mahogany table. The doilies were made at Sitka. In the middle of the table a mirror held a tall central vase of frosted glass, surrounded by four smaller vases, all filled with white spring blossoms. The edge of the mirror was banked with the same flowers. Four totem poles were placed on doilies in the angles made by the runners.

Place cards were water colors of Alaskan scenery. Abalone shells held salted nuts, and tiny Indian baskets held bonbons. The soup spoons were of horn, several of the dishes used were made by Alaskan Indians, and the cakes were served on baskets.

The menu was as follows: Poisson a la Bering Sea (halibut chowder), Yukon climbers (broiled salmon, potatoes Julienne), snowbirds avec auroraborealis (roast duck with jelly), Shungnak river turnips, Tanana beets, Skagway hash (salad), Fairbanks nuggets (ripe strawberries arranged on individual dishes around a central mound of powdered sugar), arctic slices (brick ice cream), Circle City delights (small cakes), Klondike nuggets (yellow cheese in round balls on crackers), Nome firewater (coffee). —Woman's Home Companion.

Acknowledgment.

"You will admit that you owe a great deal to your wife?"

"I should say so," replied Mr. Cumrox. "I wouldn't be invited to any of her receptions or musicales if I wasn't married to her."

Disqualified.

Her—My brother won first prize in that amateur guessing contest, but they ruled him out as a professional.

Him—A professional?

Her—Yes. He's employed in the government bureau, you know.

Lightning Change.

The Manager—Can you make quick changes and double in a few parts?

The Actor—Can I? Say, you know the scene in "Love and Lobsters," where the hero and the villain are fighting, and a friend rushes in and separates 'em? Well, I played all three parts one night when the other two fellows were ill.

Not Altogether Dead.

Mr. Robert Butler of Marlborough, England, has had the peculiar experience of hearing his death announced. He was attending the poor law conference at Exeter when one of the delegates moved that, in consequence of the death of Mr. Butler, which they all regretted, another gentleman, whom he named, should be appointed to fill his place as one of the representatives of Wiltshire on the central committee. Mr. Butler rose from his place on the platform and announced to the conference, amid much amusement, that, so far as he was aware, he was still alive and in good health, and would be pleased to continue in the office if the conference desired.

Bankers and Bank Notes.

Four men, three of whom were connected with brokerage concerns in the Wall street district, were discussing United States paper currency and the disappearance of counterfeits. "We are so sure nowadays," said one of the party, "as to the genuineness of bills that little attention is paid to them in handling, except as to denomination." To prove his assertion he took a $10 yellowback from his pocket, and, holding it up, asked who could tell whose portrait it bore. No one knew, and by way of coaching the broker said it was the first treasurer of the United States. Again no one knew the name. "Why, It's Michael Hillegas," said the man proudly. "But in confidence, I'll tell you, I didn't know it five minutes ago."—New York Tribune.

Vivid at Least.

Dr. Hiram C. Cortlandt, the well-known theologian of Des Moines, said in a recent address:

"Thomas A. Edison tells us that he thinks the soul is not immortal; but, after all, what does this great wizard know about souls? His forte is electricity and machinery, and when he talks of souls he reminds me irresistibly of the young lady who visited the Baldwin locomotive works and then told how a locomotive is made.

"'You pour,' she said, 'a lot of sand into a lot of boxes, and you throw old stove lids and things into a furnace, and they you empty the molten stream into a hole in the sand, and everybody yells and swears. Then you pour it out and let it cool and pound it, and then you put it in a thing that bores holes in it. Then you screw it together, and paint it, and put steam in it, and it goes splendidly; and they take it to a drafting room and make a bluep rint of it. But one thing I forgot—they have to make a boiler. One man gets inside and one gets outside, and they pound frightfully; and then they tie it to the other thing, and you ought to see it go!'"

Echoes of Munchausen.

It was an absent-minded traveler who had lately taken to ballooning.

"Yes," he observed impressively. "It was a fearful journey. The machine, a thousand feet up, and no more ballast, headed straight for Siberia, and the rarefied air—well, you know as well as I do what effect that has on a balloon.. Yes, the peril was terrible." Then the old habit was too strong for him. "The wolves detected our presence. A desperate race ensued. We felt their hot breath on the nape of our necks."—London Globe.

Largest of Whales.

The largest whale of its type of which there is scientific record was captured recently off Port Arthur, Tex. He measured sixty-three feet in length, and was estimated to be about three hundred years old. Captain Cob Plummer, mate of a United States pilot boat, sighted the monster in the shoals off the jetties, and the crew of his vessel captured the mammal. The huge body was towed ashore, exhibited and much photographed before being cut up.

Rat Bounty Excites Merriment.

Seattle, fearing the introduction of bubonic plague by rats, has offered a bounty of ten cents a rat. This moves Tacoma, safe from infection from the sea, to raucous laughter, and the Ledger says that the bounty, "though not intended for rodents of Tacoma, Everett, Bellingham and other populous and busy centers, has been finding its way into the pockets of non-residents of Seattle for non-resident rats. But the joke would be on us if it were found that our rat population had found its way into the Seattle census."

Two Very Old Ladies.

We have heard a great deal lately about long-lived people, but it is probable that the oldest two people in the world today are Frau Dutkievitz and another old lady named Babavaslika.

The former lives at Posem, in Prussian Poland, and was born on February 21, 1785. She is therefore one hundred and twenty-five years old. The latter, however, is nine months her senior, having been born in May, 1784.

She is still a fairly hale old woman, and for nearly one hundred years worked in the fields. Her descendants number close on 100, and these now make her a joint allowance. She lives at the village of Bavelsko, whose neighborhood she has never quitted during the whole of her long life. She remembers events which happened at the beginning of last century much more clearly than those of the last 40 years.—Dundee Advertiser.

Too Ardent a Lover.

Georgotto Fontano, an embroiderer who lives in the Rue Sevres in Paris, has found herself condemned to a month's imprisonment for what seems to her a harmless act.

She was going home from a concert a few evenings ago when she decided she would like to see her fiance. As he happens to be a fireman whose station is in her own neighborhood it occurred to her it would be very easy to summon him to her side by breaking the glass of the fire alarm and sounding a call.

She did so anr in a few moments fire engines came from several directions, all laden with firemen, of course, but alas! her fiance was not among them, and more than that all the firemen were angry, and before she knew what had happened she was taken to a magistrate, who proceeded to make the course of true love run unsmoothly by sending her to prison for a month in spite of her tears and protests that she thought it would be a simple way of bringing her fiance to her side.

The Bright Side.

Nebuchadnezzar was lurching in his accustomed style.

"All flesh being grass," he reflected, "this must be Beef a la Mowed."

And chuckling hoarsely, he took another chaw.—Puck.

Kindly Intentions.

"A man who enjoys seeing a woman in tears is a brute."

"I don't know about that," replied Miss Cayenne. "One of the kindest husbands I know takes his wife to see all the emotional plays."

Takes Himself Seriously.

Nicola Tesla, dining by himself in a hotel's great dining room, takes a table where he can be seen. Throughout his meal he wears a deeply studious, a completely absorbed, attitude. He may bring to the table a portfolio filled with papers. These he may scan with prolonged solemnity. In any event, he sits an eloquent tableau of profundity.—New York Press.

Holidays in the States.

Washington's birthday is a holiday in all states. Decoration day in all states but Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas. Labor day is observed everywhere. Virtually every state has legal holidays having to do with its own special affairs—battle of New Orleans in Louisiana, Texan independence and battle of San Jacinto in Texas, Admission day in California, and so on. Mississippi is like the federal government in lack of statutory holidays, but by common consent Independence day, Thanksgiving and Christmas are observed. A new one is Columbus day in a few of the states.

Planting Wedding Oaks.

Princess August Wilhelm, wife of the kaiser's fourth son, has set herself the task of reviving one of Germany's oldest customs, that according to which newly wedded couples immediately after the marriage ceremony plant a couple of oak saplings side by side in a park or by the roadside of their native town.

The town of Mulchausen, in Thuringia, is the first to respond to the princess' appeal. A municipal official appears at the church door after every wedding and invites the bride and bridegroom to drive with him in a carriage to a new road near the town and there plant oak saplings.

The tree planting idea was started by a former elector of Brandenburg with the object of repairing the ravages caused by the 30 years' war. The elector forbade young persons to marry until they had planted a number of fruit trees.

An Unnecessary Confession.

A hearty laugh was occasioned at the Birmingham police court by a prisoner who gave himself away in a very delightful manner. The man was the first on the list, and the charge against him was merely one of being drunk and disorderly. He stepped into the dock, however, just at the moment when the dock officer was reading out a few of the cases which were to come before the court that morning, and a guilty conscience apparently led him to mistake these items for a list of his previous convictions.

He stood passive enough while the officer read out about a dozen drunk and disorderlies, but when he came to one "shopbreaking" the prisoner exclaimed excitedly, "That was eight years ago, your honor." Everyone began to laugh, and the prisoner, realizing the blunder he had made, at first looked very black indeed, but finally saw the humorous side of the matter, and a broad smile spread over his face. His blunder did not cost anything.—Birmingham Mail.

That Suit for Libel

Against the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Gave a Splendid Chance to Bring Out Facts

A disagreement about advertising arose with a "weekly" Journal.

Following it, an attack on us appeared in their editorial columns; sneering at the claims we made particularly regarding Appendicitis.

We replied through the regular papers and the "weekly" thought we hit back rather too hard and thereupon sued for libel.

The advertisement the "weekly" attacked us about claimed that in many cases of appendicitis an operation could be avoided by discontinuing indigestible food, washing out the bowels and taking a predigested food Grape-Nuts.

Observe we said MANY cases not all.

Wouldn't that knowledge be a comfort to those who fear a surgeon's knife as they fear death?

The "weekly" writer said that was a lie.

We replied that he was ignorant of the facts.

He was put on the stand and compelled to admit he was not a Dr. and had no medical knowledge of appendicitis and never investigated to find out if the testimonal letters to our Co. were genuine.

A famous surgeon testified that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would not obviate it. "True.

We never claimed that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would prevent it.

The surgeon testified bacteria [germs] helped to bring on an attack and bacteria was grown by undigested food frequently.

We claimed and proved by other famous experts that undigested food was largely responsible for appendicitis.

We showed by expert testimony that many cases are healed without a knife, but by stopping the use of food which did not digest, and when food was required again it was helpful to use a predigested food which did not overtax the weakened organs of digestion.

When a pain in the right side appears it is not always necessary to be rushed off to a hospital and at the risk of death be cut.

Plain common sense shows the better way is to stop food that evidently has not been digested.

Then, when food is required, use an easily digested food. Grape-Nuts or any other if you know it to be predigested (partly digested before taking).

We brought to Court analytical chemists from New York, Chicago and Mishawaka, Ind., who swore to the analysis of Grape-Nuts and that part of the starchy part of the wheat and barley had been transformed into sugar, the kind of sugar produced in the human body by digesting starch (the large part of food).

Some of the State chemists brought on by the "weekly" said Grape-Nuts could not be called a "predigested" food because not all of it was digested outside the body.

The other chemists said any food which had been partly or half digested outside the body was commonly known as "predigested."

Splitting hairs about the meaning of a word.

It is sufficient that if only one-half of the food is "predigested," it is easier on weakened stomach and bowels than food in which no part is predigested.

To show the facts we introduce Dr. Thos. Darlington, former chief of the N. Y. Board of Health, Dr. Ralph W. Webster, chief of the Chicago Laboratories and Dr. B. Sachs, N. Y.

If we were a little severe in our denunciation of a writer, self-confessed ignorant about appendicitis and its cause, it is possible the public will excuse us, in view of the fact that our head, Mr. C. W. Post, has made a lifetime study of food, food digestion and effects, and the conclusions are indorsed by many of the best medical authorities of the day.

Is it possible that we are at fault for suggesting, as a Father and Mother might, to one of the family who announced a pain in the side: "Stop using the food, greasy meats, gravies, mince pie, cheese, too much starchy food, etc., etc., which has not been digested, then when again ready for food use Grape-Nuts because it is easy of digestion?"

Or should the child be at once carted off to a hospital and cut?

We have known of many cases wherein the approaching signs of appendicitis have disappeared by the suggestion being followed.

No one better appreciates the value of a skilful physician when a person is in the awful throes of acute appendicitis, but "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Just plain old common sense is helpful even nowadays.

This trial demonstrated Grape-Nuts food is pure beyond question.

It is partly predigested.

Appendicitis generally has rise from undigested food.

It is not always necessary to operate.

It is best to stop all food.

When ready to begin feeding use a predigested food.

It is palatable and strong in Nourishment.

It will pay fine returns in health to quit the heavy breakfasts and lunches and use less food but select food certainly known to contain the elements nature requires to sustain the body. May we be permitted to suggest a breakfast of fruit. Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs, and some hot toast and cocoa, milk or Postum?

The question of whether Grape-Nuts does or does not contain the elements which nature requires for the nourishment of the brain, also of its purity, will be treated in later newspaper articles.

Good food is important and its effect on the body is also important.

"There's a Reason"

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.,
Battle Creek, Mich.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle

God's Message of Comfort To the Jews

"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned; for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins."—Isaiah xl, 1, 2.

[illegible].—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle today addressed an immense audience in the world's greatest Auditorium, the Royal Albert Hall. Many of his audience were Jews, attracted by the liberal extracts from Pastor Russell's sermons which have been appearing in the Jewish papers all over the world. The discourse was full of comforting assurances (both to Jew and Gentile) of the glorious outcome to the Divine Plan, as respects our world and its inhabitants. We report the address only in part, as follows:—

There can be no doubt that the words of our text apply, not to Spiritual Israel and the heavenly Jerusalem, but to the Seed of Jacob, for many centuries travailing in pain—a nation without a land, people possessing most wonderful promises, yet enjoying none of them—a people scattered amongst all other peoples; yet, in harmony with the Divine promise made at the beginning of their organization, they have been preserved separate and distinct from all other nations! The Jews are a miracle in themselves. They witness to the civilized world God's promises and the power thereof in the human mind. As foretold in the Scriptures for long centuries they have had no Prophet, no Priest, no ephod, no vision from God, no revelation. The people to whom at one time belonged the honor of being the only people to whom the Divine purposes were revealed have for more than eighteen centuries been left destitute of any evidence of Divine favor, except in this one fact, that their solidarity as a people is preserved.

We are not of those who rail against the Jew; who cry out, "Christ-killers; the vengeance of God is upon you, and what you have suffered is only a foretaste of more awful sufferings for all eternity!" Thank God, No! We have no such evil sentiment in our heart. We have nothing for the Jew but sympathy, even while in him, as in others of Adam's children, we may see much to reprehend; nevertheless, we also see his commendable qualities. Among others, we see the quality which God so greatly appreciated in Abraham; namely, faith in his God and in the Divine promises. Such a faith has inspired "God's Chosen People" to wait for his promised Messianic Kingdom, lo, these many centuries—through all kinds of discouragements, disappointments and persecutions.

The long-promised time of Israel's exaltation as the channel of Messianic blessing to mankind is near—it hasteth greatly. What though there shall be another and great spasm of tribulation in conjunction with the birth of the New Order of things! Beyond the sighing and the crying, the morning dawns—the glorious day in which the Sun of Righteousness shall chase from the world all the shadows of death and despair, which sin and its penalty have brought upon mankind! What though the Scriptures tell us that Israel is yet to have "The time of Jacob's trouble" in connection with the world's great time of trouble impending. None of these things shall hinder us from rejoicing in the New Heavens and the New Earth, which God declares he is about to create and put into control of our world—"Be ye glad and rejoice forever in that which I create" (Isaiah lxv, 18).

The New Heavens and the New Earth are but symbolical terms for the consideration of that New Era, in which there will be a new social order, as well as a new ecclesiastical system, eternal in the heavens.

The time has come when our text is having its fulfillment. The shining of the lamp of Truth upon the prophetic page shows us that the great clock of the Universe is marking the hour when he whose right it is shall take to himself his great power and reign. Ah, yes! We remember that it is written that then the nations shall be angry, and God's wrath shall be manifest, and then the time shall come for the judgment of the dead and the reward of all, both small and great. But we are glad, nevertheless, that the "times of the Gentiles" are nearly at an end and the time of Messiah's theocratic government is at hand—For he must reign until he shall have put down all unrighteousness and insubordination, until he shall have caused every knee to bow and every tongue to confess to the glory of God the Father.

First in order of the Kingdom work will be the binding of Satan—the work of a heavenly, and not of an earthly king. Gradually, in the judgments, decrees, rewards, punishments of mankind and the banishing of sin and death will the great King of Glory reveal his own gracious character and the Father's righteousness to the children of men. Gradually all will have the eyes of their understanding opened to see, not only the Father of all in his true character, but also the Son in his glorious majesty—the Conqueror, "who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame," and hence is at the right hand of Divine majesty and entrusted with the pouring out of the Divine blessing upon Israel, and, through Israel, extending that blessing to every nation.

One King, but Two Kingdoms.

It has escaped Christendom in general until now that the Divine promise to Abraham is to be fulfilled through two Seeds—one a heavenly class, the other an earthly class, with Messiah the Head over all. For eighteen centuries God favored the Seed of Abraham, the nation of Israel. Chastisements they had, reproofs in righteousness; yet in all that time they had also Divine favor, as represented in their Law and in the Prophecies and in the privileges which came to them under the Law Covenant, in that they had an annual Atonement Day, which continued to them Divine favor. That period of favor, explain it how we may, began to wane about the time of Jesus' death. It was completely removed from them in the desolation of their land by the Roman army A. D. 70. Now a parallel time has been reached, as stated in our text. Hence it is time for the return of God's favor, as herein mentioned. The favor already is returning.

The Jew has not been so comfortable, nor so favorably fixed as he is today, in more than eighteen centuries. But his blessing is only beginning. Shortly Divine favor, in God's due time, will accomplish for his Chosen People all the precious promises of the Law and of the Prophets. Already the Jew is awakening to a realization of this great Truth. Zionism, which started as a political movement, is about to bud and blossom into a religious movement and the blessing of Divine Providence will so order their affairs. The words of the Book, the words of Divine promise, so long read ignorantly and blindly, are about to become luminous and constitute the light which will direct them in the ways of the Lord—leading on to the rehabilitation of Jerusalem and to the attainment of loftier ideals amongst the Jewish people. A voice is sounding from the wilderness, and the Jews everywhere are hearkening to it. It does not call them to become Christians, but to remain Jews and to realize, as Jews, the ideals set before them by the Lord in the Law and by the Prophets. To all those exercised thereby a great blessing is near, which will more than compensate for the sorrows of the past. Neither by sword, nor guns, nor dreadnaughts, neither by flying air-ships, nor torpedoes will Israel's great victory be won, neither by money power and worshipping of the golden calf of finance, nor by trusting in the arm of flesh, but by looking to the Lord, from whom will come their help.

Messiah's Spiritual Empire, about to be established, will bind Satan, restrain every evil and lift up a standard for the people, blessing Israel and establishing with them the New (Law) Covenant instead of the Old Law Covenant—under the better Mediator, still more capable than the great Moses; under the greater King, still more wise than Solomon and still more beloved of God than David. This great Celestial Empire will be established with great authority in the world by a time of trouble, a time of earthly distress, which the prophecies picture as terrible—a short reign of anarchy. Jews and Gentiles will be responsible, rich and poor, for the bringing to pass of this awful trouble, by reason of the selfishness which at present is governing the world and which will be used of the Lord to wreck our present grand civilization—grand at least on its surface and in its aspirations and pretensions. A Socialistic artillery of words and ecclesiastical bonds of similar nature will only aggravate the strife. Financial weights and levers will have much to do with the great crash of the forces of civilization in this near-approaching cataclysm of trouble, in which the reign of sin, inequity, injustice, selfishness, shall forever fall, to rise no more; and the present religious systems also shall be found wanting and pass away. For these old systems, symbolically the heavens and earth of the present time, will be substituted the New Heavens and the New Earth—the Church glorified beyond the vail as the Bride of the great Messiah, and, Society on earth reorganized, will constitute the New Earth, wherein will dwell righteousness. The transition will be but a momentary ordeal, as compared with the glorious eternity of blessing under Messiah's righteous supervision. "He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth."

Israel's Hopes—Why So Delayed?

The perplexing thought with our Jewish friends, as well as with Christians, is, If these things be so; if Messiah's Kingdom is yet to be established, as the Jews contemplated, only on a spiritual plane instead of an earthly one; and if God's purpose is to use those anciently favored people as the channels of his blessing in the future, why has there been so long delay?

We answer, This is what the Scriptures term The Mystery—the matter which God did not reveal directly, either to Abraham or through any of the Prophets. Indirectly he hinted at it, saying to Abraham, "Thy Seed shall be as the stars of heaven, and as the sand of the seashore for multitude." But Abraham did not discern, nor did others, that these two illustrations belonged, not to the same people, but to two different Israels. The earthly promises belonged to natural Israel. Eventually all mankind, blessed under the Messianic reign, will become Israelites—of the Seed of Abraham. Thus Abraham's "Seed shall be as the sand of the seashore for multitude." And they must all have the faith of Abraham and his obedience ere they can reach perfection as members of his Seed. First in the order of blessing will come the Ancient Worthies—Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the Prophets and holy ones of the past. These will be raised from the dead by the power of God—not imperfect and fallen, but perfect; fully up to all the glorious ideals of their minds aforetime. This will be their reward for having walked by faith and not by sight. Thus we read, Instead of being the fathers, they shall be the children, whom Messiah will make princes in all the earth—his representatives in power, in rulership, in authority (Psalms xlv, 16). At that time the blessing shall return to Israel that has been taken from them for more than eighteen centuries—God's special favor. Under their New Covenant they shall be blessed; their eyes shall be opened; "they shall look upon him whom they pierced;" they shall mourn for him; they shall rejoice in him. They will say, This is our ruler. We have waited for him, and he will save us (Zechariah xii, 10).

Crimes Committed In Jesus' Name.

With shame true Christians must admit that most atrocious crimes were committed in the name of Jesus during the "Dark Ages." Worse than that! The horrible misrepresentation of all that the name of Jesus stands for still continues. Witness, for instance, the injustices practised in the name of Christianity against the Jew in Russia for years past, and in various nations in remoter times. Witness the fact also that only two months ago the so-called Christians of Roumania acted like veritable demons toward their Jewish neighbors. Well-authenticated accounts tell that the Jewish cemetery was despoiled. Many of those buried within the two preceding months were dug up and the putrid and mangled corpses thrown on the steps and in the door-yards of their families. Can we wonder that the Jew has come to have a hatred for the word Christian and for the name Jesus?

The name Jesus, as is well known, is but another form for Joshua, which signifies Deliverer. The name Christ is the Greek equivalent for the word Messiah. Every Jew, rightly informed respecting the character and the teachings of Jesus, is bound to respect him and his immediate followers as amongst the grandest Jews that ever lived. They must not be judged according to the perversion of their teachings, so common amongst Christians. And it should not be forgotten that while the masses of Christendom have misrepresented their teaching, doctrines and practises, there has been throughout the entire age a saintly few who have closely followed in the footsteps of Jesus.

In my preaching I do not urge upon the Jews to become Christians; but I seek to hold forth the Divine standard for them and to assist them to get ready for the fulfillment of the glorious promises which are theirs. That the due time for the fulfillment of these is at hand is the comfort we offer them, in harmony with our text. The Prophet declares that it will be after their return to their own land, and after the great time of trouble which is now impending upon Christendom, that the Jew will recognize that the great Messiah of glory, the great Michael of Daniel xii, 1, for whose Kingdom they have been waiting, is none other than the "Man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all men" eighteen centuries ago. God will then blessedly open their eyes of understanding. As The Prophet declares, "They shall look upon him whom they pierced"; they will then see the identity between the Jesus who was sacrificed for the sins of Israel and the world and the Messiah of Glory, whose Kingdom will use Israel in the blessing of the world.

Meantime, what has God wrought? Ah, this, again, we say is the Mystery! Here and there from Jew and Gentile, saintly characters have been sought and found by the preaching of the message of Christ, even though that message frequently was dimmed by earthly imperfections and blemishes—by erroneous representations. Those saintly ones will be sharers with Messiah in Divine blessings on the spirit plane, mentioned to Abraham under the figure that his "Seed shall be as the stars of heaven." But under what conditions do these attain a spiritual inheritance like unto the angels and far above them? We answer that the spirit nature is the divine reward of a special obedience. Our race was not created on the heavenly plane nor for a heavenly nature; but of the earth earthy. And its salvation from sin will bring it to the full perfection of human nature and to the full enjoyment of a world-wide Eden. The Spiritual Seed of Abraham is to be composed of Messiah and the Elect Little Flock of saintly footstep followers. The price of their exaltation is their consecration unto death and faithfulness to that Vow. These are the Jewels mentioned by the Lord to the Prophet—"Gather together my saints unto me, saith the Lord; those who have made a Covenant with me by sacrifice;" "They shall be mine, in that day when I make up my jewels."

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The ice came but was so encumbered with snow as to make it impossible to house the crop, and now the thaw and rains together with high water have about finished the early crop and we shall have to wait and hope for another.

The new hoisting engine arrived last week and was placed in working order by Mr. Freeland ready for another freeze up.

The special services in the M. E. church commenced Sunday night by an interesting and earnest sermon by the pastor. The services will be continued for two or three weeks.

Miss Sada Laughlin, of Deer Park, was the guest of Miss Maize Prevost last Saturday.

Miss Effie Cuppett returned Monday evening from a visit to relatives in Grafton, W. Va.

Mr. Upton Cuppett was painfully cut in the thigh by an axe while working on his farm near here last Saturday.

M. Chauncy Kimmell is so ill as to be confined to his home.

Miss Blanche Chance left Monday to resume her teaching after spending the holidays at her home here.

Mr. P. B. Goff made a business trip to Piedmont Monday in the interest of his employer, Mr. P. T. Garthright.

Capt. and Mrs. J. A. Hayden spent Monday in Westernport with their son Grant and family.

Mr. Isaac Leighton is seriously ill at the home of his son Mr. H. V. Leighton, in Loch Lynn. Mr. Leighton is eighty-four years old. Later—Mr. Leighton died last night. Funeral services at the son's residence, Loch Lynn, Friday at 2.00 p. m. Interment in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. W. E. Landon is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. V. Harvey.

Prof. F. E. Rathbun, who has been off duty for several weeks on account of illness, went to Piedmont Monday to resume his duties as principal of the public schools in that town.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Pearson, of Missoula, Montana, are visiting Mrs. Peerson's father, Mr. Winchell, of the Park.

Mr. Wm. Traver left Monday to attend the school at Charlotte Hall, Md.

Mrs. Edward Hines and child, of Piedmont, W. Va., are visiting Mrs. Hines grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lev Echard, and other relatives and friends here.

Mr. Samuel Lee, of Baltimore, visited his home here Saturday and Sunday, returning to Baltimore Sunday night.

Mrs. C. F. Dawson and son Harold are visiting Mrs. D.'s daughter, Mrs. W. C. Goodwin, in Grafton, W. Va.

Miss Eve Welch spent her vacation in Cumberland, Md., returning Monday evening to take charge of her school.

Mr. John Ream was elected superintendent of the Loch Lynn U. B. Sunday school last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dunnington and daughter June were visiting in Grafton recently.

Mr. John Stevenson was called to Jefferson, Iowa, Tuesday night on account of the death of his sister.

STOYER.

The holidays passed off very pleasantly in this community, with many joyous family reunions.

A crowd of young people from this place spent a very pleasant evening at the home of Mr. W. G. Riley last week.

Mr. A. Spates Brady was in town several days last week on business.

Rev. E. P. Idleman preached a very helpful sermon Friday night at the home of J. L. Steyer.

Mrs. James Christopher and daughter Ruby have returned home after spending several days with relatives at Elkins, Thomas and Henry, W. Va.

Misses Mae and Willon Williams, Bertha Dilgard, Verta Oats and Marie Shillingberg, of Gorman, were calling on Miss Emma Steyer and Miss Sylvia Christopher one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harvey were visiting relatives here Wednesday.

Miss Grace Riley was calling on friends at Dodson the first of the week.

Capt. W. White was a business caller in town Monday.

Mr. V. L. Steyer is visiting friends and relatives at Ryans Glade.

Mr. C. E. Hilleary was in town Monday and brought the message that the stork had visited his home and left a New Year present. It is a daughter.

Mrs. Emily Wilson, of Cumberland, Md., is visiting friends here.

We wish the readers of this paper a happy and prosperous New Year.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

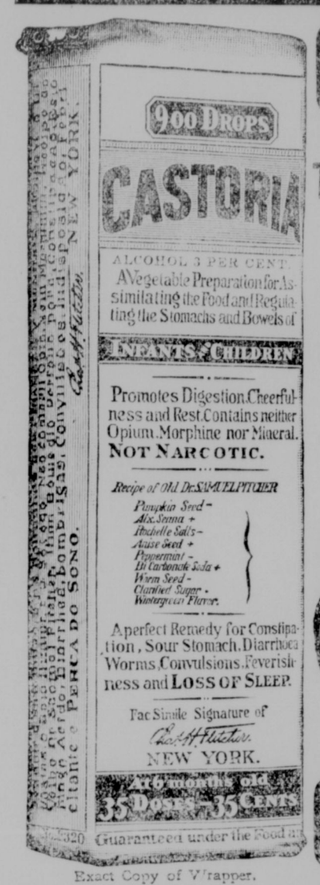
The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2¼ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address

DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Subscribed for The Republican.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

HOYES.

As is our custom we will mention the kind of weather we are having, and we know also it's interesting to quite a number of our friends who are located in some of the warmer States. After having fine sledding for several weeks, we are now experiencing a rainy season which we hope will not last so long. Also the skating is spoiled which too is quite a disappointment to the young folks.

Christmas was a very quiet day in Hoyes. The majority of our people attended the services at McHenry Christmas eve. There also was preaching services New Year's day by Rev. Powers at this place.

John Kirkpatrick returned home Saturday, after spending a week with friends at Oakland and Deer Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Rohmsburg have been making a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Johnson since Saturday.

D. Earle Smith left Hoyes for Annapolis Tuesday after spending the holidays under the parental roof. He returned by way of Friendsville.

D. O. DeWitt and family spent last Sunday with Arthur Custer and wife.

Miss Hattie Enlow spent the holiday week with her sister, Mrs. Hauser.

Miss Oscie Casteel returned to her school at this place, after visiting her sisters at Jenningston, W. Va., the past week.

Charles Callis left Hoyes for Selbysport Monday afternoon where he will again resume his duties as teacher of that school.

Miss Olla Mattingly spent the holidays with her parents and returned to her school at Friendsville Monday.

George Seabold has moved his family to the farm he recently purchased of Charles Johnson.

Dr. Ricketts, of Accident, was called to our town on professional business Tuesday evening. Those he visited were Mrs. C. W. Johnson, Miss Oscie Casteel and the infant child of Mr. Seabold.

Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Friend, of Hoyes, Md., celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home near Hoyes on Dec. 27, 1910. Those present were G. B. M. Friend, wife and daughter; W. S. Friend, wife and son, who reside near Oakland; J. W. Friend, son and daughter, of Friendsville; E. E. Friend, wife and daughter, of Mt. Lake Park; J. Arthur DeWitt and wife, of Hoyes, and Miss Sudie M. Friend, who resides at home with her parents.

The occasion was a very happy and enjoyable one for all present. The day was spent in roaming over the farm and in enjoyable conversation and in singing some of the old hymns and songs so dear to father and mother. Mrs. J. Arthur DeWitt, the youngest daughter, who is an accomplished musician, presided at the organ. The presents consisted principally of gold coins presented by the children and other relatives and friends. Those of the children unable to be present were: L. E. Friend, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Ray C. Friend, of Richwood, W. Va.; Chas. W. Friend, of Homestead, Pa., and Clifford H. Friend, of Chard, Washington.

May God's richest blessings rest upon this couple and many years upon earth enjoyed by them. And may they celebrate their diamond anniversary before they go hence.

HAUSER.

New years day has passed into history. With last Sunday began the breaking of many resolutions made only the night before and ere next year's resolutions are formulated many of our intentions will have been forgotten. A clean and new page should be turned in our account book and old scores forgotten, unkindnesses forgotten and endeavor to treat all humankind with proper consideration. Let us resolve to do our full duty in a conscientious manner and in the end be able to say we have fought a good fight and kept the faith.

It is better to make a small list of resolutions or one and keep it than to make a list as long as an editorial on the insurgents in Congress and fail to live up to it.

Miss Merle Fowler spent the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Hamill, near Swanton.

Stewart Roth has been spending the holidays with home folks. He has been working at Cumberland for some time.

Mrs. D. O. Roth and daughter, Marguerite, are much better at this time.

The little baby of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Best has had an attack of pneumonia, but is convalescing at present.

Mr. Ernest Hauser is visiting among old friends and relatives, and soon return to school.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Winters, Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Floyd Shaffer visited Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roth last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martin and family visited in and near Blaine, W. Va., during the holidays, returning just before the snow disappeared.

It is rumored that wedding bells rang on New Year's day, but we will not mention names, and we will only extend best wishes and a happy New Year to the young people.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,
Executrix.
Mt. Lake Park Md.

43-3t-pd

ORDER NISI.

Wm. E. Hollinger, Late Treasurer of Garrett County, vs. Mary L. Ward and Jennie Wagner.

No. 193, Miscellaneous Docket. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

It is ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, this twentieth day of December, 1910, that the tax sale made and reported in the above entitled cause, by William E. Hollinger, late Treasurer in and for Garrett County, Md., be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 27th day of January, 1911; provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper printed in Garrett county once a week for three successive weeks before the 20th day of January, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $30.56.

ROBERT R. HENDERSON.

True Copy—test: E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Prop'r

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars

Cameras and Photo Supplies

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1911. NUMBER 46

FLUELESS GAS STOVE IS DEADLY

Experts and Health Authorities Warn Against Fatal Practices.

If you burn gas for heating purposes in your home and have no outlet for the fumes of combustion, connect your stove with a flue at once—the fumes are poisoning you and your family.

There is one way to be safe with a hose connection—throw the hose away, send for a plumber, and while he is making a gas connection have him make a connection with the chimney to carry off the fumes.

One ordinary gas jet consumes as much oxygen in a room as six people and a stove consumes many times this amount. Individuals breathe out carbonic acid gas and the product of gas combustion is carbonic acid gas—both poisonous.

The foregoing is the advice of health authorities of Pittsburg, according to the Pittsburg Dispatch, and experts on gas combustion speaking on a matter of crucial importance to the people of this community. The question developed from the many deaths recently, which were directly the result of carelessness or ignorance in the use of natural gas.

Some of these deaths may be traced to the hose connection used on stoves—others resulted from the fumes of burning gas, which in a room without ventilation, are as deadly as the gas itself.

Coroner Jamison advocates strict municipal regulation of the use of gas, with inspection of all apparatus by plumbing inspectors, thus guarding against explosion of escaping gas, asphyxiation from the same cause and poisoning by the escape of gas fumes.

The tolerance of gas fumes in residences is said by competent authorities to be responsible for 50 per cent of the illness prevalent in gas burning districts during the winter. When gas is lighted it immediately begins to consume oxygen in greater quantities than 10 people. If there is not attachment to a flue or chimney the products of combustion pour into the room. In the case of perfect combustion, the product is carbonic acid gas. If combustion is poor, the product is carbonic oxide, a deadly poison. Carbonic oxide was responsible for at least four deaths in Pittsburg during the winter.

The danger is not confined to explosion and asphyxiation from escaping gas. The most far-reaching menace is to health. While the Red Cross Association and the municipality are fighting the spread of tuberculosis, and while the Board of Health is enforcing strict rules of sanitation the good results are much handicapped by heating practices in residences which are ruinous to health. Breathing carbonic acid gas fumes from burning gas stoves weakens the tissues of the lungs and poisons the entire system. People become sick and try to regain health, all the time submitting to the dangerous influence which caused their sickness. Women work all day in kitchens where water tanks are heated with flueless apparatus, and then wonder why they suffer "splitting" headaches.

Unless fumes from combustion are carried out of the room, sickness will result as certainly as sickness would follow the administration of slow poisen, and according to competent authorities, there can be absolutely no combustion without the dangerous product of carbonic acid gas.

BITTINGER.

A mid-winter electrical storm visited this section on last Sunday evening and was followed by a rapid fall in the temperature, the mercury going down thirty degrees within a few hours.

Claude Bittinger and wife are visiting in this neighborhood this week.

M. W. Sechrist and bride, formerly Miss Ida Bowser, were calling in this village last Sunday.

Clarence Miller, of Grantsville, was seen here last Saturday afternoon.

After a pleasant visit with his parents at this place Leonard Stark returned to Chaffee, W. Va., last week.

Messrs. Charles Buckel and Columbus Brenneman left here last week to take a look at the land west of the Mississippi and if possible to secure agreeable employment.

A party of generous citizens recently held an old fashioned wood-cutting at the home of Jonas Beachy and prepared a good supply of stove wood.

At the regular annual meeting of the stock-holders of the Mutual Telephone Company held in this village last Saturday afternoon, the following officers were elected: President, Josephus Glotfelty; vice president, Joel Orendorf; secretary, O. C. Buckle, and treasurer, Noah Brenneman.

Subscribe for The Republican.

FRIENDSVILLE.

Sunday night the most severe wind storm of the season swept over our town, but luckly doing very little damage. The weather changed in the evening from warm to cold following thunder and lightning and then wind. A window was blown in for Carl Statler and a rose arbor was picked up for W. W. Savage and thrown against the fence. Some trees were blown down on some of the roads leading to town.

Miss Ethel Dunham has been down with la grippe but is now better. Mrs. William Dunham filling her position in the central telephone office during her illness.

Miss Mable and Bessie Savage went to Summerfield last week intending to be present at the dedication services to be held there Sunday.

Miss Ora Umble is still very ill with no improvement since last week.

Saturday night is the date set for the citizens to meet in the council room and nominate persons to take the place of the retiring councilmen. A good attendance is requested.

Friday night last the local lodge K. of P. installed their office for the ensuing six months as follows: W. Dunham, C. C.; Austin Friend, V. C.; Jonas Lichty, Prelate; C. V. Guard, K. of R. and S.; H. J. Black, M. of F.; W. W. Schlossnagel, M. of E.; Lloyd Umble, M. A.; B. F. Friend, M. of W., and W. F. East, Trustee.

George F. Frazee has sold out his store to Albert Kamp, who we have no doubt will make a success of his investment. Mr. Frazee will reside in the house until spring.

A new lumber company was formed here last week by Messrs. J. W. McCollough, Geo. D. Browning and W. W. Savage. They having bought some five or six million feet of timber and it is their intention to run a railroad up to the timber from here. The tracks will run close to the prosposed new county road, and will start to be built as soon as the ground will permit.

August Neil, who was to have left for Philadelphia last Monday, did not go on account of an attack of measles.

Mrs. Earl Statler has been ill with la grippe.

Dr. Mason had a quantity of corn fodder stacked close to his stable and the wind Sunday night distributed it all over the neighborhood.

A number of our citizens are complaining of colds.

Mrs. Wagden has been confined to her bed with neuralgia.

C. W. Ryland has been taking stock for Willliam Frederick, Jr., at Bear Creek store.

Miss Margaret Snyder, teacher in the school here, did not arrive on Monday and her room had no school, she having gone to the county seat.

J. G. Kolb, F. G. Fox and W. W. Savage drove to Accident on Saturday to meet the good people of that town in regard to the new county road that will be built between Friendsville and there. The meeting had been previously arranged for. Wm. Miller was chairman. Over a thousand dollars has now been raised by the people of Accident and by the last of the week will be swelled no doubt to fifteen hnndred. The people all over this end of the county have become enthusiastic over the road, and well they may be, for it will benefit all directly or indirectly. Good roads are the making of any county, and we expect to see the day when the whole county will have the best roads in the State. We may live in the mountains but we want to have just as good things as our city brethren and the only way is to go after them. This new road will not only benefit Friendsville and and Accident, but the county seat as well, for with good roads there will be more traveling, and more traveling means spending money, and money in circulation means that all will get some of it.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

George Alvey White and Emma Grace Harvey, both of Garrett county.

John James Ashton, of Morgantown, W. Va., and Jessie Pearl Swiger, of Shinnston, W. Va.

Joseph Leeson, of Grove, W. Va., and Josia Iora Ball, of Sommers, W. Va.

Two with request not to publish.

Taken to Baltimore Hospital.

Mrs. Delbert Broadwater, of New Germany, was brought to town on Monday morning, a distance of 15 miles on a sled. She was severely stricken with appendicitis and was being hurried to a hospital in Baltimore. Her husband accompanied her.—Lonaconing Advocate.

A LIGHTNING FREAK

Fired Hay House on the Farm of Sheriff Shartzer Sunday Evening.

Lightning in the month of January is a rare occurrence in this part of the country, but when it is followed by a fire the happening is all the more commented upon, especially when but one bolt was observed. This occurred Sunday evening about six o'clock when a sudden electrical storm, accompanied by a high wind passed over this section when lightning struck a hay house recently erected on the farm of Sheriff Andrew Shartzer, a short distance from Oakland, setting the building on fire which with its contents, consisting of several tons of hay, a car load of baled straw, a binder and a grain drill, were entirely consumed, entailing a loss of about fifteen hundred dollars with no insurance.

The lightning came out of the western sky, followed instantly by a terrific clap of thunder and was accompanied by a wind which attained a velocity approaching a cyclone, wrecking telegraph and telephone lines and doing more or less serious damage to trees and shrubbery.

Proposed Pension Increased.

To the Editor of The Republican:

There is a new pension bill pending in both Houses of Congress, quite likely to become a law, for the increase of pensions to the Union veterans of the Civil war and to veterans of the Mexican war of 1846. The increase will come to a great many pensioners, and it is based on the age principle. As the law now stands soldiers of 62 years get $12 a month. The pending bill will give them $15; to those of 65 years and upwards $20; those of 70 years and over 25, and of 75 years $36. The increase will benefit many soldiers of the Civil war. The increase in the pension appropriation will be considerable. But it is to be remembered that the veterans are dying at the rate of about 30,000 per year with a rapid diminution of the list, while the resources of our great nation are of a large growth in every way.

It might be suggested here that there were a number of soldiers who volunteered a short time before the close of the war, expecting to serve longer than 90 days. At the end of the war they were honorably discharged with a service of little less than 90 days. They were ready and willing to serve longer if the government had wanted them. Would it not be fair to do something for these few veterans? Think of it, M. C.

A little more. The dependent pension law of June, 1890, provided a pension of $12 a month to the widows of soldiers, provided they were married prior to the passage of the law. There are a few living widows of soldiers, but they were married after its passage, who are not legally entitled to pension. Would it not be just and equitable to put these few yet alive with the other favored many?

January 2, 1911. J. B.

NOTE.—The bill referred to above was passed by the House Tuesday by a vote of 212 to 62, and will most likely pass the Senate and become a law before the close of the present session.—Ed. Rep.

HAUSER.

Mrs. D. O. Roth and daughter are again able to be around.

Mrs. Frank Mosser has been suffering with an attack of rheumatism.

Mr. John Martin spent Sunday with his son, Will Martin, near Red House.

The little baby of Mr. and Mrs. David Fike is reported some better.

Mr. Wm. Devers was an Oakland visitor last Friday.

Floyd Artis and Robert Lathum returned to Dobbin Sunday after visiting home folks over Sunday.

Mr. C. N. Bowers, the representative of our dear Uncle Sam on this route, walked over this part of his route last Wednesday.

Miss Merle Fowler returned from her trip to Swanton last Wednesday.

Emery Devers has gone to Williams to accept a position.

Mrs. Lem Reed and Harry Enlow visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shaffer last Sunday

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address

DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

CELEBRATED 86TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. William White, Surrounded By Many Friends, Spent Pleasant Day.

Mr. William White, residing on his beautiful farm three miles south of Cakland, celebrated his 86th anniversary last Saturday, when friends and neighbors numbering more than forty gathered at his hospitable home in honor of the occasion and in response to invitations issued by Mr. R. G. White and wife, who planned the affair as a surprise to the venerable man.

Of Mr. White's immediate relatives present upon the occasion there were two children, eight grandchildren and five greatgrandchildren. Others present were Mr. E. G. Naylor. Mr. and Mrs. John T. Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Dice Spiker, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Spiker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smouse, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy White and two children, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. White, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley White and three children, Mrs. Edward E. Sollars, Mrs. Abraham Spiker, Mrs. Sarah White, Mrs. Kate Junkins and three children, Mrs. Maud White and two children, Miss Daisy White, Miss Allie Browning, Mr. Chas. Newman and four children, Messrs. Charles Thompson, John S. Browning, J. Hopwood Kildow, William Riley and Levi Hewitt.

The guests were banquetted at the hour of noon and such a feast of good wholesome things is seldom enjoyed except when one goes to a home like unto that presided over by Mr. White.

Obituary.

Isaac Leighton was born in Birmingham, England, May 21st, 1827, and died at the home of his son, H. V. Leighton, at Loch Lynn Heights, January 4th, 1911, aged 83 years, 7 months and 13 days. He was married to Elizabeth Vernon in the year 1850, and came to America the same year. Twelve children were born to this union, eight of whom are still living. He was a rolling mill man and worked and lived in many different cities in this country. He was a great lover of music and for many years devoted much of his spare time in teaching both instrumental and vocal music, and in after years did much good as a Gospel singer. Just before the war he purchased a farm in Preston county, W. Va., lived there with his family until 1882, when he moved to Maryland. He joined the Methodist Episcopal church many years ago and lived a faithful, useful and consistent member up to the time of his feeble state of health and mind which came upon him several years ago. He sustained many official relations to the church of his choice being class leader and Sunday school superintendent for more than twenty years. But he had reached the ripe old age where life had lost its charms and he often expressed a desire to go to his future home and claim his reward.

THE DEATH RECORD.

ANDREW J. HARNE.

Mr. Andrew J. Harne, aged eighty years, died at his residence in Oakland Monday afternoon at three o'clock after an illness of more than a year. The deceased had been a resident of Oakland for more than thirty years, moving here from Hagerstown. He is survived by four daughters and four sons, his wife having died several years ago. His funeral took place from his late residence yesterday morning, the services being conducted by Rev. G. R. Williamson, with interment in the Oakland cemetery.

ASHER GLADE

The weather has been fair the past week and at this time there is no sledding as there is only a little snow.

Wm. H. Thomas made a business trip to Friendsville last Wednesday.

Mr. Lloyd K. Fike and wife left this place last Saturday for Mr. Fike's school at Lake Ford.

Mrs. Jennie Umbel, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is improving slowly.

Mrs. Katie Laraway of Ohio Pyle, Pa., who is now with her parents, was taken suddenly ill.

Mr. A. T. Fike accompanied his grandson, Floyd K. Fike, to his school.

Mr. W. K. Barnthouse and wife, who have been sick for some time, are both improving.

Report of Loch Lynn School for December.

Number enrolled: Boys, 15; girls 14; total, 29. Average attendance: Boys, 14; girls, 11; total, 25.

Those present every day were: Carleton King, Lee Gibson, Adna Sterling, Earle Sterling, Britta Martin, Gus Gortner, Herbert Leighton, Walter Callis, Larna Callis.

G. W. STERLING, Teacher.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The work on the ice harvest was commenced here last Friday and by Monday evening about one thousand tons had been stored in the ice house at the lake for home consumption. On Tuesday morning the work of filling cars for the B. & O. railroad began and will be continued as long as the ice lasts, the amount of the order being unlimited. The ice is about eight inches thick and free from snow. Thirty-two cars were shipped yesterday and today when operations were temporarily suspended on account of rain.

The special services at the M. E. church are still going on. Some have been reclaimed and several have professed conversion.

Mrs. T. P. Lipscomb, of Loch Lynn, was recently called to her old home in Pennsylvania on account of the serious illness of her sister, and has not returned to her home here.

Mrs. Lee, wife of Rev. Joseph Lee, was painfully injured by falling on the ice while returning home from church Monday night.

Mr. R. T. Miller, of Marietta, Ohio, a former resident of Mt. Lake Park and the owner of a valuable property here, is with us for a few days on business.

A meeting of citizens of this community was held in the Baptist church Tuesday evening, when resolutions were adopted commending the funeral sermon delivered by Rev. G. R. Williamson Monday of last week in St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland. The resolutions will be found in another column of this issue.

Mrs. N. J. Haymond returned to her home here this week after an extended western trip.

Sheriff Shartzer received a car of lime at this station last week which he hauled to his farm near here.

Mr. Henry O. Harvey has taken a half interest in Mr. P. T. Garthright's store in Loch Lynn.

Negotiations are in progress looking to the purchase of the R. T. Miller residence on E street by Mr. O. Hayward, of Bond, this county.

Dr. W. W. Davis, who has had charge of the ice plant, left this morning for Baltimore to be with his family over Sunday.

Mr. Theodore Nihiser, who has been a patient in the Dr. Hinebaugh Sanatorium in Oakland, is rapidly improving and considered out of danger.

Operated Upon for Appendicitis.

Stanley, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Mitchell, of Oakland, was operated upon at the Home Sanitorium here last Saturday evening for appendicitis by Drs. Johnson, of Cumberland, and Broadwater, of Oakland. The operation was successfull and the patient is rapidly recovering from its effects.

REV. WILLIAMSON COMMENDED.

By Residents of Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights.

On Tuesday evening of this week a meeting of the leading residents of Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights with Mr. B. F. Crane as chairman, and Mr. H. V. Leighton as secretary, when the following committee was appointed by the chairman to draft suitable resolutions commending Rev. G. R. Williamson for the sermon he delivered upon the occasion of the funeral of the late Clyde C. Liller in St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland which was published in THE REPULLICAN last Thursday: P. T. Garthright. H. N. Cuppett and P. T. Lipscomb. The committee offered the following which were unanimously adopted by those present:

WHEREAS, There was published in the Oakland REPUBLICAN of the 5th inst. a sermon preached by the Rev. G. R. Williamson, of Oakland, on the occasion of the funeral service of Mr. Clyde C. Liller; and

WHEREAS, There is no question that his death resulted from tne continuous use of liquor; and

WHEREAS, There is great need of plain speaking on this subject of making drunkards out of our citizens; therefore be it

Resolved, That the citizens of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights and vicinity extend their thanks to the Rev. Mr. Williamson for the fearless and truthful presentation of the facts stated in his sermon.

Resolved, That the citizens of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights and vicinity are surprised that our good friends of Oakland have not before this taken steps to drive this great evil from their town.

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights and vicinity will second any effort they may make to accomplish this end.

Resolved, further, That the citizens of Garrett county petition the Court to grant an injunction restraining the Clerk from issuing license for the sale of intoxicating liquors this coming May in districts Nos. 7 and 14, believing as we do that the granting of such licenses is unconstitutional since saloons are unquestionably a public nuisance.

We also further recommend that the other ministers of the county speak in as fearless a manner as did Rev. Mr. Williamson against this fearful evil which so vitally affects our homes.

Resolved, That thanks are due the editor of THE REPUBLICAN for publishing this most excellent sermon, also in publishing these resolutions.

P. T. GARTHRIGHT,
H. N. CUPPETT,
P. T. LIPSCOMB,
Committee.

Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Kemp, their two sons, Masters Paul and Gerald, and daughter, Miss Alma, of Bloomington, attended the golden wedding anniversary, last Monday evening, of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Kemp, an uncle and aunt of the doctor's, at Borden Mines, Md., where a sumptuous dinner was served at six o'clock. Covers were laid for seventy-five and the table was beautifully decorated in yellow roses and jonquils. Music was furnished by the Hill brothers and there was singing and dancing and everyone enjoyed themselves immensely.—Piedmont Herald.

DIXON & KELSO

DIXON & KELSO have a lot

Men's and Boys'

OVERCOATS,

Ladies' and Misses' Coats

AND MEN'S

Winter Suits,

which we will close out at one-half price.

Can be seen on the center counter in store room.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1911. NUMBER 46

FLUELESS GAS STOVE IS DEADLY

Experts and Health Authorities Warn Against Fatal Practices.

If you burn gas for heating purposes in your home and have no outlet for the fumes of combustion, connect your stove with a flue at once—the fumes are poisoning you and your family.

There is one way to be safe with a hose connection—throw the hose away, send for a plumber, and while he is making a gas connection have him make a connection with the chimney to carry off the fumes.

One ordinary gas jet consumes as much oxygen in a room as six people and a stove consumes many times this amount. Individuals breathe out carbonic acid gas and the product of gas combustion is carbonic acid gas—both poisonous.

The foregoing is the advice of health authorities of Pittsburg, according to the Pittsburg Dispatch, and experts on gas combustion speaking on a matter of crucial importance to the people of this community. The question developed from the many deaths recently, which were directly the result of carelessness or ignorance in the use of natural gas.

Some of these deaths may be traced to the hose connection used on stoves—others resulted from the fumes of burning gas, which in a room without ventilation, are as deadly as the gas itself.

Coroner Jamison advocates strict municipal regulation of the use of gas, with inspection of all apparatus by plumbing inspectors, thus guarding against explosion of escaping gas, asphyxiation from the same cause and poisoning by the escape of gas fumes.

The tolerance of gas fumes in residences is said by competent authorities to be responsible for 50 per cent of the illness prevalent in gas burning districts during the winter. When gas is lighted it immediately begins to consume oxygen in greater quantities than 10 people. If there is not attachment to a flue or chimney the products of combustion pour into the room. In the case of perfect combustion, the product is carbonic acid gas. If combustion is poor, the product is carbonic oxide, a deadly poison. Carbonic oxide was responsible for at least four deaths in Pittsburg during the winter.

The danger is not confined to explosion and asphyxiation from escaping gas. The most far-reaching menace is to health. While the Red Cross Association and the municipality are fighting the spread of tuberculosis, and while the Board of Health is enforcing strict rules of sanitation the good results are much handicapped by heating practices in residences which are ruinous to health. Breathing carbonic acid gas fumes from burning gas stoves weakens the tissues of the lungs and poisons the entire system. People become sick and try to regain health, all the time submitting to the dangerous influence which caused their sickness. Women work all day in kitchens where water tanks are heated with flueless apparatus, and then wonder why they suffer "splitting" headaches.

Unless fumes from combustion are carried out of the room, sickness will result as certainly as sickness would follow the administration of slow poisen, and according to competent authorities, there can be absolutely no combustion without the dangerous product of carbonic acid gas.

BITTINGER.

A mid-winter electrical storm visited this section on last Sunday evening and was followed by a rapid fall in the temperature, the mercury going down thirty degrees within a few hours.

Claude Bittinger and wife are visiting in this neighborhood this week.

M. W. Sechrist and bride, formerly Miss Ida Bowser, were calling in this village last Sunday.

Clarence Miller, of Grantsville, was seen here last Saturday afternoon.

After a pleasant visit with his parents at this place Leonard Stark returned to Chaffee, W. Va., last week.

Messrs. Charles Buckel and Columbus Brenneman left here last week to take a look at the land west of the Mississippi and if possible to secure agreeable employment.

A party of generous citizens recently held an old fashioned wood-cutting at the home of Jonas Beachy and prepared a good supply of stove wood.

At the regular annual meeting of the stock-holders of the Mutual Telephone Company held in this village last Saturday afternoon, the following officers were elected: President, Josephus Glotfelty; vice president, Joel Orendorf; secretary, O. C. Buckle, and treasurer, Noah Brenneman.

Subscribe for The Republican.

FRIENDSVILLE.

Sunday night the most severe wind storm of the season swept over our town, but luckly doing very little damage. The weather changed in the evening from warm to cold following thunder and lightning and then wind. A window was blown in for Carl Statler and a rose arbor was picked up for W. W. Savage and thrown against the fence. Some trees were blown down on some of the roads leading to town.

Miss Ethel Dunham has been down with la grippe but is now better. Mrs. William Dunham filling her position in the central telephone office during her illness.

Miss Mable and Bessie Savage went to Summerfield last week intending to be present at the dedication services to be held there Sunday.

Miss Ora Umble is still very ill with no improvement since last week.

Saturday night is the date set for the citizens to meet in the council room and nominate persons to take the place of the retiring councilmen. A good attendance is requested.

Friday night last the local lodge K. of P. installed their office for the ensuing six months as follows: W. Dunham, C. C.; Austin Friend, V. C.; Jonas Lichty, Prelate; C. V. Guard, K. of R. and S.; H. J. Black, M. of F.; W. W. Schlossnagel, M. of E.; Lloyd Umble, M. A.; B. F. Friend, M. of W., and W. F. East, Trustee.

George F. Frazee has sold out his store to Albert Kamp, who we have no doubt will make a success of his investment. Mr. Frazee will reside in the house until spring.

A new lumber company was formed here last week by Messrs. J. W. McCollough, Geo. D. Browning and W. W. Savage. They having bought some five or six million feet of timber and it is their intention to run a railroad up to the timber from here. The tracks will run close to the prosposed new county road, and will start to be built as soon as the ground will permit.

August Neil, who was to have left for Philadelphia last Monday, did not go on account of an attack of measles.

Mrs. Earl Statler has been ill with la grippe.

Dr. Mason had a quantity of corn fodder stacked close to his stable and the wind Sunday night distributed it all over the neighborhood.

A number of our citizens are complaining of colds.

Mrs. Wagden has been confined to her bed with neuralgia.

C. W. Ryland has been taking stock for Willliam Frederick, Jr., at Bear Creek store.

Miss Margaret Snyder, teacher in the school here, did not arrive on Monday and her room had no school, she having gone to the county seat.

J. G. Kolb, F. G. Fox and W. W. Savage drove to Accident on Saturday to meet the good people of that town in regard to the new county road that will be built between Friendsville and there. The meeting had been previously arranged for. Wm. Miller was chairman. Over a thousand dollars has now been raised by the people of Accident and by the last of the week will be swelled no doubt to fifteen hnndred. The people all over this end of the county have become enthusiastic over the road, and well they may be, for it will benefit all directly or indirectly. Good roads are the making of any county, and we expect to see the day when the whole county will have the best roads in the State. We may live in the mountains but we want to have just as good things as our city brethren and the only way is to go after them. This new road will not only benefit Friendsville and and Accident, but the county seat as well, for with good roads there will be more traveling, and more traveling means spending money, and money in circulation means that all will get some of it.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

George Alvey White and Emma Grace Harvey, both of Garrett county.

John James Ashton, of Morgantown, W. Va., and Jessie Pearl Swiger, of Shinnston, W. Va.

Joseph Leeson, of Grove, W. Va., and Josia Iora Ball, of Sommers, W. Va.

Two with request not to publish.

Taken to Baltimore Hospital.

Mrs. Delbert Broadwater, of New Germany, was brought to town on Monday morning, a distance of 15 miles on a sled. She was severely stricken with appendicitis and was being hurried to a hospital in Baltimore. Her husband accompanied her.—Lonaconing Advocate.

A LIGHTNING FREAK

Fired Hay House on the Farm of Sheriff Shartzer Sunday Evening.

Lightning in the month of January is a rare occurrence in this part of the country, but when it is followed by a fire the happening is all the more commented upon, especially when but one bolt was observed. This occurred Sunday evening about six o'clock when a sudden electrical storm, accompanied by a high wind passed over this section when lightning struck a hay house recently erected on the farm of Sheriff Andrew Shartzer, a short distance from Oakland, setting the building on fire which with its contents, consisting of several tons of hay, a car load of baled straw, a binder and a grain drill, were entirely consumed, entailing a loss of about fifteen hundred dollars with no insurance.

The lightning came out of the western sky, followed instantly by a terrific clap of thunder and was accompanied by a wind which attained a velocity approaching a cyclone, wrecking telegraph and telephone lines and doing more or less serious damage to trees and shrubbery.

Proposed Pension Increased.

To the Editor of The Republican:

There is a new pension bill pending in both Houses of Congress, quite likely to become a law, for the increase of pensions to the Union veterans of the Civil war and to veterans of the Mexican war of 1846. The increase will come to a great many pensioners, and it is based on the age principle. As the law now stands soldiers of 62 years get $12 a month. The pending bill will give them $15; to those of 65 years and upwards $20; those of 70 years and over 25, and of 75 years $36. The increase will benefit many soldiers of the Civil war. The increase in the pension appropriation will be considerable. But it is to be remembered that the veterans are dying at the rate of about 30,000 per year with a rapid diminution of the list, while the resources of our great nation are of a large growth in every way.

It might be suggested here that there were a number of soldiers who volunteered a short time before the close of the war, expecting to serve longer than 90 days. At the end of the war they were honorably discharged with a service of little less than 90 days. They were ready and willing to serve longer if the government had wanted them. Would it not be fair to do something for these few veterans? Think of it, M. C.

A little more. The dependent pension law of June, 1890, provided a pension of $12 a month to the widows of soldiers, provided they were married prior to the passage of the law. There are a few living widows of soldiers, but they were married after its passage, who are not legally entitled to pension. Would it not be just and equitable to put these few yet alive with the other favored many?

January 2, 1911. J. B.

NOTE.—The bill referred to above was passed by the House Tuesday by a vote of 212 to 62, and will most likely pass the Senate and become a law before the close of the present session.—Ed. Rep.

HAUSER.

Mrs. D. O. Roth and daughter are again able to be around.

Mrs. Frank Mosser has been suffering with an attack of rheumatism.

Mr. John Martin spent Sunday with his son, Will Martin, near Red House.

The little baby of Mr. and Mrs. David Fike is reported some better.

Mr. Wm. Devers was an Oakland visitor last Friday.

Floyd Artis and Robert Lathum returned to Dobbin Sunday after visiting home folks over Sunday.

Mr. C. N. Bowers, the representative of our dear Uncle Sam on this route, walked over this part of his route last Wednesday.

Miss Merle Fowler returned from her trip to Swanton last Wednesday.

Emery Devers has gone to Williams to accept a position.

Mrs. Lem Reed and Harry Enlow visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shaffer last Sunday

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address

DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

CELEBRATED 86TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. William White, Surrounded By Many Friends, Spent Pleasant Day.

Mr. William White, residing on his beautiful farm three miles south of Cakland, celebrated his 86th anniversary last Saturday, when friends and neighbors numbering more than forty gathered at his hospitable home in honor of the occasion and in response to invitations issued by Mr. R. G. White and wife, who planned the affair as a surprise to the venerable man.

Of Mr. White's immediate relatives present upon the occasion there were two children, eight grandchildren and five greatgrandchildren. Others present were Mr. E. G. Naylor. Mr. and Mrs. John T. Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Dice Spiker, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Spiker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smouse, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy White and two children, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. White, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley White and three children, Mrs. Edward E. Sollars, Mrs. Abraham Spiker, Mrs. Sarah White, Mrs. Kate Junkins and three children, Mrs. Maud White and two children, Miss Daisy White, Miss Allie Browning, Mr. Chas. Newman and four children, Messrs. Charles Thompson, John S. Browning, J. Hopwood Kildow, William Riley and Levi Hewitt.

The guests were banquetted at the hour of noon and such a feast of good wholesome things is seldom enjoyed except when one goes to a home like unto that presided over by Mr. White.

Obituary.

Isaac Leighton was born in Birmingham, England, May 21st, 1827, and died at the home of his son, H. V. Leighton, at Loch Lynn Heights, January 4th, 1911, aged 83 years, 7 months and 13 days. He was married to Elizabeth Vernon in the year 1850, and came to America the same year. Twelve children were born to this union, eight of whom are still living. He was a rolling mill man and worked and lived in many different cities in this country. He was a great lover of music and for many years devoted much of his spare time in teaching both instrumental and vocal music, and in after years did much good as a Gospel singer. Just before the war he purchased a farm in Preston county, W. Va., lived there with his family until 1882, when he moved to Maryland. He joined the Methodist Episcopal church many years ago and lived a faithful, useful and consistent member up to the time of his feeble state of health and mind which came upon him several years ago. He sustained many official relations to the church of his choice being class leader and Sunday school superintendent for more than twenty years. But he had reached the ripe old age where life had lost its charms and he often expressed a desire to go to his future home and claim his reward.

THE DEATH RECORD.

ANDREW J. HARNE.

Mr. Andrew J. Harne, aged eighty years, died at his residence in Oakland Monday afternoon at three o'clock after an illness of more than a year. The deceased had been a resident of Oakland for more than thirty years, moving here from Hagerstown. He is survived by four daughters and four sons, his wife having died several years ago. His funeral took place from his late residence yesterday morning, the services being conducted by Rev. G. R. Williamson, with interment in the Oakland cemetery.

ASHER GLADE

The weather has been fair the past week and at this time there is no sledding as there is only a little snow.

Wm. H. Thomas made a business trip to Friendsville last Wednesday.

Mr. Lloyd K. Fike and wife left this place last Saturday for Mr. Fike's school at Lake Ford.

Mrs. Jennie Umbel, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is improving slowly.

Mrs. Katie Laraway of Ohio Pyle, Pa., who is now with her parents, was taken suddenly ill.

Mr. A. T. Fike accompanied his grandson, Floyd K. Fike, to his school.

Mr. W. K. Barnthouse and wife, who have been sick for some time, are both improving.

Report of Loch Lynn School for December.

Number enrolled: Boys, 15; girls 14; total, 29. Average attendance: Boys, 14; girls, 11; total, 25.

Those present every day were: Carleton King, Lee Gibson, Adna Sterling, Earle Sterling, Britta Martin, Gus Gortner, Herbert Leighton, Walter Callis, Larna Callis.

G. W. STERLING, Teacher.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The work on the ice harvest was commenced here last Friday and by Monday evening about one thousand tons had been stored in the ice house at the lake for home consumption. On Tuesday morning the work of filling cars for the B. & O. railroad began and will be continued as long as the ice lasts, the amount of the order being unlimited. The ice is about eight inches thick and free from snow. Thirty-two cars were shipped yesterday and today when operations were temporarily suspended on account of rain.

The special services at the M. E. church are still going on. Some have been reclaimed and several have professed conversion.

Mrs. T. P. Lipscomb, of Loch Lynn, was recently called to her old home in Pennsylvania on account of the serious illness of her sister, and has not returned to her home here.

Mrs. Lee, wife of Rev. Joseph Lee, was painfully injured by falling on the ice while returning home from church Monday night.

Mr. R. T. Miller, of Marietta, Ohio, a former resident of Mt. Lake Park and the owner of a valuable property here, is with us for a few days on business.

A meeting of citizens of this community was held in the Baptist church Tuesday evening, when resolutions were adopted commending the funeral sermon delivered by Rev. G. R. Williamson Monday of last week in St. Paul's M. E. church, Oakland. The resolutions will be found in another column of this issue.

Mrs. N. J. Haymond returned to her home here this week after an extended western trip.

Sheriff Shartzer received a car of lime at this station last week which he hauled to his farm near here.

Mr. Henry O. Harvey has taken a half interest in Mr. P. T. Garthright's store in Loch Lynn.

Negotiations are in progress looking to the purchase of the R. T. Miller residence on E street by Mr. O. Hayward, of Bond, this county.

Dr. W. W. Davis, who has had charge of the ice plant, left this morning for Baltimore to be with his family over Sunday.

Mr. Theodore Nihiser, who has been a patient in the Dr. Hinebaugh Sanatorium in Oakland, is rapidly improving and considered out of danger.

Operated Upon for Appendicitis.

Stanley, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Mitchell, of Oakland, was operated upon at the Home Sanitorium here last Saturday evening for appendicitis by Drs. Johnson, of Cumberland, and Broadwater, of Oakland. The operation was successfull and the patient is rapidly recovering from its effects.

REV. WILLIAMSON COMMENDED.

By Residents of Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights.

On Tuesday evening of this week a meeting of the leading residents of Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights with Mr. B. F. Crane as chairman, and Mr. H. V. Leighton as secretary, when the following committee was appointed by the chairman to draft suitable resolutions commending Rev. G. R. Williamson for the sermon he delivered upon the occasion of the funeral of the late Clyde C. Liller in St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland which was published in THE REPULLICAN last Thursday: P. T. Garthright. H. N. Cuppett and P. T. Lipscomb. The committee offered the following which were unanimously adopted by those present:

WHEREAS, There was published in the Oakland REPUBLICAN of the 5th inst. a sermon preached by the Rev. G. R. Williamson, of Oakland, on the occasion of the funeral service of Mr. Clyde C. Liller; and

WHEREAS, There is no question that his death resulted from the continuous use of liquor; and

WHEREAS, There is great need of plain speaking on this subject of making drunkards out of our citizens; therefore be it

Resolved, That the citizens of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights and vicinity extend their thanks to the Rev. Mr. Williamson for the fearless and truthful presentation of the facts stated in his sermon.

Resolved, That the citizens of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights and vicinity are surprised that our good friends of Oakland have not before this taken steps to drive this great evil from their town.

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Mountain Lake Park, Loch Lynn Heights and vicinity will second any effort they may make to accomplish this end.

Resolved, further, That the citizens of Garrett county petition the Court to grant an injunction restraining the Clerk from issuing license for the sale of intoxicating liquors this coming May in districts Nos. 7 and 14, believing as we do that the granting of such licenses is unconstitutional since saloons are unquestionably a public nuisance.

We also further recommend that the other ministers of the county speak in as fearless a manner as did Rev. Mr. Williamson against this fearful evil which so vitally affects our homes.

Resolved, That thanks are due the editor of THE REPUBLICAN for publishing this most excellent sermon, also in publishing these resolutions.

P. T. GARTHRIGHT,
H. N. CUPPETT,
P. T. LIPSCOMB,
Committee.

Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Kemp, their two sons, Masters Paul and Gerald, and daughter, Miss Alma, of Bloomington, attended the golden wedding anniversary, last Monday evening, of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Kemp, an uncle and aunt of the doctor's, at Borden Mines, Md., where a sumptuous dinner was served at six o'clock. Covers were laid for seventy-five and the table was beautifully decorated in yellow roses and jonquils. Music was furnished by the Hill brothers and there was singing and dancing and everyone enjoyed themselves immensely.—Piedmont Herald.

DIXON & KELSO

DIXON & KELSO have a lot

Men's and Boys'

OVERCOATS,

Ladies' and Misses' Coats

AND MEN'S

Winter Suits,

which we will close out at one-half price.

Can be seen on the center counter in store room.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

MODERATE-PRICED PIGGERY ACCOMMODATING BROOD SOWS

Excellent Pens for Shelter of Swine Both in Summer and Winter—Sanitary and Ventilating Conditions Are Superior.

In response to a query for plans for a moderate-priced house to accommodate 25 brooding sows and the usual complement of pigs, the Country Gentleman publishes the following:

For the brood sows it is best to have separate cots like those described by Professor Shaw of the Michigan

Fig. 1—Movable Cot for Brood Sow.

Station, from whose bulletin on the subject the following engravings are made. Sows and pigs should be kept away from the main or winter pen as much as possible. The sow should have plenty of exercise, plenty of green and succulent food, and access to the ground. These cots offer ideal summer conditions both to sow and litter.

Fig. 1 is a good cot for a sow that is about to farrow, since she cannot lie down close to the sides and thus overlie the young pigs. A cot like that shown in Fig. 2, however, gives better ventilation and is preferable in very hot weather. This is built 6x8, with vertical sides 3 feet high, with board roof, half pitch. The center boards on the sides are hung on hinges to open in hot weather. Note also the simple way of ventilating at the highest point of the roof. Cover the openings in the sides with woven wire. Such a cot contains 160 feet of stock lumber, 60 feet of matched stuff, 20 feet 4 by 6, 12 feet 4 by 4, 44 feet 2 by 4, and ought to be made by a carpenter in a couple of days. A floor can be made for it if desired for winter quarters, using two-inch stuff cut in lengths to rest on the skids, which are wider than the sills. Do not fasten the sills to the skids, as the latter are the first to rot.

Fig. 2—A Six-by-Eight Cot.

Where the pigs do not come late in the fall or too early in the spring, it is better to use such a cot as the permanent home of the sow, keeping her there during the winter and compelling plenty of exercise by putting her food at a considerable distance from the cot, and not using too much bedding, but enough to keep her warm and comfortable.

Such cots are used also for fattening pigs. A movable hog cot is better in most cases than a permanent pen, as it keeps the pigs away from any central place, which is sure to become permanently contaminated, muddy in wet weather, dusty in dry, and dirty all the time.

If a permanent hog-house is to be built, it should be located on a knoll rather than in a moist hollow. Next, sufficient yardage, which you say you have, should be available. Large lots, where succulent food can be grown, are to be preferred to small exercise pens, which cannot be kept healthful in a warm climate. The pig should naturally be fattened in the late fall, and none carried over but the breeding stock. Experiments beyond number have shown that it is not profitable to feed either old or heavy hogs. The rule ought to be to have eight-months-old pigs weigh at least 200 pounds and fit for slaughter. Such pigs ought never to see the inside of a costly permanent pen, but ought to go to the slaughter house directly from the lots and the cots.

Use cement floors with overlays for the pigs to lie on. The drawing shows this clearly; the overlay being hinged to the side of the pen, so that it may be raised up and the floor beneath properly cleaned. Note also that it is in the corner of the pen and away from the feeding trough. It is bedded with fresh bedding once a week. The overlay here described is made from inch lumber, with inch cleats below to hold the boards together. A 2 by 4 surrounds the affair to hold the bedding in place, nailed to the boards and reinforced by a triangular piece of scantling nailed to the 2 by 4 and to the floor.

The Arrangement of the Pen.

It is not necessary to go into details in the description of the pens. The cut shows how the 10 by 14 pen is arranged, with swing door at one corner, lifted by a rope leading to the front of the pen; abundant windows and ventilation; the widening out of the door frame to prevent the pigs from getting their noses under the door when closed; the feeding trough, with swinging door over it, to keep back the hogs when feeding, and partition between the pens high enough to keep the hogs from quarreling over them, but not high enough to prevent free movement of the air lengthwise of the stable.

Plan of Piggery.

One From the Cashier.

The harmless customer leaned across the cigar counter and smiled engagingly at the new cashier. As he handed across the amount his dinner check called for he ventured a bit of aimless converse, for he was of that sort.

"Funny," said he, "how easy it is to spend money."

"Well," snapped the cashier as she fed his fare to the register, "if money was intended for you to hold on to the mint would be turning out coins with handles on 'em."

Had Money in Lumps.

Charles H. Rosenberg of Bavaria had lumps on his shoulders, elbows, and hips when he arrived here from Hamburg on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. In fact, there was a series of smaller lumps along his spine, much like a mountain range, as it is presented on a bas-relief map.

The lumps were about the size of good Oregon apples, and as Rosenberg passed before the immigration doctor for observation, the doctor said softly to himself, "See that lump." Then he asked Mr. Rosenberg to step aside.

"You seem like a healthy man," said the doctor, "but I cannot pass you until I know the origin of those lumps on your body." "Ah, it is not a sickness," laughed the man from Bavaria. "Those swellings is money."

Taking off his coat he broke open a sample lump and showed that it contained $500 in American bank notes. He informed the doctor that he had $11,000 in all, with which he was going to purchase an apple orchard in Oregon.

He was admitted to the country.—New York Tribune.

Why He Laughed.

Miss Mattie belonged to the old south, and she was entertaining a guest of distinction.

On the morning following his arrival she told Tillie, the little colored maid, to take a pitcher of fresh water to Mr. Firman's room, and to say that Miss Mattie sent him her compliments, and that if he wanted a bath, the bathroom was at his service.

When Tillie returned she said:

"I tol' him, Miss Mattie, en' he laughed fit to bus' hisself."

"Why did he laugh, Tillie?"

"I dunno."

"What did you tell him?"

"Jus' what you tol' me to."

"Tillie, tell me exactly what you said."

"I banged de doah, and I said, 'Mr. Firman, Miss Mattie sends you her lub, and she says, 'Now you can get up and wash yo'self!'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Where He Was Queer.

The negro, on occasions, displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words.

"Who's the best white-washer in town?" inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a bo'nd a'tist with a whitewash brush, sah," answered the colored patriarch eloquently.

"Well, tell him to come and whitewash my chicken house tomorrow."

Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ah don' believe, sah, ah'd engage Ale Hall to whitewash a chicken house, sah."

"Why, didn't you say he was a good whitewasher?"

"Yes, sah, a powe'ful good whitewasher, sah; but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah, mighty queer!"—Mack's National Monthly.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND.

If you'll make up your mind to be Contented with your lot
And with the optimists agree
That trouble's soon forgot,

You'll be surprised to find, I guess,
Despite misfortune's darts,
What constant springs of happiness
Lie hid in human hearts;

What sunny gleams and golden dreams
The passing years unfold,
How soft and warm the lovelight beams
When you are growing old.

Acted Like the Genuine.

"The landlady says that new boarder is a foreign nobleman."

"Bogus, I'll bet."

"Oh, I don't know. He may be the real thing. He hasn't paid her a cent as yet."

More Human Nature.

Grouchly—By denying myself three ten-cent cigars daily for the past 20 years I figure that I have saved $2,190.

Moxley—Is that so?"

Grouchly—Yes. Say, let me have a chew of your tobacco, will you?

Thanks to Burnt Cork.

"Gosh! But the colored race is a-comin' to the front fast!" whispered innocent Uncle Hiram, at the vaudeville show, as the black-face comedian was boisterously applauded.

"Yes, indeed," smiled the city man; "anyone can see that that fellow is a self-made negro."

Lo, the Rich Indian.

The per capita wealth of the Indian is approximately $2,130, that for other Americans is only a little more than $1,300. The lands owned by the Indians are rich in oil, timber and other natural resources of all kinds. Some of the best timber land in the United States is owned by Indians.

The value of their agricultural lands runs up in the millions. The ranges which they possess support about 500,000 sheep and cattle, owned by lessees, bringing in a revenue of more than $272,000 to the various tribes besides providing feed for more than 1,500,000 head of horses, cattle, sheep and goats belonging to the Indians themselves. Practically the only asphalt deposits in the United States are on Indian lands.—Red Man.

No Slang for Her.

"Slip me a brace of cackles!" ordered the chesty-looking man with a bored air, as he perched on the first stool in the lunchroom.

"A what?" asked the waitress, as she placed a glass of water before him.

"Adam and Eve flat on their backs! A pair of sunnysiders!" said the young man in an exasperated tone.

"You got me, kid," returned the waitress. "Watcha want?"

"Eggs up," said the young man. "'E-g-g-s,' the kind that come before the hen or after, I never knew which."

"Why didn't you say so in the first place?" asked the waitress. "You'd a had 'em by this time."

"Well, of all things——" said the young man.

"I knew what he was drivin' at all the time," began the waitress as the young man departed. "But he's one of them fellers that thinks they can get by with anything. He don't know that they're using plain English now in restaurants."

The League of Politeness.

The League of Politeness has been formed in Berlin. It aims at inculcating better manners among the people of Berlin. It was founded upon the initiative of Fraulein Cecelie Meyer, who was inspired by an existing organization in Rome. In deference to the parent organization the Berlin league has chosen the Italian motto, "Pro gentilezza." This will be emblazoned upon an attractive little medal worn where Germans are accustomed to wear the insignia of orders. The idea is that a glaance at the "talisman" will annihilate any inclination to indulge in bad temper or discourteous language. "Any polite person" is eligible for membership.

The "Country Churchyard."

Those who recall Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" will remember that the peaceful spot where "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep" is identified with St. Giles', Stoke Poges, Buckinghamshire. In the prosaic pages of a recent issue of the Gazette there appears an order in council providing that ordinary interments are henceforth forbidden in the churchyard.

How She Learned.

The mother of a family of three small children was discussing their comparative precocity with a friend. "John was very slow at everything," she said, referring to her oldest. "Tom was a little better, and Edith, the baby, is the smartest of all. She picks up everything quick as can be."

Master John, who had been listening, now contributed his share of the conversation.

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "I know why her learns so quick. It's 'cause her has us and we didn't have us."

Economy.

The late former Governor Allen D. Candler of Georgia was famous in the south for his quaint humor.

"Governor Candler," said a Gainesville man, "once abandoned cigars for a pipe at the beginning of the year. He stuck to his resolve till the year's end. Then he was heard to say:

"'By actual calculation, I have saved by smoking a pipe instead of cigars this year $208. But where is it?'"

Moslem Traditions.

Ramadan is the month exalted by Moslems above all others. In that month the Koran—according to Moslem tradition—was brought down by Gabriel from heaven and delivered to men in small sections. In that month, Mohammed was accustomed to retire from Mecca to the cave of Hira, for prayer and meditation. In that month Abraham, Moses and other prophets received their divine revelations. In that month the "doors of heaven are always open, the passages to hell are shut, and the devils are chained." So run the traditions.—The Christian Herald.

A Medical Compromise.

"You had two doctors in consultation last night, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"What did they say?"

"Well, one recommended one thing and the other recommended something else."

"A deadlock, eh?"

"No, they finally told me to mix 'em!"

Hard on the Mare.

Twice, as the bus slowly wended its way up the steep Cumberland Gap, the door at the rear opened and slammed. At first those inside paid little heed; but the third time demanded to know why they should be disturbed in this fashion.

"Whist," cautioned the driver, doan't spake so loud; she'll overhear us."

"Who?"

"The mare. Spake low! Shure, Ol'm desavin th' crayture. Everry toime she 'ears th' door close, she thinks won o' yez is gettin' down ter walk up th' hill, an' that sort o' raises her sperrits."—Success Magazine.

Exaggeration.

On her arrival in New York Mme. Sara Bernhardt, replying to a compliment on her youthful appearance, said: "The secret of my youth? It is the good God—and then, you know, I work all the time. But I am a great grandmother," she continued, thoughtfully, "so how can these many compliments be true? I am afraid my friends are exaggerating."

Mme. Bernhardt's laugh, spontaneous as a girl's, prompted a chorus of "No, no!"

"Yes," said the actress, "unconscious exaggeration, like the French nurse on the boulevard. Our boulevards are much more crowded than your streets, you know, and, although we have numerous accidents, things aren't quite as bad as the nurse suggested.

"Her little charge, a boy of six, begged her to stop a while in a crowd, surrounding an automobile accident. 'Please wait,' the little boy said, 'Want to see the man who was run over.' 'No; hurry,' his nurse answered. 'There will be plenty more to see further on.'"

A Retraction.

"You shouldn't have called that man a pig," said the conciliatory man.

"That's right," replied the vindictive person. "There is no sense in implying that he's worth 40 cents a pound to anybody."

Blissful Ignorance.

"Were you nervous when you proposed to your wife?" asked the sentimental person.

"No," replied Mr. Meekton; "but if I could have foreseen the next ten years I would have been."

Economy in Art.

"Of course," said Mr. Sirius Barker, "I want my daughter to have some sort of an artistic education. I think I'll have her study singing."

"Why not art or literature?"

"Art spoils canvas and paint and literature wastes reams of paper. Singing merely produces a temporary disturbance of the atmosphere.

Home Thought.

"It must have been frightful," said Mrs. Bossim to her husband, who was in the earthquake. "Tell me what was your first thought when you awakened in your room at the hotel and heard the alarm."

"My first thought was of you," answered Mr. Bossim.

"How noble!"

"Yes. First thing I knew, a vase off the mantel caught me on the ear; then a chair whirled in my direction, and when I jumped to the middle of the room four or five books and a framed picture struck me all at once."

Even after saying that, he affected to wonder what made her so angry for the remainder of the evening.—Mack's National Monthly.

New Process of Staining Glass.

The art of coloring glass has been lost and refound, jealously guarded and maliciously stolen so many times in the history of civilization that it seems almost impossible to say anything new on glass staining. Yet a process has been discovered for making the stained glass used in windows which is a departure from anything known at the present time. What the Venetians and the Phoenicians knew of it we cannot tell.

The glass first receives its design in mineral colors and the whole is then fired in a heat so intense that the coloring matter and the glass are indissolubly fused. The most attractive feature of this method is that the surface acquires a peculiar pebbled character in the heat, so that when the glass is in place the lights are delightfully soft and mellow.

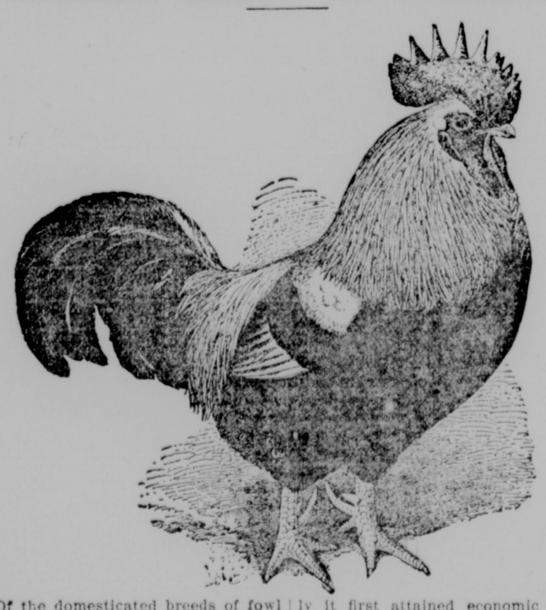
In making a large window in many shades each panel is separately moulded and bent and the sections are assembled in a metal frame.

Our Voices.

I think our conversational soprano, as sometimes overheard in the cars, arising from a group of young persons who have taken the train at one of our great industrial centers, for instance, young persons of the female sex, we will say, who have bustled in full dressed, engaged in loud, strident speech, and who, after free discussion, have fixed on two or more double seats, which having secured, they proceed to eat apples and hand round daguerreotypes—I say, I think the conversational soprano, heard under these circumstances, would not be among the allurements the old enemy would put in requisition were he getting up a new temptation of St. Anthony.

There are sweet voices among us, we all know, and voices not musical, it may be, to those who hear them for the first time, yet sweeter to us than any we shall hear until we listen to some warbling angel in the overture to that eternity of blissful harmonies we hope to enjoy. But why should I tell lies? If my friends love me, it is because I try to tell the truth. I never heard but two voices in my life that frightened me by their sweetness.—Holmes.

ENGLISH BREED OF DORKING



Of the domesticated breeds of fowl in England the Dorking is among the oldest, ranking in this respect with the Games. There are those among poultry writers, who give it even greater historical significance, claiming to trace its ancestry back to the time of the Roman invasion of Brittany. It takes its name from an English town in Surrey, where undoubtedly it first attained economic importance. From this source it has spread pretty much over England, and occupies the same position to the poultry industry of that country that the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes do to America. Pre-eminently it belongs to the all-purpose breeds, with a slightly preponderating advantage for table uses.

What About Brain Food?

This Question Came Up in the Recent Trial for Libel.

A "Weekly" printed some criticisms of the claims made for our foods. It evidently did not fancy our reply printed in various newspapers, and brought suit for libel. At the trial some interesting facts came out.

Some of the chemical and medical experts differed widely.

The following facts, however, were quite clearly established:

Analysis of brain by an unquestionable authority, Geoghegan, shows of Mineral Salts, Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash), 2.91 per cent of the total, 5.33 of all Mineral Salts.

This is over one-half.

Beaunis, another authority, shows "Phosphoric Acid combined" and Potash 73.44 per cent from a total of 101.07.

Considerable more than one-half of Phosphate of Potash.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows: Potassium and Phosphorus, (which join and make Phosphate of Potash), is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This salt unites with albumen and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

The natural conclusion is that if Phosphate of Potash is the needed mineral element in brain and you use food which does not contain it, you have brain fag because its daily loss is not supplied.

On the contrary, if you eat food known to be rich in this element, you place before the life forces that which nature demands for brain-building.

In the trial a sneer was uttered because Mr. Post announced that he had made years of research in this country and some clinics of Europe, regarding the effect of the mind on digestion of food.

But we must be patient with those who sneer at facts they know nothing about.

Mind does not work well on a brain that is broken down by lack of nourishment.

A peaceful and evenly poised mind is necessary to good digestion.

Worry, anxiety, fear, hate, &c., &c., directly interfere with or stop the flow of Ptyalin, the digestive juice of the mouth, and also interfere with the flow of the digestive juices of stomach and pancreas.

Therefore, the mental state of the individual has much to do (more than suspected) with digestion.

This trial has demonstrated:

That Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumen and water.

That Grape-Nuts contains that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required.

"There's a Reason"

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.,

Battle Creek, Mich.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR OF THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS By M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Simon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Her voice and my arm were bringing me to my senses. "I hear," I said. "I—I'll sit up in a second. Are you hurt?"

"No, only bruised. Do you think you can walk?"

I drew up one foot after another, gingerly.

"They seem to move all right," I remarked dubiously. "Would you mind telling me where the back of my head has gone? I can't help thinking it isn't there."

She made a quick examination. "It's pretty badly bumped," she said. "You must have fallen on it."

I had got up on my uninjured elbow by that time, but the pain threw me back. "Don't look at the wreck," I entreated her. "It's no sight for a woman. If—if there is any way to tie up this arm, I might be able to do something. There may be people under those cars!"

"Then it is too late to help," she replied solemnly. A little shower of feathers, each carrying its fiery lamp, blew over us from some burning pillow. A part of the wreck collapsed with a crash. In a resolute endeavor to play a man's part in the tragedy going on all around, I got to my knees. Then I realized what I had not noticed before: The hand and wrist of the broken left arm were jammed through the handle of the sealskin grip. I gasped and sat down suddenly.

"You must not do that," the girl insisted. I noticed now that she kept her back to the wreck, her eyes averted. "The weight of the traveling bag must be agony. Let me support the valise until we can get it cut off."

"Will it have to be cut off?" I asked as calmly as possible. There were red-hot stabs of agony clear to my neck, but we were moving slowly away from the track.

"Yes," she replied, with dumfounding coolness. "If I had a knife I could do it myself. You might sit here and lean against this fence."

By that time my returning faculties had realized that she was going to cut off the satchel, not the arm. The dizziness was leaving and I was gradually becoming myself.

"If you pull, it might come," I suggested. "And with that weight gone, I think I will cease to be five feet eleven inches of baby."

She tried gently to loosen the handle, but it would not move, and at last, with great drops of cold perspiration over me, I had to give up.

"I'm afraid I can't stand it," I said. "But there's a knife somewhere around these clothes, and if I can find it, perhaps you can cut the leather."

As I gave her the knife she turned it over, examining it with a peculiar expression, bewilderment rather than surprise. But she said nothing. She set to work deftly, and in a few minutes the bag dropped free.

"That's better," I declared, sitting up. "Now, if you can pin my sleeve to my coat, it will support the arm so we can get away from here."

"The pin might give," she objected, "and the jerk would be terrible." She looked around, puzzled; then she got up, coming back in a minute with a draggled, partly scorched sheet. This she tore into a large square, and after she had folded it, she slipped it under the broken arm and tied it securely at the back of my neck.

The relief was immediate, and, picking up the sealskin bag, I walked slowly beside her, away from the track.

The first act was over; the curtain fallen. The scene was "struck."

CHAPTER IX.

The Halcyon Breakfast.

We were still dazed, I think, for we wandered like two troubled children, our one idea at first to get as far away as we could from the horror behind us. We were both bare headed, grimy, pallid through the grit. Now and then we met little groups of country folk hurrying to the track; they stared at us curiously, and some wished to question us. But we hurried past them; we had put the wreck behind us. That way lay madness.

Only once the girl turned and looked behind her. The wreck was hidden, but the smoke cloud hung heavy and dense. For the first time I remembered that my companion had not been alone on the train.

"It is quiet here," I suggested. "If you will sit down on the bank I will go back and make some inquiries. I've been criminally thoughtless. Your traveling companion—"

She interrupted me, and something of her splendid poise was gone. "Please don't go back," she said. "I—am afraid it would be of no use. And—I don't want to be left alone."

Heaven knows I did not want her to be alone. I was more than content to walk along beside her aimlessly, for any length of time. Gradually, as she lost the exaltation of the moment, I was gaining my normal condition of mind. I was beginning to realize that I had lacked the morning grace of a shave, that I looked like some lost hope of yesterday, and that my left shoe pinched outrageously. A man does not rise triumphant above such handicaps. The girl, for all her disordered hair and the crumpled linen of her waist, in spite of her missing hat and the small gold bag that hung forlornly from a broken chain, looked exceedingly lovely.

"Then I won't leave you alone," I said manfully, and we stumbled on together. Thus far we had seen nobody from the wreck, but well up the lane we came across the tall dark woman who had occupied lower 11. She was half crouching beside the road, her black hair about her shoulders, and an ugly bruise over her eye. She did not seem to know us, and refused to accompany us. We left her there at last, babbling incoherently and rolling in her hands a dozen pebbles she had gathered in the road.

The girl shuddered as we went on. Once she turned and glanced at my bandage. "Does it hurt very much?" she asked.

"It's growing rather numb. But it might be worse," I answered mendaciously. If anything in this world could be worse, I had never experienced it.

And so we trudged on bareheaded

"Then It's Too Late to Help," She Replied, Solemnly.

under the summer sun, growing parched and dusty and weary, doggedly leaving behind us the pillar of smoke. I thought I knew of a trolley line somewhere in the direction we were going, or perhaps we could find a horse and trap to take us into Baltimore. The girl smiled when I suggested it.

"We will create a sensation, won't we?" she asked. "Isn't it queer—or perhaps it's my state of mind—but I keep wishing for a pair of gloves, when I haven't even a hat!"

When we reached the main road we sat down for a moment, and her hair, which had been coming loose for some time, fell over her shoulders in little waves that were most alluring. It seemed a pity to twist it up again, but when I suggested this, cautiously, she said it was troublesome and got in her eyes when it was loose. So she gathered it up, while I held a row of little shell combs and pins, and when it was done it was vastly becoming, too. Funny about hair: A man never knows he has it until he begins to lose it, but it's different with a girl. Something of the unconventional situation began to dawn on her as she put in the last hair pin and patted some stray locks to place.

"I have not told you my name," she said abruptly. "I forgot that because I know who you are, you know nothing about me. I am Alison West, and my home is in Richmond."

So that was it! This was the girl of the photograph on John Gilmore's bedside table. The girl McKnight expected to see in Richmond the next day, Sunday! She was on her way back to meet him! Well, what difference did it make, anyhow? We had been thrown together by the merest chance. In an hour or two at the most we would be back in civilization and she would recall me, if she remembered me at all, as an unshaven creature in a red cravat and tan shoes, with a soiled Pullman sheet tied around my neck. I drew a deep breath.

"Just a twinge," I said, when she glanced up quickly. "It's very good of you to let me know, Miss West. I have been hearing delightful things about you for three months."

"From Richey McKnight?" She was frankly curious.

"Yes. From Richey McKnight," I assented. Was it any wonder McKnight was crazy about her? I dug my heels into the dust.

"I have been visiting near Cresson, in the mountains," Miss West was saying. "The person you mentioned, Mrs. Curtis, was my hostess. We—we were on our way to Washington together." She spoke slowly, as if she wished to give the minimum of explanation. Across her face had come again the baffling expression of perplexity and trouble I had seen before.

"You were on your way home, I suppose? Richey—spoke about seeing you," I floundered, finding it necessary to say something. She looked at me with level, direct eyes.

"No," she returned quietly. "I did not intend to go home. I—well, it doesn't matter; I am going home now."

A woman in a calico dress, with two children, each an exact duplicate of the other, had come quickly down the road. She took in the situation at a glance, and was explosively hospitable.

"You poor things," she said. "If you'll take the first road to the left over there, and turn in at the second pigsty, you will find breakfast on the table and a coffee pot on the stove. And there's plenty of soap and water, too. Don't say one word. There isn't a soul there to see you."

We accepted the invitation and she hurried on toward the excitement and the railroad. I got up carefully and helped Miss West to her feet.

"At the second pigsty to the left," I repeated, "we will find the breakfast I promised you seven eternities ago. Forward to the pigsty!"

We said very little for the remainder of that walk. I had almost reached the limit of endurance; with every step the broken ends of the bone grated together. We found the farmhouse without difficulty, and I remember wondering if I could hold out to the end of the old stone walk that led between hedges to the door.

"Allah be praised," I said with all the voice I could muster. "Behold the coffee pot!" And then I put down the cup and folded up like a jack-knife on the porch floor.

When I came around something hot was trickling down my neck, and a despairing voice was saying, "Oh, I don't seem to be able to pour it into your mouth. Please open your eyes."

"But I don't want it in my eyes," I replied dreamily. "I haven't any idea what came over me. It was the shoes, I think; the left one is a red-hot torture." I was sitting by that time and looking across into her face.

Never before or since have I fainted, but I would do it joyfully, a dozen times a day, if I could waken again to the blissful touch of soft fingers on my face, the hot ecstasy of coffee spilled by those fingers down my neck. There was a thrill in every tone of her voice that morning. Before long my loyalty to McKnight would step between me and the girl he loved; life would develop new complexities. In these early hours after the wreck, full of pain as they were, there was nothing of the suspicion and distrust that came later. Shorn of our gauds and baubles, we were primitive man and woman, together; our world for the hour was the deserted farmhouse, the slope of wheatfield that led to the road, the woodland lot, the pasture.

We breakfasted together across the homely table. Our cheerfulness, at first sheer reaction, became less forced as we ate great slices of bread from the granny oven back of the house, and drank hot fluid that smelled like coffee and tasted like nothing that I have ever swallowed. We found cream in stone jars, sunk deep in the chill water of the springhouse. And there were eggs, great yellow-brown ones—a basket of them.

So, like two children awakened from a nightmare, we chatted over our food; we hunted mutual friends, we laughed together at my feeble witticisms, but we put the horror behind us resolutely. After all, it was the hat with the green ribbons that brought back the strangeness of the situation.

All along I had had the impression that Alison West was deliberately putting out of her mind something that obtruded now and then. It brought with it a return of the puzzled expression that I had surprised early in the day, before the wreck. I caught it once, when, breakfast over, she was tightening the sling that held the broken arm. I had prolonged the morning meal as much as I could, but when the wooden clock with the pink roses on the dial pointed to half after ten, and the mother with the duplicate youngsters had not come back, Miss West made the move I had dreaded.

"No, I Did Not Intend to Go Home."

"If we are to get into Baltimore at all we must start," she said, rising. "You ought to see a doctor as soon as possible."

"Hush," I said warningly. "Don't mention the arm, please; it is asleep now. You may rouse it."

"If I only had a hat," she reflected. "It wouldn't need to be much of one, but—" She gave a little cry and darted to the corner. "Look," she said triumphantly, "the very thing. With the green streamers tied up in a bow, like this—do you suppose the child would mind? I can put $5 or so here—that would buy a dozen of them."

It was a queer affair of straw, that hat, with a round crown and a rim that flopped dismally. With a single movement she had turned it up at one side and fitted it to her head. Grotesque by itself, when she wore it it was a thing of joy.

Evidently the lack of head covering had troubled her, for she was elated at her find. She left me, scrawling a note of thanks and pinning it with a bill to the table-cloth, and ran upstairs to the mirror and the promised soap and water.

I did not see her when she came down. I had discovered a bench with a tin basin outside the kitchen door, and was washing, in a helpless, one-sided way. I felt rather than saw that she was standing in the doorway, and I made a final plunge into the basin.

"How is it possible for a man with only a right hand to wash his left ear?" I asked from the roller towel. I was distinctly uncomfortable: Men are more rigidly creatures of convention than women, whether they admit it or not. "There is so much soap on me still that if I laugh I will blow bubbles. Washing with rain water and home-made soap is like motoring on a slippery road. I only struck the high places."

Then, having achieved a brilliant polish with the towel, I looked at the girl.

She was leaning against the frame of the door, her face perfectly colorless, her breath coming in slow, difficult respirations. The erratic hat was pinned to place, but it had slid rakishly to one side. When I realized that she was staring, not at me, but past me to the road along which we had come, I turned and followed her gaze. There was no one in sight; the lane stretched dust white in the sun—no moving figure on it, no sign of life.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Cold and Aloof.

"Lord Curzon, during the visit that ended in his marriage to Miss Leiter proved very interesting in his cold, proud way."

The speaker, a Chicagoan, smiled and resumed:

"Cold and proud as young George Curzon was, he regarded the house of lords as colder and prouder. He told me once that when he asked his father if his first speech in the house of lords had been difficult the old gentleman replied:

"'Difficult! It was like addressing sheeted tombstones by torchlight!'"

A Mother's Anxiety.

Willie—Ma, can't I go out on the street for a little while? Tommy Jones says there's a comet to be seen.

Mother—Well, yes; but don't you go too near.—Boston Transcript.

AND GO AHEAD SLOWLY.

Philosopher—And now, after having reviewed all philosophy with you, there is only one law that I can lay down for your guidance.

Student—What is that?

Philosopher—When you are sure you are right, you should suspect that you are wrong.

Two Bad Cases in England Cured by Resinol Ointment.

I have been using Resinol Ointment during the last few weeks for a varicose ulcer on leg and can bear testimony to its cooling and curative qualities. Have never found anything to equal it. I was recommended by my sister, Mrs. Cairus Ladykirk, Norham on Tweed, to try it. She had been treated 14 months previously without effect, but was entirely cured by Resinol Ointment.
Robert Davidson, Gateshead on Tyne.

Not What He Asked For.

A small boy hurried into the corner butcher shop and told the proprietor his mother wanted a nice, tender turkey for Thanksgiving, and she wanted it dressed. The butcher selected just such a bird from the lot in the window, and said, with satisfaction:

"Here's a dandy, my boy—just what your mother wants!"

"No, it ain't!" returned the youth. "That turkey hasn't any clothes on."—Judge.

Mean of Her.

Mrs. Galey (back from the mountains)—Well, my dear, did you keep open house during my absence?

Galey (earnestly)—I should say I didn't, Louise; why, there wasn't a night that I didn't lock the doors at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Galey—Yes? And where did you go then?

A Great Invention.

Vance—I think Ferdie ranks with Edison as an inventor and benefactor of man.

Luella—What did he invent?

Vance—He invented a device to prevent cigawette papers fwom blowing away in a stwong breeze.—Scraps.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Reverse Art.

"An actress in her makeup reverses the usual rules of art."

"How so?"

"She paints first so she can draw afterward."

Household Hints.

By taking one hobble skirt and sewing up one end of it a very pretty ragbag may be made in which to put the others.

Stop guessing! Try the best and most certain remedy for all painful ailments—Hamlins Wizard Oil. The way it relieves all soreness from sprains, cuts, wounds, burns, scalds, etc., is wonderful.

It is often a shorter way, and more useful, to fashion ourselves to others than for them to adjust themselves to us.—La Fontaine.

Your Liver is Clogged up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

Why Rent a Farm

and be compelled to pay to your landlord most of your hard-earned profits? Own your own farm. Secure a Free Homestead in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, or purchase land in one of these districts and bank a profit of $10.00 or $12.00 an acre every year.

Land purchased 3 years ago at $10.00 an acre has recently changed hands at $25.00 an acre. The crops grown on these lands warrant the advance. You can by cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Become Rich

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as land held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Supt of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you) 38

Keep Fit

Your brain, muscles and nerves depend upon good physical condition. Secure it by using

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whitzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHITZEL, M.D., Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

MAKE MORE MONEY

Than you ever dreamed possible decorating china, burnt-wood, metal, pillow-tops, etc., in colors from photographs. Men successful as women. Learned at once; no talent required. Takes like wildfire everywhere. Send stamp quick for particulars.
C. M. VALLANCE COMPANY, Elkhart, Ind.

LAZY LIVER

"I find Cascarets so good that I would not be without them. I was troubled a great deal with torpid liver and headache. Now since taking Cascarets Candy Cathartic I feel very much better. I shall certainly recommend them to my friends as the best medicine I have ever seen."
Anna Bazinet,
Osborn Mill No. 2, Fall River, Mass.

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 928

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

PATENT your invention. Free preliminary search. Booklet free. MILO B. STEVENS & CO., Estab. 1864, 859 14th St., Washington; 200 Dearborn St., Chicago.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 53–1910.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES FOR MEN & WOMEN

BOYS' SHOES, $2.00, $2.50 AND $3.00. BEST IN THE WORLD.

The benefits of free hides, which apply principally to sole leather, and the reduced tariff on sole leather, now enables me to give the wearer more value for his money, better and longer wearing $3, $3.50 and $4 shoes than I could give previous to the tariff revision.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, the superior workmanship and the high grade leathers used, you would then understand why Dollar for Dollar I Guarantee my Shoes to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other $3.00, $3.50 or $4.00 shoes you can buy.

Do you realize that my shoes have been the standard for over 30 years; that I make and sell more $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 shoes than any other manufacturer in the United States? Quality counts. It has made W. L. Douglas shoes a household word everywhere.

W. L. Douglas President W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.

CAUTION! Some genuine without W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on the bottom. TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE

If your dealer cannot supply you with W. L. Douglas Shoes, write for Mail Order Catalog.

W. L. DOUGLAS, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland, Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months..... .75
One copy three months ..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to
THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1911.

A PROVING GROUND FOR FEMININE POLITY.

Billtown has gone feminine and will have to change its name. The community with the masculine cognomen is the educational division of an Ohio county, where 1100 votes were sold for anything they would fetch, from $25 to a glass of cider. Every Bill in Billtown had his price and got it, and then the long arm of the law got him. The latest Doomsday survey shows that every male voter in the district has been disfranchised, and this on the very eve of the election for a new school board, for which women are qualified to vote. The local Pankhursts are in control, for they are also eligible as members of the Board and will of course vote themselves into office. This Amazonian upheaval has left upon the features of the disfranchised lords of creation a pale cast of thought which is almost pathetic. Yesterday they sat around the corner grocery and settled grave questions of international diplomacy and the balance of trade. Today they wouldn't dare express an opinion on the merits of a republican form of government. They go home from the postoffice by way of the back alley and bring in the stovewood without a word.

The eyes of the world will turn to Billtown as a great suffragist experiment station. The Board of Education offers an effective field for feminine activity. If this municipal gynecocracy can leaven Adams county, it will attract national attention. The very incongruity of Billtown's name will strike the popular imagination and the paragraphers. Sincere students of this suffrage question will keep their eyes fixed on this vestal fire ablaze in the Buckeye State.

ROAD SUPERVISORS

For Year 1911; Appointed at the January Meeting of the County Commissioners for Garrett County.

DISTRICT No. 1.

F. R. Sharpless, road from Swanton to top of mountain, $100; Backbone and Deep Run road from Sharpless school house, $25; $125.

S. R. Harvey, road from Sharpless school house to Shaw and Chaffee road; $90.

W. S. Sharpless, road from Barnum road to Blaine road; $40.

B. T. Bray, road from Rhodes place to Blaine, and Blaine road to Mud Pike; $50.

A. M. T. Warnick, Barnum road, also road from Barnum to Folly Run; $90.

J. A. Wright, Mutton Hollow road; $35.

Calvin Glotfelty, old state road from Altamont road to B. & O. R. R. at Swanton, by Hermon Steiding's; $50.

Frank Dewitt, Glendale road from Narrows of Deep Creek to old State road; $50.

George T. Beckman, road from Glendale road to Glotfelty's place; road from Glendale road to Districtline No. 10; $40.

James Fitzwater, road from Custer's to Glendale church; $50.

John Ashenfelter, road from Swanton to Custer's; $50.

William Brenneman, road from Custer's to H. Bittinger's; $40.

Alfred Lohr, Meadow Glade road; $30.

John A. Beckman, Spring Lick road; $60.

DISTRICT No. 2.

Silas Teats, road from Bear Creek bridge at E. Friend's to District No. 5, by old furnace; $80.

Joseph Jeffries, road from school house to line of District No. 5; road from school house via Zadoc Green's to State line; road from Neil's mill to District No. 5; $70.

David Lytle, Cove road from Mineral Spring's to Morgantown road; $25.

James H. Fike, road from M. E. church at Selbysport to Guard's bridge, road from M. E. church to Mill Run by James Guard's; $50.

W. W. Griffith, road from John Riley's to Mill Run road by McCleary's farm; $25.

John Riley, Morgantown road from west end of Selbysport bridge at Selbysport to line of District No. 5, on Winding Ridge; $85.

William Steele, road from Selbysport bridge to Bear Creek bridge at E. Friend's; $55.

John Sterling, road from corporation line at Friendsville to line of District No. 5, by Elder Hill; $125.

Jefferson Lowdermilk, road from Kim. Frazee's to Pa. line by Ridge school house, and by Jeff. Lowdermilk's to Glade road; road from S. K. Frazee's to Guard's bridge; road from Kim. Frazee's to Morgantown road; $125.

George W. Frazee, road from Selbysport bridge to Hiram Humberson's; road from covered bridge to Morgantown road at Frey farm; $50.

Kim. Humberson, road from S. K. Frazee's to Pa. line at Daniel Umbel's house; $40.

John Meyers, road from Garey's gate to Reckner's lane by J. H. Rushes; $55.

Frank Humberson, from Reckner's lane to West Virginia line, from A. Thomas' to West Virginia line; $70.

Lieutellus Frazee, road from Rush's watering trough to Buffalo Run; $20.

Alfred Schroyer, road from C. W. Friend's to Sand Spring road at Alfred Schroyer's; road from Alfred Schroyer's to Blooming Rose church; $55.

William Fearer, road from Sand Springs to Alfred Schroyers; $30.

G. W. Fike, road from Jeff. Frazee's to C. L. Fike's; road from Sand Spring to I. M. Umbel's; $50.

Harry Thomas, Glade road to West Virginia line; road from L. C. Fike's to McDermott farm; $45.

Wilham Meyers, road from Reckner's farm to Sand Spring road; $35.

John Burk, road from C. W. Friend's to White Rock Run; $50.

Jeff. Burk, road from White Rock Run to John H. Friend's; $40.

B. E. Friend, road from cross roads at C. W. Friend's to West Virginia line; road from Falkner's saw mill to West Virginia line, by Falkner's to West Virginia line; $80.

Garrett V. Dixon, road from Alfred Welch's in Friendsville to gate at Hook farm; $75.

Jefferson Frazee, road from gate at Hook farm to line leading from Blooming Rose church; road from Morgantown road by Blooming Rose church to Friendsville road; road from lane leading from Blooming Rose church to cross roads at C. W. Friend's; $85.

John Stuck road from Guard's bridge via Swalp's to State line; Mill Run road to school house; Melville Coddington and Bowser's roads; $50.

Isaac T. Myers, road from Alf. Schrover's to West Virginia line; $50.

Joshua Burgess, road from Sang Run road near C. E. Fike's to intersect the Morgantown road near Franklin Humberson's; $25.

DISTRICT No. 3.

C. J. Oester, road from Keyser's ridge to line of District No. 5, $20; and road from Keyser's ridge to Weller's gate, $15; $25.

Z. Sibert, Negro Mountain road from National road to Amish road; $35.

Harvey H. Miller, Negro Mountain road to Pa. line, and road from H. Miller's to State line at William Wright's; $35.

Jason Wilburn, Amish road from Pike to District line No. 12; $30.

Eli Gingerich, road from Aaron Beachy's to Pa. line; $25.

Noah Hershberger, road from S. Beachy's to Pa. line; $40.

E. S. Miller, Neiverton road from Grantsville to Pa. line; $40.

S. C. Loechel, river road from National road to Pa. line; $40.

Fearson Maust, road from Pike near stone house to Pa. line;

Charles Poleman, Red Run road from National road to Pa. line; $40.

Walter Chaney, Avilton road from Bepler farm to Catholic church; $25.

Joseph Robeson, road from Catholic church to line of District No. 11; $25.

Charles Chaney, Pope road from Hetz's lane to C. L. McKenzie's; $20.

Christopher Miller, road from Chas. L. McKinzie's store to McKinzie's saw mill; $15.

C. J. Otto, Boucher road from D. Enlow's to National road, $30; New Germany road from D. Enlow's to cross roads at M. E. church, $50; road from M. E. church to National road, $50; $130.

G. J. Gnagey, road from National road to cross roads and little glade road; $30.

C. C. Durst, Grantsville road from D. Enlow's by A. Warnick's to National road; $60.

J. L. Fresh, Blue Lick road from Dorsey's school house to Brown's lane; $35.

John Stark, road from Swaugers mill by S. Wiland's to M. E. church. $27; Road from Bancard's to north end of Dorsey's lane, $35; $62.

George W. Broadwater, Elk Run road from Stark's gate to line of District No. 11, $30; road from C. J. Otto's mill by Swauger's mill to cross roads at M. E. church, $23; $53.

P. Yost, Oakland road from east end of covered bridge to line of District No. 12, $55; Manadier road from Ridgley's school house to railroad crossings, $25; road from J. L. Durst's to Oakland road near Beachy's farm, $15; Engle road from cross roads to L. Yommer's, $45; $140.

Mahlon Miller, river road from covered bridge to Grantsville; $55.

Elmer Beachy, road from covered bridge to Engles school house; $15.

Hampton Butler, road from railroad crossing by M. Custer's to Meadow Mountain road near widow Bittinger's; $40.

Josiah W. Durst, Shade Hollow road from National road to widow Miller's; $20

Fred Otto, road from Swauger's mill race to line of District No. 12; $40.

Jacob S. Miller, road from Yoder's school house by J. D. Brenneman's to Neiverton road; $20.

William Metz, road from National road by Coleman's to Avilten; $35.

DISTRICT No. 4.

H. B. Warnick, road from Frankville road to Folly Run and from Folly Run to Barmun road; $30.

W. C. Tichinell, road from Watson's wheel house to Chestnut Grove, $40; and road from Frankville to Chestnut Grove, $40; $80.

John W. Broadwater, road from Westernport by Firm Rock Church to line of District No. 11, $40; new road from Savage river bridge to Westernport road, $20, and road from Phil, Michael's to Firm Rock Church, $10; $70.

F. Broadwater, road from line of District No. 1 to line of District No. 12, $60; road from mouth of Dry Run to mouth of Bear Pen Run, $30; road from Devecmon's farm to north end of Crabtree bridge, $35; $125.

Lee Fazenbaker, road from Garrett County line to Chas. Michael's road; $70.

S. A. Duckworth, road from Chas. Michael's to S. A. Duckworth's; $25.

P. R. Tichinell, road from Bloomington to Folly Run, $55; from Folly Run to new road, $5; $60.

A. M. Duckworth, road from river road to Frankville road; $25.

Joseph Meyers, Bloomington road from Allegany county line near mountain to Folly Run; $65.

Ezra Michaels, Mill Run road; $15.

DISTRICT No. 5.

Solomon Glass, Smearman road to top of mountain, $15; road from Boger's to George's, $10; road from Accident to Bear Creek and from Accident by George's to Bear Creek, $80; $105.

Joseph Bowman, road from Engle's Mill to Mud Pike, and from Engle's Mill to line of District at Chas. Hetrick's; $30

Henry Kolb, road from William Fisher's to Morgantown road by Samuel Hileman's and from Caroline Frazee's to Fike road and from Morgantown road to Bear Creek bridge; $65.

Milton Fisher, Morgantown road from line of District No. 2 to Cove road and from Cove road to National road, Lewis Harmon road, $40; Cove road by Jerry Strawn's to National road, Spruce Hollow road, Mill road to District No. 2, $30; James Paul road, $20; $90.

Freeman Dewitt, road from Matthew Frazee's by Solomon Boyer's to Accident road at Rock Lick, road from Ode Dewitt's to near Charles Dewitt's; $30.

J. M. Lowdermilk, Legislative road from Ode Dewitt's to line of District No. 2, and from Legislative at Flat Rocks to Bishoff's school house, and by school house to Legislative road by Brison Welch farm; $60.

F. J. Glotfelty, road from Grantsville road to Bear Creek, $20.

C. A. Guthrie, road from Accident to line of District No. 2; from Zaner's gate to Bear Creek bridge; $80.

Fred Hoffman, road from Accident to District line at Bethel Church, from M. J. Miller's bridge to line at Samuel Mosser's, $90; road from William Hartman's to the Shartzer farm, and from Miller's distillery to cross roads at William Englehart's, thence to Mud Pike on Boger's hill, $30; $120.

Lewis Kamp, road from Horse Shoe Bend to Kasey's Mill, $45; from Horse Shoe Bend to finger board, $25; road from Bear Breek bridge (south side) to Cove church, and from Brethren church to District line, $70; $140.

J. M. Fisher, road from Cove church by A. Fisher's to Morgantown road, road from church by William Fisher's to Wesley Hileman's road from Krouse's shop to old school house, and road from William Lohr's to Morgantown road; $55.

DISTRICT No. 6.

Jerome Kelly, road from White Rock Run to West Virginia line at the Black house; $50.

Marshall H. Frankhouser, road from coal bank to the end of Crane's lane, also road from Crane's lane to the Cranesville road at Lake Ford; $90.

Earl F. Teets, road from Swallow Falls road to West Virginia line (the new short road included); $55.

Samuel Thomas, road from William Lowdermilk's to Elijah Friend's (on the mountain); $40.

S. M. Friend, road from coal bank to Joseph Frantz's; $60.

Paul Hoye, road from Sang Run to Hoyes Run; $40.

Marcellus Friend, road from Hoyes Run to Deep Creek; $45.

D. McLean, road from McHenry to line of District No. 5, $50; road from Bender's place to McHenry road, $45; $95.

Thomas Bishoff, road from Jos. Frantz's to Johnstown, $35; road from Seabolt's to Ed. Bishoff's school house by Casteel farm, $20; $55

Stephen W. Friend, road from Hoyes Run to Andrew Seabolt's; $35.

M. Mattingly, road from Ode Dewitt's to McHenry; $50.

Brison Glotfelty, road from Jos. Frantz's to Glotfelty's fields at McHenry; $20.

Cyrus Stark, road from Johnstown to District line No. 5, $15; road from McHenry to District line No. 5, $25; $40.

A. Clyde Smith, road from Deep Creek to McHenry, road from finger board to Glendale church; $40.

Joseph Ash, Grantsville road from sand hole to Bear Creek bridge, and road from mud pike by Jonas Hostedler's to intersect county road; $30.

Lewis Orendorf, road from line of District No. 12 to Joel Bender's; thence the Bender road through to line of District No. 7; $55.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Roy O. Winters, road from Third street in Oakland to Deer Park, $100; road from Dennett's Hotel to Oakland, $20; road from Joseph Shaffer's farm to Mountain Lake Park, $30; $150.

P. H. Rodeheaver, road from Broadford to Kings Run; $40.

William R. Beckman, road from Sell's to Thaverville, to Lake Brown; $40.

Jacob Echard, road from Mountain Lake Park Ice House to Deer Park and road from Oakland to Gortner's and road from Loch Lynn to top of mountain at Kelso's gate; also all other roads in District No. 7 not mentioned; $1000.

DISTRICT No. 8.

Jack Wilson, road from Kearney to Steyer; $40.

Joseph Conneway, Pike from top of mountain to Gorman; $75.

James Moreland, road from Pike to Murry White's house by B. F. Harvey's, $20; road from Gorman to Kearney, $90; King and Wilderson road from King's to Gorman, $25; $135.

David Gnagey, Shaffer road, $75; Gauer & Miller road, $10; $85.

Frank Harvey, Abernathy road from top of mountain to Wilson road; $55.

J. W. Biggs, Wilson and Cooper road, $45, and road from Wood place to Dobbin, W. Va., $65; $110.

James Aronholt, Bayard county road; $50.

A. D. Harvey, Wilson road to Wilson, W. Va.; $75.

William Cosner, road from Fairview church to road from Wilson place to Dobbin, $20; Beckman & Pope road, $15; $35.

John H. Sanders, Aurora road from Gortner to West Virginia line, $125; Sunny Side road to Red House, $25; Mansfield road by John Sanders, $25; $175.

Henry J. Eggers, Nine road from Sunny Side School House to W. Va., line; $25.

O. S. Ridder, Dewitt and Ashby road from Aurora road to Mosser's; $50.

Henry Mosser, Mason road from Clement's to Henry, W. Va., $50; and road from Henry to Pat Flynn's, $50; $100.

Elisha Harvey, road from Mrs. King's to Kelso's; $30.

William R. Mason, road from schoo house at H. U. Miller's to top of mountain, $40; and Pike from top of mountain to W. Va., line at Chisholm's mill, $75; $115.

H. U. Miller, road from Gortner by his place to W. Va., line; $85.

H. C. Fowler, Horse Shoe Run road to Red House; $40.

DISTRICT No. 9.

Edward Finzell road from National road to Pa. line; $55.

D. D. Meese, Wilhelm road from National road to Pa. line; $65.

Urias McKenzie, Pocahontas road from National road to Pa. line; $65.

Calvin Wilson, Frostburg road from Wilson's lane to National road; $60.

William Hagner, Frostburg road from Wilson's lane to District No. 11; $40.

George S. Bittinger, Lowery road to Pa. line; $40.

DISTRICT No. 10.

James L. Harvey, road from Jerry Tasker's corner to Schell, W. Va.; $45.

George W. Moon, road from Lost land run to Deer Park road; $50.

Robert E. Paugh, road from Jerry Tasker's corner to George Moon's sheep pen; $55.

William Sebold, road from Loch Lynn to Schreve's place; $30.

James Lish, road from Kelso's gate at top of mountain to White Church, also all other roads in District south of R. R. not mentioned; $350.

Abel Dewitt, road from Sand Flat to Deer Park, $150; road from Mrs. Pysell's to Broadford, $15; road from Dodge school house at B. F. Paugh's to Deer Park road, $30; $195.

H. J. Lohr, road from Delawder's school house to Deer Park, $30; Altamont and Wilson road to top of Backbone mountain, $75; and road from Pysell's farm to Altamont road, $25; $130.

Charles A. Miller, Pond Run road from Solomon Hoge's place to A. D. Naylor's farm; $35.

Alfred McRobie, road from Wilson to Eagle Rock road, $20; and road from Africa school house to Lost Land Run, $5; $25.

DISTRICT No. 11.

Archibald Broadwater, Lonaconing from Brown's lane to Little Savage; $75

U. S. Jackson, Lonaconing road from Little Savage to Allegany County line; $75.

E. Lancaster, road from Brown's lane by Lancaster's to Wilhelm's; $25.

E. O. Robeson, Ridge road from Lancaster's lane to Merrill P. O., $40; road from E. O. Robeson's to Garlitz grist mill, $10; $50.

J. I. Robeson, Frostburg road to District No. 9; $30.

Cornelius Smith, Westernport and Barton road from Jesse Michael's to Lonaconing road near Layton's, $55; Lonaconing road from J. Warnick's to Strickland's, $80, $135.

Jonas Weitzell, Foint road from Poplar Lick bridge to Fairview Church; $40.

Alban Fazenbaker, Barton road from Allegany county line to A. Fazenbaker's; $55.

George W. Broadwater, Lonaconing road from line of District No. 3 to J. Warnick's; $50.

John Merrill, road from line of District No. 4 to Merrill bridge, $60; road from Gregg's school to W. Warnick's, $20; $80.

C. A. Green, Laurel Run road from Allegany county line to Strickland's lane; $30.

DISTRICT No. 12.

D. J. Brenneman, Manadier ridge road from mountain road to Bender's farm, $30; and road from Custer's lane to widow Bittinger's lane, east end, $15; $45.

James Wiley, Amish road from widow Hetrick's to top mountain; $30.

John Hetrick, Accident road from Lohr's line of District No. 5, $45; and from M. Legeer's to District No. 3, $15; and from Orendorf's to cross roads, $15; $75.

Edward Brenneman, New Germany road from Bittinger to Manadier ridge road, $30; from Bittinger to mill road near widow Hetrick's, $40; Beitzell road from Bittinger to Amish road (new road), $40; $110.

Marshall Durst, road from Manadier ridge road to Back Woods road; $20.

Jacob Brenneman, road from Lutheran Church to Swanton road, $30; Oakland road from Bittinger to line of District No. 3, $60; $90.

Albert Brenneman, Oakland road from Bittinger to line of District No. 5; $60.

S. B. Brenneman, mountain road from C. Beachy's to Hermon Bittinger's, $30; Soelder's road, $10; $40.

John Green, road from E. Raley's to line of District No. 4, $25; Meadow mountain road from H. Bittinger's to Bittinger road at Berkey's, $55; $80.

James Schrock, road from Grantsville road to Amish Church; $20.

DISTRICT No. 13.

J. B. Moore, road from corporation line at Kitzmiller to Lost Land Run; $150.

A. G. Barrick, Chaffee road, $60; Dodson road, $40; $100.

C. E. Bray, road from Kitzmiller to Mud bridge; $150.

DISTRICT No. 14.

Wallace Bowser, West Union road at Totten farm by White's to Cherry Creek bridge; $100.

B. C. Scott, Terra Alta road to Cranesville road by Davises, $100; road from finger board to W. Va. line and from same road to Hutton Switch, $70; new road from Hutton Switch road to W. Va., line, $15; $185.

Newton Reams, road from Cranesville road to Sang Run road; $50.

M. J. Hughes, Ashby and Hutton Switch road; $50.

Frank Graham, road from Crellin to Glotfelty's farm; $50.

J. L. Brenneman, road from Crellin road at Jos. Glotfelty's to West Virginia line, by Ami Foreman's; $85.

John Markley, Sang Run road from Deep Creek to Round Glade; $70.

P. H. Rodeheaver, Sang Run road from Oakland to Round Glade; $150.

John White, road from King's Run at Pike to Miller's Run, $40; road from Dodge school house by Henry Jordon's to road from Bray school house to Dodge's, $40; $80.

Charles Skipper, road from Bray's school house to State road; $40.

O. R. Leighton, road from Muddy Creek to Browning crossing; $40.

Christopher Koch, road from Oakland to Browning crossing; $125

John M. Browning, Snaggy mountain road; $25.

S. A. Kendall, road from Oakland to Crellin; $175.

Zack Poling, road from Crellin to West Virginia line; $25.

NATIONAL ROAD.

David Pope, 6th and 7th miles west of Allegany county line; $80.

Charles Hetz, 8th and 9th miles west of Allegany county line; $80.

Louis H. Deffenbaugh, 10th and 11th miles west of Allegany county line; $80.

William Tressler, 12th and 13th miles west of Allegany county line; $80.

M. J. Folk, 15th and 16th miles west of Allegany county line; $80.

C. J. Folk, 17th end 18th miles west of Allegany county line; $80.

Conrad Speicher, 19th mile west of Allegany county line; $40.

Peter Beachy, 20th and 21st miles and to the State line; $80.

The appointees named in the aforegoing list are requested to promptly take oath of office, execute their bonds and return same so they can be approved by the Board February 6, 1911.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

22222 The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County. 22222

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank
Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:
L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after a while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank
Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $12,500.00

The Savings Department Takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays. 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.
C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier
DIRECTORS.
C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College
COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.
Maryland's School of Technology
Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.
Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of instruction leading to professional degree of B. S. Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars.

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy
JOS. E. HARNED, Propr
Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

KODAK ●● SAFETY ● FILM

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt — Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis — George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell — William R. Stull
Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cheuvront spent yesterday in Terra Alta.

Mr. Arthur White has returned to Oakland from a visit of a week to Pittsburg friends.

Attorneys John T. Mitchell and Ed-H. Sincell went to Baltimore Tuesday night on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Browning and daughter, of Thayerville, were in Oakland yesterday shopping.

County School Commissioners Yost and Ellithorp were in Oakland Tuesday attending a meeting of the board.

Mrs. Emerson, of Litchfield, Mich., is in Oakland spending a few day with her brothers, Messrs. A. D. and E. G. Naylor.

Mr. Mark S. White, after spending two weeks at Bradford and other Pennsylvania points, returned home last Friday evening.

Pritchard's gallery in the Ravenscroft building is now open for business. Photographs twenty-five cents per doz. to three dollars per doz. Postal cards a specialty at special prices. 2t

Mr. Wellington M. Crane left Oakland for Wheeling Tuesday afternoon where he has secured a position with a grocery house as city salesman.

Mr. Francis Gonder, who has been in the west for a year or more, has returned to Oakland and will remain here for a short time visiting his mother.

Messrs. G. Semmes Hamill, Henry Lauer and Wade H. Hinebaugh are in Baltimore this week on business connected with the Grand Lodge K. of P.

Dr. Henry W. McComas was in Cumberland Monday night on professional business, having been called there to visit Mr. Owen Treacy whose condition is slightly improved.

Mr. Charles E. M. Hilleary, of Gorman, and Dr. R. A. Ravenscoft, of Baltimore, were in Oakland yesterday attending the meeting of the board of directors of the First National Bank.

Mr. Oliver Heyward, of Bond, was in Mountain Lake Park and Oakland yesterday on business. Mr. Heyward and family will probably move to the Park from Bond sometime during the early spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Goss, who were in Cincinnati during the holidays, have returned to Oakland, being accompanied home by David and Hulda Burke, Mrs. Goss' children, who had been in Cinainnati attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Litzinger, who were married in Parkersburg Sunday, returned last evening from their wedding trip to that city, and have taken up their residence at the Coulehan House.—Grafton Sentinel.

Miss Carrie Thrasher returned to her home in Deer Park early this week. She had a very pleasant visit in Baltimore and Washington and enjoyed every moment. She was accompanied to Deer Park by Miss Irene Haulenbeek.

A change of forty degrees in temperature occurred here within the twenty-four hours intervening between Tuesday morning and yesterday morning. Tuesday at 6 a. m. the thermometer registered ten degrees above zero, and yesterday morning at the same hour the mercury registered 50 degrees above.

Dr. Webster Ravenscroft and Henry Smouse returned to their homes near Oakland last Saturday from a successful fox chase of two days' duration on Negro Mountain. The hunters from Oakland were two of a party of ten or more who were successful in capturing two foxes, one red and the other grey.

START TO SAVE FOR THAT HOME NOW.

HOME, SWEET HOME can only be for those who REGULARLY deposit in the bank a part of their incomes and save enough to buy a home.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.
We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.
OAKLAND, MD.

When the year is young we make good resolutions, and when the year is old we reflect upon the number of those resolutions we have broken. Still we may have kept a good many, and, if so, then that gives us good heart with which to enter another year.

Mr. John Morris, who has been bookkeeper for the Northern Natural Gas Company in Oakland for a year or more, has resigned has position and will leave here tomorrow morning for Charlestown, W. Va., where he will embark in business.

General Sam B. Lee, of Terra Alta, was in Oakland yesterday when he called at this office for the purpose of denying the published report that he purchased turpentine in Oakland and took it to his West Virginia home. The General wants his friends to know that turpentine can be bought in Terra Alta.

Mr. Cheston Browning, who spent the holidays in Oakland with his mother, Mrs. Mary Browning, and other relatives, returned to Mercersburg, Pa., Tuesday afternoon, where he is a student in the academy at that place. "Ches" is a boy who is determined to go ahead and is being encouraged in his endeavers to secure an education.

The ice harvest, which was begun on the lake at Mountain Lake Park Monday morning when ice eight to nine inches in thickness was cut and stored in the ice house on the shore of the lake, ceased yesterday when the sudden thaw set in Tuesday sixteen car loads were shipped to various points along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio for the use of the railroad company and yesterday seventeen car loads were sent out.

The officers of the State Horticultural Department desire to inspect all nursery stock shipped into the State this fall and next spring. All persons receiving nursery stock from out-state nurseries are requested to notify the State Entomologist, College Park, Maryland. 3t

Some men stand idly by waiting for opportunities to come along. Of that class is the business man who because he does not advertise, has plenty of time to look out of the store window for a chance customer. But the progressive man search them and uses them to his own advancement. That is what the business man does who keeps his business constantly in the public mind by advertising generously and wisely, and reaps the reward of his foresight and fertility of mind.

Mr. Neil C. Fraley returned to Oakland from Baltimore, to which city he accompanied his mother three weeks ago, yesterday morning. Mrs. Fraley, who has been a great sufferer for a year or more from the effects of an abscess forming on her train, was operated upon in Johns Hopkins Hospital on Saturday, since which time she has been in a very precarious condition. Mr. Fraley went to Baltimore Thursday night and was followed to that city Monday evening by his eldest son Lawrence, both of whom are still there.

The year in its passing seasons of spring, summer, autumn, and winter presents a close parallel to individual life. The old age of the year is much like the old age of life. The youthfulness, vigor and bouyancy of youth are gone; the steps are weaker and faltering; there is the backward look rather than the forward. As the coming days are fewer so we live largely in the past. Yet for all that age has its compensations of experience, wisdom, and service rendered. And just as the old year is succeeded by another, so in the highest sense the close of earthly may mean the dawn of the higher life.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Sunday school at 2:15 p. m.
Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.
Services every evening during the week at 7.30 o'clock.
Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows:
Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock the sacrament of the Holy Communion will be administered preceded by confirmation of a class and preparatory services.
Preaching 7.30 p.m.
Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m.
Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m.
Preaching at 7:30 p. m.
Sunday school at 2.30 p. m.
Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

PRESBYTERIAN.

The Reverend J. T. Conning, of Baltimore, Md., will preach in the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, January 15, 1911, at 11 o'clock, also in the evening at 7.30.

Call for Your Letters.

A. F. Wringer, Geo. W. Ward, Malin M. Hunt, P. Holden, Frank Stewart, T. W. Scott. Mrs. Florence Jamison, Charlie Peck, J. T. Wolf, Paul E. Bower.

The Republican for Job Printing.

OTTAWAY.

Miss Mary Carney returned on Wednesday last from a visit to Cumberland.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Felton and left a little boy.

Mrs. L. A. Paulie is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Irvin Nine, near Aurora, at this writing.

F. O. Swindler left on Saturday for a short visit to Fairmont.

Merchant Wm. R. Pendergast has sold his store—stock and building—to his brother, Joseph F. Pendergast, and will leave for the west in the near future.

Miss Blanche Miller was on the sick list last week, but was able to resume her duties as teacher on Monday.

John F. Kimmell and B. C. Scott were baleing hay in this section last week.

J. O. Thomas is on a business trip in the east.

GREATEST BARGAINS
EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE
CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.
400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 20 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3655. 45-5m

Where

is the best place to buy

MEATS

AT

CREUTZBERG'S

Old Reliable Up-to-Date

Meat Market

WITHOUT A DOUBT.

HOMER E. TURNEY,
Proprietor.

P. S. I pay the highest CASH market price for beef, pork, veal, mutton and lamb.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am
Yours respectfully,
H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Stockholders' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Garrett County Telephone Co., will be held at Hoyes, Md., on the 14th Day of January, 1911,

at the hour of 10.30 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and any other business that may come up at that time.

C. V. GUARD, Secretary.

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice inthe Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season
Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

The Baltimore News

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

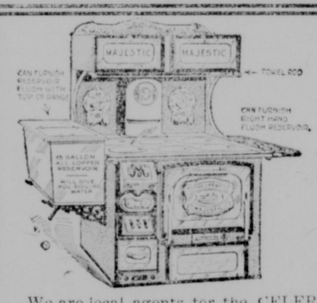
Published Every Afternoon, Including Sunday

A Newspaper for the Home, for the Family Circle

Covers thoroughly the news of the city, State and country.
Complete market reports.
Buy it from your local newsdealer or order it by mail.

One month.....30c. | Six months.....$1.75
Three months.....50c. | One year.....$3.50

The Baltimore News, Baltimore, Md.



MAJESTIC RANGES

For Coal or Wood

HONEST GOODS.
HONEST PRICES.

We are local agents for the CELERRATED MAJESTIC RANGES—the Ranges with a national reputation. Nothing better is made in the stove line. Goods which are cheap, but not good, are dear at any price.

Why you should have a Great and Grand Majestic Range in your Kitchen—

It cuts the fuel bill in half because it is riveted air-tight, HOLDS the heat where it belongs, and has the proper arrangement of flues.
It is used by your neighbor, who would have no other.
It browns bread all over just alike without turning.
Has large warming closets with the right kind of doors. The only warming closets that you can clean.
It is made in any size and style desired.
It is made of better and heavier material than any other.
It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron.
It costs a little more, but lasts much longer.
It is the only range made that has a ventilated ash pit.

S. LAWTON & SONS, Oakland, Md.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Charity—which is love for humanity—is still the greatest of the three virtues.

London is reinforcing its meat supply with refrigerated monkey carcasses from Peru.

British medical experts want insanity made the basis for divorce. And some will say "ain't it great to be crazy!"

With aeroplanes falling from the clouds, and automobiles blowing chauffeurs into trees, this is truly an unsettled time.

Natural ice has been almost entirely absolved of the charge of harboring fever germs. These little pets detest cold feet.

Somehow we can't get real good and scared over the announcement that a new counterfeit $100 bill is in circulation.

It cost an Ohio farmer $14.25 for attempting to kiss his neighbor's wife. Near kisses are as costly as one sealed and delivered.

The population of New York state is nearly 10,000,000, but there is still plenty of room to get around there without touching elbows.

Notwithstanding the fact that upper berths are to be lower, it will be necessary to use a ladder for the purpose of getting into one of them.

Japan is going to buy herself a $12,000,000 warship. This ought to precipitate another war scare among the nervous contingent.

The fight which a Pennsylvania lumber buyer had with a bear may invite recognition of Bruin as one of our leading conservationists.

There is one merit which the airship can boast. It leaves the streets clear for pedestrians to walk without fear of being run down by speeders.

A man in New York, fired upon on the street, was saved by the opal pin in his necktie. This ought to lift the ban of ill luck from that unlucky stone.

There are indications that the record for hunters who were mistaken for deer will be broken this year. It is a remarkable year for broken records.

More people would be satisfied to take things as they come, were it not for the fact that most of the things that come are not worth waiting for.

New York is erecting a building 13 feet higher than the Singer building. If this goes on, aeroplanists are going to protest against the obstruction of traffic.

It is announced that the government is going to substitute dollar bills for bills of $20 and more. That's good; it will make it easier to flash a large roll.

When the ocean liners take something of their size for collision purposes the results are different from those achieved when they run into fishing smacks.

A schoolboy was directed to write an essay about cotton, and he began it by saying "it is chiefly used in making woolen goods." That boy keeps his eyes open.

Hobble skirts hinder business, is the conclusion of the Atlantic City shop keepers. Maybe the Atlantic City girls can show speed in other ways than walking.

An Ohio man offers $5,000 for an airship ride. If that sum is to be established as the regular fare the atmosphere will not be crowded for a long time to come.

A Wellesley student has been expelled for getting married. It was probably decided that she took an unfair advantage of the many Massachusetts spinsters who are looking for men.

Still another biggest-yet and most luxurious steamship is planned. Eventually, we suppose, no passenger vessel will be complete without a golf course, a portecochere and outdoor sleeping porches.

The councilmen of several of the cities are legislating against the long hatpin. If they were wise they would issue their commands to their own wives first, to ascertain what measure of submission they are likely to meet with.

The school board of Pocahontas, Va., has issued a rule forbidding the schoolma'ams of that place the right to attend dances. What has become of southern chivalry?

Prince Henry of Prussia has made several flights in an aeroplane. But the prince had convinced Americans some years before the aeroplane that he was a pretty high flyer.

All cities that have aviation meets soon discover that none of the birdmen are flying for their health.

Is Life Imprisonment Worse than Death?

THERE are times when a hush, a stillness that is awful in its intensity, falls over a courtroom. The trial has dragged out its painful length, the evidence is in, the pleas have been made and the jury has returned a verdict expressed in that one short Anglo-Saxon word, "Guilty." The convicted murderer rises to his feet at the command of the judge. He stands up to receive the measured sentence of the law. Every eye in the courtroom is turned upon him and every ear is strained to catch the words that will mean life or death to the unfortunate who stands upright to meet the blow. If you stood in his place would you hope for those ominous words, "Hanged by the neck until dead," or would you welcome a sentence of "life imprisonment?" If you knew that "life imprisonment" meant just what it is supposed to mean and that there was no hope of escape, no hope of pardon, nothing but the long months reaching into drab monotonous, loathsome years of loneliness, would you still choose to cling to the life that was in you?

The legal world was shocked and the public was horrified by the plea of Albert A. Patrick, convicted murderer of the millionaire, William Marsh Rice, who demanded death rather than life imprisonment. In a remarkable document he tried to reject clemency that saved him from the electric chair, giving him life imprisonment in the place of death. His petition recited this, as his principal reason: "Life imprisonment is a far severer punishment than death in any form." This action of his has no parallel in the court records of the United States. It was a remarkable assertion made by a remarkable criminal. It caused many jurists to wonder if, after all, the deprivation of liberty ought to be allowed to take the place of the death penalty.

Judge Kavanaugh's Opinion.

A Chicago courtroom listened recently to a strange address made by Judge Marcus Kavanaugh, Joseph Welcome, the prisoner at the bar, had pleaded "guilty" to the charge of murder. It was a crime of peculiarly aggravating circumstances. Welcome had driven his wife from home. He followed her to the boarding house of Mrs. Mary McLean and a quarrel ensued. Enraged by her avowed intention of quitting him forever, he drew a revolver and shot her down. In attempting to save the life of the unfortunate woman Mrs. McLean was killed by a bullet from the degenerate's weapon. Moved by the plea of guilty and his appeal for the mercy of the court, the jury fixed Welcome's punishment at life imprisonment.

When the prisoner rose to receive the sentence, Judge Kavanaugh said:

"Welcome, you committed a terrible crime. Your punishment is to be more terrible still. When your wife sought to escape you shot her. It was no fault of yours that she lived and that you, in fact, then killed another woman who was making useful way in the world. You could hardly get twelve men in the box who would not inflict the death penalty upon you, yet it is the policy of the law to regard a plea of guilty in some measure of itself a mitigation.

"The instinctive, unreasoning horror of mankind regards death as the most severe punishment. This idea is not correct. You are now to receive a sterner punishment. Your victim died but once. You will die a hundred times. You will suffer more the day you put on your prison clothes than she did in her death.

"After that there will be only the hopeless, painful years, from day to day, from month to month, stretching out forever and in agony. In four or five years the eternal solitude and silence will begin to crush in upon you like an iron weight.

"You are so elated now at the thought of saving your life that you don't realize all this. I want you and the others here in this courtroom to understand it. You are not sorry yet for your crime. You have only a great self-pity.

"There will be few worse men than you in that big prison, but I may say the law has taken its full and ample revenge upon you."

Welcome has now entered upon the monotonous round of the "Living Death" that Judge Kavanaugh described. He is now a "thing" in striped clothes, a number that has its home in the heart of a great mass of stone and steel and concrete, watched by riflemen on forbidding walls, the great state prison at Joliet. It is possible that he has already glimpsed something of the punishment that is to be his, so long as breath and reason remain within his body.

Was Judge Kavanaugh right? Is it true that life imprisonment is a more terrible punishment than the extinction of the criminal? Do men die a hundred deaths where their victims died but one? His pronouncement is new, so far as the bench is concerned. It has been debated, however, for generations by philosophers and students. Cold reason tells the human mind that death would be preferable to a life lived in the narrow confines of steel cages and stony corridors, but every criminal welcomes the alternative of imprisonment all his days when actually confronted by the gallows or the electric chair. Judge Kavanaugh's speech to the condemned man serves to awaken interest in that last and greatest of the powers of the state, the right to take human life.

In all civilized countries in the world, with one exception, the death penalty is exacted of the murderer and the traitor. Italy is the single exception, but there is rarely an attempt to secure the commutation of a murder's sentence in that country. When he is finally sentenced, it is the end, for there is no hope of pardon except in the most undoubted cases of innocence, and thus far the prison gates of that country have never swung open to release a murderer. In America there is always hope so long as there is life.

PRONOUNCING THE LIFE SENTENCE

Blood That Maketh an Atonement for the Soul

By PASTOR RUSSELL of Brooklyn Tabernacle

TEXT—The life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar to make an atonement for your souls; for it is the blood that maketh an atonement.—Leviticus XVII, 2.

Ours is a day in which, more than ever before, the statement of our text is disputed—disbelieved—by Jews, Gentiles and Christians. The great Christian author, St. Paul, agrees exactly with the words of Moses in our text, saying: "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins" (Hebrews 9:22). The orthodox Jew and the orthodox Christian, therefore, are in substantial agreement as to the foundation of things and the unorthodox are in agreement of opposition. The latter agree that there is no necessity for sin atonement—that the later thought of all the wise men of the earth, the greatest ministers and rabbis, is that there is no such thing as original sin; hence could be no such thing as necessity for canceling it—of making an atonement or satisfaction to justice on behalf of it.

All the worldly wise of Christendom have reached the point of repudiating the testimony of the Old Testament and the New respecting the need of a sacrificial death for the satisfaction of divine justice, the cancellation of sin and the restitution of the sinner to divine favor. The claim of the so-called new theologists repudiates the fall, repudiates the ransom and repudiates a restitution to all that was lost—claiming that nothing was lost and all that we have is gain. Thus the world and its wisdom know not God and appreciate not his arrangement that, as death came upon mankind through the sin of one man (Adam), even so a restitution to life should come to all men through Christ—that "as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive."

These worldly wise cannot deny the fact that there is sin in the world and that there is death in the world and that the tendency of all sin is toward death. They cannot deny that death is gaining a greater hold than ever before upon our race. Insane asylums, prisons and reform schools show that, notwithstanding our educational facilities and wonderful achievements under the enlightening influences of the new dispensation now dawning—nevertheless, the insanity statistics and the prison statistics and the physical statistics show that, in spite of everything, our race is becoming mentally, morally and physically weaker day by day. It is for them to explain how these facts fit to their theory of evolution.

By the term Christian we refer to those who intelligently believe the explanation of the Bible respecting sin, that it is a violation of the divine law and carries with it a penalty—that Father Adam was created as sinless as are the angels and as perfect as they, only on a little lower plane of being. Obedience was required of him as the price of divine favor and everlasting life. Disobedience thrust him from paradise into the unprepared earth to wrestle with the thorns and thistles, where the decree, "Dying thou shalt die," accomplished his execution. His race was in his loins and naturally shared by heredity his weaknesses and death penalty, so that the entire race is a dying race. But the Creator was unwilling that Adam and his children should die as brutes. God did not revoke his decree of death nor give any intimation that he had done unjustly in condemning his creature. He did, however, provide a way for their relief. He provided that, as the first man alone had sinned actually, so one Redeemer alone would be necessary for the race. And to him he offered a great reward, so that his sacrifice for sins would work out to his own advantage, as well as to the sinner's. A part of the reward was the high exaltation to the heavenly nature—far above angels, and the gift of the kingdom of earth necessary for the overruling and subduing of the spirit of rebellion in the world and for the exaltation and uplifting from sin and death conditions of all the willing and obedient of Adam's entire race.

But why should God require the death of a victim as a basis for the forgiveness of the sins of Adam and his race? We reply that God's law was intended to be an illustration of the exactness of divine justice. Justice could not punish Adam nor his children with everlasting torture or any other of the horrible things we once imagined. The severest penalty of the divine law is represented in our common law, which, as an extreme penalty, requires the death of the transgressor.

After the divine reconciliation comes human reconciliation. The great Messiah will not require sacrifices of humanity, but, on the contrary, will open the blind eyes and cause the knowledge of the grace of God to reach Adam and every member of his race. Then all willing for reconciliation will be helped by the great Mediator of the New Covenant and by Israel, his chosen people and earthly representatives. The object to be accomplished during Messiah's reign is the bringing to all the willing and obedient the restitution which God has promised—restitution to all that was lost. Ultimately Messiah will transfer the allegiance of the whole world (perfected by him) to Jehovah God, that he may be all in all (I. Corinthians 15.28).

PRAYER IS WITHOUT RESULT

Boy's Patience Is Exhausted After Frequent Petitions to Throne of Grace.

A young man who is prominent in church work in Philadelphia tells this about his nephew:

Harold is the youngster's name, and next door lives another boy by the name of Dewey. They are each seven years old, and like most children of their age are disposed to get into mischief as often as possible. Several days ago they found a man's coat lying on the front pavement while the owner was fixing a gas main. From the pockets of the coat the two boys abstracted several tickets, and when Harold's mother found it out she made him return the tickets and explained the sin which he had committed, warning him to pray that he be forgiven that night. He obeyed, and while on his knees added a prayer for Dewey as well.

The next night Harold's mother was in the next room when he said his prayers, and she heard him ask God to forgive Dewey for stealing a piece of cake. On the following evening he again was moved to ask forgiveness for his friend, this time for stealing three pieces of candy. Apparently his patience was exhausted, for the next evening his mother was in the adjoining room when he offered his evening prayer, and this is what she heard:

"Gosh darn it, God, I have done the best I could for Dewey. I guess you will have to watch him yourself."—Philadelphia Record.

HIRAM CARPENTER'S WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

"I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s. psoriasis, and others leprosy, commencing on my scalp; and in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skilful doctors, it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in the form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dustpanful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything, almost, that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. —— treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs; feet badly swollen; toe-nails came off; finger-nails dead and hard as a bone; hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O my God! how I did suffer.

"My sister wouldn't give up; said, 'We will try Cuticura.' Some was applied to one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got Cuticura Resolvent, Ointment and Soap. I commenced by taking Cuticura Resolvent three time a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. Result: returned to my home in just six weeks from the time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper. Hiram E. Carpenter, Henderson, N. Y."

The above remarkable testimonial was written January 19, 1880, and is republished because of the permanency of the cure. Under date of April 22, 1910, Mr. Carpenter wrote from his present home, 610 Walnut St. So., Lansing, Mich.: "I have never suffered a return of the psoriasis and although many years have passed I have not forgotten the terrible suffering I endured before using the Cuticura Remedies."

MONEY DID IT.

"Since Boozen inherited a million I suppose he's a worse drunkard than ever."

"Oh! no. He's a dipsomaniac."

At the Door.

"Yes, my mind is made up. Tonight I shall ask her to be my wife. B-b-y Jove, I h-hope she's out!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

The man who talks about himself is exceedingly interesting—to the talker.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

You do not lift the world by rolling up your eyes.

ONE REDEEMING FEATURE

When Papa Hears It He Urges Only Son to Grab Girl Quick.

The only son had just announced to the family his engagement.

"What, that girl!" remarked his mother. "Why, she squints."

"She has absolutely no style," commented his sister.

"Red-headed, isn't she?" asked auntie.

"I'm afraid she's flighty," was grandma's opinion.

"She hasn't any money," said uncle.

"And she doesn't look strong," chimed in the first cousin.

"She's stuck up, in my opinion," asseverated the second cousin.

"She's extravagant," was the opinion given by the third cousin.

"Well, she's got one redeeming feature, at any rate," remarked the only son, thoughtfully.

"What's that?" chorused the charitable band.

"She hasn't a relative on earth."

Papa had not yet spoken, but now he did.

"Grab her, my boy, grab her," he said.

THE EXPLANATION.

The Professor—You are better fed than taught.

The Stout Student—I reckon you're right. You teach me, but I feed myself.

He Won.

Ex-Gov. Bob Taylor of Tennessee was once entertaining a northern guest, who was rather skeptical about the prevailing dialect in stories of southern negroes. He thought it overdrawn. To disprove the contention, Mr. Taylor laughingly made a wager with his guest that the northerner would be unable to interpret the language of the first negro they met. Accordingly, they set out and presently came upon a black man basking indolently in the sun. Telling his friend to pay close heed, Mr. Taylor stepped up to the negro and demanded, suddenly:

"Weh he?"

The negro blinked his eyes stolidly, and then answered in a guttural voice:

"Wah who?"—Everybody's.

Breaking It by Degrees.

Edmund Yates used to tell this anecdote of a physician who was a personal friend. As the story went, Yates once saw the doctor operate upon a man afflicted with blood poisoning, when he amputated the patient's leg.

"Do you think he'll recover, now?" asked Yates, after the operation was over.

"Recover!" exclaimed the physician. "Why, he never had a chance to get well."

"Then why in the world did you amputate that leg?"

"Why," said the surgeon, calmly, "you must not tell a patient the truth all at once, you know; you must first amuse him a little."

A Dodger.

"Fine weather we've been having."

"Yes, but we'll pay for this fine weather later on."

"I won't. I'm going to Florida for the winter."

Those who admire knowledge for its own sake ought to wish to see its elements made accessible to all.—Sir William Herschel.

COLDS

Cured in One Day

"I regard my cold cure as being better than a Life Insurance Policy."—MUNYON.

As a rule a few doses of Munyon's Cold Cure will break up any cold and prevent pneumonia. It relieves the head, throat and lungs almost instantly. These little sugar pellets can be conveniently carried in the vest pocket for use at any time or anywhere. Price 25 cents at any druggists.

If you need Medical Advice write to Munyon's Doctors. They will carefully diagnose your case and give you advice by mail absolutely free. Address Prof. Munyon, 53d and Jefferson Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

PISO'S
THE BEST MEDICINE
for COUGHS & COLDS

Her Hired Suitor

By T. S. STRIBLING

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Cranleigh Hume swung himself into the Manayunk car, thrust his thumb and forefinger into his waistcoat pocket after the small change he usually kept there, and found nothing.

"Hurrup!" growled the conductor, glancing at the waiting line behind the trim young fellow. The boy's finger's rummaged nervously through other pockets.

"Ah, here," snarled the bluecoat, "trying to beat your way for a few blocks!" He jerked the bell violently for a stop.

"I have nothing but this bill." Hume thrust into an inside pocket and drew forth a twenty dollar note.

The car came to a grumbling stop. The conductor was angry. "No, you don't. You know I can't change a double X. Don't have to. Get off."

The young fellow hesitated, a flush crept up his face into his closely clipped hair. Two or three passengers were smiling at his dilemma. He turned on his heel and stepped into the night.

At the same moment a fat, white-haired, red-faced old gentleman stepped from the crowd on the car platform. The car rushed away with its usual ascending whine. Cranleigh found himself and companion dropped in the midst of a row of dwellings of uncompromising respectability.

The young man stood for a moment under an arc light, wondering vaguely into which house the old gentleman would turn when, to his surprise, he spoke.

"Pretty rotten company, that."

"Rather," returned Hume cautiously, looking up and down the street for the light of a drug store where he could get his bill changed.

"Don't bother," said the old man; "I have some small change. We'll go out Manayunk way together."

Hume glanced suspiciously for a moment, but the broad comfortable face and prosperous clothes were reassuring. "Then why did you get off?"

The old gentleman nodded emphatically. "Because you did. Boveril's my name. Elziver Boveril,

"Cuddle Up a Little Closer."

owner of the Boveril cotton mills of Manayunk. You may have heard of me."

Hume coughed apologetically. "You will excuse me, Mr. Boveril, but Manayunk has so many millionaires that er—Hume is my name, a Manayunk man myself."

"Good. I size a man up quickly, Mr. Hume, that's the reason I'm now where I am. I want to employ you—"

"But I have a profession."

"This is an odd job, in a way. Won't take up your professional time. I have a daughter, Mr. Hume—you don't know what a daughter is, Mr. Hume." The old gentleman's business-like tone trailed off into a sigh.

"I've seen them," remarked the young man.

"Oh, I mean to own one, bring her up, let her get to the fool stage and run you crazy."

"I don't know, what that is," admitted Hume.

"Well, my daughter Bella thinks she's in love with a drug clerk in Roxborough. It's ridiculous. I asked her what she admired about him anyway. She said she thought it was the dare-devil way he slung her sodas. She's so young! I told her she couldn't marry him. She said she would. I've had her mother and aunt tell her she shouldn't, but I believe she will. Then I hit on my scheme, and there's where you come in."

Hume looked at the old fellow's flushed face under the arc light, after this burst of confidence.

"What am I to do?"

"Well, when she told me a soda slinger looked dare-devil I decided right then to fight a dare-devil with fire. I looked you over. I like your cut and twill, Hume. I want you to pitch in now and make that drug clerk as dead an issue as free silver or abolition. Can you sing—play a guitar?"

"A little bit."

"All right, I fancy if drawing sodas looks dare-devil, a guitar and a moonlight song ought to be a regular wild west show, and a few words whispered in window lattice, a charge up San Juan hill. Are you on—salary twenty-five per week till the drug clerk fades?"

"Twenty-five per," laughed Hume in amazement, "to court a girl?"

"Money's no object, Mr. Hume; I want the work done. I wouldn't quarrel about a lawyer's fee when he writes my will. This is like that. Yonder comes our car. We can't talk this inside. Is it a go?"

"Sure thing."

The two men boarded the car and were flying on their way to Manayunk. They sat side by side, and Mr. Boveril handed the blue coat a dime, lifting two fingers. It takes sometime like three-quarters of an hour to ride from the heart of Philadelphia to Manayunk. Hume could not forbear smiling at this whimsical adventure upon which he was engaged. Suddenly a thought struck him. He leaned over to the hectic ear of his companion.

"Suppose I should—supose——"

Mr. Boveril turned and gave him a steady look. "I'd get somebody to head you off."

"She must be young."

"Too young to marry."

"What age?"

"Eighteen."

The car fled on up past Fairmount park.

"A fine night for it," suggested Hume, his heart warming to his task.

Mr. Boveril nodded, pulled out a fat gold watch. "Nearly eleven. That's not very late. You might borrow a guitar from somewhere. I'll listen to you a little bit to see how you perform. After tonight let me know when you're coming around to sing and I'll stay away at the club. I'm not much on music."

"Sure," replied Hume easily; "neither am I. I used to sing in my boarding house until the gentleman below came up one night and offered to throw me out. You understand, he just took a fancy to do something for me, just as you did. I stopped, however, not wanting to put him to any trouble."

Mr. Boveril smiled. "We get off at the next corner," he said.

The Boveril mansion was located on a hillside in Manayunk over toward Roxborough. It stood white and stately in the soft light on a terraced lawn, up which clambered many flights of marble steps. Hume caught a breath of admiration at the pile, which was not wasted on the owner.

"'Tis pretty, isn't it?" he said, "and to think that wasted on a drug clerk—she's my only child." The old fellow's voice shook a little. "I wish I could buy her half a dozen drug clerks until she got tired of 'em."

As they walked through the streets of the suburb Hume visited many of the despised drug stores until he hit upon a guitar that could be had. Armed with this the two plotters approached the mansion.

When they had climbed the third terrace, Mr. Boveril took a seat on an iron settee, and looked at the summer moon while his accomplice stole around to the designated window for his work.

Presently Mr. Boveril heard a thrum of chords and then a rather pleasant tenor voice singing "Cuddle Up a Little Closer," an air then running in a popular musical comedy.

"What a night," murmured Mr. Boveril, "and his voice isn't bad, though it seems to me I've heard it before somewhere."

Within the heavy window frame a girl's head appeared with the first notes, "Oh, Cranleigh," she whispered, "you must go away, darling. I'm expecting Pop home any minute."

But Cranleigh's arms were about her shoulders. "He's already here, down on the third terrace, listening to me sing."

"What, Cranleigh," she whispered in astonishment. "How did you get away from the drug store?"

Cranleigh explained, struck his guitar again, and once more Mr. Boveril heard the lilt, "Cuddle up a little closer, lovey mine, lovey mine."

This time it was in duet, and Mr. Boveril wondered.

Germany Imitates America.

In order to sell to Canadian consumers the German manufacturers imitate American shotguns, rifles and ammunition. On the firearms all the American marks are stamped except the firm's name. On cartridges no difference is made, as the initials and other marks are stamped thereon.

Something of a Joke.

A good example of the kind of story Mark Twain used to like to weave into his after-dinner speeches was the tale of the drinker who unwillingly put in an application for membership in a temperance society, sailed the next day on a three years' voyage, on which he kept the pledge in spite of longing and temptation, and returned to resign only to find that his name had been blackballed originally.—Buffalo Commercial.

Wear Wedding Ring on Neck.

The women of Bayanzi, on the Congo, wear wedding rings of brass welded around their necks.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

SOBRIETY IN GREAT BRITAIN

United Kingdom More Temperate Now Than Ever Before, Says Alliance Secretary.

The amount of beer and spirts consumed in the United Kingdom during 1909 is very much less than the amount recorded for all preceding years. In fact, Great Britain is more temperate now than she has ever been, declares Secretary George B. Wilson of the United Kingdom Temperance Alliance. In his report, recently issued in the London press, he estimates that the total expenditure on all alcoholic liquor consumed in the three kingdoms last year amounted to £155,162,485, as compared with £161,060,482 in 1908.

There has therefore been a material decrease of £5,897,997 during the past twelvemonth.

On spirits the decrease was £4,800,000, with a decrease in consumption of 7,022,775 gallons. On beer the decrease was £1,186,000 with a decrease in consumption of 645,396 barrels. On wines, on the other hand, there has been an increase of £93,000, with an increase in consumption of 103,744 gallons.

But, as the secretary's report points out, the amount spent on drink as a comparison, fails to picture the true decrease in drinking. Owing to the increased taxes of 1909, the retail price of all liquors advanced, and hence if the prices of 1909 were the same as the prices of 1908, the decrease in the amount spent would be double what it is. If there had been no increase in prices the actual reduction on the total expenditure would have been £11,147,997.

London press reports state unhesitatingly that the British people have been growing more temperate of late years, and claim that the experience of last year leaves no doubt that taxation is one great influence in reducing the consumption of liquor. It is further added that "if this reduction were to be progressively maintained we would soon have no drink bill to pay at all."

The increased taxes applied on liquors by the budget have been a factor of the recorded decrease in consumption, but it is probably not the only potent factor, and it is contended that a marked change in the social habits of the people is a feature since the masses are being given opportunities for developing other tastes. In this education is the great agent and it is confidently stated that "the turn of the tide synchronises with the coming of a full generation which has been to school. The book is one of the enemies of the bar. There are others. Every park is an alternative, every tram or cheap train, that takes the worker out to the country in his spare time, every slum that disappears, and every livable house that takes its place. The empire of alcohol rests not so much on its own inherent attractiveness as upon the absence of rival attractions. These rivals are growing and before them alcohol is slowly perhaps, but surely retiring from public favor."

In a country which has so long been burdened by the drink evil the progress of reform is slow, but there is progress recorded in Great Britain as the above figures show. The drink question is still one of the most important social problems the nation has to face, yet the recent constant decline in the consumption is regarded as extremely hopeful.

DRINK CAUSE OF INSANITY

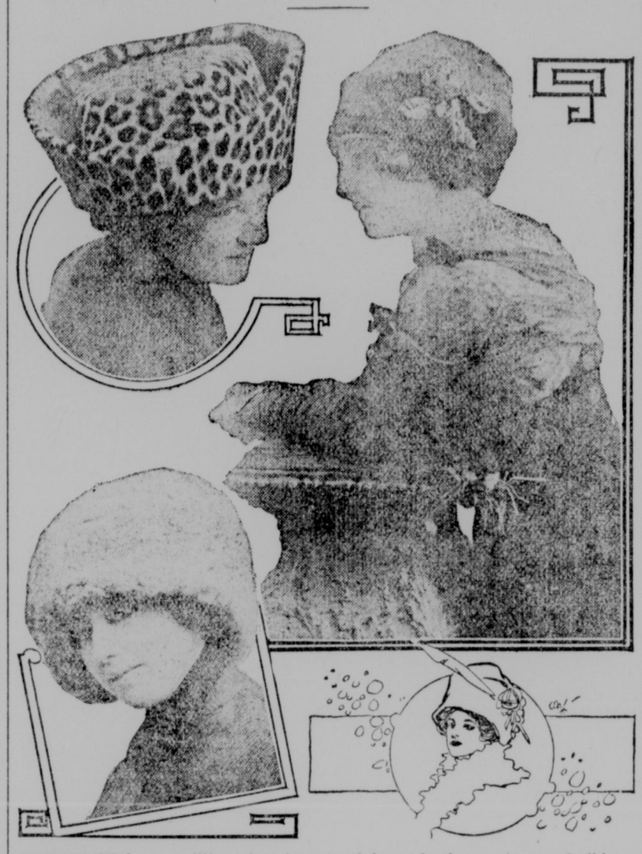
Liquor Responsible for Nearly 50 Per Cent of Patients Admitted in English Asylums.

Drink and hereditary influence were reported as the cause of insanity in 42.3 per cent. of the cases admitted into Rainhill asylum, in England, last year, drink being responsible in 22.8 of the cases, and a clear history of hereditary taint in 19.5. These remarkable statistics are contained in the annual reports of the county asylum at Lancaster, Prestwick, Rainhill, Wittingham and Winwick, just issued.

On the subject of the causes and the preventation of lunacy, Dr. Giglesworth, medical superintendent of Rainhill, is very outspoken. Referring to the 22.8 per cent. of admissions for which drink was responsible, Dr. Wigglesworth says the figure is sufficiently large to indicate clearly that havoc which drink makes with the nervous system, and adds: "If the evil affected the individual only it would be bad enough, but unfortunately there is reason to believe that it is often handed on to the offspring, owing to the direct poisonous effect upon the germ of the alcohol circulating in the blood, and that not a little of the terrible amount of nervous instability and degeneracy which we see around us has its origin in this cause."

Regarding the 19.5 per cent. of admissions in which there is a clear history of hereditary taint, Dr. Wigglesworth says that no doubt this figure considerably understates the real influence of heredity, owing to the difficulty experienced in getting reliable accounts of the families of the patients.

Decoration for Fur Hats



THE home milliner has been able to find a turban covered with fur of almost any description and almost any shape. The matter of trimming it at home is a problem of easy solution. Fur turbans are not exactly trimmed—they are decorated. The soft shapes, made without wire, carry bows, rosettes or motifs, applied flat to the body of the hat; or tinsel and silk roses, a smart cockade or an aigrette fastened on with an ornament, all easy to procure and the trimming easy of accomplishment. Fashion permits the trimming to be placed anywhere, from back to front, at the sweet will and sense of style possessed by the wearer.

Where the turban is made by covering a buckram shape with fur, plumes and fancy feathers, wings and ribbons are all available. The soft caps are more simply trimmed.

Soft caps of fur or fur fabrics are easily made at home. The crown is in four sections, like a boy's jockey cap, and the brim a slightly curved collar, which is wide enough to turn up about the crown. This is lined with silk or satin. A fine wire may be introduced in the outside brim edge to advantage. It should be put in between the fabric and the lining, and will serve to keep the hat shapely.

Such hats of plush or fur are very comfortable—a real protection to the head, and the becomingness is a new discovery. It is all in adjusting the right shape to the head in the right way.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

CHECKED SILK WAIST.

This most attractive waist is of checked old blue and white foulard, with pretty yoke of old blue cashmere. The guimpe, undersleeves, and frills are of white tulle. The girdle is of plain blue liberty.

THE NEW SHOE BUCKLES

Cut Steel and Rhinestone Predominate for Decorating Evening Slipper This Season.

Cut steel and rhinestone predominate in the shoe buckle for decorating the evening slipper this season. In the cut steel, which has a very refined appearance, the designs are very beautiful. The buckles made of this material seem to be the leading ones.

They are made oblong and large, and though this is actually the choice among the metals, there are other sizes and other metals still available, for though it is quite new, it does not exclude any of the others that with some are still popular.

Rhinestone buckles are favored next to steel and there is a wide variety of these from which to make a choice.

Small and large ornaments, square and round ornaments, oblong and star-shaped ornaments—in fact, in the rhinestone one can get an ornament in almost any shape a person desires.

Butterfly Note Paper.

The butterfly, a dominant novelty of this season's fashions, trails its frivolous wings across the latest note paper. Flights of sulphur-colored insects upon a delicate green ground, and of bright, soft blue ones over a cream white surface, none of them too perceptible are seen. It is a fanciful idea, to have these decorated missives as frivolous and brief as their own short lives.

CONCERNING USE OF PLUMES

Newest Trimming in Millinery Shows Styles Such as Our Mothers Never Dreamed Of.

The newest trimming in millinery emphasizes the use of plumes. Such plumes! The word conjures up an infinite variety of styles of which our mothers or grandmothers knew nothing, and fair women of today can be doubly grateful for the efforts of milliners.

Garlands of plumes are used on broad, low hats. They are spotted and flecked with color, and some are made of layers of different shades, giving a wonderfully irridescent effect.

On velvet turbans the use of a single plume attached at the front, and extending toward the back in a slanting line, is quite evident. This line for the plume is used on large hats as well. And speaking of the wide, flat shapes leads us to the introduction of ostrich feathers to edge the brim. Two successful Paris milliners have done this with great effect.

Feather rosettes are made of ostrich plumes. Concentric circles of cut feathers are placed around a jeweled center. At the side of a turban or on the upturned brim of a large velvet hat this new type of ornament is extremely chic.

A feather band is being used on many large hats. Black and white plumes are favored for these ornaments. They are detachable, hooking at one side. This idea is attractive, for a change of trimming means a change of hat.

To Freshen a Lace Waist.

A tight-cut lingerie waist of white lace and embroidery gains wonderfully in elaborateness by the addition of the latest French fancy. This is a broad band of net in a pastel shade, embroidered in soutache braid of the same color and applied just over the bust. With this is worn one of the new neck scarfs of chiffon, in a color that exactly matches and with the ends embroidered in the soutache. Both of these are easily made up at home by any clever needlewoman, and will go a long way toward hiding the deficiencies of a pretty but aging lingerie waist. The chiffon scarf is especially charming when embroidered its entire length with large coin dots in satin stitch.

Cretonne Lampshades.

The very newest and prettiest thing in home decoration is the lampshade of shirred cretonne or flowered silk. For these, heavy wire frames are purchased, the round shape being the best. The cretonne or silk is then shirred tightly under this frame, and clamped or glued to it. A narrow border of furniture gimp conceals the joining place.

In tapestry, this variety of lampshade becomes really gorgeous. The idea, of course, can be applied in any of these materials to candleshades as well.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THE life of the husbandman—a life fed by the bounty of earth and sweetened by the airs of heaven.

Cooking in Casserole.

Casserole cookery has gradually worked itself into great popularity until now in almost every home some form of casserole is used. Since the study of foods and feeding has become more common the housewife begins to realize the value of slow cooking of foods, hence the popular use of the fireless cooker and the casserole.

Anything that requires slow cooking without browning, may be cooked in this stone-covered dish. If the browning is desired, it may be done before the food is put into the casserole.

Long, slow cooking of meats after the outside has been seared to retain the juices, is conducive to retaining the best and most nutritious elements of the food and also it makes the flavor of meats far superior to other methods of cooking.

Chicken in Casserole.—Separate the chicken as for frying, wipe perfectly dry and brown in a little fat. When the pieces are all nicely browned, place them in the casserole with a pint of chicken broth made by stewing the wing tips and the feet. Put on the cover and cook in a moderate oven for an hour and a half. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan, add a dozen potato balls, a dozen carrot balls and a few small onions; as soon as brown add to the casserole with more water if necessary, and cook until the vegetables are tender. Do not remove the cover after putting in the vegetables. Serve from the casserole. Beefsteak, mutton and any meat may be cooked in this manner. The coarse and tough cuts of meat are made tender and savory by this process of cooking.

Rice and Meat in Casserole.—Line the bottom and sides of a buttered casserole with a cupful of cold cooked rice. Season any chopped meat with onion juice, celery salt, herbs and salt, moisten with butter and eggs and fill the dish with the chopped meat. Cover with the rice and cook slowly for an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Bananas With Sauce in Casserole.—Pare and scrape half a dozen bananas to remove the coarse threads, cut in halves, both lengthwise and crosswise and put into a casserole. Melt a small glass of currant jelly, pour over them the juice of half a lemon and a tablespoonful of butter. Cover and cook in a slow oven for half an hour.

Pears baked in a casserole with a little butter and sugar are perfectly delicious. Let them brown the last half hour. Pears need long cooking, often a half a day to make them rich and tender.

SOME people are so fond of ill-luck that they run half way to meet it.

Sandwiches.

Sandwiches may be made of several kinds of bread; white, whole wheat, graham, oatmeal, Boston brown and rye. The butter to be used for spreading sandwiches should be softened and creamed. Almost any kind of meat may be used in sandwiches as filling. When using meat in sandwiches it should be chopped fine and seasoned well. It is often necessary to moisten the meat with cream or salad dressing to make it sufficiently moist to spread.

It is often necessary to make the sandwiches several hours before serving. To keep them moist wrap them in a cloth wrung out of cold water, then fold in a dry towel. Sandwiches will keep several hours in this way and keep perfectly moist.

Egg Sandwiches. — Chop several hard-cooked eggs, season with salt, pepper and a grain of mustard. Spread over well-buttered bread and cut in any desired form.

Cucumber Sandwiches.—Put slices of cucumber on well-buttered bread, sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve at once, as the cucumber will lose its freshness.

Onion and Celery Sandwiches.—Chop celery and onion fine, mix with a little dressing or olive oil, season with salt and pepper and spread on buttered bread.

Nuts and dates chopped and rubbed smooth with cream make good filling.

Walnuts browned in a very little butter, chopped and mixed with grated maple sugar is another good mixture.

Take a cup of freshly grated cocoanut, one-fourth of a cup of chopped almonds, one teaspoonful of rose water and a tablespoonful of powdered sugar; mix well and use as filling for sandwiches.

Stuffed olives chopped, mixed with mayonnaise.

Maraschino cherries chopped and mixed with cream cheese.

Blanched and browned almonds, chopped, mixed with boiled dressing.

Cottage cheese and olives, with mayonnaise.

One-half cup each of preserved ginger and candied orange peel chopped fine; mix with three tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream.

Take two bananas, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of maraschino cordial and two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream, sweetened with honey.

Chop candied ginger and mix with orange juice.

Nellie Maxwell

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

"WHICH IS THE TRUE GOSPEL?"

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ" (Romans i, 16).

Portland, Me. [illegible]—The International Bible Students Convention is in session here with an excellent attendance and deep interest manifested. Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle delivered two addresses today, one being in Jefferson Theatre. We report one of them from the text foregoing:—

Three weeks ago today Christendom was startled by a communication which announced that the Christian Alliance had lifted a collection of $60,000 in a few minutes—$300 in cash, the balance in promises. Then followed the startling announcement of Brother Simpson, its President, that the collection lifted would probably be the last at Old Orchard, because the Camp Grounds' Directors had rented its Auditorium for three days for the use of our Association. He declared that he disagrees with our theology. This, of course, was a veiled threat that the Directors of the camp ground must break their Contract with the Bible Students. This they promptly did, and we accepted back the money paid in advance, rather than go to Law. It is for this reason, dear friends, that we are having our Convention "outside the camp." We are glad that its fence does not separate us from our great Redeemer and Teacher, the joy of whose blessing I see in your faces.

Secular editors were astonished! They had been congratulating Christian people that the days of the rack, the thumb screw and the stake were past and that from every quarter were coming appeals for Christian Union which, it was hoped, might even ultimately include all denominations of Catholics and Protestants. Yet here they had to listen to the contrary—a suggestion that Christian people in alliance were so opposed to Bible Students that even a year would not be sufficient to purify the air of Old Orchard and to permit them to meet here next year to take up another collection. It seemed funny, too, to these editors, that anything could drive a Christian Alliance meeting away from a $60,000 collection!

Explanations Surely In Order.

Since Brother Simpson may not care to tell the whole truth about the matter and since the Christian public is interested and ought to know the facts, I must tell them. The unpleasant duty, however, will not necessitate my saying an unkind word concerning Mr. Simpson and the Christian friends who are in alliance with him.

There are two reasons why Brother Simpson thought it doubtful if he could come next year following our three days of this year.

(1) He knew instinctively that his collections would be smaller, hardly worth coming for, if the people should begin to get the eyes of their understanding more widely opened respecting what really constitutes the Gospel of Christ.

(2) The $60,000 "raised" was not cash and a large proportion of it never will be. Some of it is promised over and over again and telegraphed over and over, as was the case with the young woman who in the spectacular manner offered her jewels from time to time and had it mentioned in the papers. Such repetitions of charitable work are considered entirely proper by many in connection with religious work in various denominations, "for the good of the cause." Subscriptions are given publicly without hope of payment, to influence others who are more sincere—some of whom in the excitement give more than they can afford.

Chicago Stockyard Method.

This same method is illustrated in the Chicago Stock Yards. A fine, large, trained bull gallops out to meet the cattle designed for slaughter. He waltzes before them and becomes their leader. Following him in a grand rush for a narrow passage they crowd one another to the executioner, who knocks them senseless. A special place just large enough for himself is provided for the decoy bull, who, later, goes out to lead on another herd for the slaughter.

We do not mean to say that those who give their money are slaughtered or otherwise injured. We believe that they are blessed—that everyone is blessed who sacrifices anything heartily unto the Lord, or to what they suppose to be his service, whether it is or not. It is the method of getting the money from the people and the deception practised which we deplore. However, the Alliance has plenty of company in this method in larger Christian denominations. It is part of the "business" method of recent years. Some who did not understand this "business" method wondered where all the money apparently contributed to the "Christian Alliance" work was spent. An investigation of its financial accounts was made, which revealed the fact that they were chaotic, and other "business" methods were advised.

"The Darkness Hateth the Light."

Some one may inquire why the Christian Alliance should fear us and whether or not we have ever done them harm. We reply, Never have we injured them in the slightest degree, nor ever even publicly mentioned their name before. Their opposition to us is on the lines of general principles mentioned by the Great Teacher, "The darkness hateth the light;" "All things that are reproved are made manifest by the light" (Ephesians v, 13). Our work is to proclaim the true Gospel—to incite Christian people to Bible study in the light of the Bible's own testimony and without sectarian spectacles, which, in the past, have so distorted the Word of God and set it forth in false colors.

As Christian people come to see the grossness of the errors by which they have been blinded, the light not only has a blessed and transforming effect upon their minds, but it influences their pocketbooks also. They no longer appreciate the "business" methods of the Alliance nor the brand of Gospel which it sets forth. The more God's people come to a correct understanding of the teachings of his Word, the smaller will be the collections of the Christian Alliance. That is the real secret of their opposition. I would that it were true that they would never take up another collection at Old Orchard! The heathen have already had too much of their Gospel of damnation. God's name has already been slandered and blasphemed enough by the false Gospel message—that nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand of humanity ever born are to suffer eternal roasting because of father Adam's sin and the ignorance, stupidity and meanness which have resulted.

Let the Truth Prevail.

If the intelligent men connected with the Alliance really believe the horrible nightmare of the Dark Ages which they are proclaiming as the Gospel of Christ, then, of course, they are excusable for preaching it. It is not for others to judge of their honesty in this matter, but it is for others to decide that they will no longer assist or cooperate in the spread of such horrible travesties upon the Divine character—no longer assist financially or otherwise in binding upon the poor heathen at home and abroad increased ignorance and superstition.

Everybody knows that the word Gospel signifies "good tidings." And everybody ought to know that, as Christian people, we have for centuries misused the word, applying it to the bad tidings of great misery to all people, except the mere handful of the elect. We did this because it was handed down to us by our forefathers. What Jesus said to the Jews has been true of us as Christians, "Ye do make void the Law of God through your traditions." Thank God that, as in the natural world he is sending us now the electric light instead of the tallow candle, so through Bible study helps, concordances, etc., his Word (the Lamp to his people's footsteps until the day dawn), is now shining brighter than ever before.

Which Is the True Gospel?

Catholic and Protestant orthodoxy have set forth for centuries two general views of the Gospel of Christ. To whatever extent they now disagree with these they should publicly disown and abandon them. Until then they are besmirched with whatever odium attaches.

The Catholic Gospel (Good Tidings) is that all the heathen, all Catholics and all Protestants, except a mere handful, go to a Purgatory of awful suffering, terrible anguish, lasting for decades, centuries and thousands of years, roasting, boiling, agonizing, and thus purging away their sins and dross that they may ultimately attain to heavenly bliss for the remainder of eternity. If that is good tidings it can be considered such only in contrast with something more horrible, if that be imaginable.

Our Protestant Gospel.

Our Protestant Gospel, of which we are so proud that we want to thrust it upon Jews and Catholics and heathens everywhere, we should thoroughly understand, enjoy and appreciate before we waste good time and money giving it to others. Here it is: Four centuries ago our forefathers were not Protestants but Catholics and believed in Purgatory, etc., as above. Then what was known as the Reformation Movement set in. Catholics, Jews and infidels will admit with Protestants that a great blessing of enlightenment and civilization has come to the world in the train of the Reformation Movement. But none of us is prepared to admit that the Reformers were perfect, nor their work perfect.

The Reformers criticized the Catholic teachings which they had formerly believed. They examined their Bibles and found nothing there to the effect that Mary was the mother of God, nor that we should pray to saints, nor that we should use pictures or images in our worship, nor that their sacrifice of Christ in the mass was proper, nor that there was a Purgatory anywhere. The Reformers threw out these things as unscriptural. They completely demolished Purgatory in their minds, declaring that it had never been anything more than imagination. Then came another thought, viz: What must we do with the thousands of millions of mankind that we and our fathers for centuries supposed were in Purgatory roasting, stewing, tortured, but hoping for heaven. They looked at one another in consternation. They had hearts and sympathies and felt that as it had devolved upon them to smash Purgatory, it must also devolve upon them to re-locate all those thousands of millions whom they had on their hands. They felt the weight of the responsibility. Could they demand of God that they should be put into heaven? Surely not! Surely only the saintly few are fit for heaven! They, as well as all, recognized that fact. Then, with blank consternation, they determined that they must crowd the entire mass into a hell of eternal torture and shut the gates upon them forever and write upon the gates, "Who enters here abandons hope."

Brother Calvin to the Rescue.

Taking from practically all humanity all future hope made the Reformers for the time heartsick. It would be awful to do that for one person, but to thus "do" all humanity seemed terrible. And then to be obliged to label that gospel "Good Tidings" must certainly have been a trying experience for the Reformers.

But Brother John Calvin helped them amazingly and took from them their burden. He told them that they should not worry, because it was all God's fault and not theirs. God had predestinated them to that awful future long before he created man. Now they should merely try to think of themselves as the "elect" and try to forget everybody else. Of course, it seemed horrible to charge all these things against the God of all Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power. But it was the only solution which occurred to them. John Calvin's theories were afterwards embodied in the "Westminster Confession of Faith." And that confession of faith became the foundation of nearly all Protestant creeds. Brother John Wesley afterward objected, but admitted that only the saintly went to heaven and everybody else went to eternal torment. His protest was that, instead of this being by Divine foreordination and intention, it was, on the contrary, because of Divine unwisdom and incompetency.

"Good Tidings of Great Joy."

Surely no sane person can any longer defend any of the above "Gospels" as the true one, of which St. Paul was not ashamed! Surely St. Paul never preached any of those Gospels, nor did any of the Apostles—nor does the Bible support such theories, except by the turning and twisting of language, mistranslations of the original and misinterpretations of some parables. The plain statements of the Scriptures are all directly to the opposite.

The Bible teaches that "the wages of sin is death," not Purgatory nor eternal torment. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Adam, the perfect, was placed on trial for life eternal or death eternal. He sinned and the sentence against him was, "Cursed is the earth for thy sake; thorns and thistles shall it bring forth unto thee. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread until thou return unto the ground from whence thou wast taken" (Genesis iii, 17-19). St. Paul declares the same: "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world; and thus death passed upon all men, because all are sinners" (Romans v, 12).

Looking about us we find this true. Everybody who is not dead is dying. As the Bible says, we are living under a reign of Sin and Death. Nothing that man can do can either eradicate sin or lift us out of our dead and dying condition. God alone can help us! He proposes to help us and the message respecting that help is, in the Scriptures, called the Gospel. Its announcement by the angels on the night of Jesus' birth is full, complete, satisfactory, viz: "Behold, we bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people; for unto you is born this day in the City of David a Savior (life-giver) which is Christ the Lord" (Luke ii, 10).

Ah, now we have the Truth! The penalty of sin is death. And the "good tidings" is that God has provided for our recovery from sin and death. The Savior gave his life for the cancellation of our sin, for the satisfaction of Justice, that in due time Adam and all his condemned and imperfect race might be released from the condemnation and be lifted out of the sin and death conditions which now prevail. That uplifting is Scripturally called the resurrection of the dead. Hence the preaching of the early Church was, "Jesus and the Resurrection"—the Redeemer and his work.

Still More Good Tidings.

The good tidings for the race in general is that the Redeemer in God's due time will become King of kings and Lord of lords—the Messiah of glory, God's glorious Representative. For a thousand years the regenerating work for Adam's race will progress (Matthew xix, 28; Acts iii, 19-23). God's Chosen People, Israel, will be the earthly agents of the heavenly and invisible King of glory. By the close of his reign the whole earth will have been transformed into the Paradise of God. "He will make the place of his feet glorious." And mankind will all be perfect again, in God's image. There will be no more sin, no more sickness, no more dying, because all the things of sin and death will have passed away and he who sits upon the Throne will have renewed all things (Revelation xxi, 5). All who, after coming to a full knowledge of the Truth of God's love and gracious provision, still love sin and hate righteousness, will be destroyed in the Second Death, from which there will be no redemption, no resurrection, no recovery; as St. Peter says, "They shall perish like brute beasts."

NEW GERMANY.

As there seems to be no weather prophet in this community we shall hang out our shingle. Here is a sample of our predictions: The month of January will be very unsettled, having light snows, sleet and rains. There will be at least three great changes. One was on the 8th. The others will be near the 15th and 22nd.

Owing to changes in the arrangements no services were held in either church last Sunday. Reformed services Jan. 15 at 10.30 a. m.; The Methodist Jan. 22 at 10.30 a. m.

Orville Stark and Eldridge Durst are employed at Jennings.

Ernest Wiland has returned to West Virginia.

C. C. Durst and family were visiting James T. Durst Sunday.

News reached here Sunday morning of the death of Kaleite Michael, of near Firm Rock, at a venerable age.

Floyd Broadwater and family were guests of J. M. Durst Sunday.

Margaret Smith, who spent the holidays at home in Barton, returned last week and took charge of her school again.

Mrs. Delbert Durst, who underwent an operation at the University Hospital, Baltimore, has slightly improved.

Samuel Otto is operating a saw mill for U. M. Stanton about two miles from this place.

THE CITY OF THE FUTURE.

One Described by Professor Zueblin During a Recent Lecture.

In a recent lecture Professor Charles Zueblin said regarding "the city of the future:" "If we consider the experience of the chief cities of today we can choose from their successful municipal undertakings examples which would enable us to construct a composite city and while unsatisfactory as an ultimate goal it might furnish a convenient working ideal for the contemporary city.

"The streets of such a composite city would be broad, well paved and clean, free from telephone and telegraph poles and lined with trees. There would be a comprehensive sewerage system and a method of garbage disposal. A public water supply would include special provision for fire protection, fireboat and pipe line system, for street and sewer flushing, for baths and swimming pools.

"The public school buildings naturally form the chief architectural adornments of the city. They should be located in the midst of lawns and trees, with provisions for playgrounds and swimming pools. The curriculum would include in addition to literary and scientific branches kindergarten and manual training, technical and art instruction, trade instruction and commercial preparation.

"To these improvements would be added a daily lunch. The community would provide public libraries, of which Massachusetts cities are the chief examples.

"These possibilities manifestly make some demand upon the imagination, which may prove bewildering to the hard headed citizen. The spasmodic advance of today is due largely to the occasional triumph of the imaginative official or public spirited citizen over his shortsighted associates."

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

HOYES.

Quite a severe storm passed over our community Sunday evening accompanied by thunder and lightning and followed by rain and snow.

Miss Oscie Casteel, who has had quite an attack of pleurisy for the past week, is much improved at this writing and hopes to resume her duties as teacher soon.

The infant child of George Seabold is still dangerously ill with pneumonia.

Arthur Custer, wife and sister spent Sunday afternoon with Asa Friend and family.

Miss Bernadette Mattingly left Hoyes for Oakland last Saturday and attended church services at that place, returning to her home here Monday.

Mrs. F. D. DeWitt is numbered among the sick. She was alarmingly ill Monday morning but is much better now.

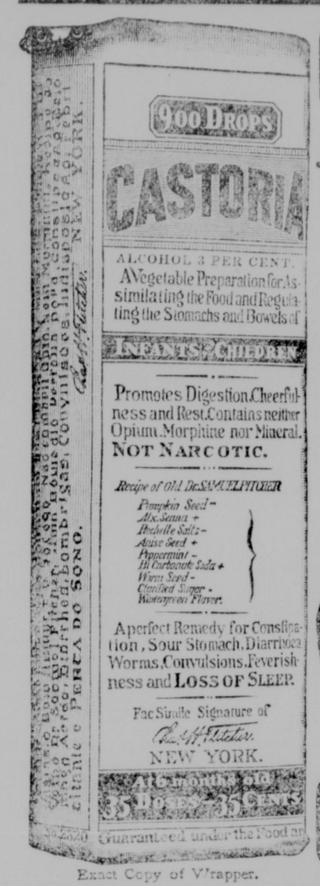
Miss Margaret Enlow and her brother Albert and Miss Irene Mattingly were visitors at the home of Henry Hauser Sunday.

Rev. H. E. Friend conducted services Saturday night and Sunday morning at Sang Run in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Orr.

Milton DeWitt was the guest of Cecil and Wayne Smith Sunday afternoon.

Messrs. Carl Frazee and Lawrence Speicher were callers in Hoyes for a short time Sunday.

Charles Johnson, wife and daughter left here for Thayerville a few days ago where they will visit relatives a short time and then go to West Virginia for a few months.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Notice to Creditors.

THIS is to give notice, that the subscriber of Garrett County, Md., has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters of Administration on the personal estate of

DAVID C. SHAFFER,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, 1911, they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

MARY E. SHAFFER,
Administrator,
Oakland, Md., R. D. 1.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber Garrett county, Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphan's Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters of Administration on the personal estate of

MARGARET C. REINHARDT,

late of Garrett Co., Md., deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

JAMES A. ENLOW,
Administrator,
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF

The First National Bank

AT FRIENDSVILLE,

In the State of Maryland, at the close of business, Jan. 7, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts		$142,898 55
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured		451 33
U. S. Bonks to secure circulation		25,000 00
Bonds, Securities, etc.		63,997 60
Banking house, Furniture and Fixtures		6,466 01
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)		2,629 67
Due from State and Private Banks and Bankers		202 37
Due from approved Reserve Agents		18,388 63
Checks and other Cash Items		1 00
Notes of other National Banks		1,035 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents		256 64
Lawful Money Reserve in Bank, viz:
Specie	$2,983 35
Legal-tender note..	9,445 00	12,428 25
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)		1,250 00
Total		$275,004 45

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus fund	26,000 00
Undivided Profits, less expenses and taxes paid	4,818 39
National Bank Notes outstanding	25,000 00
Due to other National Banks	702 85
Dividenda unpaid	282 00
Individual deposits subject to check	85,503 23
Time certificates of deposits	107,697 98
Total	$275,004 45

State of Maryland, County of Garrett.

I, Orval A. Welch, Cashier of the above bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 11th day of January, 1911.

R. M. HOLMAN, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest: W. W. SAVAGE,
D. S. CUSTER,
L. E. FRIEND,
Directors.

DR. LOUIS J. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.

Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p. m

ORDER NISI.

Edward H. Sincell, Trustee, vs William A. Harvey and Benjamin E. Harvey.

No. 1705 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland

Ordered, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting as a court of equity, this 26th day of November, 1910 that the sales made and reported in the above cause by Edward H. Sincell, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 30th day of December, 1910; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 23rd day of December, 1910.

The report states the amount of sales to be $85.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,
Executrix.
Mt. Lake Park Md.

43-3t-pd

ORDER NISI.

Wm. E. Hollinger, Late Treasurer of Garrett County, vs. Mary L. Ward and Jennie Wagner.

No. 136, Miscellaneous Docket. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

It is ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, this twentieth day of December, 1910, that the tax sale made and reported in the above entitled cause, by William E. Hollinger, late Treasurer in and for Garrett County, Md., be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 27th day of January, 1911; provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper printed in Garrett county once a week for three successive weeks before the 20th day of January, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $50.50.

ROBERT R. HENDERSON.

True Copy—test: E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

Clarence M. Rathbun and Alonzo D. Naylor vs. William D. King and wife.

No. 1696 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County,

Ordered this 10th day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Fred. A. Thayer, the attorney named in the mortgage filed in said cause, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 10th day of February, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of February, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $1000.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

WILLIAM P. HANSEL,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 12th of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

DAVID P. HANSEL,
Executor,
Lonaconing, Md.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

GEORGE W. LEGGE, JR.,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY.
Practice in the Courts of Garrett and adjoining counties, and in the Maryland Court of Appeals. Associated with Thomas, J. Pedalcord. First National Bank Building.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1911. NUMBER 47

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY

Stanley Kildow, an Oakland Young Man, Forged Name of F. F. Goss.

As the resulted of the excessive use of liquor and a desire for more which could not be obtained without the wherewithal, Stanley Kildow, aged twenty years, is alleged to have forged the name of Frank F. Goss to a check for $15, presented at the Garrett National Bank for payment which was refused because in was not properly drawn, but received the money later in the day when it was cashed by Mr. Cal Echard, was arrested on a warrant Saturday afternoon charging him with the crime and was released Monday morning on bail for his appearance at the June term of the Circuit Court to answer the charge.

At the preliminary hearing Monday before Justice Teats it came out that the age of young Kildow was twenty years and that he had purchased liquor at three saloons in Oakland and accordingly warrants were issued for the arrest of the saloonmen, Messrs. Frank Goss, S. A. Nalley and E. J. Frantz, all of whom waived a hearing and took their cases to court.

Much sympathy is expressed for young Kildow's parents, who are highly respected by all who know them.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The rains and warm weather of last weed cleared the lake of ice, but the present cold snap has again covered the water with a coat of pure ice which, with a continuance of the present weather, will give ten inches of clear and pure ice.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Willett, Friday, a girl. Carl does'nt remain in the office evenings to read postal cards but hurries home to nurse the baby.

Also, to Mr. and Mrs. Newman Wilson, yesterday, a boy.

Mrs. Philip Willett, who has been visiting friends in West Virginia for several weeks, came home Saturday to see her new grand daughter.

Mr. Chauncey Kimmel, who has been ill for several months, died at 1.30 yesterday morning, aged about seventy-two years. Funeral services will be conducted in the Oakland Ev. Lutheran church tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, and interment in the Oakland cemetery.

Miss Martha Carmichael is visiting Mrs. E. L. Winchell.

Miss Rose Wilson, who went to California last fall, has been quite ill in Los Angeles. Late reports indicate an improvement in her condition.

Special services in the M. E. church will be continued through this week, and should the interest increase will be continued longer.

Rev. L. A. Rudisill and Messrs. H. N. Cuppett and A. T. White are assisting in taking stock at Mr. P. T. Garthright's store preparatory to the change of the firm to Garthright & Harvey.

The largest hog so far brought to our market this winter was purchased yesterday by Leighton & Harvey from Abraham Moon, of Ryans Glade. It was eighteen months old and weighed, dressed, six hundred and fifty-six pounds.

Mrs. J. E. Chance has been quite ill at her home here for about two weeks but now shows some improvement and it is hoped by her family and many friends that she may have her usual good health in a short time.

Mrs. A. R. Sperry has been confined to her home for more than a week by illness.

Mrs. J. A. Enlow has been unwell for several days past.

HAUSER.

The Hauser correspondent is proud to be able to acknowledge the presence, at our desk, of the happening in, near and around New Germany. The style is unique, diction good and composition beyond the average of newspaper writers. However, we sincerely hope that New Germany items will be entirely confined to local news and refrain entirely from attempting to forcast the weather or to tell anything about the weather as we observe as much of it during the days of the week without ing it vividly presented to our vision night when we pick up the paper. Glad to meet you anyway; come again.

Miss Merle Fowler left last Friday for Clarksburg W. Va., where she will attend business college.

Mr. H. C. Fowler was an Oakland visitor last Friday.

Mr. Lloyd Schaffer was in Oakland last Saturday.

Pritchard's gallery in the Ravenscroft building is now open for business. Photographs twenty-five cents per doz. to three dollars per doz. Postal cards a specialty at special prices. 2t

ELEVEN YEAR-OLD BOY LOST LIFE IN FLAMES

When the Home of John Custer, Near Grantsville, Burned.

On Wednesday night the home of John Custer near Grantsville, was destroyed with all its contents by fire of unknown origin.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Custer about nine o'clock in an upstairs room and before the family could be aroused had gained such headway that nothing could be saved.

Mr. Custer had gone to the room occupied by an eleven year old boy and two younger children. After awakening them he picked up the two younger children and thinking the older boy was following, carried them out of the building to safety. To his horror he discovered that the son had not followed. Rushing back into the burning building he was met at the door of the room by a fierce volley of flames and smoke. In his efforts to save the boy's life his face was severely burned and the hair all scorched from his head. Not being able to enter by the door an effort was made to get into the room from the outside by way of a window but again he was driven back by the fire that was now raging in all its fury. The balance of the family composed of five or six children escaped from the building in their night clothes.

As to the cause of the fire nothing is known except that it started in a room on the second floor, It could not be ascertained if Mr. Custer had any insurance on his building or contents.

Mrs. Custer is a daughter of Jonas J. Beachy, and resides on a part of the Beachy farm, about 3 miles southeast of Grantsville.

FRIENDSVILLE.

The weather has again turned cold after a week of warm weather, rain and floods.

Colds and la grippe prevail among our people.

H. J. Black was a visitor to Pennsylvania last week, returning on Saturday. Laurence Friend assisted at the station during his absence.

Speicher Bros., of Accident, shipped a fine horse Monday. The destination was Ohio. Another goes away this week to the lower part of the state.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nugent has been very sick, but is now better.

All of Edward Savage's family are very ill with la grippe.

Several of W. W. Savage's family have been laid up with severe colds.

It is reported that Walter Campbell and Mannis Collier were married last week. A serenade would be in order.

In a few weeks the band will produce the drama of "Ten Nights in A Bar Room." With all its humor and pathos, this play appeals to everybody and although old, will always be enjoyed. Careful training is now going forward, and when produced will delight the audience.

The citizens meeting Saturday night resulted in the nomination of the following for Councilmen: L. E. Friend, F. G. Fox, J. G. Kolb, Henry Shevel, Henry Wolf and C. V. Guard. The election will be held Tuesday, February 7th, from one to six p. m.

W. W. Savage has put gasoline lights in his store. George F. Frazee doing the work.

The election light plant is running again, and if the race leading from the river could be lowered some no doubt we could have lights most all the time. We hope so anyway.

The Christian church held services both morning and evening on Sunday last Rev. Browell officiating. Services again in two weeks.

The Town Council held their regular meeting on Monday evening, all answering to their names except J. W. Friend, who was again absent. A number of bills were ordered paid, and the Mayor ordered to get some one to put a drain down, to carry the water to Bear Creek, from the end of Maple street. The officers for the town election were appointed.

Injured by Falling Tree.

Mr. John Garlitz, who resides in Garrett county on a place adjoing the Michaels farm, near Frostburg, narrowly escaped death Saturday while engaged at cutting props. A huge limb of a tree which he was hewing fell and struck him a glancing blow, breaking his right arm in two places. Had Mr. Garlitz received the full force of the blow he would have undoubtedly been killed.

CHARLES E. SHELTON, A. M., LL.D.
Superintendent-elect of Mt. Lake Park.

THE DEATH RECORD.

DR. JOHN DAILY.

Dr. John Daily, a former resident of Piedmont, W. Va., and Westernport, Md., where he practiced dentistry and where also for many years he owned the New York store, died Sunday at Springfield, Hampshire county, W. Va., in the house in which he was born. He had reached an advanced age. He was an active worker in the Presbyterian church. During the Civil War Dr. Daily served with distinction in the Confederate army and held the rank of sergeant. His daring escape after capture from the Federal force in Piedmont is still well remembered by older residents. He was hobbled but leaped from the train, had the hobbles cut off and made his way back to his command. The house in which he died was built by his family over 100 years ago.

CHAUNCEY KIMMELL.

Mr. Chauncey Kimmell, a life-long resident of Garrett county, died at his home adjoining Mountain Lake Park yesterday morning at one o'clock after an illness of several months of dropsy and heart disease. Mr. Kimmill leaves a large family consisting of seven sons and three daughters, all of whom are grown and who reside in this country and in adjacent counties of West Virginia. Until a few years ago Mr. Kimmell resided on his farm west of Oakland when he disposed of the mineral rights and removed to the Park. His funeral will occur Friday afternoon from St. Mark's Ev. Lutheran church in Oakland with interment in the Oakland cemetery. He was aged 72 years

GILBERT JENNINGS CUSTER

Gilbert Jennings, child of John M. and Mary Custer, of near Grantsville, was born Feb. 4, 1900, died Jan. 11, 1911, aged 10 years, 11 months, 7 days.

His was the most repugnant death conceivable—death by fire. His life was as bright as his death was gloomy.

The body was quietly laid away in the Mennonite cemetery Friday at 10 a. m. The ancient proverb is true, in this case at least, that "Blessed is the dead that the rain falls upon."

During four months' constant association in the schoolroom we do not remember one disobedient act or one unkind word. Such is the result of a Christian mother's training.

Gilbert is gone but not forgotten; not dead but gone before; cut down by the grim Reaper only to be transplanted in a brighter and better clime. The world will not forget him and his memory will always remain a bright and pleasant spot in the mind of HIS TEACHER.

Grantsville, Md., Jan. 17, 1911.

RT. REV. WILLIAM PARET.

Bishop William Paret, of the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland, one of the best known and most popular churchmen of the country, died at his home in Baltimore yesterday, after a lingering illness. His wife died last week.

KELITA MICHAEL

Mr. Kelita Michael, aged, 88 years, 11 months and 7 days died at his residence near Firm Rock, Saturday night, Jan 7th, 1911, at half past eleven, after an illness of more than five weeks. He was for fifty years a member of the M. E. church. He is survived by the following children: Mrs. Jas. Heron, of Ellensburg, Wash.; Mrs. A. C. Laphan, Enumclaw, Wash.; Miss Dorcas Michael, of Ravensdale, Wash.; Mrs. Daniel Brenneman, of Jennings; Mr. Jacob Michael, of Barton; Mr. David Michael, of Swarton; Ezra and Lawrence Michael, both of Firm Rock. The funeral took place from the home on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. H. C. Febrey, pastor of St. John's M. E. church of Firm Rock. Interment was made in the family burying ground

REV. F. A. B. WUNNENBERG.

Rev. Father F. A. B. Wunnenberg died Wednesday in the Georgetown University Hospital, after a short illness of typhoid, and buried in Baltimore Monday. Father Wunnenberg was ordained to the priesthood in 1895 and was assigned to St. Mary's church, Washington, as an assistant. Later he was transferred to St. Peter's church, Hancock, Md., and then to St. Peter's church, Oakland, Md. He is survived by his mother, a sister and one brother. As the priest in charge of the Oakland church, Father Wunnenberg was highly respected and loved by not only his own parishioners but by members of other local churches. The news of his death came as a great surprise to his many friends here and elsewhere.

LOU A. SMITH.

Lou A. Smith, editor of the Meyersdale Commercial, died Tuesday in his 78th year. He suffered from asthma but he died in the harness. Being unable to recline, he sat up and worked at the case or in an editorial capacity until almost the last. He was a native of Lancaster county, Pa. He taught school at Grantsville, then in Alleganv county, Md., until the Civil war when he enlisted in the Union army. At the close of the was, he went to Salisbury, where he was principal of the schools until 1872 when with George H. Suhrie, he founded the Salisbury Independent. In 1882, he established the Meyersdale Commercial which he published uninterruptedly. He was a fearless Independent Republican and wielded a trenchant pen.

PLEASANT VALLEY

As there have been no items for some time from this place we will write a few.

John Fulmer is busy operating his saw mill at this writing.

Geo. A. DeWitt purchased some thoroughbred Rhode Island Red stock chickens on last Saturday.

Ray Bittinger was calling on Miss Myrtle Gans Sunday last.

DeWitt, our farmer boy, purchased a fine team of grey horses in the past few days.

The farmers of this place are doing a rushing business logging and lumbering.

Rev. Baughman has been holding revival meeting at Underwood the past week.

Resolutions of Condolence.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our friend and schoolmate, Gilbert Custer; and

WHEREAS, We realize that he was a dutiful pupil and a kind friend, and

WHERERS, We feel that mere words are trivial things, yet be it

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family the heartfelt sympathy of the entire school and that we endeavor to accept His Divine will with serenity and fortitude and patiently say "Thy will be done," and

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent the bereaved family, a copy be preserved among the records of the school and a copy be sent to each of the local newspapers for publication.

THE COMPTON SCHOOL.

LITTLE CHILD FATALLY SHOT WHILE PLAYING ON FLOOR

Sister Who Was Scrubbing Accidentally Knocked Down Rifle.

Osha O'Haver, aged eighteen months, daughter of Mr. Reilly O'Haver, of Bond, died at the Western Maryland hospital, Cumberland, Sunday from a rifle shot wound in the head, accidentally inflicted by her ten year old sister knocking a rifle on the floor. The infant was seated on the floor and her sister was scrubbing, when the latter's hand struck a rifle, causing it to fall. The rifle was discharged, the ball entering Osha's head at the base of the nose and coming out on the left side of the head. The child was hurried to the hospital, but nothing could be done to save its life.

The body was prepared for burial in Cumberland and shipped to Bond, where the funeral occurred Tuesday.

A few years ago Mr. O'Haver's house burned at Bond, when one of his children was burned to death.

MARYLAND'S GRETNA GREEN.

Oakland Is the Mecca of West Virginia Eloping Couples.

During the year just closed there were issued by Clerk Tower of the Garrett County Circuit Court, marriage licenses to six hundred and eight couples, the majority of whom came into the Maryland town from adjoining counties of West Virginia where the marriage laws are of such nature that the bride-to-be must have attained the age of twenty-one years before a license may be issued unless by consent of the parents or guardian. In Maryland the legal age of a female so far as the marriage law is concerned, is sixteen years, hence the great number of runaway couples who come here from West Virginia.

In addition to licenses issued to residents of our neighboring state and those of this county, Clerk Tower's records show that couples came here from as far west as Chicago; also from the Old Dominion and the Empire State—New York. In some instances licenses were refused on account of the fact that either one or the other contracting parties were divorced and were unable to produce the decree showing the action of the court granting such. Another instance was that the party making application for the license was unable to say whether the bride was white or colored, the applicant being blind. A few days later, however, the license was issued when groom-elect, who was blessed with all his faculties, made application and answered all questions propounded satisfactorily.

Subscribe for The Republican.

PENITENTIARY REPORT

Religion, Profession and Crimes of Those There Confined.

The Maryland penitentiary report just issued by the State shows that there are at present 1032 prisoners confined there, 328 of whom were convicted this year. Of the total 663 are negroes and 369 white.

The report snows that over one-third of the prisoners went wrong and were convicted between the ages of 20 and 25. One hundred and forty-five were serving time for a second offense, 45 for a third and one was being entertained for the seventh time by the State.

With regard to religion 528 professed to be Methodists, 241 Catholic, 167 Baptist. The rest were scattered among various sects. Prince Georges leads the counties in number of inmates confined with 27, Allegany 14, Baltimore county 23, Garrett has the least number, 6.

Larceny was the crime for which the greatest number were committeed, 302. There are 87 second degree murders, 17 first degree and 40 convicted of manslaughter.

Three hundred and thirty-eight of those convicted were common laborers, 140 laborers, 61 drivers, 51 domestics, 51 waiters, 33 cooks.

Among the professions there were represented seven doctors, one lawyer, one news reporter, and no ministers.

FOR MARYLAND WATERS

1,500,000 Trout Eggs Being Incubated For Streams of State.

The State Fish Commission announced Monday that the last of a consignment of 1,500,000 trout eggs have been unpacked and put in the hatcheries in Druid Hill Park. The conditions of shipment have been so favorable that Dr. J. H. Wade, the commissioner; Webster Wade, his assistant, and Glenn Smith, second assistant—all optimists—believe that more than a million—nearly the full 1,500,000—eggs will hatch out good, strong, healthy, hardfighting trout that ought to give the anglers of the State a good deal of sport.

The work of incubating the eggs began about the first of the month. As fast as the eggs were received from Rhode Island they were carefully placed on the screens in the long tanks of water in the hatching building. There they will remain about five or six weeks, when they are expected to be hatched.

They will be nursed through their babyhood until about April, when they will be shipped to various parts of the State. At that time they will be only about 1 or 1½ inches long.

Miss Charlotte Stanton returned to her home at Grantsville yesterday after spending several days in Frostburg the guest of Miss Kathlyn Sullivan and Miss Ruth O'Rourke.—Frostburg Corr. to Cumberland News.

DIXON & KELSO

DIXON & KELSO have a lot

Men's and Boys'

OVERCOATS,

Ladies' and Misses' Coats

AND MEN'S

Winter Suits,

which we will close out at one-half price.

Can be seen on the center counter in store room.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

For the Opera

IT IS at the opera that women may indulge the love for finery (which Mother Nature has made so strong an instinct in them) without let or hindrance. No one is accused of overdressing there, so long as she arrives at good effect. Each one may interpret the mode to her own fancy or depart from it if she will, to exploit that of another age. But the beauties of today do not need to excursion into the past in their adorning. Gowns of today are modeled on lovely lines and colors, and details are beautiful. The best fabrics are so good in color that a gathering of many hues will hardly show one that clashes with the others. Like the many-colored oriental embroideries, each color is the note in a harmony.

Green has proven its strength as a means of making a noticeable and elegant costume. Two gowns of this, one in emerald satin and the other in lighter green chiffon, were worn on the evening of the production of "Thais" at Chicago, when all the boxes at the opera were brilliant with gay attire. They were not to be overlooked, such was their strength and distinction. The satin was trimmed with splendid gold embroidery and bore off the laurels for that evening, as the handsomest costume.

Everyone wears a scarf. Much glitter and much soft and exquisite color mark these lovely accessories. They are in the highest favor and are likely to remain so for some time to come. They are long and are often thrown over the head in the transit to and from the play. Where one chooses to wear a quiet gown, the gay scarf or the bespangled one does wonders in the way of brightening up the costume.

A pretty gown of gold-brown velvet with chiffon combined in the waist, a cream net collar and small round guimpe, and with a little gold lace introduced, was a simple affair by comparison with the many gorgeous costumes about it. It was cut round length (as so many are) and was a smart visiting gown. The brilliant yellow and gold spangled scarf and the lovely coiffure, with its wide band of gold and mass of smooth puffs, made the ensemble one of the successes of the evening. But perhaps the raven hair and smooth creamy skin of the wearer, and, more than all, the pair of dark and brilliant eyes she possessed, lent a splendor to her apparel. Certainly no one was more admired and no one to me interesting at it apparently, than she of the gold scarf.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

DAINTY LACE WAIST.

This dainty waist is of white lace with plastron of mousseline de soie, which is ornamented with two rows of embroidered buttons.

The corslet and girdle, the latter knotted in the back, are of light blue liberty.

Pretty Table Decorations.

Smilax is a pretty and effective Decoration for the dinner table. It is not expensive, as it can be used three or four times, provided it is completely submerged in cold water between, and then gently shaken and dried before use.

FOR HEALTH AND HYGIENE

Recipe for Softening and Whitening the Hands—Cure and Prevention of Headache.

A recipe used by a Frenchwoman for softening and whitening her hands is made by boiling two or three floury potatoes in their skin, peeling them, mashing them and making them into a paste with equal parts of rosewater and milk. Apply this preparation at bedtime while the hands are moist after they have been washed.

Many women suffer from headache after a day of busy shopping. To bathe the forehead with a sponge wrung out of water as hot as can be borne will in many cases bring relief. Repeat this as often as the sponge cools. When the head feels tired it is refreshing to dash some cold water on the forehead, then to wipe it off and lie down for a time. Closing the eyes for a few moments at odd times during the day has a wonderfully beneficial effect and will ward off many a headache.

Cretonne Shades.

The newest and prettiest thing in home decorations is the lamp shade of shirred cretonne or flowered silk. For these heavy wire frames are purchased, the round shape being the best. The cretonne or silk is then shirred tightly under this frame, and clamped or glued to it. A narrow border of furniture gimp conceals the joining place.

In tapestry this variety of lamp shade becomes really gorgeous. The idea, of course, can be applied in any of these materials to candle shades as well.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A SURGEON may as well attempt to make an incision with a pair of shears or open a vein with an oyster knife as a cook pretend to dress a dinner without proper tools.

Grape Fruit, Pomelo or Shaddock.

This, fruit when first introduced, was considered only as a breakfast fruit, but it is now so popular that it is in demand for all meals and is served in such a variety of forms that it seems to have practically no limitations.

In purchasing a grape fruit pick out those that seem heavy for their size as the fruit is much more juicy.

To serve for breakfast, the most common way is to cut them across, remove the tough fiber and seeds, cutting around the fruit next to the pulp, sprinkle with sugar and let stand over night to season.

A most delicious grape fruit salad is made by removing the pulp carefully in small sections, mix with white grapes from which the skins have been removed, a few blanched almonds and a bit of celery, all served with French dressing on lettuce leaves.

Grape Fruit Sherbet.—Take the juice of six grape fruit, add four cups of sugar and a pint of water. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin and add to the fruit juice and sugar after it has boiled five minutes. Cool and partly freeze; add two whites of egg well whipped and finish freezing.

Grape Fruit Marmalade.—Cut off the rind and boil it in salted water until translucent; drain and soak in fresh water two hours. Scrape out with a spoon the white inner pulp and cut the rind in thin strips. Add the rind to the juice with an equal quantity of sugar and cook until it jellies, about an hour.

Candied Grape Fruit.—Place the rind in brine over night and put in fresh water in the morning. Do not leave until all the bitterness is drawn out. Squeeze and strain the juice and let stand over night with the sugar, using pound for pound for the rind. In the morning bring the rind to a boil and simmer until tender and at the same time cook the juice and sugar to a sirup.

When the peel is very tender, put it into the sirup and boil until it cracks in cold water. Lift the peels out carefully with a fork and lay on waxed paper to dry.

If the bitter principle of the rind is liked, it may be steeped and added to the juice in making ice and sherbets.

WOE to the friend
Whose evil stars have urged him forth to claim
On such a day the hospitable rites;
Looks, blank at first, and stinted courtesy
Shall be receive. Vainly he feeds his hopes
With dinner of roast chicken, savory pie,
Or tart or pudding he nor tart.
That day shall eat; nor tho' the husband try
Mending what can't be helped, to kindle mirth
From cheer deficient, shall his consorts brow
Clear up propitious—the unlucky guest
In silence dines, and early slinks away.
—Mrs. Barbauld.

Women With the Emergency Mind.

We hear so much today about being ready for the emergency whatever it is. The woman who runs her work and does not let it run her is usually ready for the unexpected when it comes, as come it will, when we are least prepared for it. It is usually the day when we have planned to have a "picked-up meal" that two or three of our most particular friends drop in. Friends who have entertained us in good style and for whom we would like to have a meal at least eatable.

The woman with an emergency mind has an emergency closet where she keeps choice foods for just such an occasion as this. Canned fish, olives, salted crackers and dainty cakes, preserves of different kinds in such variety that a quick visit to this treasure room will result in supplies that will make an appetizing and filling meal.

This supply closet should be at once renewed, so that the next emergency will not find it depleted. The first cost may amount to quite a sum to stock such a bank account, but it will pay in the satisfaction that whatever happens, a creditable meal may be served in a few minutes. A few cans of tomatoes should be on the list for nearly everybody likes a dish of tomato soup. Of course, this closet should not be one for daily use, just for the unprepared occasions.

A most appetizing dish of salmon heated in the can, turned out on a hot platter, and around it place a mound of mashed potato, around this a thick nicely seasoned white sauce, will make a dish always enjoyed.

Nellie Maxwell.

Birds Die of Exhaustion.

More than a dozen birds, including an owl, wrens, thrushes and chaffinches, alighted exhausted on the deck of the steamer Caledonia, bound from Manchester to Boston. All except two chaffinches died immediately. They had, it is believed, been blown out to sea by a gale.

Pretty girls, of course, have more lovers, but fewer husbands.

THE APPLICATION OF KNOWLEDGE

For the Relief of Suffering Is a Cardinal Principle of Philanthropy.

Before the discovery of Resinol, thousands of persons were living lives of torture and affliction who are now well and happy, and are doing what they can by telling others of their wonderful and complete cure with the use of this great remedy. Their experience and other data show that Resinol has cured numerous cases that were thought incurable. No matter what may be the nature or condition of the skin trouble, whether Eczema, Psoriasis, Herpes, Common Pimples or any eruption, a few applications will show improvement. Itching and irritation will cease immediately and a complete cure follow. The relief this remedy has given to sufferers from Itching Piles has caused thousands to write that they consider it worth its weight in gold. It gives relief instantly and cures permanently in a very short time.

If your face is easily irritated by shaving, use Resinol Medicated Shaving Stick. Its healing lather will be your greatest comfort.

These preparations are recommended and sold by druggists everywhere in all countries. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

SLIGHT DIFFERENCE.

"Me mudder t'ought I'd be a cap'n of Industry."

"You missed it, eh?"

"Yep. I became a major general of Indolence!"

Young Age Pensions.

Young-age pensions! Why not? Titles, honors, riches, pensions and most other good things are, as a rule, postponed to a period of life when the capacity for enjoying them has been blunted. Australia was one of the first countries to adopt old-age pensions, and now a Labor member of the commonwealth parliament proposes a complementary scheme of young-age pensions. He would start by pensioning the fourth child at birth. The fact that three had previously been born showed that the parents were doing their duty and deserving well of the state. The young-age pension would "reward industry and encourage the birth rate."—London Chronicle.

A Young Philosopher.

Time is a relative quantity. Some minutes seem like hours, and some hours seem like minutes. How to control this flight is beyond most persons, but the little boy mentioned below seems to have progressed pretty well for a youngster.

The teacher was surprised to see that he remained perfectly idle all through recess, and accordingly asked him why he did not play.

"'Cause," he said, slowly, "it makes recess too quick if I play, and I want it to la-a-ast!"—Youth's Companion.

GOT IT.

Got Something Else, Too.

"I liked my coffee strong and I drank it strong," says a Pennsylvania woman, telling a good story, "and although I had headaches nearly every day I just would not believe there was any connection between the two. I had weak and heavy spells and palpitation of the heart, too, and although husband told me he thought it was the coffee that made me so poorly, and did not drink it himself for he said it did not agree with him, yet I loved my coffee and thought I just couldn't do without it.

"One day a friend called at my home—that was a year ago. I spoke about how well she was looking and she said:

"'Yes, and I feel well, too. It's because I am drinking Postum in place of ordinary coffee.'

"I said, 'What is Postum?'

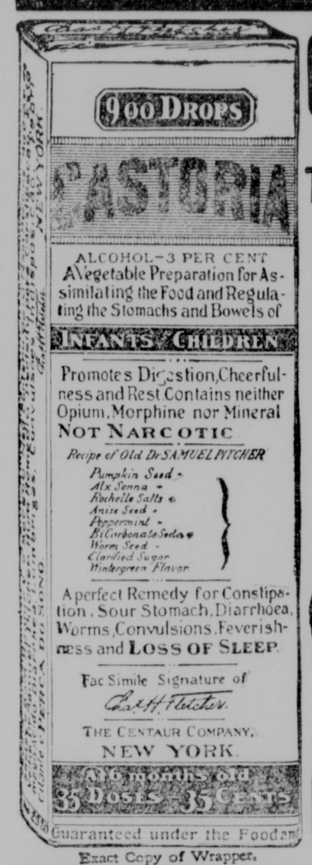
"Then she told me how it was a food-drink and how much better she felt since using it in place of coffee or tea, so I sent to the store and bought a package and when it was made according to directions it was so good I have never bought a pound of coffee since. I began to improve immediately.

"I cannot begin to tell you how much better I feel since using Postum and leaving coffee alone. My health is better than it has been for years and I cannot say enough in praise of this delicious food drink."

Take away the destroyer and put a rebuilder to work and Nature will do the rest. That's what you do when Postum takes coffee's place in your diet. "There's a Reason."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.



Guaranteed under the Foodan
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Rosy Cheeks or Pale Ones?

A moment's reflection with your mirror will give the hint as to the condition of your system. Pale cheeks, muddy complexion, dull eyes, show a poverty of blood. You require something to make a plentiful supply of rich, red blood course through your veins. To ensure this take the wonderful little blood-makers. Whatever your blood may need the stomach will supply from the daily food when it is in good working order. Beecham's Pills aid the stomach to digest its food and to assimilate the blood elements. They increase the supply and improve the quality of the blood. If you are pale, weak, languid, or anaemic, a few doses of Beecham's Pills will

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Make all the Difference

In boxes with full directions, 10c. and 25c.

Left Both Satisfied.

It all happened on one of those few surviving pay-after-you-enter cars.

"Oh, I insist on paying, Gladys," said the brunette. "You paid coming down."

"No. I shall pay," declared Gladys with equal firmness. "What if I did pay coming down—didn't you buy that last package of gum?"

"Let me settle the quarrel, ladies," suggested the diplomatic conductor. "Why not use the denatured form of Dutch treat?"

"What's that?"

"Well, you each pay the other's fare."

And that was the way they solved it.—Cleveland Leader.

The Kind.

"I think that chauffeur had great nerve to make love to his employer's daughter."

"So he had—motor nerve."

Blue Monday.

"Do you know why we call this day Blue Monday?"

"Maybe it's because so much bluing is used."—Judge.

Quick as Wink.

If your eyes ache with a smarting, burning sensation use PETTIT'S EYE SALVE. All druggists or Howard Bros. Buffalo, N.Y.

The more solitary, the more friendless, the more unsustained I am, the more I will respect and rely upon myself.—Charlotte Bronte.

Some people would drown with a life preserver at hand. They are the kind that suffer from Rheumatism and Neuralgia when they can get Hamlins Wizard Oil, the best of all pain remedies.

It is right to be contented with what we have, but never with what we are.—Sir James Macklntosh.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

People who borrow trouble always give more than they get.

Bad Taste

in your mouth removed while you wait—that's true. A Cascaret taken when the tongue is thick-coated with the nasty squeamish feeling in stomach, brings relief. It's easy, natural way to help nature help you. 903

CASCARETS—10c box—week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S
ASTHMA
Remedy for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. Write for FREE SAMPLE. NORTHROP & LYMAN CO. Ltd., BUFFALO, N.Y.

MORE EGGS
I have discovered a great secret—how to make 100 hens lay 80 eggs a day in winter; failure impossible; I prove it by sending my successful method on FREE TRIAL; you don't have to pay till your hens lay. Send for it TODAY to Mrs. L. Alley, Dept. 10, New Madrid, Mo.

MAKE MORE MONEY
Than you ever dreamed possible decorating china, burnt-wood, metal, pillow-tops, etc., in colors from photographs. Men successful as women. Learned at once; no talent required. Takes like wildfire everywhere. Send stamp quick for particulars.
C. M. VAILLANCE COMPANY, Elkhart, Ind.

The men whose time is worth most use the
Gillette
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

Honored by Women

When a woman speaks of her silent secret suffering she trusts you. Millions have bestowed this mark of confidence on Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Everywhere there are women who bear witness to the wonder-working, curing-power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—which saves the suffering sex from pain, and successfully grapples with woman's weaknesses and stubborn ills.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG
IT MAKES SICK WOMEN WELL.

No woman's appeal was ever misdirected or her confidence misplaced when she wrote for advice, to the WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement once a day.

The Resurrection of Christ

By REV. W. L. MUNHALL of Philadelphia

TEXT—Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord, Jesus Christ.—I Peter I, 3, 4 and 5.

It was by the sin of one man that death entered the world. The fountain in Eden was poisoned and the waters have flowed on through the ages in their polluted state.

God in His infinite mercy has provided a remedy, a way of escape, by His Son, who descended into the grave, battled with death and was risen again. The text which I am taking is really too big for a day or an hour, for on it one versed in the word of God would talk a week.

The heart of this text is taken from the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Psalm 16-10 said: "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell." This was a prophecy by David in reference to Jesus.

Peter said: "Men and brethren, let me speak of David's prophecy, he being dead. But according to prophecy, his seed shall reign and his flesh shall not see death."

David prophesied and Peter spoke of the accomplishment of the prophecy, that he, David's seed, should not see death.

Paul said: "He rose again on the third day." This was according to the scriptures; the old scriptures, for there was no New Testament in those days. All authorities uniformly agree that no fact is so well established as that Christ rose from the dead.

Here we have over 500 creditable witnesses that testify according to the resurrection of Jesus. There can be no doubt of it, yet there are people who doubt. I suppose all of you say you do believe—but do you?

Let me explain. Do you believe that God's people will be raised in body from the dead? You can not possibly believe in the bodily resurrection of your Lord from the grave without believing in the bodily resurrection for God's people. I throw this out by way of emphasis.

Those who deny literal resurrection from premises of their own consequently reach unnatural conclusions. There is no teaching of the resurrection apart from the teaching in the sacred scriptures.

I may take for illustration of the resurrection the hideous worm that spins its own winding sheet and lies in a cocoon. By and by it bursts and a beautiful moth emerges. This illustrates but does not explain the doctrine of bodily resurrection from the dead. The only place to find explanation of resurrection of the dead is in the scriptures.

Some say man and horse are the same; that they live and die all the same. This doctrine is not what men say and believe. It is purely and only a revelation from God. What says the scriptures? If you have nothing here that gives you hope, you have nothing. Psalm 16: "Therefore my heart is glad and my glory rejoices. My flesh also shall rest in hope. Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell." David knew there was resurrection. David trusted in God and could say, looking death in its hideousness in the fact: "Oh death, where is thy sting—grave, where is thy victory?" We have been made one with Him and have a living hope through Him.

At the death the spirit returns to the God of David, and the soul departs to its place of felicity until the second coming of Christ, when we enter into our own. Of the wicked—they have a soul, but no spiritual life. At their death the soul departs to torment. The body of all goes into the grave and resolves back to the dust of the earth. "The dust of the earth shall rise" (the bodies).

That which is in the grave comes forth—there is nothing but the body in the grave, therefore it is the body which is raised.

Allow to a certain extent the premises the we are as animals; that Jesus was born of woman, like us; that Christ was developed into manhood by the laws of nature. At 33 years He was nailed upon the tree; His body was taken down by kind hands.

On the third day an angel rolled back the stone. The same physical body came out of that tomb. Women knew Him (we will also know Him), and He said: "Go tell My disciples that I ascend."

He ascended, directly returned and allowed women to touch Him, when before when He had met them He has said, "No, I have not ascended." This was in accordance with an old Mosaic dispensation which did not allow women to touch a priest who was engaged in the ceremony of sin offering. Christ, is a priest, and was a sin offering, and could not be touched until He appeared before the Father and completed the offering. He then returned to earth and allowed the women to touch Him. He also let doubting Thomas touch Him. He appeared in their midst and told Thomas to reach forth his fingers, saying probably: "This, Thomas, is the same hand I used in ministering to the needy and suffering and sorrowing. This was the same body born of woman, crucified, buried and risen from the dead."

For forty days He was with the disciples, walked, talked and even ate with them, and was seen no less than eleven times.

Temperance

PARALLEL STUDY IN HEREDITY

Most Forceful Presentment of Consequences of Strong Drink and Blessings of Temperance.

Prof. William E. Asheraft, in an article appearing in the Sunday School Times, entitled "The Saloon," all of which is well worth reading, gives the following bit of interesting history:

The most forceful presentment of the consequences of drink and the blessings of a temperate life that I have seen came to my desk a few months ago in the shape of a little book giving a parallel study in heredity. Its title is "Jukes-Edwards," and the author is Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston. The story is that of two families the one notorious and the other noted. The one is the family of Jukes, a name given to a Hollander who came to this country and settled in the state of New York something like two centuries ago, while the other is the family of Jonathan Edwards, the great New England theologian and preacher of colonial days.

Jukes was one of those fellows such as is usually conspicuous about saloons, who got drunk on any occasion, would swear innocently and tell a dirty story in a way to make the boys laugh. He was not regarded as a good example, of course; and being thought worse to himself than to anyone else, he was held as "good-hearted," whatever that may mean. Jukes married and became the first progenitor of a family of about 1,200 persons, most of whom figured in the criminal records of New York. Some of them became thieves, some murderers, many of them paupers, and many of the women became prostitutes. The family has cost the state of New York in court trials, and for maintaining them in poorhouses, asylums, jails and penitentiaries, $1,250,000, or over $1,000 each.

The Edwards family, on the other hand, reached the number of about 1,400 persons. They became famous as college presidents, governors of states, judges of courts, congressmen, members of legislatures, railroad presidents, merchants, lawyers, doctors, preachers, teachers, farmers, etc. They filled places of usefulness and contributed to the upliff of society in every station of life. And the only degenerate of the 1,400, if he can be rated as such, was Aaron Burr, jurist, United States senator and vice-president, who failed to reach the presidency by only one electoral vote. The Edwards family were all producers of wealth and contributors to the general thrift of society. They were the products of the beneficent influences of education and religion.

But Jukes and his family were products of drink and its accompaniments, of the baser tendencies of a promiscuous and aimless society. They wrecked not only themselves but sapped the wealth of the public.

This parallel study of the tendencies of drink on the one hand and of education and religion on the other, which I have gone over all too briefly, has been set down in a book; but these deadly and startling parallels are to be found in this and every other community where intoxicating liquors are sold as beverages.

The Saloon Problem.

The overwhelming magnitude of this (the saloon) problem is such that it demands the best thought of every citizen who has at heart the welfare and perpetuity of our republic. To be indifferent to this problem is as unwise and suicidal as it would be to slumber on the brink of an active volcano. A study of our past and present history proves the truth of the above statement. The vast foreign immigration to this country, the undeniable tendency of the population to gravitate to cities, the large excess of foreigners over Americans in our cities, the rapid increase of the manufacture and consumption of alcoholic beverages, the growing political power of the saloon, are among the serious and threatening facts connected with the maintenance of our national life. Surely the time has come to "cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their transgression." Unite, educate, preach, pray, give time and money, vote.—Michigan Temperance Advocate.

Alcoholics In Cooking.

In these days when total abstinence is becoming more popular, there is a renewed effort to introduce alcoholics into cookery. If you put the devil out the door he flies in at the window, and if you put him out of the window he dances down the chimney and sets his blue lights burning on the cook stove. Caterers consider many of their most delicate dishes incomplete without the smack of alcoholics; they hide this devil in solution in their sherbet, in their pudding sauce, in their cakes, their pies. Let temperance people be on the lookout at restaurants, hotels, and so-called high-toned dinner tables.—Wives and Daughters, London, Ont.

Abstinence in St. Petersburg.

There is said to be an abstinence society in St. Petersburg with 600 members whose activity has consisted in establishing no less than eight teahouses in that part of the city where drinking places most abound. An inebriates' asylum is also contemplated.

REALLY OPENED THEIR EYES

Parishioner's Remark, However, Left Young Minister Somewhat in in the Dark.

Rev. Henry R. Rose in the Newark Star tells the story of a young minister who had recently taken charge of a small parish in Vermont. He aspired to greater things and a large field, and in the hope that his reputation would travel beyond the limits of the village to which he had been sent he threw into his sermons all the force and eloquence at his command. He was, however, totally unprepared for what was intended for a compliment, but which was put to him in such a way that it left him in doubt as to the real impression he had made. One Sunday morning, after an especially brilliant effort, he was greeted by an old lady, who was one of the most faithful attendants at all services. Approaching the young minister, she said: "Ah, sir, we do enjoy your sermons so much, they are so instructive. Do you believe it, we never knew what sin was until you came to the parish."

THERE ARE OTHERS.

Green—Does he figure much in politics?

Wise—No; he's one of those politicians who use five-syllable words to express one-syllable ideas.

His Ruling Passion.

The young man waited for the millionaire's reply.

"I don't blame you for wanting to marry my daughter," said the latter. "And now how much do you suppose you and she can worry along on?"

The youth brightened up.

"I—I think," he cheerfully stammered, "that $200,000 well invested, would produce a sufficient income."

The millionaire turned back to his papers.

"Very well," he said, "I will give you $100,000, providing you raise a similar amount."

And the young man went away sorrowing.

Breaking It Gently.

Callahan was stopped on the street by Father Clancy. The good priest's countenance took on a sad expression.

"What's this, I hear, Callahan," asked he, "about your breaking Hogan's head last night? And the two of you friends for years!"

Callahan seemed somewhat taken back. "Sure, I was compelled to do it, your riverence," he explained apologetically, "but out of consideration for that same frindliness, I broke it gintly, your riverence."—Lippincott's.

The Primitive Man.

"Jones is so dreadfully primitive."

"What's his latest?"

"Why, we were at the opera house the other night and a stage hand removed a table and Jones yelled 'Supe! supe!' We were dreadfully mortified."

"I was at a dinner the other night and Jones sat next to me. When he saw the row of spoons and forks and knives beside his plate he beckoned to the waiter. 'Say, boy,' he hoarsely muttered, 'I guess you spilled the spoon holder!'"

"Well, it's lucky he's rich."

"Ain't it?"

We're All Her Friends.

A pretty story of Miss Ellen Terry and a gallant young playwright has gone the rounds of the Players' club.

Miss Terry attended in New York the first night of this playwright's latest work and at the end of the third act he was presented to her.

She congratulated him warmly.

"It is very good," she said. "Your play is very good, indeed, and I shall send all my American friends to see it."

"In that case," said the playwright, with a very low and courtly bow, "my little piece will sell 90,000,000 tickets."

The Cache.

Knicker—We are told to do our shopping early.

Bocker—I know it; my wife has already concealed a forty-nine-cent tie in the top bureau drawer.

What Happened.

Fate—Did you call?

Opportunity—Yes, but she sent word word by her servant she wasn't in.—Harper's Bazar.

GOT HIS SOBRIQUET EARLY

"Honest John" Kelly Proved His Right to the Title Long Before Manhood.

There have been many stories about the manner in which "Honest John" Kelly, the ex-umpire, first got his nickname. Mr. Kelly himself, according to a New York letter, holds that it came to him naturally, for even as a small boy the purity of his soul shone through his face. "I think the first time I was ever called 'Honest John' was when I was quite a youngster," said Kelly. "A man engaged as an ambulatory salesman of tinware observed the ingenious countenance I presented to the world and hailed me. 'What's your name, boy?' he asked. 'I might your name be?' 'John,' said I, quite simply. 'John'—just like that. 'Then hold my horse while I go in the saloon and get a drink,' said he. And so I held his horse while he went in the saloon and got a drink. But this was on lower Ninth avenue, in a day when the avenue's honors went to the man who could clean the most cops in a given time. By and by the gang came along and beheld that wagon full of tinware. The peddler was detained within by a sore thirst, and they took the tinware. And then they came back and took the cushions off the wagon. Eventually, becoming daring, they unhitched the wagon and took it away. True to my trust, I stood there, holding the horse. And by and by the peddler came out of the saloon and sized up the situation. 'Well,' said he warmly, 'you're Honest John, all right. You saved the horse.'"

Ended the Controversy.

On the steeple of an old Universalis church in Bath, Me., there is a wooden figure of an angel. It is not a remarkably fine specimen of art, and has always been somewhat laughed about, especially because of its high-heeled shoes. The Bath Enquirer recalls the story that a former pastor of the North Congregational church once accosted a devoted Universalist with the question: "Mr. Raymond, did you ever see an angel with high-heeled shoes on its feet?" "Why, no," answered Mr. Raymond, "I can't say that I ever did; but did you ever see one without them?"

They Both Knew.

The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong.

A week later the king was angry, because of an error he had committed, and exclaimed: "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.—Smart Set.

The Patient Townsmen.

"So you got to work in spite of the snow drifts?"

"Yes. But I don't see why the city folks should not follow the example of country people and put up a strong kick for good roads."

NOT A PENNY TO PAY

MUNYON'S

EMINENT DOCTORS AT YOUR SERVICE FREE

We sweep away all doctor's charges. We put the best medical talent within everybody's reach. We encourage everyone who ails or thinks he ails to find out exactly what his state of health is. You can get our remedies here, at your drug store, or not at all, as you prefer; there is positively no charge for examination. Professor Munyon has prepared specifics for nearly every disease, which are sent prepaid on receipt of price, and sold by all druggists.

Send to-day for a copy of our medical examination blank and Guide to Health, which we will mail you promptly, and if you will answer all the questions, returning blank to us, our doctors will carefully diagnose your case and advise you fully, without a penny charge.

Address Munyon's Doctors, Munyon's Laboratories, 53d & Jefferson Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

LAND OF MANATEE

West Coast of Florida—America's Market Garden.
Oranges, Grapefruit and Vegetables net $500 to $1500 per acre—two to three crops per year—no droughts—no freeze, no extreme heat.
Quick transportation, low freight rates to Eastern and Northern markets via S. A. L. Ry.
Instructive booklet free now. Address:
J. W. WHITE,
GENERAL INDUSTRIAL AGENT,
SEABOARD AIR LINE RY.
DEPT. 402 NORFOLK, VA.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whetzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHETZEL, M.D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

Splendid Crops in Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from the FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS of Western Canada.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time. Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts; 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre with in certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest; wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Supt of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to Canadian Government Agent.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.)

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

WESTERN IRRIGATION CO., Colorado banks guaranteeing soundness, selling stock to small investors. Attractive profits certain. Haigler Irrigation Co., Denver, Col.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 1-1911.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

5¢ BLOCH BROS. TOBACCO CO. WHEELING, W. VA. BEST VIRGINIA MAIL POUCH CHEWING TOBACCO MAIL POUCH COUPON IN EACH PACKAGE

CHEW AND SMOKE MAIL POUCH TOBACCO

"TREAT YOURSELF to the BEST"

Now About Clean Food

Another Splendid Opportunity to Bring Out Facts

When the "Weekly" which sued us for libel (because we publicly denounced them for an editorial attack on our claims) was searching for some "weak spot," they thought best to send a N. Y. Atty. to Battle Creek, summoned 25 of our workmen and took their sworn statements before a Commissioner.

Did we object? No. On the contrary, we helped all we could, for the opportunity was too good to be lost.

Geo. Haines testified he inspected the wheat and barley, also floors and every part of the factories to know things were kept clean. That every 30 minutes a sample of the products was taken and inspected to keep the food up to standard and keep out any impurities, also that it is the duty of every man in the factories to see that anything not right is immediately reported. Has been with the Co. 10 years.

Edward Young testified had been with Co. 15 years. Inspector, he and his men examined every sack and car of wheat and barley to see they were up to standard and rejected many cars.

H. E. Burt, Supt., testified has been with Co. over 13 years. Bought only the best grain obtainable. That the Co. kept a corps of men who do nothing but keep things clean, bright and polished.

Testified that no ingredient went into Grape-Nuts and Postum except those printed in the advertising. No possibility of any foreign things getting into the foods as most of the machinery is kept closed. Asked if the factory is open to the public, said "yes" and "it took from two to three guides constantly to show visitors through the works." Said none of the processes were carried on behind closed doors.

At this point attys. for the "Weekly" tried to show the water used was from some outside source. Testified the water came from Co.'s own artesian wells and was pure.

He testified the workmen were first-class, high-grade and inspected by the Co.'s physician to be sure they were all in proper physical condition; also testified that state reports showed that Co. pays better wages than the average and he thought higher than any in the state.

F. B. Martin, Asst. Supt., testified Grape-Nuts made of wheat, barley, yeast and water. Anything else? "No, sir." Postum made of Wheat, Wheat Bran and New Orleans Molasses. Statements made on his experience of about 10 years with Co.

Testified bakers are required to wear fresh white suits, changed every other day. Said had never known any of the products being sent out that were below the high standard of inspection. Asked if any one connected with the Postum Co. had instructed him how to testify. Said, "No, sir."

Horace Brown testified has been with Co. 9 years. Worked in Grape-Nuts bake shop. Testified the whole of the flour is composed of Wheat and Barley. Attys. tried to confuse him, but he insisted that any casual visitor could see that nothing else went into the flour. Said machinery and floors always kept clean.

So these men were examined by the "Weekly" lawyers hoping to find at least one who would say that some under-grade grain was put in or some unclean condition was found somewhere.

But it was no use.

Each and every man testified to the purity and cleanliness.

As a sample, take the testimony of Luther W. Mayo.

Testified been with Company about 10 years. Now working in the bakery department making Grape-Nuts. Testified that the ovens and floors are kept clean and the raw products as they go in are kept clean. Also that the wearing apparel of the employes has to be changed three times a week.

Q. Do you use Postum or Grape-Nuts yourself at all?

A. Yes, I use them at home.

Q. If from your knowledge of the factory which you have gained in your ten years at the factory you believed that they were dirty or impure in any way, would you use them?

A. I do not think I would. No.

Asked if any one on behalf of the Company had asked him to testify in any particular manner. Stated "No."

All these sworn depositions were carefully excluded from the testimony at the trial, for they wouldn't sound well for the "Weekly."

Think of the fact that every man swore to the purity and cleanliness so that the Atty. for the "Weekly" was forced to say in open court that the food was pure and good.

What a disappointment for the "Weekly!"

But the testimony showed:

All of the grain used in Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties is the highest standard possible to obtain.

All parts of the factory are kept scrupulously clean.

None of the workmen had been told how to testify.

Most of them have been from 10 to 15 years with the Co. and use the products on their tables at home.

Why do their families use the products Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties, th they, themselves, make?

"There's a Reason"

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.,
Battle Creek, Mich.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland, Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months.....75
One copy three months.....40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1911.

AIDED IN ELECTION OF DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS

Congressman George A. Pearree, whose term will expire on the 4th of March next, is trying, we are informed to dictate to the Postoffice Department in Washington, who shall and who shall not be appointed postmasters in the Sixth Congresiional District of Maryland. There are several postmasters in the District whose terms will expire before the close of the present session of Congress, among them William Pearre, postmaster at Cumberland, and Mr. A. H. Harrington, postmaster at Frederick.

It is a little too soon after the election for the people of this District to forget the action of Mr. George A. Pearre in the last Congressional campaign. He has been in Congress 12 years, drawing a pretty good sized salary and to whom is he indebted for a comfortable berth at the National Capitol for these twelve years? To the Republicans of the Sixth Congressional District and to them alone. Last summer, when he realized that he would likely be defeated either in the primary contest for the nomination or at the general election, he withdrew from the contest for the nomination. What did he do when Mr. Warner received the nomination of the Republican party for Congress in the Sixth District? It is too well known in this District for repetition, but for his benefit we will say that he aided and abetted in the election of Mr. David J. Lewis, the Democratic candidate for Congress in every way he could.

Notwithstanding he is holding a political office paying $7,500 a year, he did not contribute a single penny to the Republican campaign in Frederick county last fall to be used in defraying the legitimate expenses of the campaign, when it is a well known fact that the loval support given him in Frederick county two years ago was all that saved him from defeat. And, so far as we can learn he contributed nothing to the Republican campaign fund in any of the other counties of the District. Nor did he take the "stump" or offer his assistance in that respect or in any other way in the interest of the regular Republican candidate for Congress. Worse than all he worked against his party's candidate, thereby aiding in the election of a Democratic Congress, which has practically "tied" the hands, so far as legislation is concerned, of our worthy President, Hon. Wm. H. Taft.

In view of the above facts, is such a man as George A. Pearre to be reckoned with in the matter of choosing Republican postmasters in the Sixth District? We cannot conceive how he could be and, as loyal Republicans, trust he will not have any voice in the appointments to be made.—The Frederick Examiner.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

There is a substantial basis for an optomistic business forecast at the beginning of 1911. This is to be found in the fact that the past year was by far the most prosperous that the American farmer has ever enjoyed. When the farmers are prosperous the business of the country is in a healthy condition, even though the speculative markets may be experiencing a period of lethargy. Business conditions, taking the country over, are not to be judged by the activities of Wall Street. But even in the security markets the outlook is a hopeful one. As one expert commentator puts it, "the business of the country has been steadily settling down to a point from which natural law, backed by inexhaustible resources, must again reviye it."

Most authorities on trade speak confidently of the outlook. There is no reason to expect that this year 1911 will be a boom year, but there is abundant reason for expecting that it will be healthfully and normally prosperous. Industrial reaction and re-adjustment are yet in progress. Cutside of New York City, bank clearings last year showed up actual expansion as compared with the previous year. Trading in stocks fell off 24 per cent in 1910, as compared with 1909, but the output of the steel mills was greater last year than during any previous year. The imports were the largest in history, and the exports much above the yearly average of the past ten years.

There was a slowing down in business activities generally near the close of last year, but the general tone of business was healthy. During the first month of the new year large sums will be distributed in the shape of interest and dividends. There is reason enough to anticipate a quick business revival.

HUNTER ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

Mr. Thomas Warner, of Finzel Fatally Shot Last Wednesday.

Another fatality has been added to the long list of accidental deaths caused by the careless handling of fire arms.

Mr. Thomas Warner, a young man living at Finzel, near Frostburg, was instantly killed Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock by the accidental discharge of a shotgun, while hunting for rabbits.

Mr. Warner and a companion by the name of Crowe had tracked a rabbit to a hole and while trving to dislodge the game from his hiding place Warner placed his gun against a nearby log. When the rabbit was forced out of the hole Warner made a quick effort to get his gun, which was standing in an upright position, and in so doing knocked the cocked trigger against something with enough force to cause the discharge of the gun.

The entire force of the discharge struck the neck of the unfortunate man on the right side under the ear and almost severed the head from the body.

The dead man was the son of Mr. Thomas Warner, of Finzel, and was 22 years of age. He is survived by his father and mother, a wife and two children. The funeral occurred Saturday at 2 p.m. Interment at the Pocahontas cemetery.

A REMARKABLE CASE OF DUAL PERSONALITY

Editor Grant County Press Arrested In Baltimore for Begging.

"If there is such a thing as dual personality in men, it is shown in this case," remarked Justice Grannan, sitting in the Central district police court Baltimore, last Saturday morning and deliberating what he would do in the case of E. Marshall Johnson charged with begging on the public streets. Johnson, who is 35 years old, is state's attorney for Grant county, West Virginia, and counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. He is also editor and owner of the Grant County Press, a weekly publication. He had been arrested three times on a similar charge, but Justice Grannan had released him each time with a reprimand. When asked by the justice why he begged on the streets, Johnson replied, "I don't know. At times something comes over me and I cannot resist it. Then I get out on the streets and beg money from people. I came here and registered at the Hotel Caswell. I did not intend to beg on the streets, but this other self simply got the best of me."

"I am not going to let you go this time," said the justice, "because this other self may get the best of you again. I am not going to send you to prison, but I will send for some of your friends and place you in their charge."

BITTINGER.

Throughout last week the weather was comparatively mild, and frequent showers of rain carried away nearly all the snow which had lain upon the ground since the early part of the winter.

Charles Hoover, of Jennings, was a business caller in this village last Monday.

Harrison Wiley, who is in charge of the Casselman school this winter, was prevented from teaching last Monday by an attack of la grippe.

Benjamin Long, of Mt. Lake Park, drove down to this village last Saturday morning and remained until Monday when he was accompanied to his home by Miss Effie Bittinger, or possibly Mrs. Long.

Miss Amelia Beachy, of Fort Hill, Pa., is spending a few days with relatives here.

Teachers and others interested in the educational welfare of the community, are discussing the possibility and practicability of having the School Board designate this point as one of the places where a normal school may be conducted the coming spring.

Mahlon Brenneman, of McHenry, was visiting relatives here last Sunday.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

Eugene Francis Butler and Lenora Ammons, both of Amos, W. Va.

G. S. Tichinell and Annie Capitola Duckworth, both of Garrett county.

G. C. Whiting and Lillian Kalbaugh, both of Terra Alta.

Harry H. Male and Lulu Eakles, both of Fairmont, W. Va.

Married.

FRANTZ—CALE—In Cumberlaad on last Saturday, by Rev. I. P. Brown, pastor of the M. E. church of that city, Miss Aidath Cale, of William, W. Va., and Mr. Perry Frantz, of Oakland. The day following the ceremony the bride returned to her home at William and Mr. Frantz returned to Oakland. The couple will go to housekeeping here in a short time.

FREE BIBLE LECTURE

The Resurrection from the Bible Standpoint.

Mr. A. M. Saphore, the learned Bible scholar, will deliver the above lecture at the Maryland Home, Mt. Lake Park, Monday, January 23rd, at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Saphore is a very entertaining and captivating speaker, and establishes every point with a "thus saith the Lord," and in addition outlines to the hearer God's wonderful plan of the Ages in logical, precise order, culminating in the Resurrection from the Bible stand point, a much misunderstood subject for centuries past, but now made clear. Everybody invited! No collection.

Jumbo Farm Fencing.

Cheapest, strongest, most durable Fence ever offered.

Sold on a base of 3c. per pound, thus paying for values, not rod price.

Comes as cheap as barbed wire and is made throughout of No. 9 wire.

No stay wires lighter than the line wires.

A fence is like a chain: no stronger than its weakest link.

No wraps to get loose to hold moisture and cause rust.

No projections to injure stock or tear wool from sheep.

Stronger at the joints than any other fence.

Guaranteed to stand the full strength of wire at joints and not to separate.

Guaranteed that the wire is not injured at the joints.

Guaranteed adjustable to uneven ground.

Guaranteed to be made of open-hearth wire of uniform quality.

Guaranteed to be heavier galvanized. It is impossible to put as much zinc on a light guage wire as on a heavy wire.

No wire fence should ever be put on an American farm that has a wire in it lighter than No. 9.

Buy only open-hearth wire—best wire that can be produced for fencing.

Bessemere steel rusts quicker, is not uniform; is likely to have hard spots in it when drawn out into wire.

There is no question but that large wires in fencing will last longer and at 3c. a pound is the cheapest fence, because the cost per pound of fence made of large wires does not increase in the same proportion as the size of the wire. Use no fence with stay wires made of lighter wire than No. 9.

Samples of all No. 9 Jumbo Fences now on exhibition at our store. Call and examine size and style at a 3c. base.

In order to get full benefit of prices must have your order on or before March 1st, as the factory requires full specifications by that time for spring shipment.

Will also take orders for wire nails to be shipped in car with wire at $2 per keg base price; barbed wire, galvanized, $2.50 per hundred or 80 rod bundles; heavy weight, at $1.75; light weight, bundles, 80 rods, $1.65.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address

DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Purchased a Farm.

Lieut. E. S. West, as agent for the owner, sold to Mr. J. Ellsworth Michael, of District No. 4, the farm belonging to Mr. D. F. Liller, located a few miles south of Oakland, the consideration being $4000 cash. The property is composed of sixty-five acres, well cultivated and improved.

On Monday 86½ acres of the Col. J. E. Wood farm, west of Oakland, was sold by Lieut. West to Mr. W. H. Hardesty, the consideration being $20 per acre.

A Mystery.

Last Friday a mass of blood and what was said to resemble a quantity of brain matter was found a few rods west of the county bridge spanning the Big Yough west of Oakland by Isaac Tusing, who brought the report to Oakland and shortly afterwards an investigation was set on foot by the State's authorities, who discovered also that some heavy body had been dragged from the point where the blood was discovered to the centre of the bridge and supposedly thrown into the river as there the marks ceased. The brain matter was shipped to Baltimore for examination. No report has been made of anyone missing in the community and there seems to be a well settled belief that some animal had been killed and its body dragged to the centre of the bridge and thrown into the river.

Meetings are Interesting.

We are glad to note the increased attendance at St. Paul's M. E. church during the present week, the second of a series of meetings being conducted by Rev. G. R. Williamson, and the general interest and good feeling manifested among those who attend from night to night. The meetings, until Monday night, were held in the lecture room of the church, when it became necessary to have more room to accommodate the increased number attending, hence the meetings are now being held in the auditorium. Rev. Williamson is doing a good work; his sermons are strong and helpful and those who fail to attend the meetings are deprived of the usual inspiration and help always to be derived from such services. All will admit that a general revival of religion is greatly needed and the faithful pastor should be encouraged by a good attendance at each service to which all are cordially invited.

Two Eclipses This Year.

During 1911 there will be two eclipses, both of the sun. A total eclipse on April 28, visible in the United States, with the exception of the northern and northeastern portions. The northern limits are bounded by a line drawn through Philadelphia, Milwaukee and Portland, Oregon. The path of totality will extend from Australia across the Pacific almost to Central America. The other eclipse on October 22, an annual one of the sun, will be visible here.

Notice of Dissolution.

This is to give notice that the copartnership heretofore existing between Samuel H. Welch and Joseph E. Callis, trading and doing business under the firm name of Welch & Callis, at Mountain Lake Park, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Callis retiring from the firm.

WELCH & CALLIS.

Call for Your Letters.

May Whelen, Paul W. Cox, Ethelwyn Lowery, Casper Smith.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

The Lonaconing Savings Bank

Of Allegany County.

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after a while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $12,500.00

The Savings Department takes care of your money while waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Order of Publication.

Saby J. Miller, vs. John Miller.
No. 1718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendent.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married about the year 1899, and that they lived together as man and wife until about the 25th day of November, 1909, and as a result of said marriage five children were born unto them, three girls and two boys, the youngest of which is about ten years of age.

That since said marriage the plaintiff has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife.

The bill then charges that about the said 25th day of November, 1909, that the plaintiff discovered that the defendant was untrue to her, and was visiting and cohabiting with lewd and abandoned women, whose names are unknown to her, that on said 25th day of November, 1909, that the defendant returned home after being absent for ten days or more, and was then suffering from a loathsome disease as a result of cohabiting with lewd women as aforesaid, and after being convinced that such was the case she charged the defendant with said unfaithfulness, and after first denying it, he afterwards in the presence of witnesses admitted such to be a fact, and undertook to explain to the plaintiff the circumstances in excuse for his unfaithfulness.

The bill further charges that after discovering the defendant's unfaithfulness she never cohabited with him again, and later on they entered into a written agreement to live apart, and since said time they have never lived together.

The bill further states that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and prays for an order of publication against the defendant and for other and further relief.

It is thereupon this 18th day of January, 1911, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of February, 1911, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before 6th day of March next, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk. 4-4

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building.
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of instruction leading to professional degree of B. S. Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Propr

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National

Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ... $50,000

SURPLUS AND PROFITS, . 45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt — Gilmor S. Hamill

John M. Davis — George W. Legge

John T. Mitchell — William R. Stull

Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Mr. Claude Brown spent Saturday and Sunday in Cumberland.

Mrs. R. B. Ward, is on a visit to relatives and friends in Ohio.

Mr. Mark S. White has taken a position in the Garrett National Bank.

Mr. Henry Barnard, of Bloomington, was in Oakland yesterday on business.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Mr. Amos Bowser, of near Accident, was in the city Monday when he called at this office

Dr. Hattie B. Jones, of Wheeling, is in Oakland as the guest of her brother, Mr. Scott T. Jones.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Thomasson, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., were guests a few days last week of Mr. and Mrs. C. Elwood Offutt in Oakland.

Mr. Ray Browning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Browning, of Thayerville, was in Oakland Tuesday and yesterday on business.

Miss Alma Scherr, of Morgantown, who visited her sister, Mrs. J. C. Renninger in Oakland for a week or more, returned home yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Christian M. Renninger, of Pittsburg, arrived in Oakland last Saturday and will permanently reside here with her son, Mr. Julius C. Renninger.

Mr. Robert C. Townshend, who spent several days recently at Parsons, West Va., with his sister, Mrs. Charles D. Smith, returned home Monday afternoon.

Dr. Henry W. McComas was in Cumberland last Sunday on professional business, having been summoned there to attend the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R Offutt.

The series of meetings being conducted in St. Paul's M. E. church by the Rev. G. R. Williamson, assisted by Superintendent Reed, are very well attended and considerable interest is being manifested.

Several members of the Knights of Pythias lodge of Oakland will go to Rowlesburg today where they will confer the exemplified third degree on a class belonging to the River City lodge at Rowlesburg.

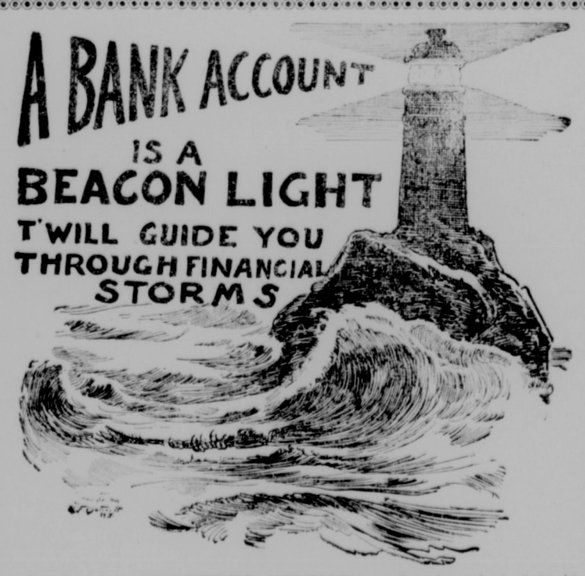
Little Miss Mary Jane Offutt, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Offutt, has been dangerously ill with an attack of bronchial pneumonia at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilson Humtird, in Cumberland.

Among those from Garrett county who attended the Jackson Day dinner in Baltimore Tuesday night, when the recent Democratic victories all over the country were celebrated, were Messrs. R. T. Browning, Gilmer S. Hamill, G. Semmes Hamill, William Miller and Charles A. Deffinbaugh.

County Commissioners Otho J. Fike, W. M. Lowdermilk and D. M. Dixon, and their clerk, Mr. A. G. Ross, attended the meeting of the boards of commissioners from all parts of the state which was held in Baltimore last Wednesday and Thursday, returning to Oakland Friday night.

Mr. James Painter, one of the few successful hunters and trappers of this part of Garrett county, was extremely fortunate last Saturday, when upon visiting one of his traps set along the Big Youghiogheny, he discovered that it contained an otter. The animal weighed seventeen prounds and its fur was as beautiful as that of a seal, and has been valued at from $15 to $25.

The Republican for Job Printing.



In the year 1626 PETER MINUIT bought the whole island on which New York City—now worth four thousand million dollars—is built. He paid $24 for the island. Had he put out that $25 at 4 per cent compound interest in 1626 it would now amount to as much as the present value of New York City.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
OAKLAND, MD.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

No Alum, No Lime Phosphate

FREIGHT BRAKEMAN FATALLY INJURED

O. D. Barr, of Keyser, W. Va., Knocked from Car by Oak Street Bridge.

O. D. Barr, of Keyser, West Va., a brakeman on the local freight running between Cumberland and Grafton, was knocked from the top of one of the cars composing the train upon which he was employed by being struck on the back of his head by the bridge spanning the tracks of the B. & O. railroad at Oak street in Oakland last Saturday afternoon and died of his injuries at the Hoffman Hospital in Keyser Sunday morning.

Mr. Barr had been employed by the railway company but a few weeks and unacquainted with the fact that the bridge which caused his death was too low to allow the free passage of one standing upright on the top of a car, hence with his back toward the bridge he was struck on the back of his head and knocked to the ground, his injuries consisting of a fractured skull at the base of his brain and a number of severe bruises. His injuries were completely dressed by Dr. McComas prior to sending him to the hospital in Keyser, where he died the following morning.

Mr. David P. Hansel, of near Lonaconing, son of the late William P. Hansel, was in Oakland last Friday on business connected with the settlement of the estate of his father. Mr. Hansel will offer at public sale on Thursday next at the home farm a great quantity of personal property, being a portion of the estate left by his father.

Miss Cora Schlossnagel of Accident, has been visiting her aunt Mrs. Margaret Turney and Uncle J. J. Schlossnagel of Gortner and other relatives about Oakland for the past two weeks. While here she spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Geo. Hesen who gave a taffy pulling for twelve young friends. All present spent a very enjoyable evening.

Road Contractor J. E. Francis, of Philadelphia, arrived in Oakland Tuesday afternoon and will remain here a few days for the purpose of going over the recently surveyed extension of the work on Hooppole Road leading from McHenry toward Hoyes, bids for which will be shortly opened by the Good Roads Commission.

Mr. G. A. Fraley, who was in Baltimore for a week or more on account of the illness of Mrs. Fraley who is still a patient in Johns Hopkins Hospital, returned to Oakland Friday night. Mr. Fraley receives daily reports of the condition of his wife, which are favorable. Should she continue to improve within the next few days she will be brought to her home in Oakland.

Dr. N. I. Broadwater, State Health officer for this county, was at a point several miles south of Friendsville last Sunday for the purpose of investigating reports received from that section to the effect that several people were suffering with a disease resembling smallpox. Three families were visited in which eight person were ill. A thorough examination was made by the physician who gave it as his opinion that none of the patients were suffering with the disease so much dreaded, although the symptoms in one instance resembled those of smallpox.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Garrett County Telephone Company held at Hoyes last Saturday all the old officers and directors were re-elected for the ensuing year and plans were perfected whereby the lines and service accorded the public will be greatly improved. A new trunk line will be erected leading from Oakland through Mountain Lake Park and Deer Park to Kitzmiller and adjacent points in the Potomac River valley whereby direct service with the points touched by the new line may be obtained. A number of the old lines will be renewed by the erection of new poles and the stringing of new and heavier wire than has been in use heretofore. Financially the company is in better shape than it has been for some years as will be seen by the statement which will be published in these columns next Thursday, and which is now in course of preparation by the secretary, Mr. Clarence V. Guard, of Friendsville.

INSTALLATION AND FEAST.

Masonic Lodge Called from Labor to Refreshment Last Night.

Following the installation of the recently elected and appointed officers of Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons last night by District Deputy Grand Master O. H. Bruce, assisted by Dr. H. M. Dellinger, both of the Westernport Lodge, a banquet was served at the dining rooms of the Hinebapgh restaurant on Second street at which thirty were present. The menu consisted of every seasonable dish and was served in excellent style.

The newly installed officers of the lodge are as follows: W. M., Julius C. Renninner; S. W., A. Totten Matthews; Jr. W., George W Legge, Jr.; Sec'y, Arthur Lawton; Treas., and J. D., E. J. Fringer; Tyler, C. J. Newman; Stewart, Benj. H. Sincell. Mr. R. E. Sliger is the retiring Master of the lodge.

Mr. Charles S. Davis, of J. M. Davis & Sons, hardware dealers of Oakland, has completed arrangements whereby his patent steel range will be placed on exhibition in competition with other ranges of like character at a show to be held in Pittsburg during the early days of February. In anticipation of the show Mr. Davis is having a large number of catalogues printed at this office which will be used for advertising purposes at the exhibition. The catalogues contain eight pages and cover and the illustrations setting forth the main features of his range are given prominence.

GREATEST BARGAINS
EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY,
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE
CONSOLIDATED
CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 50 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3953. 45-5m

Where

is the best place to buy

MEATS

AT

CREUTZBERG'S

Old Reliable Up-to-Date

Meat Market

WITHOUT A DOUBT.

HOMER E. TURNEY,
Proprietor.

P. S. I pay the highest CASH market price for beef, pork, veal, mutton and lamb.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season

Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries.

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

The Baltimore News

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Published Every Afternoon, Including Sunday

A Newspaper for the Home, for the Family Circle

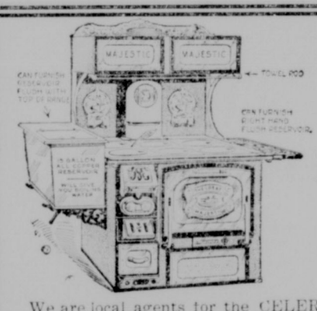
Covers thoroughly the news of the city, State and country.

Complete market reports.

Buy it from your local newsdealer or order it by mail.

One month.....30c. | Six months.....$1.75
Three months.....90c. | One year.....$3.50

The Baltimore News, Baltimore, Md.



MAJESTIC RANGES

For Coal or Wood

HONEST GOODS.
HONEST PRICES.

We are local agents for the CELERRATED MAJESTIC RANGES—the Ranges with a national reputation. Nothing better is made in the stove line. Goods which are cheap, but not good, are dear at any price.

Why you should have a Great and Grand Majestic Range in your Kitchen—

It cuts the fuel bill in half because it is riveted air-tight, HOLDS the heat where it belongs, and has the proper arrangement of flues.
It is used by your neighbor, who would have no other.
It browns bread all over just alike without turning.
Has large warming closets with the right kind of doors. The only warming closets that you can clean.
It is made in any size and style desired.
It is made of better and heavier material than any other.
It is the only range in the world made of Malleable and Charcoal Iron.
It costs a little more, but lasts much longer.
It is the only range made that has a ventilated ash pit.

S. LAWTON & SONS, Oakland, Md.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

There is still a place for the horse in this auto-flying age.

Progressive farmers are now plowing by gasoline, thus having more hay to sell.

Will the international school of peace organize a football team and go out after the championship?

A Winsted (Conn.) farmer has trained a rooster to ride a bicycle. This is something to crow about.

A Swiss doctor says that drunkards live longer than total abstainers. Still, even this is no excuse for being one.

It is planned to unionize the hoboes. Excellent. And then stop them from working other people after union hours.

Montenegro is a kingdom now instead of a mere principality. Over in Montenegro there are people probably who think we care.

The man who introduced moving pictures into this country is dead, but whether he died remorseful or unrepentant the dispatches do not say.

That New York professor who declares college women have not "made good" cannot successfully maintain that they have not made good fudge.

A hobble skirt in which a disguised burglar tried to escape assisted greatly in his capture. Thus we see that even the hobble skirt hath its uses.

Meat prices have come down, according to market reports, but some of the local dealers evidently don't read the papers. Somebody ought to tell 'em.

While it is true that one makes acquaintances with queer people on one's vacation, it is not always necessary to go on a vacation to achieve that end.

The latest thing at Newport is a rag-time bear dinner. A bull and bear dance would look pretty lively, only it would be unpleasantly suggestive of "shop."

A motorcycle ran against the rear end of an Indiana mule the other day, and it is reported that two or three pieces of the machine were afterward found almost intact.

One of the Harvard professors pathetically declares that Yankee blood is dying out. We suspect that the trouble with him is that he hasn't been away from a big town lately.

A man in New York bet six months in jail on the election and lost. Now, despite his efforts, he can't break into jail to pay the debt. A worse hard luck tale could scarcely be told.

A banknote that had been washed and ironed by a fastidious woman was pronounced a counterfeit. The public, evidently, is familiar only with filthy lucre.

That Long Island judge who ruled that $8,000 a year is enough for the education of a sixteen-year-old girl doubtless had in his crude masculine mind only the useful things. Other kinds cost more.

A Chicago woman, in suing for divorce, declares that her husband's stenographer looked at him "longingly, lovingly, sweetly and invitingly." That stenographer certainly must have been a good looker.

A Mississippi man who put a stick of dynamite in his pocket and then fell down with it will recover from his injuries. A man so favored by pure "dumb luck" as this ought to be in steady demand as a mascot.

The story from New York that loans to the aggregate of $50,000,000 have been negotiated abroad indicates that American credit is excellent, and also that the money is likely to be put where it will do the most good in promoting American enterprises. Incidentally it is proof that the money market is by no means as "hard" as had been supposed.

California is one of the western states which shows rapid growth. The census figures just announced give California a population of 2,377,549, a gain of 60.1 per cent over 1900. This is the largest increase made by any state from which the final census returns have yet been received, and shows that "the glorious climate of California" and other allurements are attracting settlers quite as numerously as did the gold fever of '49 and later.

If shoveling in coal and carrying out the ashes were all there is to running a furnace it would be excellent exercise. But many a man becomes dangerously fatigued when it comes to writing out checks for the coal merchant.

An Indiana man died recently after having lived for ninety years without ever having had his face shaved or his hair cut, so he claimed, but the story seems incredible. Surely his mother must have cut his hair when he was too young to put up a fight.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Simon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. Together they go to the Carter farm for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart.

CHAPTER X.

Miss West's Request.

The surprising change in her held me speechless. All the animation of the breakfast table was gone; there was no hint of the response with which, before, she had met my nonsensical sallies. She stood there, white-lipped, unsmiling, staring down the dusty road. One hand was clenched tight over some small object. Her eyes dropped to it from the distant road, and then closed, with a quick, indrawn breath.

Her color came back slowly. Whatever had caused the change, she said nothing. She was anxious to leave at once, almost impatient over my deliberate masculine way of getting my things together. Afterward I recalled that I had wanted to explore the barn for a horse and some sort of a vehicle to take us to the trolley, and that she had refused to allow me to look. I remembered many things later that might have helped me, and did not. At the time, I was only completely bewildered. Save the wreck, the responsibility for which lay between Providence and the engineer of the second section, all the events of that strange morning were logically connected; they came from one cause, and tended unerringly to one end. But the cause was buried, the end not yet in view.

Not until we had left the house well behind did the girl's face relax its tense lines. I was watching her more closely than I had realized, for when we had gone a little way along the road she turned to me almost petulantly. "Please don't stare so at me," she said, to my sudden confusion. "I know the hat is dreadful. Green always makes me look ghastly."

"Perhaps it was the green." I was unaccountably relieved. "Do you know, a few minutes ago, you looked almost pallid to me!"

She glanced at me quickly, but I was gazing ahead. We were out of sight of the house, now, and with every step away from it the girl was obviously relieved. Whatever she held in her hand, she never glanced at it. But she was conscious of it every second. She seemed to come to a decision about it while we were still in sight of the gate, for she murmured something and turned back alone, going swiftly, her feet stirring up small puffs of dust at every step. She fastened something to the gate post—I could see the nervous haste with which she worked. When she joined me again it was without explanation. But the clenched fingers were free now, and while she looked tired and worn, the strain had visibly relaxed.

We walked along slowly in the general direction of the suburban trolley line. Once a man with an empty wagon offered us a lift, but after a glance at the springless vehicle I declined.

"The ends of the bone think they are castanets as it is," I explained. "But the lady—"

The young lady, however, declined and we went on together. Once, when the trolley line was in sight, she got a pebble in her low shoe, and we sat down under a tree until she found the cause of the trouble.

"I—I don't know what I should have done without you," I blundered. "Moral support and—and all that. Do you know, my first conscious thought after the wreck was of relief that you had not been hurt?"

She was sitting beside me where a big chestnut tree shaded the road, and I surprised a look of misery on her face that certainly my words had not been meant to produce.

"And my first thought," she said slowly, "was regret that I—that I hadn't been obliterated, blown out like a candle. Please don't look like that! I am—only talking."

But her lips were trembling, and because the little shams of society are forgotten at times like this, I leaned over and patted her hand lightly, where it rested on the grass beside me.

"You must not say those things," I expostulated. "Perhaps, after all, your friends—"

"I had no friends on the train," Her voice was hard again, her tone final. She drew her hand from under mine, not quickly, but decisively. A car was in sight, coming toward us.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"I May Not Have Another Chance to Thank You."

The steel finger of civilization, of propriety, of visiting cards and formal introductions was beckoning us in. Miss West put on her shoe.

We said little on the car. The few passengers stared at us frankly, and discussed the wreck, emphasizing its horrors. The girl did not seem to hear. Once she turned to me with the quick, unexpected movement that was one of her charms.

"I do not wish my mother to know I was in the accident," she said. "Will you please not tell Richey about having met me?"

I gave my promise, of course. Again, when we were almost into Baltimore, she asked to examine the gun-metal cigarette case, and sat silent with it in her hands, while I told of the early morning's events on the Ontario.

"So you see," I finished, "this grip, everything I have on, belongs to a fellow named Sullivan. He probably left the train before the wreck—perhaps just after the murder."

"And so—you think he committed the—the crime?" Her eyes were on the cigarette case.

"Naturally," I said. "A man doesn't jump off a Pullman car in the middle of the night in another man's clothes, unless he is trying to get away from something. Besides the dirk, there were the stains that you saw. Why, I have the murdered man's pocketbook in this valise at my feet. What does that look like?"

I colored when I saw the ghost of a smile hovering around the corners of her mouth. "That is," I finished, "if you care to believe that I am innocent."

The sustaining chain of her small gold bag gave way just then. She did not notice it. I picked it up and slid the trinket into my pocket for safekeeping, where I promptly forgot it. Afterwards I wished I had let it lie unnoticed on the floor of that dirty little suburban car, and even now, when I see a woman carelessly dangling a similar feminine trinket, I shudder involuntarily; there comes back to me the memory of a girl's puzzled eyes under the brim of a flopping hat, the haunting suspicion of the sleepless nights that followed.

Just then I was determined that my companion should not stray back to the wreck, and to that end I was determinedly facetious.

"Do you know that it is Sunday?" she asked suddenly, "and that we are actually ragged??"

"Never mind that," I retorted. "All Baltimore is divided on Sunday into three parts, those who rise and go to church, those who rise up and read the newspapers, and those who don't rise up. The first are somewhere between the creed and the sermon, and we need not worry about the others."

"You treat me like a child," she said almost pettishly. "Don't try so hard to be cheerful. It—it is almost ghastly."

After that I subsided like a pricked balloon, and the remainder of the ride was made in silence. The information that she would go to friends in the city was a shock; it meant an earlier separation than I had planned for. But my arm was beginning again. In putting her into a cab I struck it and gritted my teeth with the pain. It was probably for that reason that I forgot the gold bag.

She leaned forward and held out her hand. "I may not have another chance to thank you," she said, "and I think I would better not try, anyhow. I cannot tell you how grateful I am." I muttered something about the gratitude being mine. Owing to the knock I was seeing two cabs, and two girls were holding out two hands.

"Remember," they were both saying, "you have never met me, Mr. Blakeley. And—if you ever hear anything about me—that is not—pleasant, I want you to think the best you can of me. Will you?"

The two girls were one now, with little flashes of white light playing all around. "I—I'm afraid that I shall think too well for my own good," I said unsteadily. And the cab drove on.

CHAPTER XI.

The Name of Sullivan.

I had my arm done up temporarily in Baltimore and took the next train home. I was pretty far gone when I stumbled out of a cab almost into the scandalized arms of Mrs. Klopton. In 15 minutes I was in bed, with that good woman piling on blankets and blistering me in unprotected places with hot-water bottles. And in an hour I had had a whiff of chloroform and Dr. Williams had set the broken bone.

I dropped asleep then, waking in the late twilight to a realization that I was at home again, without the papers that meant conviction for Andy Bronson, with a charge of murder hanging over my head, and with something more than an impression of the girl my best friend was in love with, a girl moreover who was almost as great an enigma as the crime itself.

"And I'm no hand at guessing riddles," I groaned half aloud. Mrs. Klopton came over promptly and put a cold cloth on my forehead.

"Euphemia," she said to some one outside the door, "telephone the doctor that he is still rambling, but that he has switched from green ribbons to riddles."

"There's nothing the matter with me, Mrs. Klopton," I rebelled. "I was only thinking out loud. Confound that cloth; it's trickling all over me!" I gave it a fling, and heard it land with a soggy thud on the floor.

"Thinking out loud is delirium," Mrs. Klopton said imperturbably. "A fresh cloth, Euphemia."

This time she held it on with a firm pressure that I was too weak to resist. I expostulated feebly that I was drowning, which she also laid to my mental exaltation, and then I finally dropped into a damp sleep. It was probably midnight when I roused again. I had been dreaming of the wreck, and it was inexpressibly comforting to feel the stability of my bed, and to realize the equal stability of Mrs. Klopton, who sat, fully attired, by the night light, reading Science and Health.

"Does that book say anything about opening the windows on a hot night?" I suggested, when I had got my bearings.

She put it down immediately and came over to me. If there is one time when Mrs. Klopton is chastened—and it is the only one—it is when she reads Science and Health. "I don't like to open the shutters, Mr. Lawrence," she explained. "Not since the night you went away."

But, pressed further, she refused to explain. "The doctor said you were not to be excited," she persisted. "Here's your beef tea."

"Not a drop until you tell me," I said grimly. "Besides, you know very well there's nothing the matter with me. This arm of mine is only a false belief." I sat up gingerly. "Now—why don't you open that window?"

Mrs. Klopton succumbed. "Because there are queer goings-on in that house next door," she said. "If you will take the beef tea, Mr. Lawrence, I will tell you."

The queer goings-on, however, proved to be slightly disappointing. It seemed that after I left on Friday night, a light was seen flitting fitfully through the empty house next door. Euphemia had seen it first and called Mrs. Klopton. Together they had watched it breathlessly until it disappeared on the lower floor.

"You should have been a writer of ghost stories," I said, giving my pillows a thump. "And so it was flitting flitfully!"

"That's what it was doing," she reiterated. Fitting flitfully—I mean flitting fitfully—how you do throw one out, Mr. Lawrence! And what's more, it came again!"

"Oh, come now, Mrs. Klopton," I objected, "ghosts are like lightning; they never strike twice in the same night. That is only worth half a cup of beef tea."

"You may ask Euphemia," she retorted with dignity. "Not more than an hour after, there was a light there again. We saw it through the chinks of the shutters. Only—this time it began at the lower floor and climbed!"

"You oughtn't to tell ghost stories at night," came McKnight's voice from the doorway. "Really, Mrs. Klopton, I'm amazed at you. You old duffer! I've got to thank you for the worst day of my life."

Mrs. Klopton gulped. Then realizing that the "old duffer" was meant for me, she took her empty cup and went out muttering.

"The Pirate's crazy about me, isn't she?" McKnight said to the closing door. Then he swung around and held out his hand.

"By Jove," he said, "I've been laying you out all day, lilies on the doorbell, black gloves, everything. If you had had the sense of a mosquito in a snowstorm, you would have telephoned me."

"I never even thought of it." I was filled with remorse. "Upon my word, Rich, I hadn't an idea beyond getting away from that place. If you had seen what I saw—"

McKnight stopped me. "Seen it! Why, you lunatic, I've been digging for you all day in the ruins. I've lunched and dined on horrors. Give me something to rinse them down, Lollie."

He had fished the key of the cellarette from its hiding place in my shoe bag and was mixing himself what he called a Bernard Shaw—a foundation of brandy and soda, with a little of everything else, in sight to give it snap. Now that I saw him clearly, he looked weary and grimy. I hated to tell him what I knew he was waiting to hear, but there was no use wading in by inches. I ducked and got it over.

"The notes are gone, Rich," I said, as quietly as I could. In spite of himself his face fell.

"I—of course I expected it," he said. "But—Mrs. Klopton said over the telephone that you had brought home a grip and I hoped—well, Lord knows we ought not to complain. You're here, damaged, but here." He lifted his glass. "Happy days, old man!"

"The Notes Are Gone, Rich."

"If you will give me that black bottle and teaspoon, I'll drink that in arnica, or whatever the stuff is; Rich—the notes were gone before the wreck!"

He wheeled and stared at me, the bottle in his hand. "Lost, strayed or stolen?" he queried with forced lightness.

"Stolen, although I believe the theft was incidental to something else."

Mrs. Klopton came in at that moment, with an egg-nog in her hand. She glanced at the clock, and, without addressing any one in particular, she intimated that it was time for self-respecting folks to be at home in bed. McKnight, who could never resist a fling at her back, spoke to me in a stage whisper

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-252 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

COMING HIS WAY.

"What luck, my boy?"

"Oh! pretty fair. I got six winders, two lamp posts and one silk hat already."

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura.

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

On the Dog.

A small West Philadelphia boy may be an author some day. He has just finished his first essay. It is on a dog.

"A dog is a animule with four legs, a tale and pants but he never changes them. He wags his tale when he is glad and sits on it when he is sorry. A dog is a useful animule because he bites burglars but he is more trouble than he is worth when he tracks mud on the carpet. A bull dog is the king of beests."

Seats of the Mighty.

"Have you investigated those charges against Biggun yet?" asked the intimate friend.

"Not yet," answered the distinguished statesman who was a member of the investigating committee. "All we have done is to hold an informal meeting and decide that he isn't guilty."

Same Thing.

Joakley—You're right; most people worry over what they haven't got, but I know certain people who worry because of what they have.

Coakley—That so? What have they?

Joakley—Nothing. — The Catholic Standard and Times.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

Bring your will to your fate and suit your mind to your circumstances.—Marcus Aurelius.

We cannot choose our life, but we can choose the way we shall live it.—Emerson.

INVASION OF NICARAGUA BY AMERICAN CAPITALISTS

AMERICAN LEGATION AT MANAGUA, NICARAGUA

HONDURAS, in the light of recent developments, is playing the same game as did Nicaragua, and it is expected here that the firm hand of the United States will be felt in north Central American republic. Too many American interests are at stake to let the threats of Spanish rulers go unheeded, say Managua officials. One by one as these troubles arise throughout Central America it is the intention of President Taft and his subordinates to force a lasting peace.

It hasn't been long since United States Minister Merry was chased through the streets of Managua by the soldiers of President Zelaya, but conditions in these three years have wonderfully changed. Perhaps no man saw farther into the future of these Latin-American Republics than did Minister Merry. A sea captain on a Pacific Mail liner, he became a student of the native and his country. He probably knew better than any other diplomatic official that left alone, they would never cease fighting.

HON. WILLIAM L. MERRY

DRYING COFFEE

As the result of his work in the service, the United States has virtually established a protectorate over Nicaragua. At all times an American warship is within four hours' call by the wireless. An American postage stamp is as good in Nicaragua as it is in Louisiana. Mail for the United States goes through the American consulates and is carried in sealed sacks to New Orleans and Mobile, or to a port on the Pacific coast in another. It is not handled by natives. There is no opening of mail addressed to the subjects of the United States these days, as was common in the past.

That is one result of Minister Merry's work and today he is in the diplomatic service in Costa Rica, watching his labor bear fruit.

President Estrada is a great fellow as Nicaraguans go—but he couldn't last twenty minutes as the boss of a people who have to live, if the United States government at Washington wants him to. He is not a tyrant, nor even a dictator, in the strict sense of the word. There is at present no opposition to speak of, and the country is quiet. But Estrada is a mestizo, a man of mixed blood. That is, he has a strain of Indian blood in his veins. He is a full blood Indian in his habits of thought and action. He is a man of the people. He is a leader. Kansas City and Cincinnati and even the United States senate have their political leaders, but in politics and in business Estrada stands alone. He is the boss. He is the man who says what shall be done and what shall not be done. He is the man who makes things go. He is the man who makes things stop. He is the man who makes things happen. He is the man who makes things not happen. He is the man who makes the wheels go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels go round and stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round and not stop and not go round. He is the man who makes the wheels not stop and not go round and

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Most Comforting Words, Words of Life

"Comfort one another with these words" (I Thessalonians iv, 18).

Utica, N. Y., [illegible].—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached here twice today to large audiences. We report one of his discourses from the above text. He said in part:—

One of the wonderful things about the Bible and the Christianity founded upon the Bible's teachings is the fact that it contains so much sympathy—comfort for the bereaved, the sorrowing, the troubled. This is not true of any other book or any other religion in the world. And who is there that does not at some time in life need sympathy, need encouragement, need a powerful and loving friend such as our Bible assures us our God is to all who will accept his favor?

But our great Adversary, Satan, seeks to make the light appear dark and the darkness appear light. He seeks to negative the testimonies of God's Word, and, to a very great degree, his deceptions have been successful, as is witnessed by the creeds of Christendom. Practically all of our creeds, even though they assert that God is gracious, merciful, kind and loving, contradict this description of him and his Plan for humanity in monstrous terms, fiendish in the extreme. The majority of creeds tell us of his foreordination and pre-arrangement of whatsoever comes to pass and that this signifies that a saintly handful will gain eternal life in joy in heaven, and that the unsaintly thousands of millions of heathendom and Christendom are equally foreordained to spend an eternity of torture foreknown, foreintended and provided for before their creation. Is there comfort in this? Is such a plan God-like or Satanic? Could any intelligent and good being rejoice in such a plan of damnation or sincerely worship an Almighty God who would so misuse his unlimited power to distress his creatures, "born in sin, shapen in iniquity; in sin did their mothers conceive them?"

The minority of Christian creeds declare the same results, but that they were not designed of God, not foreknown by him, not predestinated. They tell us in other words that we have an incompetent God, well-meaning, but deficient in wisdom and in power. Is there any comfort in this? Would it assuage the grief and pain of those suffering in eternal torment if they could be assured that their lot was such, not because of Divine premeditation and design, but because of Divine incompetence? Surely there is no comfort to be had from such a view!

After all, we Protestants did not make much of an improvement upon the theory held by our forefathers against which we protested in the sixteenth century. Surely purgatorial tortures of a few centuries are no worse, no less comforting than our Protestant conceptions of an eternity of torture for all the non-elect. Our Catholic forefathers manufactured Purgatory without a shred of Scripture upon which to base the theory. They built it in their imaginations; they invented its fires and tortures. Our Protestant forefathers, using their imaginations, gave us an eternal torment hell—not more tangible, not more Scriptural than Purgatory. They did indeed use a Scriptural term—sheol, hades, hell—but, overlooking the fact that these words all signify the state of death, the condition of the dead, they wrested the language and warped it in an unscriptural manner to signify torture. The penalty or "wage of sin is death." They made of it torture everlasting, without the slightest authority of Scripture except a misunderstood and misapplied parable, which, rightly understood, teaches a totally different lesson. The false Gospel has surely lost its power. People are becoming too intelligent to endure it. As a consequence attendance at Churches is decreasing and reverence for God is diminishing. Infidelity, called Higher Criticism, etc., is increasing.

The need of the hour is the Gospel of comfort. St. Paul declares what we all know, namely, that "the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God." Here we see the necessity for this Gospel of comfort. We see also that God has provided it and that it is coming to the world in the end of this Age, in the dawning of the new Age. It will come to the world in general as soon as the elect Church shall have been selected and, by the "First Resurrection" power, glorified with her Lord as his Kingdom class, as the glorified sons of God, whose mission it will be to bless all the families of the earth.

"Father of Mercies—God of All Comfort."

When St. Paul says, "Knowing the terrofs of the Lord," he evidently refers to the fact that our Creator has declared that "the wage of sin is death" (not eternal torment); that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die" (not live in torment); that "all the wicked will God destroy" (not preserve in fire); and that only such as come into vital relationship with the Redeemer can have everlasting life. Knowing these things respecting the Divine government we persuade men everywhere, "Be ye reconciled to God"—and thus attain the only eternal life which he promised.

But, on the other hand, note the kindly description of our God which the Apostle furnishes, "Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all of our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them that are in any tribulation, by the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted of God. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our comfort also aboundeth by Christ. And whether we be afflicted, it is for your comfort and salvation * * * or whether we be comforted, it is for your comfort and salvation, * * * knowing that as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the comfort" (II Corinthians i, 3-7).

What a wonderful statement respecting the Divine intentions for the comfort of the world and the comfort of the Church, all proceeding from "the God of all comfort." Nothing written in any sacred books of any people at any time reveals such a God as the God of the Bible—a God infinite in Justice, Wisdom, Power and Love. It is he that is "working all things according to the counsel of his own good will," for the ultimate comfort and salvation of as many of his creatures as will accept his favors, after being brought to a knowledge of the Truth respecting them. The Church is now comforted during this Gospel Age (saved to the highest plane of the heavenly nature) and during the coming Age the world is to be comforted and saved to the human nature—as many as will. For the world this means the glorious opportunity of the mediatorial reign of Christ which will constitute their time of restitution, uplifting, resurrection to all that was lost in Adam and redeemed by the precious blood of Christ (Acts iii, 19-21).

"Comfort—With These Words."

In order to appreciate the meaning of our text we must consider the words of the Apostle preceding it, beginning with the 13th verse. He declares, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope." All Christian people agree that the word sleep here refers to those who died. They are not asleep in heaven, of course, for there all is wakefulness and intelligence and joy. They are not asleep in Purgatory, of course, for, according to our Catholic friends, sleep there would be an impossibility. They are not asleep in an orthodox hell, for, according to the description given by Protestants, none could sleep there. Where, then, are those who are "asleep"? St. Paul says that we should not be ignorant concerning them. Have we not been ignorant in the past—foolishly ignorant? We have ignored the Apostle's words entirely. We have refused to believe that any are asleep and claim that all are awake, alive—a few in heaven, the many in Purgatory or eternal torture.

But St. Paul was right! The entire Bible teaches that all who die fall asleep. Thus we learn of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr, that he "fell asleep" (stoned to death). We read of the good and bad, kings and peasants, falling asleep in death. We read that King David slept with his fathers—some of them good, some of them bad. We read that Abraham slept with his fathers—some of them heathen. The Bible tells us where they sleep and that they will all be awakened from the sleep of death in due time—in the resurrection, during Messiah's reign of a thousand years. The Prophet declares that "Many that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to life everlasting and some to shame and lasting contempt" (Daniel xii, 2).

Those who will be awakened from the sleep of death unto resurrection of life will be the blessed and holy, the saintly, who will be associated with Messiah in the Kingdom work for the blessing and uplifting of the non-elect. Those who will be awakened from the sleep of death to shame and age-lasting contempt will be the non-elect world. Their shame will be in proportion as they have enjoyed light, knowledge and opportunity and have failed rightly to appreciate and use these. They will have contempt from their fellows, in proportion as their shortcomings of the present time will be shown up. Many highly esteemed amongst men will be awakened to that shame and age-lasting contempt. But their case will not be a hopeless one. Much of their weakness and dereliction were the result of Adam's transgression and the sinful conditions which have resulted, including unfavorable environment. God has provided in Christ redemption for all from the sins and weaknesses resulting from Adam's disobedience and thus the entire race of Adam is guaranteed an individual trial under favorable conditions—for life everlasting or death everlasting.

All who will render obedience to the laws and regulations of Messiah's Kingdom will begin to rise up, up, up, out of their fallen, degraded condition of sin, and be brought back to all that was lost in Adam and redeemed at Calvary. In proportion as they will retrace their steps and come back into Divine fellowship their shame will decrease and their contempt also. Finally in the consummation of that age all who will may have attained full restoration and regeneration and freedom from shame and contempt. The unwilling and disobedient and rebellious will be destroyed in the Second Death—"twice dead, plucked up by the roots"—without hope of any further resurrection or restitution.

"Comfort With These Words."

St. Paul urges that Christians should not be ignorant concerning those who are asleep—that they "sorrow not even as others who have no hope." It is bad enough to think of millions of the heathen as being totally extinct, hopelessly dead, without any prospects of a resurrection. The same would be true respecting our neighbors and friends, parents and children, brothers and sisters, who are not saintly, who are not in "Christ Jesus," who are not walking after the Spirit, who are not heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord. And if it would be a sore trial to think of them as utterly destroyed in death and without hope of resuscitation, resurrection, how much worse would it have been when, in our misunderstanding of God's plans, we thought of them as being in either Purgatory or eternal torture. Such a false conception of the Divine plans is even worse than to believe them without hope and extinct.

The Apostle proceeds to point out the basis of this hope in these words, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring (from the dead) with (by) him" (I Thessalonians iv, 14). So, then, the Apostle declares, the resurrection hope is the Christian hope, and the basis of the hope of this resurrection is that Jesus died that he might be man's ransomer—that he arose from the dead that he might be the great Deliverer of mankind, the Prophet, Priest and King of God, and that he might gather to himself the elect Church, the Bride, the Lamb's Wife, as his joint-heir.

Christians, of course, in thinking of the resurrection of the dead, would primarily, chiefly, consider their dear ones of the household of faith; hence the Apostle continues his argument, saying, that those of the Church living at the time of the Second Advent will not precede or hinder those members of the Church who have died during the past centuries, for the dead in Christ shall arise first—shall be awakened first from the sleep of death.

"Them That Sleep In Jesus."

We cannot think that the Apostle refers merely to the Church in this case, for uniformly, in speaking of the resurrection of the dead, he refers both to the Church and to the world, the "resurrection of the just and of the unjust." So in this case he evidently refers both to the Church and to the world as "asleep in Jesus." The expression will be noted as different from another one of his respecting those who "sleep in Christ." The latter expression evidently refers to the Church as the glorified members of The Christ. But in speaking of those asleep in Jesus he evidently has reference to the whole world of mankind. The whole world died in Adam without having a voice in the matter of their birth or trial or condemnation. "Condemnation came upon all because of one man's disobedience." Likewise justification is to pass upon all of our race through the precious merit of Christ's sacrifice. The fact that he "died, the just for the unjust," constitutes his death a satisfaction price for the sins of the whole world.

From this standpoint, therefore, the whole world not only died in Adam, but now sleeps or waits unconsciously for a resurrection of the dead through the merit of our Redeemer's sacrifice. If we believe that Christ died for our sins and laid the foundation thus for his great work of blessing the world of mankind, including the Church, the first-fruits, let us believe also that God who began his good work will not stop until he shall have brought forth judgment unto victory—until all the redeemed world shall be brought to a knowledge of the Redeemer and of the Heavenly Father and to an opportunity for life everlasting through obedience. The world died in Adam—"In Adam all die." Jesus is the Redeemer of the world. "Even so all in Christ shall be made alive."

The message has reached the Church only, as yet. In due time it will reach every member of the race. The Church is already reckonedly quickened from the dead by the holy Spirit and will shortly be born from the dead in the "First Resurrection." The world, therefore, from the Divine standpoint is not dead in Adam now, but merely asleep in Jesus, waiting for the glorious time when, his Kingdom established, he shall call all mankind from the prison-house of death, from the tomb, that such may learn to the full of the grace of God in Christ, and have opportunity for attaining life everlasting.

These are the words in which we are to comfort one another—words of hope respecting the resurrection of the dead, both the just and the unjust—words of sympathy, words of assurance, words that show that God is better than all our fears; that yet in a little while he that shall come will establish his Kingdom—first the Church in glory and secondly Israel and all the families of the earth through them. Everything connected with the Divine message is full of hope, full of encouragement, full of blessing, to those in the condition to receive it.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Sunday school at 2:15 p. m.
Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.
Services every evening during the week at 7.30 o'clock.
Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK'S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows:
Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 10.30 a. m.
Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Deer Park—Preaching at 7:30 p. m.
Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m.
Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m.
Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m.
Sunday school at 2.30 p. m.
Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Ferndale—Preaching at 11 a. m.
Deer Park—Preaching at 7:30 p. m., and possibly during the next week. Announcement later.
Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

Schoolboys Must Be Good or Saw Wood.

Principal A. C. Fay of the Bridgewater (Mass.) high school recently introduced a new course in the high school for some of the boys who were bubbling over with exuberance. He got a saw and a sawhorse and a cord of hard oak and put these into the basement. When the boys began to transgress the rules the principal sent them downstairs to saw wood. The boys thought it was a big joke at first, but the punishment kept on, and they were kept sawing wood until their backs cracked. They broke a number of saws and sawed the sawhorse through. But new ones took their places, and it was soon found that the wood sawing industry had become a recognized department in the curriculum in the Bridgewater high school. The course in wood sawing did not prove popular at all, and of late there has been little wood sawed there. There is still plenty of hard wood on hand in case of emergency. This plan will make better citizens for the small towns and tend to keep the country schools in firewood, thus saving the expense of hiring a man to chop it. It is a good example for all towns to follow.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The officers of the State Horticultural Department desire to inspect all nursery stock shipped into the State this fall and next spring. All persons receiving nursery stock from out-state nurseries are requested to notify the State Entomologist, College Park, Maryland. 3t

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO., OAKLAND, MD., Jan. 10, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, Feb. 5th, 1911,

to hear appeals and make transfers on the old assessment as the new assessment will not be finished in time for the 1911 levy.

Road Supervisors are requested to file their oath and bonds at once so they can be approved on above date.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

TRUSTEES' SALE
OF VALUABLE
Real Estate
IN THE TOWN OF OAKLAND, CARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a deed of trust executed by Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley his wife, dated the 12th day of September, 1906, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 55, folio 351, etc., one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett county, Maryland, default having been made therein, the undersigned trustees, will be

TUESDAY,
the 7th Day of February, 1911,

at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder the property described in said deed of trust as follows:

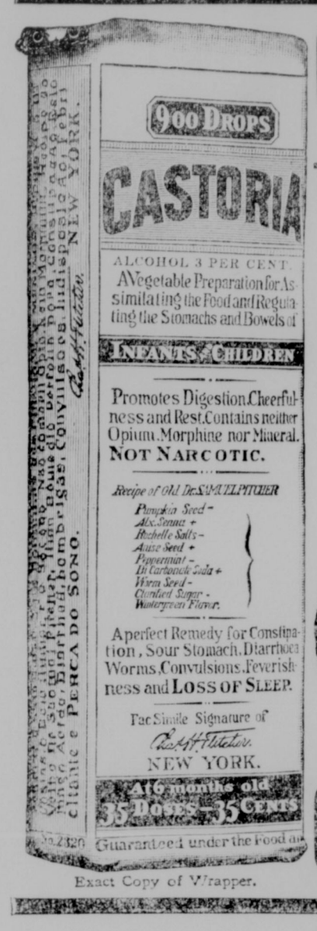
Being part of the southern half of Military Lot No. 862, and more particularly described as Lot No. 3 and part of Lot No. 2 of the subdivision of the said southern half of said Military Lot No. 862 which is locally known as East End as laid out and platted by F. A. Thayer, et al., as a suburb of Oakland, Md., and more particularly described as follows: Beginning for the same at a stake standing South 23 degrees West, 186 feet from the Northwest corner of said tract called East End, and running thence South 67 degrees East, 47 feet to Market street, and with said street South 23 degrees West, 225 feet and six inches to lot No. 4 of said sub-division, and with the lines of said lot North 67 degrees West, 47 feet, then by a straight line to the beginning, this being the same lot conveyed to Joseph W. Cogley by deed from F. A. Thayer, attorney, &c., dated the 15th day of November, 1895, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 28, folio 448, one of the Land Records of Garrett county.

Said lot is improved by a good dwelling house, and an excellent well of water on the premises, and necessary outbuildings.

TERMS OF SALE:—Cash on day of sale or the ratification thereof by the Court.

WM. R. OFFUTT,
JULIUS C. RENNINGER,
Trustees.

N. B. Upon purchaser making a reasonable cash payment satisfactory arrangements can be made with the trustees as to deferred payments



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Notice to Creditors.

THIS is to give notice, that the subscriber of Garrett County, Md., has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters of Administration on the personal estate of

DAVID C. SHAFFER,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, 1911, they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

MARY E. SHAFFER,
Administrator,
Oakland, Md., R. D. 1.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber Garrett county, Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphan's Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters of Administration on the personal estate of

MARGARET C. REINHARDT,

late of Garrett Co., Md., deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

JAMES A. ENLOW,
Administrator,
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF

The First National Bank
AT FRIENDSVILLE,

In the State of Maryland, at the close of business, Jan. 7, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts		$142,898 55
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured		451 33
U. S. Bonks to secure circulation	25,000 00
Bonds, Securities, etc.	63,997 60
Banking house, Furniture and Fixtures	6,466 01
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)	2,629 67
Due from State and Private Banks and Bankers	202 37
Due from approved Reserve Agents	18,388 03
Checks and other Cash Items	1 00
Notes of other National Banks	1,035 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents	256 64
Lawful Money Reserve in Bank, viz:
Specie. $2,983 35
Legal-tender note.. 9,445 00	12,428 25
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)	1,250 00
Total		$275,004 45

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus fund	26,000 00
Undivided Profits, less expenses and taxes paid	4,818 39
National Bank Notes outstanding	25,000 00
Due to other National Banks	702 85
Dividenda unpaid	282 00
Individual deposits subject to check	85,503 23
Time certificates of deposits	107,697 98
Total	$275,004 45

State of Maryland, County of Garrett.

I, Orval A. Welch, Cashier of the above bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 11th day of January, 1911.

R. M. HOLMAN, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest: W. W. SAVAGE,
D. S. CUSTER,
L. E. FRIEND,
Directors.

DR. LOUIS I. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m

ORDER NISI.

Edward H. Sincell, Trustee, vs William A. Harvey and Benjamin E. Harvey.

No. 1705 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland

Ordered, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting as a court of equity, this 26th day of November, 1910, that the sales made and reported in the above cause by Edward H. Sincell, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 27th day of December, 1910; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 23rd day of December, 1910.

The report states the amount of sales to be $45.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,
Executrix,
43-3t-pd Mt. Lake Park Md.

ORDER NISI.

Wm. E. Hollinger, Late Treasurer of Garrett County, vs. Mary L. Ward and Jennie Wagner.

No. 136, Miscellaneous Docket. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

It is ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, this twentieth day of December, 1910, that the tax sale made and reported in the above entitled cause, by William E. Hollinger, late Treasurer in and for Garrett County, Md., be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 27th day of January, 1911; provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper printed in Garrett county once a week for three successive weeks before the 20th day of January, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $30.50.

ROBERT R. HENDERSON.
True Copy—test: E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

Clarence M. Rathbun and Alonzo D. Naylor vs. William D. King and wife.

No. 1696 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 16th day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Fred. A. Thayer, the attorney named in the mortgage filed in said cause, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 16th day of February, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of February, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $1000.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

WILLIAM P. HANSEL,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 12th of July next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

DAVID P. HANSEL,
Executor,
Lonaconing, Md.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

Subscribed for The Republican.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 1911. NUMBER 48

A MARATHON RACE RUN IN GARRETT COUNTY MONDAY

George Smith, Recently Escaped From House of Correction, Led and Won.

With snow covering the face of the earth, with no rules to hamper the contestants in their movements and no official route laid out over which they were to run, a sure enough Marathon race occurred Monday in that section of Garrett county lying between the Big Yough river and the roads known as Hooppole and Broadford.

There were but three entries in the race, the contestants being George Smith, who was recently sent to the House of Correction from Garrett county to serve a term of seven months for theft, and Deputy Sheriff Shartzer and Bliss Jamison, the latter pressed into service by the officer. Sheriff Shartzer and Jamison were handicapped by Smith. They were loaded with heavy artillery and a warrant, while Smith ran in his stocking feet and shirt sleeves. The course covered a distance computed at twelve miles with Smith in the lead at the start which he maintained until the officers gave up the race and returned home sore and weary, also empty handed and winded, while Smith crept into a haymow near his former home and slept the sleep of the escaped convict, since which time his whereabouts, so far as the officers are concerned, have been shrouded in mystery.

Smith walked out of the House of Correctian two weeks ago Sunday but the matter was kept quiet by the local officers as it was surmised he would return to his home here and he could be picked up quite easily, but they failed to take into consideration that Smith is a runner, hence his liberty up to the present moment.

Public Sale of Personal Property

On Gordon Farm, one mile East of Mt. Lake Park, as one p. m., February 1st. Four head of Horses, 6 Jersey Cows, 4 Jersey Heifers, 1 three year old Jersey Bull, 1 two year old Jersey Bull, 1 two year old Jersey Heifer, 1 Road Wagon, 1 Dray Wagon, 1 Mowing Machine, 1 Horse Rake, 1 Spring Tooth Harrow, 1 Disk Harrow, 1 Oliver Chilled Plow, 1 Glade Plow, 1 Showel Plow, 1 Bob-Sled, 1 set Working Harness, 3 Milk Cans, 1, 5, and 10 gallons each; 2 Scoop Shovels, 1 Spirit Level, 1 two inch Auger, 1 lot of Oats, 1 lot of Hay, 1 lot of inch lumber, (approximately 1000 ft.)

Pritchard's gallery in the Ravenscroft building is now open for business. Photographs twenty-five cents per doz. to three dollars per doz. Postal cards a specialty at special prices. 2t

LEASING OF DEER PARK HOTEL.

Which Insures a Bright Future for This Well Known Resort.

Papers have been executed for the leasing of the Deer Park Hotel and premises for a term of years to the American Resorts Hotel Company, and the new lessees will take possession at once and prepare for the usual opening in June.

The American Resorts Hotel Company come well recommended as hotel managers. They have been in the business for years, and have a chain of hotels of the very best class. They manage Devon Inn near Philadelphia, the Oglethorp Hotel at Brunswick, Georgia, and a popular and fashionable seaside resort on the Atlantic coast.

The mountain resort will be conducted on first-class lines, in fact just as Devon Inn and their other hotels are managed, and in addition to conducting the hotel at Deer Park in the best possible manner, the cottages will have special attention, for the new management believe that this adjunct is an important one and will be featured to the extent of the erection of additional cottages if needed.

DR. SCOTT FOR GOVERNOR

Republicans Think Hagerstown Mayor Would be Strong Man.

A good-sized boom has been started for Mayor J. McPherson Scott, the popular executive of Hagerstown, for governor on the Repbblican ticket, and his bringing out as an available candidate has been received with many expressions of satisfaction from party men in various portions of the State.

Dr. Scott himself, while not actually discouraging the movement, is disposed to be very modest about the matter, and disclaims entertaining any gubernatorial aspirations. He has declared, in speaking of the proposal, that last summer some of his friends casually mentioned the possibility of his being made the banner bearer of his party in the State campaign, but that he informed them he entertained no political ambitions and that even in accepting the place on the Hagerstown ticket for mayor he did so against his own inclinations, being prompted in making the race solely a sense of duty toward the people and to the party.

Call for Your Letters.

Ella Gibson (2), Marrie Harrison, Lulu Riley, Daisy Michael, Thomas McDaniel, Helene DeVore, Anna Lee, Leroy S. Kisner, Fill Stanley, Luna Bigelow, Clarence Switzer, James Johnson, Hoye Rodeheaver, T. F. Nefkin, Lucy C. Albert.

SCHOOL BOARD TROUBLE PUT UP TO THE GOVERNOR

And The State Board of Education By Citizens of Garrett County.

Petitions to Governor Crothers and the State Board of Education signed by numerous residents of Garrett county, irrespective of party, asking for the removal of the Board of School Commissioners as well as the superintendent of the public schools of Garrett county, upon specific charges set forth in the petitions, have been forwarded to the state officers.

The papers were prepared by Mr. Richard T. Semmes, of Cumberland, who was employed for the purpose by the petitioners.

In last Thursday's Baltimore American the charges against Mr. Browning were printed under an Oakland date line in which the correspondent of the American stated that the movement to oust the board and Mr. Browning was on account of a split in the Democratic party in this county. This statement has been denied by the prime movers in the matter and as proof of their assertion that party politics have nothing to do with it, a copy of the petition has been exhibited upon which the names of both Democrats and Republicans appear.

The petitions and charges filed with the Governor, a copy of which has been handed us for publication, are as follows:

To His Excellency, The Governor of Maryland:

The undersigned citizens and taxpayers of Garrett county respectfully represent to your Excellency that the County School Board of Garrett county is inefficient, neglectful of its duties and has permitted all those duties which it is required by law to perform, in connection with the system of public educations in Garrett county, to pass into the hands of Edward A. Browning, their Superintendent, to such an extent that he is recogniged in the public mind as School Superintendent, treasurer, secretary of the school board and the school board itself; that they excercise no restraint whatever over him; that they permit him to do as he pleases; and that the public have no protection whatever from his arbitrary power, and that such a condition of affairs has existed for so long that the public is fast losing interest in educational matters and the general unrest in the community is of such character that we feel called upon to protest against its further continuance and to ask your Excellency to investigate the condition of things in our county and especially to require Charles A. Deffinbaugh to show cause why he should not be removed from his office for neglect of duty.

Like petitions have also been filed with the governor for the removed of the other members of the board, Messrs. Ellithorp and Yost.

To the Honorable, The State Board of Education:

The undersigned citizens and tax payers of Garrett county, in this State, respectfully represent to your Honorable Body, that the present County Superintendent of Schools for Garrett County, Mr. Edward A. Browning, is inefficient and incompetent for the discharge of the duties of the said office, and has been guilty of such dereliction of duty to the interest of the public schools of said county as to unfit him for the office he holds, and to bring the school system into public disgrace and scandal, and they respectfully petition your honorable body to cause said Edward A. Browning to be served with a copy of the accompanying charges and specifications, and required to answer same, and show cause, if any he has by some day to be therein named, why he should not be removed from his said office.

We charge Edward A. Browning, Superintendent of Public Schools of Garrett County, in manner following, to-wit:

Charge 1. With failure to obey the provisions of Section 72, Article 77 of the Code, entitled "Public Education," requiring him to visit at least twice in each year the schools in his county.

SPECIFICATIONS.

This fact will be shown by an examination of the State School Reports.

Charge 2. With violating Section 70 of said Article 77 in reference to certificates of exsmination of teachers.

SPECIFICATIONS.

1. With issuing a certificate to a female, Eleanor Hennon of Frostburg, Maryland, who was at the time under eighteen years of age and whose age it was his duty to know.

2. With issuing a certificate to a male Elmer Broadwater, of Bond, Maryland, who was at the time under the age of nineteen years, and whose age it was his duty to know.

Charge 3. With failure to carry out the provisions of Sections 68 and 69 of said Article in the selection of teachers.

SPECIFICATIONS.

With holding an examination of teachers for certificates at Oakland in June, 1910, at which neither a Commissioner or School Trustee was present.

Charge 4. With failure to carry out the duties prescribed in Section 75 of said Article, whereby the schools have become a public scandal, in consequence of which many competent teachers have quit teaching, that others have left the County on account of the hostility of the Superintendent, and with so neglecting his duty as to leave some of the schools in the County without teachers.

Charge 5. With unjust and unfair treatment of the teachers in cutting down some of their salaries and raising the salaries of others, without any authority whatever and with usurping the powers of the County School Board in those particulars, thereby constituting himself the judge of matters entireiy beyond his statutory power aud authority.

SPECIFICATIONS.

1. With reducing the salary of H. W. Browning, teacher, without the authority of the School Board, and without legal authority.

2. With reducing the salary of Miss Mabel Porter without the authority of the School Board, and without legal authority.

Charge 6. With using his influence with the County School Board in making their contracts for school buildings, and the expenditure of money in making repairs against the public interest.

SPECIFICATIONS.

1. With causing the contract for the erection of the White Rock Run School house to be given to N. C. Browning his brother at a price of $45.00 in excess of the bid of an equally competent and responsible party, J. Harrison Sines.

2. With causing the contract for the erection of the Aaron's Run School House to be given to his brother N. C. Browning without taking the proper legal steps to protect the furnishers of supplies and materials, whereby one of citizens P. S. Fazenbaker who furnished the lumber therefor, is unable to collect for the same and has not been paid therefor.

3. With allowing the contractor in both of the above cases to erect buildings greatly inferior to the specifications, and at a price in excess of their real value, and in excess of bids offered by reliable citizens of the County.

Charge 7. With using the power of his office to gratify his personal spite against certain teachers who had become obnoxious to him for personal reasons.

Charge 8. With violating Article V, Paragraph 15 of the By-laws of The State Board of Education, which have under the law full force and impart of statute law.

SPECIFICATIONS.

No examination has been held in January in any of the schools of the County in any one of the ten years of his term of office. Neither has there been any examinations held in any school of the County at the close of the school in accordance with said article.

Charge 9. With so influencing the School Board that scholarships are not granted in accordance with Article 77, Section 177.

SPECIFICATION.

That the scholarship at the Western Maryland College in 1910 was issued to Miss Keller of Grantsville, a grade pupil over Miss Ashby of Oakland, a teacher and a graduate of the Oakland High School

Garrett Lands for Sugar Beet Culture.

"Observer," of Shenandoah Junction, Va., writing to the Baltimore Sun, says:

I notice from a number of tests made in sugar beet culture that there is now absolutely no doubt about the sugar contained in the beets raised in Western Maryland and in the eastern panhandle of West Virginia, and in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

The tests have been continued now for several years and show a sugar content of over 20 per cent. in some cases. This, too, without expert and proper attention. This means that in a ton of raw beets there are 400 pounds of sugar of the standard purity, and as the average price is 5 cents a pound, making a ton of beets worth $200 for sugar and the beet pulp after sugar is extracted is worth considerable to farmers, besides the fertility remaining in the soil from the little rootlets and beet tops.

It is no unusual occurrence to raise as many as 35 tons of sugar beets to the acre, which at 20 per cent. basis will yield $700 worth of sugar at a cost of about 10 days' labor for a man, boy and horse. I should think farmers would certainly be willing to contract to supply a sugar factory for a number of years.

The farmers in the West estimate the pulp, top and fertility left in soil will pay them for their work and what they receive for their beets will be clear profit. Anyone desiring any absolutely reliable information about the beet culture can obtain same by writing to the Agricultural Department, Washington. It has the record of the tests made with beets raised in Jefferson county, West Virginia, and Garrett county, Maryland, Clark county, Virginia, and other points in Virginia.

THE OLD NATIONAL ROAD IN GARRETT TO BE IMPROVED

Five Miles of the Highway May be Rebuilt this Summer.

The people of that section of Garrett county bordering on and near the old National Pike between Frostburg and Grantsville have at last some grounds for believing that the Good Roads Commission intend to carry out their promise made about three years ago to put this historic road in a better condition.

The Roads Commission publicly announced three years ago that they intended to make of that part of the National Pike running through Maryland a great state highway. This annoucement met with the approval of everyone who was familar with the importance of this pike and knew of the immense amount of travel that is daily done over it. The people of Grantsville and other farmers of Garrett county, who suffer financial loss and oftentimes physical pain in traveling over this road which is almost as rough as a creek bottom, naturally were in sympathy with the announcement of the Good Roads Commission and of course assumed that they were serious in their intention when they made.

In the three years that have elapsed since the promise was made, the Good Roads Commission has changed its attitude toward the National Pike and notwithstanding that its condition is known to the commission, that the people have persistently appealed for its improvement, that the Governor, in a speech in Frostburg after being taken over the road and made acquainted with its condition, promised to aid in having immediate attention given to it the National pike between Frostburg and Grantsville for some unknown reason with the exception of one mile rebuilt last season in Allegany county, remains untouched and in such a condition that automobile travel over it is almost impossible and teaming is dangerous and difficult in numerous places.

That the commission has at last determined to do something for that section of Garrett county traversed by the National Pike became known several weeks ago when Chairman Tucker of the Good Roads Commission assured the secretary of the Frostburg Board of Trade that plans were almost completed for the building of a 5 mile stretch beginning at the end of the stretch built last year and running 5 miles west over Big Savage mountain and stated that bids would be asked for as soon as the plans were finished.

Acting on this assurance with a view towards faciliating the starting of this work, some public spirited citizens of Frostburg invited J. E. Francis of Pennsylvania to make a preliminary inspection of the road. Mr. Francis, who is a road contractor and builder with a good record and who possesses the equipment to do the work quickly and satisfactorily, made an inspection of the road last week and is ready to submit a bid as soon as the Good Roads Commission presents the plans and specifications.

Rich & Jeffries and Meyers & Crump, two local firms are also ready to submit bids. It is plain therefore if the commission acts promptly that this work can be started as soon as the weather breaks and very probably completed this year.

SEVERAL DWELLINGS ENTERED

In Oakland By Burglars Last Saturday Night.

Burglars or near-burglars descended upon Oakland last Saturday night when they entered a number of homes, securing so far as has been reported money amounting to about eighteen dollars at the home of J. M. Stanton, located opposite the old courthouse. The sum was lying on a desk in the lower portion of the house and beside it was jewelry valued at $80 and a B. & O. mileage book, which was left untouched. Entrance was gained through a window which was jimmied open and the exit of the visitor was made in the manner.

Other houses entered by the unwelcome guest were thvse of Mr. E. Z. Tower, Mr. Fred T. Martin, Rev. W. D. Reed and Mr. Joseph P. Helbig where nothing was disturbed as far as known.

WILFONG RIFLED LETTER

Intrusted to Him and He is Now in the Oakland Jail.

John Wilfong who was recently discharged from the Henry Watson Home in Baltimore where he was cared for for a number of years and returned to Garrett county, his former home, is in the Garrett county jail in Oakland, charged with rifling a letter of $18 which was given him by Dr. J. W. Laughlin at Deer Park with instructions to have it registered in the postoffice at that place and forwarded.

Wilfong worked for Dr. Laughlin until Monday when he committed the offense, the discovery being made that the letter had been tampered with by Postmaster Thrasher when Wilfong presented it for the purpose of registration. An examination was made and it was discovered that $18 had been taken from the envelope by Wilfong and he was arrested. He later confessed to the crime and returned the money to the owner. Wilfong will remain in jail until his case is disposed of by the grand jury in June.

The officers of the State Horticultural Department desire to inspect all nursery stock shipped into the State this fall and next spring. All persons receiving nursery stock from out-state nurseries are requested to notify the State Entomologist, College Park, Maryland. 3t

Garthright & Harvey

This space belongs to Garthright & Harvey

General Merchants,

Mt. Lake Park, Md.

Watch It Next Week

Garthright & Harvey

DIXON & KELSO

DIXON & KELSO offer

Feed and Grain

at the following CASH prices:

Shelled Corn per bushel,	$	.62½
Ear " "		.65
Oats per bushel, -		42½
Unbolted Meal per hundred,		1.25
Cracked Corn "		1.25
Homeground C. & O. Chop,		1.30
Corn, Oats and Barley "		1.30
Wheat Bran, - -		1.35
Low Grade Flour, hundred,		1.75
White Middlings, "		1.50
140 lb. Sack Salt, -		.50

Can handle 10-foot Mine Props and all kinds of TIES.

Will pay 75c cash for good, clean Buckwheat.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Reckless automobile driving is to be eliminated.

And now will not the Pullman company reduce the porter's tips?

Don't mind the pessimistic weather prophet's prediction of a long winter.

Flat-wheeled trolley cars and all auto horns are to be regulated in New York.

The center of population, unlike most of the sons of Indiana, remains in that state.

The United States army wants aeroplanes. They will probably be manned by the flying divisions.

Winter may be trying to keep it up until March. It began early and it has been cold throughout.

Siam is to have an aviation week, and so the march of up-to-date civilization goes—or rather flies—merrily on.

The new census of Berlin and its suburbs shows a population of 3,400,000. It is camping on New York's trail.

Overstudy killed a promising youth in Baltimore, but there is no danger of this malady ever becoming an epidemic.

A German has invented a noiseless telephone booth. A noiseless telephone party line would be a greater blessing.

The agitation to make the upper berth lower continues; but no matter at what figure they fix the price it will still be high.

A St. Louis man made his wife cut his hair. Barbering, however, will never be included in any domestic science course.

There is a woman wireless operator. The old saw must be amended to read: "What man has done, a woman can and will do."

Fashionable women in the national capital climb the Washington monument to reduce their flesh. Thus does the uplift reach society.

A St. Louis woman, asked why she shot her husband, said she did it "just for fun." And yet they say women have no sense of humor.

A woman of ninety-one in Massachusetts wants to go up in a balloon. Another example of how people are as young in these times as they want to be.

An eastern man says he will soon put lobsters on the market at three cents each. If he'd only turn his attention to bacon what a gay world this would become.

Now we understand why certain things are as they are. During the present year the people of New York have eaten three million pounds of bad eggs in their pastry.

Philadelphia society women protest against posing in bare feet on the plea that their underpinning is too unsightly to be exposed, unadorned, to the vulgar gaze. Thus are the women of Chicago deprived of their birthright.

A man in New Jersey wrote a rebuke to the kaiser for riding a horse with a docked tail. It is not feared that international complications will result, or that a German phantom fleet will bombard our defenseless seacoast ports.

A fashionable New York hotel now permits women to smoke in its dining rooms, corridors, or any other old place. If this smoking stunt keeps on growing among the fair sex we may soon be confronted with divorce suits over the custody of the "makin's."

Two men propose to journey around the globe on stilts. It is not clear why they should be permitted to do so, as necessarily they would have to traverse territory where more or less prejudice against vagrant tramps has found expression in statutory restraints, and even in rock piles.

Frequent seismic manifestations of late had prepared the world for news of some such upheaval as that which is reported off the coast of Salvador, accompanied by the sinking of a small island. This has involved a lamentable loss of life, and illustrates anew the peril of making homes in the earthquake-ridden sections of the earth, for several similar catastrophes have occurred in that quarter.

A schoolgirl in Indiana has fallen heir to $30,000,000. This news will probably have an agitating influence in European titled impecunious circles.

In Colorado they propose a law making it an offense for doctors to cut out patients' appendices unless it is necessary. The enactment of such a statute would enable us to foresee the time when professional ethics would require every doctor to testify that all his brother practitioners' appendix-pruning was positively required.

The World's Wonders

STRANGE THINGS FOUND IN VARIOUS PORTIONS OF THE EARTH

Famous Fetishes of Africa

The two curious African idols of brass pictured herewith are of great antiquity and of mysterious history. From time to time the quaint gods are the object of sacrifices, when a black cow or an extra fine sheep is offered, and the Nigerian Nupes greatly rejoice and usually drink too much of the home-brewed beer on these occasions. The smaller figure is dressed in a hunter's gown, of a kind still worn. Round the ankles and neck are circlets denoting high rank. The missing hands evidently held a bow and arrow. The larger figure was once stolen and taken to England, but was soon returned to Nigeria. The man is Ndisha, the present chief of Jebba and custodian of the fetishes.

COCKATOO A TRICK CYCLIST

Birds, as a general rule, do not go in for cycling. They prefer aviation to land machines, and man has still much to learn from them before the problem of soaring and sailing through cross currents of air may be said to have been conclusively solved. But here is a cockatoo earning its own living by riding a bicycle on the vaudeville stage in Berlin. The accompanying illustration from an actual photograph, gives some idea of the kind of feats this bird performs. At balancing the bicycle on two inverted goblets and at riding on one wheel the cockatoo is an adept. It uses its wings to keep its balance when things look wobbly and it knows how to pedal backward or forward.

FRENCH BACHELORS PRODDED

The bachelors of Mende, in the department of Lozere, France, have all received by post the following curious communication from the Anti-Depopulation league: "Appeal to bachelors. On essentially humanitarian and patriotic motives, we beg to enclose a list of all the young girls in Mende aged 18 and upwards." Then follows 200 names and addresses. A postscript adds that the committee has the names of 27 more girls, who, however, asked that their names should not be published.

STEEPLEJACK'S CLOSE CALL.

While repairing the top of a lofty chimney at Silebey, Leichestershire, England, J. T. Akiens, son of a well-known steeplejack of Leicester and St. Helens, fell to the ground, 80 feet below, turning several somersaults in the descent and finally alighting on his feet. Horrified spectators expected instantaneous death, but wonderful to relate, Akiens escaped with a dislocated shoulder and many bruises.

DOCUMENT BY LUTHER FOUND

While repairing the weathercock of the town church, Schlosskirche, at Wittenberg, recently, the workmen found under the cross a metal ball which would open. On examination it was found to contain two documents. One dated 1530 is written by Martin Luther. This consists of four pages, of which three are written by the hand of the great reformer, the fourth bearing an attestation to the fact that Luther had written the document himself. The second document, dated 1556, also of four pages, is written by Philip Melanchthon, the friend and disciple of Luther, the handwriting bearing the characteristics of the "Confession of Augsbourg." Both these manuscripts will shortly be published. Both Luther and Melanchthon are buried in the church.

LONG JOURNEY ON ONE PONY

A journey of 2,419 miles on an Arab pony has just been accomplished by J. H. Bill, a British consul in southern Persia, who has reached his home in Staffordshire, England, on the back of this plucky little animal. He told a newspaper representative that he believed it constituted a record for one animal. The early stages of the journey were the worst, for the pony had to tackle hilly and broken country, and he was unable to average more than 20 miles a day. One incident of the journey was an attack by brigands.

KWANG HSU'S MAUSOLEUM

After searching the forests of the eastern hemisphere for the most durable, best and most beautiful wood, and after a great deal of competition among producers and dealers, the imperial princes of the Chinese empire have fixed upon a species with which will be constructed a magnificent mausoleum to mark the final resting place of the late "Son of Heaven"—the Chinese emperor, Kwang Hsu. It was discovered in the Philippine islands, and is an exceedingly hard, fine-grained, heavy and handsome wood. A Manila lumber company has secured the contract, which is describes as "the richest commercial prize of recent years in China," but the price, although very large, is not given. The preliminary contract, signed by two of the imperial princes, calls for a first shipment of 50,000 feet of the wood. On its arrival at Pekin work will begin forthwith on the great sepulchral tomb, which will be placed among those of the Ming dynasty, near the capital. For the huge pillars of the mausoleum giant trees will be taken from the Mindanao forests. Some of them, already cut, are 60 feet high and four feet in diameter, and weigh over 17 tons each.

SAILORS SAVED BY MUSIC.

Nine sailors who arrived at New York brought news of the loss of the Norwegian barque Pallas, at Grand Cayman, an island in the Carribean sea, to the northwest of Jamaica. The bark was driven ashore during a hurricane, which moderated the same night. Two of the crew, with violin and accordeon, played until dawn, to keep up the spirits of their companions. At daybreak a number of rowboats, manned by natives, put off from the shore and rescued the crew, their attention having been attracted through the night by the sound of music. The violin and accordeon were among the few things saved from the wreck.

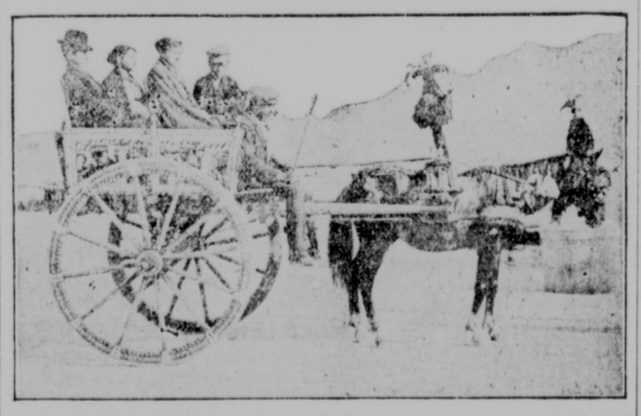
MARCO POLO AMONG THE GODS

Among the five hundred or more deities in Canton, China, is the figure of a European pictured above. It is hundreds of years old and there is an ancient Chinese tradition to the effect that it represents Marco Polo, the famous Italian who was a pioneer tourist in the Orient and wrote a wonderful account of his travels and adventures.

ORDEAL OF WARSHIP'S CAT

On the sails of the British special service vessel Undine, the flagship of Admiral Chief of the Nore, being unfurled recently at Chatham, the ship's cat rolled out on deck. She had been enshrouded in the sails 15 days, and strange to say had escaped starvation and suffocation. She was very emaciated, but was soon again quite lively after a few hearty meals.

"Joy Riding" In Sicily



The natives of the island of Sicily do their "joy riding" in carts instead of automobiles. Instead of spending their money for fine clothes and jewelry they use it for the decoration of their carts, of which they are very proud. The vehicles are elaborately inlaid with pearl, the harness is fancy and the ponies are most extravagantly decorated.

Temperance

NEW CURE FOR ALCOHOLISM

Surgeon of San Antonio, Texas, Removes Part of Stomach—Called Gastro-Jejunostomy.

One of the most recent contributions to medical literature deals with an original method of treating chronic alcoholism. The writer, Dr. J. W. Kenney of San Antonio, Tex., declares that the only means of curing alcoholics is by surgery. In proof of his contention he cites a series of cases so treated by him, asserting that in a majority of them a cure was effected. His article, entitled "The Alcoholic Case and a Surgical Operation for the Cure of Chronic Alcoholism," appears in the current issue of the Texas Medical Journal.

Doctor Kenney's method is to make an artificial opening in the stomach loop up the jejunum (a part of the intestine), make an artificial opening in the jejunum, and unite the two artificial openings. The operation is called gastro-jejunostomy. Here are Doctor Kenney's reasons for resorting to this operation:

"1. Because medical treatment fails in a majority if not all cases, and must necessarily continue to fail because it does not remove the cause of the gnawing or craving for alcohol.

"2. Because the pathological condition caused by alcohol is almost identical with pathological conditions produced by other causes which are relieved by surgical treatment.

"The drunkard in giving a history of his case usually points to his stomach as the cause of his drinking. Very few claim that the taste for liquor has anything to do with it. In the stomach will also be found the first evidence that the physical basis of life—protoplasm—has been injured and the physical structure of that organ is the first to present pathological conditions.

"It has been proved that alcohol stimulates the action of the senses and organs of the body for a short time. This supranormal condition is quickly followed by the infra-normal, which indicates a partial paralysis of the nerve ends, and eventually of the nerve centers.

"Continued repetition of this process results in hardening and partial paralysis of the muscular coat of the stomach, and an inflamed or ulcerated condition of the mucous coat. Such a condition produces a vitiated appetite and impairs the action of the stomach, which is the most important of the digestive processes. To relieve this condition, when produced by any agent other than alcohol, surgical measures are demanded. Why not apply the same principle in the alcoholic case?

"Reasoning along this line convinced me that all hope of curing a case of chronic alcoholism lay in a surgical direction, and I resolved to try the operation that I had in mind upon the first case that would grant me the privilege. An ideal case soon presented itself—a young man of high degree, who had descended to the lowest depths of saloondom, and had floundered about in it for several years, presented himself with the request that I do something for him.

"After a two weeks' preparatory treatment, a posterier gastro-jejunostomy by simple suture was performed upon him. He left the hospital thirty days later. This patient was about thirty-five years old, and had been drinking for about ten years. During the last three years business had so interfered with his drinking that he quit business and drank day and night, consuming from one to two quarts of whisky during the twenty-four hours. He was one of the best-known drunkards in the city, and no one could remember having seen him sober during the three years preceding this operation, and he was looked upon as past redemption and absolutely valueless, from a business standpoint. Today he is assistant manager of a large mercantile establishment in this city and a sober, respected citizen.

"Case No. 2 is that of a young dentist about thirty years of age. He stated that for several years he had consumed all the liquor he could get during the day and took a bottle to bed with him at night. His constant drinking had made a veritable neurasthenic of him. He consulted me regarding the operation, and was advised to have it performed.

"He finally came to the sanatorium and had the operation performed. From a vagabond dentist, hounded by dozens of people whose money he had taken during half-sober intervals as advance payments on work which he was never able to perform, he is now, and has been ever since the operation, a sober man, and no one hesitates to trust him with his work.

"Case No. 3 is that of a traveling man about thirty-five years of age. He had been drinking at irregular intervals for a number of years. The intervals had gradually grown closer together until life became just one long drunk. He entered the sanatorium and had the same operation performed.

"It is not my purpose to advocate so grave a surgical procedure in all cases of chronic alcoholism, but only in those apparently hopeless cases where everything else has failed, and the patient is still in fair mental and physical condition and wants to be cured. The result at my hands has thus far exceeded expectations."

PRECAUTIONS.

"I mustn't color my lips tonight, for I'm sure to sit out half a dozen dances with Charlie, and he's such a boy for kissing."

STUBBORN ECZEMA ON HANDS

"Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications and by bandaging my hands well up that the burning sensations were disappearing, I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap for a wash for them, and I think by using the Soap and Ointment I was much benefited. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, I thought it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone.

"It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me and I will give them the name of my physician, also the hospital I was treated at." (Signed) Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, Que., Sept. 14, 1910.

Funds to Fight Tuberculosis.

Based on reports from all parts of the United States the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has issued a statement which shows that in 1910 nearly $15,000,000 was spent in the fight against tuberculosis, as opposed to $8,000,000 spent in 1909. The largest item of expense in 1910 was for treatment in sanatoria and hospitals, $11,376,500 being expended for that purpose, or more than double the amount for 1909. The anti-tuberculosis associations spent $760,500, and the tuberculosis dispensaries $889,000. The special municipal and state expenditures aggregate $1,750,000.

The statement declares that the most significant fact in the survey of the year's work is the increase in the percentage of public money spent. While in 1909 53.5 per cent. of the total expenditure was from federal, state, municipal or county funds, 62.6 per cent. came from public appropriations in 1910. The actual amount of public money spent in tuberculosis work this past year was $9,267,900, or more than double the amount from this same source in 1909. This fact indicates, the national association declares, that anti-tuberculosis associations are gaining ground, by securing increased appropriations from public money.

Feminine Financiering.

He—I've won our bet on the football game and you owe me ten kisses.

She (a commercial school graduate)—Very well, I'll give you a draft on mamma.

For Breakfast

? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

The Happy Reply—

Post Toasties

A crisp, dainty food that pleases young and old.

Wholesome
Economical
Convenient

Serve with cream or milk (hot or cold).

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR OF THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS By M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by DODD - MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Simon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. Together they go to the Carter farm for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Alison's peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley, unnoticed, puts it in his pocket. He returns home and learns from his landlady of strange happenings.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

"Is she talking still? or again?" he asked, just before the door closed. There was a second's indecision with the knob, then, judging discretion the better part, Mrs. Klopton went away.

"Now, then," McKnight said, settling himself in a chair beside the bed, "spit it out. Not the wreck—I know all I want about that. But the theft. I can tell you beforehand that it was a woman."

I had crawled painfully out of bed, and was in the act of pouring the egg-nog down the pipe of the washstand. I paused, with the glass in the air.

"A woman!" I repeated, startled. "What makes you think that?"

"You don't know the first principles of a good detective yarn," he said scornfully. "Of course, it was the woman in the empty house next door. You said it was brass pipes, you will remember. Well—on with the dance; let joy be unconfined."

So—I told the story; I had told it so many times that day that I did it automatically. And I told about the girl with the bronze hair, and my suspicions. But I did not mention Alison West. McKnight listened to the end without interruption. When I had finished he drew a long breath.

"Well!" he said. "That's something of a mess, isn't it? If you can only prove your mild and childlike disposition, they couldn't hold you for the murder—which is a regular ten-twenty-thirt crime, anyhow. But the notes—that's different. They are not burned, anyhow. Your man wasn't on the train—therefore, he wasn't in the wreck. If he didn't know what he was taking, as you seem to think, he probably reads the papers, and unless he is a fathead, he's awake by this time to what he's got. He'll try to sell them to Bronson, probably."

"Or to us," I put in.

We said nothing for a few minutes. McKnight smoked a cigarette and stared at a photograph of Candida over the mantel. Candida is the best pony for a heavy mount in seven states.

"I didn't go to Richmond," he observed finally. The remark followed my own thoughts so closely that I started. "Miss West is not home yet from Seal Harbor."

Receiving no response, he lapsed again into thoughtful silence. Mrs. Klopton came in just as the clock struck one, and made preparation for the night by putting a large gaudy comfortable into an arm chair in the dressing room, with a smaller, stiff-backed chair for her feet. She was wonderfully attired in a dressing gown that was reminiscent, in parts, of all the ones she had given me for a half dozen Christmases, and she had a purple veil wrapped around her head, to hide heaven knows what deficiency. She examined the empty egg-nog glass, inquired what the evening paper had said about the weather, and then stalked into the dressing room, and preparmed, with much ostentatious creaking, to sit up all night.

We fell silent again, while McKnight traced a rough outline of the berths on the white tablecover, and puzzled it out slowly. It was something like this:

12	10 *	8
AISLE
11	9	7

"You think he changed the tags on seven and nine, so that when you went back to bed you thought you were crawling into nine, when it was really seven, eh?"

"Probably—yes."

"Then toward morning, when everybody was asleep, your theory is that he changed the numbers again and left the train."

"I can't think of any thing else," I replied wearily.

"Jove, what a game of bridge that fellow would play! It was like finessing an eight-spot and winning out. They would scarcely have doubted you had the tags been reversed in the morning. He certainly left you in a bad way. Not a jury in the country would stand out against the stains, the stiletto, and the murdered man's pocket-book in your possession."

"Then you think Sullivan did it?" I asked.

"Of course," said McKnight confidently. "Unless you did it in your sleep. Look at the stains on his pillow, and the dirk stuck into it. And didn't he have the man Harrington's pocket-book?"

"But why did he go off without the money?" I persisted. "And where does the bronze-haired girl come in?"

"Search me," McKnight retorted flippantly. "Inflammation of the imagination on your part."

"Then there is the piece of telegram. It said lower ten, car seven. It's extremely likely that she had it. That telegram was about me, Richey."

"I'm getting a headache," he said, putting out his cigarette against the sole of his shoe. "All I'm certain of just now is that if there hadn't been a wreck, by this time you'd be sitting in an eight by ten cell, and feeling like the rhyme for it."

"But listen to this," I contended, as he picked up his hat, "this fellow Sullivan is a fugitive, and he's a lot more likely to make advances to Bronson than to us. We could have the case continued, release Bronson on bail and set a watch on him."

'Not my watch," McKnight protested. "It's a family heirloom."

"You'd better go home," I said firmly. "Go home and go to bed. You're sleepy. You can have Sullivan's red necktie to dream over if you think it will help any."

Mrs. Klopton's voice came drowsily from the next room, punctuated by a yawn. "Oh, I forgot to tell you," she called, with the suspicious lisp which characterizes her at night, "somebody called up about noon, Mr. Lawrence. It was long distance, and he said he would call again. The name was"—she yawned—"Sullivan."

CHAPTER XII.

The Gold Bag.

I have always smiled at those cases of spontaneous combustion which, like fusing the component parts of a seidlitz powder, unite two people in a bubbling ephermeral ecstasy. But surely surely there is possible, with but a single meeting, an attraction so great, a community of mind and interest so strong, that between that first meeting and the next the bond may grow into something stronger. This is especially true, I fancy, of people with temperament, the modern substitute for imagination. It is a nice question whether lovers begin to love when they are together, or when they are apart.

Not that I followed any such line of reasoning at the time. I would not even admit my folly to myself. But during the restless hours of that first night after the accident, when my back ached with lying on it, and any other position was torture, I found my thoughts constantly going back to Alison West. I dropped into a doze, to dream of touching her fingers again to comfort her, and awoke to find I had patted a teaspoonful of medicine out of Mrs. Klopton's indignant hand. What was it McKnight had said about making an egregious ass of myself?

And that brought me back to Richey, and I fancy I groaned. There is no use expatiating on the friendship between two men who have gone together through college, have quarreled and made it up, fussed together over politics and debated creeds for years; men don't need to be told, and women cannot understand. Nevertheless, I groaned. If it had been any one but Rich!

Some things were mine, however, and I would hold them: The halcyon breakfast, the queer hat, the pebble in her small shoe, the gold bag with the broken chain—the bag! Why, it was in my pocket at that moment.

I got up painfully and found my coat. Yes, there was the purse, bulging with an opulent suggestion of wealth inside. I went back to bed again, somewhat dizzy, between effort and the touch of the trinket, so lately hers. I held it up by its broken chain and gloated over it. By careful attention to orders, I ought to be out in a day or so. Then—I could return it to her. I really ought to do that; it was valuable, and I wouldn't care to trust it to the mail. I could run down to Richmond, and see her once—there was no disloyalty to Rich in that.

I had no intention of opening the little bag. I put it under my pillow—which was my reason for refusing to have the linen slips changed, to Mrs. Klopton's dismay. And sometimes during the morning, while I lay under a virgin field of white, ornamented with strange flowers, my cigarettes hidden beyond discovery, and Science and Health on a table by my elbow, as if by the merest accident, I slip my hand under my pillow and touch it reverently.

McKnight came in about 11. I heard his car at the curb, followed almost immediately by his slam at the front door, and his usual clamor on the stairs. He had a bottle under his arm, rightly surmising that I had been forbidden stimulant, and a large box of cigarettes in his pocket, suspecting my deprivation.

"Well," he said cheerfully. "How did you sleep after keeping me up half the night?"

I slipped my hand around; the purse was well covered.

"Have it now, or wait till I get the cork out?" he rattled on.

"I don't want anything," I protested. "I wish you wouldn't be so darned cheerful, Richey." He stopped whittling to stare at me.

"'I am saddest when I sing!'" he quoted unctuously. "It's pure reaction, Lollie. Yesterday the sky was low; I was digging for my best friend. To-day—he lies before me, his peevish self. Yesterday I thought the notes were burned; to-day—I look forward to a good cross-country chase, and with luck we will draw." His voice changed suddenly. "Yesterday—she was in Seal Harbor. To-day—she is here."

"Here in Washington?" I asked, as naturally as I could.

"Yes. Going to stay a week or two."

"Oh, I had a little hen and she had a wooden leg
And nearly every morning she used to lay an egg—"

"Will you stop that racket, Rich! It's the real thing this time, I suppose?"

"Well," he said judicially, "since you drag it from me, I think perhaps it is. You—you're such a confirmed woman-hater that I hardly knew how you would take it."

"Nothing of the sort," I denied testily. "Because a man reaches the age of 30 without making maudlin love to every—"

"I've taken to long country rides," he went on reflectively, without listening to me, "and yesterday I ran over a sheep; nearly went into the ditch. But there's a Providence that watches over fools and lovers, and just now I know darned well that I'm one, and I have a sneaking idea I'm both."

"You are both," I said with disgust. "If you can be rational for one moment, I wish you would tell me why that man Sullivan called me over the telephone yesterday morning."

"Probably hadn't yet discovered the Bronson notes—providing you hold to your theory that the theft was incidental to the murder. May have wanted his own clothes again, or to thank you for yours. Search me; I can't think of anything else." The doctor came in just then.

"Pretty good shape," he said. "How did you sleep?"

"Oh, occasionally," I replied. "I would like to sit up, doctor."

"Nonsense. Take a rest while you have an excuse for it. I wish to thunder I could stay in bed for a day or so. I was up all night."

"Have a drink," McKnight said, pushing over the bottle.

"Twins!" The doctor grinned.

"Have two drinks."

But the medical man refused.

"I wouldn't even wear a champagne-colored necktie during business hours," he explained. "By the way, I had another case from your accident, Mr. Blakeley, last yesterday afternoon. Under the tongue, please." He stuck a thermometer in my mouth.

I had a sudden terrible vision of the amateur detective coming to light, note-book, cheerful impertinence and incriminating data. "A small man?" I demanded, "gray hair—"

"Keep your mouth closed," the doctor said peremptorily. "No. A woman, with a fractured skull. Beautiful case. Van Kirk was up to his eyes and sent for me. Hemorrhage, right-sided paralysis, irregular pupils—all the trimmings. Worked for two hours."

"Did she recover?" McKnight put in. He was examining the doctor with a new awe.

"She lifted her right arm before I left," the doctor finished cheerily, "so the operation was a success, even if she should die."

"Good heavens," McKnight broke in, "and I thought you were just an ordinary mortal, like the rest of us! Let me touch you for luck. Was she pretty?"

"Yes, and young. Had a wealth of bronze-colored hair. Upon my soul, I hated to cut it."

McKnight and I exchanged glances.

"Do you know her name, doctor?" I asked.

"No. The nurses said her clothes came from a Pittsburg tailor."

"She is not conscious, I suppose?"

"No; she may be to-morrow—or in a week."

He looked at the thermometer, murmured something about liquid diet, avoiding my eye—Mrs. Klopton was broiling a chop at the time—and took his departure, humming cheerfully as he went downstairs. McKnight looked after him wistfully.

"Jove, I wish I had his constitution," he exclaimed. "Neither nerves nor heart! What a chauffeur he would make!"

But I was serious.

"I have an idea," I said grimly, "that this small matter of the murder is going to come up again, and that your uncle will be in the deuce of a fix if it does. If that woman is going to die, somebody ought to be around to take her deposition. She knows a lot, if she didn't do it herself. I wish you would go down to the telephone and get the hospital. Find out her name, and if she is conscious."

McKnight went under protest. "I haven't much time," he said, looking at his watch. "I'm to meet Mrs. West and Alison at one. I want you to know them, Lollie. You would like the mother."

"Why not the daughter?" I inquired. I touched the little gold bag under the pillow.

"Well," he said judicially, "you've always declared against the immaturity and romantic nonsense of very young women—"

"I never said anything of the sort," I retorted furiously.

"'There is more satisfaction to be had out of a good saddle horse!'" he quoted me. "'More excitement out of a polo pony, and as for the eternal matrimonial chase, give me instead a good stubble, a fox, some decent dogs and a hunter, and I'll show you the real joys of the chase!'"

"For heaven's sake, go down to the telephone, you make my head ache," I said savagely.

I hardly know what prompted me to take out the gold purse and look at it. It was an imbecile thing to do—call it impulse, sentimentality, what you wish. I brought it out, one eye on the door, for Mrs. Klopton has a ready eye and a noiseless shoe. But the house was quiet. Downstairs McKnight was flirting with the telephone central and there was an odor of boneset tea in the air. I think Mrs. Klopton was fascinated out of her theories by the "boneset" in connection with the fractured arm.

Anyhow, I held up the bag and looked at it. It must have been unfastened, for the next instant there was an avalanche on the snowfield of the counterpane—some money, a wisp of a handkerchief, a tiny booklet with thin leaves, covered with a powdery substance—and a necklace. I drew myself up slowly and stared at the necklace.

It was one of the semi-barbaric affairs that women are wearing now, a heavy pendant of gold chains and carved cameos, swung from a thin neck chain of the same metal. The necklace was broken: In three places the links were pulled apart and the cameos swung loose and partly detached. But it was the supporting chain that held my eye and fascinated with its sinister suggestion. Three inches of it had been snapped off, and as well as I knew anything on earth, I knew that the bit of chain that the amateur detective had found, blood-stain and all, belonged just there.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

I Knew That Bit of Chain.

God's Covenant of the Law

By PASTOR RUSSELL
of Brooklyn Tabernacle

TEXT—The Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in, said Jehovah of Hosts; but who may abide by the day of his coming?—Malachi III, 1-5.

Six thousand years ago in Eden our Maker, in justly sentencing his disobedient children to death, intimated that ultimately the seed of the woman would bruise the serpent's head. This hidden promise was the first intimation of the divine mercy which our gracious Creator purposed in himself from before the foundation of the world. Ever noble, kind and gracious, our Creator restrained his mercy for the good of his creatures—that they might learn to appreciate the exceeding sinfulness of sin. For the good of the angels also, and that they might fully know of his justice, as well as of his wisdom and power, God insisted upon dealing with his creatures from the standpoint of exact justice. They had sinned and thereby had forfeited all claim upon the eternal life which he had given them conditionally.

Eternal torment, as we have already seen, did not in any sense or degree enter into the divine intention. His sentence upon man, plainly stated, was, "Dying thou shalt die," not, Living thou shalt live in torment. "The soul that sinneth it shall die" (Genesis ii, 17; Ezekiel xviii, 4). God intended to exemplify in his dealings with our race a principle of divine government to be made operative everywhere—ultimately among all his creatures on the spirit plane, as well as upon the earthly.

Israel's experiences of tribulation and bondage in Egypt were probably necessary to prepare them for God's great proposition—that they should keep the law and as a reward have life everlasting. As it is written, "He that doeth things shall live by them" (Leviticus xviii, 5). Israel greatly rejoiced in this manifestation of divine preference for them more than for all others of humanity. The law covenant was mediated. The sacrifice of bulls and of goats made a typical atonement for them for a year, so that they might enter into the covenant relationship with God. But when they attempted to keep the law they were disappointed. They failed. The law of God being the full measure of a perfect man's ability, and the Jews, like other men, being imperfect, found that they had undertaken an impossibility.

Not a Jew kept the law perfectly. Not a Jew, therefore, gained eternal life during the first year. But God, foreknowing this, had made preparation for a repetition of the atonement day every year, so that the people might continue striving to attain eternal life. Year after year, century after century, they failed, and discouragement took the place of hope. God was teaching them a great lesson respecting the need of better sacrifices than those of bulls and of goats, and also teaching them that there is no other means of justification in his sight. They got blessings under the covenant—educational blessings, but not the blessings hoped for, not life eternal. Hence they were not in a position to become, as they had hoped, a national Messiah, a national seed of Abraham, for the blessing of all the nations.

The first-begotten of the Father, as his glorious agent in the great work of creation, had the honor granted him of becoming the great messenger of the covenant, the great prophet, priest and king of Israel, the great Michael of Daniel xii, 1. But there were tests connected with his attainment of this high position: (1) By faith he must lay aside his heavenly glory, in obedience to the Father's will to become a man—not a sinful man, but a perfect man—holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners. (2) Thus prepared to become the Redeemer it was his privilege to make full consecration of his earthly interest and the Father's pleasure to beget him of the holy spirit at Jordan to the spirit nature on the highest plane. For three and a half years his sacrifice burned upon the altar. It was indeed better than the sacrifice of bulls and goats, for it was a corresponding price for Adam; an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth; a man's life for a man's life. (3) When Jesus had thus sacrificially parted with his earthly life he experienced a resurrection change from human nature to spiritual, like what he was originally, only higher and more glorious. Thus he was at once both a sacrifice and the spirit-begotten priest who offered that sacrifice.

Then why did he not at once begin his great work as prophet, priest, king and new covenant mediator for Israel and through Israel for the world? It was because there was to be more than one sacrifice in the divine plan on the day of atonement.

When this bride class shall have completed her sacrifice in and under the merit of the great priest, then every arrangement for the blessing of Israel as Abraham's seed and of all nations through Israel will have forthwith commenced. Thus seen the revelation of Israel's great messenger of the new covenant is very important not only to the Jew, but also to the world of mankind, who must receive their blessings under Israel by a compliance with the same new law covenant.

CONSTIPATION

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are, a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope, they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic. Price 25 cents.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre, 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (80)

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardener Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.)

Biliousness

"I have used your valuable Cascarets and I find them perfect. Couldn't do without them. I have used them for some time for indigestion and biliousness and am now completely cured. Recommend them to everyone. Once tried, you will never be without them in the family."—Edward A. Marx, Albany, N.Y.

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 929

TAKE A DOSE OF
PISO'S
THE BEST MEDICINE for COUGHS & COLDS

Due Precautions.

In a town in Georgia there was an old preacher whose knowledge of the world was not wide nor deep, but who conceived it to be a place where, if one should trust his fellow men, he should at the same time keep an eye on his own interests.

One hot day he pulled off his coat and preached a vigorous sermon, under the pines, in his shirt sleeves. At the close of the open-air service one of his admirers approached him and said, regretfully:

"I don't suppose that you knew that the editor of one of the big New York Sunday papers was here when you pulled off your coat."

"I reckon I knew it well, for I'd been told of it," said the preacher, calmly. "I don't believe he's as bad as he might be, and anyway, I put my coat on the chair close by and had it right under my eye all the time."—Youth's Companion.

Bo'sun and Sir John Fisher.

Admiral Potter told a new one on Sir John Fisher. When Sir John was at the head of the British admiralty he was most inaccessible. One day an old boatswain appeared. He would not take "no" for an answer. Finally a secretary went into Sir John's office, leaving the door ajar. He told the admiral that a sailor demanded an interview.

"Tell him to go to hell," roared Sir John.

"Aye, aye, sir," piped the boatswain, who stood in the doorway at a respectful salute; "I know I'll meet you there, sir, but I want to talk to you now, too."

OLD COMMON SENSE.
Change Food When You Feel Out of Sorts.

"A great deal depends upon yourself and the kind of food you eat," the wise old doctor said to a man who came to him sick with stomach trouble and sick headache once or twice a week, and who had been taking pills and different medicines for three or four years.

He was induced to stop eating any sort of fried food or meat for breakfast, and was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, leaving off all medicines.

In a few days he began to get better, and now he has entirely recovered and writes that he is in better health than he has been before in twenty years. The man is 58 years old and says he feels "like a new man all the time."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months.....75
One copy three months.....40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to
THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 1911.

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANISM.

One of the most important and striking actions of the country, recorded Tuesday, is the formation by progressive Republicans, of the National Republican Progressive League, at the head of which are noted members of Congress, many governors of states and prominent men in all walks of life. The league, it is stated, is not intended to further the ambitions of any man or any set of men but is organized with one genuine purpose—to unite for political reform. The object of the League in a nutshell is the promotion of popular government and progressive legislation. It advocates the election of senators by direct vote of the people; direct primaries for the nomination of all elective officials; amendments to state constitutions providing for the initiative, referendum and recall; a corrupt practices act; the direct election of delegates to national conventions, etc. The movement is, without doubt, the most advanced, the most striking and the most progressive one that has been made, headed as it is by such men of high character and prominence within several decades and if earnestly pushed, as it no doubt will be, will lead to results in connection with political reform and country-wide good government that is incalculable.

Much do we prate about politics. Greatly our standpatters, insurgents, conservatives, flat failures, tariff schedules, ex-presidential hippodromings, postal banks and malefactors of great wealth agitate the editorial mind. Loud has been our praise of this man or measure, ditto our denunciation of that other person or plan. Here, however, we have a project which can and will receive universal favor, so necessary is it to our political system and to the country at large. Here now is the beginning of a great change in thought.

The vote of last November ought to reveal to the men in charge of this Nation's affairs that by using their powers to prevent progressive action demanded by the public they are sitting on the safety valve—that an explosion is certain unless prompt and sweeping changes and concessions are made to the people. In the earlier stages of our democratic evolution it was believe that it was sufficient that the people should elect their officers; but years of painful and often shameful experience revealed that this was not enough. Government by party is a fixed American policy—parties represent schools of political thought and citizens hesitate to vote against candidates of their chosen parties, even when party management is faithless and corrupt, lest they do injury to favored principles. So gradually, our best minds came to realize this truth.

Popular nominations are absolutely necessary to the existence of popular government. It has been foolishly argued that nomination of state candidates by primary election is impracticable because of the great size of the vote. How childish this is, is shown by the fact that it is decided by popular vote every four years, for what candidates the states electural votes shall be cast. Let us nominate our state officers—and our United States senators—by popular vote.

The people have determined to run this nation. They will run it through one of the old parties, if they can; but they are going to run it—and the National Republican Progressive League suggests, by its policy, an adeqeate means. If the people are forced to choose between evils they will choose that which they believe to be the lesser—in this case a policy certainly meant to further their welfare. If the present leaders of the Nation are wise, they will not resist the people's will but obey it in such measures as will keep progress steady and within safe bounds. If they do this, and the people's will is in line with the policy laid down by the National Republican Progressive League, it will be found that they have here a leavening force of incalculable value.

Stork News.

The Stork again flew high over Oakland and settled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Mason at Meadow Mountain and left a little daughter on the 10th inst. Mr. Mason is all smiles over the presentation.

The bird also visited the home of Mr. J. M. Stanton on Tuesday when a son was left in the keeping of the happy parents.

FITZHUGH GOLDSBOROUGH SHOT HIMSELF IN NEWYORK

After Attempting the Assassination of David Graham Phillips.

A telegram dated at New York Monday says:

David Graham Phillips, author, and writer upon sociological problems, and shot down as he was on his way to the Princeton Club in East 21st street this afternoon by Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, a musician who had lived at the Rand School of Social Science, at No. 112 East 19th street.

After firing six bullets into the helpless author, Goldsborough turned his Colt magazine revolver upon himself and sent a bullet into his brain. Goldsborough fell dead to the sidewalk. Phillips was hurried into the Princeton Club and then to the Bellevue Hospital, where the surgeons said late tonight that he might recover as none of the six bullets had reached a vital spot.

The motive for the shooting of Phillips is only hinted at because of a remark Goldsborough made to Dr. George Maurer, who had treated the musician. When Goldsborough saw the physician three weeks ago he stated that there was an author who had written something that reflected upon his family in Washington. He made no mention of Phillips in connection with the author he then had in mind

Before he left his home at the National Art Club to go to the Princeton Club this afternoon shortly before the shooting, Phillips got a telegram signed with his own name, in which he was warned to look out for his life. It is supposed the telegram was sent by Goldsborough.

The shooting occurred at 1.45 o'clock this afternoon while the sidewalks were crowded with pedestrians. Phillips was two doors from the Princeton Club when Goldsborough, who was walking in the opposite direction, suddenly wheeled round and stopped. Before Phillips knew what was up, Goldsborough pulled the revolver from his hip pocket and began firing. Phillips staggered at the first two shots and felt for support on a railing. While the author was trying to hold himself up, Goldsborough pressed the revolver against Phillips and fired four more shots. As pedestrians went to his assistance, Goldsborough pointed the revolver at his own head and fired the shot that ended his own life. The wounded man was taken into the club house where an ambulance was summoned and he was immediately removed to the hospital.

The would-be assassin and suicide was the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund K. Goldsborouge of Washington, D. C., and Oakland. He was born here about thirty years ago and spent nearly every summer in Oakland at his parents' home on Oak street. His family have been prominently identified with Maryland history for many generations. As a young man Fitzhugh Goldsborough was looked upon as being somewhat peculiar. He was a finished musician and appeared before Oakland and Mountain Lake Park audiences quite frequently.

The winter home of the Goldsborough family is on K street in Washington, D. C., where the father of the young man said Monday night that he was at an utter loss to account for the action of his son.

PHILLIPS DEAD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—David Graham Phillips, the novelist who was shot down on Monday afternoon in this city by Fitzhugh C. Goldsborough, the crazed violinist, who afterwards killed himself, died at eleven o'clock tonight at Bellevue Hospital. Phillips sister and his brother, Harrison W. Phillips, were with him when he died.

NEW GERMANY.

We have shed oceans of tears because of having disturbed the peace of our estimable friend, the Hauser correspondent. It was a terrible mistake, but the mistake was not ours. Our predictions were for New Germany only, not for Hauser. Not being able to locate Hauser on the map we, of course, can make no predictions for that place. Understand?

As Rev. Morris was holding a revival at Jennings his appointments at this place and at Fairview Sunday were filled by H. A. Groves.

Miss Clara Kamp has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Samuel Otto, of this place.

Delbert Durst made a hurried trip to Cumberland Saturday night to meet his wife, who was returning from the University Hospital at Baltimore where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Hilda Keys was the guest of Margaret Smith Saturday.

Stephen Broadwater and family were entertained at the home of James T. Durst Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Robinson was called out to the home of Henry Broadwater Monday.

Clarence Frazee was a pleasant caller at C. J. Otto's Sunday.

Subscribe for The Republican.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The Limit of Patience Has Been Reached.

To the Editor of The Republican:

It seems to me that the limit of patience on the part of the respectable, law abiding citizens of Oakland, must about be reached in regard to the liquor traffic in our midst.

Oakland, if a halt is not called, will soon be known as the rendezvous of all the toughs, drunks and lawless in this section of the country. Hardly a day passes that numbers of this element are not seen reeling up and down our streets and the women and children of our once fair-famed town are subjected to all the indignities which go with such a condition.

Does the whiskey element own Oakland?

Is it necessary that we continue under the yoke placed upon us by the Legislature of three years ago, or will we break the bonds that now bind us?

The people have the power to free themselves and our town from this curse and let us begin the campaign now.

Turn down every man who aspires to represent us in the next Legislature who does not come out openly and above-board and state his position upon this question.

If a candidate is afraid to do this he is a coward to start with, and does not deserve the support of any decent, respectable citizen.

The people of Garrett county who are opposed to the liquor business outnumber those who favor it three to one, at least, and let them get together and put down this business that is bringing disgrace upon our town. DECENCY.

Oakland, Md., January 25, 1911.

The Late Rt. Rev. William Paret.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Last Wednesday, January, 18th, 1911, the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Maryland was bereft by death of its distinguished head. For more than a quarter of a century Bishop Paret has presided over the Maryland Diocese with marked ability and success.

In life's pilgrimage he had passed his eighty-fifth mile stone and, admonished by the burden of age and gathering infirmities, about two years ago he urged his people to elect a Coadjutor Bishop to bear with him the increasing labors and responsibilities of the Episcopate. In answer to this appeal the Rev. John Gardener Murray was chosen assistant Bishop, and, by reason of that election and this death, under the operstion of the Canonical law, Bishop Murray is advanced to the presiding place, thus becoming the 7th Bishop elevated over the Maryland See. The Diocese mourns the loss of a churchman of pronounced individuality, admirably equipped in lofty essentials to grapple with and discharge the exacting duties of the sacred office, and one commanding the admiration of his communion and the respect of all denominations.

His was a clear cut administration from its incipiency to its close, not only progressive but notable for its exemption from rancor, discord and disturbances.

Possibly an enlightened estimate may not range him with the eloquent prelates whose speech and grace of diction have lent luster and renown to this ancient faith, but as an executive in ecclesiastical government and a theologian of sound learning, vigorous and incisive, a high place is conceded to him in the house of American Bishops. His sermons at the desk and addresses from the chancel partook, perhaps, less of the finest rhetoric than of clear argument deduced from the best teachings of his church.

But viewed under any light of history his memory will be found deep in the affection of his people and his monument durable in the united church left by him founded upon that Rock to which the Master pointed His disciple.

RELLIM.

The Custer Fire Near Grantsville.

To the Editor of The Republican:

So many misstatements have been circulated about the recent Custer fire that perhaps something reliable might be in place.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Custer in a room adjoining the one in which Mr. Custer and three children slept. It is thought that the flue first caught fire and the fire fell into the room because of a loose fluestop. At any rate the fire had gained but little headway when discovered. When Mr. Custer dashed a bucket of water upon the fire it suddenly burst forth and in an instant the entire room was ablaze. This was probably caused by the lamp exploding. Practically every thing was destroyed. The house had been formerly insured but this had run out. Donations, subscriptions and gifts have been given aggregating more than $500. D.

Grantsville, Md., Jan 24, 1911.

Mrs. James W. Leathers, who has been in Parkereburg, West Va., for the past two weeks caring for the family of her brother, Mr. Isaac Shingleton, Baltimore and Ohio Baggeman, returned to her home in Oakland Tuesday night. Mr. Shingleton was taken ill while on his train at a point near Terra Alta and later sent to Mercy Hospital in Baltimore where he has been a patient ever since. His condition is very much improved at present.

FREE BIBLE LECTURE.

Under the Auspices of the International Bible Students Association.

"THE SCHOOL OF CHRIST."

What lessons must a Christian learn before he is ready to graduate?

Who are called?

Are the heathen eligible?

Is the Bible reasonable and true or are some portions of it now regarded as merely legendary?

What does the Bible say concerning itself?

Mr. M. A. Saphore, of New York, will endeavor to intelligently answer the above questions. He is not only a profound Bible student but is a most interesting and captivating speaker.

Everybody cordially invited to hear this wonderful lecture at the Opera House, Oakland, Md., Sunday, Jan. 29, at 3 o'clock p. m. Seats free. No collections.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address
DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Jumbo Farm Fencing.

Cheapest, strongest, most durable Fence ever offered.

Sold on a base of 3c. per pound, thus paying for values, not rod price.

Comes as cheap as barbed wire and is made throughout of No. 9 wire.

No stay wires lighter than the line wires.

A fence is like a chain: no stronger than its weakest link.

No wraps to get loose to hold moisture and cause rust.

No projections to injure stock or tear wool from sheep.

Stronger at the joints than any other fence.

Guaranteed to stand the full strength of wire at joints and not to separate.

Guaranteed that the wire is not injured at the joints.

Guaranteed adjustable to uneven ground.

Guaranteed to be made of open-hearth wire of uniform quality.

Guaranteed to be heavier galvanized. It is impossible to put as much zinc on a light guage wire as on a heavy wire.

No wire fence should ever be put on an American farm that has a wire in it lighter than No. 9.

Buy only open-hearth wire—best wire that can be produced for fencing.

Bessemere steel rusts quicker, is not uniform; is likely to have hard spots in it when drawn out into wire.

There is no question but that large wires in fencing will last longer and at 3c. a pound is the cheapest fence, because the cost per pound of fence made of large wires does not increase in the same proportion as the size of the wire. Use no fence with stay wires made of lighter wire than No. 9.

Samples of all No. 9 Jumbo Fences now on exhibition at our store. Call and examine size and style at a 3c. base.

In order to get full benefit of prices must have your order on or before March 1st, as the factory requires full specifications by that time for spring shipment.

Will also take orders for wire nails to be shipped in car with wire at $2 per keg base price; barbed wire, galvanized, $2.50 per hundred or 80 rod bundles; heavy weight, at $1.75; light weight, bundles, 80 rods, $1.65.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

NOTICE!
TO THE PUBLIC.

I have moved my
MEAT MARKET
INTO THE
Nally Building,
where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb,
Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am
Yours respectfully,
H. McC. SMOUSE.
The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

22222 The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County. 22222
Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS - $193,000

The First National Bank
Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:
L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:
L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank
Of Grantsville, Md.
Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department
Takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.
C. H. JENNINGS, - - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.
C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Order of Publication.

Saby J. Miller, vs. John Miller, No. 1718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married about the year 1890, and that they lived together as man and wife until about the 25th day of November, 1909, and as a result of said marriage five children were born unto them, three girls and two boys, the youngest of which is about ten years of age.

That since said marriage the plaintiff has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife.

The bill then charges that about the said 25th day of November, 1909, that the plaintiff discovered that the defendant was untrue to her, and was visiting and cohabiting with lewd and abandoned women, whose names are unknown to her; that on said 25th day of November, 1909, that the defendant returned home after being absent for ten days or more, and was then suffering from a loathsome disease as a result of cohabiting with lewd women as aforesaid, and after being convinced that such was the case she charged the defendant with said unfaithfulness, and after first denying it, he afterwards in the presence of witnesses admitted such to be a fact, and undertook to explain to the plaintiff the circumstances in excuse for his unfaithfulness.

The bill further charges that after discovering the defendant's unfaithfulness she never cohabited with him again, and later on they entered into a written agreement to live apart, and since said time they have never lived together.

The bill further states that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and prays for an order of publication against the defendant and for other and further relief.

It is thereupon this 18th day of January, 1911, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of February, 1911, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before 6th day of March next, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk. 4-4

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer of Garrett County.

The man Who Makes
A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College
COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.
Maryland's School of Technology
Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.
Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of instruction leading to professional degree of B. S. Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $99.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy
JOS. E. HARNED, Propr
Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.
G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.
S. T. JONES, Cashier.
G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt — Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis — George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell — William R. Stull
Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Mrs. Eva Mitchell is on a visit to friends in Cumberland and Lonaconing.

Mrs. John W. Davis spent several days recently at Terra Alta as a guest of relatives.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Mrs. Scott T. Jones returned home Monday from a few day's visit to friends and relatives in Kingwood, W. Va.

Messrs. S. Lawton & Sons offer a line of bargains this week in hardware. See advertisement in this issue for particulars.

Miss Bertie Cleveland has returned home from a visit of a week to her sister, Mrs. O. W. Hinebaugh, at Terra Alta.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

Mr. Harry Lowenstein, of Johnstown, Pa., arrived in Oakland Tuesday night to visit his mother and sister for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sincell went to Washington yesterday afternoon where they will visit relatives and friends a few days.

School Principal Sollars and primary teacher Miss Josephine Browning have both been ill this week suffering with attacks of the grip.

Misses Leah Bolden and Virginia King went to Elkins, W. Va., yestesday afternoon where they will be guests of friends a few days.

Messrs. S. A. Nally and S. F. Hamill are having a room prepared at Rowlesburg, W. Va., where they will open a picture show in a short time.

Mr. Jacob J. Bender, one of the prosperous residents of Grantsville, was in Oakland on business Monday, returning to his home Tuesday morning.

Today the 76th anniversary of the birth of Rev. John M. Davis was celebrated by a family dinner at his residence in Oakland. Dr. W. W. Davis was a guest.

Dr. W. W. Davis, of the Park, came up to Oakland from Baltimore this morning and will remain here a few days attending to some business matters claiming his attention.

Mr. Frank B. Palmer, who has been assistant B. & O. agent in Oakland for a number of months, was transferred on Monday to Clarksburg, West Va., where he has become manifest clerk in the B. & O. office.

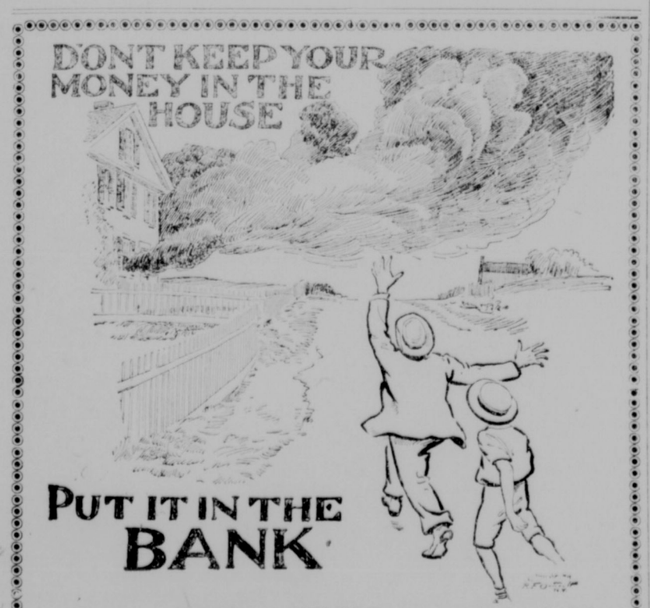
Mr. Francis Gonder after visiting his mother Mrs. Mollie Gonder, in Oakland for two or three weeks, left here Monday night for Butte, Mont., where he has been residing a year or more and is engaged in the jewelry business.

This office is in receipt of a postal from Harry A. Rasche, who with Mrs. Rasche is on a tour through the south and also Cuba. The postal was mailed at Havana, Cuba, on the 16th inst. upon which day Mr. and Mrs. Rasche landed there.

Prof. F. E. Rathbun, superintendent of the Piedmont public school, who has been quite sick for some time, is so much better that he is able to attend to his duties. His mother, who resides at Mt. Lake Park, spent part of this and last week with him.—Piedmont Herald.

Mr. Byrne Hamill, who was recently discharged from the army after a service of three years, arrived home last Saturday. During the term of service Mr. Hamill was in the Philippines a considerable portion of the time and returned to this country with his command about a year ago.

The Republican for Job Printing.



When your MONEY is BURNED up regrets won't bring it back to you. It is very UNSAFE and it WORRIES you a whole lot to have money in your house or in a hole in the ground. Besides "looking" time after time to see if it is safe teaches people where it is and makes it very UNSAFE.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
OAKLAND, MD.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

No Alum, No Lime Phosphate

THE DEATH RECORD.

JOHN W. ARNOLD.

At his home on Third street in Oakland Monday morning at an early hour, John W. Arnold, for more than forty years a resident of Oakland, died after months of suffering with a cancer of the stomach. Mr. Arnold was born in Frederick City and came to Oakland when young with his parents. He was aged more than 62 years and is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Walsh, and his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Whorton. The funeral of the deceased took place from St. Paul's church in Oakland yesterday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. Williamson, with interment in the Oakland cemetery.

MRS. CORA R. SKIPPER.

Mrs. Cora R., wife of Joseph Skipper, died at Red Lodge, Montana, last Thursday of heart trouble and was buried in Oakland yesterday morning from the Catholic church after services conducted by Rev. James E. Connell. The body of the deceased arrived here Tuesday night and was accompanied by her husband and children.

MRS. NANCY EAZENBAKER.

Nancy Fazenbaker, widow of the late Constantine Fazenbaker, met with a sad death on the 6th of January, 1911, in her own home in Damascus, Va. While she was standing before an open fire, warming herself, her clothes caught the flames and she was so badly burned that she died six hours later She was 62 years of age. Her husband predeceased in death about one year. She leaves living one son and one daughter, three brothers and five sisters living at different places. She was a daughter of Hanson Brown, late of Garrett county, and a niece of Jacob Brown, of Cumberland. Her husband was an active and practical lumberman for a long time in Garrett county, but about five years ago he with his family moved to Damascus, Va., where he died. Nancy Fazenbaker, in her nature, ways and manners, was kindly, amiable, modest and womanly. On account of these excellent traits she was much respected and liked by all who knew her.

OLD ACQUAINTANCE.

January 20, 1911

Messrs. Garthright & Harvey, the new mercantile firm at Loch Lynn Heights, will have something to say of interest to the readers of this paper every weak for the ensuing year, they having bought space for that length of time. Keep your eye open for the many bargains they will offer the purchasing public and take advantage of them.

Ex-State Senator R. T. Browning, of Lake Brown, is at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Norman R. Sanner, suffering with an attack of the grip with which he was taken ill Saturday. On Sunday he was brought to Oakland and is being attended by Dr. McComas. He was quite ill for several days but this morning his condition is somewhat improved although still confined to his bed.

The will of the late Chauncey F. Kimmell, of Mountain Lake Park, whose death was noted in this paper last week, has been admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court for this county. By the terms of the will Mr. Kimmel devises his property to his children, share and share alike. The real estate at Mountain Lake Park is to be sold and the proceeds divided among his sons and daughters.

Mr. George D. Browning, of Sang Run, was in Oakland Tuesday on business connected with the purchase of a large body of timberland located on Bear Creek between Friendsville and Accident, which Mr. Browning and his associates, Mr. John W. McCullough and Walter W. Savage, of Friendsville, recently purchased and which they will operate as soon as the weather conditions are such as to allow them to build the necessary tramways and locate their mill on the property. The timber on the tract has been estimated at eight million feet and consists largely of hemlock and poplar.

Notice of Dissolution.

This is to give notice that the copartnership heretofore existing between Samuel H. Welch and Joseph E. Callis, trading and doing business under the firm name of Welch & Callis, at Mountain Lake Park, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Callis retiring from the firm.

WELCH & CALLIS.

PARADISE.

We have been having some nice weather the past few days.

Miss Margie Nine is suffering with a severe attack of neuralgia at this writing.

S. Rodeheaver was a business caller in Deer Park Saturday night.

Mrs. I. A. Paugh has been very ill with an attack of pneumonia, but we are glad to say is some better at this writing.

Mr. Mahlon Schooley was an Oakland caller Monday.

Mr. W. H. Rodeheaver has returned home after a three weeks' visit in Waynesburg, Pa.

The Oak Valley band met at Dodge Saturday night for practice.

Mr. Charles Rodeheaver is the hustling teamster hauling rock for the State road.

Mr. Earl Hamill has returned home from a visit in West Virginia.

Mr. W. M. Miller is working at Blaine, W. Va.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

Where

is the best place to buy

MEATS

AT

CREUTZBERG'S

Old Reliable Up-to-Date

Meat Market

WITHOUT A DOUBT.

HOMER E. TURNEY,
Proprietor.

P. S. I pay the highest CASH market price for beef, pork, veal, mutton and lamb.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

GALVANIZED IRON WASH TUBS, the regular $1.00 kind, this week	75c
GALVANIZED IRON COAL HODS, the regular 35c. kind, this week	25c
GALVANIZED BUCKETS, 12-qt., the regular 35c. kind, this week	25c
14-QT. DISH PANS, HEAVY TIN, the regular 50c. kind, this week	35c
12-QT. DISH PANS, HEAVY TIN, the regular 50c. kind, This week	25c
17-QT. BREAD RAISERS, HEAVY TIN, the regular $1.00 kind, this week	60c
15-QT. GALVANIZED SLOP PAILS, the regular 75c. kind, this week	50c
12-QT. GRANITE DISH PANS, the regular 75c. kind, this week	60c
12-QT. GRANITE WATER BUCKETS, the regular 75c. kind, this week	60c
DOUBLE RICE BOILERS (GRANITE), the regular 75c. kind, this week	50c
DOUBLE RICE BOILERS (GRANITE), the regular 65c. kind, this week	40c
3-QT. STEW PANS, HEAVY TIN, the regular 15c, kind, this week	10c
4-QT. YELLOW MIXING BOWLS, the regular 35c. kind, this week	25c
ANTI-BURN BREAD PANS, LARGE SIZE, the regular 35c. kind, this week	25c
HAMMERS' GENUINE COLD BLAST LANTERNS, extra large fount and wick, regular $1.00 kind, this week	85c
GENUINE DEITZ LANTERNS the regular $1.00 kind, this week	75c
3, 5 & 7-PINT TIN BUCKETS, WITH LIDS, this week	10c

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,

S. LAWTON & SONS.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season

Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The Baltimore News

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Published Every Afternoon, Including Sunday

A Newspaper for the Home, for the Family Circle

Covers thoroughly the news of the city, State and country.

Complete market reports.

Buy it from your local newsdealer or order it by mail.

One month	30c.	Six months	$1.75
Three months	50c.	One year	$3.50

The Baltimore News, Baltimore, Md.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO., OAKLAND, MD., Jan. 19, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, Feb. 5th, 1911,

to hear appeals and make transfers on the old assessment as the new assessment will not be finished in time for the 1911 levy.

Road Supervisors are requested to file their oath and bonds at once so they can be approved on above date.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,
Executrix,
Mt. Lake Park Md.

43-3t-pd

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY, TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400

200 Young Broke Mules 200

HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.

MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 50 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Will practice inthe Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

The Naughty Little Milliner

A TRUE STORY OF THE SECRET SERVICE

By Col. H. C. Whitley, Former Chief United States Secret Service

THE sympathy of the public is usually bestowed upon the weaker sex, although Heaven knows it is a mistake to suppose that the weakness of humanity is confined to woman alone. Certainly in matters of love and sacrifice she oftentimes proves herself the stronger, and in criminal ways her powers of invention have many times reached the acme of perfection. The subtle devices resorted to by women for pulling the wool over the eyes of the officers of the law are frequently more misleading and difficult to penetrate than the most scientific roguery planned by men.

The several novel expedients resorted to by the Widow Wood, better known in police circles as "The Naughty Little Milliner," for throwing dust into the eyes of the detectives, is indeed a marvelous exemplification of female ingenuity.

It was along in the early seventies when it became known that there was circulating about New Orleans a dangerous counterfeit five dollar treasury note, likewise a pretty good imitation of silver half dollars. A number of these bad five dollar bills were received at the banks and might have passed along undetected had not one of the bankers, more discerning than the others, made the discovery that these notes were counterfeit, though they were well calculated to deceive the average tradesman. The bogus half dollars had been coined with steel dies and were exact facsimiles of the genuine in all except the metal they contained. They passed readily among the foreigners, especially about the French market.

Operator James Fitzpatrick, who was at that time in charge of government secret service affairs in New Orleans, began an investigation for the purpose of ferreting out the source of this bad money. After weeks of anxious watching it was learned that a young girl who daily visited the French market for the purpose of buying family provisions had, as regularly as she came, left a bogus half dollar. She wore a tattered dress and there was a sorrowful expression settled about her pallid yet interesting features. It was the gentle and dejected expression of her countenance that first attracted the attention of Officer Fitzpatrick. The Gascons and Italian dealers about the market had never made a complaint in regard to the bad money, as they could readily pass it off on one another or at the coffee houses along the river front.

Following the girl one day the officer traced her to a little variety store on St. Joseph street, near the corner of Tchoupitoulas street. After a short time had elapsed the girl came out of the shop. She was now attired in somewhat above the common garb. Unobserved by her, the officer watched her movements until she finally went into a small grocery store. When she came out she carried a package. It was plain that she had made a purchase. When the girl was well out of sight the detective stepped into the little store and requested the Creole boy in attendance to let him see the money that he had received from the girl that had just left the place. It was a new five-dollar note that the boy handed out. Looking it over carefully it was found to be one of the bogus kind.

The officer made a plausible explanation that he thought sufficient to satisfy the curiosity of the boy, and was now quite certain that he was on the track of the source of the counterfeits and that the occupants of the little variety store were the distributors of the bogus stuff.

Opposite the variety store across the street was the sign "Furnished Rooms to Rent," and Fitzpatrick was fortunate enough to be able to hire a front room where he could sit at the window and watch the suspected place. In the course of time he learned that the occupants were mother and daughter. The mother was a widow, quite pretty, about thirty years of age. Her daughter was not more than twelve or fourteen. As the wheels of time rolled on it was learned further that the husband had died but a short time before and that the family had entombed in New Orleans. It was likewise discovered that the little store was a resort for persons who would bear watching. The officer noticed that the woman who was the occupant occasionally left this place of business carrying a basket on her arm and that she was always looking over her shoulder and peering about as if she suspected she was being watched. Tracking her one day, she led the way to the St. Louis cemetery on Basin street. Approaching a tomb, she knelt down before it and bowed her head as if engaged in prayer. Leaning against a tomb nearby was a well-dressed man apparently waiting for some one. As the detective carelessly sauntered along he drew near the stranger, and as he did so he saw a signal of recognition between the man and the woman. The latter, having completed her seeming errand of love, peered cautiously around for a moment and retired from the cemetery. The detective thought she might have come there to meet this man, but had been foiled in her intentions by the appearance of a third person.

It was Sunday that the occurrence described took place. On the same day of the week following the detective, disguised as a decrepit old man apparently almost blind, went into the cemetery early and took a seat beside a tomb not far from the one upon which the woman had placed the flowers the Sunday before. It was nearly noon-day when the suspected woman with her basket upon her arm came in. The basket was filled with flowers as before. She was dressed in deep mourning and seemingly bent on a sorrowful errand. This time she did not kneel, but sat down beside the tomb and bowed her head as if in contemplation. After a short time the stranger of the week previous entered the cemetery and approached the sorrowing woman by a circuitous route. Neither of these persons seemed to take any notice of the old man leaning upon the nearby tomb. The stranger and woman met and engaged in conversation. They were partially concealed from the view of the old man, who now straightened up and hobbled towards them, upon which the stranger suddenly bolted over an adjoining tomb and took to his heels. The disguised officer rushed up to the widow and demanded to see what she carried in her basket. Upon an examination it was found to contain a set of dies for coining imitation silver half dollars.

The woman was arrested. Her little store was searched, but nothing of an incriminating nature was found there. The woman said her name was Wood, and that her husband had died but a short time before. She had since his death regularly visited the cemetery every Sunday for the purpose of decorating his tomb. She had a young daughter to support and had been sorely pressed for money. The dies which she carried in her basket had been left with her by a man who asked her to sell them for him. On second thought she had resolved not to comply with his request as she feared such an act might be wrong. She had gone to the cemetery that day for the purpose of returning them.

Her explanation was not altogether satisfactory to the mind of Fitzpatrick.

The Widow Wood, notwithstanding her protestations of innocence, was placed upon trial charged with having counterfeit dies in her possession. There was no question in regard to the possession of these dies—but did she have knowledge of their nature, or was she a victim of a cunningly devised scheme of a person who was seeking to dispose of them.

There were at that time existing in New Orleans as in other cities at least two classes of persons subject to sit on juries. On the one hand there was the fellow with the dark brow, who thought there was no great harm in passing counterfeit money. On the other, there was the man who would scorn to commit a crime himself or have a neighborly feeling for any person engaged in swindling the public, yet whose sympathy might get the best of him when called upon to sit upon a jury and try a woman for an offense.

The Widow Wood told a lame story in regard to the counterfeit dies, but the tale of her struggles to maintain herself and keep her head above water was touching in the extreme. It brought sympathetic tears to the eyes of the warm-hearted and chivalrous southerners. They could not think of convicting her.

One evening a few months subsequent to the widow's honorable exoneration, a good-natured gentleman, a member of the jury that had acquitted her, was on his way to his home from his office on Carrondolette street. He suddenly felt his coat skirt pulled. Turning around he was not a little astonished to find himself confronted by a prepossessing woman whom he could not remember ever having seen before.

"Are you Mr. Chappela?" she asked in a sweet voice.

Without further ceremony she introduced herself as Mrs. Wood, the lady who had been falsely accused by a United States detective. She said she had approached him because she had learned that he was a benefactor to the worthy poor and that she now stood sadly in need of assistance. Her story was that she and her daughter of tender age had been keeping a small variety store and had become heavily involved in debt. Through humiliation and want she had managed to struggle along and eke out an existence. An attachment had now been issued and a keeper put in her little store. Tears glistened in her beautiful brown eyes as she narrated her pitiful tale. She had $10,000,000 that would soon come to her from her father's estate and if she could only stave off the trouble for a short time—.

The good hearted southerner's sympathy was not confined to words alone. He went at once to her little store and paid the $300 demanded by the keeper and left her $100 besides to relieve her immediate wants.

It was only a few days following this when Detective Fitzpatrick concluded to enter the Widow Woods' place of business and make a thorough search. He had obtained some new evidence in regard to her dealing with "queer" money.

When he entered the suspected place he discovered that it was nearly empty. Everything of value had been removed. A number of cheap artificial flowers, bits of worn ribbon and lace and empty bandboxes constituted the stock. It was all appearance and no value. The little room in the rear of the place had been the Madam's living quarters; it also was empty except a few tattered garments strewn about.

What puzzled the detective most was to account for the removal of the goods without attracting his attention. The movements of the woman had been carefully watched and the detective had recognized the Carrondolette street broker as he visited the widow's store, and the exit shortly after of a man very much resembling the stranger who had met the Widow Wood in the cemetery on the occasion of her arrest. It finally came to light that the broker had been done out of four hundred dollars by the widow who had planned the "keeper" scheme with a confederate.

After diligent search about the city the detectives were unable to learn the whereabouts of the widow, who had skipped out for parts unknown. Detective Fitzpatrick was fortunate enough to secure a photograph of her, and a number of copies of it were made and forwarded to the branches of the secret service in the various cities of the country.

She was first recognized in Cincinnati where she had offered a five-dollar counterfeit bill. When arrested and searched, no other bad money was found upon her person, and she was released for the want of sufficient evidence.

A secret service officer carrying the widow's photograph was sure he had met her while on his way from Washington to New York. He was not quite certain, but was sure enough to attempt to follow her for the purpose of learning her location. She probably "tumbled" to the detective while he was eyeing her intently. She did not affect to notice him, but managed, however, to give him the slip.

Just before the train arrived at Jersey City, the suspected woman got up from her seat and stepped into the ladies retiring room at the front end. The detective was keeping his eagle eye on this place when the passengers in front of him arose to leave the car. He worked his way as rapidly as possible towards the front exit, and rushing to the ferry landing, he took a position where he could carefully view the face of every woman entering the ferry boat. Not seeing the suspected woman he was the first to spring ashore on the New York side where he again scanned the faces of the women as they passed. He was disappointed and ready to kick himself when he realized how neatly he had been done for.

New York city affords one of the best covers for all clases of criminals. Here the thief mixes with the throng and passes along unnoticed. It was a year or more after the occurrence of the incident just related, when the same detective while rambling about the city chanced to meet a well dressed woman who bore a marked resemblance to the little milliner. She turned her head and gave him a side glance as he passed. He kept along at a considerable distance and turned just in time to catch sight of her as she stepped into Johnson's millinery establishment. Taking up a position at a point diagonally across the street, and sheltering himself a little in a doorway, he was enabled to distinguish persons as they passed in and out of the shop. While he stood watching, a bright looking boy came along with a bundle of newspapers under his arm. The detective called him up and bargained with him to do a little "piping" for him. When the suspected woman came out of the millinery store she was pointed out to the boy who was told to follow her and, if possible, trace her to her home. The boy was promised $5 for the job if his information proved to be correct, and he was to meet the officer later and report. When the boy came back to the officer he had followed the woman to a little shop on Ninth avenue. He said she went in and took off her bonnet as though she belonged there.

The detective reported meeting the woman who had so nicely escaped him and had located her in a small store on Ninth avenue where there hung over the door a sign that read "Fine Millinery Work Done Here." It was quite reasonable to believe that the woman was none other than the naughty little milliner from New Orleans and that she was then doing business in New York. Officer Fitzpatrick of New Orleans was the only detective on the force that could positively identify her, but it wouldn't do to bring him for that purpose as she would be sure to see him first, and having been put upon her guard she might fly away.

The idea was to plan a ruse for the purpose of capturing her with evidence to convict. For this purpose it was necessary to bring a new man into the field, and I chose an elderly gentleman who was then employed.

He was a countryman born, and did not have to act the part, as it was perfectly natural to him. He appeared simple in his ways, but was in reality remarkably shrewd. The little milliner might have been surprised one morning to receive a visit from a country dressed old gentleman, and she blinked her large brown eyes as he entered her little shop. But her lips assumed a business smile as she said, "Be seated, sir."

The room was neatly furnished, and there was a display of ready-made bonnets, flowers, etc. The door of her little trimming room in the rear stood open, and it was plainly seen that the floor was littered with bits of ribbon, clippings of velvet and small remnants of silk and lace. The old gentleman smiled pleasantly; the woman gracefully sank into her chair. She folded her hands in her lap and inclined her head coquettishly to one side and looked like a polite interrogation point. The old gentleman explained that his daughter who lived over in Jersey had asked him to purchase a nice bonnet for her, and as he passed along the sidewalk he had read her sign and just stepped in. He told her that the novelty of a bonnet making concern had always attracted his attention and that he would like to talk with her about her kind of business.

"Of course I will tell you all about it," she said good humoredly. "I guess you will get tired of listening before I get through."

She was a good talker and appeared to be a woman of refinement and education as she prattled along. She said she had once been rich but had been unfortunate; her husband had died from disease and a young and only daughter had been killed in a railroad accident. As she talked glibly she was all the while exhibiting her stock in trade.

"Here," said she, "is a lovely bonnet that I trimmed for a rich lady, but it has not been called for. A fine looking lady came in here one day and tried on my bonnets; she wanted a nice one but I could not fit her. She said she lived somewhere in the suburbs and she was in a great hurry. She finally picked out one and said it would do well enough for size, but she wanted it trimmed differently. I have made the alterations as she described but have not seen her since. I have made bonnets for a number of wealthy people. Some of my customers ride in their carriages within a block of my store and walk the rest of the way, as it would not do for them to be seen in a little store like this. They have recognized the fact that I make the swellest bonnets and sell them at about half the price asked in the large millinery parlors."

"Well, I declare," said the old gentleman; "that is about the kind of a bonnet I want."

"I thought you would fall in love with it," said the little milliner, "as it is beautiful. The woman hasn't called for it, yet even if I thought she would, I will sell it inasmuch as it is going out of town and I can make her another just like it."

After haggling about the price for a time the old gentleman concluded to buy it.

"I will take it along with me," said he, as he laid down a twenty dollar bill of the National Shoe & Leather bank to pay for it.

The milliner picked up the note and looking it over for a moment, her face lit up with a smile of pleasant sarcasm, as she said, "Look here, old fellow, this bill won't do."

The curious expression upon her face was certainly amusing, and the countryman thought he noticed a lurking smile upon her countenance that betokened sympathy and indicated that she was posted on that kind of money.

"Look here, I know that stuff as well as you do, so you just keep it and give me something else."

They stood and looked each other in the face. There was a mutual sympathy—two souls with but a single thought.

"My name is David Kirkbride," naming a well-known counterfeiter.

"Good gracious," exclaimed the woman," why didn't you say so? I have never met you before, but I have often heard my friend Eva Cole talk about you. What were you thinking about when you came in here?"

"Oh, just about what I told you; besides I thought it was a good chance to shove a twenty."

"Why," said she, "I buy these bonnets at Johnson's and keep them for a stall. If you really want this one, you are welcome to it."

As she became more confidential, she said, putting on a peculiar smile, "Suppose I had given you your change in a bill like this one," as she produced a five dollar bill.

"Well, well," said the old fellow, "it would have been all right with me. But I am keeping pretty shady at this time; I carry my stuff concealed in my tobacco pouch and only keep a little on hand at a time."

"Oh," said she, "you men think you are smart at doing things, but you're slow. I was arrested in Cincinnati by the city detective because I offered a counterfeit bill in payment for a pair of gloves, but they searched me at the police station and couldn't find any of the 'queer' about me. I put up a nice spiel and was very indignant, and Jim Ruffin, the the chief of police, got scared and turned me loose."

"What do you think! I had more than a thousand dollars of those five dollar bills with me at the time, but they couldn't begin to find them. Just look here," she said; and reaching her hand into an opening in her dress she pulled a string and drew her bustle to the front.

This on being opened at the end contained a pocket. The widow, by pulling the string, could move the bustle around her waist at will.

"What is this contrivance for?" Kirkbride inquired.

"You can put your hand into it and, see——"

He pulled out a handful of clean five dollar counterfeit notes. As he did so he expressed great amazement at the ingenuity of her plan.

"I have carried 'phoney' with me for years," she said, "but no one has ever discovered or even suspected it."

At this moment the Jersey farmer reached out and grabbed the widow's bustle. Unbuckling the belt that held it, he pulled it from her person. She was greatly surprised when she realized that she was at last fairly caught red-handed.

This charming little widow was now escorted to my branch office on Bleecker street. After a long and tedious questioning and convincing argument on my part, she so far yielded as to turn "squealer" and assist the government.

This little woman with the sparkling brown eyes was a fair sample of exquisite female shrewdness. The little dodge she played upon the detective who in parlance was "gunning" her in the car, was this. She stepped into the 'retiring' room, let down her hair and braided it. Throwing her bonnet out of the window, she put a small worsted cap on her head. Turning her dress (that had been specially made for the purpose and artistically arranged so as to make it long or short) inside out, she bore the appearance of a school girl. Assuming a look of innocent childhood, she could meet the gaze of the officer and pass along without discovery.

She was now the entering wedge to the arrest of a number of persons connected with the Miner gang of counterfeiters, and the government was amply compensated for the money expended in running her down through the information she gave.

(Copyright, 1910, by W. G. Chapman.)

Where Resinol Ointment Is Known It Is Considered a Boon to Humanity.

If the soothing and healing properties of Resinol Ointment were generally known it would be universally used to the exclusion of all others. It is indeed a boon to humanity.

W. J. Callan, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The man who is anxious to let you know that God is on his tongue usually has the devil in his heart.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated tiny granules.

Ever notice what poor care other people take of their health?

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

For Sprains

"Gave Me Instant Relief"

"I fell and sprained my arm and was in terrible pain. I could not use my hand or arm without intense suffering until a neighbor told me to use Sloan's Liniment. The first application gave me instant relief and I can now use my arm as well as ever."—Mrs. H. B. Springer, 921 Flora St., Elizabeth, N. J.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is an excellent antiseptic and germ killer — heals cuts, burns, wounds, and contusions, and will draw the poison from sting of poisonous insects.

25c., 50c. and $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

Weak Women

should heed such warnings as headache, nervousness, backache, depression and weariness and fortify the system with the aid of

Beecham's Pills

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c.

Fancy Feathers and Wings

THOSE who make up feathers into forms that are to decorate millinery, look with interest upon each wearer of plumage and each separate feather. Many thousands of persons spend their working hours sewing pasting, wiring, branding and otherwise manipulating the plumage of birds (mostly domestic fowls) into new forms. Each feather is regarded with an eye to its possibilities in the evolution of something new by the manufacturers. Even the tiny feathers from the neck of the pigeon or peacock are handled separately, in making up the most expensive pieces. Just lately, large butterflies made of these, pasted to a foundation, covered on the outside and inside of the wings with the tiny feathers have made us marvel at the work of the designers. You can imagine the sheen of the wings and the splendor of color. The bodies are of velvet and the antennae of wired chenille or gold cord.

In Fig. 1 a fancy feather piece is shown, in which the form is purely artificial, that is, not made to copy any particular natural object, but an arrangement of plumage from different sources into an ornamental piece. The designer must consider whether his work is to be worn at the front, back or sides of a hat. The piece shown is made for the front. Beautiful and wonderful color studies and graceful lines are brought out in many of these decorations now almost universal.

To use them effectively, where they are large or elaborate, one must choose a proper shape and color, and remember that the hat and other trimming stuffs are to be considered as a background for the feather. In the example shown the velvet shape and ribbon bows all in one color and shade, frame in the handsome piece mounted at the front.

A small feather piece is not used in this way. The other trimming selected for the hat, leads up to it, and the fancy feather is to be used as the finishing touch, simply part of a whole. But milliners, and therefore manufacturers, are regarding with ever increasing favor, those feather pieces that are almost if not quite a complete trimming in themselves.

Nearly all the wings worn on hats are "made" wings, which term distinguishes them from "natural" wings. They are made so cleverly that it is difficult to believe they are put together by the hand of man. A pair of such wings springing from a band of feathers, is shown in Fig. 2. The band and wings form a single piece for which the velvet-draped turban makes an effective background. Such feather pieces make the work of the home milliner easy.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

PRETTY DRESS FOR A GIRL

Simple Model That Calls for Either Serge, Fine Cloth or Cashmere.

Serge, fine cloth or cashmere might be used for our simple model, which is made with a panel front laid on sides in a wrapped seam, and trimmed with buttons sewn on in sets of three. One tuck is made on each shoulder, stitched to waist back and front; the skirt is gathered to waistband, which connects it to the bodice.

For Small Girl.

Materials required: Four yards 48 inches wide, one dozen buttons.

Velvet Bags.

When you gather up the scraps of your velvet afternoon dress, don't throw them away. Make them up into a soft bag that should be carried with the dress. It can be square or round, and whatever other material you wish can be combined with it. A long silk cord, or silver or gold if you wish the metallic note, must be attached. This is thrown over the arm.

Beads, embroidery, little patches of tapestry or brocades and braid or lace, are easy ways of decorating the flat upper surface.

Just as a personal touch, embroider your monogram in a circle or diamond down in one corner.

Gloves.

The gloves of tan dog-skin or of gray undressed kid are the correct things to wear with the tailored suit, but the white glove is permissible on many occasions and the prettiest fancy in a white glove is the thick kid which may be bought for $1.50 a pair. They are soft in texture and wear well.

NEW DRESS TIP FROM PARIS

White or Cream Colored Voile, Embroidered Heavily, Approved Thing in Lingerie Dress.

The very latest news from Paris tells us that white or cream-colored voile, embroidered heavily, will be the approved thing in lingerie dresses for early spring. That seems to be looking a good ways ahead, but if you do your own embroidery you will want this time to get ready in.

Really the possibilities are endless and fascinating. Either heavy embroidery (wallachian, for instance) will be used, or beadwork with rubber beads, or a combination of the two. Can't you just see a wall-of-troy design, worked solid in white and outlined beads? Or, perhaps, the beads would be black, and a black hat would be worn with the dress, or Alice blue, or old rose, or some other becoming and striking shade.

How pretty this would be in a three-piece suit, with the embroidery consisting of a skirtband, side platts on the waist and collars and revers on the coat! Then there are other ideas—a Persian design worked out in vari-colored beads, for instance, or a spray of heavy flowers, morning-glories or passion flowers, with centers and veins accentuated by means of beads in the proper colors. In this case, the embroidery itself would be equally attractive in life colors or in white, or even in black.

Then there are all the metal effects. How lovely bronze would be on cream voile, or silver on pure white! Voile has the advantage of raveling easily, and so it would be quite possible to draw a thread all the way along the materials and work from that. Even drawnwork could be combined with these other effects.

Doesn't it make you want to start right away? Do have a dress like this for next season. I'm going to!

Lace Flower Pins.

The latest in dainty and charming pins for wear on collars and cuffs is a lace flower crocheted around an ordinary small safety pin. The flower is usually in violet form, though in white, and stands out stiffly from the pin.

When crocheted to a violet pin, it may be used to fasten jabots of flowers, and it is just as pretty, though not quite so new, as applied to the hatpin. A set of these lovely white lacepins—three for collar, two for cuffs—two hatpins and two stickpins would be the prettiest present a bride or a traveler to Europe ever received.

The bar of the safety pin is crocheted over and over to hide the steel. In black, with black pins, they solve the question of what to use in mourning.

Tapestry Hats.

Tapestry-covered hats, the tapestry in bold patterns of soft and old tints on a light ground stretched tightly over the frame, come in wide picture shapes and close mushroom models. They are untrimmed.

The Kitchen Cabinet

THE capon burns, the pig falls from the spit,
The clock hath struck twelve upon the bell,
My mistress made it one upon my cheek
She is hot because the meat is cold,
The meat is cold because you came not home.

What to Have for Supper.

Three-Leaf Clover Rolls.—Make the dough into three very small biscuit and bake in buttered muffin pans when risen.

Italian Potatoes.—Mix two cups of mashed potatoes with a teaspoonful of onion juice, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one egg yolk well beaten and the whites of four eggs beaten stiff, one-half a cup of grated cheese and salt and pepper to taste. Pile lightly in a baking dish and bake brown.

Milk Toast.—Prepare the toast by drying well before toasting a golden brown. Dip the edges in hot water, butter well and pour over the following white sauce: Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a sauce pan, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, salt and pepper and two cups of milk. Cook until smooth, then add a hard cooked egg, chopped or put through the ricer.

Maple Custard.—Beat six eggs slightly, mix carefully with three cups of milk, a pinch of salt and half a cup of thick maple sirup. Put into cups and set in a pan of water to cook. The custard is sufficiently cooked when a knife thrust into the custard comes out clean.

Orange Cake.—Cream three-fourths of a cup of butter, add one and a fourth cups of sugar gradually, then the yolks of six eggs well beaten, one-half a cup of cold water, two and a half cups of pastry flour well stirred with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat ten minutes.

Filling.—Cook together one egg, a cup of sugar, juice and rind of half an orange, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter, all cooked until smooth.

Cabbage and Pepper Salad.—Cut crisp, tender cabbage in shreds, add a chopped green pepper and boiled dressing. A few nuts may be added to make it more elegant.

THE early savage with his solitary bone, lived more simply than we live; but our banquet, with all its abuses, is part of a higher living.
—Helen Campbell.

Pudding Sauces.

A list of pudding sauces is not always available. Here are a few that will be found easy to prepare and not expensive.

Golden Sauce.—Rub one-half cup of butter to a cream, add a half cup of light brown sugar and beat until light and creamy. Beat the yolks of two eggs, and when ready to serve put the bowl or pan containing the sugar over boiling water and stir until it is a liquid, then add the eggs, one-eighth teaspoon of mace, one-half cup of fruit juice, and stir until it thickens. Serve at once and stir before each pouring.

Fruit Sauce.—Blend one-half cup of butter and a cup of sugar, gradually work in one-half cup of jelly.

Hard Sauce.—Pour one tablespoonful of boiling water over one-half cup of butter, stir until creamy, mix in one cup of granulated sugar. Flavor with nutmeg or lemon extract or mace. Serve on orange or lemon cups, or heap in a small dish.

Orange Sauce.—Grate the rind of an orange and squeeze the juice over it. In a saucepan mix one cup of sugar with a fourth of a cup of flour or half as much cornstarch. Pour in a pint of boiling water and cook ten minutes. This sauce will keep several days. The yolk of an egg may be added to the sauce just before straining and the stiff white added after. Lemon or other fruits may be used to take the place of part of the liquid.

Molasses Sauce.—Scald a cup of molasses with an ounce of butter and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Serve hot with apple dumplings.

Nellie Maxwell.

For the Sins of Others.

William R. Hearst, who prints newspapers and dabbles in politics, rides the water wagon constantly.

Not long ago he dropped into one of his big newspaper offices and asked for the man on whom he relied to run the paper day in and day out. After some delay, Mr. Hearst was informed that the gentleman in question was "off on his vacation."

The newspaper owner then requested that the editor next in charge be sent to him. Again the delay occurred, and, tardily, the information was given that this editor was "at home, very ill."

Mr. Hearst drummed on his desk with the tips of his fingers several moments and then remarked dryly:

"For a man who never touches a drop to drink, I suffer more from drunkenness than any man I know."—Popular Magazine.

While it may be possible for a man to succeed without an education, his oversight makes lots of extra work for his stenographer.

FLAX IS PROFITABLE

Wonderful Paying Proposition In Western Canadian Prairies.

So much is heard of the wheat, oats and barley grown in the prairie lands of western Canada, and so much has been told of the wealth to be made out of the raising of cattle on the succulent and rich grasses of those fertile plains, that a most important product has been almost lost sight of, Flax. Recent press reports advise us that on one of the last boats to clear from Fort William (at the head of Lake Superior) for Buffalo, there were 241,000 bushels of flax valued at $583,220, and on another boat leaving the same day there were 288,000 bushels valued at $720,000. There has been a big demand for Canadian flax this season, and the lake movement has been very heavy. Flax is always a sure crop, and gives to the farmer who is anxious for quick return after getting on his land, the chance he is looking for. There is opportunity for thousands yet, on the free homesteads of 160 acres, and many of these are available within short distance of the lines of railway that are already built or under construction, either on the main line or branches. Besides these free grant lands there is an opportunity to purchase from railway and land companies at reasonable prices.

The display of western Canada's grains in the straw as well as threshed grains and grasses recently made at St. Louis was an excellent demonstration of what the country can do. It proved splendid as an illustration of the resources of that vast prairie country, which during the past year has again proven its ability to produce excellent yields of wheat, oats and barley—and flax. Not only this, but the splendid herds of cattle are a source of large revenue. There is a fund of information to be had by reading the Canadian government literature, copies of which may be had free by applying to your nearest Canadian government agent.

Malady Worth Having.

"I can't understand my husband, doctor; I am afraid there is something terrible the matter with him."

"What are the symptoms?"

"Well, I often talk to him for half an hour at a time and when I get through he hasn't the least idea what I've been saying."

"Don't worry any more about your husband. I wish I had his gift."—Stray Stories.

AGAINST TEXTBOOK UNIFORMITY

Illinois State Teachers Energetically Combat the Proposition.

Chicago.—The Illinois State Teachers Association in a resolution sets itself strongly opposed to state uniformity of school books, expressing it as the determination of the association to exert all its influence to combat such a movement.

A Poultry Problem.

"Which is correct," ask the summer boarder who wished to air his knowledge, "to speak of a sitting hen or a setting hen?"

"I don't know," replied the farmer's wife, "and what's more, I don't care. But there's one thing I would like to know: when a hen cackles, has she been laying, or is she lying?"

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over 30 Years.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.

The Pronouns.

"We must economize," said the man of high financial authority.

"Your grammar is at fault," replied the ordinary citizen. "Why do you insist on using the first instead of the second person plural?"

The next time you feel that swallowing sensation, the sure sign of sore throat, gargle Hamlins Wizard Oil immediately with three parts water. It will save you days and perhaps weeks of misery.

The reason the bigot advertises his one idea so vigorously is that it is his whole stock in intellectual trade.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Don't make the mistake of claiming you never make one.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Free lunch is sometimes pretty expensive food.

HIS VIEW.

"They call that a statue of Victory; it must have been a hot fight."

LOOK TO YOUR KIDNEYS.

When Suffering From Backache, Headaches and Urinary Troubles.

They are probably the true source of your misery. To keep well, you must keep your kidneys well. There is no better kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently.

Edward Porsche, 1833 Cleveland Ave., Chicago, Ill., says: "My eyes were puffed from dropsy and my face and feet terribly swollen. I was laid up for three months and although I doctored, I received little benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved the awful back pains, stopped the swelling and made me feel 100 per cent. better."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

There is always poison in the wound that is inflicted by a friend.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Avoid pushing to the front by going back on your friends.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all humors, catarrh and rheumatism, relieves that tired feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, nervousness, builds up the whole system.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE
Genuine must bear Signature
Brent Good

Local Agent Wanted

in every town or county. Profitable and fascinating work for spare time.

BIG COMMISSION on HIGH GRADE NEW ARTICLE. Ask for particulars.
ELECTROLINE COMPANY
20 Harrison Street New York

MAKE MORE MONEY

Than you ever dreamed possible decorating china, burnt-wood, metal, pillow-tops, etc., in colors from photographs. Men successful as women. Learned at once; no talent required. Takes like wildfire everywhere. Send stamp quick for praticulars.
C. M. VALLANCE COMPANY, Elkhart, Ind.

PATENT secured or fee returned. Free examination of records. MILO B. STEVENS & CO., Est. 1864, 858 14th St., Washington; 29 Dearborn St., Chicago.

2200 INDIAN LAND—Poultry, fruit, dairy and stock farms soon to be sold by Government. Free Literature. COMMERCIAL CLUB, McAlester, Okla.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1869. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Attys., Box K, Washington, D.C.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 2-1911.

MILLIONS of FAMILIES are using SYRUP of FIGS and ELIXIR of SENNA

FOR COLDS AND HEADACHES, INDIGESTION AND SOUR STOMACH, GAS AND FERMENTATION, CONSTIPATION AND BILIOUSNESS, WITH MOST SATISFACTORY RESULTS.

NOTE THE NAME
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
IN THE CIRCLE
ON EVERY PACKAGE OF THE GENUINE

THE WONDERFUL POPULARITY OF THE GENUINE SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA HAS LED UNSCRUPULOUS MANUFACTURERS TO OFFER IMITATIONS. IN ORDER TO MAKE A LARGER PROFIT AT THE EXPENSE OF THEIR CUSTOMERS. IF A DEALER ASKS WHICH SIZE YOU WISH, OR WHAT MAKE YOU WISH, WHEN YOU ASK FOR SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA, HE IS PREPARING TO DECEIVE YOU. TELL HIM THAT YOU WISH THE GENUINE, MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. ALL RELIABLE DRUGGISTS KNOW THAT THERE IS BUT ONE GENUINE AND THAT IT IS MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. ONLY

NOTE THE NAME
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

PRINTED STRAIGHT ACROSS, NEAR THE BOTTOM, AND IN THE CIRCLE, NEAR THE TOP OF EVERY PACKAGE, OF THE GENUINE. ONE SIZE ONLY, FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS. REGULAR PRICE 50c PER BOTTLE.

MINIATURE PICTURE OF PACKAGE

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA IS ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO THE NEEDS OF LADIES AND CHILDREN, AS IT IS MILD AND PLEASANT, GENTLE AND EFFECTIVE, AND ABSOLUTELY FREE FROM OBJECTIONABLE INGREDIENTS. IT IS EQUALLY BENEFICIAL FOR WOMEN AND FOR MEN, YOUNG AND OLD. FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS. ALWAYS BUY THE GENUINE.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO

W. L. DOUGLAS

UNION MADE $3, $3.50 & $4 SHOES FOR MEN & WOMEN
BOYS' SHOES, $2.00, $2.50 AND $3.00. BEST IN THE WORLD.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, the superior workmanship and the high grade leathers used, you would then understand why Dollar for Dollar I Guarantee My Shoes to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other $3.00, $3.50 or $4.00 shoes you can buy.

Do you realize that my shoes have been the standard for over 30 years; that I make and sell more $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 shoes than any other manufacturer in the United States? Quality counts. It has made W. L. Douglas shoes a household word everywhere.

W. L. Douglas
President W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.

CAUTION! None genuine without W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on the bottom. TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE
If your dealer cannot supply you with W. L. Douglas Shoes, write for Mail Order Catalog.
W. L. DOUGLAS, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Black Cherrybark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggist could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

KNOWN SINCE 1836 AS RELIABLE
PLANTEN'S (TRADE MARK) C & C OR BLACK CAPSULES
SUPERIOR REMEDY FOR MEN, ETC. ETC.
AT DRUGGISTS. TRIAL BOX BY MAIL 50C
PLANTEN, 93 HENRY ST. BROOKLYN, N.Y.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED
No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whitzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHITZEL, M. D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

CANNING FACTORIES FOR SALE
For Farms, Large Communities or Towns. 15 sizes. Prices $85 to $850. Capacities as high as 9,000 cans tomatoes or 20,000 cans fruits in 10 hours. TERMS: A per cent of pack, or 2 or 3 yearly payments, or for cash. Write for Booklet. THOS. E. BROWN, Springfield, Mo.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

PREACHING TO THE DEAD.

"For this cause was the Gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but alive according to God in the spirit" (I Peter iv., 6).

Jamestown, N. Y., [illegible] —Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle today addressed a very large meeting of Bible Students in Celoron Auditorium. The occasion was a General Convention of Bible Students. The audience was estimated at nearly 5,000. Taking for his text the above words, the speaker said:

The Bible, to be understood, must be viewed from its own standpoint. This, as Bible students, we are learning more and more particularly every day. In the past we have read our Bibles "up-side-down." Many read as a duty; others as a sort of charm that would placate Divine Justice and bring us Divine favor. Now we are learning to read the Bible in a common-sense way, and to use our reasoning faculties in connection with its statements and prophecies. As a consequence, while others are falling from the faith—some into infidelity styled Higher Criticism and Evolution; others into fanciful wrestings of the Word of God—we are coming to appreciate the Bible as the most safe and sane Book in the world. Correspondingly our faith in God increases—faith in his Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power to accomplish all the good purposes which he purposed in himself before the creation of our race. Correspondingly, too, we are coming to appreciate more than ever the value of the great Redeemer and of the great sacrifice for sin which he accomplished at Calvary. We are coming to see the truth of what we once considered poetic license when we sang,

"There's a wideness in God's mercy
Like the wideness of the sea."

We are seeing more clearly as the days go by the meaning of the Scripture which declares that eventually the Redeemer "shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied." We perceive now that the little handful of saints walking in the Master's footsteps from Pentecost to his Second Advent and sharing in the "First Resurrection" is not the end of Divine Love for our race, but merely its beginning—"A first-fruits unto God of his creatures" (James i. 18). We are now seeing that, according to the Divine purpose, the calling and election of the Church to the spirit nature, to the divine nature, must be completed before the second step in the great Divine Plan of Salvation begins—the recovery of the world from sin and death conditions, to human perfection and Paradise restored.

"Let Dead Bury Their Dead."

No Bible topic requires more careful discrimination in its study than does the subject of death. This is mainly because of the general confusion of mind which came upon Christendom during the long centuries of the Church's comparative darkness, when Bibles (the Lamp of God upon the Christian's path) were scarce, and when few could read the truths of priceless value, that were chained to lecterns. In consequence of this confusion we hear intelligent people talk ignorantly and stupidly respecting death. They make confusion worse confounded by telling us of Adam's spiritual death and discussing "natural" death and "the death that never dies," etc., etc.

To get the Bible view of death we need to brush away such foolish babblings and confine ourselves to Bible language and the rational thought connected therewith. For instance, according to the Bible, there is no "natural death"—it is not natural for man to die. It is according to the Bible arrangement and man's nature that he should live—live eternally, as do the angels, if obedient to the Divine commands. Death, therefore, is the unnatural thing! Do we think of angels as dying, and of heaven as filled with cemeteries? Have they doctors and undertakers there? Surely not! Yet it would be just as proper to speak of natural death amongst the angels as in respect to men.

The term spiritual death so frequently used respecting Adam and his fall is wholly unscriptural. No such expression is found in the Bible; neither such a thought. Adam could not die a spiritual death, because he was not a spirit being. He was an earthly being—not an angel, but a man. As the Scriptures declare of Adam, "Thou madest him a little lower than the angels; and crownest him with glory and honor, and didst set him over the works of thy hands"; "over the beasts of the field, the fish of the sea and the fowl of the air" (Hebrews ii, 7; Psalm viii, 5, 6).

It is, therefore, absurd for us to continue longer to speak of Adam dying a spiritual death, while admitting that he was not a spirit being. It was simply the man Adam that died. His death, however, did include the gradual processes of decay, and affected not only his bones and muscles, but also his brains—his every mental and moral quality. The sentence, "Dying, thou shalt die," took hold of him as an entirety; hence we find, as the Scriptures declare, that there is "none righteous; no, not one"—none mentally, morally or physically right. All have sinned. All come short of the glory of God in which Adam was created. From the moment of disobedience and Divine condemnation Adam and his race have been judicially dead and gradually going down, down, down, in degradation and into the tomb.

Speaking of the dying race from the judicial standpoint our Savior called them all dead. He declared that none has even a reckoned life, except such as by faith accepted him as their Life-giver—Savior. His words are, "He that hath the Son hath life; he that hath not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John iii, 36). Speaking to one who believed on him the Savior said, "Let the dead bury their dead"; go thou and preach the Gospel (Matthew viii, 22). From the right standpoint his meaning is evident. Let the dead, the condemned and legally dead world, look out for its own affairs. You become one of my followers and carry my message of life and hope to as many as have ears to hear!

"Dead In Trespasses and Sin."

Thus the whole world of mankind through heredity, through inherited weaknesses, through participation in the sentence that came upon father Adam justly, are all judicially dead in trespasses and in sins—not one of the race is worthy of eternal life upon the only terms and conditions which God can offer—namely, perfection and obedience to the Divine standards.

Jesus preached the Gospel amongst those judicially dead through trespasses and sins. A few had the hearing ear and accepted the good message and gave their hearts to God and accepted the terms of discipleship—to walk in the Master's footsteps in the narrow way faithfully unto death—willingly offering, sacrificially, their little all in the service of God, his Truth, his righteousness, his people. These few, as we have seen, the Savior recognizes as having life—as having "passed from death unto life" (John v, 24); nevertheless their change was only a legal one. Actually, according to the flesh, they were still imperfect, fallen, dying. But by Divine arrangement their new minds, their new wills, were accepted of God in Christ and their flesh ignored as dead, and they were begotten by God of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures and became sons of God. As sons, they were free from all the previous condemnation that came upon them as members of Adam's race—freed through the imputation of the merit of the Redeemer's sacrifice applied on their behalf. Thus they attained the liberty of the sons of God—freedom from sin-condemnation. So we read of them:—

"He came unto his own (nation—Jews) and his own received him not; but to as many as received him, to them gave he power (liberty, privilege) to become sons of God even to them that believe on his name (his greatness as Messiah), who were begotten not of the will of the flesh, nor of man, but of God" (John i, 13).

A similar procedure has been in progress throughout all this Gospel Age from Pentecost until now amongst the world of mankind judicially dead. It has reached a considerable number; but not many great, however, not many wise, not many rich, not many noble, not many learned, chiefly the poor of this world and the mean things, the ignoble things (I Corinthians i, 26-28).

"We Are Saved by Hope."

While speaking of believers begotten of the Holy Spirit and New Creatures in Christ Jesus as having passed from death unto life, the Bible, with equal explicitness, tells us that the resurrection of the mind, the will, of the New Creature, is not the completion of his salvation. He has received a great blessing, a great salvation; but what he now enjoys is merely a fore-taste, an "earnest," or hand-payment of the great blessing which he will receive eventually, if faithful to his Covenant unto death. The fruition of the hopes of the New Creation will be attained in the end of this Age at the Second Coming of the Redeemer, when he comes to set up his Kingdom in power and great glory for the blessing and salvation of the world, when "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess" (Psalm vi, 23). The Scriptures point the New Creation, the Body of Christ, the "saints," the Church, to that illustrious day as the time when they shall experience their glorious change from earthly to heavenly conditions—when in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye the resurrection power will lift them wholly out of earthly conditions to the perfection of the "Divine Nature."

Describing this "First Resurrection" of the saints the Apostle says, "It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body" (I Corinthians xv, 43, 44). Respecting this glorious consummation of the hopes of the Church, the Apostle declares it to be the end of our faith, the salvation of our souls—"the grace (salvation) that shall be brought unto you at the revelation of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (I Peter i. 13). For that glorious time the Lord's people are to wait patiently, realizing that, as New Creatures, they are being tested by the weaknesses and frailties of their old bodies reckoned dead. They are to show their loyalty to God by fighting a good fight against the weaknesses of the flesh, against the allurements of the world and the snares of the Adversary.

This Light Upon Our Text.

Consider now, in the light of the foregoing, the meaning of St. Peter's words used as our text. We perceive how the Gospel message from first to last has been preached to a dead world—to a world under sentence of death—to a world dead in trespasses and in sin and unworthy of Divine notice. The message has not gone forth to every creature yet. The Divine promise is that eventually every eye shall see and every ear shall be unstopped, and then "the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth" and "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess." But that will be during Messiah's Kingdom of righteousness, which will last for a thousand years for the world's uplifting. That time has not yet come; hence that glorious message which all must hear and those glorious sights which all must see and all confess are not yet revealed. As yet the message can be appreciated only by a comparatively small proportion of our race, "even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

The Redeemer says that they must not only be thus "called of God," but that they must be "drawn" by him, in order to be blessed during this Age. He says, No man can come unto me, except the Father which sent me draw him, and he that cometh unto me (thus drawn) I will in no wise reject (John vi, 44, 37). For these few of the dead world the Gospel in the present time is intended. No others have the ear to hear. But while those who hear are few in comparison to the millions of the world who do not hear, nevertheless they are many in comparison to the still fewer who accept the call under the conditions and limitations of the narrow way of self-sacrifice. "Many are called, but few chosen" to this high calling of joint-heirship with the Redeemer in his Kingdom.

By and by when all eyes and ears of understanding shall be opened and the blessing of the Lord through Messiah shall be world-wide, it will not be merely a calling to righteousness that will be extended. A command will be enforced by disciplines, "stripes," "corrections in righteousness," to the intent that the "dead" world in general may be blessed and be resurrected—lifted up, up, up, out of sin and death conditions to the human perfection bestowed upon Adam and his race in creation. Only the unwilling and disobedient will die the Second Death, from which there will be no redemption, no recovery.

Live In Flesh and In Spirit.

Those who hear the Gospel and accept its terms of consecration unto death of the flesh and are begotten of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures, "partakers of the divine nature," have so to speak, a dual existence from the time of their begettal of the Spirit. From God's standpoint they are New Creatures begotten to the divine nature, which, if faithful, they will fully obtain in the "First Resurrection." Yet according to all worldly concept of the matter they are still human beings, very much the same as they were prior to their consecration and Spirit begetting. The world may, indeed, see certain changes more or less radical in their conduct and words, but, like as not, these will appear to the worldly merely as fads, fancies, eccentricities. Perhaps, indeed, as in the case of St. Paul, they may be considered as "besides themselves"—mad. Hence, as the Apostle declares, "The world knoweth us not, even as it knew him not" (I John iii, 1). The world did not know Jesus to be begotten of the Holy Spirit, the Son of the Highest, etc., nor does the world yet know that he is highly exalted at the Father's Right Hand. So also it is with the followers of Jesus. They similarly have received a Spirit begetting and, similarly, in due time, are to experience the glorious change of the "First Resurrection" and be perfected on the new plane of the divine nature.

Judged of Men—Judged of God.

Note again the Apostle's words respecting these Spirit-begotten followers of Jesus, the "little flock," who walk in his footsteps of self-sacrifice. He says that these will be judged according to men in the flesh, but according to God in the Spirit. Men not knowing us as New Creatures in Christ may think of us and approve or condemn as they would think of and approve or condemn others—according to the flesh. The world will not see that in these New Creatures there is a battle in progress—the New Creature seeking to conquer the flesh and to bring it into subjection to the Divine will, but not always able to do so.

All we can do is to do our best, whether our best shall be as good as or better than that of our fellow-creatures who are not Spirit-begotten, but who may be less depraved by nature—nobler by heredity. Our consolation as New Creatures is that we are not to be judged by human judgment, but by him who called us and drew us to himself, who sanctified us through the blood of the Cross, and who begat us with his own Holy Spirit to his own divine nature. He will judge us according to the spirit—according to our minds, according to our intentions, according to our efforts. To the faithful who at heart are overcomers the Lord eventually will say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant! Enter into the joy of thy Lord. Thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things" (Matthew xxv, 21).

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The meetings in the M. E. church, which commenced over three weeks ago were still in progress up to last night, but will close unless special interest is manifested. Six or eight adults have professed conversion, a number have been reclaimed and the members have been revived. Rev. Dr. Joseph Lee preached earnest and able sermons Sunday and Tuesday evenings, and Rev. Bauman, of the U. B. church, gave us an earnest and helpful talk Monday evening. Later—The meeting took on new life last night when seven presented themselves at the altar of prayer and instead of closing the meeting as determined it will be continued indefinitely.

Mr. Bush Hardesty and family will leave for California this evening to be absent two months.

Preaching at Wesley Chapel at 11.00 a. m. and Sunday school at 2.00 p. m. Sunday.

Our sick, Mesdames J. E. Chance, A. R. Sperry, Levi Echard, J. L. Echard, A. W. Miller, J. A. Enlow and E. L. Winchell, are all showing signs of improvement and some of them have entirely recovered.

Mrs. N. J. Haymond, who recently returned from visiting friends in Kansas, is ill, but not seriously.

Mrs. Shawn, of Merchantville, N. J., was called here on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. J. E. Chance.

Baby Hugh Echard, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Echard, has been seriously ill for the past two weeks. He has a bad cough and cold.

Postmaster C. J. Rathbun received his commission yesterday morning.

Tuesday morning the thermometer registered seven degrees below zero.

The Red Men's wigwam will be taken from here to Oakland as soon as a dispensation is granted.

The followers of Pastor Russell held meetings in Maryland Home Monday and Tuesday evenings of this week.

Dr. W. W. Davis was here today.

Garthright's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all who are indebted to me either on note or open account to make immediate settlement as I must close up my personal affairs. If settlement is not made within a reasonable time my books will be placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to force settlement.

Thanking all for their patronage and soliciting a continuance of the same with the new firm, I am,

Very respectfully,
P. T. GARTHRIGHT.

BITTINGER.

At noon on last Sunday at the home of ex-Sheriff A. J. Oester near this village, Mr. Oester's eldest daughter, Miss Mary, was quietly married to Mr. Dennis J. Brenneman, one of our most estimable young men. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Young, of the Lutheran church, in the presence of the immediate family of the contracting parties. We join with the many friends of the young people in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous life.

Jacob Brenneman made a business trip to Grantsville and Jennings last Monday.

William Brenneman, of Meadow Mountain, was a Sunday visitor to this place last Sunday.

George Reckner, of North Glade, came to this village last Monday on a fox chase, and while here on Monday evening, he collected a party of his friends and they treated Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Long to a rousing serenade at the bride's home in this village.

Charles Stark, who was recently married to Miss Emma Sharpless, of Mt Zion, brought his bride to his home at this place last Monday afternoon.

Christian Schrock sold his farm to Clarence Stephens, one day last week, and after he disposes of his personal property at public sale on Feb. 2nd. Mr. Schrock contemplates removing his family to the vicinity of Norfolk, Va.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp was on the sick list last week but is better at this writing.

FRIENDSVILLE.

Protracted meeting commenced at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening last.

Mrs. Margaret Neil was a visitor to Confluence last week, returning on Saturday.

Camwel Ryland, little son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. W. Ryland, is down with typhoid fever. We trust he may soon recover.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Frankhouser is very sick with the grip, but hope he will be better before this is publsihed.

John Hetrick, of Cove, was a visitor to our town on Monday.

Mrs. George F. Frazee has been very ill but is now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCollough, who have been visiting here for some time, returned to their home at Durbin, W. Va., on Monday.

The eletric light plant has been shut down again, and there is no likelihood of its starting for a long time as it will be impossible to work at it until next summer when the water gets very low, so we are informed. Most of our storekeepers have decided to put in light plants of their own, as well as some of the private houses.

"Ten Nights in a Bar Room" will be produced here in a few weeks. Owing to the prevalence of colds, etc., among some of the dramatic company rehersals are being held back, but nevertheless it will be produced shortly.

The new road committee is hard at work getting things in shape. The time is drawing near when it will have to go before the County Commissioners. It will have to be prepared in legal shape for there must not be a loophole anywhere. The road must be built, and the good people of both Friendsville and Accident are looking forward to the time when they can drive over it. And while we are on this subject how much more convenient it will be for those persons living at Pittsburg, Uniontown, or any town on this part of the B. & O. R. R. to take their tickets for Friendsville, and be in Oakland or the Parks in less than an hour and a half by automobile from the time they leave here, whereas it now practically takes them another day, besides the expense by going around by Cumberland.

The following registered at the Crawford Hotel last week: Fred Richter, Accident; J. S. Barnard, Little Valley, N. Y.; M. M. Johnston, Meyersdale; Geo. W. Emory, Cumberland; O. G. Kantuer, F. W. Davis and wife, Confluence; Jas. B. Hostetler, Meyersdale; Wm. Rodgers, Somerfield; H. J. Speicher, Walter Haenftling, H. M. Speicher, Accident;, H. B. Freeburn, Winber; H. J. Killen, Somerset; A. J. Patterson, Pittsburg; L. B. Willey, A. W. Whittington, Baltimore; S. S. Claycomb, Johnstown; Harry A. Neff, Fittsburg; J. C. Kendall, Md.

HOYES.

Weather is fine, with a few inches of snow and moderate temperature.

H. R. Dewitt and wife of Oakland, were visiting relatives in Hoyes Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Oscie Casteel is again at her post of duty in the schoolroom. We are glad to say she has almost fully recovered from her recent illness.

Mr. Brown, traveling salesman for F. M. Wilson, Fairmont, Sundayed at M. Mattingly's.

Wm. E. Bishoff, railway postal clerk, has been a guest of his brother T. E. Bishoff for the past week.

The young people of McHenry gave a surprise party to Mr. and Mrs. Will McLane Wednesday evening of last week.

Albert Enlow spent Sunday afternoon with his sister, Mrs. Hauser.

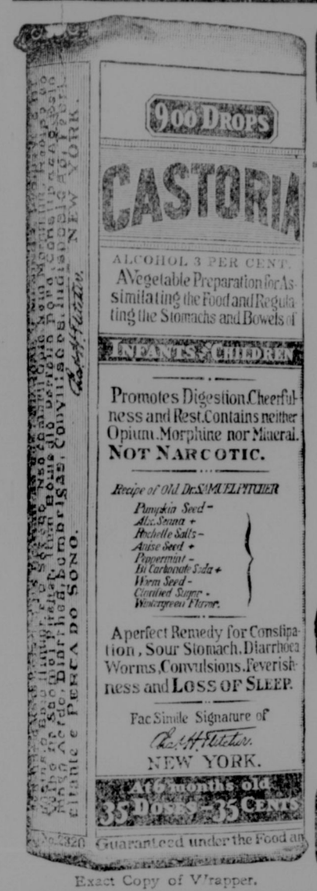
Mrs. F. D. Dewitt is able to be out again and has almost recovered from her recent illness.

'Squire N. C. Browning was a business caller in our town last Saturday.

Mrs. Gonder and son Frances, of Oakland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Mattingly for several days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hoye are the happy parents of a new daughter, which arrived at their home last Friday.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-iv.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

ORDER NISI.

Clarence M. Rathbun and Alonzo D. Naylor vs. William D. King and wife.

No. 1636 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 10th day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Fred. A. Thayer, the attorney named in the mortgage filed in said cause, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 10th day of February, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of February, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $1000.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber Garrett county, Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphan's Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters of Administration on the personal estate of

MARGARET C. REINHARDT,

late of Garrett Co., Md., deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

JAMES A. ENLOW,
Administrator.
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Marplany, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

WILLIAM P. HANSEL,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 12th of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

DAVID P. HANSEL,
Executor,
Lonaconing, Md.

TRUSTEES' SALE
OF VALUABLE
Real Estate
IN THE TOWN OF OAKLAND, CARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a deed of trust executed by Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley his wife, dated the 12th day of September, 1906, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 53, folio 351, etc., one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett county, Maryland, default having been made therein, the undersigned trustees, will be

TUESDAY,
the 7th Day of February, 1911,

at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder the property described in said deed of trust as follows:

Being part of the southern half of Military Lot No. 82, and more particularly described as Lot No. 3 and part of Lot No. 2 of the subdivision of the said southern half of said Military Lot No. 82 which is locally known as East End as laid out and platted by F. A. Thayer, et al., as a suburb of Oakland, Md., and more particularly described as follows: Beginning for the same at a stake standing South 23 degrees West, 186 feet from the Northwest corner of said tract called East End, and running thence South 67 degrees East, 47 feet to Market street, and with said street South 23 degrees West, 225 feet and six inches to lot No. 4 of said sub-division, and with the lines of said lot North 67 degrees West, 47 feet, then by a straight line to the beginning, this being the same lot conveyed to Joseph W. Cogley by deed from F. A. Thayer, attorney, &c., dated the 15th day of November, 1906, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 28, folio 448, one of the Land Records of Garrett county.

Said lot is improved by a good dwelling house, and an excellent well of water on the premises, and necessary outbuildings.

TERMS OF SALE:—Cash on day of sale or the ratification thereof by the Court.

WM. R. OFFUTT,
JULIUS C. RENNINGER,
Trustees.

N. B. Upon purchaser making a reasonable cash payment satisfactory arrangements can be made with the trustees as to deferred payments

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1911. NUMBER 49

"JIM" PSCIONER, ALLEGED MURDERER, ARRESTED HERE

Had Been Living Near Oakland for Two Years. Wanted at Davis for Crime.

Tuesday afternoon "Jim" Pscioner, an Italian, who has been living near Oakland for nearly two years, was arrested by Sheriff Shartzer on a warrant charging him with committing a murder at Davis two years ago, the murdered man being his cousin, who at the time was engaged in the fruit business at Davis.

Early Tuesday morning an Italian arrived in Oakland and made inquiries regarding Pscioner. He stated to a number of persons that he had spent a large sum of money in travel and search for the man, alleging that Pscioner had stabbed his brother, who died as a result of his wounds in a hospital at Philadelphia several weeks after he had been wounded.

Pscioner was out of town, having gone to Tunnelton where it is alleged he was bootlegging for an Oakland saloon keeper, but arrived here on the accommodation train. After being identified by the man who had trailed him he was placed under arrest and lodged in the Oakland jail where he is held pending the arrival here of officers from the West Virginia town who will take him back to Davis for trial.

Pscioner married a Miss Annie Ray, of Piedmont, and is the father of three children. They live on a small farm back of the Oakland Hotel grounds on the road to Crellin.

Homicide at Austen, W. Va.

Cecil Wolfe, 18 years old, is in jail at Kingwood, charged with the murder of A. R. Murphy, pit boss of the Austen Coal & Coke Company. Wolfe's father Chambers Wolfe, conducts a meat market in Austen in the same building with the Baltimore and Ohio station. Murphy went to the meat market and had an argument with young Wolfe concerning a trivial matter, resulting in Wolfe being knocked down twice. Wolfe drew a knife and ran toward Murphy, slashing him twice, rending his stomach. He died in ten minutes. Murphy was 35 years of age and is survived by his wife and five children.

The officers of the State Horticultural Department desire to inspect all nursery stock shipped into the State this fall and next spring. All persons receiving nursery stock from out-state nurseries are requested to notify the State Entomologist, College Park, Maryland. 3t

INTENSIVE FARMING

What One Woman Did With a Few Hens and Eight Cows.

Mrs. William G. Barrick, of Elk Garden, writes this paper as follows under date of January 20th:

"In the year 1910 I had ninety hens. Besides the eggs used for hatching and for family use, I sold 750 dozen, amounting to $187.50, I sold dressed chickens amounting to $42.97, making a total for the year of $230.47 on poultry. I also had eight cows and sold 352 gallons of cream amounting to $211.20; 921 pounds of butter which brought $218.50, a total revenue of $429.70 from the cows. In addition we raised eight calves on the milk and fed six hogs."

This record of production is seldom equalled by farmers or dairymen in any section of the country, and speaks well for Mrs. Barrick's management of affairs on her farm.

Bishop Anderson's Parents.

Several newspapers referred last week to Rev. William F. Anderson, a bishop of the M. E. church, as once living in Frostburg. Inquiry brings out the facts however, that his father William Anderson, was an early settler in this vicinity. He owned the farm, near Borden Shaft, now owned by Henry Morgan and built the brick house in which Mr. Morgan resides. Miss Elizabeth Wright, of the old Wright family, became his wife and several of the elder Anderson children were born on the first homestead. In 1854 the farm was sold to the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company and the family removed to Morgantown, W. Va., where the bishop was born. Here the old people spent the remainder of their lives. Davisson Armstrong, president of the Citizens National Bank, favoring the Journal with these facts, said in conclusion: "Mr. Anderson visited his former home here in 1872. During his stay I met and found him a sturdy, fine old gentleman."—Frostburg Mining Journal.

Shoulder Dislocated.

David Glaze, B. & O. Railroad foreman of trackmen east of Oakland, was caught by a handcar Monday and thrown with much force to the track striking upon his shoulder which was dislocated.

Just Arrived.

A lot of Fancy Gas Shades which were shipped last September and miscarried by the Railroad Company. The manufacturers have instructed us to close them out at cost. Regular $1.00 and 75 ct. Fancy Shades of Crystal Stripe, Red, White and Flowered designs, while they last 75 and 50 cents.

S. LAWTON & SONS.

The Republican for Job Printing.

Garthright & Harvey

SPECIAL SALE

In order to reduce our stock of merchandise so as to make room for our spring line, we will sell for cash or good country produce, for one week, beginning February 3, 1911.

Men's 50c Underwear	35c
Boys' 25c Underwear	19c
Ladies' 50c Underwear	35c
Men's 50c Dress Shirts	39c
10c Outing Flannel	8c
7c Calico	5½c
Lighthouse Washing Powder	4c
Soapine	4c
Ivory Starch	4c

Men, Women and Children Shoes at Half Price.

We have just unloaded a car of KILN-DRIED FEED, which we will sell at ROCK BOTTOM PRICES.

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 4.

16 yds. 8c Muslin	$1.00
12 yds. 10c Muslin	1.00

We will give 20 lbs. of Granulated Sugar with each $5 puochase made on Saturday.

Butter and Eggs are as good as GOLD here. Bring them along, also your Mine Props and Cross Ties.

Yours for Business.

Garthright & Harvey

SCHOOL BOARD CITED TO APPEAR AND ANSWER

Charges Filed Against Its Members by Residents of Garrett County.

In response to the demand made upon Governor Crothers by residents of Garrett county for a hearing of the charges against the Garrett County School Board, filed with His Excellency one day last week, February 15th has been set for the hearing which will take place at Annapolis unless a change in the date and place can be agreed upon by the parties.

An effort has been made to have the Governor fix another date for the hearing and to have the testimony taken in Oakland before an examiner who will reduce the testimony to writing and transmit it to the Governor.

FRIENDSVILLE.

This week we have had all kinds of weather, and Sunday the rain downpour was one of the heaviest, causing discomfort to many. The river and creek overflowed their banks.

C. C. Frederick and wife returned last week and may permanently remain among us.

A printing office will be one of the new ventures in our town shortly, and there is plenty of room for other enterprises with the facilities that we have. Power is going to waste for the sake of harnessing it and it is only for some of our business men to take the matter up. What would be the matter with building a cold storage plant? Then we could hold our own produce and reap the benefits.

Rumor says the B. & O. railroad will put their line through to Oakland this coming summer.

Harold McCollough and wife, who left last week for their home at Durbin, W. Va., found on reaching their destination their house burned down with all its contents. Mr. McCollough returned here the latter part of the week.

W. W. Savage has improved and enlarged his store by the bridge and put in a fine lot of new fixtures, counters, etc.

This week the papers pertaining to the new road will be placed in the hands of the Board of County Commissioners. We think the people have done finely and will be rewarded when they can travel over the road.

Alfred Glover who has resided near Uniontown for a number of years, brought some furniture and advertised an auction and it was sold Saturday, as well as a horse and buggy that was bought for thirty five dollars. The whole outfit did not reach one hundred dollars.

The city meat market was sold last week and Wm. Frederick, Sr., manager of the Bear Creek Store Co., was the purchaser. He will place Wallace Emery in charge who will look after the wants of the patrons.

Tom Fike, we hear, is confined to the house with a bad attack of la grippe. We trust he may soon recover.

E. M. Coddington left Saturday for a trip to Connelsville, Dunbar and other cities. He will return about the middle of the week.

Mrs. Percy Friend, accompainied by her young sister Claudine, left for a visit to Hagerstown, where they will visit their sister Miss Maria McCollough who is at college there.

Leon Hardie and wife left for the South, Friday, on the afternoon train immediately on receiving a telegram announcing the death of Mrs. Hardie's mother, who had been an invalid for several years. Their store will be closed until their return.

DWELLING HOUSE BURNED.

With all its Contents Last Saturday Afternoon.

The dwelling house occupied by Mr. W. J. Sowers, on the Perine lands, two miles northwest of Oakland, was burned last Saturday afternoon with practically all its contents, including clothing, furniture, etc. The fire caught on the second floor, probably from a detective flue, and when it was discovered it had gained so much headway that it was impossible to save anything from the flames. In his efforts to carry out some of the furniture on the ground floor of the building Mr. Sowers was painfully burned on his face.

Card of Thanks.

I desire to return my since thanks to the friends and neighbors for their many kindnesses during the illness and at the death of my late husband.

MRS. J. W. ARNOLD.

GETTING UNDER THEIR HIDES

Two Saloonists of Oakland Order The Republican Stopped.

Since the publication in this paper of a number of privileged communications, sermons and articles having a direct bearing upon the temperance conditions prevailing in Oakland, the editor has been warmly congratulated by a great many people and has been condemned by the very few. The publications were not made by the publisher with a view or in the hope of being commended, but as a duty we owe to the public and to society. With this well settled conviction uppermost in our thoughts we shall continue to strike the drink devil as hard and as often as it is possible for us, notwithstanding the dire threats that have been made by the saloonists of Oakland against us as an individual and in the capacity of publisher of the only paper in the county that has always been consistent on the question of temperance.

Monday afternoon's mail brought the followihg communication to this office:

Oakland, Md., Jan. 30, 1911.

Mr. Benj. H. Sincell,
Oakland, Md.,

Dear Sir:—Please stop my paper and send in bill, and oblige,

Very respectfully,
F. G. HYDE.

P. S.—Also stop F F. Goss' paper and oblige,

F. F. GOSS.

Complying with the request of Messrs. Hyde and Goss their names are dropped from our subscription list. We did not seek them as subscribers to The Republican nor shall we make an effort to retain their patronage. The loss of these two citizens of Oakland from our subscription list will not put us out of business nor change our attitude with respect to the liquor traffic and the thousands of ills that follow in its wake.

SHORT RUN.

The people of Short Run are well pleased with the appointment of J. B. Moore as road supervisor.

Mr. Jas. H. Wilson was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Zack Moon, a few days last week.

Mr. Scott Moon visited relative and friends in this community last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Harriet Harvey, who fell and sprained her arm a few weeks ago, is recovering slowly.

Granville Harvey and Tom Wilson were visitors at Mr. Joe Harvey's a few days last week.

Scott Harvey was a caller at Jas. H. Wilson last Thursday evening.

Judge Dauiel Wilson finished butchering last week.

Mrs. Granville Harvey, Anna Bell, Cassie and Cinda Wilson were visitors at C. B. Harvey's last Sunday.

Milo Wilson, the champion hunter of Short Run, captured and killed two foxes last week.

Astronomy has become quite an interesting study since we passed safely through the tail of the comet. A strange event was observed last Sunday evening at the home of J. T. Harvey, when two Moons were visible, one from the east and the other from the west.

Mr. Thomas Wilson has quit hunting panthers and gone to trapping near the famous "Huckleberry Rocks." The game captured so far being a chipmunk, a Norway rat and a weazel. Do not be discouraged Tom, the larger game are shy but they will come around before long.

Mr. Granville Harvey has established a "Pill Factory" in Garrett county with headquarters at J. H. Wilson's, where he is the sole manufacturer of Native Herbs. We would advise the Garrett Journal correspondent from Kitzmiller to obtain a package as they are said to be an excellent blood purifier.

Rev. Weidler preached an interesting sermon here Sunday.

Arthur Harvey, Milo and Tom Wilson and Scott Harvey attended the funeral of John Thrasher at Blaine last Friday.

Mr. Russell Fichtner was calling on Miss Jeanette Wilson Sunday evening.

Mr. Daniel Wilson visited his sister, Mrs. Hester Harvey, of Ryan's Glade, recently.

Mr. Edward Blackburn was a business caller in this community recently.

Mrs. Granville Harvey had a "Quilting" last week.

The school is prospering under the skillful management of Miss Anna Bell.

Thanking your for space in your valuable paper and wishing much success to THE REPUBLICAN. PAL.

Stock Sale.

Mr. J. A. Kelly, the Oakland liveryman, is making arrangements to hold another sale of live stock and requests that all who have horses, mules, etc., to offer at the sale to communicate with him as early as possible. The sale will take place at his barn in Oakland on March 1st and will be conducted along the same lines as the former one. 2t*

A NATIONAL HIGHWAY THRO GARRETT COUNTY

Government's Famous Pike May be Restored to Ancient Glory.

Extensive repairs are being made on the national highway, the famous turnpike connecting the middle West with the East, and which is also known as the Cumberland road from the fact that is passes through one of the most scenic parts of the Allegheny Mountains—Cumberland gap.

Several of the States through which this thoroughfare passes are doing their part toward repairing it—Pennsylvania is resurfacing its part, and many counties in Ohio and Indiana are doing what they can to mend it. Hopes are also entertained by motorists interested in the promotion of good roads throughout the country that the Federal government may yet be persuaded to cooperate with the States in a scheme for the reconstruction of this pike all the way from Cumberland, Md., to its western terminus, St. Louis, Mo., a distance of nearly 800 miles.

With the rehabilitation of this highway motoring would receive another great acquisition in the good roads movement, while another drive connecting by far than the course now usually taken across northern Indiana, Ohio and New York.

The Cumberland road is a national road, built by the government in the early part of the nineteenth century to bind together East and West and help the nation to grow. Its purpose was not primarily that of a pathway for travel, but to furnish a practical route for the transportation of freight.

Cumberland, Md., was chosen as the starting point of this road, because it was practically the head of navigation, being connected with Washinton and the Potomac by the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. From Cumberland it ran to Washington, Pa., then to Wheeling, W. Va., Columbus, Ohio; Richmond, Ind.; Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Vandalia, Ill., and finally to St. Louis.

This highway was the longest and straightest ever built by any government, and the total cost paid out of the United States Treasury was about $7,000,000. The total width of the road was 66 feet, of which 32 feet was grade and 20 feet was macadam.

At the present time a good deal of this national highway is in fairly good repair. At a moderate cost it is believed that it could be brought to a high state of perfection, furnishing the most ideal tour for motorists driving to either the East or middle West. This is the hope of those promoting the interests of the good roads movement, and there is a chance that the famous old "pike" may yet be restored to some of its ancient glory.—Boston Globe.

MR. PEDDICORD REAPPOINTED

Oakland Postmaster Has Entered Upon Second Term As Such:

Mr. James C. Peddicord, whose four year term as postmaster of Oakland expired on January 21st, was reappointed last Friday by President Taft for the succeeding four years.

During his incumbency of the office Mr. Peddicord has rendered excellent service to the public and his reappointment gives general satisfaction.

HOYES.

After several days of a pouring rain, February enters with the earth covered with her snowy robe and we are now anxiously waiting for Mr. Groundhog's decision for the remaining part of the winter.

Charles Callis, principal of the Selbysport school, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents at this place.

We have had quite a shower of traveling salesmen in our town the past few days. Among them were Mr. S. J. Cunningham, representing a Cumberland dry gooods firm, Mr. W. R. Mealy, Mr. C. T. Field grocery salesman and Mr. Rhineheimer representing a Pittsburg clothing firm.

The old time grip has again made its appearance in our community, claiming among its victims Mrs. M. Mattingly, Miss Bernadette Mattingly, Miss Mary Koontz and Mrs. Ella Lowdermilk.

Mrs. Asa Friend was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Hallie Custer last Sunday.

Mr. John Dewitt returned to Hoyes this week after spending sometime with his daughter Mrs. Dan Thayer, near Crellin.

Mrs. A. C. Dewitt also F. D. Dewitt are among the number who are indisposed from the effects of bad colds.

Thomas Bishoff made a business trip to Oakland and also visited his parents for a few days the past week.

Miss Freda Dewitt returned to her home last Saturday after visiting her sister Mrs. John Brenneman for the past two months.

Henry Hauser, wife and baby were gests last Sunday of Mrs. Hauser's parents Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Enlow.

Now last, but not least, was our quilting party. Mrs. D. O. Dewitt gave a quilting party to her lady friends Tuesday which we are sure was immensely enjoyed by all. Those present were Mrs. F. D. Dewitt, Mrs. Allan Glover, Mrs. Asa Friend, Mrs. Hallie Custer, Mrs. Will Frazee, Mrs. Joe Keller, Mrs. Charles Dewitt, Mrs. Ham Friend, Mrs. J. Arthur Dewitt, Mrs. W. A. Smith, Mrs. Hamill Casteel, Mrs. Will Mattingly, Mrs. Wm. Callis and Miss Friend. Mrs. Dewitt served her friends with dinner and supper, both meals consisting of all that heart could wish. All departed in the evening feeling that they had spent a very pleasant day together and also feeling very grateful to their hostess for her kind hospitality.

DIXON & KELSO

DIXON & KELSO offer

Feed and Grain

at the following CASH prices:

Shelled Corn per bushel,	$	.62½
Ear " "		.65
Oats per bushel, -		42½
Unbolted Meal per hundred,		1.25
Cracked Corn "		1.25
Homeground C. & O. Chop,		1.30
Corn, Oats and Barley "		1.30
Wheat Bran, - -		1.35
Low Grade Flour, hundred,		1.75
White Middlings, "		1.50
140 lb. Sack Salt, -		.50

Can handle 10-foot Mine Props and all kinds of TIES.

Will pay 75c cash for good, clean Buckwheat.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Even $10,000,000 worth of peace is worth having.

Money talks, but it will have to do more than that if it insures peace.

Every little while nobody's seismograph is recording an earthquake.

Every year this world drinks 1,250,000,000 pounds of tea. That seems plenty.

Whenever the dressmakers think of other outrageous spring styles they let us know.

That latest earth shock might be traced to the militarists bringing up their heavy artillery.

Still, feeding children on two cents a day and making them like it are two different propositions.

If we must have so many warships why not get Mr. Edison to make a few with his cement molds?

Now Peru and Bolivia are disagreeing. What South America needs is a fight and revolt antitoxin.

If motion pictures are to aid the insane they should not be associated with nickel-theater ventilation.

When a cold wave hits New York there are noses sympathetically red in Weehawken, Hoboken and Hackensack.

If all the New England hunting stories are true the abundance of venison should bring down the price of beef.

No objection is heard from the young men of the family to the new fad of employing young women chauffeurs.

A ninety-three-year-old man has been left a fortune but refuses to give up his job. He knows what has kept him alive.

The Courier-Journal notes the fine difference between the words "died" and "passed away" as applied to bank cashiers.

It was a stroke of genius which made the census taking precede the opening of the shooting season for amateur hunters.

Chicago highwaymen carried a victim three miles to rob him. That must constitute a violation of the interstate commerce law.

A new million-dollar apartment house in New York is to have a kindergarten, hospital and skating rink. The three don't go badly together.

Mrs. Russell Sage is going to build a model town for 1,500 model families near New York. But she may have to go out of New York to find her tenants.

When aerial freight transportation begins to become a fact, we shall hear some railroad men arguing that there is not enough air for the success of the plan.

An Iowa judge granted a divorce to a man whose wife liked cigarettes better than she did him. Must have been awfully good cigarettes or a pretty poor husband.

New York waiters are opposed to the institution of the Bertillon system, and the public will stand by them so far as pertains to thumbprints on the soup plates.

Paragraphers all over the country will mourn that it is the society women of Philadelphia, instead of Chicago, who are unwilling to show their feet in a classic tableau.

Dr. Wiley says that the earth is cooling and that men will freeze to death on the equator some day. From a man who is contemplating matrimony one would expect a brighter view.

Last year Alaska produced $20,463,100 gold, or about three times what Uncle Sam paid for the big territory. Some day Secretary Seward will have a fine monument as a good judge of a real estate bargain.

The students of Vassar proclaim with pride that they can cook, and cook appetizing meals at that. There is no danger in the higher education, even for the conservative, when women take pride in their cooking as an accomplishment, and men, as a rule, do not care how much science and philosophy their future wives absorb as long as the absorbing process does not interfere with the prospect of good dinners when the cook is on strike.

In the silk war between Italy and Japan goods and prices cut much more of a figure than battleships.

The brave police president of Berlin has taken a valiant stand against long hat pins, calling upon women to cease making themselves in this respect a menace to mankind. The long hat pin affected by fashion is really dangerous, as those who have been jabbed in crowded cars or on the street can testify. If the women won't be reasonable about it, won't they please be merciful?

The MAN in LOWER TEN

by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Simon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. Together they go to the Carter farm for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Alison's peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley, unnoticed, puts it in his pocket. He returns home and learns from his landlady of strange happenings. Blakeley learns that a fellow victim of the wreck, is in the hospital.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

And there was no one I could talk to about it, no one to tell me how hideously absurd it was, no one to give me a slap and tell me there are tons of fine gold chains made every year, or to point out the long arm of coincidence!

With my one useful hand I fumbled the things back into the bag and thrust it deep out of sight among the pillows. Then I lay back in a cold perspiration. What connection had Alison West with this crime? Why had she stared so at the gun-metal cigarette case that morning on the train? What had alarmed her so at the farmhouse? What had she taken back to the gate? Why did she wish she had not escaped from the wreck? And last, in heaven's name, how did a part of her necklace become torn off and covered with blood?

Downstairs McKnight was still at the telephone, and amusing himself with Mrs. Klopton in the interval of waiting.

"Why did he come home in a gray suit, when he went away in a blue?" he repeated. "Well, wrecks are queer things, Mrs. Klopton. The suit may have turned gray with fright. Or perhaps wrecks do as queer stunts as lightning. Friend of mine once was struck by lightning; he and the caddy had taken refuge under a tree. After the flash, when they recovered consciousness, there was my friend in the caddy's clothes, and the caddy in his. And as my friend was a large man and the caddy a very small boy—"

McKnight's story was interrupted by the indignant slam of the dining room door. He was obliged to wait some time, and even his eternal cheerfulness was ebbing when he finally got the hospital.

"Is Dr. Van Kirk there?" he asked. "Not there? Well, can you tell me how the patient is whom Dr. Williams, from Washington, operated on last night? Well, I'm glad of that. Is she conscious? Do you happen to know her name? Yes, I'll hold the line."

There was a long pause, then McKnight's voice:

"Hello—yes. Thank you very much. Good-by."

He came upstairs, two steps at a time.

"Look here," he said, bursting into the room, "there may be something in your theory, after all. The woman's name—it may be a coincidence, but it's curious—her name is Sullivan."

"What did I tell you?" I said, sitting up suddenly in bed. "She's probably a sister of that scoundrel in lower seven and she was afraid of what he might do."

"Confound this arm," I said, paying for my energy with some excruciating throbs. "There's so much to be looked after, and here I am, bandaged, splintered, and generally useless. It's a beastly shame."

"Don't forget that I am here," said McKnight pompously. "And another thing, when you feel this way just remember there are two less desirable places were you might be. One is jail, and the other is—" He strummed on an imaginary harp, with devotional eyes.

But McKnight's light-heartedness jarred on me that morning. I lay and frowned under my helplessness. When by chance I touched the little gold bag, it seemed to scorch my fingers. Richey, finding me unresponsive, left to keep his luncheon engagement with Alison West. As he clattered down the stairs, I turned my back to the morning sunshine and abandoned myself to misery. By what strain on her frayed nerves was Alison West keeping up, I wondered?

But McKnight had not gone, after all. I heard him coming back, his voice preceding him, and I groaned with irritation.

"Wake up!" he called. "Somebody's sent you a lot of flowers. Please hold the box, Mrs. Klopton; I'm going out to be run down by an automobile."

I roused to feeble interest. My brother's wife is punctilious about such things; all the new babies in the family have silver rattles, and all the sick people flowers.

McKnight pulled up an armful of roses, and held them out to me.

"Wonder who they're from?" he said, tumbling in the box for a card. "There's no name—yes, here's one."

He held it up and read it with exasperating slowness.

"'Best wishes for an early recovery. A COMPANION IN MISFORTUNE.'

"Well, what do you know about that!" he exclaimed. "That's something you didn't tell me, Lollie."

"It was hardly worth mentioning," I said mendaciously, with my heart beating until I could hear it. She had not forgotten, after all.

McKnight took a bud and fastened it in his buttonhole. I'm afraid I was not especially pleasant about it. They were her roses, and anyhow, they were meant for me. Richey left very soon, with an irritating final grin at the box.

"Good-by, sir woman-hater," he jeered at me from the door.

So he wore one of the roses she had sent me, to luncheon with her, and I lay back among my pillows and tried to remember that it was his game, anyhow, and that I wasn't even drawing cards. To remember that, and to forget the broken necklace under my head!

CHAPTER XIII.

Faded Roses.

I was in the house for a week. Much of that time I spent in composing and destroying letters of thanks to Miss West, and in growling at the doctor. McKnight dropped in daily, but he was less cheerful than usual. Now and then I caught him eyeing me as if he had something to say, but whatever it was he kept it to himself. Once during the week he went to Baltimore and saw the woman in the hospital there. From the description I had little difficulty in recognizing the young woman who had been with the murdered man in Pittsburg. But she was still unconscious. An elderly aunt had appeared, a gaunt person in black, who sat around like a buzzard on a fence, according to McKnight, and wept, in a mixed figure, into a damp handkerchief.

On the last day of my imprisonment he stopped in to thrash out a case that was coming up in court the next day, and to play a game of double solitaire with me.

"Who won the ball game?" I asked.

"We were licked. Ask me something pleasant. Oh, by the way, Bronson's out to-day."

"I'm glad I'm not on his bond," I said pessimistically. "He'll clear out."

"Not he," McKnight pounced on my ace. "He's no fool. Don't you suppose he knows you took those notes to Pittsburg? The papers were full of it. And he knows you escaped with your life and a broken arm from the wreck. What do we do next? The commonwealth continues the case. A deaf man on a dark night would know those notes were missing."

"Don't play so fast," I remonstrated. "I have only one arm to your two. Who is trailing Bronson? Did you try to get Johnson?"

"I asked for him, but he had some work on hand."

"The murder's evidently a dead issue," I reflected. "No, I'm not joking. The wreck destroyed all the evidence. But I'm firmly convinced those notes will be offered, either to us or to Bronson very soon. Johnson's a blackguard, but he's a good detective. He could make his fortune as a game dog. What's he doing?"

McKnight put down his cards, and rising, went to the window. As he held the curtain back his customary grin looked a little forced.

"To tell you the truth, Lollie," he said, "for the last two days he has been watching a well-known Washington attorney named Lawrence Blakeley. He's across the street now."

It took a moment for me to grasp what he meant.

"Why, it's ridiculous," I asserted. "What would they trail me for? Go over and tell Johnson to get out of there, or I'll pot at him with my revolver."

"You can tell him that yourself." McKnight paused and bent forward. "Hello, here's a visitor; a little man with string halt."

"I won't see him," I said firmly. "I've been bothered enough by reporters."

We listened together to Mrs. Klopton's expostulating tones in the lower hall and the creak of the boards as she came heavily up the stairs. She had a piece of paper in her hand torn from a pocket account-book, and on it was the name, "Mr. Wilson Budd Hotchkiss. Important business."

"Oh, well, show him up," I said resignedly. "You'd better put those cards away, Richey. I fancy it's the rector of the church around the corner."

But when the door opened to admit a curiously alert little man, adjusting his glasses with nervous fingers, my face must have shown my dismay.

It was the amateur detective of the Ontario!

I shook hands without enthusiasm. Here was the one survivor of the wrecked car who could do me any amount of harm. There was no hope that he had forgotten any of the incriminating details. In fact, he held in his hand the very note-book which contained them.

His manner was restrained, but it was evident he was highly excited. I introduced him to McKnight, who has the imagination I lack, and who placed him at once, mentally.

"I only learned yesterday that you had been—er—saved," he said rapidly. "Terrible accident—unspeakable. Dream about it all night and think about it all day. Broken arm?"

"No. He just wears the splint to be different from other people," McKnight drawled lazily. I glared at him; there was nothing to be gained by antagonizing the little man.

"Yes, a fractured humerus, which isn't as funny as it sounds."

"Humerus—humorous! Pretty good," he cackled. "I must say you keep up your spirits pretty well, considering everything."

"You seem to have escaped injury," I parried. He was fumbling for something in his pockets.

"Yes, I escaped," he replied abstractedly. "Remarkable thing, too. I haven't a doubt I would have broken my neck, but I landed on—you'll never guess what! I landed head first on the very pillow which was under inspection at the time of the wreck. You remember, don't you? Where did I put that package?"

He found it finally and opened it on a table, displaying with some theatricalism a rectangular piece of muslin and a similar patch of striped ticking.

"You recognize it?" he said. "The stains, you see, and the hole made by the dirk. I tried to bring away the entire pillow, but they thought I was stealing it, and made me give it up."

"The Stains You See and the Hole Left by the Dirk."

Richey touched the pieces gingerly. "By George," he said, "and you carry that around in your pocket! What if you should mistake it for your handkerchief?"

But Mr. Hotchkiss was not listening. He stood bent somewhat forward, leaning over the table, and fixed me with his ferret-like eyes.

"Have you seen the evening papers, Mr. Blakeley?" he inquired.

I glanced to where they lay unopened, and shook my head.

"Then I have a disagreeable task," he said with evident relish. "Of course, you had considered the matter of the man Harrington's death closed, after the wreck. I did myself. As far as I was concerned, I meant to let it remain so. There were no other survivors, at least none that I knew of, and in spite of circumstances, there were a number of points in your favor.

"I verified your identity, for instance, as soon as I recovered from the shock. Also—I found on inquiring of your tailor that you invariably wore dark clothing."

McKnight came forward threateningly. "Who are you, anyhow?" he demanded. "And how is this any business of yours?" Mr. Hotchkiss was entirely unruffled.

"I have a minor position here," he said, reaching for a visiting card. "I am a very small patch on the seat of government, sir."

McKnight muttered something about certain offensive designs against the said patch and retired grumbling to the window. Our visitor was opening the paper with a tremendous expenditure of energy.

"Here it is. Listen." He read rapidly aloud:

"The Pittsburg police have sent to Baltimore two detectives who are looking up the survivors of the ill-fated Washington Flier. It has transpired that Simon Harrington, the Wood street merchant of that city, was not killed in the wreck, but was murdered in his berth the night preceding the accident. Shortly before the collision, John Flanders, the conductor of the Flier, sent this telegram to the chief of police:

"'Body of Simon Harrington found stabbed in his berth, lower ten, Ontario, at 6:30 this morning.

"'JOHN FLANDERS, Conductor.'

"It is hoped that the survivors of the wrecked car Ontario will be found, to tell what they know of the discovery of the crime.

"Mr. John Gilmore, head of the steel company for which M. Harrington was purchasing agent, has signified his intention of sifting the matter to the bottom."

"So you see," Hotchkiss concluded, "there's trouble brewing. You and I are the only survivors of that unfortunate car."

I did not contradict him, but I knew of two others, at least: Alison West, and the woman we had left beside the road that morning, babbling incoherently, her black hair tumbling over her white face.

"Unless we can find the man who occupied lower seven," I suggested.

"I have already tried and failed. To find him would not clear you, of course, unless we could establish some connection between him and the murdered man. It is the only thing I see, however. I have learned this much," Hotchkiss concluded: "Lower seven was reserved from Cresson."

Cresson! Where Alison West and Mrs. Curtis had taken the train!

McKnight came forward and suddenly held out his hand. "Mr. Hotchkiss," he said, "I—I'm sorry if I have been offensive. I thought when you came in, that, like the Irishman and the government, you were 'forninst' us. If you will put those cheerful relics out of sight somewhere, I should be glad to have you dine with me at the Incubator." (His name for his bachelor apartment.) "Compared with Johnson, you are the great original protoplasm."

The strength of this was lost on Hotchkiss, but the invitation was clear. They went out together, and from my window I watched them get into McKnight's car. It was raining, and at the corner the Cannonball skidded. Across the street my detective, Johnson, looked after them with his crooked smile. As he turned up his collar he saw me, and lifted his hat.

I left the window and sat down in the growing dusk. So the occupant of lower seven had got on the car at Cresson, probably with Alison West and her companion. There was some one she cared about enough to shield. I went irritably to the door and summoned Mrs. Klopton.

"You may throw out those roses," I said, without looking at her. "They are quite dead."

"They have been quite dead for three days," she retorted spitefully. "Euphemia said you threatened to dismiss her if she touched them."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

THE GROWTH OF TOWNS IN WESTERN CANADA

A BAROMETER OF THE GROWTH OF THE AGRICULTURAL DISTRICTS.

The traveler passing through a country is impressed favorably or otherwise by the appearance of the towns along the line of railways. As they appear prosperous and of healthy growth he at once assures himself that there is either a local industrial factor to cause it, or a splendidly developed agricultural area from which is drawn the resources that contribute or make for the growth that is so readily apparent. On the other hand, if evidence of impoverished streets, badly appearing residences and business places and lethargic citizens, there is an absence of local industry and surrounding agricultural prosperity. There is no line of railway, whether main or branch, throughout western Canada, that through the towns or cities that are built along the ribs of steel do not convey the most favorable impression. The cause is not always apparent, but the facts are there and easily seen. In most cases the growth and the stability of these towns are caused by the excellent agricultural districts that are tributary; in some cases, manufacturing enterprises have sprung up, caused by the agricultural demands and needs. The Winnipeg Free Press and the Edmonton Bulletin have recently sent corps of correspondents through the provinces to secure data concerning the growth of the two or three hundred towns that have come into existence during the past two or three years. The particulars make interesting reading, and as one reads of the station house, the blacksmith shop, the boarding house and the store of April, being dwarfed in August by a hundred or more dwellings, by large hotels, by splendid stores, and a half dozen implement warehouses, not forgetting the two or three churches and the excellent public school buildings, it causes one to stop and think if they ever heard of such marvelous changes. Certainly not often. These are facts, though, as related of western Canada. Then, too, there are now cities—yes, cities of from ten to fifteen thousand people—where five or six years ago there was but the bare prairie and the lone section post. The changes in the Canadian West during the past eight or ten years have been marvelous, and it is no idle tale to say that the development in number and growth of the cities, towns and villages there in the past decade has eclipsed anything in the history of the building of a new country. Agriculture has been the basis, and it is agriculture of the kind that is lasting. The ease with which an excellent productive farm, capable of yielding a splendid living and large profit to the operator, is such that it has encouraged thousands to follow that pursuit, and also other thousands on the limited and expensive farms throughout the Central Western States as well as some of the Coast States, to enlarge their field of enterprise. The climate is excellent, and just the climate that is desirable for the healthy growth of man and the products of the field. All varieties of the smaller and better paying grains are raised, and generally with every assurance of good fields. With government supervision of railway rates, splendid markets are certain, and the highest prices realized. The Dominion Government, that has been carrying on a propaganda of securing settlers for the vacant lands, issues literature descriptive of those available in the provinces, and on request of your nearest Canadian government agent, copies will be forwarded free.

False.

Clerk—This is an eight-day clock.

Murphy—G'wan! It's a loi; ther's only sivin days in the wake!—Puck.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress after Eating.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

Kow-Kure

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow cure. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without "Kow-Kure." It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "What to Do When Your Cows Are Sick" sent free. Ask your local dealer for "Kow-Kure," or send to the manufacturers.

Dairy Association Co., Lyndonville, Vt.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

PEACE HATH HER VICTORIES

By EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT BY W. A. PATTERSON

IF THE war and navy departments would publish in book form the records of the service of officers and men in times of peace the readers thereof would be dispossessed of the thought that all the hardships undergone and all the heroism displayed by men of the armed forces were of necessity connected with deeds of warfare. There are many thrilling stories and many human interest stories in the "peace records" of the army and navy.

Recently the monitor Puritan, a heavily armored craft of one of the older types, was used for purposes of experiment with a new high explosive. Willard S. Isham, an ordinance engineer, invented the explosive, and his claim was that with it a vessel could be destroyed from the outside just as well as from the inside. It has been held that high explosives lose their force unless more or less confined. It was known to be the rule that the effect of the explosion generally went upward and outward away from the object against which it was discharged. Mr. Isham believed that a charge of his ammunition against the side of a vessel would open the armor and would not expend its force in the air.

The monitor Puritan was chosen for the experiment. A charge of 200 pounds of the explosive was placed in an unconfined condition against the Puritan's armor plate near the stern. Capt. A. M. Knight, president of the special ordnance board, with four volunteer sailors agreed to stay on board the Puritan when the explosive was detonated. More than this, Captain Knight had the task of punching small holes in the explosive with a lead pencil to permit the introduction of fuses. This was an exceedingly delicate operation and because of the fact that the explosive was a new combination it was possible that something might happen during the puncturing, lightly as it was performed. After the fuses were inserted Captain Knight connected electric wires with them and then went forward to a position on the berth deck with the four enlisted men who elected to stay on board with him.

The ordnance board officer turned a switch and the explosion took place. The report was thunderous. "It felt like an earthquake," said Captain Knight afterward. With his men the venturesome captain escaped injury, but their heroism was just as real as if they had been blown to atoms, for because of the fact that the explosive was a comparatively unknown quantity, no one could tell definitely what might happen.

Writing of the Puritan, which is a monitor, brings to mind the fact that officers and men serving on vessels of this type undergo hardships of which the people of the country know little. The monitor gradually is passing as an active service vessel and it is not likely that anybody connected with the service from admiral down to cook's mate is sorry for it. The heat in the monitors is something intense, and as the waves wash over the low decks of the vessels when any kind of a breeze is blowing the men are confined below with no air except such as is pumped down to them by way of the engine room, and this air is hot, oily and productive on many occasions of sickness, called sea sickness, but which in reality is nothing of the kind, although it has all the attendant symptoms of the real article.

The modern battleships are frightfully hot below decks, especially when they get into tropical and sub-tropical waters. A civilian who went to Panama with President Taft said that in his cabin when dressing for dinner he was obliged to stand directly in the draught of a blow pipe to prevent the profuse perspiration from so "melting" the bosom of his dress shirt that it would be unpresentable when he appeared at the president's table. The thermometer in the staterooms stood at about 112 degrees.

Some years ago an officer who was stationed on a monitor was found dead in his berth and the surgeons pronounced his death to have been caused by apoplexy, heat apoplexy the officers of the ship called it. An old naval officer in Washington has told me that the thermometer in the cabin of the officer who died stood at 140 degrees and that the death was due solely to a heat stroke.

During the Spanish war the monitor Miantonomah was on blockading duty off the port of Havana, Cuba. The Miantonomah is an old steel monitor cased in metal and with the deck just peeping above the water. When the sea was calm and the sky was clear the sun beat down on the metal and the men who had stood the night watches and were trying to sleep suffered more severely than do the people in the crowded back tenements in New York city on a hot July night when death walks through the streets. An officer who served on a monitor during the Spanish war told me that the average temperature for a long period of time in his cabin was 104 degrees.

Recently two young officers not long out of the naval academy were forced to resign from the service because they were constantly seasick while on service on the battleships. The young fellows stuck it out for several voyages, but when it is remembered that a seasick man as a rule is so sick that he is perfectly willing to die, it can be understood what these young fellows suffered during the weeks of the voyaging. They resigned from the navy simply because they could not be of any service. They were sick from the moment the voyage began until they were back once more in port. They were competent officers and since their resignation they have been given land berths as officers of heavy artillery in the United States army.

I asked an old naval officer recently, a man who served on the old frigate Constitution, if he knew of any cases of chronic seasickness among officers and men during the old days of the service. He said he knew of only one case, that of an officer who developed seasickness after some years of service, but that it was thought that a slight injury to his spine had affected his stomach and that it was this more than the motion of the vessel which was the cause of his ailment.

This same veteran officer said that there is considerable seasickness today in the navy, although comparatively few cases that could be called chronic, and that they were due, he believed, more to the heat of the modern steel vessels than to the motion caused by the waves. In the old days of wooden ships with sail power only, there was no heat on board except that given out by the galley and by the small stove which occasionally was to be found in the captain's cabin. The old-time ships in winter were kept in warm climates as much as possible or otherwise the men would have frozen to death.

The old wooden vessel, Jamestown, once commanded by Commodore Perry, who opened the ports of Japan to the commerce of the United States, is anchored in Hampton Roads, where it is used as a marine hospital service station. A surgeon stationed on the Jamestown once told me that in the old days, when the vessel was in commission the only way the captain could warm himself without going to the galley was to have a roundshot heated in the stove, then dropped into a bucket of sand to be carried aft to his cabin, where it gave out just enough warmth to temper for a few moments the cold of the quarters.

THE HOTTEST PLACE ON A BATTLESHIP

Capt. Edmund B. Underwood, United States navy, retired from the service recently after forty years' service in the line. Just after Captain Underwood came out of the naval academy and was serving as a midshipman he was assigned to the old ship Ossipee, which went to Cuba to bring back a vessel called the Virginius, which had been seized by the Spaniards in Cuba and its crew of Americans put to death. This country came near having a war with Spain over the Virginius incident. When the Ossipee was towing the Virginius back to America Midshipman Underwood was one of two or three officers who were assigned to the Virginius to look after it while the towing process was on.

The life on board the Virginius is one that it is impossible to describe. The Spaniards had left her in such a filthy state that living on board was intolerable even after cleaning processes had been tried. After a few days on board that ship the men looked as though they had been through a siege of sickness. Finally when off the Virginia capes the Virginius gave every evidence of being in a sinking condition. She foundered quickly and the officers and men on board escaped to the Ossipee, being obliged to leave their belongings behind. The beneficent United States government, because of some red tape reason or other, declined to make good to the devoted sailors the property which they had lost through no fault of their own and in direct line of duty.

Captain Underwood was for two years in command of the United States government station in the Samoan islands. He was considered one of the handsomest men in the service of his country. He was over six feet high, finely proportioned and a fine physical specimen generally. No war with man went on in the Samoan islands, but the heat and the food and the deviliishness of the climate generally did the work of the battlefield. If Captain Underwood had never been given an assignment at the Samoan islands it is probable that he would have continued in the active service until the age limit of sixty-two years was reached. The dangers of warfare are not the only ones by any means that navy and army officers are obliged to meet.

It may do no harm here to recall the story of the heroism of Lieut. James E. Bell of the United States army, who died because of his devotion to duty, died at a time when no bullets were flying, but when an even deadlier foe of necessity must be met. This story has been published many times, but it has its everlasting lesson.

Fort Jefferson, on the Tortugas, in August of the year 1873 was garrisoned by Battery M, First United States artillery. Outside of the surgeons there was only one officer, Lieutenant Bell, at the post. Capt. L. L. Langdon had been granted a leave of absence to go north to the bedside of his dying father. On August 28 yellow fever appeared at the post. Within two days four of the garrison had died. Upon the first announcement of the appearance of the scourge Lieutenant Bell sent all the women and children and some of the married men to an island three miles away. Within a day or two he sent to the same place nearly all the well men of the garrison, retaining only enough to nurse the sick. There could have been no criticism of Bell's course had he gone with the garrison, leaving the sick to the care of the surgeons and the nurses. He stayed and devoted himself to the sick in the hospital, assisted by the men who had volunteered. The heat was fearful. There was not a pound of ice on the island and many of the deaths that followed one after another were due to the lack of this necessity. There were 20 cases of the fever and for days and nights continuously the devoted lieutenant commander, the surgeons and the nurses knew no rest. With their own hands they dug the graves for the dead and with their own lips repeated over them the burial service.

Captain Langdon in the far north heard of the yellow fever at Fort Jefferson. He instantly relinquished his leave of absence and hastened to return to his station. Some months before the outbreak of the fever Lieutenant Bell had put in an application to be detailed as instructor of military science at the University of Vermont. The application had been granted, and Captain Langdon, hurrying southward to join his command, carried in his pocket the order relieving Lieutenant Bell from duty at Fort Jefferson and detailing him for work in Vermont. Langdon reached his post. He called in his first lieutenant and said: "I have here orders transferring you immediately to Vermont. You have done a noble work here. There is no reason why you should stay longer. You have been through enough of this awful thing. Go."

Bell said: "Captain, I don't want the order. If I read it I suppose I shall have to obey simply because it is an order. You keep it in your pocket until the fever is over and then I'll read it and go."

Langdon shook hands with him.

Bell went on with his work. In a few days he felt the hot hand of the scourge on his brow. He went to his tent, pulled up his little camp table and wrote an official letter to the assistant adjutant general at headquarters of the department of the gulf, Holly Springs, Miss. It was a long letter, covering many pages. There was in Bell's heart that day the fear that he might die and leave undone an act of duty to others. He cherished the thought of the loyalty of the surgeons and the enlisted men who had so nobly performed their duties to the sick and dying, facing the fever and death itself without flinching. He mentioned in this official communication each doctor and man by name, recommending them for recognition at the hands of the department. Of himself he said nothing, his whole thought was that recognition should be given to others.

Lieut. James E. Bell put down his pen, went to the hospital and in three days was dead.

MARKED BY A MIRACLE

Extraordinary excitement has been caused among the peasants in the neighborhood of Kiltimagh, County Mayo, this week, by a series of what are described as miraculous happenings at the convent there, a Dublin correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat writes.

Among the children who are being educated by the good nuns of Kiltimagh is a girl of thirteen, who has been an inmate of the convent school for the last three or four years. She is described as extremely docile and affectionate and more than usually religious. A few nights ago one of the nuns was awakened by fearful screams from the dormitory where the girl slept, and on going to her she was told that the child had had a terrible dream, in which she saw Christ on the cross and a soldier driving a lance into his side.

The nun comforted her and she went to sleep, but in the morning she complained that her arm was sore and on examination it was found to be marked with a cross in red and underneath the cross were the letters "I. H. S." A few days later a crown of thorns appeared below the cross and the letters "I. N. R. I.," and these were followed by the appearance of a chalice surmounted by a host in red. The marks have been examined by the parish priest, Rev. Father O'Hara, and by Dr. Madden of Kiltimagh, who vouch for their being there, but decline to express any opinion as to their cause. It is said that during the doctor's examination the stigmata bled freely. The nuns maintain stoutly that the child had no opportunity of inflicting the injuries, if injuries they be, on herself, and I understand arrangements are being made for a thorough investigation of the mystery by a committee of ecclesiastics and medical men.

Another case illustrating in another way the credulity which still is to be found in some parts of Ireland has just come to light by the prosecution at Granard of an Australian who had been traveling the country extracting money—not teeth—from country people who are afflicted with toothache. Thomas Kiernan said that the man told him he could cure him by extracting the nerves of his teeth and that when he consented to undergo the treatment the man took an instrument like a long needle, picked at his teeth awhile and then laid what looked like a little white caterpillar on his sleeve, saying this was the nerve and that he would never suffer from toothache again.

Of course, he did suffer, and when he went to a medical man for relief and told his story he learned how he had been swindled.

Christ in Office of King

By Rev. Robert McHugh Morris
Pastor of First Presbyterian Church
Evanston, Ill.

TEXT—For thus shall be richly supplied unto you an entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.—II Peter 1, 11.

The risen Savior executes three offices. He is our prophet revealing to us by his word and spirit the will of God for our salvation. He is our priest, offering up of himself a sacrifice to satisfy divine justice and reconcile us to God, and in making continual intercession for us. He is our king. In his kingly office he subdues us to himself; he rules and defends us; he restrains and conquers all his and our enemies.

That we may search ourselves and see first if we are citizens of his kingdom, and second, how loyal we are to that kingdom, let us note what are the conditions of citizenship. We shall find these conditions by references which originate in the king as he stands in his relation to us, and in this manner be able to show what is our religion toward him.

The first phrase which we are taught as setting forth the manner of Christ's execution of the office of kingship toward us is that he subdues us to himself. We talk much of Christ subduing the world. We pray, sometimes half-heartedly and sometimes with great meaning, that his kingdom may come, that his will may be done in earth as it is in heaven. We conjure before our mind's eye the lawbreakers, the flagrant sinners of the world. We draw melodramatic pictures of the thief, the drunkard, the roue, the murderer being subdued to the will of Christ.

There is something about the midnight mission which appeals to our dramatic sense. We love to dwell upon the rescuing of the perishing; we love to sing about throwing out the life-line; we love to talk about the gospel being preached in all foreign lands. We swell with pride when we hear how Korea is coming to Christ, how China and Japan are being enlightened by his light. We are ready to shout and say, "that is good, fine, let it go on. The time will soon come when the earth is as full of the knowledge of the Lord as waters cover the seas."

Now friends, that's all objective and external. It's all good; but the first thing anyone should see to when he prays that God's will be done in earth as it is done in heaven is that he himself be subdued to Christ. There are church members who will work for others and give money to missions (and both these things they should do) but who unfortunately stop just at that point and do not permit themselves to be subdued.

The first question for you and me to say is, "Has Christ subdued us unto himself?" Do you know there was and is a profound psychological and spiritual reason or meaning behind the "mourners' bench" of our Methodist brethren. We like the phrase, "mourners' bench." There may be better ones. Perhaps the idea would be better expressed if we said, "the self-abnegating bench," the place where men are willing to say, "I surrender myself." Not "I surrender five hours a week to the work of the church;" not "I surrender one hundred dollars a year to carry on his work;" not "I surrender a nominal allegiance to the kingdom, and am glad that the kingdom is spreading;" not that I surrender my name to the roll of some church and condescend to let my greatness reflect credit and glory upon the church of Christ. But that I surrender myself, that I surrender my will which is the same as saying that I am subdued.

Brethren, the first condition of entrance into this kingdom is not registering our names on the church rolls, or on the charity lists, or on the workers' tablets, good though these things may be; but the first element is being subdued to the king.

The second thing is that when we are subdued he rules and defends us. Now the rulership of Christ is not a hard rule. He is not a despicable and unfeeling tyrant. "My yoke," he said, "is easy and my burden is light." It is necessary for us to bear the burden, the yoke must needs be worn. But the burden cannot crush us and the yoke does not gall when we are subdued to his will.

If we are subdued his ruling will seems mild and gentle. It will not be arbitrary; it will not be merely that he might crush us beyond all hope of insurrection. He does not restrain from traitorous acts so much by threats of dire punishment as by showing us the pain it will cause his heart.

We all want the defense of the government. We walk these streets at night with a feeling of greater or less security, because we feel that the government of the city, through its police, is defending us.

So it is in this kingdom of Christ. It is only while we are under the rulership of the king that he can defend us.

Now the third and last thing involved in this execution of the office of kingship is that Christ restrains and conquers all his enemies, who are our enemies as well. Notice how this comes merging quietly out of our last thought. For to revert to our illustration: While we are loyal citizens of the city, the lawbreakers are the common enemy of the city and of ourselves. But when we have outlawed ourselves then we have become an enemy to the city.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months ..... .75
One copy three months ..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1911.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Drunks Continue to Flourish.

To the Editor of The Republican:

The drunks continue to flourish in our town, and their perambulations, up and down the streets, take up the sidewalks to the extent, in some instances, of causing our citizens, their wives and children to cross over upon the other side or change their course entirely.

The thing that makes the drunks do these things and the thing that makes the drunks is the saloon in our midst, and as long as the saloon continues to exist in Oakland just so long will the free passage of our people along the street be interfered with and impeded. But this is only one of the inconveniences suffered by our people. Others are the rowdyism which accompanies intoxication; the cursing and swearing on the streets; the sight of men reduced to a condition of helplessness in their efforts to move along; the low moral tone produced by this business; the death and destruction which follows in the wake of the saloon.

I believe our citizens have had enough of the saloon and that they are ready to rid our community of all its baneful and damning influences. The way is open to our people—all they have to do is to send the right sort of representatives to the next legislature, and then, good-bye to the saloon in Oakland.

Let us start the campaign now. Let the slogan be, "The Saloon Must Go."

DECENCY.

Oakland, January 30th, 1911.

Marriage Licenses.

Dennis Brenneman and Mary Oester, both of Bittinger.

William Elbert Thompson and Dora Edna Winemiller, both of Adrian W. Va.

Ballard Tyler and Chloe Mary Henline, both of Arcola, W. Va.

Otis Ray Miller and Fressie Ethel Henline, both of Arcola, W. Va.

George Richard Rinehart, of Cairo, W. Va., and Mabel Sherwood, of West Union, W. Va.

Hood Amos Thorn and Ruby Ashely, both of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Henry Herbert Stanley Mace and Jessie M. Hyer, both of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Earle Simon Selders, of Bittinger, and Amelia Beachy, of Confluence Pa.

Zellie Jacob Alexander Miller, of Elkins, W. Va., and Blanche Lulu Barrackman, of Mill Creek, W. Va.

James Harley Boram and Pearl Anna Gooden, both of Weston, W. Va.

George Lawrence Howell and Berta Dorris Sheets, both of Newburg, W. Va.

Edmund Francis Keene and Bertha Reed, both of Jane Lew, W. Va.

Cecil Ray Watson, of Roville, W. Va., and Florrie Helmick, of Arnold W. Va.

Ira Love and Elvira Franklin, both of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Parrick Hornbeck and Blanche Osborn, both of Gale, W. Va.

Noah Riggerman and Jessie Griffith, both of Dobbin, W. Va.

Francis Marion Vincent and Nora Hughes, both of Fairmont, W. Va.

Charles G. McCartney and Dessie Pearl Wolverton, both of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Fred Malcomb and Ora A. Chipps, both of Fall River, W. Va.

Frank Henry Davis and Grace Harris, both of Fairmont, W. Va.

Wild Cats Dangerous.

Wild cats are very numerous in portions of Garrett county this winter and are so fierce that it isn't safe to venture out on the country roads after dark. The cats are hungry, the cold weather and deep snow has made foraging difficult. A wild cat attacked a rural route carrier near Grantsville the other day. Several occasions of late these dangerous animals have followed pedestrians and horsemen.

Honor Roll of the Fourth Grade.

The following pupils of the fourth grade in the Oakland Grammar School were neither tardy nor absent during the month of January:

Helen Mason, Parran Davis, Alma Calhoun, Elizabeth Mitchell, Katie Lauer, Reva Davis, Elizabeth Willison, Margaret Sincell, Donald Sincell, Annie Calhoun, Ralph Robinson, Lorena Falkenstein, Eva Falkenstein.

BEALAH LOUGHRIDGE, Teacher.

FEBRUARY FORECAST

As Predicted by the "Old Reliable." Peter R. Smith.

February will come in cold. However, a change to warmer will follow on or touching the 2d and 3d, then more rain, sleet and snow will follow on these dates.

On the 3d the moon will cross the celestial equator, which denotes electric showers in the southern states. After the passage of the wave the weather will turn very cold.

A storm wave will form in the southwest on or touching the 6th or 7th and be on transit to the 10th or 11th. It will move northeast across the country. During the passsage of the wave the temperature will be much warmer and rain, sleet and snow will prevail in its tracks. The sleet and snow will be much more severe in northern parts of the country than in the cental portion. The wave will be followed by cold weather to the 13th generally.

A storm wave will be on passage from the 13th to the 16th. The temperature will be warmer during the passage of the wave.

About the 15th warm currents of atmosphere will be experienced as strays from the south. However, they are likely to remain hidden most of February and a large part of March. Rain and snow will show up about the 14th or 15th, and then be followed by a very cold wave on the 16th or 17th.

A storm wave will be on passage from the 17th to the 21st. On the 17th the temperature will change to warmer. Clouds will collect and organize into storm waves on or touching the 18th or 19th. Rain then will prevail, which will turn to snow, followed dy cold weather on the 21st, 22d and 23d.

A renewal of rain and storm-disturbed conditions will prevail on the 24th, 25th and 26th.

Some of the leading rain and storm factors denote much disagreeable weather at the close of February and the opening of March. Vigorous rains and wind storms and also electric showers will show up both north and south.

HAUSER.

The young people of Red House and vicinity gathered at the home of W. M. Devers last Saturday night and enjoyed themselves until the "wee sma' hours" were come.

Mr. D. O. Roth was an Oakland visitor last Wednesday.

Mr. Silas Arnold has moved the sawmill the Schaffer farm and will be sawing by the time this is read by many of THE REPUBLICAN readers.

Messrs. Sherman Devers and Sol Sisler were Crellin visitors last Saturday.

Misses Vernie and Bessie Gnegy last Thursday invited a number of girls to a quilting. A splendid time was reported.

Mr. Robert Lathum remained home until Monday, owing to the rapid and abundant rainfall on Sunday.

Miss Bertha Nicholson visited home folks near Cherry Creek Saturday and Sunday.

We are quite sorry that New Germany has been driven almost frantic because of their inability to locate Hauser. We are likewiss sorry to learn that the correspondent of New Germany had added materially to the precipitation of the last few weeks because he had disturbed the atmospheric conditions. We are rather stoic and refuse to show our emotion in tears. However can truthfully say we feel it our duty to inform readers where Hauser is and to do so will mean some history.

Hauser was once a little country postoffice that was greatly appreciated by all but the postmaster. It is located a short way north of Gnegy church, about three miles south of Red House. But the modern conveniences of Uncle Sam made it possible to relieve the postmaster and now R. F. D. No. 2 carrier delivers the mail here. Hence the absence of Hauser upon the map. Shake.

DELAYED.

In the last issue we were quite brief, but the moisture in the soil was of such a consistency that all that could do so remained at home and of course caused a dearth of news.

Mrs. Elmer Schaffer returned home Saturday from a visit to her mother, Mrs. Dodge, near Sunnyside.

This neighborhood enjoyed the company of Floyd Artis, who is working at Dobbin, W. Va., over Sunday.

The baby of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Evans, just over the West Virginia-Maryland state line, died last Saturday night and was buried Monday at Texas. The bereaved family has the sympathy of many friends in this heighborhood.

The chickens in this neighborhood have given up the strike and are going to work in earnest. Verily the hen is a farmer's best ally and is a record treaker making her way and large dividends.

Miss Bertha Nickolson visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Schaffer Saturday and Sunday.

The distemper which had made its entry into this vicinity has about disappeared.

I missed New Germany items this week, they being much shorter than Hauser. At least Hauser was not remembered because of her absence. A muse who can sing so neatly and withal write such newsy items should remember that others take pleasure in having what may not be even commonplace to him. Come regular and do as you did in the first issue and no blue pencil will ever strike your paper.

Miss Myrtle Lathum and her little Cousin Nellie Cottington came down from Sunnyside and spent Sunday with home folks.

Several quilting bees have been held in this community and were well attended.

It is the intention to move the saw mill to the Schaffer farm this week and and then to hear it whistle and hum for three or four months.

Every one is quiet in this vicinity and of course news is tolerably scarce.

Communion Services.

The second Communion service for the present conference year will be held at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday morning, the 5th inst., at 10.30 oclock. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited. The door of the church will be opened for the reception of members.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address

DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Jumbo Farm Fencing.

Cheapest, strongest, most durable Fence ever offered.

Sold on a base of 3c. per pound, thus paying for values, not rod price.

Comes as cheap as barbed wire and is made throughout of No. 9 wire.

No stay wires lighter than the line wires.

A fence is like a chain: no stronger than its weakest link.

No wraps to get loose to hold moisture and cause rust.

No projections to injure stock or tear wool from sheep.

Stronger at the joints than any other fence.

Guaranteed to stand the full strength of wire at joints and not to separate.

Guaranteed that the wire is not injured at the joints.

Guaranteed adjustable to uneven ground.

Guaranteed to be made of open-hearth wire of uniform quality.

Guaranteed to be heavier galvanized. It is impossible to put as much zinc on a light guage wire as on a heavy wire.

No wire fence should ever be put on an American farm that has a wire in it lighter than No. 9.

Buy only open-hearth wire—best wire that can be produced for fencing.

Bessemere steel rusts quicker, is not uniform; is likely to have hard spots in it when drawn out into wire.

There is no question but that large wires in fencing will last longer and at 3c. a pound is the cheapest fence, because the cost per pound of fence made of large wires does not increase in the same proportion as the size of the wire. Use no fence with stay wires made of lighter wire than No. 9.

Samples of all No. 9 Jumbo Fences now on exhibition at our store. Call and examine size and style at a 3c. base.

In order to get full benefit of prices must have your order on or before March 1st, as the factory requires full specifications by that time for spring shipment.

Will also take orders for wire nails to be shipped in car with wire at $2 per keg base price; barbed wire, galvanized, $2.50 per hundred or 80 rod bundles; heavy weight, at $1.75; light weight, bundles, 80 rods, $1.65.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Mortgagee's Sale

OF VALUABLE

Coal & Timber Lands

Lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the 26th day of October, 1910, duly recorded in Garrett County, Md., wherein William U. Hensel, of Lancaster City was duly authorized to make sale of the real and personal property covered and conveyed by said mortgage, in case of default by said mortgagor in the payment of certain moneys secured by the same and such default having occurred, the undersigned William U. Hensel, as such attorney named in said mortgage to make this sale, will, on

SATURDAY,

the 25th day of February, 1911

AT 11.00 O'CLOCK A. M.,

in front of the Courthouse door in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, State of Maryland, sell at public auction, all the real and personal property, lots and parcels of grounds, and timber and timber rights, covered and conveyed by said mortgage, the same lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in said Garrett County, Maryland, and the same being particularly described as follows, viz:

The land is located in the northern part of Garrett County, Md., and lies within districts No. 3 and No. 12. The county road running from Engle's Mills to Bittinger traverses this property in a southeasterly direction, the property being about a mile and a-half from Engle's Mills and about two and a-half miles from Bittinger. The portion of the property, known as the second and third parts of "Rights of Man and Common Sense" being at the summit of Negro Mountain.

FIRST. All those four lots or parcels of ground, lying in Garrett County, Maryland, which are known as Military Lots Nos. 2478, 2479, 2480 and 2481, containing in the aggregate 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots of ground which were conveyed to Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others by deed dated March 30th, 1910, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Md., and being also part of the lands which were conveyed by J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by deed dated August 14, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 589, one of said Land Records.

SECOND. All those four lots and parcels of ground lying near Engles Mills, in Garrett County, Maryland, known as Military Lots Nos. 2454, 2455, 2456 and 2457, containing 200 acres of land more or less, they being the same lots and parcels of ground which were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others, by deed dated March 30, 1910, recorded in Liber 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being a part of the same lands which were conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

THIRD. All the timber and timber rights in and upon all those two parts of a tract of land called "The second and third parts of the Rights of Man" and "Common Sense," containing together 500 acres of land more or less, which said timber and timber rights were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by George T. Brew and wife, by deed dated March 28, 1910, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, Folio 283, one of said Land Records, excepting therefrom so much of the said timber and all that portion of said land which was conveyed away from the same by Lon Ininger prior and up to January 5, 1892, and being the same timber and timber rights described in and conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller and others to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated the 14th day of August, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

FOURTH. All the rest and residue of all that lot and parcel of land lying and being near Engle's Mills, in said county, and known as "Lot Number Two" of the four lots in which the tract known as "The Rights of Man," second and third parts, and "Common Sense" are now divided, contained within the following metes and bounds, to-wit:

Beginning for the same at the beginning of Lot No. 1, and running with the lines of the "Rights of Man," second part, East 64 perches, South 60 degrees East, 60 perches; North 70 degrees East, 80 perches; South 35 degrees East, 60 perches; then with the first line of "Park," East 64 perches to the beginning of the "Rights of Man" third part, and with the lines thereof, South 146 perches, East 241 perches to the end of the 25th line of Common Sense, and with the 26th line thereof corrected, South 6 degrees East, 150 perches to a line of the land conveyed by Robert Oliver to John Beachy, and with said line, East 26 perches to the given line of Common Sense, which is also the 3rd line of Lot No. 2550, then with the range of lots, North 676 perches to the end of the first line of Common Sense, and with the lines thereof East 20 perches, North 100 perches, West 80 perches, North 200 perches; then North 14 degrees East, 90 perches to the end of the 2nd line of Lot No. 2456; then with the lots, West 300 perches, South 320 perches to the beginning of the tract called "Ormes Trouble;" then reversing the given line thereof, South 15½ degrees West, 271 perches to the beginning, containing, in the residue of said tract land,

500 Acres, More or Less.

Being the same tract and parcel of land conveyed by George T. Brew to the said J. Frank Keller and others by deed dated May 24, 1900 recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 390, of said Land Records, and being part of the lands conveyed by said J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by the said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid, excepting however, from said last tract and parcel of the timber and timber rights belonging to said land, which were conveyed by said George T. Brew and others to said Jacob G. Stauffer by the aforesaid recorded deed of March 28, 1900, recorded as aforesaid.

FIFTH. All the plant and machinery, railways and tramways, buildings and improvements now on the lands hereinbefore mentioned and described together with all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, in and to all the same or which it may otherwise have under its charter.

All the above lots, tracts and parcels of lands and timber and timber rights, together with all the plant, machinery, railways, tramways, houses, buildings and improvements of every kind thereon, will be sold as a whole, as one property and plant.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by the mortgage—Cash, $1,000 of which shall be paid on the day of sale and the remainder which shall be paid as soon as said sale is ratified by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

WILLIAM U. HENSEL,
Attorney named in Mortgage.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of B. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of
B. Worth Jennings, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS.

January 31st, 1911.

The Lonaconing Savings Bank

Of Allegany County.

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays. 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Order of Publication.

Saby J. Miller, vs. John Miller, o. 1718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendent.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married about the year 1880, and that they lived together as man and wife until about the 25th day of November, 1909, and as a result of said marriage five children were born unto them, three girls and two boys, the youngest of which is about ten years of age.

That since said marriage the plaintiff has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife.

The bill then charges that about the said 25th day of November, 1909, that the plaintiff discovered that the defendant was untrue to her, and was visiting and cohabiting with lewd and abandoned women, whose names are unknown to her, that on said 25th day of November, 1909, that the defendant returned home after being absent for ten days or more, and was then suffering from a loathsome disease as a result of cohabiting with lewd women as aforesaid, and after being convinced that such was the case she charged the defendant with said unfaithfulness, and after first denying it, he afterwards in the presence of witnesses admitted such to be a fact, and undertook to explain to the plaintiff the circumstances in excuse for his unfaithfulness.

The bill further charges that after discovering the defendant's unfaithfulness she never cohabited with him again, and later on they entered into a written agreement to live apart, and since said time they have never lived together.

The bill further states that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and prays for an order of publication against the defendant and for other and further relief.

It is thereupon this 18th day of January, 1911, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of February, 1911, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before 4th day of March next, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk 4t-4

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of Instruction leading to professional degree of B. S.

Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $69.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Prop'r

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars

Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt	Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis	George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell	William R. Stull
Scott T Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Dr. J. W. Laughlin and Mr. S. P. Specht, of Deer Park, are in Oakland today on business.

Mr. Stanhope O. Crane, of Terra Alta, is spending a few days in Oakland on a visit to friends.

Money to loan in amounts to suit borrower. RENNINGER & OFFUTT, attorneys.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert White, of Terra Alta, were guests on Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Harland L. Jones.

Miss Marguerite Davis has returned to Oakland after a visit of two or three weeks to her home at Frostburg.

Dr. W. W. Davis spent Sunday at Frostburg, where he preached in the M. E. Church morning and evening.

Miss Margaret Friese, of Bridgeport, W. Va., spent several days last and this week in Oakland as the guest of relatives.

Mr. Hillerary Broadwater, of Grantsville, visited his brother, Dr. N. I. Broadwater, in Oakland, a day or two this week.

Capt. James A. Hayden has been confined to his home at the Park since last Friday suffering with an acute attack of the grip.

WANTED—Five cars scrap iron, zinc, copper and brass. Garthright & Harvey, Mountain Lake Park.

Rev. J. A. McClelland, of Grafton, spent last Friday afternoon and evening in Oakland as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Creutzburg.

Mrs. J. K. Campbell has returned to her home in Oakland after an absence of several weeks which she spent with relatives in Baltimore.

Mrs. James Willison and Miss Mayme Miller were in Grafton and Fairmont, W. Va., last Friday and Saturday where they were guests of friends.

Mr. F. W. Chase, manager of the Mountain View Farm, south of Oakland, was in the city Tuesday on business when he called at this office.

Mr. N. U. Bond spent Sunday at Thomas, W. Va., when he went to see his brother, Mr. W. C. Bond, who has been quite ill with an attack of the grip.

Mr. Thomas E. Bishoff, of Hoyes, came up to Oakland last Saturday and spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Bishoff, near town.

Mr. W. R. Stull, who has been in St. Augustine, Fla., for several weeks, arrived in Oakland last Friday and remained a few days when he returned South.

Mrs. E. Fundenburg and daughter Miss Tecla, who have been on an extended visit to relatives and friends at Carlisle, Pa., and Cumberland, returned to Oakland Saturday.

Mr. Horace Coddington, who has been engaged in construction work on the line of the B. & O. at a point near Hancock, arrived in Oakland last Friday and expects to leave for the Middle West in the near future.

Mr. George F. Richardson, of St. Petersburg, Fla., the oldest surviving uncle of the editor of this paper, surprised his relatives in Oakland Monday afternoon by his unannounced arrival here, where he will remain for some time visiting.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Col. Sam B. Lee, of Terra Alta, was in the city Tuesday on business. The Colonel informed us that he may dispose of his holdings at Terra Alta within the next few months and return to Garrett county to live. He will be warmly welcomed by his many friends here.

TO THE RESCUE!

A BANK ACCOUNT IS YOUR RESERVE IN THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

W. L. DOUGLAS, the great Boston shoe manufacturer and former Governor of Massachusetts, fisrt saved and banked $600 he got for making and mending shoes. This was his start in business. Today he is worth many millions.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
OAKLAND, MD.

THE DEATH RECORD.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Carney died at the home in Oakland yesterday of pneumonia, after a brief illness. The funeral occurred this morning from the Catholic church.

Messrs. Charles A. Green and David Hansel, both of near Lonaconing, were in Oakland yesterday going from here in the afternoon to Mountain Lake Park where they attended the sale of the personal property of the late Robert H. Gordon sold by Lieut. E. S. West as agent.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Yost, of Roanoke, Va., have gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., for the benefit of Mrs. Yost's health which has been very precarious for some time past. They will probably spend some time in Cuba, also. Mr. Yost, who is a native of Garrett county, Md., is a prominent manufacturer and leading business man of Roanoke.—Meyersdale Republican.

Dr. Shelton, the recently elected Superintendent of Mountain Lake Park Association, has advised a friend in Oakland that he will start east from his present home in Iowa sometime next week, expecting to arrive here about the 7th inst., and acquaint himself with conditions prior to taking charge of the affairs of the Park on April 1st at which time the tenure of Dr. Davis as superintendent ends.

By advertisement printed elsewhere in this paper today Mr. William U. Hensel, attorney for the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pa., advertises a large body of land lying near Accident and Grantsville, the property of the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, upon which the owners had executed a mortgage to the trust company for they payment of certain moneys and defaulted, hence the sale.

Messrs. Charles S. Davis and John W. Davis, members of the firm of J. M. Davis & Sons of Oakland, will leave here for Pittsburg, Pa., Monday where they will exhibit the Davis Range at the meeting of the Pennsylvania Hardware Association to be held in DuQuense Gardens all of next week. Exhibits of stoves, machinery, tools, etc., handled and manufactured by hardware men from all parts of the country will be upon exhibition at the meeting and their good points will be exploited by the exhibitors. The Messrs. Davis will not return to Oakland until the latter part of the week.

The condition of ex-State Senator Richard T. Browning, whose illness was noted in these columns last week was so grave on Saturday that the absent members of his family were summoned to his bedside and the last rites of the church administered to the sick man. His daughter Sister Marie Teresa, known to the world as Miss Bessie Browning, accompanied by Mother M. Angela, of Our Mother of Sorrows Convent, Philadelphia, arrived here Monday morning. His son Mr. Getty Browning, came on Sunday evening. Another son, Richard, who is in Spokane, Washington, is on his way east and is expected within a day or two. Since Monday Mr. Browning has shown signs of improvement which is encouraging to his family and friends.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Sunday school at 2:15 p. m.
Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.
Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows:
Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 7:30 p. m.
Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Deer Park—Preaching at 11 a. m.
Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m.
Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m.
Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m.
Sunday school at 2.30 p. m.
Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Ferndale—Preaching at 11 a. m.
Loch Lynn—Preaching at 7:30 p. m.
Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

A Disastrous Fire Averted.

Last night Mr. James P. Treacy, on his way home after closing his store, discovered fire in the Liller barber shop, located in the Ravenscroft building, which had communicated to the floor from a mop set set on fire by a match carelessly dropped upon it. Had the fire not been discovered at the time there is every probability that a most serious fire would have resulted.

Notice of Dissolution.

This is to give notice that the copartnership heretofore existing between Samuel H. Welch and Joseph E. Callis, trading and doing business under the firm name of Welch & Callis, at Mountain Lake Park, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Callis retiring from the firm.

WELCH & CALLIS.

Garthright's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all who are indebted to me either on note or open account to make immediate settlement as I must close up my personal affairs. If settlement is not made within a reasonable time my books will be placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to force settlement.

Thanking all for their patronage and soliciting a continuance of the same with the new firm, I am,

Very respectfully,
P. T. GARTHRIGHT.

Call for Your Letters.

Mr. M. Wales, Frank Ringer, Ada Nuzum, Mrs. M. M. Van Sickle, C. L. Browning.

BITTINGER.

On last Sunday the rain fell steadily all day and at times amounting to a downpour. This storm was followed by a terrific wind storm which continued all day Monday, blowing down many trees that in places obstructed the roads.

J. Turner Lohr, of Mt. Lake Park, spent last Monday evening and night with friends in this village.

M. J. Miller & Sons, of Accident had a car load of rye shipped to this place last week and hauled the grain on wagons to their distillery near Accident. The heavy hauling did considerable damage to the roads.

Earle Selders, of this neighborhood, and Miss Amelia Beachy, of Fort Hill, Pa., were quietly married at Oakland one day last week and are spending this week with the bride's parents at Fort Hill. We extend our congratulations and best wishes to the young couple.

Simon Beachy, of the Bender settlement, was a pleasant caller in this village last Monday afternoon.

Earl Stanton and family, of Grantsville, spent last Sunday with Mrs. Stanton's parents at this place.

Henry B. Wiley made a business trip down on Savage last week, returning last Monday afternoon.

A number of the young friends of Miss Sarah Bittinger, held a party in honor of her eighteenth birthday on Wednesday evening of last week. The evening was spent in pleasant pastimes at Miss Bittinger's home.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

COPPER COFFEE POTS, NICKEL PLATED, the regular $1 kind, this week	75c
COPPER TEA POTS, NICKEL PLATED, the regular $1 kind, this week	75c
COPPER TEAKETTLES, NICKEL PLATED, the regular $1.25 kind, this week	1.00
WASHBOILERS, HEANY COPPER BOTTOMS, the regular $1.50 kind, this week	1.25
COFFEE MILLS, the regular 75c kind, this week	50c
WASH BOARDS, Glass Rub, the regular 50c. kind, this week	40c
WASH BOARDS, Brass Rub, the regular 40c. kind, this week	30c
BUTCHER KNIVES, the regular 25c. kind, this week	15c
KNIVES AND FORKS, the regular 75c. kind, this week, per set	50c
KNIVES AND FORKS, the regular 50c. kind, this week, per set	25c
TEA SPOONS, the regular 25c. kind, this week	15c
TEA SPOONS, the regular 20c. kind, this week, per set	10c
POCKET KNIVES, the regular 75c. kind, this week	50c
POCKET KNIVES, the regular 50c. kind, this week	30c
POCKET KNIVES, 3 blades, this week	15c
SHOE BRUSHES, the regular 25c. kind, this week	15c
ALUMINUM SALT AND PEPPERS, the regular 15c. kind, this week	10c

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,
S. LAWTON & SONS.

DR. J. E. LEGGE,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Offers his Services to the citizens of Oakland and vicinity.
Office in Garrett National Bank Building

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season
Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The Baltimore News

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Published Every Afternoon, Including Sunday

A Newspaper for the Home, for the Family Circle

Covers thoroughly the news of the city, State and country.

Complete market reports.

Buy it from your local newsdealer or order it by mail.

One month	30c.	Six months	$1.75
Three months	90c.	One year	$3.50

The Baltimore News, Baltimore, Md.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Jan. 19, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, Feb. 5th, 1911,

to hear appeals and make transfers on the old assessment as the new assessment will not be finished in time for the 1911 levy.

Road Supervisors are requested to file their oath and bonds at once so they can be approved on above date.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,
Executrix.
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

43-3t-pd

GREATEST BARGAINS
EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE
CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out yard work, also 20 BIG YOUNG FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

Some Suspicious Persons

Enquired if we were "hiring" a certain "weekly" paper to abuse us.

Of course every time a spot light is turned on from any source it offers a splendid chance to talk about the merits of the products, but 'pon honor now, we are not hiring that "Weekly."

The general reader seldom cares much for the details of "scraps."

A few may have read lately some articles attacking us and may be interested in the following:

Some time ago a disagreement arose with a "Weekly." They endorsed our foods by letter, but wanted to change the form of advertising, to which we objected.

The "Weekly" discontinued inserting our advertisements while they were negotiating for some changes they wanted in the wording and shape of the advertisements, and during this correspondence our manager gave instructions to our Advertising Department to quit advertising altogether in that "Weekly."

Quite a time after the advertising had been left out, an editorial attack came. We replied in newspapers and the scrap was on.

Then came libel suits from both sides, and some harsh words.

Generally tiresome to the public.

That "Weekly" has attacked many prominent men and reputable manufacturers.

Our Company seems prominent enough for a sensational writer to go after, hunt for some little spot to criticise, then distort, twist and present it to the public under scare heads.

So an attorney from New York spent more or less time for months in Battle Creek hoping to find impurities in our foods, or dirt in the factories. After tireless spying about he summoned twenty-five of our workmen and took their testimony. Every single one testified that the foods are made of exactly the grain and ingredients printed on the packages; the wheat, barley and corn being the choicest obtainable—all thoroughly cleaned—the water of the purest, and every part of the factories and machinery kept scrupulously clean.

That all proved disappointing to the "Weekly." There are very few factories, hospitals, private—or hotel and restaurant kitchens that could stand the close spying at unexpected times and by an enemy paid to find dirt or impurities of some kind.

In any ordinary kitchen or factory he would find something to magnify and make a noise about.

But he failed utterly with the Postum Works and products. Twenty to thirty thousand people go through the factories annually and we never enquire whether they are there to spy or not. It makes no difference to us.

He next turned to discover something about our advertising that could be criticized.

An analysis of the methods and distorted statements of the "Weekly" may interest some readers, so we take up the items one by one and open them out for inspection. We will "chain up" the harsh words and make no reference in this article to the birth, growth and methods of the "Weekly" but try to coufine the discussion to the questions now at issue.

Some Facts

Battle Creek, Michigan, December 30, 1910.

We the undersigned certify that never to our knowledge has a testimonial letter been printed by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., which did not have behind it a genuine letter signed, and believed to be an honest statement.

To the best of our knowledge and belief the Company has receive upwards of fifty thousand (50,000) genuine testimonial letters.

This company has never knowingly made nor permitted an untruthful statement regarding its products or its methods.

M. K. HOWE, Treasurer. (With Company about 14 years.)

L. J. LAMSON, Inspector of Advts. (With Company about 9¾ years.)

F. C. GRANDIN, Advertising Manager. (With Company about 13 years.)

R. M. STERRETT, M. D., Physician in charge of Scientific Dep't. (With Company about 4¾ years.)

CHESTON SYER, Advt. Writer. (With Company about 3 years.)

CHARLES W. GREEN, Advt. Writer. (With Company about 5 years.)

HARRY E. BURT, General Sup't. (With Company about 13 years.)

H. C. HAWK, Assistant to Chairman. (With Company about 7 years.)

C. W. POST, Chairman. (With Company 16 years, from the beginning.)

Distortion No. 1 stated that we have been accustomed to advertise Grape-Nuts and Postum as "cure-alls for everything."

It has never been the policy of this Company to advertise Grape-Nuts or Postum to cure anything.

We say that in cases where coffee disagrees and is causing sickness its dismissal will remove the cause of the trouble, and we suggest the use of Postum for the reason that it furnishes a hot palatable morning beverage, and contains natural elements from the grain which can be used by nature to assist in rebuilding nerve centers that coffee may have broken down.

Likewise Grape-Nuts food does not cure anything, but it does assist nature tremendously in rebuilding, provided the undigestible food that has been used is discontinued and Grape-Nuts taken in its place.

Charge No. 2 states that the passage of the National Food & Drugs Act compelled us to drop from the packages some assertions regarding the nutritive value of Grape-Nuts.

We have never been "compelled" to make any change.

Since the beginning it has been a universal rule to print clearly on every package exactly what the contents are made of.

Before the passage of the Pure Food Law the packages stated that Grape-Nuts food was made of wheat and barley.

We did not esteem the small amount of salt and yeast as of value enough to speak of, but after the new Law came in we became as technical as the officials at Washington and added the words "yeast" and "salt," although we have no recollection of being asked to.

We believed that our statement that Grape-Nuts will supply elements to nourish the brain and nerve centers is true and bring authorities to support the fact.

Some state chemists believed this a gross exaggeration and inasmuch as the Food Dept. at Washington could easily harass grocers, pending a trial on the disputed question, we concluded that much the better way would be to eliminate from our packages such claims, however certain we may be that the claims are true.

Another statement objected to read as follows:

"The system will absorb a greater amount of nourishment from one pound of Grape-Nuts than from ten pounds of meat, wheat, oats, or bread."

Some Department chemists deceive themselves as well as the public.

"Calories" is the word which defines a unit of heat determined by the amount necessary to raise one kilogram of water one degree centigrade. On this basis a table of calories is prepared showing the percentage of different kinds of food. Butter shows 8.60; Grape-Nuts 3.96; milk 0.70. Remember the statement on the package spoke of the nourishment the system would absorb, but did not speak of the calories of heat contained in it, for the heat is not nourishment, and the nourishment cannot be judged by the number of heat units, notwithstanding the fact that certain chemists would have the public believe so.

As an illustration: Attempt to feed a man sixty days on butter alone, with its 8.60 calories. The man would die before the experiment had run sixty days.

Then, take Grape-Nuts with 3.96 and milk with 0.70,—the two combined equal 4.66—about one-half the number of calories contained in butter. The man fed for sixty days on this food would be well nourished, and could live not only sixty days, but six months on that food alone, and we do not hesitate to say from our long knowledge of the sustaining power of the food that a man at the end of sixty days would be of practically the same weight as when he started,—if he be a man of normal weight.

We will suppose that from his work he lost a pound a day and made up a pound each day from food. If that premise proved to be true the man in sixty days' time would make sixty pounds of tissue to replace what had been lost, and this would be done on Grape-Nuts and milk with half the number of calories of butter, upon which no one can sustain life.

Therefore, we have reason to believe that our contention is right that concentrated food like Grape-Nuts, which is partly digested and ready for easy assimilation by the body, presents more nourishment that the system will absorb than many other forms of food, and we will further say that in cases of digestive troubles where meat, white bread and oats cannot be digested, that Grape-Nuts and milk contain more nourishment that the system will absorb than many pounds of these other foods.

Distortion No. 3 charges that our testimonials were practically all paid for and re-written in Battle Creek.

These testimonials were demanded by the opposing lawyers. Naturally this demand was refused, for they are held in vaults and kept safe to prove the truth, and are not to be delivered up on demand of enemies.

Testimony at the trial brought out the fact that we never printed a single testimonial that we did not have the genuine letter back of. Many of these letters came spontaneously. A record was kept of twelve hundred and four (1204) letters received in one month from people who wrote that they had either entirely recovered their health or been benefited by following our suggestions on food and beverages.

On three or four occasions in the past ten or twelve years we printed broadcast in papers offers of prizes to users of Postum and Grape-Nuts,—two hundred $1.00 prizes, one hundred $2.00, twenty of $5.00 and five of $10.00 each,—stating that each must be an honest letter with name and address. We agreed not to publish names, but to furnish them to enquirers by letter. These letter writers very generally answered those who wrote to them, and verified the truth of the statements.

Under this agreement not to publish names literally scores of letters came from doctors. We kept our word and neither printed their names or surrendered the letters.

Right here notice an "imitation spasm." The "Weekly" says: "Post got those testimonials by advertising for them. In New York he used for that purpose the New York Magazine of ——— whose editor is now in the Federal Penitentiary for fraudulent use of the mails. For example, Post announced in that magazine in 1907, etc.," (then follows our prize competition).

We used nearly all of the papers and magazines in New York and the rest of America, but the sensational writer gives the impression to his readers that the only magazine we used was one "whose editor is now in the Federal Penitentiary," etc., something that we know nothing of the truth of now, and never did. Space was bought in the magazine spoken of on a business basis for the reason that it went to a good class of readers. The incident seems to have furnished an opportunity for a designing writer to deceive his readers.

We look upon honest human testimony from men and women as to the means by which they recovered health as of tremendous value to those in search of it. Our business has been conducted from the very first day upon lines of strict integrity and we never yet have published a false testimonial of human experience. Many of these letters covered numerous sheets; some, if printed, would spread over half a page of newspaper. If we would attempt to print one such letter in every one of the thousands of papers and magazines we use, the cost for printing that one letter would run into many thousands of dollars.

We boil down these letters exactly as a newspaper writer boils his news,—sticking sacredly to the important facts and eliminating details about the family and other unimportant matters. This work of boiling down, or editing, is done honestly, and with a full knowledge of our responsibility, but notice the art of the "twister" in the way he presents to his readers this matter of testimonials.

Distortion No. 4. This is a bad one. It reads as follows: "The only famous physician whose name was signed to a testimonial was produced in Court by Colliers and turned out to be a poor old brokendown homeopath, who is now working in a printing establishment. He received ten dollars ($10.00) for writing his testimonial."

We will wager ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) with any investigator that we have, subject to inspection of any fair committee, upwards of three hundred (300) communications from physicians, many of them expressing the highest commendation of our products, but these will not now or ever be turned over to the publisher for his use.

Notice the statement in this charge: "The only famous physician whose name was signed to Postum testimonial, etc."

The truth is, this Dr. Underwood was one of a great many physicians who have not only written commendatory words about the value of our foods, but every now and then some physician writes an article on coffee or on food, and sends it to us with a suggestion of compensation for his time and medical knowledge. Previous to the time when we employed physicians in our own business, we occasionally employed a doctor to write an article on coffee, always insisting that the article be an honest expression of his opinion and research.

The "Weekly" hunted up this physician, and because he seemed to be poor, and as it says, "brokendown," had him brought to Court to be exposed before a jury as the "only physician that had ever endorsed Grape-Nuts," but much to the chagrin of the "Weekly," when our attorneys asked him if the article he wrote about coffee was true he replied, "yes."

Statement No. 5 reads: "The health officers of Mich., Maine, Penn., New Hamp., and other states in their official bulletins have for years been denouncing as preposterous and fraudulent the claims made by the Postum Cereal Company." We do not recall any criticism except from Mich., Penn., Maine and S. Dakota.

The average reader might think that the opinions expressed by the State Officials are always correct, but that conclusion is not borne out by facts.

As an illustration: About thirteen years ago the Dairy and Food Commission of Michigan for some personal reason printed a severe criticism on us for making Postum of Barley (according to his official chemist) at market price and selling too high. He was shown there was never a grain of barley used in Postum. His report was false and misleading. The governor dismissed him.

We believe that most of the state officials are honest, and on the other hand we are firmly convinced that some of their conclusions cannot be substantiated by facts in scientific research.

They never criticize the purity of our foods, for so much we are thankful.

If our conclusions in regard to its being a brain food differ from theirs, and we are both honest, they have rather the advantage, because under the law they can order us to eliminate from the package any statement if it disagrees with their opinion. Otherwise they would harass grocers.

Spasm No. 6 says: "The most dangerous thing in the world for one threatened with appendicitis is to eat any food whatever. Notwithstanding he knew that danger, C. W. Post advertised Grape-Nuts at fifteen cents a package for those so threatened."

This is intended to muddle the reader into believing that we put out Grape-Nuts as a cure for appendicitis.

Mr. Post, himself, has had probably as wide experience as any other man in America in the study and observation of food as related to the digestive organs, and we proved in Court by the physicians and surgeons on the witness stand that the predominating cause of appendicitis is undigested food, and that it is necessary to quit eating food, and when the body requires food again, use a pre-digested food, or at least one easy of digestion.

Dr. Ochsner in his work on appendicitis refers directly to the use of the well-known pre-digested foods that can be obtained on the market. He also brought out the interesting fact that in "after treatment" it is advantageous to take on a pre-digested food.

The price of the package (referred to by the weekly) is not known by us to have any relation to the question.

Our advice to stop using indigestible food in bowel troubles and to use Grape-Nuts food has been a great blessing to tens of thousands of people, and we hope will continue to bless a good many more in the succeeding years.

No. 7 is a live wire. It refers to C. W. Post and his studies and experience in "Suggestive Therapeutics" or "Mental Healing" which further lead to a most careful and systematic study of the effect of the mind on the digestive and other organs of the body.

He attended clinics in Europe and fitted himself for a future career in which he has become known as one of the food experts of the world, fitted to judge both from the material as well as the mental side of the question.

For about eight years previous to 1891 he was an invalid. In that year, after being under the care of several well-known physicians, he was quickly healed, by what to him was a curious and not well-understood method. Sufficient to say he became a well man, weighing about 185 pounds.

This experience challenged his investigation into causes of disease and their amelioration. Those studies and experiences developed a very profound reverence for a Supreme Power which directly operates upon the human being, and this reverence for the Infinite became to him a form of religion which included honesty of purpose towards his follow-man. A statement which will be indorsed by everyone who knows him closely.

He will make a public announcement in detail of these facts, and the Postum Company will cause that statement to be published in newspapers and magazines in due time. We suggest the reader look for it.

Prevarication No. 8. "Post spends nearly a million a year in advertising and relies on that to keep out of the newspapers the dangerous nature of the fraud he is perpetrating on the public."

The Postum Company does pay out upwards of a million a year for trade announcements. Newspaper men believe our statements truthful or they would not print them. Large numbers of newspaper men use our products.

They are capable of telling the public whether or not we "bribe" them.

It may have escaped notice that we did not "bribe" that particular weekly.

No. 9 states that the amount of the ve-dict will "be devoted by the 'weekly' to exposing fraud."

This is almost real humor.

We have two suits pending against the "weekly," total, $500,000.00.

We haven't "devoted" the sum to any particular purpose yet.

Item 10 is a "discovery" that wheat bran is a part of Postum.

But the criticism neglected to mention that for years every Postum package announced in plain type that the outer covering of wheat (bran), made part of the beverage.

They ignorantly fell into a trap here, not knowing enough of food value to know that "Taka-Diastase" the article used by physicians the world over for "starch indigestion" is made from "wheat bran."

So we use that part of the wheat berry because it contains the element needed to develop the valuable diastase in manufacture. Good Postum is impossible without this part.

These self-appointed critics do make some laughable blunders through ignorance, but—be patient.

Item 11 is an illustration of the squirming and twisting of the sensational writer delivering distorted matter to his readers.

While on the witness stand Mr. Post testified to his studies in Anatomy, Physiology, Dietetics and Psychology,—all relating to the preparation and digestion of food. Asked to name authorities studied he mentioned six or eight from memory, and commented on some clinical experience covering several years in annual journeys to Europe.

Now notice the distortion. (Copy from the printed criticism.)

"He (Post) pointed out a pile of books in possession of his attorneys as the very ones he had read."

(Notice,—"the very ones he had read," leading the reader to believe that they were the only ones.)

"Did you consult the books from these editions?" was asked.

"From those and various editions," answered Post.

The attorney "picked up book after book from the pile and showed the title pages to the jury,—all except two had been published since 1905."

This is an example of distortion and false coloring to produce an unfavorable impression.

The facts are Mr. Post purposely introduced the latest editions that could be obtained of prominent authorities to prove by them the truth of his statements regarding appendicitis and the analysis of brain, also the latest conclusions in regard to the action of the digestive organs. These works are:

Human Physiology, by Raymond.
Physiological Chemistry, by Simon.
Digestive Glands, by Pawlow.
Hand Book of Appendicitis, by Ochsner.
Physiological Chemistry, by Hammarsten.
Biochemic System of Medicine, by Carey.

The "Weekly" carefully eliminates from its printed account testimony regarding the years of research and study by Mr. Post in fitting himself for his work, and would lead the reader of the distorted article to believe that his education began since 1905.

Distortion No. 12 reports Mr. Post as a "dodging witness."

His eye is not of the shifty kind observed in the head of one of his chief critics. On the witness stand Mr. Post looks quietly but very steadily straight into the eyes of the haggling, twisting lawyer, trying by all his art to ask double-barreled questions and bull-doze and confuse a witness.

The "dodging" it seems consisted of replying, "I don't know."

Opposing counsel holds a book in his hand while he queries,—

'I want to know if there is a single thing in your whole book here that suggests any particular kind of food." Then followed some discussion between attorneys.

When Mr. Post was allowed to reply, he said, "I don't know until I read the book over to see."

This book, it turns out, was written by Mr. Post seventeen years ago and probably has not been read carefully by him in the last fifteen years. It would require a remarkable memory to instantly say "yes" or "no" as to what a book of 147 pages did or did not contain, without reading it over,—but such conservative and well balanced answers are construed by sensation seekers to be "dodging."

The attorney sought by every art to impress the Jury with the fact that Mr. Post's belief in the power of Mind in relation to the body branded him as unreliable and worse.

The following is quoted from one of the questions:—

(The lawyer reading from the book.)

"The writer of these pages desires to say nothing of himself other than as a simple instrument through which the Divine Principle chooses to manifest itself by precept and example.

"Skill in mental practice is gained in the same way as skill in any department of science—by observation, study, experience and the ability to evolve correct conclusions.

"Read carefully, thoughtfully no more than twenty pages daily. Afterward seek an easy position where you will not be disturbed. Relax every muscle. Close your eyes, and go into the silence where mind is plastic to the breathings of spirit and where God talks to the Son. The thoughts from Divine Universal Mind come as winged angels and endow you with a healing power. If you go into the silence humble and trusting, you will come out enriched and greatly strengthened in body by contact even for a short time with the Father of all life and all power. You will feel refreshed in every way and food taken will digest readily as the stomach works smoothly when under the influence of a Higher Power."

"I ask you if you did not write that, and if you did not believe it when you wrote it."

For a moment the Court Room was in absolute silence.

Mr. Post slowly leaned forward over the rail, pointed his finger at the Atty's face to emphasize his reply and with eyes that caused those of the Attorney to drop he said, "Yes, I am proud to say I did."

It may be remembered that we were first attacked and have since defended ourselves by placing facts before that great jury---The Public.

A good "scrap" is more or less comforting now and then, if you know you are right.

In the case lately tried, an appeal has been taken to the higher courts. We have unbounded faith in the ultimate decision of our American Tribunals.

Our suits against the "weekly" have not yet been tried. They are for libel and $500,000.00 is asked as damages, and may the right man win.

After all the smoke of legal battle blows away, the facts will stand out clearly and never be forgotten that Postum, Grape Nuts, and Post Toasties are perfectly pure, have done good honest service to humanity for years, the testimonials are real and truthful and the business conducted on the highest plane of commercial integrity.

"There's a Reason"

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Odd Small Hats

MILLINERY modes have run to the new and strange lately and the question of "what next" is asked with an anxious tone by those who must suit the caprice of fashion or lose in the business race. Just what next no one up to this writing knows exactly, but of one thing we are fairly sure, and that is, a continuing vogue of small hats. We have come about as close to the bonnet as we are likely to get, and we will depart therefrom, when spring comes. But the small hat is here and will be here; for which all those who travel in street cars and ride in elevators or walk upon windswept streets, are duly thankful.

Two types, as unlike as possible, are shown here. One is of the present mode, fitting like a bonnet and trimmed at the back with a big rosette of ribbon. This is an old development of the bonnet-turban style which is dear to the winter girl in many varying forms. This is a double coronet brim, a development of the turban, on lines familiar, in every community from one ocean to the other. The double coronet is by way of variety and the draping is very cleverly arranged by means of this peculiar frame.

A precursor of new ideas is shown in the jaunty little helmet hat with visor front. Brought forth in Paris and transplanted to New York, it is shown in the smartest of Fifth avenue shops. Worn at just a little angle one can see how widely it differs from the demure bonnet-like shapes.

It is a simple looking piece of millinery, but will bear studying. The frame is covered with white satin and faced with black velvet. Piping cord finishes the brim edge and the velvet collar and flat bow at the front. This particular model is one of those bidding for favor and is a radical new departure. Whether "she will or she won't," is the all important question. My lady of fashion is ready for changes, but just what will please her restless fancy remains to be found out. Small, flexible hats are the most promising for street wear. They are commendable from the standpoint of comfort, but their correct adjustment will take care on the part of the wearers and a tendency to lose their original lines wil have to be combatted.

In felts and velvets, as in furs, the soft hats have body enough to remain shapely. They are without doubt the most successful of new things placed before the public.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

POINTLESS HATPINS.

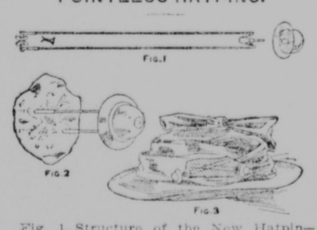

Fig. 1. Structure of the New Hatpin—Fig. 2. The Holder—Fig. 3. Manner of Arranging in Hat.

A pointless hatpin with interchangeable heads has become popular in Paris. Having no point to protrude beyond the side of the hat, it is obvious that the pin will not endanger the eyes of other people. Each hatpin is in reality two pins with one head, the pin part sliding through a star-like fixture permanently attached to the hat. Heads of various designs are provided with each pin.

Gold Used on China.

The newest designs in china reveal a lavish use of gold, not only in the border of the dishes, but in large floral and conventional designs, and sometimes combined with the flowers, in colors, that may decorate a dish.

The patterns for the most part are simple but striking. Among the designs carried out solely in the gold, the Oriental, the Greek and the Byzantine effects prodominate.

The flowered china shows the graceful garland decoration of a happy use of trailing vines, with a heavy border effect. In shape, the fluted design—the flutings are widely separated—is being greatly used.

A new ware has appeared which will no doubt be very popular in the odd pieces, such as sugar and creamer, chocolate set or odd plates.

FASHIONS FOR LITTLE ONES

In Profusion of Raiment the Rising Generation Is Not Far Behind Its Elders.

Nowadays they cater just as much to the children in the matter of dress as they do to the grown-ups, and a glimpse into the children's department of our stores today would open the eyes of the most incredulous.

Here will be found in the greatest profusion raiment for all ages and sizes, from the tiniest tot just walking to the young lady about to make her bow to society, who realizes, however, that as yet there is a distinct line drawn between her gowns and those of her mother or elder sister.

There is a charming litter of baskets on this season's dressing table for holding everything that a girl uses in making her toilette, from hatpins and pincushions to hair ribbons.

A general but not exact uniformity in shape is preserved in the many sizes of baskets used in a girl's room, and a general style of decoration is carried out in colors that must match. Baskets for the dressing table are chosen with relation to their uses and supplemented with flat desk baskets that contain materials for correspondence and with baskets for sewing and for holding veils, hosiery, collars and neckties.

For Evening Frocks.

Bordered silk mousselines and gauzes with borders of plain orange, above which are floral borders, are made up into charming frocks with touches of black velvet to give them character, and there are other exquisite bordure stuffs in which the border is of Persian design, with orange the predominating color.

Temperance

TOTAL ABSTINENCE IS BEST

Greatest Danger of Excess Is at Banquets Where Champagne Flows With Freedom.

The following article is taken from the "Living Church." Although intended for the twentieth Sunday after Trinity, it is appropriate for all seasons:

It is perhaps, more difficult for some people to obey the command in today's Epistle, "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess," than to observe an absolute rule of total abstinence.

Those who favor a free use of wine and other stimulants when not required physically, are wont to quote St. Paul's advice to St. Timothy to drink wine for his oft infirmities; but they forget to quote many other passages from the Scriptures. It was for his "infirmities" that he was advised to take it, not for self indulgence, or convivial and social reasons.

In Galatians St. Paul mentions among the sins of the flesh, drunkenness, adding, "They who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

It is a fact that many, and among them church people, think too highly of exceeding the bounds of temperance; and, alas that it should be so, intemperance is not unknown even among women who are social leaders in our large cities. Solomon was a very wise man, and he says, "Be not among wine bibbers, for the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty." After describing the appearance of an intemperate man he says that such are those "that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine." "Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup. . . . At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

The fact that our blessed Lord's first miracle was the turning of water into wine, shows us that wine is one of his gifts to mankind; yet like so many other blessings, if abused it becomes our ruin. What a wonderful help to gaining self-control it would be if men always stopped short of what they can safely take; but for some, total abstinence is the only wise course.

In the collect for today we pray that being ready both in body and soul we cheerfully accomplish the things which God commands. If our bodies belong to his service, why should we render them unfit to do his bidding? At the altar "we present ourselves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy and living sacrifice. Is not that often forgotten?

Frequently there are banquets which church people attend at which wines and champagne flow freely. These are occasions upon which the greatest danger of excess is likely to arise. Does drinking to excess, even though one stops short of actual drunkenness, fit the body to appear before the altar on Sunday morning, in the still, early hour, to see and hear the priest consecrate the fruit of the vine, making it the blood of Christ, that it may become our precious drink? Who would dare present himself to drink of that cup, who had himself been a partaker of wine the night before until he had become excited and talkative beyond bounds? Soon the desire to come and drink the heavenly wine will leave him, and drinking the cup of fools, he will go down to the gates of eternal death, unless he turn and repent.

There are outwardly respectable church men who do not exercise self control in the matter of wine drinking, and who by their example injure others, and are themselves daily deteriorating. Wilful intemperance and devout aspirations do not go together.

Who should be the leaders in bringing about a reform? Surely they of the priesthood, who are appointed by God to set so holy and pure an example that the laity will be won to high and holy living, and learning to curb the desires of the flesh, will attain to free communion with the sacred heart of the blessed Jesus.

England's Drink Bill.

During the last five years England's drink bill has been steadily on the increase, notwithstanding the fact that never before have her temperance organizations been so active or aggressive as during that period. We are told that among her educated and well-to-do classes drunkenness is becoming the exception and moderation the rule, yet notwithstanding this moderation movement, and in spite of her boasted five to six million total abstainers, her Bands of Hope and other means of educating children in temperance principles, and her scientific and economic protests against the drink, etc., the bill goes on increasing.

King of Samoa Temperate.

The king of Samoa is determined that his subjects shall be sober. He has issued the following order: "No spirituous, vinous, or fermented liquors or intoxicating drinks whatever shall be sold, given or offered to be bought or bartered by Samoan or Pacific Islander resident in Samoa."

Consumption of Alcohol in France.

The consumption of alcohol in France has been trebled within thirty years, and as much as 36,000,000 gallons have been manufactured out of potatoes for the French market.

COMPLETELY PROSTRATED.

So Sensitive to Pain She Had to Be Turned in Sheets.

Mrs. Eliza Kirk, S. Main St., Spencer, Ind., says: "I had been prostrated with inflammatory rheumatism. My limbs were swollen, hands drawn out of shape and I was so sensitive to pain I had to be turned in sheets. I was able, at last, under the best medical attention, to crawl around the house with the aid of a cane, but the improvement went no further. Finally my husband brought home a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. It was surprising how quickly they relieved me and how soon I was cured. For three years my cure has been permanent."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Just Shopping

A fashionably dressed young woman entered the postoffice in a large western city, hesitated a moment, stepped up to the stamp window. The stamp clerk looked up expectantly, and she asked: "Do you sell stamps here?"

The clerk politely answered, "Yes."

"I would like to see some, please," was the unusual request.

The clerk dazedly handed out a large sheet of the two-cent variety, which the young woman carefully examined. Pointing to one near the center, she said, "I will take their one, please."—Everybody's.

SKIN TORTURED BABIES SLEEP AND MOTHERS REST

A warm bath with Cuticura Soap, followed by a gentle anointing with Cuticura ointment, is generally sufficient to afford immediate comfort in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly eczemas, rashes, irritations and inflammations of infants and children, permit sleep for child and rest for parent, and point to permanent relief, when other methods fail. Peace falls upon distracted households when these pure, sweet and gentle emollients enter. No other treatment costs so little and does so much for skin sufferers, from infancy to age. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, for free 32-page book on the care and treatment of skin and scalp troubles.

Cat's Tigerish Nature.

A shocking affair in which a domestic cat displayed tigerish qualities occurred at Ayr recently. A woman named Mrs. John Scott had occasion to go a message and left a child, six weeks old, in the house. On her return she was horrified to discover that the cat had eaten the small finger of the child's left hand, and had commenced on the next finger.

What a Trained Nurse Says About Resinol.

I get absolute satisfaction from Resinol and use it constantly. One of my patients has had ulcers for 15 years, and Resinol has helped her more than anything else. She will continue using it until cured. I have made some remarkable cures with it.
Mrs. Agnes T. O'Neil, Somerville, Mass.

Stupid Man.

"My husband has no idea of the value of money."

"Why, I thought he was a careful business man."

"He thinks so, too. But he absolutely doesn't realize what a lovely hat I can buy for $48.99."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over 30 Years.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.

The worst foe you have is the man who would kill all your enemies.

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Heresy hunting is simply an obsession of omniscience.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Slander soon dies if you take it out of circulation.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

"Did you ever feel that the eyes of the world were upon you?"

"Once a year, when I wear the neckties that my wife gives me at Christmas."

Pettit's Eye Salve For Over 100 Years has been used for congested and inflamed eyes, removes film or scum over the eyes. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N.Y.

To finish the moment; to find the journey's end in each step of the road; to live the greatest number of good hours is wisdom.—Emerson.

The danger from slight cuts or wounds is always blood poisoning. The immediate application of Hamlins Wizard Oil makes blood poisoning impossible.

He is a dangerous man who spends much time drawing fine lines between shrewdness and sin.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

An unplanned duty done is better than a planned duty undone.—Baker.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

The best way to lift men is to meet them on a level.

Are You Weak, All
Run Down?

This condition is directly caused by bad blood. When the blood is made rich and pure by Hood's Sarsaparilla, you will feel strong and cheerful; it will put new life into your veins, new vigor into your muscles; give you a sharper appetite and good digestion; make you look better, sleep better and feel better; will make the hardest work lighter and the darkest day brighter. Facts! Thousands confirm them. Get Hood's today.

Poor Digestion?

This is one of the first signs of stomach weakness. Distress after eating, sour eructations, sick headache, bilious conditions are all indicative that it is the stomach that needs assistance. Help it to regain health and strength by taking for they are a stomach remedy that never disappoints. They act quickly and gently upon the digestive organs, sweeten the contents of the stomach, carry off the disturbing elements, and establish healthy conditions of the liver and bile.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

The wonderful tonic and strengthening effects from Beecham's Pills, make them a safe remedy—they

Help Weak Stomachs

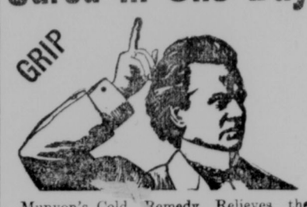
In Boxes with full directions, 10c. and 25c.

PISO'S is the name to remember when you need a remedy for COUGHS and COLDS

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 3-1911.

COLDS Cured in One Day



Munyon's Cold Remedy Relieves the head, throat and lungs almost immediately. Checks Fevers, stops Discharges of the nose, takes away all aches and pains caused by colds. It cures Grip and obstinate Coughs and prevents Pneumonia. Price 25c.

Have you stiff or swollen joints, no matter how chronic? Ask your druggist for Munyon's Rheumatism Remedy and see how quickly you will be cured.

If you have any kidney or bladder trouble get Munyon's Kidney Remedy.

Munyon's Vitalizer makes weak men strong and restores lost powers.

Nothing Like

them in the world. CASCARETS the biggest seller—why? Because it's the best medicine for the liver and bowels. It's what they will do for you—not what we say they will do—that makes CASCARETS famous. Millions use CASCARETS and it is all the medicine that they ever need to take. 904

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time—not a year from now, when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 60 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rates, apply Supt of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio

Use address nearest you. 37

offers you an opportunity to become independent in a short time growing

ORANGES, GRAPEFRUIT AND VEGETABLES.

Two and three crops a year net $500 to $1500 per acre. Quick transportation, low freight rates on S. A. L. Ry. to Northern and Eastern markets. Uniform climate year round. Instructive booklet free.

J. W. WHITE, Gen'l Ind. Agt., Seaboard Air Line Ry. Dept. 402 Norfolk, Va.

MAKE MORE MONEY

Than you ever dreamed possible decorating china, burnt-wood, metal, pillow-tops, etc., in colors from photographs. Men successful as women. Learned at once; no talent required. Takes like wildfire everywhere. Send stamp quick for praticulars.
C. M. VALLANCE COMPANY, Elkhart, Ind.

VALUABLE BOOK

Wonderful curative properties of electricity when properly applied for all diseased conditions. Thoroughly explains its restorative powers in acute and chronic diseases. Tells how to prevent surgical operations. Free upon request. Address
ELECTRO MEDICAL INSTITUTE, 2911-13 Vine St., Cincinnati, O.

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA

Remedy for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. Write for FREE SAMPLE.
NORTHROP & LYMAN CO. Ltd., BUFFALO, N.Y.

Local Agent Wanted

in every town or county. Profitable and fascinating work for spare time.

BIG COMMISSION

on HIGH GRADE NEW ARTICLE. Ask for particulars.
ELECTROLINE COMPANY
20 Harrison Street New York

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whetzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHETZEL, M.D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

Ask to see the Leather Covered Pocket Edition

Gillette

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

WOMAN'S ILLS

Many women suffer needlessly from girlhood to womanhood and from motherhood to old age—with backache, dizziness or headache. She becomes broken-down, sleepless, nervous, irritable and feels tired from morning to night. When pains and aches rack the womanly system at frequent intervals, ask your neighbor about

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult in confidence by letter free. Address World's Dispensary Medical Ass'n, R.V. Pierce, M. D., Pres't, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in Plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free to any address on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover cost of wrapping and mailing only, in French cloth binding.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Messiah's Coming Kingdom Spiritual

"Behold, a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment" (Isaiah xxxii, 1).

Brooklyn, [illegible].—Pastor Russell preached today in the Academy of Music, our largest Auditorium, the "Tabernacle" being of insufficient capacity. He had a very attentive hearing. There were many Hebrews in the large audience. He said in part:—

"Coming events cast their shadows before." Startling shadows are all about us. A great change in the affairs of men is indicated and acknowledged by all thoughtful, intelligent people. The world's pace during the past fifty years astonishes everybody. New conditions meet us on every hand. The majority of books written half a century ago along scientific lines are considered rubbish today. Rules and customs and theories of the past, supposed to be immovable and absolute, are abandoned as worthless—in chemistry, in manufactures, in art, in finance and commerce. All these changes necessitate a new view of social conditions and a re-examination of the relationship of religion and the Bible to man and his conditions, as seen from the present viewpoint. The business and social world have been compelled to keep pace with the steps of progress, some of them gladly and some of them reluctantly. But religionists have been placed in a most awkward position. Religion and moral sense constitute the backbone and fiber of the best progress in civilization. The perplexity of religious thought, and its manifest inability to adjust itself to the changed conditions, is working a serious disadvantage to all disposed to look to the Almighty for guidance in life's affairs.

The increase in worldly wisdom, the improved human conditions, the advancement along scientific lines in material prosperity have turned many of the world's brightest intellects away from God and from the Bible. Many of these, still professing Christianity in an outward, formal manner have really abandoned it in favor of a theory of "civilization." They have wandered from the Divine Revelation, the Bible, into paths of speculation—their own and other men's. They have cogitated that the reverse of the Bible statements is the Truth—that instead of man falling from the image of God into sin and death, he is rising from a brute or monkey plane upward, gradually, to Divine heights. Instead of looking for a great Deliverer, Messiah, Savior, Life-Giver, they are hoping to be let alone by any outside influence, that certain fancied laws of Evolution might help them upward and onward to glory, honor and immortality.

The result is that religious thought today everywhere and in all denominations is chaotic. The whole of Christendom has practically become Agnostic—admitting that they do not know the Truth nor how to adjust their reasoning faculties to present consecration. They are in an expectant attitude—seeking light. Nevertheless many fear the light lest it shall make manifest cherished errors or selfish hopes and ambitions which must be abandoned. But they are still pretending to know many things which we and they know that they do not know. But daily the strain becomes more intense. Gradually everybody is recognizing that there is a great crisis along every line—that the people are awakening and thinking and will no longer receive their errors.

Converting the World to God.

Fifty years ago Christian people, full of faith in the Bible which they seriously misunderstood and read with sectarian spectacles of various colors, were fully agreed that God had given his Church the commission to convert the whole world and to establish Messiah's Kingdom, when the nations would learn war no more, but beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks. Zealous Christian people urged that the heathen were going down to a hell of eternal torment at the rate of ninety thousand every twenty-four hours. And noble men and women sacrificed their earthly interests for the assistance of the heathen—to prevent that awful catastrophe, to help thwart the very program of God which some other Christian people of an earlier day had declared was predestinated and foreordained as unalterable. Good was certainly attempted. We trust that some good was accomplished. We know that some harm was done, in that fallacious conceptions of the character and plan of the Creator were promulgated amongst the heathen, which have hardened and embittered some of them.

But by and by practical people sought for statistics, and now know that there are twice as many heathens in the world as there were a century ago. Of course, there are unthinking and unstatistical people who refuse knowledge and who are today claiming with a commendable zeal, but a reprehensible ignorance, that large contributions of money would enable them to capture the whole world for God. Nevertheless, the masses no longer see the matter as they did, and can no longer be swayed to the same extent. Thinking people refuse to believe that God for centuries has sat calmly viewing the situation, allowing millions to go to eternal torment. They refuse to believe that their hearts and sympathies are more tender than those of their Creator.

Even the heathen are getting awake to the inconsistency of what has been given them under the Gospel label. They are finding out that the word Gospel signifies "good tidings," and that what has been preached to them is the most awful message conceivable—that all of the heathen and the majority of their civilized neighbors and friends and relatives have been decreed, sentenced, foreordained, to eternal torture because of ignorance, because of a misbelief in respect to which they were thoroughly honest. Perplexed, the missionaries ask, What shall we preach? The message of damnation does not sound good to the heathen, and they do not run after it nor feast their souls upon it. The question comes to the ministers and professors of colleges throughout Christendom and they are perplexed what answer to give. The majority of them have become "higher critics" and no longer accept the Bible as the Word of God; they are Evolutionists and no longer believe the Gospel which the Missionary Societies were organized to proclaim. They are in perplexity. And many of them are prepared to abandon the former theory of missions and to continue their work henceforth merely along humanitarian lines. Indeed, within the last twenty-five years missionary effort has turned gradually to secular education and medical practice in the interests of the heathen, with little religious doctrine—and so much the better.

Everybody is agreed that the Kingdom of Messiah cannot be brought about by the wholesale conversion of the world. And logical people see that larger numbers have been lost to Christianity in civilized lands during the last twenty-five years than were ever claimed to be converted amongst the heathen. We say lost to Christianity, because why should anyone be called a Christian who has lost all faith in the Bible—in the Law, the Prophets and the teachings of Jesus and his Apostles? The great cloud of bewilderment which encompasses Christendom is realized by all earnest people—churchmen and others. And no wonder there is a certain dread associated with the dark cloud. What kind of a storm will result? And what will be the effect upon the great religious systems of civilization? It is to join hands against these ominous conditions that the clergy of all denominations are arousing themselves in favor of Church Union or Federation of some sort. But the people—the people feel comparatively little interest in the proposition, which they will not oppose, however.

"The Hour of Temptation."

—Rev. 3: 10.—

The difficulty with the present situation is that we have stupidly and blunderingly misread the Bible. We have twisted what we did read and picked out certain portions which pleased best our fancies and supported best our various creeds. We have neglected the honest, truthful study which we should have given to our Heavenly Father's message. The confusion of Christendom is the result. That confusion and perplexity the Scriptures portray, assuring us that we are in the midst of a great falling away from faith in God and in his Revelation. We see fulfilled all about us the wonderful prophetic and symbolic picture of Psalm 91. A thousand fall at our side and ten thousand at our right hand—only the "Israelites indeed," in whom there is no guile, will be kept from stumbling in this evil day. The chaos which we already see everywhere in evidence is only beginning.

God's Great Remedy at Hand.

The fault of Christendom has been the rejection of the Divine Plan and the acceptance instead of a human plan. The Church was going to convert the world—going to conquer the world for Jesus and present it to him as a trophy. Alas, we have not been able to convert ourselves, which is the particular work the Master gave us to do. Greater humility would have shown us our folly long ago.

Bible Students do not need to be reminded that all through the Old Testament Scriptures God's promises abound, telling Israel and all who have ears to hear of the glorious reign of Messiah and of the success of his Kingdom and how the result will be that "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God;" of how "all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped;" of how the blessing of the Lord will be with Israel restored to his favor and operate through Israel to the blessing of all peoples. We remember the prophecies which picture earthly governments and show us their termination and the establishment of the Kingdom of Heaven on their ruins.

PARADISE.

Rain and mud is the order of the day.

There have been quite a lot of illness in our community but all are improving at this writing.

Wm. Nine had a wood chopping Thursday last and also a party on Saturday.

Samuel Rodeheaver is doing a rushing business hauling lumber from the Speicher mill to Oakland.

The school is progressing nicely under skillful management of W. O. Paugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tasker are all smiles—it is a girl.

Harry and Murry Paugh made a flying trip to Bethlehem one day last week.

Mrs. I. A. Paugh and three children are able to be out again and almost recovered from their recent illness.

Harry Paugh was calling on Miss Emma Rodeheaver Sunday.

Ardella, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Rodeheaver, has been ill but is better at this writing.

Sam Miller made a flying trip to Oakland Saturday.

Harry Speicher was calling on Joseph Harvey Saturday evening.

M. A. Nethkin was calling on Mahlon Schooley one day last week.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

Where

is the best place to buy

MEATS

AT

CREUTZBERG'S

Old Reliable Up-to-Date

Meat Market

WITHOUT A DOUBT.

HOMER E. TURNEY, Proprietor.

P. S. I pay the highest CASH market price for beef, pork, veal, mutton and lamb.

REPORT OF THE

Garrett County Telephone Company

For the Year Ending December 31, 1910.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS

W. A. Smith, - - Hoyes, Md.
President and General Manager.
D. S. Custer, - Friendsville, Md.
Vice President.
C. V. Guard, - Friendsville, Md.
Secretary.
J. Arthur DeWitt, - Hoyes, Md.
Treasurer.

DIRECTORS

William Miller, - - Accident, Md.
J. M Durst, - New Germany, Md.
Joseph McRobie, - Oakland, Md.
M. Mattingly, - - Hoyes, Md.

REVENUE

Gross receipts from subscribers	$4,000 93
Gross receipts from tolls	583 45
Receipts from all other sources	450 00
Cash on hands Jan. 1, 1910	672 86
Total	$5,707 24

EXPENSES

Operation of system, salaries, etc.	$2,423 38
Taxes paid	124 73
Interest on old debt.	48 00
Exchange with other Companies	111 77
Maintenance, etc.	997 82
Rent Paid	100 00
New Board	368 00
Total	$4,173 70

SUMMARY

Gross Revenue		$5,707 24
Gross Expense	$4,173 70
One note paid	800 00
Cash on hand	733 54
		$5,707 24
Number of telpehone exchanges on line		18
Number of employes		19
Number of phones on lines		836

ASSETS

Cost of plant and property	$18,760 13
New switch board, Oakland	368 00
Open accounts	5,192 62
Cash in Bank	733 54
Total		$25,054 29

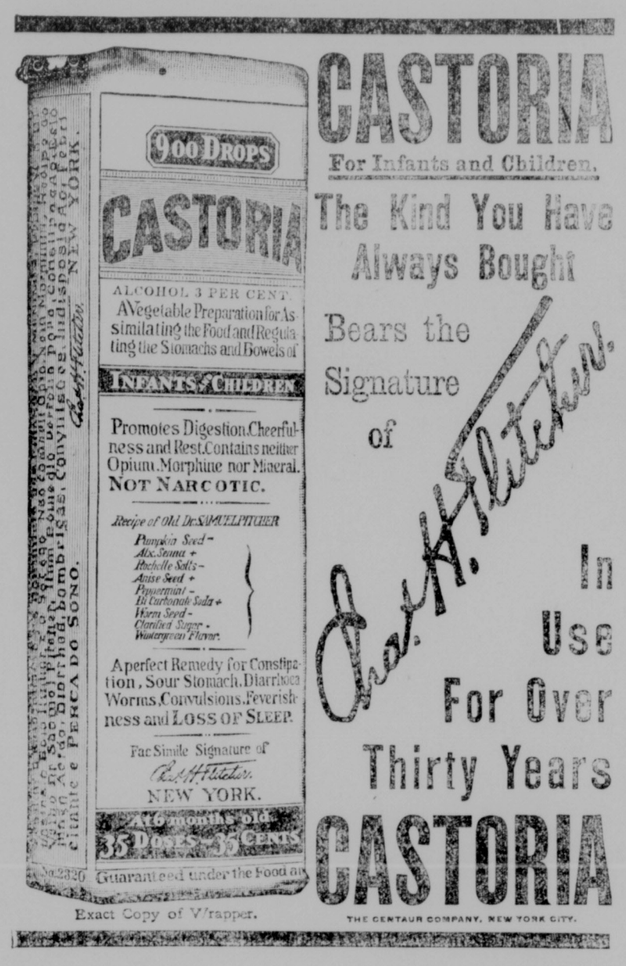
LIABILITIES

Capital Stock issued	$16,000 00
One note, old debt	800 00
Unpaid Bills	1,518 05
Balance profit and loss	6,736 24
Total	$25,054 29	$25,054 29

C. V. GUARD, Secretery.

GILMOR S. HAMILL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY.
Office in Ravenscroft Building, Second St.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Investigation of land titles and collection of claims. Loans negotiated.

Subscribe for The Republican.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

WILLIAM P. HANSEL,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 12th of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

DAVID P. HANSEL,
Executor.
Lonaconing, Md.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

ORDER NISI.

Clarence M. Rathbun and Alonzo D. Naylor Vs. William D. King and wife.

No. 1696 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 10th day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Fred. A. Thayer, the attorney named in the mortgage filed in said cause, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 10th day of February, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of February, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $1000.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber Garrett county, Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphan's Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters of Administration on the personal estate of

MARGARET C. REINHARDT,

late of Garrett Co., Md., deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

JAMES A. ENLOW,
Administrator,
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

TRUSTEES' SALE

OF VALUABLE

Real Estate

IN THE TOWN OF OAKLAND, CARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a deed of trust executed by Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley his wife, dated the 12th day of September, 1906, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 53, folio 351, etc., one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett county, Maryland, default having been made therein, the undersigned trustees, will be

TUESDAY,

the 7th Day of February, 1911,

at the hour of two o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, offer at public auction to the highest bidder the property described in said deed of trust as follows:

Being part of the southern half of Military Lot No. 862, and more particularly described as Lot No. 3 and part of Lot No. 2 of the subdivision of the said southern half of said Military Lot No. 862 which is locally known as East End as laid out and platted by F. A. Thayer, et al., as a suburb of Oakland, Md., and more particularly described as follows; Beginning for the same at a stake standing South 23 degrees West, 186 feet from the Northwest corner of said tract called East End, and running thence South 67 degrees East, 47 feet to Market street, and with said street South 23 degrees West, 225 feet and six inches to lot No. 4 of said sub-division, and with the lines of said lot North 67 degrees West, 47 feet, then by a straight line to the beginning, this being the same lot conveyed to Joseph W. Cogley by deed from F. A. Thayer, attorney, &c., dated the 15th day of November, 1905, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 28, folio 448, one of the Land Records of Garrett county.

Said lot is improved by a good dwelling house, and an excellent well of water on the premises, and necessary outbuildings.

TERMS OF SALE.—Cash on day of sale or the ratification thereof by the Court.

WM. R. OFFUTT,
JULIUS C. RENNINGER,
Trustees.

N. B. Upon purchaser making a reasonable cash payment satisfactory arrangements can be made with the trustees as to deferred payments

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

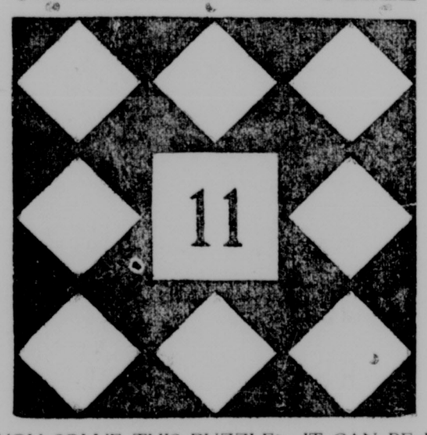
FREE DIAMONDS

An Opportunity to Obtain Absolutely Free Several Articles of Genuine Diamond Jewelry

1st PRIZE—Ladies' or Gentleman's genuine Diamond Ring
2nd PRIZE—Ladies' or Gentleman's genuine Diamond Studded Locket or Watch Charm
3rd PRIZE—Ladies' or Gentleman's genuine Diamond Studded Stick Pin
4th, 5th and 6th PRIZES—Ladies' or Gentleman's 20-year guaranteed Gold Filled Watches
7th, 8th, 9th and 10th PRIZES—Girl's or Boy's Flexible Flyer Sleds

To all others answering this advertisement we will give a beautiful Admolite Diamond Stick Pin, Absolutely Free.

The DIAMOND "33" PUZZLE



CAN YOU SOLVE THIS PUZZLE? IT CAN BE DONE.

Directions: Place any number, from 7 to 15, inclusive, in the EIGHT vacant DIAMONDS on the above or any similarly arranged separate sheet of paper in such a manner that any way the numbers are added (including the number in centre square), the total will be "33." The same number cannot be used more than once. Write your name and address neatly, accurately and plainly on the same sheet, and mail or deliver your solution before 6 P. M., Saturday, February 11, 1911, to the Contest Department, Greater Pittsburg Piano Co., 633 Smithfield St., Pittsburg, Pa.

Only one member of a family may enter.
Only one solution will be accepted from the same contestant.
No one connected with the music trade nor first prize winners in previous contests may enter.
Neatness, besides the correctness of the reply sent us, will be taken into consideration in awarding the prizes

Contest closes Saturday evening, February 11th, at 6 P. M. Send in your replies as early as possible.

GREATER PITTSBURG PIANO CO.,

F. W. BONAR, Manager,

633 Smithfield Street, Pittsburg, Pa.

Name .....
(Write plainly)

Address .....

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1911. NUMBER 50

A PISTOL TOTIN ITALIAN FINED $50 AND COSTS

By Squire Teats Yesterday Morning. Who Acquitted Another Of Charge

Italians who come to Oakland will probably leave their artillery at home hereafter, especially if the news gets abroad that they fare badly at the hands of the State's officers when they visit the county seat of Garrett.

Two of the sons of sunny Italy arrived here Monday morning from the camp of laborers engaged at work on the B. & O. at Rodamer, over in West Virginia. One of them brought a ferocious looking implement of warfare with him, every chamber of which contained a leaden bullet. His partner purchased a gun from one of the Oakland merchants shortly after arriving here and in about half an hour both were in jail charged with carrying concealed weapons.

They were given a hearing by Justice Teats yesterday morning, who assessed the one with the loaded pistol $50 and costs, amounting to about $55 in all. Proof was produced that the other Italian had purchased his revolver just prior to his arrest and it was still in original package as delivered to him by the merchant from whom he made the purchase and he was acquitted.

Several friends of the convicted Italian were here at the hearing and among them they succeeded in raising the needful $55 and paid the fine.

BOLD BURGLARS CAPTURED

Two Strangers Taken into Custody Thursday Night With the Goods on.

The many petty thefts committed in Oakland during the past two or three weeks by unknown parties reached a chmax last Thursday night when two strangers, giving their names as John Ferguson and William McGraw, were arrested by Constable Claude Brown who charged them with breaking in and stealing from P. J. Hinskey's tailor shop on Second street a coat and two pairs of trousers valued at $17.

The men were given a preliminaay hearing by Justice West Saturday. Ferguson plead a jury trial while McGraw, was acquitted of the charge of burglary but held on the charge of being a vagrant. Both were sent to jail to answer at the June term of the Circuit Court.

Ferguson, it is alleged, had disposed one pair of the tronsers to Roy Green for 50 cents, while the coat and second pair of pantaloons were found in his possession when arrested. He stated that he had bought the articles from a colored man but could not remember what kind of a looking person the colored gentleman was.

Seriously Injured.

Mr. Paul Johnson, an aged resident of Swanton, is lying dangerously ill at his home, as the result of a fall several days ago when he sustained an injury to his hip and leg.

The Republican for Job Printing.

ROUGH RIDER AND BIG INDIAN CHIEF HERE

Chacaunota, Cherokee, Will Lecture at Empire Theatre Tonight.

Yesterday afternoon Chacaunota, a full blood Cherokee Indian, from Dayton, Oklahoma, was in Oakland and made arrangements to lecture at the Empire Theatre tonight in which the speaker will tell how the Indians used to live and will give an exhibition of the snake and ghost dances, rope throwing and fire eating.

The chief's English name is Winfield Scott; he is 54 years of age, as straight as the proverbial Indian, well mannered and quite intelligent, being able to speak English fluently and also to read both English and German.

Chief Chacaunota was in the Rough Riders of Buffalo Bill and carries with him a number of relics, among them being an American flag which he carried through Europe while with Col. Cody. Another thing he takes great pride is in his Cherokee Bible.

He is out in the interests of his nation, the proceeds from his lecturing tour being devoted to the erection of a church at Dayton, Okla., and the formation of a Y. M. C. A., at his native town for the benefit of members of his tribe.

School Entertainment.

The pupils of the Bittinger graded school are engaged in preparing a special program of music and literary selections to be rendered at an entertainment to be held at the school building on Washington's birthday. An admission will be charged for the entertainment, the proceeds to be used for the establishment of a school library.

Report of the Loch Lynn School for January.

Number enrolled, boys, 18; girls, 13; total, 27.

Those who were present every day were: Adam Sterling, Earle Sterling, Talmage Johnson, Robert Ford, Larna Callis, Gus Gortner, Theodore Schaffer, Walter Callis, Eula Gortner, Christina Schaffer, Alice Johnson, Ione Smith, Ethel Smith.

G. W. STERLING, Teacher.

Garrett County's Good Roads.

C. E. Hammond, who is associated with Hoblitzell & Price, in state road contracts in Garrett county, Md., and in charge of the stone-crusher near Oakland, was in Meyersdale last Thursday. Mr. Hammond states that Garrett county will soon have a system of highways that will be as good as any that can be found anywhere. He says property values have almost doubled along the sections of state road already completed.—Meyersdale Republican.

Honor Roll of Bittinger School.

The following named pupils of the Bittinger graded school averaged 90 per cent. in daily recitations and merited 100 per cent. in deportment for the month of February:

Althea Oester, Verna Detrick, Clara Fazenbaker, Hulda Stark, Ruth Brenneman, Lucile Beahm, Lena Keller, Ruth Stanton, Estelle Beahm, Leonora Wiley, Ruth Beahm, Myrtle Emory.

J. C. BEAHM, Prin.

SHERIFF NOAH HENDLEY OF ALLEGANY COUNTY SHOT

His Assailant In Turn Fatally Wounded by the Sheriff's Deputy.

Just as this paper goes to press a long distance telephone message from Cumberland states that Sheriff Noah Hendley, of Allegany county, had been shot by a man named Sweitzer in Cumberland and that a deputy of the sheriff in turn shot Sweitzer. The latter will probably die, while there are hopes for the recovery of Sheriff Hendley.

PAYMETTO BOY GETS AUTO

But An Oakland Man Wins a World Gorn-growing Contest.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 6—Prize winners in corn, grain and seed competitions at the National Corn Show were announced Saturday.

Stephen Henry, of Melrose, Iowa, and Jerry Moore, of Winona, S. C., boys 15 years old, who won prizes offered by the Secretary of Agriculture for best production per acre of corn, were awarded an automobile and a ribbon, respectively, by the exposition on one acre.

Among the first prize winners in the world competitions were Joseph H. Smith, Xenia, Ohio; John A. Shaffer, Oakland, Md.; Dexter Burnell, Cumberland; and H. E. Lowe, Gary, Maine.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

James Russell Walter and Ida Catharine Bittinger, both of Mountain Lake Park.

Roy Ray White, of Kingwood, and Edith Blanche Spriggs, of Junior, W. Va.

Somers Slaubaugh and Iva Mae Wotring, both of Breedlove, W. Va.

Friend Cochran Haldren and Bertha Goldie French, both of Fairmont, W. Va.

Harter Ray Smith and Bertha Ramsay Cox, both of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Clarence Odell McDonald and Ida Murray, both of Monongah, W. Va.

Walter Martin Burnett and Ethel J. Cox, both of Shinston, W. Va.

Jalu Robert Thrasher and Grace Marley, both of Deer Park.

Injured Terra Alta Boy Brought to Oakland.

Riggs Pickings, the eleven-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Pickings, of Terra Alta, was brought to Oakland last Thursday night suffering with a fractured skull and other minor injuries as a result of being thrown from a horse his head striking the corner of a brick. Several pieces of bone having been taken from the wound in his forehead by physicians who are attending him at the Home Sanatorium in Oakland. If he continues to improve the patient will probably be discharged from the institution Monday and taken home by his parents who are at his bedside daily.

BITTINGER.

Miss Carrie Stanton, daughter of Mr. Thomas Stanton, aged nearly eighteen, died on Wednesday evening of last week after an illness of but a few hours. The funeral occurred on Friday afternoon from the Lutheran church in this village, services being conducted by Rev. Samuel Miller, of the German Baptist Church.

Christian M. Schrock and family are spending this week with Mrs. Schrock's parents, Mr. and Mrs Elias Orendorf, in this village.

Messrs. Clark Brenneman and Asa Bittinger made a business trip to Salisbury, Pa., last Saturday.

Prof. J. C. Beahm, Harrison Wiley and C. E Ellithorp, of this village, attended the local teachers' institute held at Grantsville last Saturday.

Messrs. Noah and Leonard Stark, of Chaffee, W. Va., spent last Sunday with their parents here.

Paul Beachy passed through this village with a small drove of sheep, one day last week.

A. J. Oester has a force of men at work on the new county road now being constructed across Meadow Mountain and that thoroughfare will soon be open to the public.

Benjamin Long who has been a guest for some time, at the home of Mrs. K. A. Bittinger, spent a few hours in Jennings one day last week.

New Fruit Store.

"Hello, Bessie," said Nora, "I have something new to tell you."

"What do you mean? Is there anything going on? I hav'nt been down town for a good while." "Why, yes; a new fruit store has been opened in the Ravenscroft building where you may get the finest fruit of all kinds; always fresh, for the least money. You may take the fruit home with you, examine it and if not satisfactory you may return it and get your money back."

Give us a call. JOSEPH & RATHA.

Stock Sale.

Mr. J. A. Kelly, the Oakland liveryman, is making arrangements to hold another sale of live stock and requests that all who have horses, mules, etc., to offer at the sale to communicate with him as early as possible. The sale will take place at his barn in Oakland on March 1st and will be conducted along the same lines as the former one. 2t*

A SPEAK EASY JOINT AT FRIENDSVILLE CLOSED

By Sheriff Shartzer and Scott Groves. the Owner. is in Jail.

For many moons there has been strong suspicion in the minds of a number of residents of Friendsville that a speak easy joint was in operation in their town and this suspicion was verified last Saturday when Sheriff Shartzer visited that place and placed Scott Groves under arrest charging him with selling liquor in violation of the law. Groves gave bond to appear in Oakland yesterday and came here Tuesday night when he was again placed under arrest and held in jail until he was given a hearing yesterday afternoon by Justice Teats.

At the hearing some ten or more clear cases were made out against Groves. He wanted to enter a plea of guilty in four cases, pay a fine of $200 and be discharged from custody. To this the state demurred and he then plead a jury trial. Bond in the sum of $1000 was required, but being unable to fill this for his apperance at court he was again remanded to jail.

THE DEATH RECORD.

JAMES QUEER.

On Sunday morning, James Queer, aged twenty-five years, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Queer, near Mountain Lake Park, of pneumonia, after an illness of two weeks. The funeral occurred Tuesday with interment in the Pleasant Valley cemetery.

SAMUEL D. HIMMELL.

Samuel D. Hummell, a prominent resident of District No. 11, died at his home last Sunday night as the result of a stroke of paralysis and exposure, after an illness of three days. On Thursday Mr. Hummell went into the woods near his home for the purpose of chopping some wood and when he did not return at his usual hour a search was instituted by his family and some neighbors who found him about nine o'clock in the evening, lying unconscious by the side of a log upon which he had been working. He was taken to his home and death followed as above stated. His funeral occurred Tuesday morning and was largely attended by friends and neighbors.

MRS. ELLA S. KERLER.

Mrs. Ella Swope Kerler died about seven o'clock Sunday morning at her home on Carlisle street after an illness of several weeks. She was aged 59 years, 11 months and 8 days.

Mrs. Kerler had a severe attack of pneumonia for several weeks which later affected her heart and caused her death. The solicitude of her many friends during the period of her illness attested the high esteem in which she was held in Gettysburg. She was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Kerler was a daughter of the late Dr. John A. Swope who died within the past few weeks. She is survived by her husband, Charles Kerler, Jr., and one son, Norman S. Heindel, Esq., of this place. Her step-mother, Mrs. John A. Swope, also survives, together with the following sisters, Miss Margaret S. Burrell, Mrs. Harry M. Clabaugh, Mrs. Edwin J. McKee, Mrs. H E. Mirick and Miss George Swope, all of Washington, D. C.

Funeral from her late home at 1.30 p. m. Tuesday, conducted by the Rev. D. W. Woods. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.—Gettysburg, (Pa.) Times.

MRS. EDWARD M. SPEDDEN.

At her home at Crellin on Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Mona Spedden, died after an illness of several months of diabetes and was buried in the Ashby cemetery near Crellin Tuesday morning after services at the house conducted by Rev. E. Manges, pastor of the Lutheran church of Oakland, of which denomination Mrs. Spedden was a consistent member for a great many years. The deceased lady was aged 51 years and was married 19 years ago. As a result of the union four children were born, three sons and one daughter, who with the husband, survive her. In addition to her immediate family Mrs. Spedden is survived by two brothers, Messrs Oscar Grim, of New Martinsville, W. Va., and Walter Grim, of Cumberland. During her married life Mrs. Spedden was a devoted to her famly and they to her. By her Christian character, kindly deeds and sweet personality the deceased lady made and retained hosts of friends who deeply deplore her death. The funeral was attended by hundreds of people from from Crellin, Oakland and the surrounding county, whose presence bore mute testimony the respect in which she was held. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Among the many from a distance present at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Spedden, of Fairmont; Mrs. G. A. Bolden, of Charleston; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grim and son, Mr. Oscar Grim, son and two daughters; Mrs. M. Tillson and son, Davis, W. Va.; Mrs. J. E. R. Ellis and Miss Tillie Litzinger, of Grafton.

MRS. SARAH MCROBIE.

Mrs. Sarah McRobie, of Oakland, died very suddenly at her home Friday, Feb. 2nd, at 11:45 a. m. She had well advanced beyond her three score years and ten, having reached the age of 76 years, 4 months and 29 days. Her funeral was conducted Saturday morning by Rev. E. Manges of the Lutheran church, and she was laid to rest in the Oakland cemetery to await the day when her Lord shall call her forth to the fullness of life. She showed her faith in God by trying to keep his commandments and by teaching others to do so. She sought to live her religion. When the time of her departure was at hand many were grieved to see her go, but their grief was assuaged by the knowledge that for her it was a day of peace and rest. The cares and feebleness of old age have been laid aside like a worn-out mantle and her strength is renewed like the eagle's. She leaves behind six children to mourn her departure: Mrs. Michael Rice and Mrs. J. D. Paugh, of Dobbin, W. Va., Mrs. Henry Selters, of Oakland, Theodore McRobie, of Keyser, and Messrs. Howard and Wm. McRobie, of Mountain Lake Park. Her granddaughter, Miss May McRobie, had made her home with her since early childhood. To her she was both mother and grandmother, and upon her the blow falls heavily, but the God who so loved his faithful servant as to take her unto Himself will comfort those who mourn and heal the broken hearted. C. W. H.

FORMER GARRETT COUNTAIN MURDEROUSLY ASSAULTED

John McMillan, Policeman in Pittsburg Used up in Fight.

A special from Pittsburg says:

John McMillan is in a critical condition at his home on Beech street, East Pittsburg, as the result of a murderous attack made upon him a few nights ago while he was on duty at a Hungarian wedding. Mr. McMillan is a member of the East Pittsburg police force and was detailed for duty at the wedding of a Hungarian on Braddock avenue, East Pittsburg. About 50 guests were celebrating the nuptials and when it became late and neighbors were being disturbed from their slumbers, Officer McMillan notified the crowd that they would have to behave themselves or he would disperse the party. This was resented by some of the more intoxicated men present and they awaited an opportunity to attack him. The opportunity came about 2 o'clock in the morning when McMillan had relaxed his vigilance somewhat. He was suddenly attacked from the rear by four men. Recovering from the surprise of the sudden attack McMillan used his club freely and succeeded in laying open the heads of three of his assailaets. But others joined in the attack and armed with beer bottles and other weapons they soon forced McMillan to the floor, where they proceeded to kick and beat him into unconsciousness, even the women joining in the attack.

Alarmed by the noise, some of the neighbors notified police headquarters and reserves were hurried to the scene. They found Officer McMillan unconscious on the floor, with several guests in a drunken stupor near nim. The reserves handcuffed 14 men and took them to the station house, where they were held to await the outcome of McMillan's injuries.

Mr. McMillan remained unconscious for five hours in spite of the efforts of the physicians who were summoned to attend him. He is suffering from four fractured ribs as well as contusions about the head, body and legs.

Officer McMillan is a son of the late Hugh McMillan, of Garrett county. He left about three years ago for Pittsburg. He was employed as fireman by the Westinghouse Company for some time and last spring was appointed a member of the East Pittsburg police force. Although on the force but a short while, he has established a fine record

Call for Your Letters.

J. A. Stein, Mrs. C. W. Frazier (2), Mary Frush, Minnie Wright, L. P. Myers, Hammond Bowerman.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

FRIENDSVILLE-ACCIDENT ROAD PETITIONED FOR

By Residents of Both Towns and Will Be Built Under Shoemaker Law.

Tuesday a delegation of prominent residents of Friendsville and Accident, bearing a petition which was numerously signed and also a bond in the sum of $8000, appeared before the Board of County Commissioners and filed the papers wherein they pray for the construction of a water grade road to be built under the provisions of the Shoemaker Law, beginning for the same at a point near Friendsville and following the south prong of Bear Creek to a point about one-half mile south of Accident, a distance of some five or six miles.

For several months the people of both Friendsville and Accident have been at work upon the project of having the state build a road from one town to the other and over a new route, thus eliminating the moantain traversed by the present road.

The Shoemaker Law under which it is proposed to build the new road requires that ten per cent. of the total cost of construction shall be furnished by property owners whose lands abut upon the road; forty per cent. shall be levied by the county to be paid by the property owners generally, and the balance, or fifty per cent., is furnished by the State; that the petitions and the fund of ten per cent., or its exuivalent (in this case a bond for the amount), shall be in the hands of the Board of County Commissioners prior to March 1st. The law has been strictly observed and there is no doubt in the minds of the interested residents of Friendsville and Accident but that a corps of engineers will be placed immediately on the ground and the surveys made so that work may begin this summer.

All the required material for the road may be found along the proposed route which will cheapen the cost of construction very much.

The gentlemen who appeared before the Commissioners in the interest of the road were Messrs. George J. Kolb, Jerry Nugent and N. L. Selby, of Friendsville, and State Senator H. J. Speicher and Mr. William Miller, of Accident.

ANNUAL MEETING

Pythian Improvement Association of Garrett County.

The annual meeting of the Pythian Improvement Association of Garrett county will be held in the Knights of Pythias lodge room, First National Bank building, on the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 14th, at 7.30 p. m., at which time new officers will be elected for the ensuing year and a new board of directors will be chosen. Every stockholder and officer of the association is urgently requested to be present, as very important business will come before the meeting. JAS. D. HAMILL, Pres't.

S. LAWTON, Sec'y.

Just Arrived.

A lot of Fancy Gas Shades which were shipped last September and miscarried by the Railroad Company. The mannfacturers have instructed us to close them out at cost. Regular $1.00 and 75 ct. Fancy Shades of Crystal Stripe, Red, White and Flowered designs, while they last 75 and 50 cents.

S. LAWTON & SONS.

Garthright & Harvey

SPECIAL SALE

In order to reduce our stock of merchandise so as to make room for our spring line, we will sell for cash or good country produce, for one week, beginning February 3, 1911.

Men's 50c Underwear	35c
Boys' 25c Underwear	19c
Ladies' 50c Underwear	35c
Men's 50c Dress Shirts	39c
10c Outing Flannel	8c
7c Calico	5½c
Lighthouse Washing Powder	4c
Soapine	4c
Ivory Starch	4c

Men, Women and Children Shoes at Half Price.

We have just unloaded a car of KILN-DRIED FEED, which we will sell at ROCK BOTTOM PRICES.

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 4.

16 yds. 8c Muslin	$1.00
12 yds. 10c Muslin	1.00

We will give 20 lbs. of Granulated Sugar for $1 with each $5 purchase made on Saturday

Butter and Eggs are as good as GOLD here. Bring them along, also your Mine Props and Cross Ties.

Have just received nobby line Men, Boys and Children clothing and Men's dress Pants Come and examine before making your purchase.

Yours for Business.

Garthright & Harvey

DIXON & KELSO

The following is Dixon & Kelso's spring prices for

American Fence

BEST IN THE MARKET

7 Wire 26 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
6 Wire 35 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
8 Wire 32 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	21c
9 Wire 39 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
8 Wire 45 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
10 Wire 47 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	25c
9 Wire 49 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	25c
80-rod roll light weight Barb,	$1.65
80-rod roll, 4-point, Hog or Cattle Barb,	2.40
100 lbs standard Barb, Hog or Cattle,	2.65

We have three cars of the above in stock and can furnish any of this fence in large quantities.

Will make special price on big lots.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Beware of thin ice.

"Dog upsets auto." An up-setter?

Why is he always called a "lone" bandit? Why not just a "a bandit?"

A deep snow would help the aviators that have acquired the falling habit.

Now they say that the old hoop skirt is coming back. Here's hoping that it can't.

Russia is importing thousands of typewriters from this country. No, Julius, they are just the machines.

Milwaukee physicians plan to put an end to telephone practice. They cannot see a man's tongue over the wire.

The automobile is acceptable in funeral processions but the aeroplane is still barred out by the undertakers' trust.

Skating season is upon us—that is, ice skating. Skating in a general way is practiced regardless of the weather.

Before long Germany may be eating imported meat exclusively. The pretzels, however, will be manufactured at home as of yore.

If it is agreeable to the surgeons, the average man would prefer to be operated on for appendicitis only when it is necessary.

A man who marries two wives is a bigamist, but that California man who married six of them is just the old, reliable brand of fool.

That New York person who shot himself five times and failed to kill himself will probably die some day of the pip. You never can tell.

A Washington man has started suit for $300,000 for the loss of his wife. All of which leads us to remark that she must have been some wife.

"In future," says Doctor Wiley, "the air will furnish heat, fuel and power." It might do so right now if some way to extract the coal from it could be found.

That Kansas City man, as we understand the case, did not want a divorce merely because his wife smoked, but on account of what she smoked.

Europe's wine shortage this year is said to be the greatest for a century. Still there will no doubt be enough for us who buy it only for medicinal purposes.

A writer in the New York Medical Journal says whisky is not a cure for snake bite, but kindly refrains from expressing an opinion as to its suitability for fish bait.

A lady smuggler arrested with $8,000 worth of jewels in her stocking claims that that's where she always wears 'em. Evidenly we've been overlooking a good thing.

A few phlegmatic men who never become excited about anything are not going to buy a fruit farm next year and get rich in one season by raising apples.

The fashionable dressmakers are still quarreling over the location of the waist line, and women will have to go along a while without knowing where it will finally be located for the season.

There are many ways of getting in bad, only one of which is to travel on a train which is about to be wrecked.

A Massachusetts octogenarian who has never shaved in his life, claims to have saved $24,000 in that way, but most men would rather not have the money than the whiskers.

We are told that the day of the novel is ended. When we consider the alleged literature that has been perpetrated recently, we cannot squeeze out even the semblance of a tear.

Now we are told that the Garden of Eden was located at the north pole. Possibly we shall learn also that Adam and Eve were Eskimos and ate of the forbidden blubber instead of the forbidden fruit.

A Boston young woman has been visiting dentists' offices and stealing money and other valuables from the wraps of the patients in the torture chamber. Here's another excuse for not going to the dentist when you ought to.

The New York doctor who asserts that overripe eggs are as nutritious as the fresh kind will not meet with violent objections if he tries to get a monopoly of eating the ancient vintage.

The hobble skirt and high trolley car steps have clashed in Trenton. The steps may have the logic of the situation, but the hobble skirt has the eternal feminine end of the discussion, and all human experience is a unit on what happens when logic attempts to tackle the eternal feminine.

Temperance

EFFECTS OF STRONG DRINK

Alcohol Consumed Stimulates and Excites Body and Deceives People Who Drink It.

1. Every workingman is bound to consider what is best as food for himself and his family. If he fails to do this, he may spend his wages upon articles of little use in building up strong, healthy bodies, and so practically waste his hard-earned money, says Temperance. A great many workingmen only earn a bare living-wage; while many more only get sufficient to live decently with no room for extra expenses of any kind; and only a small number obtain money allowing of enjoyment of luxuries. So the strictest economy is necessary in spending wages.

2. Now the average amount spent upon intoxicating liquors by each man, woman and child in the United States is something over $23 per year. Of course, this sum includes what drunkards spend, as well as what is paid by sober folks. Perhaps the amount spent in this way by a good many would be less than fifty cents per week. Still, it is very important that what is bought should be really helpful. If the workingman is wasting his wages on alcoholic drinks, when it ought to be spent on food, or clothing, or other useful objects, then both the man and his family are not getting the full advantage from his earnings, and health and comfort will suffer.

3. When a gallon of beer is split up into its several parts, 86 parts are found to be water, 7 parts alcohol and 7 parts solid matter. The nutriment depends upon the solids, but only six-tenths of these are food, the rest is waste. To get half a pint of nourishment a man must drink 104 gallons of beer. This is like eating a sack of chaff to get a grain of wheat. The famous Doctor Liebig said if you drop the point of a knife into flour, the quantity you obtain represents as much nourishment as you get in a quart of ale. In wines the proportions are: Water 78, alcohol 18, solids 4. Spirits are simply alcohol (50), and water (50). This, then, is what science tells us. It is evidence that every chemist is bound to give, and it shows that intoxicating drinks can do nothing to make flesh or bone, muscle or nerve, for they do not contain the necessary food. They are useless, therefore, to the wage-earners.

4. Intoxicating drinks are really made for the sake of the alcohol they contain. This dangerous drug has a powerful effect upon the body. It stimulates and excites it, and so deceives people that they fancy they are better for its use, when it is actually destroying them. No man in health needs stimulation. A stimulant is like a whip to a horse. Alcohol may be a good medicine in the hands of a doctor, but it is not food, and it is a dangerous article in common use, often leading to disease, intemperance and other evils. No working-man can afford to tamper with alcoholic drinks.

5. Experience proves what science teaches. When doctors have tested alcohol on equal sets of men engaged in hard work against time, amongst sections hands on the railroad, in forced marches and long campaigns amongst soldiers, in the exhausting labor of foundries and forges, and in the hard training of athletes, abstinence from intoxicating drinks is always found the best. It is the natural result. These drinks cannot strengthen. No matter how a man feels under their influence, he is surely losing and not gaining energy. What folly it is then for our American people to spend $2,106,476,850 yearly on alcoholic drinks.

6. They are largely drunk for pleasure, but even if such pleasure were right, the amount spent is very excessive, and is the cause of much drunkenness and wrong. Even the makers and sellers of these drinks admit that many millions are wasted on intemperate drinking. As a matter of fact, the money spent per week by the average workingman is almost, if not quite, a useless expenditure, and take from his earnings what is wanted for other purposes—to properly feed and clothe the family, to give it the comforts of home, or to provide against the time of sickness and old age. It does not then pay the workingman to use intoxicating drinks. Such a practice is an economic waste, and tells against his efficiency as a worker, and against the well-being of his family.

Rumsellers in Politics.

Men may be drinkers without being content that the laws shall be made for them by the dealers in rum. Indeed, it strikes most men as a humiliation that in politics, especially in the cities, the liquor dealer is considered as an important factor, and the Liquor Dealers' association receives more attention and courtesy and favor than any other class or element in the community. The tendency in this has been to place rumsellers in innumerable positions of public trust, which have been generally most unworthily and viciously filled by them.—New York Press.

Liquor in Post Offices.

The postmaster general of England, has intimated to the royal commission on the licensing laws, that he is opposed to the setting up of post offices in licensed premises or to putting in charge anyone connected with the liquor trade.

A Christian Burial

By REV. W. BEHNKEN
Pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church
Houston, Texas

We would ask, then, to whom alone ought a Christian burial be granted? Our answer is short and concise—a Christian's burial ought to be granted only to Christians and to no one else, even if he were the mightiest ruler on earth. Is that answer not clear, plain and concise enough? Now, let us look at that matter a little closer.

When I see a funeral procession composed of heathens, headed by a heathen priest, I conclude that the deceased was a heathen. When I see Jews, headed by a rabbi, in funeral processions, I rightly conclude that the deceased was a Jew. When a company of men wearing aprons or badges or other paraphernalia follow a coffin. I conclude that the deceased was a lodge member. When I see a coffin decked with the country's flag, accompanied by military men, and when I see military rites performed at the grave, I can safely conclude that the deceased was a soldier. And when I see the Christian congregation, with their pastor, at the grave and hear them sing or pray or use the word of God, I ought to be able to conclude that the deceased was a Christian and died a Christian death.

Is that not right? Ought we not to be able to conclude that? Yes, we ought to, and years ago we could, but nowadays you cannot. Almost daily you can see where so-called Christian ministers officiate at the graves of open unbelievers, suicides, criminals and the like. Is this not true? They are not abashed to grant such who have died in open unbelief a Christian burial. That is shameful, unspeakably horrible.

But, they say, "you cannot judge others, you cannot see into their heart whether they were Christians or not, whether they have died in the faith or not. God says: "Judge not, that ye be not judged," and that is what you do when you deny them a Christian burial.

Now, my dear friends, it is true that we cannot look into other men's hearts to see whether they are upright Christians or not. But we do know, and that most assuredly, what kind of people are not Christians, namely, those who despised the word of God and the sacraments and refused to make use of the means of grace and that such people are not Christians, we know from the word of God that cannot lie. Christ says in unmistakable words: "He that is of God heareth God's word."

And God also says: "Because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee." Think of this a moment. There is a man who knows our church doors are open to him, he knows that the ringing of the bells invite him, but he passes by.

I ask everyone who still has a spark of conscience in him, ought such a man to have a Christian burial? Ought we to open the door to such a person, who refused to enter them when alive? Shall we confess that we look forward to his resurrection into everlasting life? Is that denying the faith, denying Christ as the only hope of salvation? Do we not know that God says, "Blessed are the dead who died in the Lord?" Shall we alter or change this? Let us remember that God said: "Be not deceived, God is not mocked."

It is just this gross denial of faith at the graves of the ungodly that causes men to become indifferent in religious matters. Christianity is therefore laid bare to open ridicule. Men will ask, "Why should I run to church? When I die they can easily get a preacher who will bury me for ten dollars and will preach as fine a sermon as for those who constantly go to church?"

But some will say, "He will not mention the deceased at all. We do not want to have the impression that the deceased is blessed and eternally saved." That makes matters worse still. Then they become hypocrites. By the fact that the deceased is not mentioned in the prayers they show he is not worthy of it.

They stand there as Christian ministers and yet do not dare to mention the deceased, because they and everyone present knows that he was not a Christian, and that a Christian minister has no business there.

But they say, "We are preaching to the living and not the dead." What, are we burying the living? Is it not the dead to whom the honor of a Christian burial is given? And do they say that they want to comfort the survivors? How shall they comfort? If they say the deceased is saved, they are guilty of a falsehood or if they speak the truth and say the deceased did not die a Christian and cannot be saved, then they have aroused a storm of hatred against themselves. Or shall they preach repentance there? That will fail also. Are they not officiating at the burial of an unbeliever? Will not the people say, "If what you say be true, why are you here granting a Christian burial to an unbeliever?"

Oh, my friends, let us remember "Blessed are the dead (and only they) who die in the Lord." And to them alone ought a Christian burial be granted. If they have been hypocrites and deceived us, they will find their judge whom they cannot deceive. But as for us, may God grant us grace that we may not deny the faith nor deny the Saviour by granting Christian burials to such as have not died in the Lord.

The Modest Model.

The late Julia Ward Howe, though a woman of very good appearance, was extremely modest.

"She once posed for me," said a Boston painter the other day. "But she hesitated a long time before consenting. To urge her on I said:

"'Don't be afraid. I'll do you justice, madam.'

"'Ah, she answered, 'it isn't justice I ask for at your hands; it's mercy.'"

Not Just Off the Shelf.

Little Margot has the childist trait of curiosity, especially in regard to the age of her elders.

"How old do you think I am, dear?" counter-questioned the spinster aunt to whom the child had put the impertinent query. The little girl considered earnestly before replying:

"Well, I don't know, Auntie Alice, but you don't look new!"

INSIDE HISTORY.

Some Self-Explanatory Letters.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 7, '11.

Dr. E. H. Pratt,
Suite 1202, 100 State St.,
Chicago, Illinois.

My Dear Doctor:

"Owing to some disagreement with ——— magazine several years ago they have become quite vituperative, and of late have publicly charged me with falsehoods in my statements that we have genuine testimonial letters.

"It has been our rule to refrain from publishing the names either of laymen or physicians who have written to us in a complimentary way, and we have declined to accede to the demand of attorneys that we turn these letters over to them.

"I am asking a few men whom I deem to be friends to permit me to reproduce some of their letters over their signatures in order to refute the falsehoods.

"We have hundreds of letters from physicians, but I esteem the one that you wrote to me in 1906 among the very best, particularly in view of the fact that it recognizes the work I have been trying to do partly through the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"I do not sell or attempt to sell the higher thought which is more important than the kind of food, but I have taken considerable pains to extend to humanity such facts as may have come to me on this subject.

"In order that your mind may be refreshed I am herewith enclosing a copy of your good letter, also a copy of the little book, and if you will give me the privilege of printing this over your signature I will accompany the printing with an explanation as to why you permitted its use in publication in order to refute falsehoods, and under that method of treatment I feel, so far as I know, there would be no breach of the code of ethics.

"I trust this winter weather is finding you well, contented and enjoying the fruits that are yours by right.

"With all best wishes, I am,"

Yours very truly,
C. W. POST.

Dr. Pratt, who is one of the most prominent and skillful surgeons in America, very kindly granted our request in the cause of truth and justice.

Chicago, Aug. 31, 1906.

Mr. C. W. Post,
Battle Creek, Mich.

My Dear Sir:

"I write to express my personal appreciation of one of your business methods, that of accompanying each package of your Grape-Nuts production with that little booklet "The Road to Wellville." A more appropriate, clear headed and effective presentation of health-giving auto-suggestions could scarcely be penned.

"Grape-Nuts is a good food in itself, but the food contained in this little article is still better stuff. I commend the practice because I know that the greed and strenuousness, the consequent graft and other types of thievery and malicious mischief generally can never be cured by legislative action.

"The only hope for the betterment of the race rests in individual soul culture.

"In taking a step in this direction, your process has been so original and unique that it must set a pace for other concerns until finally the whole country gets flavored with genuine, practical Christianity.

"I shall do all that lies in my power to aid in the appreciation of Grape-Nuts, not so much for the sake of the food itself as for the accompanying suggestions.

"Visiting Battle Creek the other day with a friend, Dr. Kelly of Evanston, Illinois, while I was consulting with Mr. Gregory, my friend visited your factories and came away greatly amazed, not only at the luxurious furnishings of the offices generally and the general equipment of the place, but with the sweet spirit of courtesy and kindness that seemed to fill the air with a spiritual ozone that was good to breathe.

"The principles expressed in the little booklet, 'The Road to Wellville,' I well know are practical and they work in business of all kinds, including sanitariums, as will be fairly tested before time is done.

"I know you will not regard this letter of appreciation as an intruding one. It is simply the salutation of good fellowship to you from a man who, although he has never seen you, feels drawn to you by the kinship of thought.

"The only thing that makes a man live forever in the hearts of his countrymen and his race is the good that he does. Your position in this respect is an enviable one and I wish to extend my congratulations."

Yours respectfully,
E. H. PRATT.

TEN MILLION PEOPLE IN THE CANADIAN WEST BY 1920

"Toronto Star," Dec. 16th, 1910.

The prediction is made that before 1920 Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia will have ten million people. It is made not by a sanguine Western journal but by that very sober business newspaper, the New York Commercial. It is based upon actual observation, upon the wheat-growing capacity of the Canadian West, and upon the prospects of development following the building of railways. The writer shows how the position of leading wheat market of the world passed from Milwaukee to Minneapolis and thence to Winnipeg. Canada's wheat-growing belt is four times greater than that of the United States, and only five per cent of Canada's western agricultural area is under cultivation. There are 170,000,000 acres of wheat lands which will make these Western Provinces richer, more populous, more dependable for food supplies than the Western States can ever become. The center of food supremacy will change to Canada, and 25 years more will give this country 40,000,000 population west of Ontario.

All these estimates of population are in the nature of guesses, and must not be read too literally. But the enormous area of wheat-growing land, the rapid construction of railways, and the large volume of immigration are facts which must be recognized. They point to the production of an ever-increasing surplus of wheat and other cereals. However rapidly the urban, the industrial and commercial population of Canada may increase, the increase of home consumption is hardly likely to keep pace with that of the production of wheat; for a single acre of wheat will provide for the average annual consumption of four people.

While production in Canada is thus running ahead of consumption at a prodigious rate, consumption in the United States is overtaking production, and the surplus for export is growing smaller year by year. It is true that the limit of actual power to produce wheat is as yet far away. By methods of intensive cultivation, such as prevail in France, the production could be greatly increased. But with the overflowing granary of Canada so close at hand, it seems likely that our neighbors will begin to import from us, turning their own energies more largely to other forms of agriculture.

It must be remembered that while the Northern States resemble Canada in climate and products, the resemblance diminishes as you go southward. The wheat belt gives place to a corn belt, and this again to semi-tropical regions producing cotton, tobacco, cane-sugar, oranges and other tropical fruits.

The man who secures a farm in Western Canada at the present time secures an investment better than the best of bond of any government or bank. It is no unusual thing for a farmer in Western Canada to realize a profit of from $5 to $10 per acre. There are thousands of free homesteads of 160 acres each still to be had, and particulars can be obtained by writing your nearest Canadian government agent.

GOOD ADVICE.

Ferdinand—She is all the world to me! What would you advise me to do?

William—See a little more of the world, old chap!

IT IS A MISTAKE

Many have the idea that anything will sell if advertised strong enough. This is a great mistake. True, a few sales might be made by advertising an absolutely worthless article but it is only the article that is bought again and again that pays. An example of the big success of a worthy article is the enormous sale that has grown up for Cascarets Candy Cathartic. This wonderful record is the result of great merit successfully made known through persistent advertising and the mouth-to-mouth recommendation given Cascarets by its friends and users.

Like all great successes, trade pirates prey on the unsuspecting public, by marketing fake tablets similar in appearance to Cascarets. Care should always be exercised in purchasing well advertised goods, especially an article that has a national sale like Cascarets. Do not allow a substitute to be palmed off on you.

Of Course.

"I see that the inmates of a New York lunatic asylum are going to issue a weekly paper."

"Yes, and I'll bet every fool outside will think he could edit it better than it is edited by the lunatic inside."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Eradicates scrofula and all other humors, cures all their effects, makes the blood rich and abundant, strengthens all the vital organs. Take it.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Don't Persecute your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal—harsh—unnecessary. Try

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowels. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

PISO'S

IS THE NAME OF THE BEST MEDICINE for COUGHS & COLDS

THE EASIEST WAY.

Capt. Jack—I understand that you're engaged to one of the Bullion twins. How do you distinguish one from the other?

Lady Kitty—I don't try.

A Sample Quip.

"Thomas W. Lawson's Thanksgiving proclamation was a very good piece of oratorical writing," said a Boston banker. "Lawson is always full of quips.

"Not long ago I attended the funeral of a millionaire financier—one of those real high financiers' whose low methods Lawson loves to turn the light on.

"I arrived at the funeral a little late. I took a seat beside Lawson and whispered:

"'How far has the service gone?'

"Lawson, nodding towards the clergyman in the pulpit, whispered back:

"'Just opened for the defense.'"

Motherly Advice.

Margery was playing school with her dolls. The class in physiology was reciting.

"Now, children," she said, "what are your hands for?"

"To keep clean," was the prompt reply.

"Yes," repeated the little teacher, "hands were given us so we could keep them clean, and 'member, too," she added, "we must keep our feet clean, 'cause there might be an accident."—Metropolitan Magazine.

CHEATED FOR YEARS.

Prejudice Will Cheat Us Often If We Let It.

You will be astonished to find how largely you are influenced in every way by unreasoning prejudice. In many cases you will also find that the prejudice has swindled you, or rather, made you swindle yourself. A case in illustration:

"I have been a constant user of Grape-Nuts for nearly three years," says a correspondent, "and I am happy to say that I am well pleased with the result of the experiment, for such it has been.

"Seeing your advertisement in almost all of the periodicals, for a long time I looked upon it as a hoax. But after years of suffering with gaseous and bitter eructations from my stomach, together with more or less loss of appetite and flesh, I concluded to try Grape-Nuts food for a little time and note the result.

"I found it delicious, and it was not long till I began to experience the beneficial effects. My stomach resumed its normal state, the eructations and bitterness ceased and I have gained all my lost weight back.

"I am so well satisfied with the result that so long as I may live and retain my reason Grape-Nuts shall constitute quite a portion of my daily food."

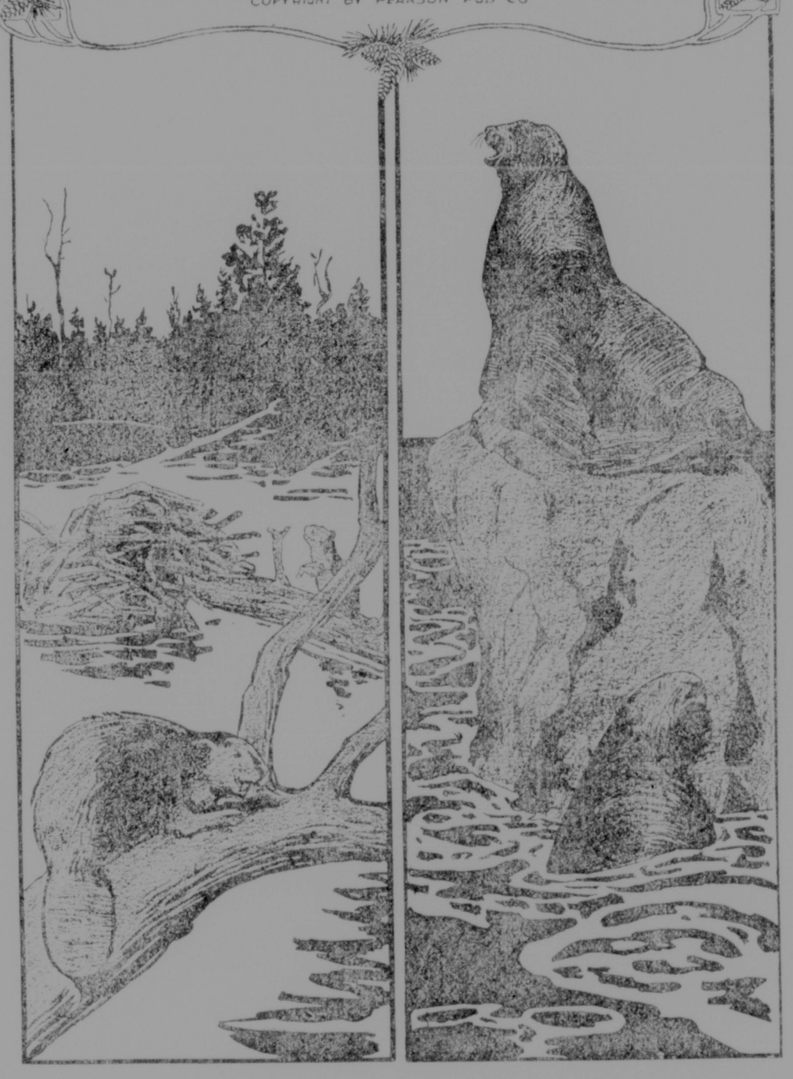
Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Last Chapter in the ROMANCE of FUR

BY JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUB CO



THE day of romance—romance of the old sort, of pirate-infested seas of peril-ridden lands of gold, of strange and unknown countries filled with the lure that has drawn men from the beginning of time—has rapidly passed away. It is followed now by the romance of iron and steel, the romance of invention, of progress, of a civilization that is fast crushing out the last vestige of the primitive and adding each day new chapters to its own marvelous achievements. It seems like a fitting decree of fate that the oldest and most romantic of all the industries of man, with the exception of his earliest fight for food, should be the last to die. There is something of pathos in it, especially when it is pointed out to one as it was pointed out to me by Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, head of the great Hudson's Bay Company, who said, "The last chapter in the romance of fur is being written. It has been a glorious story—a glorious story."

For three thousand years the pelts of wild beasts have played their part in the lives of men. For the last ten centuries fur has played an important part in history. It has held out the lure of romance—of adventure and gold. It has caused wars, and has led to the discovery of new lands. Fur hunters have done more exploring than any other one class of men. It was the beaver that lured men from the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi, and thence to the Rockies, opening up a continent. It was the sable that drew the tribesmen of Asiatic Russia across to far Kamchatka, and the sea otter that led the Spanish and the English all around the world in crazy craft, and gave us our first knowledge of the Pacific coast from Alaska to California. When, away back in 1670, a wandering and adventurous Frenchman by the name of Groseiller fired Prince Rupert's imagination with glowing tales of a land filled with priceless furs, and a little company was formed with a capital of $50,000, he did not dream that his wild project meant the opening up of a country almost as large as the whole of Europe and the beginning of an adventure which was to run through centuries. It was this little company of "gentleman adventurers" who formed what is today the Hudson's Bay company, the greatest landed corporation on earth—something which will remain for all time in history as a cenotaph to the tremendous part which the furred things of forest and mountain and sea have played in the fortunes of men.

Last year the raw fur industry of the world amounted to forty million dollars. Next year it will be fifty million, and the year after that the figures will be larger still. Five years ago it was less than twenty millions. Yet in spite of these figures—in the face of the fact that the fur-treasure of the world is increasing in value each year, and will continue to increase for perhaps another decade, the furred things of the earth are fast becoming extinct.

A year ago a big London fur buyer, whose business amounts to over a million dollars annually, said to me, "Within another five years only a very few people of moderate means will be buying furs. Only the wealthy will be able to afford those furs which are cheapest today, and even the muskrat, whose pelt sold for five and six cents a few years ago, will be prized as a luxury."

Ten months did much to verify this fur dealer's statements. Within that time raw pelts advanced from twenty to one hundred per cent. A Montreal dealer who purchased 80,000 muskrat skins at twenty cents per skin a year before sold them in London for seventy. A month later they had gone to eighty. Two months later they were bringing a dollar. In a single season the value of the world's annual production of fur leaped from $25,000,000 to over $40,000,000. I had just come down from my last trip to the Barren Lands, where I had spent eight weeks among the far northern fox hunters, when word was passed from post to post and from trapper to trapper throughout hundreds of thousands of square miles of Canadian wilderness that a fur famine had struck London and Paris, the fur centers of the world, and that from Winnipeg, Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal both the "Independents" and the agents of the big companies were making fabulous offers for pelts.

It will be interesting to note the conditions that this famine will bring about during the next two or three years. Millions of women are as yet unaware of what the great fur dealer I have quoted above describes as "the mine that is about to explode under their feet." It cannot be said however, that they have not had some warning. The woman who bought a mink muff for twenty dollars five years ago pays sixty for the same grade of article today; she will pay from seventy to eighty for it this coming season—a hundred or more two years from now.

These statements are not made at random, but only after the closest personal investigation of the fur situation as it exists today, and after a long acquaintance with the great fur companies, buyers, and trappers. But a few facts are necessary to show at what ruthless pace the slaughter of fur animals has gone on during the past decade. It was not long ago that 150,000 skins of the sea otter were taken from the Aleutian Islands each year. Today there are less than 400 skins taken annually. Ten years ago sea otter was a popular fur; today it is worn only by the royal blood of Europe. Twenty years ago it was estimated that seal herds of the Pribiloffs numbered over five millions. Today, in spite of international treaties for their protection, there are not more than 150,000 seals on the island! About 10,000 skins were taken last year, and so relentless was the slaughter on account of the princely sums offered for the fur that 10,000 baby seals died during the season, chiefly of starvation because of the death of their mothers.

The glossy little wood marten is dying out. Four years ago I met two Canadian trappers who were coming down from the upper New Ontario game regions with 300 marten, worth then from four to five dollars a skin. Today they are worth twenty-five dolars, and a half a dozen are a big "catch" for any one man in a single season. Five years ago 1,760,000 foxes were killed to supply the world's market. Three years ago the number had fallen to 1,200,000. Last year less than a million were caught. From two dollars a skin the red fox jumped to twelve; the "cross" fox from twenty-five to as high as a hundred, silver and black fox to prices that made their skins ten times the value of their weight in gold!

The silver and black are now so rare that they are "bid" for only by dukes and duchesses, the rulers and the heirs of kingdoms and empires. Seldom does one sell in the London or Paris markets for less than from $700 to $1,000. A year ago one pelt sold for $4,000. In this same way are going the black sable and the little white ermine whose pelt has been worn in the robes of royalty for more than seven centuries. It was not long ago that 100,000 skins of the black sable found their way into the market each year. Last year this number had dwind'ed to fifteen thousand!

The "signs of the change" are now at hand in another way, and as a consequence never in history will the women of the world be "up against" a greater assortment of substitutes in the fur line than during the coming seasons.

The world's prosperity and its rapid increase in population are, of course, the chief causes of the extinction of fur. As recently as ten years ago the people of the United States were not counted among the great buyers of fur. Now the majority of women among ninety million people are purchasers of fur of one kind or another. Five years ago London was the world's greatest fur center, with Paris a close second. Today, so enormous has the demand for fur become in this country as well as across the sea, that there are over 3,000 establishments for the treatment of fine furs and the making of fur garments in New York City alone.

London and Paris have now taken second and third places in the actual making of fur garments, though London handles more raw fur than the other two combined. Last year the value of New York's "finished" output was nearly $20,000,000, and fully sixty per cent. of this was represented by the furs which a few years ago were considered almost worthless.

"Three years will clean out the cheaper class of fur," said a Montreal buyer to me, "and then the real famine will be at hand."

This passing of the old romance of fur is marked not only by the pathos of the furred things themselves, but by that of the wild and picturesque life of those thousands of wilderness people whose centuries-old vocation must go with the things which gave it birth. There is some comfort for the lover of the wild and what it holds in the thought that at least in a great part of the far Canadian wilderness the picturesque fur-hunter will never, like the courier du bois, quite die out. In a country one-third as large as the whole of Europe railroads and civilization will never go. This vast wilderness region, long described as a "waste," stretches from the coast of Labrador, through Ungava, skirts Hudson's Bay and swings north and west to Mackenzie Land and the polar seas.

It is a land where for six months out of the year man's life is a bitter fight against deep snows and fierce blizzards—against hardships of all kinds, starvation, and a cold that reaches sixty degrees below zero and which is so "dry" that one may freeze almost to the point of death without being aware of especial discomfort or pain. It is, as Lord Strathcona says, "the last great trapping ground." Out of this trapping ground there has come a constant stream of treasure for nearly two and a half centuries. Last year, according to Canadian export figures, this treasure amounted to $2,719,822, but no credit was given for the enormous home consumption of raw pelts. The actual catch was worth at least $5,500,000. The coming season will see $7,000,000 worth of furs caught in Canada, in spite of the fact that the actual number of skins will be at least a quarter less than a year ago, when the lives of between thirty and forty million wild things were taken that Milady of civilization might have her furs.

As recently as eight years ago, when the writer first began his journeys into the northland, one struck the great fur country as soon as he crossed Lake Superior. From there it ranged to the Arctic sea. Less than a decade has brought about a tremendous change, and now one travels a hundred miles farther north before he enters the "last great trapping ground." From this great trapping ground comes seventy per cent. of the better class of furs worn by the American woman and her Canadian sister.

In a vast desolation one-third as large as the whole of Europe there is no railroad, no white man's village, and its population is less than that of the Sahara Desert. In its center is Hudson's Bay, the great "ice box" of the north—nine times as large as the state of Ohio. Over this vast territory at distances of from one to three hundred miles apart are scattered the Hudson's Bay Company's posts and those of its French competitors, the Revillon Brothers. In most instances a post consists of nothing more than a "company store," the factor's house, and two or three log cabins. Except during the months of the trapping season these are practically the only points of human life in a country that runs two thousand miles east and west and from two to eight hundred north and south.

With the first breath of winter the fur-gatherers begin to bury themselves in the vast desolation about them, traveling one and sometimes two hundred miles away from the post to their old trapping grounds.

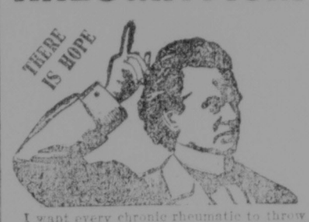
From the moment he leaves his door to go over his line, three days' supply of food and a thick blanket in his pack-sack, a knife, a beltax and a rifle as weapons, every hour is filled with excitement for the hunter of fur. On his snowshoes he speeds swiftly from trap to trap, every mile of snowy forests and swamps revealing the mysteries of the wild things to him as plainly as a picture-book.

In one trap he finds a great white owl, and cuts off the beautiful wings for the wife and children back in the cabin. In the next there is a huge snow-shoe rabbit, frozen stiff as it had died. And then, from through the thick and gloomy balsam ahead, he hears the faint clinking of a chain. His blood leaps now, for this real sport of the wilderness never grows old to the fur-hunter. The chain clinks louder, and he draws in quick, excited breaths as he lifts the hammer of his rifle and stares ahead. He comes suddenly upon the next house, and there is a snarling, leaping, thing in the air before him, a great silver-gray furred thing, lithe and beautiful as it crouches at bay—a lynx. And a magnificent specimen, its six-inch fur, as fine as a woman's hair, crumpled and lying richly upon the blood-stained snow as it waits for the man to come within springing distance. But the hunter knows better. He aims carefully for a spot where he can sew up the bullet-hole, and fires. Only a short time from now some gently nurtured beauty of civilization will press the warmth and regal loveliness of that thing to her face, and is it possible that a vision of this wilderness tragedy will come to her then? No more than the dark-faced hunter sees a vision of that woman's loveliness as he skins his catch and hurries on. To each is given but a part of the picture.

The forest man knows only that he has caught a "Number One, Extra" lynx, and that the Company will pay him fifteen dollars for it. His mental visions go no farther than that. He makes no effort to follow it in the great ship that will carry it to Paris or London, where it will be sold at great profit; nor to the furrier's shop, nor to the dainty girl or the society matron in New York who will pay $150 for that same fifteen-dollar lynx—in an "imported" muff. He goes on, keyed to higher excitement, until the end of the day comes, and in the first gray gloom of early night he stops at one of the three or four small log shelters which he has built for himself along the trap-line, gets his supper, lights his pipe, and reviews the happenings of the day until slumber closes his eyes.

It will take him three days to cover a forty-mile trap-line, and when he returns to his cabin at the close of the third he is welcomed by the glad cries of his children and the laughter and joy of his wife, who has a tender roast porcupine or a venison stew waiting for him. For two days after that he rests, smokes his pipe, and tells of his adventures, while his wife scrapes the fat from his pelts and stretches them on sticks. Then, once more, he shoulders his pack, and goes again upon his round of excitement, adventure and profit.

RHEUMATISM



I want every chronic rheumatic to throw away all medicines, all liniments, all lotions, and try MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM REMEDY a trial. No matter what your doctor may say, no matter what your friends may say, no matter how long and severely you may be afflicted with rheumatism, no matter what other blood remedies, go at once to your druggist and get a bottle of the RHEUMATISM REMEDY. If it fails to give entire satisfaction, I will refund your money.—Munyon

Remember this remedy contains no salicylic acid, no opium, cocaine, morphine or other harmful drugs. It is put up under the guarantee of the Pure Food and Drug Act.

For sale by all druggists. Price, 25c.

Health Demands that the bowels be kept regular. Neglect means sickness. Sluggish bowels are quickly regulated by

Beecham's Pills

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c.

NATURAL FINE-Ground PHOSPHATE

Will increase the productive capacity of your land by applying only 20c. worth to each ton of manure.

THE RELIABLE LAND ROCK

Crop yields 50 to 75% by applying 2½ tons per acre to the soil direct. Leading Agricultural Experimenting Stations endorse it. Write for free Booklet telling all about it. Free book shows. Address

THE FARMERS GROUND ROCK PHOSPHATE CO. MT. PLEASANT, TENNESSEE

PATENT Patented or not patented. Free opinion as to patentability. Send sketch or model. Book of INVENTIONS & PATENTS free. Highest references. Best results. EVANS & CO., 624 F St., Washington; 46 Dearborn St., Chicago.

The Oldest Klickitat.

Jake Hunt, the oldest living Klickitat Indian known, lies at death's door at his home adjoining this town east of here. The old Indian is reputed to be more than 100 years of age.

Years ago an Indian village stood where the Hunt family now carries on a general farming business. All that is left of the old settlement is a little church, a totem pole and numerous mounds where the Klickitats lie who could not reach the country mark. Old Jake says that this was the Indians' paradise before the advent of early white settlers.

Jake Hunt is destined not to die a poor Indian. His lands are as rich and productive as any in the valley and command a high price. He is said to have married seven times during his long career, but there will be only a widow and a few children to fell heir to his valuable property.—Hiram Corresondence Portland Oregonian.

Back, Then, to the Farm.

Richard Croker, during his visit to New York last month, discussed with a reporter the high cost of living.

"The farmers are all right," said Mr. Croker. "It is the people who insist on living in the towns who find everything too dear. In the towns, too, all the expenses are as bother-some as the children."

A little boy in a tiny flat looked up from his dream one day and said:

"Mother, Adam and Eve lived in Paradise. What was it like there?"

"Like what it is here, my eight children are all at school."

A Girl's Way

"But," he complained when she had refused him, "you have given me every reason to believe you cared for me."

"I do care for you, George."

"Then why won't you be mine?"

"I want to let your stuck-up mother and sisters understand that I don't consider you good enough for me."

When the suffragettes get in power the office may really seek the man, simply because it is trying to dodge the woman.

Without a Cook?

Never mind—you can have a good breakfast if there's a package of

Post Toasties

in the house.

This delicious food, ready to serve without cooking, is always welcome and makes

Breakfast a Delight

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., LTD., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months..... .75
One copy three months ..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1911.

THE MUTTON HEAD

Sometimes we wonder why it is that there was ever created the fellow who carries a bladder of putty around on his shoulders in lieu of a lid—the mutton head, for whom there is less room in the world every minute. You know who we mean—the man whose mind is dormant or missing—who neither hears nor sees and is minus the faculty of perception—who never learns to think and act for himself and only does what he is told to do and like as not never does that well.

Life itself is a school in which most of us learn every day. Experience and example, coupled with observation, serve to store the mind with information on which we draw as occasion requires. It would seem as though everybody ought to learn—sometime—to know the inevitable total of the first sum in addition—that even the machine might be a man and under certain conditions think and act for himself. To master a trade one must serve an apprenticeship—only with practice can skill become perfect—but the rudiments of results are within the reach of every mind save and except that which we erroneously list among the possessions of the mutton head,

The mutton head never learns anything for sure—never adds two and two until he absolutely knows how many they make—never gets as far as the hot stove formula, in fact, it never occurs to him that there are things in life he might learn, outside his daily round—that there are things he might do other than those to which his attention is called—that he is presumed to have horse-sense, which needs occasional exercise else it might ossify. He never strives to excel—his future is today, and all his horizons are alike. The simplest problems are passed up as impossible of solution and without worry—what wonder that he is the drag of the human herd!

Pity 'tis, but the mutton head is always with us. We meet him every day and very seldom in an automobile of his own.

THE SCHOOL BOARD AND THE CHARGES AGAINST IT'S MEMBERS.

On Wednesday next, February 15th, the State Board of Education will meet (either in Oakland or at the office of the board in Baltimore) to consider the charges that have been preferred against the School Board of Garrett county and against County Superintendent Ed. A. Browning.

We are not in a position to form an opinion as to what will be done by the State Board upon this occasion. It has been alleged that the County Superintendent has said that the people who signed the charges against himself and the School Board are people whose names have so little weight that nothing will be done and that all the charges will be proven false and the School Board and its worthy secretary will stand before the patrons of the public schools as long-suffering martyrs who have only done their duty as they saw it and as best they could.

The most serious charges that has been made against the School Board, in the estimation of many, is that the members of that body have allowed the County Superintendent to dictate the policy of the board. While in some cases this might not be detrimental to the welfare of the schools, in the present case it is.

There is no denying the fact that the high school as well as the grammer school in Oakland are in a deplorable condition. There is no sympathy existing between the patrons and certain teachers employed in the schools, and certainly none between the patrons and the County Superintendent. The pupil who knows that no cooperation exists between his parents and the school officials is not the same student he would be if conditions were reversed and where there has been an open rupture between the County Superintendent and the principal it is hard for the principal to get the respect and attention he deserves.

The man who allows his personal feelings or his political feelings to enter largely into school affairs is not doing his duty, and the general dissatisfaction expressed by the teachers throughout the county must have some well-founded reason for its existence. it has become evident that the teacher who was so unfortunate as to have a relative who at some time or in some manner incurred the displeasure of the learned superintendent was informed that she could expect no favors from his royal hand, and while her salary was supposed to be regulated by law it was with the slightest compunction that a portion of it was withheld and the larger salaries were paid to the one who had patted the back of the learned one in the right way. If a school house were to be built it seems that a relative of the worthy superintendent could get the contract at a larger price than one who was not so fortunate as to be related. These are some of the charges to be considered by the State Board and we can express no opinion as to what the decision may be, but here's hopin'.

Somewhere there must be a man who can fill the position of County Superintendent in Garrett county—some one whose education is almost, if not quite as good as that of the present incumbent of that office. There may be a man who would be as unpopular, but we would like to see a change, feeling that no great risk would be incurred. Garrett county needs a change, wants a change in the superintendency of the public schools so that its school system may improve instead of deteriorating, and the State Board should make a change whether the charges are proven or not.

The people are crying for deliverance from the yoke that is galling them.

WHAT MAKES A TOWN?

In the first place a town, which is to be considered more than just a creeping village, must have a few at least, of real live, unselfish, progressive citizens who are willing to shoulder a portion of the responsibility for its future, both in personal work and financial assistance in every effort put forth or suggested that will increase its attractiveness either commercially or morally and in other social conditions. A town cannot thrive and grow wherein the financially responsible men do not agree on any other point than that of looking out for themselves. Co-operation is necessary in building a business, and so is it necessary in building a town to make it a success. Whenever the men who have the money and the business ability in any community, get down to real earnest pulling together, the same community rapidly blossoms forth into a live town, and grows continously as long as the co-operation keeps up.

What makes a Town?

Answer.—Co-operation of its citizens in push and pluck.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Capt. Hayden is still confined to his home.

John Gortner is down with typhoid fever at the home of his father east of here.

The stork left a fine boy at the Methodist parsonage last Friday.

Harrison Arnold spent last week at the Park visiting his parents. Tuesday morning he returned to Bedford, Pa.

Mrs. Henry Mann spent part of the past week with friends in Cumberland and Keyser, W. Va.

Miss Grace Callis, of Loch Lynn, visited her uncle and his family at Keyser, the past several days.

The Bowman cottage on L street has been purchased by Charles T. Smith, of Parkersburg, W. Va.

Rev. Mr. Carnahan, the Methodist pastor at Dawson, Pa., has rented for the summer, Mrs. Brinkley's G street cottage.

Mr. Heyward, of Bond, has purchased the R. T. Miller cottage and will shortly move his family to the Park.

Joseph Lish was called home the latter part of last week by the severe illness of his father.

Death removed from our midst last Saturday, Mr. James Queer. He was buried Monday afternoon in the Pleasant Valley graveyard.

In the short space of one week—January 30 to February 4—we had spring, summer, fall and winter. Snow, ice, rain, sunshine and mud. Sunday was an ideal winter day.

Schooley & Gibson have about completed the improvements on the Cecil cottage, now owned by Dr. Carr of New York.

Mr. Lou Stone, of Wheeling, who bought the Allen Cottage on G street, has had added to this desirable property a bath room and a large fire place.

Rev. Dr. Reid, of Deer Park, was a visitor at this place last Monday.

Nine cottages that were rented last season will be occupied this summer by their new owners. The sales were made through the C. W. Hopkins Real Estate Agency.

In a business letter from Mrs. S. E. Blue, we learn of the death of her husband, also that Mrs. A. Spitzer is quite ill.

Mrs. Jane Lipscomb, of near this place, in the past day or two made 125 pounds of maple sugar.

Mr. Josiah Beckman bought and installed a gasoline engine a few days ago to chop feed, saw wood, etc.

The result of the protracted meetings held in the Methodist church was 30 conversions and 17 additions to the church. Others will join later on.

Miss Virginia Sperry returned to Baltimore Wednesday morning. She is employed in a millinery establishment.

Mr. Lincoln Callis, of Loch Lynn, is confined to his home with a severe cold.

Garthright's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all who are indebted to me either on note or open account to make immediate settlement as I must close up my personal affairs. If settlement is not made within a reasonable time my books will be placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to force settlement.

Thanking all for their patronage and soliciting a continuance of the same with the new firm, I am,

Very respectfully,
P. T. GARTHRIGHT.

PARADISE.

Weather is fine with a few inches of snow and moderate temperature.

Mr. Harry Speicher was the guest of Miss Celia Miller Friday evening.

Mr. Murry Paugh and Miss Dora Nethkin were visitors at I. A. Paugh's Sunday.

Mr. J. W. Miller has returned to his work at Blaine after spending several days with his father-in-law, W. H. Speicher.

B. F. Paugh and daughter Mary were entertained at the home of Mrs. Mahlon Schooley Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Stuart spent several days in Oakland last week with her daughter, Mrs. James Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Browning and son, Carlton, were the guests of Mrs. Wm. Thayer at Thaverville, Sunday.

Misses Anna Harvey and Irene DeWitt were Oakland visitors, Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Joseph Bowser, of Accident, spent Sunday afternoon and night with his cousin, Mahlon Schooley.

Christian Endeavor next Sunday at 7.30 p. m. Everybody is cordially invited to attend this service.

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper and wishing much success to THE REPUBLICAN. ROSEBUD.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address
DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Jumbo Farm Fencing.

Cheapest, strongest, most durable Fence ever offered.

Sold on a base of 3c. per pound, thus paying for values, not rod price.

Comes as cheap as barbed wire and is made throughout of No. 9 wire.

No stay wires lighter than the line wires.

A fence is like a chain: no stronger than its weakest link.

No wraps to get loose to hold moisture and cause rust.

No projections to injure stock or tear wool from sheep.

Stronger at the joints than any other fence.

Guaranteed to stand the full strength of wire at joints and not to separate.

Guaranteed that the wire is not injured at the joints.

Guaranteed adjustable to uneven ground.

Guaranteed to be made of open-hearth wire of uniform quality.

Guaranteed to be heavier galvanized. It is impossible to put as much zinc on a light guage wire as on a heavy wire.

No wire fence should ever be put on an American farm that has a wire in it lighter than No. 9.

Buy only open-hearth wire—best wire that can be produced for fencing.

Bessemere steel rusts quicker, is not uniform; is likely to have hard spots in it when drawn out into wire.

There is no question but that large wires in fencing will last longer and at 3c. a pound is the cheapest fence, because the cost per pound of fence made of large wires does not increase in the same proportion as the size of the wire. Use no fence with stay wires made of lighter wire than No. 9.

Samples of all No. 9 Jumbo Fences now on exhibition at our store. Call and examine size and style at a 3c. base.

In order to get full benefit of prices must have your order on or before March 1st, as the factory requires full specifications by that time for spring shipment.

Will also take orders for wire nails to be shipped in car with wire at $2 per keg base price; barbed wire, galvanized, $2.50 per hundred or 80 rod bundles; heavy weight, at $1.75; light weight, bundles, 80 rods, $1.65.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

NOTICE! TO THE PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,
H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Mortgagee's Sale

OF VALUABLE

Coal & Timber Lands

Lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the 28th day of October, 1909, duly recorded in Garrett County, Md., wherein William U. Hensel, of Lancaster City was duly authorized to make sale of the real and personal property covered and conveyed by said mortgage, in case of default by said mortgagor in the payment of certain moneys secured by the same and such default having occurred, the undersigned William U. Hensel, as such attorney named in said mortgage to make this sale, will, on

SATURDAY, the 25th day of February, 1911

AT 11.00 O'CLOCK A. M.,

in front of the Courthouse door in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, State of Maryland, sell at public auction, all the real and personal property, lots and parcels of grounds, and timber and timber rights, covered and conveyed by said mortgage, the same lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in said Garrett County, Maryland, and the same being particularly described as follows, viz:

The land is located in the northern part of Garrett County, Md., and lies within districts No. 3 and No. 12. The county road running from Engle's Mills to Bittinger traverses this property in a southeasterly direction, the property being about a mile and a half from Engle's Mills and about two and a half miles from Bittinger. The portion of the property, known as the second and third parts of "Rights of Man and Common Sense" being at the summit of Negro Mountain.

FIRST. All those four lots or parcels of ground, lying in Garrett County, Maryland, which are known as Military Lots Nos. 2478, 2479, 2480 and 2481, containing the aggregate 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots of ground which were conveyed to Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others by deed dated March 30th, 1909, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Md., and being also part of the lands which were conveyed by J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by deed dated August 14, 1909, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 289, one of said Land Records.

SECOND. All those four lots and parcels of ground lying near Engles Mills, in Garrett County, Maryland, known as Military Lots Nos. 2454, 2455, 2456 and 2457, containing 200 acres of land more or less, they being the same lots and parcels of ground which were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others, by deed dated March 30, 1909, recorded in Liber 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being a part of the same lands which were conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated August 14, 1909, and recorded as aforesaid.

THIRD. All the timber and timber rights in and upon all those two parts of a tract of land called "The second and third parts of the Rights of Man" and "Common Sense," containing together 501 acres of land more or less, which said timber and timber rights were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by George T. Brew and wife, by deed dated March 28, 1910, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, Folio 285, one of said Land Records, excepting therefrom so much of the said timber and all that portion of said land which was conveyed away from the same by Louis Lininger prior and up to January 5, 1912, and being the same timber and timber rights described in and conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller and others to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated the 14th day of August, 1909, and recorded as aforesaid.

FOURTH. All the rest and residue of all that lot and parcel of land lying and being near Engle's Mills, in said county, and known as "Lot Number Two" of the four lots in which the tract known as "The Rights of Man," second and third parts, and "Common Sense" are now divided, contained within the following metes and bounds, to-wit:

Beginning for the same at the beginning of Lot No. 1, and running with the lines of the "Rights of Man," second part, East 64 perches, South 60 degrees East, 60 perches; North 70 degrees East, 25 perches; South 35 degrees East, 60 perches; then with the first line of "Park." East 64 perches to the beginning of the "Rights of Man" third part, and with the lines thereof, South 146 perches, East 111 perches to the end of the 25th line of Common Sense, and with the 26th line thereof corrected, South 8 degrees East, 151 perches to a line of the land conveyed by Robert Oliver to John Beachy, and with said line, East 26 perches to the given line of Common Sense, which is also the 3rd line of Lot No. 2550, then with the range of lots, North 656 perches to the end of the 1st line of Common Sense, and with the lines thereof East 20 perches, North 100 perches, West 80 perches, North 20 perches; then North 14 degrees East, 90 perches to the end of the 2nd line of Lot No. 2456; then with the lots, West 120 perches, South 30½ perches to the beginning of the tract called "Ormes Trouble;" then reversing the given line thereof, South 15½ degrees West, 271 perches to the beginning, containing, in the residue of said tract land,

500 Acres, More or Less.

Being the same tract and parcel of land conveyed by George T. Brew to the said J. Frank Keller and others by deed dated May 24, 1909, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 280, of said Land Records, and being part of the lands conveyed by said J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by the said deed dated August 14, 1909, and recorded as aforesaid, excepting however, from said last tract and parcel of the timber and timber rights belonging to said land, which were conveyed by said George T. Brew and others to said Jacob G. Stauffer by the above recited deed of March 28, 1910, recorded as aforesaid.

FIFTH. All the plant and machinery, railways and tramways, buildings and improvements now on the lands hereinbefore mentioned and described together with all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, in and to all the same or which it may otherwise have under its charter.

All the above lots, tracts and parcels of lands and timber and timber rights, together with all the plant, machinery, railways, tramways, houses, buildings and improvements of every kind thereon, will be sold as a whole, as one property and plant.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by the mortgage—Cash, $1,000 of which shall be paid on the day of sale and the remainder which shall be paid as soon as said sale is ratified by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

WILLIAM U. HENSEL,
Attorney named in Mortgage.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of B. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of
B. WORTH JENNINGS, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS.

January 31st, 1911.

The Lonaconing Savings Bank

22222 Of Allegany County. 22222

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department

Takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays. 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Order of Publication.

Saby J. Miller, vs. John Miller, o. 1718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendent.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married about the year 1899, and that they lived together as man and wife until about the 25th day of November, 1909, and as a result of said marriage five children were born unto them, three girls and two boys, the youngest of which is about ten years of age.

That since said marraige the plaintiff has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife.

The bill then charges that about the said 25th day of November, 1909, that the plaintiff discovered that the defendant was untrue to her, and was visiting and cohabiting with lewd and abandoned women, whose names are unknown to her, that on said 25th day of November, 1909, that the defendant returned home after being absent for ten days or more, and was then suffering from a loathsome disease as a result of cohabiting with lewd women as aforesaid, and after being convinced that such was the case she charged the defendant with said unfaithfulness, and after first denying it, he afterwards in the presence of witnesses admitted such to be a fact, and undertook to explain to the plaintiff the circumstances in excuse for his unfaithfulness.

The bill further charges that after discovering the defendant's unfaithfulness she never cohabited with him again, and after on they entered into a written agreement to live apart, and since said time they have never lived together.

The bill further states that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and prays for an order of publication against the defendant and for other and further relief.

It is thereupon this 18th day of January, 1911, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of February, 1911, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before 6th day of March next, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk 4-4

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of instruction leading to professional degree of B. S.

Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Prop'r

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt	Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis	George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell	William R. Stull
Scott T Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Mr. Charles M. Miller, of Swanton, was in the city Monday.

Mr. Philip Hansel, of near Lonaconing, spent Monday in Oakland on business.

Mr. G. Semmes Hamill was in Friendsville Tuesday and yesterday on business.

Money to loan in amounts to suit borrower. RENNINGER & OFFUTT, attorneys.

Mr. D. Y. Morris and Miss Julia Byrne spent a few days recently at Kingwood.

Miss Cleo Krantz has gone to her home in Frederick county for a month's visit to relatives.

Mrs. R. E. Sliger went to Lonaconing yesterday afternoon to visit her mother for a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, of Rowlesburg, West Va., were shopping in Oakland Monday afternoon.

Mr. James Frantz, of near Selbysport, is in Oakland sor a day or two visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Frantz.

Dr. N. I. Broadwater went to Baltimore Monday morning on professional business, returning to Oakland yesterday morning.

Mr. Edward J. Hamill, cashier of the First National Bank at Kitzmiller, was in Oakland for a few hours Monday afternoon on business.

Mrs. Hamill Spedden and Mrs. G. A. Bolden, who came here to attend the funeral of Mrs. E. M. Spedden, will remain in Oakland until this afternoon as guests of relatives.

There will be preaching in the Presbyterian Church, Sunday, February 12, both morning and evening at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m., by the Rev. A. D. Greene, of Washington, D. C.

Miss Mary Miller, of Providence, R. I., who recently visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Miller, at Swanton, and also the ancestral home of the Miller family in Virginia, has returned to Providence.

Mr. L. A. Rudisill, of Mountain Lake Park, is holding a position in this office during the illness of Capt. Hayden, who has been confined to his home at the Park for several days with a severe attack of the grip.

Mr. H. Friend, of Swanton, was in Oakland yesterday. While here he sold the County Commissioners five Austin road machines, and to Fike Bros., of Eglon, a 25 horse power engine, and a saw mill complete.

WANTED—Five cars scrap iron, zinc, copper and brass. Garthright & Harvey, Mountain Lake Park.

Mr. Oliver Heyward and daughter Miss Beatrice, of Bond, came up to Oakland Tuesday evening and are guests here for a few days of friends. Mr. Heyward recently purchased the R. T. Miller property at Mountain Lake Park and will move into it shortly.

Mr. J. M. Nelson, of Chicago, a member of the law firm of Knight, Barbour & Adams, prominent attorneys of Chicago, was in Oakland Monday in consultation with attorneys here relative to some Garrett county real estate in which Mr. Nelson's firm is interested.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Mr. George J. Kolb, of Friendsville, who headed the Friendsville good roads delegation which appeared before the Board of County Commissioners Tuesday and filed petitions for the construction of a new road under the Shoemaker law to lead from a point near Accident to Friendsville, called at this office while in town.

For some time past a force of carpenters have been engaged at the Dixon & Kelso warehouse erecting an additional story thereon, made necessary for the accommodation of wheat grinding machinery to be installed by the firm within the next few weeks. The new wheat mill will be of the latest improved design and will have a capacity of twenty-five barrels per day.

Subscribe for The Republican.

YOU ARE A HORSE IN A TREAD MILL WHILE YOU are SPENDING all you earn

PUT YOUR MONEY IN THE BANK and YOU WILL BE A FREE MAN

If you earn $10,000 a year and spend $11,000 you will fall behind. If you earn ten dollars a week and save part of it you will get ahead—and there is no other way to do so. Get out of the tread mill.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

OAKLAND, MD.

HAS NO SUBSTITUTE

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

NO ALUM, NO LIME PHOSPHATE

Mr. Emerson S. Ferrier, woods superintendent for the Kendall Lumber Company, who has been critically ill for the past two weeks at the Browning Hotel, suffering with an acute attack of inflammatory rheumatism, has improved very much during the past few days. He is being attended by Dr Henry W. McComas and has as his nurse Mr. Simon Myers.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Ricketts arrived in Oakland last Saturday morning from Kane, Pa., where they were married on Wednesday and were guests until Sunday of Miss Elizabeth Offutt at the home of the young lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Offutt, when the newly wedded couple were driven to Accident, their future home, where Dr. Ricketts recently located and is enjoyingan extensive practice.

We have received from Past Commander Charles E. Hoye of Camp George H. Bently No. 9, Dept. O. Veteran Army of the Philippines, U. S. W. V., the 1910 Year Book of the Post, published at Legaspi, Albay, Philippines, which was accompanied by a photograph of the teachers of Albay, taken at Camp Daraga in which Mr. Hoye appears as supervisor or superintendent. The year book contains a history of the capture of Legaspi by the troops of the United States, as well as other information of interest.

Mr. Eugene Teats, of the Cranesville country, was in Oakland on business Monday, when he called at this office. Mr. Teats is about to become a resident of another state although he will continue to occupy the same dwelling that he has lived in for a number of years and the structure will remain upon its present foundation. This seeming impossibility of transferring buildings, lands and citizens from one state into another is being accomplished by the commissioners who are engaged in surveying the new boundary line between Maryland and West Virginia, which will place Mr. Teats' home about forty rods west of the line. West Virginia, by acquiring Mr. Teats as a citizen, gains an excellent man.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows: Sunday school at 2:15 p. m. Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Epworth League Monday 7:30 p. m. Prayermeeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Sunday school at 2.30 p. m. Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows: Deer Park—Preaching at 11 a. m. Loch Lynn—Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

HAUSER.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Roth visited his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Roth last Sunday.

Miss Dora Hauser is working in Cumberland at the present time.

Mr. David Gnegy and his brother Daniel Gnegy were Oakland visitors Friday, as was Mr. H. C. Fowler.

Miss Margaret Becker had a quilting party last Thursday. It was well attended and a splendid time was reported.

Mr. Homer Gnegy severely injured his foot last week and has been unable to continue working in the woods. He hit his instep with the ax, cutting quite a gash.

Mr. D. O. Roth has been quite ill for several days.

Mr. C. E. Sherman spent Sunday with Mr. Daniel Gnegy.

The saw mill which was recently moved to the Shaffer farm is now cutting lumber and has logs enough to keep it busy for some time.

Mrs. Wright and sister Mrs. Durr, of Sand Patch, Pennsylvania, who have been visiting their sick sister, Mrs. Bittner, who is better at this writing.

Mrs. Rosella of Thomas, W Va., is reported quite ill with appendicitis.

Mrs. George H. Gauer has gone on a visit to see his sick daughter, Mrs. Rosella at Thomas.

EYES AND EARS.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.

HAMILL & LEGGE

Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,

OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Attendance Roll.

The following high school pupils were neither late nor absent during the month of January:

U. G. PALMER, Prin.

Ruth Arnold, Hosmer Cropp, Edward Chance, Harold Conneway, Russell Cuppett, Preston DeBerry, Walter Falkenstein, Bernadette Hart Walter Dawson, Mary Harsch, Marguerite Hart, Harold Harned, Frank Kildow, Louis Littman, Vernon Lyon, Patrick Murphy, Paul Musgrave, Frank Ross, Morris Sincell, Frederick Thayer, Edna Trickett, Bert M. Welch, Robert White.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Christ Martin, of Red House, was in this section buying stock last Saturday.

Quite a crowd attended the funeral of James Queer at this place last Monday.

Messrs. Joe and Asa Callis, of Loch Lynn, were in this vicinity looking up a farm one day last week.

Mr. Amos Bittinger is mourning the loss of his valuable dog which was blown up by dynamite last Saturday.

Rev. Bauman, who is holding his meeting at Crellin now spent Sunday at home.

Miss Georgia Davis, who is teaching school near Swanton, spent Friday evening and Saturday with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Dewitt, of near Crellin, were visiting har brother Geo. last Sunday and Monday.

Sunday School at 10 a. m. and preaching at 11 a. m. next Sunday in the M. E. church by P. Z. Musgrave.

IRVIN CHAPEL.

After a few days of rain and mud the earth is again covered with her snowy robe.

The singing school is progressing nicely with Prof. Cuppett as teacher.

J. W. White and family were visiting Judson Foster Sunday.

M. A. Netken was seriously ill Sunday, and Dr. McComas was hastily summoned to attend him. We are glad to say he is improving at this writing.

B. F. Paugh and sons have completed making 300 cross ties for J. W. White.

J. A. Paugh sold some very valuable live stock last week.

The public school is prospering under the skillful management of W. O. W. Paugh.

Mr. Stephen Casteel was a business caller in our community Monday. He is quite a hustler.

Charles Gorden is very busy getting out crossties.

J. R. Browning was a business caller at M. A. Netkens' one day last week.

Preaching Sunday, Feb. 19th, at 3 p. m., by Rev. D. L. Reid.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

COPPER COFFEE POTS, NICKEL PLATED, the regular $1 kind, this week	75c
COPPER TEA POTS, NICKEL PLATED, the regular $1 kind, this week	75c
COPPER TEAKETTLES, NICKEL PLATED, the regular $1.25 kind, this week	1.00
WASHBOILERS, HEANY COPPER BOTTOMS, the regular $1.50 kind, this week	1.25
COFFEE MILLS, the regular 75c kind, this week	50c
WASH BOARDS, Glass Rub, the regular 50c. kind, this week	40c
WASH BOARDS, Brass Rub, the regular 40c. kind, this week	30c
BUTCHER KNIVES, the regular 25c. kind, this week	15c
KNIVES AND FORKS, the regular 75c. kind, this week, per set	50c
KNIVES AND FORKS, the regular 50c. kind, this week, per set	25c
TEA SPOONS, the regular 25c. kind, this week	15c
TEA SPOONS, the regular 20c. kind, this week, per set	10c
POCKET KNIVES, the regular 75c. kind, this week	50c
POCKET KNIVES, the regular 50c. kind, this week	30c
POCKET KNIVES, 3 blades, this week	15c
SHOE BRUSHES, the regular 25c. kind, this week	15c
ALUMINUM SALT AND PEPPERS, the regular 15c. kind, this week	10c

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,

S. LAWTON & SONS.

DR. J. E. LEGGE,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Offers his Services to the citizens of Oakland and vicinity.

Office in Garrett National Bank Building

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season

Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The Baltimore News

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Published Every Afternoon, Including Sunday

A Newspaper for the Home, for the Family Circle

Covers thoroughly the news of the city, State and country.

Complete market reports.

Buy it from your local newsdealer or order it by mail.

One month	30c.	Six months	$1.75
Three months	90c.	One year	$3.50

The Baltimore News, Baltimore, Md.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO., OAKLAND, MD., Jan. 19, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, Feb. 5th, 1911,

to hear appeals and make transfers on the old assessment as the new assessment will not be finished in time for the 1911 levy.

Road Supervisors are requested to file their oath and bonds at once so they can be approved on above date.

By order of the Board,

A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,

Executrix,

43-3t-pd Mt. Lake Park Md.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY, TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400

200 Young Broke Mules 200

HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.

MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

EDWARD H. SINCELL,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR OF THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS By M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT BY DODD, MEAD & COMPANY

10

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Dickson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence places both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him, under suspicion of murder. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Allison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Trap Door.

By Sunday evening, a week after the wreck, my forced inaction had goaded me to frenzy. The very sight of Johnson across the street or lurking always within sight of the house, kept me constantly exasperated. It was on that day that things began to come to a focus, a burning-glass of events that seemed to center on me.

I dined alone that evening in no cheerful frame of mind. There had been a polo game the day before and I had lent a pony, which is always a bad thing to do. And she had wrenched her shoulder, besides helping to lose the game. There was no one in town; the temperature was 90 and climbing, and my left hand persistently cramped under its bandage.

Mrs. Klopton herself saw me served, my bread buttered and cut in tidbits, my meat ready for my fork. She hovered around me maternally, obviously trying to cheer me.

"The paper says still warmer," she ventured. "The thermometer is 92 now."

"And this coffee is 250," I said, putting down my cup. "Where is Euphemia? I haven't seen her around, or heard a dish smash all day."

"Euphemia is in bed," Mrs. Klopton said gravely. "Is your meat cut small enough, Mr. Lawrence?" Mrs. Klopton can throw more mystery into an ordinary sentence than any one I know. She can say, "Are your sheets damp, sir?" And I can tell from her tone that the house across the street has been robbed, or that my left hand neighbor has appendicitis. So now I looked up and asked the question she was waiting for.

"What's the matter with Euphemia?" I inquired idly.

"Frightened into her bed," Mrs. Klopton said in a stage whisper. "She's had three hot water bottles and she hasn't done a thing all day but moan."

"She oughtn't to take hot water bottles," I said in my severest tone. "One would make me moan. You need not wait, I'll ring if I need anything."

Mrs. Klopton sailed to the door, where she stopped and wheeled indignantly. "I only hope you won't laugh on the wrong side of your face some morning, Mr. Lawrence," she declared, with Christian fortitude. "But I warn you, I am going to have the police watch that house next door."

I was half inclined to tell her that both it and we were under police surveillance at that moment. But I like Mrs. Klopton, in spite of the fact that I make her life a torment for her, so I refrained.

"Last night, when the paper said it was going to storm, I sent Euphemia to the roof to bring the rugs in. Eliza had slipped out, although it was her evening in. Euphemia went up to the roof—it was 11 o'clock—and soon I heard her running downstairs crying. When she got to my room she just folded up on the floor. She said there was a black figure sitting on the parapet of the house next door—the empty house—and that when she appeared it rose and waved long black arms at her and spit like a cat."

I had finished my dinner and was lighting a cigarette. "If there was any one up there, which I doubt, they probably sneezed," I suggested. "But if you feel uneasy, I'll take a look around the roof to-night before I turn in. As far as Euphemia goes, I wouldn't be uneasy about her—doesn't she always have an attack of some sort when Eliza rings in an extra evening on her?"

So I made a superficial examination of the window locks that night, visiting parts of the house that I had not seen since I bought it. Then I went to the roof. Evidently it had not been intended for any purpose save to cover the house, for unlike the houses around, there was no staircase. A ladder and a trap-door led to it, and it required some nice balancing on my part to get up with my useless arm. I made it, however, and found this unexplored part of my domain rather attractive. It was cooler than downstairs, and I sat on the brick parapet and smoked my final cigarette. The roof of the empty house adjoined mine along the back wing, but investigation showed that the trap-door across the low dividing way was bolted underneath.

There was nothing out of the ordinary anywhere, and so I assured Mrs. Klopton. Needless to say, I did not tell her that I had left the trap-door open to see if it would improve the temperature of the house. I went to bed at midnight, merely because there was nothing else to do. I turned on the night lamp at the head of my bed, and picked up a volume of Shaw at random (it was "Arms and the Man," and I remember thinking grimly that I was a good bit of a chocolate cream soldier myself), and prepared to go to sleep. Shaw always puts me to sleep. I have no apologies to make for what occurred that night, and not even an explanation that I am sure of. I did a foolish thing under impulse, and I have not been sorry.

It was something after two when the door-bell rang. It rang quickly, twice. I got up drowsily, for the maids and Mrs. Klopton always lock themselves beyond reach of the bell at night, and put on a dressing gown. The bell rang again on my way downstairs. I lit the hall light and opened the door. I was wide awake now, and I saw that it was Johnson. His bald head shone in the light—his crooked mouth was twisted in a smile.

"Good heavens, man," I said irritably. "Don't you ever go home and go to bed?"

He closed the vestibule door behind him and cavalierly turned out the light. Our dialogue was sharp, staccato.

The Wrist Was Slender.

"Have you a key to the empty house next door?" he demanded. "Somebody's in there, and the latch is caught."

"The houses are alike. The key to this door may fit. Did you see them go in?"

"No. There's a light moving up from room to room. I saw something like it last night, and I have been watching. The patrolman reported queer doings there a week or so ago."

"A light!" I exclaimed. "Do you mean that you—"

"Very likely," he said grimly. "Have you a revolver?"

"All kinds in the gun rack," I replied, and going into the den, I came back with a Smith and Wesson. "I'm not much use," I explained, "with this arm, but I'll do what I can. There may be somebody there. The servants here have been uneasy."

Johnson planned the campaign. He suggested on account of my familiarity with the roof, that I go there and cut off escape in that direction. "I have Robison out there now—the patrolman on the beat," he said. "He'll watch below and you above, while I search the house. Be as quiet as possible."

I was rather amused. I put on some clothes and felt my way carefully up the stairs, the revolver swinging free in my pocket, my hand on the rail. At the foot of the ladder I stopped and looked up. Above me there was a gray rectangle of sky dotted with stars. It occurred to me that with my one serviceable hand holding the ladder, I was hardly in a position to defend myself, that I was about to hoist a body that I am rather careful of into a danger I couldn't see and wasn't particularly keen about anyhow. I don't mind saying that the seconds it took me to scramble up the ladder were among the most unpleasant that I recall.

I got to the top, however, without incident. I could see fairly well after the darkness of the house beneath, but there was nothing suspicious in sight. The roofs, separated by two feet of brick wall, stretched around me, unbroken save by an occasional chimney. I went very softly over to the other trap, the one belonging to the suspected house. It was closed, but I imagined I could hear Johnson's footsteps ascending heavily. Then even that was gone. A near-by clock struck three as I stood waiting. I examined my revolver then, for the first time, and found it was empty!

I had been rather skeptical until now. I had had the usual tolerant attitude of the man who is summoned from his bed to search for burglars, combined with the artificial courage of firearms. With the discovery of my empty gun, I felt like a man on the top of a volcano in lively eruption. Suddenly I found myself staring incredulously at the trap-door at my feet. I had examined it early in the evening and found it bolted. Did I imagine it, or had it raised about an inch? Wasn't it moving slowly as I looked? No, I am not a hero; I was startled almost into a panic. I had one arm, and whoever was raising that trap-door had two. My knees had a queer inclination to bend the wrong way.

Johnson's footsteps were distinct enough, but he was evidently far below. The trap, raised perhaps two inches now, remained stationary. There was no sound from beneath it; once I thought I heard two or three gasping respirations; I am not sure they were not my own. I wanted desperately to stand on one leg at a time and hold the other up out of focus of a possible revolver.

I did not see the hand appear. There was nothing there, and then it was there, clutching the frame of the trap. I did the only thing I could think of; I put my foot on it!

There was not a sound from beneath. The next moment I was kneeling and had clutched the wrist just above the hand. After a second's struggle, the arm was still. With something real to face, I was myself again.

"Don't move, or I'll stand on the trap and break your arm," I panted. What else could I threaten? I couldn't shoot, I couldn't even fight. "Johnson!" I called.

And then I realized the thing that stayed with me for a month, the thing I cannot think of even now without a shudder. The hand lay ice cold, strangely quiescent. Under my fingers, an artery was beating feebly. The wrist was as slender as—I held the hand to the light. Then I let it drop.

"Good Lord," I muttered, and remained on my knees, staring at the spot where the hand had been. It was gone now; there was a faint rustle in the darkness below, and then silence.

I held up my own hand in the starlight and stared at a long scratch in the palm. "A woman!" I said to myself stupidly. "By all that's ridiculous, a woman!"

Johnson was striking matches below and swearing softly to himself. "How the devil do you get to the roof?" he called. "I think I've broken my nose!"

He found the ladder after a short search and stood at the bottom, looking up at me. "Well, I suppose you haven't seen him?" he inquired. "There are enough darned cubbyholes in this house to hide a patrol wagon load of thieves." He lighted a fresh match. "Hello, here's another door!"

By the sound of his diminishing footsteps I supposed it was a rear staircase. He came up again in ten minutes or so, this time with the policeman.

"He's gone, all right," he said ruefully. "If you'd been attending to your business, Robison, you'd have watched the back door."

"I'm not twins." Robison was surly.

"Well," I broke in, as cheerfully as I could, "if you are through with this jolly little affair, and can get down my ladder without having my housekeeper ring the burglar alarm, I have some good Monongahela whisky—eh?"

They came without a second invitation across the roof, and with them safely away from the house I breathed more freely. Down in the den I fulfilled my promise, which Johnson drank to the toast, "Coming through the rye." He examined my gun rack with the eye of a connoisseur, and even when he was about to go he cast a loving eye back at the weapons.

"Ever been in the army?" he inquired.

"No," I said with a bitterness that he noticed but failed to comprehend. "I'm a chocolate cream soldier—you don't read Shaw, I suppose, Johnson?"

"Never heard of him," the detective said indifferently. "Well, good night, Mr. Blakeley. Much obliged." At the door he hesitated and coughed.

"I suppose you understand, Mr. Blakeley," he said awkwardly, "that this—er—surveillance is all in the day's work. I don't like it, but it's duty. Every man to his duty, sir."

"Sometime when you are in an open mood, Johnson," I returned, "you can explain why I am being watched at all."

CHAPTER XV.

The Cinematograph.

On Monday I went out for the first time. I did not go to the office. I wanted to walk. I thought fresh air and exercise would drive away the blue devils that had me by the throat. McKnight insisted on a long day in his car, but I refused.

"I don't know why not," he said sulkily. "I can't walk. I haven't walked two consecutive blocks in three years. Automobiles have made legs mere ornaments—and some not even that. We could have Johnson out there chasing us over the country at $5 an hour!"

"He can chase us just as well at five miles an hour," I said. "But what gets me, McKnight, is why I am under surveillance at all. How do the police know I was accused of that thing?"

"The young lady who sent the flowers—she isn't likely to talk, is she?"

"No. That is, I didn't say it was a lady." I groaned as I tried to get my splintered arm into a coat. "Anyhow, she didn't tell," I finished with conviction, and McKnight laughed.

It had rained in the early morning, and Mrs. Klopton predicted more showers. In fact, so firm was her belief and so determined her eye that I took the umbrella she proffered me.

"Never mind," I said. "We can leave it next door! I have a story to tell you, Richey, and it requires proper setting."

McKnight was puzzled, but he followed me obediently around to the kitchen entrance of the empty house. It was unlocked, as I had expected. While we climbed to the upper floor I retailed the events of the previous night.

"It's the finest thing I ever heard of," McKnight said, staring up at the ladder and the trap. "What a vaudeville skit it would make! Only you ought not to have put your foot on her hand. They don't do it in the best circles."

I wheeled on him impatiently.

"You don't understand the situation at all, Richey!" I exclaimed. "What would you say if I tell you it was the hand of a lady? It was covered with rings."

"A lady!" he repeated. "Why, I'd say it was a darned compromising situation, and that the less you say of it the better. Look here, Lawrence, I think you dreamed it. You've been in the house too much. I take it all back; you do need exercise."

"She escaped through this door, I suppose," I said as patiently as I could. "Evidently down the back staircase. We might as well go down that way."

"According to the best precedents in these affairs, we should find a glove about here," he said as we started down. But he was more impressed than he cared to own. He examined the dusty steps carefully, and once, when a bit of loose plaster fell just behind him, he started like a nervous woman.

"What I don't understand is why you let her go," he said, stopping once, puzzled. "You're not usually quixotic."

"When we get out into the country, Richey," I replied gravely, "I am going to tell you another story, and if you don't tell me I'm a fool and a craven, on the strength of it, you are no friend of mine."

We stumbled through the twilight of staircase into the blackness of the shuttered kitchen. The house had the moldy smell of closed buildings; even on that warm September morning it was damp and chilly. As we stepped into the sunshine McKnight gave a shiver.

"Now that we are out," he said, "I don't mind telling you that I have been there before. Do you remember the night you left, and the face at the window?"

"When you speak of it—yes."

"Well, I was curious about that thing," he went on, as we started up the street, "and I went back. The street door was unlocked, and I examined every room. I was Mrs. Klopton's ghost that carried a light, and clumb."

"Did you find anything?"

"Only a clean place rubbed on the window opposite your dressing room. Splendid view of an untidy interior. If that house is ever occupied, you'd better put stained glass in that window of yours."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mistake Somewhere.

"Miss Fang'le is a homeopathist, isn't she?" asked the hostess.

"Weally, I—aw don't think so," replied young Featherby. "At least she is—aw—nevah at home when I call, doncher know."

In and Out.

Wigg—There seems to be quite a difference between a job and a situation.

Wagg—Oh, yes. For instance, when a fellow loses his job he often finds himself in an embarrassing situation.

CHECK IT IN TIME.

Few people realize the grave danger of neglecting the kidneys. The slightest kidney symptom may be Nature's warning of dropsy, diabetes or dreaded Bright's disease. If you have any kidney symptom, begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once.

W. P. Miller, Pender, Nebr., says: "I spent over $1,000.00 trying to get well, but my life was despaired of. The doctors said I had torn the ligaments of the kidneys apart. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they were the first remedy that helped me. Were it not for them, I would have had to give up work."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Art in the Nude.

The photographer's lady was very preoccupied showing some samples of work to prospective sitters, when a tall and raw-boned individual, apparently from "the land," stalked solemnly into the studio, and intimated that he would like to know what the "picters" were worth.

"Like that, $3 a dozen," said the photographer's lady, handing him one.

The farmer gazed long and earnestly at the photograph of a very small baby sitting in a wash basin.

"And what would it cost with my clothes on?" he finally asked.

Many Feel So.

"I'm so sorry about it, but my husband actually hates music."

"How strange!"

"Isn't it. His prejudice is so strong that he has to jump up and leave the theater whenever the orchestra is playing an entr'acte."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Calculated piety is the poorest kind of calculation.

Resinol Is a Perfect Remedy for Pruritus and All Itching Skin Troubles.

Have used Resinol with the utmost satisfaction. A case of Pruritus Vulvae which seemed to defy all known remedies was at once relieved and promptly cured. It also acted in a like manner in a severe case of eczema that had almost driven the patient crazy. It is indispensable to this day and generation.

F. C. Imes, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Scarecrow.

Miss Brush—I suppose you don't mind my being in your field, Mr. Gobel?"

Farmer Gobel (heartily)—The longer you stay, the better, miss. Fact is, the birds 'ave been very troublesome this season.—London Tattler.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

If some men were compelled to pay as they go they would stay.

Constipation

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. You can use this in behalf of suffering humanity. B. F. Fisher, Roanoke, Ill.

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. 930

$10 CASH BUYS FARM
of five acres in the famous Pensacola District of Florida. $5 a month pays for it. That is the only company guaranteeing market for crops through canning factory on property. A truck farm near growing city means independence for life. Our soil expert and demonstration farm make mistakes impossible. We want more farmers and will help you make good. Write for literature. PENSACOLA REALTY COMPANY, Pensacola, Fla., P. O. Box 27

PATENT your ideas. 64-page book and advice FREE. Established 1856. Fitzgerald & Co. Box 8, Washington, D.C.

SEND US YOUR BAD ACCOUNTS. Collections everywhere; immediate action; quick results; prompt remittances. Metropolitan Commercial Service, 23 Duane St., N.Y.

Faint?

Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up-stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alterative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"Two bottles Cured My Rheumatism"

"I have been a sufferer from rheumatism for about two years, and have used many liniments and patent medicines which gave me no relief. A lady friend of mine told me she had used your Liniment and found relief at once. I got two bottles and they cured me. I think it is the best Liniment a person can have in the house. I shall always keep a bottle in my house as long as I can get it."—MRS. E. R. WALLACE, Morrisons, Va.

Another Letter.

MRS. JAMES MCGRAW, of 1216 Mandeville St., New Orleans, La., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing to you that I had a pain in my arm for five years, and I used for one week and was completely cured. I recommend your Liniment very highly."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

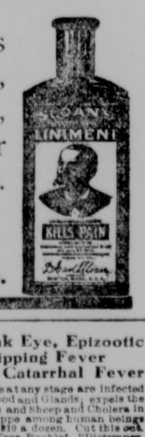
Sloan's Liniment instantly relieves stiffness of the Joints, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Sprains, Neuralgia, Sciatica and Lumbago. Better and cheaper than porous plasters.



At All Druggists. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00
Sloan's Treatise on the Horse sent Free. Address

DR. EARL S. SLOAN, BOSTON, MASS.

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any stage are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue, acts on the Blood and Glands; expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle, $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special Agents wanted.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

New "Flexible Hats"

SOME inventive designer of millinery, taking note of the strong points of the oriental turban, and seeking for something new, brought forth the new flexible hat of velvet. The queer but charming "ding-a-ling" hat burst upon New York and promptly captivated it. Naturally it has been followed by any number of soft hats and caps of velvet and other materials suitable for winter.

The "ding-a-ling" hat is a pointed cone of velvet with a rolled up rim next the face. It is guiltless of wire except for a single small shirring wire inserted about the brim edge. It is lined with silk or satin and interlined with rice-net. The crown is made of four conical pieces sewed together except in cases where a manufactured cone of felt or beaver or velvet is steamed into the proper shape over a block. The original hat was trimmed with a single quill, placed flat against the crown at the back. The whole affair is chic if extreme, but becoming to only certain types. It is full of snap and crisp style, but impossible for many wearers.

For those who cannot wear this jaunty (not to mention somewhat rakish) little bit of new millinery any number of new designs have been and are being invented. One of them is shown here. It is a crusher hat of black velvet, the brim lined with white satin and edged with a heavy satin-covered wire—the only wire in the hat. Such a hat, with the brim dented against the crown and ornamented with a smart aigrette or stiff, flat, cockade, may be seen at any of the cafes, completing very handsome toilettes.

Odd effects in trimming are sought for these odd hats, and many of them, for the street, are untrimmed. They need a finishing touch, however, but it must be just a touch. A single skeleton plume, in peculiar colorings, or a long feather from the pheasant tail, or a narrow, gold quill, are favorites and illustrate the character of trimming which is appropriate.

A soft turban of velvet and fur with fur buckle, is partly flexible. There are no wires except in the brim, which is very cleverly draped with velvet. This is a sensible hat for midwinter. With the dark fur crowns one sees combined the most vivid and beautiful colors in velvet, mink and coral, black fox and bright green, plush or broadtail, dark moleskin with cerise or coral velvet and very dark brown furs with cardinal red, have the vigor and warmth of color needed for midwinter.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

DRESSING GOWN.

Flannel or flannelette are materials most suited for making a gown like this if for present wear; it is quite a simple pattern slightly shaped in at waist; the deep collar may be faced with the same or some contrasting color; it is trimmed with a simple braiding pattern that is continued down front.

The fulness of the sleeves is drawn in at the back by a short-braided strap pointed at each end; the wast-band which draws in the fulness is also braided; the pointed ends are hooked over.

Material required: 7 yards 40 inches wide.

Slips of Italian silk with messaline ruffles make the best petticoats for every-day wear.

HAVE REGULAR MENDING DAY

Surprising Results Will Be Effected if a "System" Is Put Into Operation.

There is nothing on earth like system, and nowhere do you realize this more than in matters of dress. The tiny hole in your stocking, that you might have mended in two minutes, grows into an undarnable "run;" the rip under the arm in your new blouse extends alarmingly; nothing that must be mended stays "where it is put."

The remedy for all this is a regular mending day—or a regular mending evening, if you are a business woman. As soon as a garment needs mending—if it be only a button or a hook that must be replaced—put it aside, unless it is so necessary that you must attend to the trouble at once, and when mending day rolls around do the required sewing. You will be surprised to find out how much lighter your work becomes when you can thus catch rents and tears at their start instead of at their disastrous finish.

The other point to remember is always to have your sewing implements where you can get them and in perfect order. Do not wait until the very moment for mending to find that you are out of white thread or that your needles are rusty. When a thing needs repairing, repair it; when it needs replacing, replace it. It might even be a good thing to have a regular "preparation day" to antedate the mending one.

A Few Fads.

Silk and satin flowers, each petal edged with beads, are used on the crown and under the brim of an evening hat.

White coney is an inexpensive fur and much in favor for cloaks, long shoulder scarfs and hats for young girls.

Very effective is the banded trimming of cut steel beads outlined on either edge with two rows of fine jet beads.

Silver on black tulle, steel beads on bleu de nuit (a dark blue) and coral on pink or blue, are some of the beautiful combinations used.

For evening there is a great demand for brocades, crepe de chine and all supple weaves that lack luster, but abound in wonderful colors.

Dainty linen gift handkerchiefs for women have delicately-hued borders. Some of these, with lace-work centers, are highly expensive.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE

Educational Posters by the Thousand to Be Displayed All Over United States.

During the next three months, the bill boards of the United States will display 20,000 educational posters on tuberculosis, according to an announcement made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This will conclude the campaign begun a year ago, when the National Bill Posters' associaation donated free space to the tuberculosis cause, the Poster Printers' association offered free printing, and nine paper manufacturers gave the paper for the posters. The combined value of these several donations for this three-month campaign is nearly $100,000.

The posters are in six different designs and are all printed in three colors. They are seven feet wide and nine feet high. Already nearly 2,500 of these posters have been hung on the bill boards of 46 different cities, and it is planned to distribute 20,000 more before April 1 in over 400 towns and cities. Any anti-tuberculosis society in the United States may receive free of charge, except for transportation, as many of these posters as can be hung on the boards in its territory. The National association with the tuberculosis committee of the National Billposters and Distributors are conducting the campaign.

The posters show in graphic form how fresh air, good food, and rest cure tuberculosis; how bad air, overwork and closed windows lead to consumption; and how the careless consumptive menaces the health of his family by spitting on the floor.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

He—Your family has a grand name, Miss Vere De Vere!

She—Yes, and yet I'd prefer almost any other.

NURSE TELLS OF SKIN CURES

"I have seen the Cuticura Remedies used with best results during the past twenty years. In my work as a nurse, many skin disease cases came under my observation, and in every instance, I always recommended the Cuticura Remedies as they always gave entire satisfaction. One case in particular was that of a lady friend of mine who, when a child, was afflicted with eczema which covered her face and hands entirely, breaking out at intervals with severer torture. She could not go to school as the disfigurement looked terrible. I told her to get at once a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the use of only one set she was perfectly well.

"A grown lady friend was afflicted with salt rheum in one of her thumbs, and she was cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Still another lady had dry salt rheum in both palms of her hands every fall of the year. They used to be so painful she could scarcely wet her hands until she began to use the Cuticura Remedies which cured her. I have also seen them cure children of ringworm. The children's faces would be all circles and rings around the cheeks, and the neck, and after treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment they were completely cured. My husband had rheumatism on his arm and I used the Cuticura Ointment. It made his arm as limber and nice, whereas it was quite stiff before I began to apply the Ointment.

"Last May I had an ingrowing toe nail which was very painful, as the side of the nail was edging right down in the side of my toe. I cut the nail out of the cavity it made, and of course applied the Cuticura Ointment to the part affected. It soothed it and in less than ten nights it was all healed through constant use of the Ointment. Ten days ago I had my left hand and wrist burned with boiling lard, and Cuticura Ointment has completely cured them. I have just recommended the Cuticura Remedies to another friend, and she is pleased with the results and is recovering nicely. I will gladly furnish the names of the people referred to above if anybody doubts what I say." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Hederson, 77 Highland Ave., Malden, Mass., Oct. 1, 1910.

A Medical Compromise.

"You had two doctors in consultation last night, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"What did they say?"

"Well, one recommended one thing and the other recommended something else."

"A deadlock, eh?"

"No, they finally told me to mix 'em!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Hiding a tallow dip under a bushel does not make it an arc light.

HITS SCHOOL BOOK COMPANIES.

Governor Marshall Castigates Book Publishers Who Attempted to Foist County Uniformity on Graded Schools.

Indianapolis. — Governor Marshall, in his message to the Indiana general assembly went after the big school book companies that sought two years ago, to foist county uniformity of text books upon the schools of Indiana.

In his message, Governor Marshall says:

"Two years ago the representatives of foreign school book publishing houses opened up a lobby in Indianapolis pretending that the presence of their representatives here was exclusively philanthropic and that they had come into Indiana to show us how defective our school system was. I always suspect that philanthropy which results in large pecuniary gain to the philanthropist."

Governor Marshall's stand will deter school book publishers from attempting to jam a county uniformity measure through the legislature.

Uniformity Bill in Ohio.

Columbus.—Senator Yount has introduced a bill in the senate providing for county uniformity of school text books. It applies only to the elementary schools in the rural districts and villages. Because cities are left out farmers and educators are opposing the measure. Their argument is that "If uniformity is bad for the cities it is just as bad for the country," and that it would cost millions to install county uniformity.

The Yount measure would give county commissioners and probate judges power to appoint the board that selected books. The matter of selection would be taken wholly from the hands of boards of education and school superintendents.

Senator Yount's argument for the measure is that it would save money to the people while the opponents insist that it would throw the school book question into politics; that it is against home rule; and that it would result in a county board taking complete charge of all school affairs, including hiring of teachers and control of the physical property of a school district. A similar measure was defeated in the legislature last winter.

Habit Grows.

"I hate to see a little country buying its first battleship."

"Why?"

"Reminds me of a boy taking his first smoke."

For over fifty years Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and other painful ailments have been cured by Hamlins Wizard Oil. It is a good honest remedy and you will not regret having a bottle ready for use.

The main difference between a professional man and a tradesman is that a great many times the tradesman can buy and sell the professor.

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. Tiny sugar-coated granules.

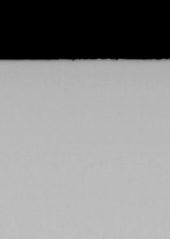
Some turn their backs on ordinary principles to gaze at heavenly prospects.

Woman's Danger Periods Made Safe

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Here is proof:



Natick, Mass.,—"I cannot express what I went through during the Change of Life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had creepy sensations and could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I had a tumor.

"I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Nathan B. Greaton, 51 No. Main St., Natick, Mass.

ANOTHER SIMILAR CASE.

Cornwallville, N. Y.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time for Change of Life, nervousness, and a fibroid growth.

"Two doctors advised me to go to the hospital, but one day while I was away visiting, I met a woman who told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and I know it helped me wonderfully. I am very thankful that I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. Boughton, Cornwallville, N. Y., Greene Co.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

W. L. DOUGLAS

ESTAB 1876 $3, $3.50 & $4 SHOES FOR MEN & WOMEN

IF YOU COULD VISIT W. L. DOUGLAS LARGE FACTORIES AT BROCKTON, MASS., and see how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why dollar for dollar they are guaranteed to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other $3.00, $3.50 or $4.00 shoes you can buy. Quality counts.—It has made W. L. Douglas shoes a household word everywhere.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price are stamped on the bottom, which is a safeguard against substitutes, the true values of which are unknown. Refuse all these substitutes. You are entitled to the best. Insist upon having the genuine W. L. Douglas shoes.

BOYS' SHOES $2.00 $2.50 & $3.00

If your dealer cannot supply you with W. L. Douglas Shoes, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral

NOT NARCOTIC

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

Pumpkin Seed
Alx Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP

Fac Simile Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK.

At 6 months old

35 DOSES 35 CENTS

Guaranteed under the Food and

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Why Rent a Farm

and be compelled to pay to your landlord most of your hard-earned profits? Own your own farm. Secure a Free Homestead in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, or purchase land in one of these districts and bank a profit of $10.00 or $12.00 an acre every year.

Land purchased 3 years ago at $10.00 an acre has recently changed hands at $25.00 an acre. The crops grown on these lands warrant the advance. You can by cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as land held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.

Become Rich

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.)

Local Agent Wanted

in every town or county. Profitable and fascinating work for spare time.

BIG COMMISSION

on HIGH GRADE NEW ARTICLE. Ask for particulars.

ELECTROLINE COMPANY
20 Harrison Street New York

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whetzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHETZEL, M.D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 4–1911.

5¢

COUPON IN EACH PACKAGE

CHEW AND SMOKE

MAIL POUCH TOBACCO

"TREAT YOURSELF to the BEST"

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

ALL IN ADAM
Even so
ALL IN CHRIST

Text:—"Since by man came death, by man also comes the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ the firstfruits; afterwards they that are Christ's during his presence" (I Corinthians xv, 21, 23, R. V.).

—Once we considered most unkind, unjust, the Bible declaration that our Creator condemned all of Adam's race with him on account of Adam's "Original Sin." But now, in the light of the clearer unfolding of God's Word, we are privileged to see differently. Now we perceive, not only that God did no injustice to Adam's children, but, contrariwise, that in this very particular, he did them a kindness—that it was in the interest of humanity in general. We are aware that this statement appears paradoxical to those who have not yet gotten the proper focus upon the Divine Plan. The key which unlocks the difficulty is the proper appreciation of the penalty imposed upon Adam and his race.

The erroneous, unscriptural view of this penalty which came down to us from the "dark ages" teaches that God damned father Adam, mother Eve, and every child born to them to an eternity of torture at the hands of devils. It is this unscriptural and irrational view of the wage of Original Sin which caused all our difficulty. Indeed, it is safe to say that no other false doctrine held by God's people ever drove away from God, from the Bible and from the fellowship of the Church so many intelligent minds. Thousands of bright, honest minds, after seeing this teaching of the Christian creeds formulated in the dark ages, have quietly withdrawn from them in heart, if not outwardly, saying to themselves, Evidently my reasoning faculties are of a different kind from those of many others prominent in the Church: Without disputing the point, I simply conclude that I must think for myself and that, in so doing, I am forced out of sympathy with the majority of fellow-Christians on this basic doctrine.

Where Lies the Difficulty?

The difficulty is that while the majority of Christian people heartily repudiate these misrepresentations of God and his Word, nevertheless the subject is not clear to them and they fear that to repudiate this doctrine would be to repudiate the Bible and to become open infidels. And just here is their mistake. The majority of them are not Bible students. Even amongst ministers of the Gospel comparatively few have any degree of knowledge of God's Word. They know what they think about the Bible; what they believe that it teaches; what they have been told that it teaches; what the catechisms say it teaches; but they have never made critical investigations of the Bible themselves to ascertain its teachings. It is a part of our endeavor to arouse Christian people everywhere to search and study the Scriptures and to assist them with Bible study helps, Bible keys, etc. And, thank God, there are thousands in Spiritual Israel who are not bowing their knees to Baal, but who are anxious to know, to rightly understand, the Word of God. Classes in Bible study are springing up all over the world. These have recently adopted the name of "International Bible Students Association." God is blessing them, not only with the opening of their own eyes more and more widely, but also in using them to bring others "out of darkness into his marvelous light" (I Peter ii, 9).

The Scriptures speak of a "famine, not for bread nor for water, but for hearing of the Word of the Lord." This famine is upon us now. Not only are Christian people hungry and thirsty for the bread of life and the water of life, but many of the worldly are feeling a longing for something better than the husks which they have. We do not know that all Church members, nor all of any one Church membership, are thus hungering and thirsting for Truth. But we do know that everywhere in all the various Churches of all denominations there is a hungry class which cannot be satisfied to dishonestly misrepresent itself as in harmony with the creeds. These bewildered sheep are, of late years, finding the green pastures and still waters of Divine Truth and grace—near to them—in the Word of God—hidden under the rubbish of ignorance and superstition, mistranslation and misinterpretation.

But as for the masses of all denominations: Alas, they are falling into unbelief! The popular form of infidelity known as Higher Criticism has already swallowed up more than one-half of the ministry and of the most intelligent part of the laity. The only hope for any of these is in leaving the chaff and husks of medieval misinterpretations of God's Word and in finding its true meaning, in which is refreshment, strength and new life.

"The Wages of Sin Is Death."

However we read our Bibles in the past we read into them from the creeds of a darker time the mischievous error that when the Bible declares a death penalty for sin it really means the reverse of this—life—eternal life in eternal torture. Who had the right to twist the inspired words in such a devilish fashion? Who had the right to add to the Word of God and to make void its true teaching in this manner? Hear the words of the Apostle, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans vi, 23). What statement could be more simple? The wicked will not be granted life at all, either in pleasure or in pain. They are under sentence of death—destruction. Eternal life is a gift. And it will be given only to those to whom it will be a blessing—to those who will accept it through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Let us turn to Genesis and note the statements made to our first parents respecting sin and its penalty. Let us note that, without the twistings of theology, we should have no difficulty in understanding the Divine sentence, as our first parents evidently had no difficulty. The sentence upon Father Adam for disobedience was, "Dying thou shalt die"; "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return"; "Cursed is the ground for thy sake"; "Thorns and thistles shall it bring forth unto thee until thou return unto the ground from which thou wast taken" (Genesis iii, 2, 3, 16-19, 24).

Thus we see that the penalty for sin upon Adam and his race was that they should return to the dust. As we read again, "Thou turnest man to destruction" (Psalm xc, 3). And this penalty is sufficiently awful when we think of what it means to die, to lose mental, moral and physical perfection and gradually go into the tomb—into the Bible hell (sheol, throughout the Old Testament). And this sheol, the grave, the tomb, to which the Bible says all go, good and bad, rich and poor, holy and unholy, was the only hell known amongst any of the people of God for the more than four thousand years, represented by the teachings of the Old Testament. Then came the New Testament times and the teachings of Jesus and the Apostles to the same effect. In the New Testament the Greek word hades, representing the tomb, the death state, takes the place of the Old Testament sheol in every passage translated from the Old Testament into the New Testament.

It was nearly three hundred years after Jesus and the Apostles, after the writing of the New Testament, before the doctrine of Purgatory was invented. And for this reason neither the word Purgatory nor the Purgatory thought is expressed in the Scriptures. But Bibles were few, and the people could not have read them even if they had possessed them; hence for long centuries the teachings of the clergy were accepted without Bible proofs, and the doctrine of Purgatory spread all over Christendom. All of our forefathers believed in it. It became the teaching of Christians everywhere that the mere handful of saints, instead of dying when they seemed to die, went to heaven and that the great mass of humanity, instead of dying when they seemed to die, went in some mysterious manner to a mysterious place called Purgatory, of which nobody knew anything except what they were taught. The teaching is that practically all of humanity go to Purgatory there to be roasted and otherwise tortured for centuries—ultimately to gain release from the torture, when fitted for heaven. Upon this doctrine in turn sprung the doctrine of saying "masses for the dead," who were believed not to be dead but intensely alive. The fear of Purgatory drew the people very close to the priests as the supposed counsellors of the Almighty and the mass money drew the priests very close to the people. They were all honestly intentioned, but all deceived by the great deceiver—Satan.

A Bad Matter Made Worse.

By and by a priest, a Catholic theologian and teacher in one of their colleges, by name Martin Luther, accidentally ran across a copy of the New Testament in the Latin language. Being an educated man he was able to read it; for there was not one copy in the German language anywhere. Luther tells us of his perplexity in not finding Purgatory in the New Testament. He tried to interest the Pope in Bible study, but failed, and instead was branded a heretic. He protested, and others protested; hence came the name Protestants!

These Protestants were undoubtedly as sincere before their protest as they were afterward; hence their protest was against the very doctrines which once they had proclaimed as the Truth. Their minds were full of the thought that a dead person is not dead but more alive than before he died, and that some of these at death went to heaven while the great majority went to Purgatory. They did not see the teaching of the Bible, that "the wages of sin is death"—that all go into death, good and bad, and that this death state is the sheol and hades of the Bible. Instead of getting this true light upon God's Word, they went from darkness into greater darkness on this point. Here we wish to emphasize the thought that all these noble men, Catholics and Protestants, in their day, like all true people today, held a measure of Truth in combination with errors. It is the measure of Truth possessed and enjoyed that has given any power and force to our various Christian systems

Notice of Dissolution.

This is to give notice that the copartnership heretofore existing between Samuel H. Welch and Joseph E. Callis, trading and doing business under the firm name of Welch & Callis, at Mountain Lake Park, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Callis retiring from the firm.

WELCH & CALLIS.

NEW GERMANY.

Since the Hauser correspondent has been kind enough to write a little local history we shall do the same. New Germany is a place somewhat smaller than Chicago. It contains nine trunk lines and a clothes line. It contains more Germans than Germany, more Irish than Ireland and more Hauserans than Hauser.

Raymond Broadwater, of Crellin, was visiting home folks Sunday.

Mrs. Delbert Durst, who recently returned from the University Hospital at Baltimore, is much improved.

Rev. W. W. Harris preached an interesting sermon in the Methodist church Sunday evening.

Gideon Miller, of Jennings, made a very pleasant call here Sunday evening.

Orville Stark and Aldridge Durst are employed on Savage river by the North Maryland Lumber Company.

Mrs. Jennie Warnick was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wiland, at this place, last week.

The following teachers from this place attended the Teachers' Institute at Grantsville: Freeman Stark, Ross Durst, Carrie Hershler, Margaret Smith and Hilda Keys.

Mumps is now going the rounds making the acquaintance of everyone.

The stork visited in her usual rounds left a fine boy at the home of Harvey Brenneman Saturday night.

Samuel Hummel, Sr., died at his home Sunday afternoon as a result of paralysis. A more extended notice will appear later.

Clarence Stephen moved his household goods from the Hook and Eye Lumber Company's mill to his recently purchased farm near Bittinger last week.

Several of the proverbial "Weary Willies" were seen here last week.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

"Keep on Getting Under their Hides."

To the Editor of the Republican:

Being a citizen of Oakland I feel it a duty to say a few words in behalf of the editor of The Republican. I feel that the right thinking citizens of the town and the whole county should come to the front and uphold Mr. Sincell for his refusal to shield the Saloonman by publishing communications, sermons and articles having a direct bearing upon the rum sellers of Oakland, where this damnable business has gone beyond all common decency and is becoming so destructive to county, state, town and homes, by ruining our young men. The editor of The Republican should be highly commended for refusing to pollute his paper with whiskey advertisements and try to please Mr. Saloonman who is seeking the ruination of our sons and daughters. We need editors who will truthfully advertise and publish articles of the awful curse and crimes which are the results of the rum seller.

Do you, Mr. Saloonman; ever stop a moment and think as you see a drunken father staggering up to your bar to spend his hard earned dimes, of the loved ones he has left at home, half clothed, hungry and cold and how much good those dimes would do them were it not for the hell hole you operate for the purpose of robbing those children and mothers of a father's care and love. Will you please, Mr. Saloonman, stop and study your customers and think of the care and responsibility which rests upon them and how your poison stupefies them, causes them to spend their money, forget their loved ones at home and finally you make them unfit for business, home and society and send them to the penitentiary or to a drunkard's grave?

Do you, Mr. Saloonman, know of any other line of business that will make a mother's smart, intelligent, good looking son such a helpless, despicable wreck (such as you deal with every day), than the business you are engaged in. Is it any wonder The Republican refuses to help you advertise such a business, but that he tries to warn his fellowman to shun your saloon?

God speed the time when the Saloonman will be compelled to embark in a more honorable line of business, and we are free from those cursed snares which are trapping daily some loved father or a mother's son, robbing them of their manly principles, their senses, their good looks and wrecking them forever.

A CITIZEN.

Oakland, February 6, 1911.

Pastor Russel Refutes Charges.

To the Editor of the Republican:

I crave a few inches of your space in correction of a news item widely circulated from Washington, D. C., Jan. 29, stating that a Street Evangelist chargas me with "exciting the people" by preaching that "Christ will come in A. D. 1915, and accomplish the destruction of the world."

This "street preacher" got himself mixed up with my theology. It is true that he sent me a kind invitation to share twenty minutes of my time in explaining to the audience how he misunderstood my presentations before he had heard them. It is true that he has requested a public debate with me at the next Baptist Convention in June or at the Christian Endeavor Convention in July. But I did not believe that the gentlemen was authorized to speak for either of the Conventions, consequently I gave him no heed. As I was announcing the closing hymn the gentlemen attempted an interruption.

But it appears that after my meeting the interrupter, who calls himself an evangelist, undertook to explain to a bevy of reporters, Pastor Russel's "errors." He declared that all over the country I was preaching the second coming of Christ in 1915 and scaring people, as Wm. Miller did years ago. I do not blame the reporters, for how could they know how foolishly the man was talking?

I wish to deny, as positively as language will permit, that I said a single thing concering the year 1915 last Sunday. Nor have I ever preached such things; nor do I believe them. So far from teaching that Christ will come and the world be burned up in 1915, as Wm. Miller taught at an earlier date, my teaching is that the world will never be burned up, but, as the Bible declares, "The earth abideth forever."—Eccles. 1:4

If "Evangelist" represents any Protestant or Catholic bodies, as he intimates, his creed surely recites the burning up of the world at the Second Advent of Christ. Many ministers in all denominations teach that Christ may come at any moment and that the moment of His coming will be the end of the world! A few saintly ones, they say, will be saved; but all the remainder will be overwhelmed by fire that will fall upon them from heaven. It is one of their stock arguments intended to excite the people. I wonder if "Evangelist" has not so preached?

It is because my interpretations of the Scriptures are so very different on this particular point that many Christian people are being awakened to a fresh study of the Bible. I am in communication with Bible classes all over the world. Many persons are being reclaimed from infidelity by the Message which has nothing of excitement in it, but which shows the Bible in its true light, as the most commonsense book in the world.

What I have said respecting 1915 is that, in my understanding, there ends the treading down of the Jews by the Gentiles—a period of 2520 years from the time the crown was taken from Judah's last King of the house of David, Zedekiah, B. C. 606. Israel's restoration to Palestine as a nation will, Biblically, mark the beginning of the Messianic reign of righteousness, which will last a thousand years.—Luke 21-24.

Mr. Editor, "Evangelist," either intentionally or unintentionally, most thoroughly misrepresented my views. I teach from the scriptures that Messiah, as the King of Glory, is not a man and will not be visible to men—that his Empire will be spiritual, but powerful.

Those scriptures which alarm "Evangelist" and others, as representing the burning up of the world, I understand to refer to a great time of trouble with which this Age will terminate and the New Era be inaugurated. Those who read my sermons and books could not be deceived by "Evangelist." Yet thousands of other people may have been. So I thank you for this opportunity for explanation.

Respectfully,
C. T. RUSSELL.

Brooklyn, N. Y., February 2, 1911.

Notice to Creditors.

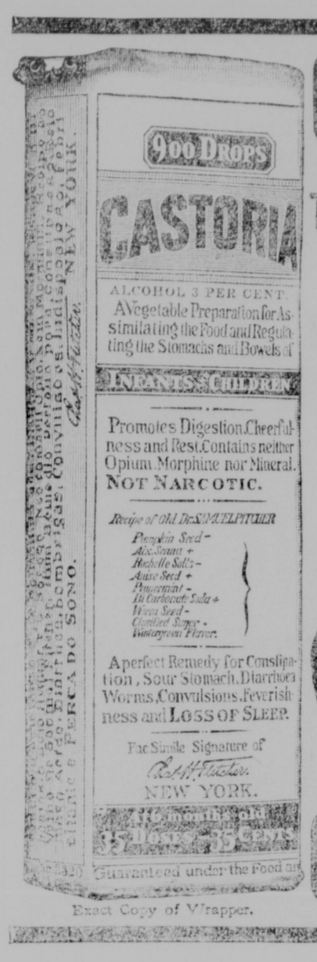
This is to give notice, That the subscriber Garrett county, Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphan's Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters of Administration on the personal estate of

MARGARET C. REINHARDT,

late of Garrett Co., Md., deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

JAMES A. ENLOW,
Administrator,
Mt. Lake Park, Md.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

WILLIAM P. HANSEL,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 12th of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

DAVID P. HANSEL,
Executor,
Lonaconing, Md.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

ORDER NISI.

Clarence M. Ratibun and Alonzo D. Naylor vs. William D. King and wife.

No. 1696 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 10th day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Fred. A. Thayer, the attorney named in the mortgage filed in said cause, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 10th day of February, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of February, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $1000.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

FREE DIAMONDS

An Opportunity to Obtain Absolutely Free Several Articles of Genuine Diamond Jewelry

1st PRIZE—Ladies' or Gentleman's genuine Diamond Ring
2nd PRIZE—Ladies' or Gentleman's genuine Diamond Studded Locket or Watch Charm
3rd PRIZE—Ladies' or Gentleman's genuine Diamond Studded Stick Pin
4th, 5th and 6th PRIZES—Ladies' or Gentleman's 20-year guaranteed Gold Filled Watches
7th, 8th, 9th and 10th PRIZES—Girl's or Boy's Flexible Flyer Sleds

To all others answering this advertisement we will give a beautiful Admolite Diamond Stick Pin, Absolutely Free.

The DIAMOND "33" PUZZLE

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS PUZZLE? IT CAN BE DONE.

Directions: Place any number, from 7 to 15, inclusive, in the EIGHT vacant DIAMONDS on the above or any similarly arranged separate sheet of paper in such a manner that any way the numbers are added (including the number in centre square), the total will be "33." The same number cannot be used more than once. Write your name and address neatly, accurately and plainly on the same sheet, and mail or deliver your solution before 6 P. M., Saturday, February 11, 1911, to the Contest Department, Greater Pittsburg Piano Co., 633 Smithfield St., Pittsburg, Pa.

Only one member of a family may enter.
Only one solution will be accepted from the same contestant.
No one connected with the music trade nor first prize winners in previous contests may enter.
Neatness, besides the correctness of the reply sent us, will be taken into consideration in awarding the prizes

Contest closes Saturday evening, February 11th, at 6 P. M. Send in your replies as early as possible.

GREATER PITTSBURG PIANO CO.,

F. W. BONAR, Manager,

633 Smithfield Street, Pittsburg, Pa.

Name .....
(Write plainly)

Address .....

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1911. NUMBER 56

REPAIR OF NATIONAL PIKE WILL BE DISCUSSED TODAY

At a Meeting of the Citizens of Grantsville and Many From Frostburg.

A good roads meeting will be held at Grantsville today, the object being to discuss the rebuilding of the National Road. It is expected that the attendance will be large as the people in the eastern and northern part of Garrett county are very much disgusted with the treatment which they have received at the hands of the State Good Roads Commission. They say that promise after promise has been made and just as often broken, and thus patience has about become exhausted. The purpose of the meeting is to try and devise some way whereby the road conditions prevailing can be improved, at least to the extent that traveling over some of them will be made safe, and not, as they are now, dangerous to life and limb. Perhaps no public road anywhere east of the Rocky Mountains is in the same condition as in the National Pike between Frostburg and Grantsville.

The meeting will no doubt be a lively and interesting one. Many prominent and progressive citizens of Frostburg will attend the meeting. Among those who will likely attend are Dr. Timothy Griffith, Dr. W. O. McLane, Roberdeau Annan, W. E. G. Hitchins, Olin R. Rice, Geo. Wittig, Samuel B. Johnson, G. M. Mayer, George Stern, John A. Caldwell, Fred. B. McCulloh, of Frostburg; Clinton Uhl, of Mt. Savage; Thos. Johnson, of Johnson's farm, and newspaper representatives.

The Frostburg delegation left there about 9:30 a. m. Dinner will be taken at a hostelry in Grantsville 12 o'clock noon, after which the meeting will be held, when the slogan will be "Rebuild the National Pike." Several speeches will be made by prominent men and resolutions will be adopted and forwarded to the Good Roads Commission at Baltimore.

Mortgage for $40,000,000 Recorded.

A mortgage to secure the payment of $40,000,000, executed by the Consolidation Coal Company of Maryland to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, is being recorded in the office of Clerk E. Z. Tower of the Circuit Court for this county. The mortgage covers 139 pages of closely printed matter and when transcribed it will require about seventy typewritten pages of the large record book in the clerk's office. The mortgage was executed December 1st, 1910, and covers all the properties of the coal company located in Allegany and Garrett counties, Maryland, six counties in West Virginia, one in Pennsylvania, one in Pennsylvania and five in Kentucky, in addition to the office buildings in Baltimore. The lands owned by the company comprises about 300,000 acres.

Mr. Thomas Stanton, of near Bittinger, was in the city Tuesday on a business mission.

SERIOUSLY INJURED BY HORSE

Lloyd Guard, Near Accident, Kicked In Face By Animal and Skull Fractured.

Dr. Henry McComas was called to the home of Newton Gies, near Accident last Thursday afternoon to render surgical aid to a young man named Lloyd Guard, who had been kicked in the face by a horse that day, and very painfully as well as seriously injured. The horse was shod with sharpened shoes and by its kick young Guard's face was so terribly cut and bruised that it lost resemblance of a human being. His skull above his nose was fractured, fourteen pieces of bone being removed by the physician; his nose broken, lip cut and all the teeth were knocked out of his lower jaw.

Dr. McComas dressed the wounds and at last reports the young man was doing very nicely with every prospect for speedy recovery.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

Homer Hunt Thomas and Jennie Elizabeth Hayes, both of Fairmont, W. Va.

Ephraim Arthur Casteel and Lillie Belle DeBerry, both of Garrett county.

William Sauers and Lizzie Sliger, both of near Crelin.

Edward Anderson, of Glover's Gap, W. Va., and Della Rush, of Evanshaw, W. Va.

One with request not to publish.

Program Too Long for Publication.

This office is in receipt of a carefully prepared program for the Washington Birthday exercises of the Bittinger school, which will be observed by the scholars on the 22nd inst. We regret that owing to the crowded conditions of our columns we cannot make room for the same.

Shoulder Knocked out of Place.

Alex. Moon, son of Mr. Isaac Moon, of near Eagle Rock, suffered a dislocation of his shoulder on Monday. The injured man was attended by Dr. McComas.

Three Killed By Train.

Seven foreigners were run down by a fast freight train on the Western Maryland railway at Thomas, W. Va., Friday night and the bodies of three are at the morgue in Thomas. They stepped out of the way of one train directly in the path of another, the approach of which they had failed to observe. The victims, Poles or Lithuanians, were mine employes. Two came from Montes, W. Va., to visit friends. The others in the party escaped injury.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and after the death of our beloved husband and father.

MRS. S. D. HUMMELL,
IRENE HUMMELL,
S. M. HUMMELL,
MRS. J. H. MERRILL.

Garthright & Harvey

Last Week of Special Sale.

In order to reduce our stock of merchandise so as to make room for our spring line, we will sell for cash or good country produce, for one week, beginning February 18, 1911.

Men's 50c Underwear	35c
Boys' 25c Underwear	19c
Ladies' 50c Underwear	35c
Men's 50c Dress Shirts	39c
10c Outing Flannel	8c
7c Calico	5½c
Lighthouse Washing Powder	4c
Soapine	4c
Ivory Starch	4c

Men, Women and Children Shoes at Half Price.

We have just unloaded a car of KILN-DRIED FEED, which we will sell at ROCK BOTTOM PRICES.

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 18.

16 yds. 8c Muslin	$1.00
12 yds. 10c Muslin	1.00

We will give 20 lbs. of Granulated Sugar for $1 with each $5 purchase made on Saturday

Butter and Eggs are as good as GOLD here. Bring them along, also your Mine Props and Cross Ties.

Have just received nobby line Men, Boys and Children clothing and Men's dress Pants Come and examine before making your purchase.

Yours for Business.

Garthright & Harvey

Trial of Sup't Browning Will Occur In Oakland March 2d

When The State Board of Education Will Assemble and Hear Testimony.

The case of The People of Garrett county vs. Mr. Edward A. Browning, County Superintendent, against whom charges were filed with the State Board of Education and which were published in full in these columns a few weeks ago, will be heard in Oakland by the State Board on March 2nd, the date having been fixed by the Board yesterday while that body was in session in Baltimore.

The State Board had cited the County Superintendent to appear yesterday at Baltimore to answer the charges against him, but when the case was called Mr. Semmes, for The People, represented to the Board that it would be impossible to have the great number of witnesses present in that city, hence the case went over and a new date fixed for the hearing.

ANOTHER LIQUOR VIOLATOR ARRESTED

Freeland Tibbetts, of Kitzmiller, After Spending Sunday in Jail, Released on Bond.

With the law, public sentiment and a firm resolve to do their sworn duty, the state's officers of Garrett county are strictly "on their jobs" in rounding up violators of the law, especially the violators of the liquor law.

The capture, conviction and sentencing last week of a persistent violator from Friendsville, was followed on Saturday by the arrest of Freeland Tibbetts of Kitzmiller, indicted at the last term of the Circuit Court for illegally selling at the mining town on the Potomac river, who was brought to Oakland by Constable Geo. Pool, accompanied by Justice Lee, last Saturday evening and locked up in jail until Monday when Tibbetts furnished the required bond of $300 for his appearance at the June term of court, and was released from custody.

Tibbetts was indicted upon two or three charges and since kept on the West Virginia side of the river at Kitzmiller, coming over into Maryland at times when he knew the sheriff or his deputy were not in the community. Recently the warrant for the arrest of the man was sent by Sheriff Shartzer to the constable there and on Saturday when Tibbetts appeared in the Maryland town he was placed under arrest and brought to the county seat as stated above.

At the Sheriff's office Saturday evening Tibbetts wanted to enter plea of guilty, pay a nominal fine and be discharged from custody, but as the officials had no authority to act in the case he was locked up

FRIENDSVILLE.

Rain, snow, frost and sunshine all to be had, at short notice, here.

And still there is a lot of sickness, such as colds, coughs and the grippe.

Scott Groves returned from the county seat last week, his case being settled as described in THE REPUBLICAN last Thursday.

The gentlemen comprising the committee to appear before the County Commissioners last week pertaining to the new road speak in the highest terms of the courteous manner in which they were received and heard by the board. They report also that the citizens generally up there wish to see the road put through. This will be only a matter of time, for we are bound to have it. No doubt but what the engineers and surveyors will be on the ground just as soon as the weather will permit.

The revival services being held in the Christian church by the Rev. Browell will continue through this week. Special music has been rendered at these services, Mrs. Browell, wife of the pastor, rendering some solos that delight the congregations.

The editorial in last week's REPUBLICAN "What Make a Town," should be well read by everyone wishing to see his home town improve. If the citizens would get together in our little city, we could wonderfully improve things. In unity there is strength. All that is needed is cooperation, and the results would be astonishing.

Mrs. Amster Friend is suffering with rheumatism.

Mr. W. Frederick has been very low, but is improving.

Mrs. A. J. Mason has had a relapse of the grip but is slightly better.

John Kerling has been badly handicapped by one of his horses having been hurt in the leg and so lame as not to be of any use for work.

The Johnstown Planing Mill intend starting up this week, their saw mill having been idle for several months.

The borough election last week resulted in Leslie E. Friend, C. V. Guard and F. G. Fox becoming the new Councilmen to serve for two years. The council will meet next Monday evening to elect officers for the coming year.

Among those registered at the Crawford last week were the following: John W. Dowell, Rochester; P. P. Ritter, L. H. Long, J. E. Emerick, Meyersdale; Clyde Shartzer, G. S. Hamill, Jr., Oakland; A. F. Zimmerman, Ursina; F. F. Parks, Clarksburg; H. Shipley, F. W. Davis and wife, Confluence; Harry Vansickle, Somerfield; M. H. Fike, Somerset; Chas. C. Ford, Indiana; Penrose Woof, Rockwood; F. C. Giffin, Washington, D. C.

The Republican for Job Printing.

COAL MINING IN WEST VIRGINIA IN 1909

The State Takes Second Place in Production.

In 1909, for the second time in the history of the coal-mining industry, West Virginia produced more coal than Illinois and took second rank among the coal-producing States. This change occurred in a year in which mining operations in either State were not much disturbed by labor troubles. West Virginia outranked Illinois also in 1906, but the production in Illinois was in that year cut down by a long period of idleness caused by a struggle between the operators and the organized mine workers over the wage scale. In 1906 West Virginia's production exceed that of Illinois by 1,810,246 short tons; in 1909 the difference was 955,969 tons.

The production in West Virginia in 1909 amounted to 51,849,220 short tons, valued at $44,661,716 against 41,897,843 short tons valued at $40,009,054, in 1908. The increase in 1909 was 9,951,377 short tons, or 33.7 per cent, in quantity, and $4,652,662, or 11.6 per cent, in value. The average price per ton declined from 65 cents in 1908 to 36 cents in 1909, and in this connection another comparison with the rival State, Illinois, is pertinent, for the coals of Illinois, though not equal in quality to those of West Virginia, sold in 1909 at an average price of $1.05.

Illinois has the advantage of near-by markets for its coals, and by far the larger part of the product is consumed within the State or in closely adjacent territory. West Virginia, on the other hand, more than any other coal producing State, finds markets for its coal outside of the State. The manufacturing industries of West Virginia are comparatively unimportant when considered in connection with its large and cheap supply of high-grade fuel, so that probably more than 50 per cent of the coal mined in the State is shipped away to support manufacturing industries in other States.

Commissioners' Meeting.

The Board of County Commissioners will meet on Monday, March 6, to transact all routine business.

Prices Advancing.

Wire nails, barbed wire and field fencing have all advanced $1.00 per ton, and there is likely to be another advaned at any time, but we are still taking orders on our contract, shipment to be made March 1st at special low prices. Wire nails at $2.00 per keg base, barbed wire at $2.50 per hundred, 30 rod bundles, heavy barbed wire, at $1.75, 80 rod bundles, light wire, at $1.65. Jumbo field fencing, all No. 9 wire, made of the best open-hearth steel, at 3c per pound, thus paying for actual values, not rod price. Light weight fence is no longer recommended by the manufacturer or dealer. The wise farmer will buy only heavy all No. 9 fencing, samples of which are now on exhibition at our store at special prices to March 1st.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

Receivers Appointed.

The Circuit Court for Garret county has appointed Messrs. G. S. Hamill, A. S. Teats, Edward Sincell and W. R. Offutt receivers for the Tioga Supply Company, which concern operated a general mercantile store at Hutton. The appointment of the receivers was petitioned for by certain creditors. The Supply Company has no connection whatever with the Tioga Tanning Company.

Sold Newspaper.

Mr. R. Morris has disposed of his interest in the Terra Alta, W. Va., Republican, a weekly newspaper, to F. M. Gibson, of Independence, W. Va. Mr. Morris will locate in California.

Geese Flying North.

One of Oakland's early rising residents reported Monday that about five o'clock that morning he distinctly heard a large number of wild geese flying northward over town, which, according to weather prognosticators is a sure sign of the early approach of spring and the end of extreme cold weather.

Call for Your Letters.

Lula Lewis, Mary Lee, Newmentary Widow, Lee Walters, Wm. Ellis, Oakland Gazette, Leon Helwith, Mollie Rippotol, W. F. Sielken, Homer Switzer, Wilbert Slager, Lorenzo Barrese, Mr. Agnes, Meda Althers.

FISH FOR WATERS OF GARRETT CO

The Government Will Probably Furnish Supply.

The secretary of the Lonaconing Rod and Gun Club has received the following letter:

Department of Commerce,
Bureau of Fisheries,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 9, 1911.

Peter McFarland, Lonaconing, Md.

Sir:—At the request of Hon D. J. Lewis, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor has directed this bureau to enter into correspondence with you concerning the delivery of fish for stocking the Savage river, in Garrett county, with fish. If you will decribe the stream and furnish full shipping directions on the enclosed blank application, the matter will be considered with a view to furnishing a consignment of fish suitable for the waters, when the next distribution is made in the State of Maryland.

Respectfully, H. M. Smith,
Acting Commissioner.

The Savage river has never been stocked from government hatcheries, and is practically fished out. The same is true of many of its tributaries. The Lonaconing Rod and Gun Club will ask for 50,000 mountain trout, the only fish that is found in the Savage river with the exception of an occasional chub.

Saturday Bargain Sales

Will be a new departure at our store, commencing on Saturday morning, February 18th. All bargains will be shown and priced in plain figures during the week in our center show window and subject to stock on hand. The bargains are only offered on Saturdays to cash buyers and will not be held or promised to the trade during the week.

Special lines and factory shipments will be bought for our Saturday sales that will include a large variety of goods along household lines, such as graniteware, glassware, tinware, specialties in hardware, woodenware, 5 and 10 cent goods, paints, novelties, etc., suited to the wants of the housewife.

Watch the show and see what bargains we will have to offer you on Saturday of each week.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

A STIRRING FIGHT ONLY BEGUN.

The ballot manipulators and disfranchisers are having rough riding in Maryland. Here are a few of the knockouts:

Disfranchising Amendment defeated at the polls	1905
Disfranchising Amendment defeated at the polls	1909
Diggs Anti-Negro Registration Bills vetoed after storm of public criticism	1910
Judge Morris' sweeping decision holding Grandfather clause unconstitutional	1910
Damages awarded in suit in U. S. Court against registers of Annapolis for refusing to register colored men	1910
Baltimore American wins suit for libel instituted by Supervisors of Elections of Somerset county	1911
Charles County Democratic Supervisors and Printers indicted by U. S. Grand Jury for conspiracy in preparing trick ballots	1911
Registrations officers at Ellicott City afraid to serve and refuse registration to negroes	1911

And the end is not yet. The fight for an honest ballot and for the enforcement of the constitutional rights of voters has only commenced.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

PAID FINES AGGREGATING $300 AND DISCHARGED

Scott Groves, Friendsville's Liquor Dispenser, Out of Jail.

Last Friday morning satisfactory arrangements were concluded whereby Scott Groves, convicted before Justice Teats of unlawfully dispensing liquor at Friendsville, was discharged from the custody of the State's officers and released from jail where he had been confined for several days succeeding his conviction.

Groves, through his attorney, Mr. W. R. Offutt, withdrew his plea for a jury trial, which he had entered when convicted before the justice, and had a plea of guilty entered in six cases for selling unlawfully. Justice Teats accepted this and fined the man $300 and costs, amounting to $34. The amount was raised by Groves' father and paid over to the county officials and the man was discharged from custody, promising to never again engage in the business. There are yet four cases pending against Groves and should he violate his promise he will be immediately taken up and prosecuted.

BNND CONCERT

To Be Given By the Mountain City Band Feb'y 23 at Nally's Theatre.

The following program will be rendered at a grand concert to be given by the Mountain City Band, Nally's Theatre, Thursday evening, February 23, 1911.

A mere glance at the program is sufficient to convince everyone of the high class music this organization is now working on and the band should be encouraged heartily in its efforts. Beside the regular program a number of vocal and instrumental solos will also be rendered by local vocalists and soloists. The admission will be only 25 cents.

1. March—Second Regiment ..... Hall
2. Overture—Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna ..... Dupre
3. Descriptive—Grave Yard Ghosts Weaver Synopsis—Time, 12 o'clock midnight. The spirits became restless. They assemble. What the ragtime ghost said The others deliberate and finally appoint a judge. They take their places. The judge give the word to start cakewalk of the ghosts. They are disturbed by earthly people. All hurry back to their tombs. The wind sights.
4. a Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana ..... Mascagni
   b Spring Song ..... Mendelssohn
5. Medley overture—Hairland's Happy Hits No. 1 ..... Hall
6. Overture—Lustspiri ..... Keller-Bella
7. Waltz—Lou Sparks ..... Holzman
8. Grand selection from Carmen ..... Bizet
9. March—Stars and Stripes Forever ..... Sousa
10. America.

Wreck on Coal Road.

A train composed of seven ten-ton cars loaded with coal and drawn by a small locomotive, got beyond control of the train crew on the coal road of the Three Fork Coal Company, leading from the mines of the coal company located two and a half miles east of Kitzmiller, to Chaffee, and ran away Tuesday morning. The entire train, with the exception of the locomotive, went over the bank and the cars were demolished. The grain crew escaped injury by jumping. The damage amounts to several hundred dollars.

DIXON & KELSO

The following is Dixon & Kelso's spring prices for

American Fence

BEST IN THE MARKET

7 Wire 26 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
6 Wire 35 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
8 Wire 32 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	21c
9 Wire 39 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
8 Wire 45 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
10 Wire 47 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	25c
9 Wire 49 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	25c
80-rod roll light weight Barb,	$1.65
80-rod roll, 4-point, Hog or Cattle Barb,	2.40
100 lbs standard Barb, Hog or Cattle,	2.65

We have three cars of the above in stock and can furnish any of this fence in large quantities.

Will make special price on big lots.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

KODAK SAFETY FILM

The Battleship Delaware and Her Great Cruise

THE battleship Delaware, our newest, largest and finest sea warrior, is now making preparations for a most notable cruise. According to present plans she will sail on this jaunt early this month, and the cruise will consume the best part of the spring. The itinerary—prepared all of a sudden, for this cruise was not even contemplated a few weeks ago—calls for a voyage around the continent of South America, or, at least around the major portion of that triangular continent and it bids fair to be the most notable undertaking assigned to any single battleship since the famous old battleship Oregon made the long trip around South America (over much this same route) at the time of the Spanish-American war.

The cruise of the Delaware takes on importance from the fact that it is the first stunt of the kind attempted by one of our new battleships of the Dreadnought class—floating fortresses so much larger and heavier and more formidably armed than any of our old-time battleships that they might be referred to as the "big brothers" of these ships that were so awe inspiring a few years ago. Now, of course, these new "all-big-gun" ships are as yet something of an experiment in our navy in so far as actual service goes and consequently naval officials and shipbuilding experts will await with no little concern the outcome of this prolonged "shaking down" cruise.

Another circumstance that makes this coming cruise stand out as a notable achievement is that the Delaware is to take her long "hike" absolutely unattended. As all readers of the newspapers must have noted, it has not been the practise of our naval authorities of late years to assign single battleships to long cruises. They usually go in fleets, or in divisions of four ships, or at least in pairs. Why, it will be remembered that when President Taft made his recent trip to Panama a second warship was sent along with the one that carried the presidential party, not because there was any real need for it, but simply to have a companion ship at hand to render assistance in the event that the first craft met with a mishap of any kind, great or small.

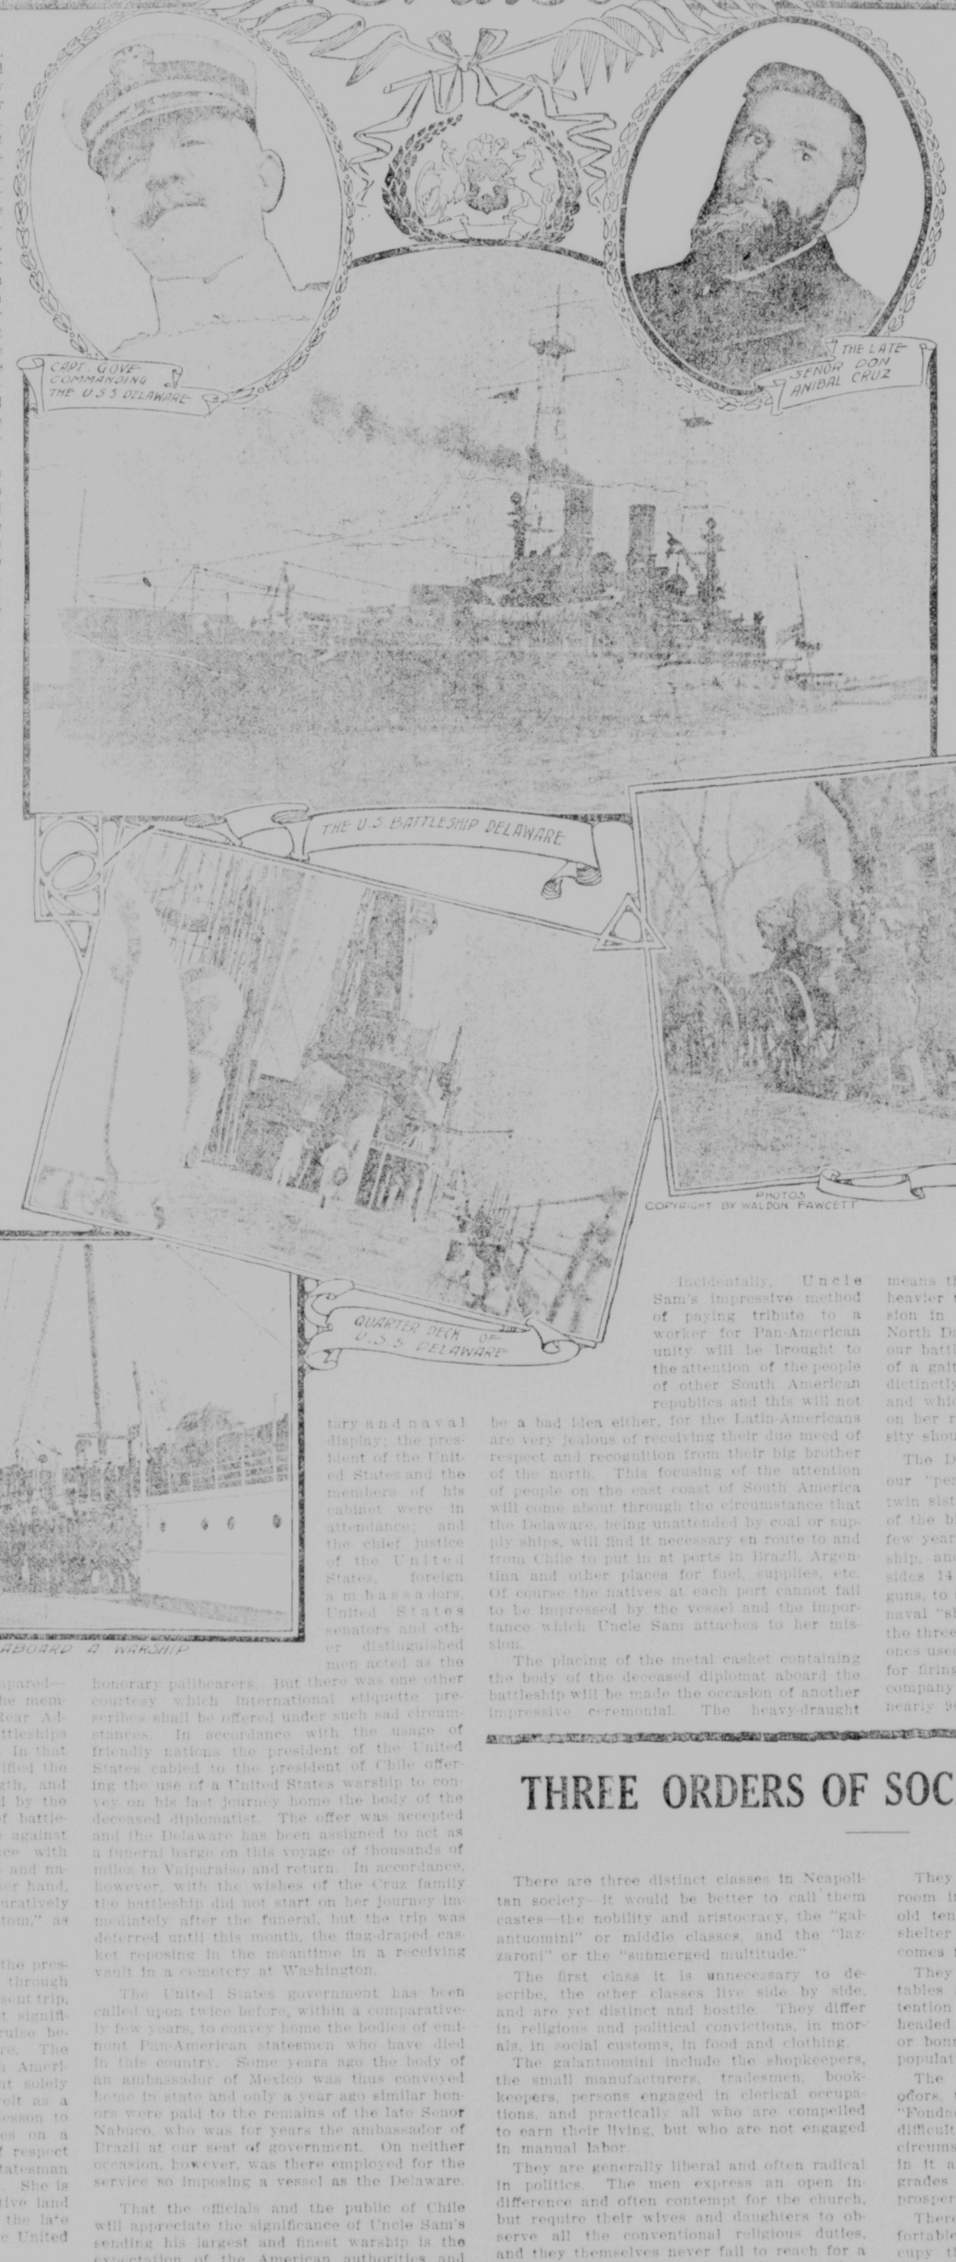
And take that other naval cruise around South America, with which the Delaware's trip will naturally be compared—that world-astonishing "first leg" of the memorable round-the-world cruise when Rear Admiral "Bob" Evans led a fleet of 16 battleships around the lower half of our continent. In that event conspicuously was there exemplified the adage that in union there is strength, and aside from the self-confidence inspired by the co-ordinate action of a whole fleet of battleships there was the further insurance against the unexpected offered by the presence with the fleet of a repair ship, supply ships and naval colliers. The Delaware, on the other hand, must traverse the same sea track figuratively as well as literally "on her own bottom," as the seafaring men say.

However, without underestimating the prestige that will come to the Delaware through all these unusual attributes of her present trip, it must be admitted that the greatest significance of all attaches to this 1911 cruise because of the mission of the Delaware. The fleet of battleships that visited South American ports a couple of years ago went solely on the initiative of President Roosevelt as a practise cruise and a sort of object lesson to other nations, but the Delaware goes on a specific mission of condolence, out of respect to the memory of an international statesman and in compliment to a friendly nation. She is to convey from our shores to his native land the body of Señor Don Anibal Cruz, the late minister of the republic of Chile to the United States.

When a foreign diplomat dies at his post of duty in an alien capital it is customary for the officials of the government to which he had been accredited as envoy and for his fellow diplomats to accord him every possible honor in death. Elaborate ceremonials are prescribed, not merely as a tribute to the statesman whose work in behalf of international good feeling has thus been interrupted by death, but also as a compliment to the country and the government whose accredited agent he was. All the unwritten laws were carefully observed in the case of the late Chilean minister. His funeral at Washington was made the occasion of an elaborate military and naval display; the president of the United States and the members of his cabinet were in attendance; and the chief justice of the United States, foreign ambassadors, United States senators and other distinguished men acted as the honorary pallbearers. But there was one other courtesy which international etiquette prescribes shall be offered under such sad circumstances. In accordance with the usage of friendly nations the president of the United States cabled to the president of Chile offering the use of a United States warship to convey on his last journey home the body of the deceased diplomatist. The offer was accepted and the Delaware has been assigned to act as a funeral barge on this voyage of thousands of miles to Valparaiso and return. In accordance, however, with the wishes of the Cruz family the battleship did not start on her journey immediately after the funeral, but the trip was deferred until this month, the flag-draped casket reposing in the meantime in a receiving vault in a cemetery at Washington.

The United States government has been called upon twice before, within a comparatively few years, to convey home the bodies of eminent Pan-American statesmen who have died in this country. Some years ago the body of an ambassador of Mexico was thus conveyed home in state and only a year ago similar honors were paid to the remains of the late Senor Nabuco, who was for years the ambassador of Brazil at our seat of government. On neither occasion, however, was there employed for the service so imposing a vessel as the Delaware.

That the officials and the public of Chile will appreciate the significance of Uncle Sam's sending his largest and finest warship is the expectation of the American authorities and there is plain intent to thus create an especially favorable impression—possibly the more so because Chile is one of those South American countries with which the United States has at times in the past been on the verge of ill feeling, and it is the desire of our statesmen to allay any lingering suspicions and cement friendship in this quarter. The Delaware was not, of course, a member of the round-the-world squadron that visited Chilean ports several years ago so that not only will she be a novelty to eyes beyond the Andes but she will afford the people of Chile their first opportunity to inspect an example of the world's latest ideas in heavy battleship building.



Incidentally, Uncle Sam's impressive method of paying tribute to a worker for Pan-American unity will be brought to the attention of the people of other South American republics and this will not be a bad idea either, for the Latin-Americans are very jealous of receiving their due meed of respect and recognition from their big brother of the north. This focusing of the attention of people on the east coast of South America will come about through the circumstance that the Delaware, being unattended by coal or supply ships, will find it necessary en route to and from Chile to put in at ports in Brazil, Argentina and other places for fuel, supplies, etc. Of course the natives at each port cannot fail to be impressed by the vessel and the importance which Uncle Sam attaches to her mission.

The placing of the metal casket containing the body of the deceased diplomat aboard the battleship will be made the occasion of another impressive ceremonial. The heavy-draught battleship cannot ascend the comparatively shallow Potomac river to Washington to receive the body, and so the president's yacht Mayflower will be used to convey the casket from the capital to Hampton roads, Va., where the transfer will be made to the big vessel. When the casket is conveyed from the receiving vault to the Mayflower there will be another military and naval pageant and guns will boom in salute and high officials of the government will stand with uncovered heads while the casket is swung by means of the long arm of a crane from the caisson used as a hearse to the deck of the vessel. A high official of the state department will accompany the body to Hampton Roads as a representative of our government and, in all probability, one or more Chilean diplomats will go with the body on the battleship all the way to Chile.

Captain Gove, who will command the Delaware on this important cruise, is one of the most capable officers in the United States navy. He was for years the commandant of midshipmen at the United States naval academy and is thus known personally to almost every one of the younger officers of our sea service. The Delaware, of which he is in command, is 510 feet in length, 85 feet breadth and displaces 20,000 tons of water, which means that she is fully one-fourth larger or heavier than any other vessel now in commission in our navy except her sister ship, the North Dakota. She is also the speediest of all our battleships built or building, being capable of a gait of 24 or 25 miles per hour, which is distinctly "going some" for so ponderous a craft, and which will enable her to make good time on her round trip beyond Cape Horn if necessity should arise.

The Delaware is the heaviest armed of all our "peacemakers," excepting of course her twin sister, the North Dakota. She carries ten of the big 12-inch guns, four of which were a few years ago considered ample for any battleship, and in addition she has ranged on her sides 14 of the tremendously effective 5-inch guns, to say nothing of a whole array of smaller naval "shooting irons." Some of these latter—the three-pounders, for instance, will be the only ones used on the present cruise and then merely for firing salutes. The Delaware has a ship's company of record-breaking size—55 officers and nearly 900 men.

THREE ORDERS OF SOCIETY IN NAPLES

There are three distinct classes in Neapolitan society—it would be better to call them castes—the nobility and aristocracy, the "galantuomini" or middle classes, and the "lazzaroni" or the "submerged multitude."

The first class it is unnecessary to describe, the other classes live side by side, and are yet distinct and hostile. They differ in religious and political convictions, in morals, in social customs, in food and clothing.

The galantuomini include the shopkeepers, the small manufacturers, tradesmen, bookkeepers, persons engaged in clerical occupations, and practically all who are compelled to earn their living, but who are not engaged in manual labor.

They are generally liberal and often radical in politics. The men express an open indifference and often contempt for the church, but require their wives and daughters to observe all the conventional religious duties, and they themselves never fail to reach for a crucifix or call for a priest whenever they imagine their own lives to be in danger.

They are fond of dress and display and indulge their taste as far as their means will permit, but their wives and daughters are kept in seclusion and are never allowed to leave the house without duennas to protect them.

The lazzaroni regard with contempt as well as aversion the families of the galantuomini, who are not wealthy and have to struggle to keep up appearances. The lazzaroni are strongly attached to the nobility, have often given practical evidences of loyalty and on several occasions have been of supreme service to the crown.

They live cheaply in the open air, with a room in the basement or the attic of some old tenement, to which they can retreat for shelter in case of storm, and when the hour comes for sleep.

They delight in garlic, shell fish, raw vegetables and fruit. The women pay little attention to their dress and always go bareheaded. There are probably not a dozen hats or bonnets to the thousand of the women population of the lazzaroni.

The lazzaroni are so accustomed to fetid odors, the misery, the loathsome filth of the "Fondaci," as the slums are called, that it is difficult for them to be happy under any other circumstances. They are born in it, they live in it and they die in it, and yet there are grades of misery, just as there are grades of prosperity.

There are lazzaroni who are rich and comfortable, compared with others who may occupy the adjoining attic, but it is said by those who have studied this class that they are never reduced to a condition which is beyond their philosophy to endure; that they will always jest about their hunger and laugh about their pains.

Sentimentalists who have made a study of them insist that the poorer and more loathsome the family the stronger the love and attachment. As misfortune comes upon them they seem to cling more closely together, parents to children, children to parents and brothers to sisters, and not one is so low or so destitute as to be unable now and then to do an act of charity or express compassion to neighbors who are even more badly off than themselves.

THE SCHOOLS OF WESTERN CANADA

In Some of the Cities and Towns the School Buildings Cannot Accommodate the Increasing Numbers.

One of the most important factors in the building of a new country is the attention that is paid by the authorities to the education of the rising generation. Fortunately for western Canada, the settlement of that new country began in such recent years that it was able to lay a foundation for this work, gained by the experience of older countries. In this way the very best is the result. Throughout the entire country are to be seen the most improved style of architecture in school buildings. The cities and towns vie with each other in the efforts to secure the best of accommodation and at the same time get architectural lines that would appeal. Sufficient to say that nowhere is there the greater attention paid to elementary and advanced education than in western Canada. A report just to hand shows that in Calgary, Alberta, there are eighty teachers employed, and the enrollment 4,228 pupils. In the Province of Alberta there was a total of 46,000 pupils attending schools in 1909. The total enrollment for the year in city, town and village schools was 22,883, and the total in rural schools was 23,165. There are in the province 970 schools with 1,523 departments. At the close of 1909 there was a total of 1,096 school districts in the province. Great attention is paid also to agricultural education. The best uses of the soil and such other matters as tend to make the agriculture less of a drudge and more of a success are employed. When there is the combination of good soil, splendid climate and healthy and advanced ideas in the methods employed in agriculture, we see accomplished the results that have placed western Canada on its present high plane in the agricultural world. There is to be found men of high standing in literary spheres as well as in financial circles who are carrying on farming, not alone for the pleasure they derive but for the profit they secure. Mr. Adler, a wide-awake business man of New York, has a ranch near Strathmore, Alberta. He is highly pleased with his success the past year. He says:

"On July 25th we estimated our crop at 6,000 bushels of wheat. A week later we increased our estimate to 12,000 bushels. A few days later we again increased our estimate, this time to 18,000 bushels, but after harvest in September we found we had 20,150 bushels. If that isn't a record, what is?" he asked.

"This crop was made with practically no moisture," he continued, "and we now have a better opinion of the fertility of Alberta lands than ever and value our lands higher than we ever did before."

Mr. Adler, who has been on the ranch for about a week, leaves for New York Saturday.

This gentleman is conducting a farm on a large scale, and has plenty of means to develop it, and his may not be taken as a fair case. There are, though, instances of thousands who have begun life on small farms in western Canada with but brains and the determination over and above the couple of hundred dollars in ready money that they possessed, and today are owners of large farms and handsome incomes, all the result of their efforts on land that was responsive to the touch of the hand that held the plow. Instances such as these can be quoted if you will communicate with the nearest Canadian government agent, who will also mail you free descriptive literature.

The Latest Golf Story.

Two Scotchmen met and exchanged the small talk appropriate to the hour. As they were parting to go supperward, Sandy said to Jock:

"Jock, mon, I'll go ye a roond on the links in the morrn."

"The morrn?" Jock repeated doubtfully.

"Aye, mon, the morrn," said Sandy. "I'll go ye a roond on the links the morrn'."

"Aye wee'l," said Sandy. "I'll go ye. But I had intended to get married in the morrn'."

One's Own Heaven and Hell.

Most of our grief comes from within—we torture and torment our very souls. Each man makes his heaven—each man makes his hell. Each man knows when and where he is right, just as he knows when and where he is wrong. Each man realizes just where and when he is weak, and when and where he is strong. But many take entirely too many liberties with themselves.—Exchange.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Where Every Ear Is Stretched.

Knicker—They say listening is a lost art.

Bocker—Ever live in a flat with a dumb waiter?

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

There is no moral health without human happiness.

GOOD CHARACTERISTICS OF BROWN SWISS DAIRY CATTLE

Cows Show High Degree of Efficiency in Converting Feed Into Milk or Flesh—They Are Not of Nervous Disposition or Habit.

Beginning in the year 1870, Brown Swiss cows and heifers to the extent of about one hundred and fifty have been imported into the United States. Descended from these, over 7,000 pure bred animals have been registered in the Herd Book.

In the native country of the Swiss cattle there is no attempt at line breeding or fancy breeding, says a writer in Northwestern Agriculturist. What they seek to perpetuate are good cows, cows that give a good quantity of good milk, and that have shape and size.

Considering the small number to choose from in the entire country, it is rather remarkable that its representatives have achieved so large a number of high records for dairy performances, and that the breed stands as well as it does in general estimation where it is known.

The highest official world's record in a dairy test for cows away from home is that of the Brown Swiss cow Brienz, 168, made at Chicago, in November, 1891, the results being taken of the Swiss breed. At eleven and twelve years of age the cows are in the prime of their life.

It is probable that the Brown Swiss race has quite a different origin from the races of western Europe. There are indications that it is more ancient than any of the other established races. They have been bred by a pastoral people for the same purpose, in the same locality, for a longer time than almost any other breed. Its general character, its color points, its points of conformation are probably more firmly fixed than those of any other breed. Experience in crossing confirms what we are able to learn from history and paleontology in this respect. As a consequence the breed characteristics are readily imparted to cross-bred animals when cows of other breeds or grades of other breeds are bred to Swiss bulls. Grade Swiss cattle even of the first and second generations are often hard to distinguish by their conformation and color marks from pure bred Swiss animals. The grades are sure to gain in and certified to by the officials of the University of Illinois. In three days she gave 245 pounds of milk, 9.32 pounds of butter fat, and 11.66 pounds of butter.

A Prize Brown Swiss Cow.

The Royal Academy at Poppelsdorf, Germany, made a selection of ten Swiss cows for a test in the years 1900 and 1901. The results were very satisfactory.

An average herd of cows in milking condition would weigh 1,300 to 1,400 pounds apiece. They tend to take on fat readily when dry and give it off slowly when in milk. The average herd of cows when fatted would weigh 1,500 pounds or more. Bulls in good condition would weigh from 1,700 up to 2,500 pounds. The Swiss calf at a month old will weigh 180 to 200 pounds, and at two years 1,500 pounds.

It is a general characteristic of the Brown Swiss cows to show a high degree of efficiency in converting feed into milk or into flesh, and a pronounced characteristic that they are not of a nervous disposition or habit. It is not necessary to keep strangers out of the barn or to avoid talking at milking time. A barn full of them, or a single one, will go on stolidly giving the regular yield of milk undisturbed through a commotion that will quite demoralize more nervous cows.

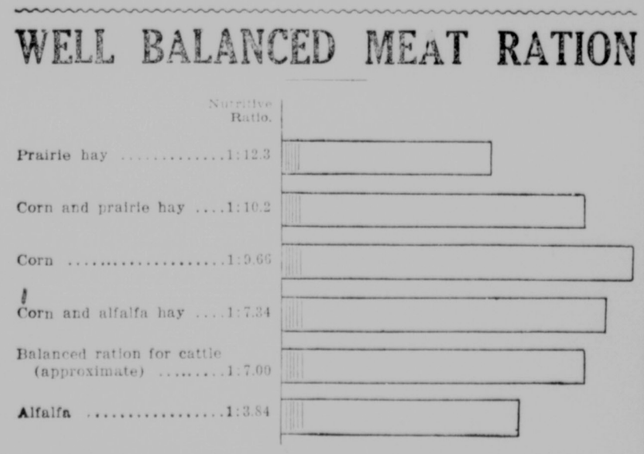
Growing out of the strength of constitution and the absence of nervous fidgets, is the characteristic long life dairy qualities over their dams, and to have in addition, size, constitution and hardiness.

In Brown Swiss cows we have a constitution to which a fair amount of flesh is normal, a contented but hearty disposition, an absence of worry, but a great capacity for making milk and butterfat. All we have to do is to work in accord with nature, and without sacrificing anything of profitableness for the dairy, we have a strong and sturdy type of beauty, and especially that kind of beauty that shines from the reflection of coin and which exemplifies the proverb "Handsome is that handsome does."

Winter Work for Teams.

After the fall crops have been sold or housed, the teams should not be allowed to stand idle if manure is available at reasonable prices. The greatest need of nearly all soils is vegetable matter and it is often important to haul manure for this purpose only, although the supply of plant food is often worth more than the cost of manure. A very common plan is to spread the manure in the fields as fast as it is hauled, while many gardeners prefer to place it in piles until the ground is dry enough in the spring. It is seldom spread before the ground is dry enough because it serves as a mulch and delays plowing.

WELL BALANCED MEAT RATION



In the above chart the shaded portions represent the digestible protein (lean meat formers) of each food and the blank unshaded portions indicate the amount of digestible carbohydrates (starches, etc.), and oils which go to produce body heat and fat. A well balanced ration is shown to contain about one of protein to seven of carbohydrates. A combination of corn and alfalfa hay comes near to the required standard.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-252 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

A Mosque for London.

It is proposed to erect a mosque in the capital of the greatest Mohammedan power in the world, and the only surprising feature of the project is that it has not been executed before. The building is to cost £100,000, to which the Aga Khan has already contribute £5,000. The committee in control of the scheme is presided over by Amir Ali and includes the Turkish and Persian ministers, as well as three members of the council of India.—London Globe.

Diphtheria, Quinsy and Tonsilitis begin with sore throat. How much better to cure a sore throat in a day or two than to be in bed for weeks with Diphtheria. Just keep Hamlins Wizard Oil in the house.

Any New Methods

"Ain't it strange th' way Kelly beats his wife?"

"I dunno. How does he do it?"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

It is better to lose in loving than to gain by self seeking.

MERIT WINS

There Is Probably No Other Known Remedy the Fame of Which Became World-Wide With So Little Advertising As Resinol.

Merit won. Resinol did the work. It cured where other remedies failed. Its grateful user told the next sufferer, and he in turn told another sufferer, and he another, and so on and on its fame spread by this magical verbograph until it encircled the world. The world knows now that Resinol will cure that torturing disease, Eczema. Your druggist will confirm it, and also will tell you that it is a quick and certain cure for Erythema; for Tetter, for Herpes, for Psoriasis, for Eruption of Poison Ivy, for Impetigo and all eruptive skin diseases. It is perfectly harmless and is the best application for the chafing of infants, for Milk Rash, Scald Head and other infantile skin troubles. It stops the itching of Pruritus Ani or Itching Piles instantaneously. Its efficacy for this trouble alone has made it indeed a boon to humanity. Resinol Soap contains the same medication in a modified form. It is delightfully refreshing for the bath, keeps the skin always pure and maintains the ruddy glow of health. It gives luster to the hair and keeps the scalp free of dandruff. Resinol Salve and Resinol Soap are for sale in all drug stores. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

That Essential Struggle.

There are men who go through life without ever getting what one would call a throw-down or set-back—they never get to know what it means to face rough or tough weather. Their way is slicked and paved. They seem to miss the one great essential thing in every success—the struggle; days when everything looks as though one is about done for and ready to cave in.

Enlightenment.

"A burlesque," said the occasional theater-goer, "is a sort of take-off, isn't it?"

"It is," replied Miss Cayenne, "if you judge it by the costuming."

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE." That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Do noble things, not dream them all day long.—Kingsley.

WHY suffer with eye troubles, quick relief by using PETTIT'S EYE SALVE, 25c. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N.Y.

Be a live wire, but don't burn your associates.

Crutches or Biers.

Richard Croker, at a dinner in New York, expressed a distrust for aeroplanes.

"There's nothing underneath them," he said. "If the least thing goes wrong, down they drop."

"I said to a Londoner the other day:

"'How is your son getting on since he bought a flying machine?'

"'On crutches, like the rest of them,' the Londoner replied."

DISTEMPER

In all its forms among all ages of horses, as well as dogs, cured and others in same stable prevented from having the disease with SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE. Every bottle guaranteed. Over 600,000 bottles sold last year. $.50 and $1.00. Any good druggist, or send to manufacturers. Agents wanted. Spohn Medical Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

In the Blood.

Willis—Are those Kentucky horses you bought scared of autos?

Gillis—No, indeed. They never notice a train, either, but I can't get them used to a sprinkling cart to save my life!—Puck.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Many mistake soft words for tender, loving ways.

Knees Became Stiff

Five Years of Severe Rheumatism

The cure of Henry J. Goldstein, 14 Barton Street, Boston, Mass., is another victory by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine has succeeded in many cases where others have utterly failed. Mr. Goldstein says: "I suffered from rheumatism five years, it kept me from business and caused excruciating pain. My knees would become as stiff as steel. I tried many medicines without relief, then took Hood's Sarsaparilla, soon felt much better, and now consider myself entirely cured. I recommend Hood's."

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

FLORIDA FARM for $10.00 CASH

And $5.00 a month. Five acre truck farm in the famous Pensacola District between two railroads, canning factory on property, for $300.00. Have a self expert and demonstration farm to show you how. Invest near a growing city in a climate that can't be beat. Write for literature.

PENSACOLA REALTY CO., Pensacola, Fla., P. O. Box 27

A COUNTRY SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

in New York City. Best features of country and city life. Out-of-door sports on school park of 35 acres near the Hudson River. Academic Course Primary Class to Graduation. Upper class for Advanced Special Students. Music and Art. Write for catalogue and terms.

Miss Bangs and Miss Whiton, Riverdale Avenue, near 253rd St., West, N. Y.

Is Your Health Worth 10c?

That's what it costs to get a—week's treatment—of CASCARETS. They do more for you than any medicine on Earth. Sickness generally shows and starts first in the Bowels and Liver; CASCARETS cure these ills. It's so easy to try—why not start tonight and have help in the morning?

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's 90% treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

Splendid Crops

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from the FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS of Western Canada.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time. Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts; 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest; wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Supt of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to Canadian Government Agent.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.) 39

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whitzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending name of asthmatic sufferer. Address FRANK WHITZEL, M. D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

MICHIGAN FARMS—If you are not satisfied with your present condition and prospect for the future, then move to Michigan and make sure of a good yearly income from a farm in the rich agricultural section of Central Michigan; a farm that will produce large crops of grains, fruits and vegetables near the very best markets where you get top prices for all you raise. I have several fine farms for sale, and some raw land, that will suit you in price, kind and location. John F. Wilkinson Lansing, Michigan.

CALIFORNIA INDUSTRIES

A leading enterprise developing a great industry wants agents to undertake the sale of stock. Legitimate. Bank references. Write JOHN BAKER, JR., Crocker Building, San Francisco

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

BURDENS LIFTED FROM BAD BACKS

Weary is the back that bears the burden of kidney ills. There's no rest or peace for the man or woman who has a bad back. The distress begins in early morning. You feel lame and not refreshed. It's hard to get out of bed. It hurts to stoop to tie your shoes. All day the ache keeps up. Any sudden movement sends sharp twinges through the back. It is torture to stoop and straighten. At night the sufferer retires to toss and twist and grown. Backache is kidney ache—a throbbing, dull aching in the kidneys. Plasters or liniments won't do. You must get at the cause, inside.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE SICK KIDNEYS

COMPLETELY PROSTRATED.

Mrs. Eliza Kirk, S. Main St., Spencer, Ind., says: "I had been prostrated with inflammatory rheumatism. My limbs were swollen, hands drawn out of shape and I was so sensitive to pain I had to be turned in sheets. It was surprising how quickly Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me and how soon I was cured. For three years my cure has been permanent."

How To Tell When The Kidneys Are Disordered--

Painful Symptoms: Backache, sideache, pains when stooping or lifting, sudden sharp twinges, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, dizzy spells, dropsy.

Urinary Symptoms: Discolored or cloudy urine. Urine that contains sediment. Urine that stains the linen. Painful passages. Blood or shreds in the urine. Let a bottle of the morning urine stand for 24 hours. If it shows a cloudy or fleecy settling, or a layer of fine grains, like brick dust, the kidneys are probably disordered.

WEIGHED ONLY 80 POUNDS.

Byron Bennette, 1018 St. Clair Ave., East Liverpool, O., says: "I was helpless in bed with kidney trouble. I ran down until I weighed but 80 pounds and everyone thought I had consumption. A specialist gave me up and so did my home physician. Surprising as it may seem, I was able to leave my bed after using six boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and for six years I have remained free from kidney trouble."

A TRIAL FREE Test Doan's Kidney Pills Yourself

Cut out this coupon, mail it to Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. A free trial package of Doan's Kidney Pills will be mailed you promptly. C.N.U.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

IF THE PAIN IS THERE SUSPECT YOUR KIDNEYS

Sold by all dealers. Price 50 cents. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N.Y., Proprietors.

IF THE PAIN IS THERE SUSPECT YOUR KIDNEYS

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months ..... .75
One copy three months ..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1911.

THE lower house of the West Virginia Legislature on Monday passed a bill disqualifying those who make or sell liquor as jurors in the courts of that state. As sure as slavery was abolished, will the manufacture of strong drink be prohibited.

SOME of the West Virginia newspaper men are pouncing upon their newly elected Senator C. W. Watson because he did not remain in his place in the Senate the other day and defeat the ship susidy bill, his vote alone being sufficient for the purpose. But as Senator Watson wasn't elected because he knew how to vote but only because he had money, he has a good excuse for his absence at a critical time.

THE Baltimore American came out victorious in the suit instituted by a Democratic Supervisor of Elections of Somerset County. This official sued the American for damages for publishing an alleged libelous article in which the Supervisor was roundly scored for causing a trick ballot to be prepared and used in Somerset county at the election of 1909. The American plead justification and the jury decided the case in the American's favor, thus dealing another blow to the tricky methods of the ring in throttling popular government in Maryland.

THE FEE SYSTEM.

The system of paying public officials by fees has always been a losing game for the public. It is especially so in this State. The Baltimore American says: "The fee system has always resulted in a variety of petty abuses; it opens temptations to officials which ought never to be opened. It often results in involving petty offenders in a bill of cost that is unfair and unreasonable."

Every official should receive a definite salary for the very fact that a man who depends on commissions or fees for his salary has a tendency to make him grasping, and when officials are grasping it is the poor that always suffer.

In Virginia the fee system is in full flower, while in most of the states it is already classed as a forgotten evil. The public pay officials after all, and if the fee system is abolished there will, of necessity, be a great saving on the part of the public. The fee system is unfair, because it increases the costs of litigation, and thus adds to the burdens of those least able to stand it. It breeds corruption in office, because it appeals to the avarice of the office holder. It is behind the times, and progressive States have long ago discarded it. It adds to the burdens of all taxpayers and is too expensive. It will go when once the voters of the State fully realize its evils.

THE SPELLING MANIA.

There is an epidemic of spelling—it is among eastern editors again and they are advocating a spelling class throughout the college course, because some of the young graduates cannot spell correctly all the words that have been given them. Young men and young women ought to be able to spell well, but it is possible that eastern editors are a little too exacting in regard to this particular branch. Like editors, the young folks can probably spell the words belonging to their vocabulary made up from their studies and associations, but it ought hardly to be expected that they would spell words that have never come within their range of work. Noboby can spell all the words in the language and it is hardly worth while for any one to be able to perform such a feat. He would not have time to learn anything else and there would be little use for the greater part of his knowledge. People wouldn't engage halls and hire him to spell words for them when dictionaries are so plentiful and cheap. He would be like the man who learned to drink dishwater and discovered later that he had wasted time and energy that might have been put to better use.

By all means let the young people learn to spell; let them learn to spell correctly all the words used in connection with the subjects they study and discuss and those used in general intercourse, and for the other words they need, let them do as the editor does who is eternally nagging and criticising them. He consults the dictionary oftener than anything else about his office, unless it be the paste pot and scissors. Lawyers should be able to spell a great many words correctly including those in the law dictionary, but it is doubtful if the most eminent member of the profession could stand long before a bombardment of words from the medical dictionary. If lawyers want to use words outside their every day vocabulary they refer to their dictionaries and so it is in other professions. The test that is given the young people in spelling when in school or just after leaving in not always fair. If the test is made by a lawyer, he is apt to give them legal terms; the doctor medical terms; the minister Bible names; the editor words that have flunked him and that he has run to the dictionary to look up every time he wanted to use them because he could not remember how to spell them. Why should young people know how to spell these words? Why not test them with "simple words," those that are used in every day communication among the intellectual people? They ought to be able to spell these words and if they are able to do so, they are "good spellers" and will soon learn to spell words belonging to any profession or calling. All of our boys and girls, young women and young men should be "good spellers" but they should not be so good that they are good for nothing else.

THE GARRETT COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD AND ITS METHODS.

The members of the Garrett County School Board, through their right and left bowers, are circulating petitions among the teachers asking them to endorse the administration of the county superintendent in all that he has done.

For the life of us we can't see how any teacher, particularly an assistant, dare refuse to sign such a paper. If they do refuse they certainly have not yet become acquainted with the despot who rules in the school board office. Every teacher should take warning that such a refusal may mean either a cut in salary, if not next month, then next year, or the loss of her position.

If the teachers do not already know, they should be made acquainted with the fact that the only absolute monarchy on this continent exists in Garrett county, and she who dares to do other than what is for the upbuilding and glorification of the czar at its head, may be struck down at any moment. The public, too, should know that the educational interests of the five thousand children in the county are of no importance only in so far as they may result in the further perpetuation of his royal highness in power and authority.

At a teachers' meeting held in Grantsville recently Superintendent Browning is alleged to have asserted that the charges formulated and published against him were absolutely false from start to finish. Now teachers of Garrett county are a credulous class of folks. They took the honorable professor at his word and believed him and signed an endorsement prepared before hand lauding him to the skies. Why was Mr. Browning afraid to wait until the other side was heard before asking that the verdict be rendered?

We know that some of these charges are not false, and the County Superintendent knows it too, but it is not in our province to pass upon them. If the State Board of Education will give this case a fair and impartial hearing in Oakland where witnesses can afford to attend (and which we believe they will do) and not oblige our people to go to Baltimore, the expense of which makes it prohibitive, the public may learn some things which the County Superintendent is anxious they should not know.

Any person who can read the law and the reports know that the County Superintendent, on his own evidence, stands convicted on the charge of violating the law which obliges him to visit each school twice a year, and every teacher who has served in that capacity at any time during the administration of Mr. Browning knows that the regulations of the State Board with reference to the January and year-end examinations have been violated.

While the question of absolute violation of the letter of the law is what must be tried out before the State Board of Education, the great question with the patrons of the schools and the taxpayers of Garrett county, is whether the present school administration is in harmony with public sentiment and is getting results in the schools. We believe it is a dismal failure in both particulars. If the county superintendent ever did measure up to a respectable standard along these lines, he isn't within gunshot distance of them now. We base our opinion on the fact that there is wide spread and universal dissatisfaction and disgust among all classes of our people and in every portion of the county.

This is not a political matter, nor are we writing from a political standpoint, but with one view in mind—to endeavor to advance the school interests of Garrett county to the place where they belong, but which cannot be reached with men in power who are distasteful to the majority of the people of all parties in the county. The Republicans are aware that they will have to be governed by Democratic school officials just as long as the State administration remains Democratic. The members of the opposite party hold the same view, but two out of every three Democrats we meet are out of sympathy with the local school administration and are hoping for a change—expecting it and are trusting that the day is not far distant when it shall become a certainty.

With the constantly recurring clashes between the school board and the people of Garrett county we are led to believe that the school authorities of the State are becoming tired and ashamed of their local representatives, and we trust that they will remove the present members and give us a board that will measure up to the standard and thus give the state board peace and the people results. Then and not till then will this "persecution," which the learned county superintendent so much abhors, "let up."

BITTINGER.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp attended the funeral of an aged relative of Mrs. Ellithorp's which took place near Blaine, W. Va., on last Sunday.

Clarence Stephen and wife were pleasant callers in this village last Monday morning.

Lewis Orendorf delivered a load of dressed pork and beef to his customers at this place last Monday.

John H. Stark made a business trip to Oakland one day last week.

Leonard Stark was visiting various mining towns in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, last week.

Charles Stark is preparing to move into a tenement house on the Cunningham farm near this place.

The ladies of the Lutheran church held a very successful oyster supper in the basement of the parsonage on last Saturday evening, realizing a net profit of about twenty-two dollars.

The pupils of the public school will render an appropriate literary program in the school house on Wednesday evening, Feb. 22nd.

Rev. Young, of Salisbury, Pa., will preach from the Lutheran pulpit in this village on Saturday evening, Feb. 18th.

Special Bargains.

Special Saturday bargains will be found at Davis' Hardware on Saturday of each week. Watch the window.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Extinction in Virginia of a Family of Noble Lineage.

To the Editor of The Republican:

In Richmond, Virginia, the death this month of Dr. Aristides Monteiro, ends a family, a true history of which would read as a romance, extravagant in fiction. Dr. Aristides Monteiro was eminent in his profession and was recognized as one of the brilliant menof Virginia, mentally unclouded almost to the age of 90. As a family their place was severely unique among the American people. Early in the nineteenth century the father of Dr. Monteiro was potential in the government of Portugal, but a sudden revolution in affairs of State, followed by an angry disturbance of popular tranquility, caused Mr. Monteiro to flee his native land and seek protection under the American Republic, then just coming into view among the powers of the earth. The plea of the distinguished fugutive met a gracious grant, and he came to the county of Goochland, about thirty-five miles above Rienmond, on the north side of the James river, and founded a family seat in the immediate community of the ancestors of the writer hereof. In culture and breeding they occupied an eminence a scholar might envy. Visiting but little among his neighbors, he secured to his six sons and one daughter the most liberal and thorough instruction a widely learned parent could wish for his children. To all six of these sons the father, true to the memory of his far away land and people, gave a Grecian name, practically jaw-breaking to their American companions. After the death of the father every son, except the one first above mentioned, assumed an English name—Henry, Edward, Andrew, James, and Walter—to the infinite relief of our less classic tongues. About this home of stiff formalities, in an outside conception, was an imaginary Chinese wall, within the bounds of which this young family was trained and watched, under a discipline approximating captivity. We know not the kind of kindling used in the intellectual fires of this rigidly secluded home, but surely it was well chosen, for the subsequent sparks from those living fires became luminous in every circle in which a Monteiro was found. Their flashing wit over a continuous flow of animating language, usually proved them matchless in either the ball room or the social gathering. The eminent prelate, Bishop Mead, of Virginia, direct from the performance of the nuptial ceremony, remarked to my father that Edward Monteiro, the evening of his marriage, was one of the handsomest and most captivating gentlemen he ever met in a parlor. When this writer was a Confederate soldier in the fortifications of Spottsylvania, shiftings of commands threw him two days and nights in close contact with Walter Monteiro, then a color bearer in the "Stonewall Brigade," and he never saw him more brimming in mirth, nor delightful in conversation than under the perils and discomforts of that arduous situation. A discussion occurred as to what was best for a soldier to have in battle. After a variety of opinions, the suggestion was made that the presence of mind was best. Monteiro instantly responded, "No sir, rather than the presence of mind give me the absense of body." And so the escaping sparks from a furnace of humor were glowing over his talk, while death and dejection, danger and deprivation were on every hand. In all these magnificent gifts of mind and speech the sister was not excelled by any one of her brothers. She was brought by the death of her parents to preside as the head of "Monteiro's," and thus became a mother, no less than a sister, to the six sons now chafing under the curb of restraint for a taste of the world. She was a frequent visitor at our home, and a sweeter, gentler, purer lady never adorned her sex. But a shocking calamity was destined to cloud the horizon of the Monteiro home. Only a few years in advance of the death of old Mr. Monteiro, while his boys were at a near-by college, the son James became involved in a fight with a fellow student, named Flemming, greatly the superior in size and strength to Monteiro, who was of a very slight frame. Fleming had Monteiro's face bent towards the ground and was slapping him over the back of the neck, when Monteiro suddenly drew a knife and by an upward stab struck Flemming in the heart, who then walked to the other side of the road and fell dead. Both families were prominent, with a bond of warm friendship between them. Probably the earliest memory of my life runs back to the summer's evening of violent storm in which the stripling, James Monteiro, was brought under the charge of murder to the court house and incarcerated in the county jail. My father was the clerk of Goochland county, and my impressions of this noted tragedy were derived from him. The prominence of the families concerned and the fame of the lawyers participating, made the trial memorable in the criminal annals of Virginia. The local lawyer of that bar, the celebrated John S. Fleming, distantly connected with the murdered student, stood above comparison and as the Patrick Henry of his time. He was a genius on whom nature had lavished some of her rarest gifts, and as an orator he was supreme, but in spite of the intervention of every power, he would get on a spree at times, and when he got on one no hand could draw or hold him out. What a pity, that so much splendor could be dimmed for days by such a cloud. He was quickly retained by the broken-hearted father. As associate counsel Mr. Monteiro, brought from Richmond, Mr. Henry A. Wise, at that time just nearing the meridan of his forensic powers, the man who in a future campaign was to dislodge "Nonothism" in Virginia and put its forces in irretrievable route and dismay. An unlooked for consternation was decreed to burst in the splendidly ordered camp of the defense, the night of the first day Mr. Fleming got on a spree. To say that Mr. Wise was furious, is but a soda water mildness in speech, his tongue in vitupeative gall was an aggregation of the lash, the sting and the poison of the scorpion. All was futile, Mr. Fleming was hopelessly on a spree. At one juncture of the trial, the troubled father went beseechingly to him, saving the life of his son and the hope of his family were pending, please come and hear important testimony now being taken. He went and stood for a while in the rear of the bar but was soon off again. In the evening, of the day before argument was to begin, Mr. Wise went to the chief counsel and rebukingly reminded him of the gravity of the consequences his conduct might cause, urging him not at that late hour to clog his mind with such a mass of testimony, but come to the office for review of the law, with the leaves turned down for his convenience, bearing upon the issue. John S. Fleming on a spree would promise anything, but he did not go to the office. That September day for the clash of blades of the great contest in the arena of the law was a day of prostrating heat. Night was closing in when the time for the last speech upon the part of the defense was at hand. A mighty jam of humanity was in the building, and about its doors and windows. Mr. Fleming, tall, haggard and soiled, stood up at the bar in a silence that was painful. In a floundering way he tried to speak, mumbling with inarticulate terms, the clear tones of the flute-like music had departed from him, and his friends hung their heads, hoping he would take his seat and end a tension terrible to bear. In a twinkling, when no one expected, that flame which nature had so deeply implanted in him loomed out in its native effulgence and for two hours blazed over the court room as was never seen there before, and may never appear again. It is related that a gentleman, fearing the lack of an over indulged stimulant during the week might cause a fag, placed a glass on the surface of the rail at the speaker's front. Flies gathered in the glass. When a change of posture revealed the glass, he caught it up and in the intensity of his excitement swallowed liquor, flies and all. In the peroration he towered above the billows of the sea, his masterful gifts had raised on high, directing and centering the torrent of the storm on any quarter he wished it to beat. When, in an impassioned plea for acquital, in vivid, thrilling eloquence, he pictured the Portugal nobleman fleeing from a land of oppression to a land of freedom, and here at the bar of American justice begging for the life of his boy, strong men through the courthouse wept as frail girls at a grave. The trial was over, the boy was cleared. But Time, Time, oh, Time! what changes have fallen as fatal seeds from thy unsparing hand! Of all the actors upon that dazzling stage not one is left to walk its boards.

RELLIM.

Liquor Selling at Friendsville.

To the Editor of The Republican:

A few words of comment on the general condition of affairs in our town may not be out of place at this time, if you will kindly afford room for them in the next issue of your valuable paper.

Our town is the second in size and importance in Garrett county, and is the business center of a very large community. Our people are generally industrious and many of them are fairly prosperous, and, thank God, a few at least, are genuinely religious. Our merchants and leading business men are doing well and are kind and courteous to everyone. But there is one branch of business which has long been carried on here that is a great menace to the peace and morals of our town.

The liquor business has been the direct cause of untold anguish and dishonor and shame. It is a foul fiend whose hands have been red with blood of murder more than once in our neighborhood in recent years; and has been the cause of more than one suicide, and has brought poverty and misery to many a house.

Numerous persons have in the last ten years engaged in the liquor business in Friendsville either with or without a license, and I want to hold them up to the gaze of the public and ask, Where are they today? And what is their condition? And what has been their profit? About all the leading ones of them have either died, or have become ruined in earthly circumstances. And today those who have been smuggling the stuff are counted only as the vagabonds of society, and are recognized by all good people as a curse to our town, where they should be a blessing to themselves and others.

The last one to make the venture in defiance of the law, and ignoring the sovereign voice of the voters of our town has been keeping one of the vilest dens of destruction since sometime last fall that the town has ever known. We understand that he is now under custody of the law, and it would be well if he were dealt with according to the heinousness of his crime, so that others of his class may take warning, and there are others whose names we will not mention now for shame's sake, who will not work, but have long been making their living in the same way.

May all such repent at once, and be forgiven by high heaven, and take their place among men who desire to make an honest living.

If they do not speedily repent, may the just judgment of God fall upon them, that others may tremble and quake at the very thought of such a sin. This thing has now gone about far enough. It is bringing about the destruction of our boys and young men in a wholesale way, and in the name of my Divine Master I lift my voice against it, and I call upon the Christian people of our town to join together in one continued effort to stamp this evil out. God bless our dear boys and help them also to join heart and hand with us to its utter destruction.

Respectfully,
D. A. FRIEND.

Friendsville, Md., Feb. 10, 1911.

NEW GERMANY.

The week opened with beautiful spring weather

Miss Hilda Keys came down to see Miss Margaret Smith Saturday evening.

J. M. Durst and Gurnie Newan drove to Salisburry Saturday for a grain drill

Fox hunting seems to be the chief diversion just now. A battle royal took place Saturday between a large fox hound and a sly old fox.

Two new lines are being installed in the central, making a total of eight.

Francis Murphy came out to see Lewis Warnick Sunday on important business.

Dr. Bowen, of Grantsville, was called to the home of Stephen Miller several times last week.

Stock Sale.

Mr. J. A. Kelly, the Oakland liveryman, is making arrangements to hold another sale of live stock and requests that all who have horses, mules, etc., to offer at the sale to communicate with him as early as possible. The sale will take place at his barn in Oakland on March 1st and will be conducted along the same lines as the former one. 2t*

22222 The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County. 22222

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank
Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
L. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after, while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank
Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department Takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Order of Publication.

Saby J. Miller, vs. John Miller, No. 1718 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendent.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married about the year 1899, and that they lived together as man and wife until about the 25th day of November, 1909, and as a result of said marriage five children were born unto them, three girls and two boys, the youngest of which is about ten years of age.

That since said marriage the plaintiff has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife.

The bill then charges that about the said 25th day of November, 1909, that the plaintiff discovered that the defendant was untrue to her, and was visiting and cohabiting with lewd and abandoned women, whose names are unknown to her, that on said 25th day of November, 1909, that the defendant returned home after being absent for ten days or more, and was then suffering from a loathsome disease as a result of cohabiting with lewd women as aforesaid, and after being convinced that such was the case she charged the defendant with said unfaithfulness, and after first denying it, he afterwards in the presence of witnesses admitted such to be a fact, and undertook to explain to the plaintiff the circumstances in excuse for his unfaithfulness.

The bill further charges that after discovering the defendant's unfaithfulness she never cohabited with him again, and later on they entered into a written agreement to live apart, and since said time they have never lived together.

The bill further states that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and prays for an order of publication against the defendant and for other and further relief.

It is thereupon this 18th day of January, 1911, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 17th day of February, 1911, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before 6th day of March next, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk 47-4

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 568 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College
COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.
Maryland's School of Technology
Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of instruction leading to professional degree of B. S.

Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the ages is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for isolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars.

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy
JOS. E. HARNED, Prop'r
Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.
G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.
S. T. JONES, Cashier.
G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt	Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis	George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell	William R. Stull
Scott T Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

MAKES HOME BAKING EASY

Light Biscuit
Delicious Cake
Dainty Pastries
Fine Puddings
Flaky Crusts

and the food is finer, more tasty, cleanly and wholesome than the ready-made found at the shop or grocery.

Royal Cook Book—800 Receipts—Free. Send Name and Address.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

Need not be connected to waterworks, the same water can be used over and over again to operate

HOT WATER AND STEAM SYSTEMS.

Only a few gallons need to be added during a season
Automatically operated, safe and very durable.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.
Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.
Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.
Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.
See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men
Boys Suits $2.50 and up.
Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.
Full Line Groceries,
Meat Market in Connection,
ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

Mr. Alfred Friend, of Friendsville, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. Austin Brown was at Bayard, W. Va., Tuesday and yesterday on business.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Misses Margaret and Mayme Miller spent Monday last in Cumberland with friends.

Mr. James L. Harvey, of District No. 10, was a business visitor to this office last Friday.

Mr. Frank W. Chase returned to Oakland Tuesday from a business trip to Philadelphia.

Money to loan in amounts to suit borrower. RENNINGER & OFFUTT, attorneys.

Mrs. Thomas Browning and daughter, of Thayerville, were in Oakland yesterday shopping.

You may not know that there are fifty-three Sundays in this year, but it is a fact, nevertheless.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

State Senator Speicher, of Accident, was in Oakland Monday, going from here east on business.

Miss Lulu Hocking, of Meyersdale, Pa., is here as the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. A Sturgiss.

WANTED—Five cars scrap iron, zinc, copper and brass. Garthright & Harvey, Mountain Lake Park.

Mr. John Ault, of near Oakland, left yesterday for a two weeks' visit to Pittsburg and other cities.

Mr. John T. Sincell of Keyser, W. Va., spent Tuesday afternoon and evening in Oakland on business.

Mrs. R. B. Ward, who has been on a visit to relatives and friends in Ohio and West Virginia, has returned.

Miss Lena Birchdorf visited relatives and friends in Terra Alta from Saturday until to-day, when she returned home.

Mr. Henry Speicher, of Accident, returned to his home last Saturday from a business trip to the eastern section of Maryland.

Mrs. Eva Mitchell returned to Oakland yesterday afternoon from a visit of two weeks to friends in Lonaconing and Cumberland.

Mr. H. Byrne Hamill, who recently came home after three years' service in the army, went to Baltimore last Friday for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grusendorf, of Keyser, W. Va., were guests for a day or two this week of friends and relatives in Oakland.

Mrs. J. Wilson Humbird, of Cumberland, came up to Oakland Tuesday afternoon for a visit to her daughter, Mrs. W. R. Offutt.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Welsbach portico or outdoorlamp, one inverted mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. G. A. Shirer & Co 6t

Miss Oda Cale and Mrs. L. H. Buzzell, of William, West Va., are here as the guests of Mrs. Perry W. Frantz at the Frantz Hotel.

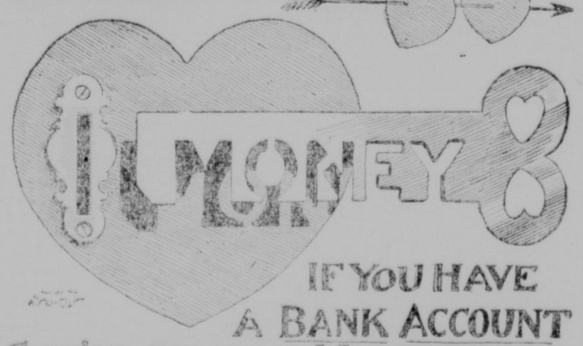
Miss Corinne Manges will leave here Saturday evening for a three weeks' trip to York, Harrisburg and other cities in Pennsylvania.

Mr. R. D. Ravenscroft, Jr., of Dawson, Allegany county, is on a visit to his brother, Dr. Webster Ravenscroft, and family, near Oakland.

Rev. G. R. Williamson was at Grafton last Monday when he "preached to a large and appreciated audience," says the Sentinel of that city.

At the Empire Theatre tonight a big double bill will be presented when Big Black Chief, the Cherokee, who appeared last Thursday night, will make his second appearance before the public of Oakland. Big Black Chief's stunts are many and varied. Two excellent reels of pictures will also be shown. Everybody invited.

the KEY to SUCCESS IS MONEY in the BANK



IF YOU HAVE A BANK ACCOUNT SHE'LL BE YOUR VALENTINE

Have a little ready money in the Bank

OUR SUCCESS for the past ten years proves the security of our Bank,

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
OAKLAND, MD.

ENGINEERS WILL BEGIN WORK ON ROAD VERY SOON

Survey of the Proposed Road From Friendsville to Accident to Start.

The Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county has received acknowledgment from the Good Roads Commission in Baltimore of the receipt of the papers and petitions of the residents of Friendsville and Accident concerning the building of the proposed new roard under the Shoemaker Law between the towns.

The Commission in its letter to the local board states that as soon as weather conditions permit a corps of engineers will be sent to Friendsville where the work of making the survey will be started, and pushed through as rapidly as possible, after which the drawings and blue prints will be prepared and estimates of the cost of the road calculated and submitted.

The people of that section of the county who are to be directly benefited by the construction of this proposed new road will be more than pleased to learn of the prompt action of the commission in handling this matter and are looking forward with pleasure to the day when the trip from Friendsville to Oakland may be made over improved roads and in less than half the time it now takes for the journey.

Mr. D. R. Sloan, treasurer of the Lonaconing Savings Bank, Lonaconing, was in Oakland last night on business, having arrived here from a point west of town.

Miss Lorena Fringer, who spent a week with relatives at Grafton, returned to her home in Oakland Sunday afternoon and expects to leave here for the South the latter part of this week.

Mr. Scott T. Jones, cashier of the Garrett National Bank, left Oakland Tuesday morning for Ebensburg, Pa., to attend the funeral of his uncle, the late Benjamin Jones, who died in that place Monday.

Mr. George F. Richardson, of St Petersburg, Fla., who spent a week or two with Oakland relatives, left for Pittsburg Sunday afternoon where he will visit his sons and daughters before returning south.

LOST—Dec. 29, 1910, on Sang Run road between McHenry and Friendsville, a black rug muff, one large tail and head. Finder please notify postoffice McHenry, Md., and receive reward. MRS. A. J. SAVAGE.

Mr. James Smith, of near McHenry, returned to his home Tuesday after an absence of several months which was spent by Mr. Smith in one of the Baltimore hospitals where he was treated for tuberculosis of the knee joints.

Mr. G. A. Fraley expects to leave Oakland tonight for Baltimore and accompany Mrs. Fraley home Sunday morning, her condition being so much improved that her physicians have advised her removal from the hospital to her home.

Dr. N. I. Broadwater, who accompanied Mrs. Henry Sanders to Baltimore last Monday morning, where the lady is being treated at Maryland University hospital, returned to Oakland Thursday. Mrs. Sanders will remain a patient in the hospital for a short time.

The little daugter of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Reed, who has been extremely ill for a week or more and whose condition until Tuesday evening was quite critical when a turn for the better was noticed, is slowly improving and hopes are entertained for its ultimate recovery.

Mr N. U. Bond returned yesterday from a trip to Durbin and points thereabouts where he inspected the timber lands owned by him. While the matter has not been definitely settled as yet the probabilities are that Mr. Bond will instal a large mill on his holdings at an early day. Should this be done it will require several years' of constant work to cut the timber, which will give employment to a large number of men.

Subscribed for The Republican.

Messrs. Charles S. and John W. Davis, of J. M. Davis & Sons, hardware dealers, who spent last week in Pittsburg attending the meeting of the Pennsylvania Hardware Dealers' Association, returned to Oakland Saturday night. The gentlemen had a pleasant and profitable visit.

Mr. Albert A. Doub, referee in bankruptcy, gives notice through the columns of this paper today to the creditors of Elias S. Braham, of Bloomington, who has been adjudged a bankrupt by the United States District Court for Maryland. The first meeting of the creditors of the bankrupt will be held at the office of Mr. Doub in Cumberland on February 27th.

Prof. Leo. J. Rasche, formerly of Oakland, is in politics in Grafton, his adopted home, and in a late issue of the Grafton Sentinel, of which he is editor, he announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the office of City Collector. The convention to make the nomination will meet Feb. 28th. The Professor has our best wishes for success.

Mr. Herman Runten, who has been confined to his room at the Lowenstein Hotel for a month or more suffering as the result of an infection which attacked the middle finger of his left hand and which later attacked his knee and foot, underwent an operation Tuesday which relieved his sufferings to some extent. He is still very ill, but with chances for recovery in his favor.

County Treasurer Robert L. Fries, who has been at his home down on White Rock recuperating from an operation performed some months ago by Drs. Broadwater and Ricketts, who amputated his leg below the knee, returned here Tuesday for a brief stay. Since the operation Mr. Fries has been suffering severely with rheumatism, but is somewhat better now.

Mrs. John A. Sowers and daughter, Mrs. Walter Hardesty, of Oakland, were called to Baltimore on Friday in response to a message stating the serious illness and later the death of Mrs. Katharine Hilbery, who resided with her daughter, Mrs. A. B Harper, of 2122 Ashton street. The funeral occurred on Monday afternoon with interment in Mount Ollivet cemetery, Baltimore.

A man in Westmorland county has killed a wild cat with his bare hands, and two or three weeks ago a man in Fayette killed a mad dog in the same manner. It is a strong argument against carrying concealed weapons. There will be no occasion for the courts to be lenient with offenders who make the plea that they carry revolvers because they are afraid of wild cats and mad dogs.—Uniontown Standard.

Dr. Charles E. Shelton, the recently elected superintendent of Mountain Lake Park, accompanied by Mrs. Shelton, arrived in Oakland yesterday afternoon from Chicago, and will be the guests for some time of Lieut. and Mrs. E. S. West at their home east of town. Dr. Shelton will assume his duties as superintendent of the Park about April 1st at which time the term of Dr. Davis as superintendent expires.

Tuesday morning as train No. 2 was approaching Oakland the eccentric strap on the locomotive broke and jammed against the drain cock of the boiler. Immediately clouds of steam and water surrounded the engine and train, which was brought to a stop immediately by the engineer. A helping engine from Corinth was pressed into service which pushed the train into Oakland from the point where the accident occurred and from here the train was taken east by an Altamont helping engine. A delay of nearly an hour and a half was occasioned by the accident.

The members of the Garrett County School Board, Messrs. Charles A. Deffinbaugh, C. E. Ellithorp and Peter H. Yost, accompanied by their secretary and examiner, Ed. A. Browning, and also Mr. W. R. Offutt, attorney, left here Tuesday afternoon for Baltimore to appear before the State Board of Education yesterday to answer the charges filed against the members of the board and Mr. Browning. Mr. Thomas Browning, of Thayerville, who was instrumental in having the charges filed against the local officials, went to Baltimore Tuesday morning, accompanied by Mr. R. T. Semmes, of Cumberland, who appeared in the matter for the petitioners.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting
A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

A meeting of the directors of the Eglon Mutual Telephone Company was held in the business office of THE REPUBLICAN last Saturday when amendod bylaws for the government of the company were adopted and an exchange arrangement with a representative of the Garrett County Telephone Company was entered into. Those who attended the meeting were Messrs. A. M. Fike, J. C. Fike, John Baker, Fred Stahl and James Aronhalt.

Rev. D. A. Greene, of Pittsburg, preached in the Presbyterian church in Oakland last Sunday morning and again in the evening to appreciative audiences. Rev. Greene returned to Pittsburg Tuesday where he will remain until tomorrow when he will again come to Oakland and preach next Sundey morning and evening for the Presbyterian congregation. The gentleman may become the regular minister for the local congregation, as he has impressed the members very favorably. He is a member of the Pittsburg Presbytery and until his membership is transferred to the Maryland Presbytery he will serve the Oakland church as a supply. His last charge was in Pittsburg where he served a congregation for seven years, giving up the work on account of failing health.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 170 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the head of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the railroad. About forty acres of the farm are cleared and and under cultivation; 200 apple trees and other good fruit; good house and barn; 3 good springs; 200,000 feet saw timber.

Terms of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address

DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Garthright's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all who are indebted to me either on note or open account to make immediate settlement as I must close up my personal affairs. If settlement is not made within a reasonable time my books will be placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to force settlement.

Thanking all for their patronage and soliciting a continuance of the same with the new firm, I am,

Very respectfully,

P. T. GARTHRIGHT.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE
FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

We are offering this week some extra Bargains in Pocket Knives. Values 50 cents to $1 for 30 cents to 75 cents; by mail 5 cents extra.

Extra Values Saturday in Enameled Ware. Values up to 60 cents on Saturday your choice for 25 cents.

A choice Assortment of Tinware. Values up to 25 cents, your choice Saturday for 10 cents.

Will give double Trading Stamps on Saturday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,

S. LAWTON & SONS.

Subscribe for The Republican.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

When doctors graft it is folly to be sick.

Another thing that will make Milwaukee famous is a "woman policeman."

Why worry over good roads when we are all on the verge of taking to wings?

If war scares keep on accumulating they may be offered by the dozen at reduced rates.

When women are required to sit on juries they should be permitted to bring their knitting.

Western farmers are returning to the effete east to buy up the deserted farms of that section.

Fir lumber has gone gone up one dollar on the thousand. Now, all together: This is going too fir!

Goose-bone prophets are of the opinion that this winter will stretch out as long as a British election.

Alfalfa in various forms is to be served at a banquet in Colorado. Now who is "brother to the ox?"

Alexander wept because he had no more worlds to conquer when he should have hustled around and found a few.

Pittsburg ants to annex about a dozen suburbs. This is likely to start a new annexation movement in Cleveland.

The unarmored cruiser Detroit, which cost $..233,000, has just been sold for $20,000. So run the fighting ships away.

New York's largest hotel is to cost $17,000,000. It is to be built on Herald square at Twenty-fourth street and Broadway.

School teachers think they are entitled to pensions, but can teaching be called war since corporal punishment has been abolished?

A Boston man declares that he can prove that there are nine hells, and we presume that discovering that the furnace fire is out is one of them.

That New York man who started to shoot himself but thrice changed his mind in time to dodge the bullets may live to congratulate himself on his fickleness.

Morocco is to pay money to Spain for the war which Spain recently fought in Morocco. Such is the embarrassing consequence of coming out only second best.

Maybe some time they will invent a padded aeroplane which will not rise more than ten feet from the ground. Then the careful man will become interested.

He has football in the fall and track athletics and baseball in the spring and now the college student has ice hockey all winter. And yet he is said to play too little.

In the year 1910 the American hen laid 17 dozen eggs for every man, woman and child in the country. We have reason for believing, however, that at least several dozen of those eggs are still in cold storage.

A report from Berlin has it that Emperor William has become interested in boxing. It is not likely, however, that he will at his time of life try for the middle-weight championship of Germany.

Men who began life as waiters now own one of Chicago's biggest hotels. But, of course, they were good waiters and never spilled soup down anybody's back nor forgot to renew the contents of the finger bowls.

The Episcopal bishop of Michigan says that bridge whist players are just as much gamblers as Wall street plungers or Monte Carlo patrons. They must play for more than a quarter of a cent a point out that way.

By drinking 20 bottles of beer a day for 30 days a St. Louis man won a suit of tailor-made clothes and $250 in money, but the chances are that a man with a thirst like that will pawn the clothes, and he certainly won't have the money long.

If that ship that got into New York the other day with a load of elephants and pythons and other creatures could have been stuffed into the stockings of several million children it would probably have settled for all time their demand for Noah's arks.

When rats carry plague and cats and dogs that kill or drive them away carry diphtheria and tuberculosis both of which are affirmed by the experts, it seems there is nothing left for threatened humanity but to get off the earth.

That technical secret attack upon the Atlantic coast by our returning battleship fleet will be valueless unless the Mole St. Nicholas liar and the New England faker who heard so much cannonading at sea in 1898 are allowed to get into the game.

True Patriotism

By REV. DAVID F. NYGREN
Pastor of Swedish Baptist Church
Hinsdale, Ill.

TEXT—As free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.—I Peter II, 16.

Just as at Christmas and at Easter, we find many persons who revive their allegiance to religion, so we find a strenuous attempt on the part of many to resuscitate their sleeping patriotism, which they express in a great measure by fire and smoke, the heritage of our warring ancestors.

I would first say that this ought and ought not be so, all depending on what we mean with patriotism. If patriotism be of the right kind, we would indorse it. If to be patriotic means to be loyal, not to a mere selfish cause, but to a general high and noble cause, then we indorse it. Our dear "U. S. A.," though large, is not large enough. We would have the whole world, nay, more, all the worlds; yea, the heavens, too. As true servants we would be interested in all the possessions of our Master.

Christianity does not encourge particular patriotism in opposition to general benignity. If it did, it would not be adapted for "the world." The duties of the subjects of one state would often be in opposition to those of the subject of another, and men might inflict evil or misery upon neighbor nations in conforming to the Christian law.

Christianity is designed to benefit not a community but "the world." The promotion of the interests of one community by injuring another—that is, "patriotism in opposition to general benignity"—Christianity utterly rejects as wrong.

Still would not a doctrine of general patriotism be rational? We would answer in the affirmative. And Christianity does not appear to encourage the doctrine of being a "citizen of the world," and of paying no more regard to our community than to every other. That opposes to the natural and virtuous feelings.

If it were put in practise, it would destroy confined benignity without effecting a counterbalancing amount of universal philanthropy. Who indeed shall support and cherish and protect a child if its parents do not?

That speculative philosophy is vain which would supplant these dictates by doctrines of general philanthropy. It cannot be applicable to human affairs until there is an alteration in the human constitution. Not only religion, therefore, but reason and nature, reject that philosophy which teaches that no man should prefer or aid another because he is his countryman, his neighbor or his child.

This is an idle system of philosophy which sets out with extinguishing those principles of human nature which the Creator has implanted for wise and good ends.

He that shall so far succeed in practising this philosophy as to look with indifference upon his parent, his wife and his son, will not often be found with much zeal to exercise kindness and benevolence to the world at large.

But to cherish and support our own children rather than others; to do good to our neighbors rather than to strangers; to benefit our own country rather than another nation, does not imply that by so doing we must injure other nations, or strangers, or their children, in order to do good to our own. Here is our point of discrimination which we will enlarge upon presently—a point which vulgar patriotism and vulgar philosophy have alike overlooked.

I dare not stop by saying that the right kind of patriotism would be to do good to my nation, and by doing this, not to do any menace to other nations. That would just simply be changing the Golden Rule to nothing.

By having this kind of an idea I would say: "Do nothing unto others." Then a person in order to be a general "patriotic" would need do "nothing."

No, our Christian way is better; it is the best. "Do unto others, etc." That makes a man take off his coat, turn up his sleeves and go to work! Not only so good that one does no harm; but so harmless that one must do good! Not only a negative in regard to not doing harm; but so strong a negative that one becomes a positive.

In the second place, I would say, not that it ought, but positively that it ought not be so, in regard to the way we show our patriotism. As we have mentioned this expresses itself in a great measure by fire and smoke, by noise and a general disturbance; this being the heritage of our warring ancestors.

The spirit of true patriotism does not find its expression in boosting of success in wars which were fought before we were born.

"Reason and experience both forbid us," said the father of our country, "to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle."

To be true patriots is to bring the gospel to every creature, beginning in Jerusalem, our own land, and then to the uttermost parts of the earth.

It is related that when Columbus, on his historic voyage, was approaching the shores of the western world, a flickering light was dimly seen through the darkness by one of his sailors. "It may be," said Columbus, "that the faithful wife of some fisherman is waving a torch to guide him on his homeward way."

Temperance

WHISKY NO GOOD FOR COLDS

Persons Partaking of Alcohol Are More Likely to Suffer From Exposure Than Others.

At this season of the year the advice is freely given, "take a little brandy or whisky to keep out the cold or drive away a chill." To all such we commend the teachings of Dr. Norman Kerr, than whom on this subject there is no higher authority.

When he was asked if brandy or whisky was good to ward off a threatening cold or drive away a chill?

"No," replied Doctor Kerr. "On the contrary, it is an entire fallacy to suppose that brandy or alcohol, in any shape or form, either warms the system or keeps off cold. As a matter of fact, alcohol, after a very temporary rise of temperature, extending over a few minutes only, lowers the vital temperature, in consequence of which the drinker is actualy robbed of heat instead of acquiring an additional supply. Persons partaking alcohol are more likely to suffer from cold or exposure to it than those who abstain from it. It is for this reason that in climates such as Lower Canada the soldiers on guard are instructed never to take alcohol when about to go on duty. I have known several deaths arising from disobedience to this rule."

"Brandy, then," said his friend, "is practically useless."

"Certainly," replied the doctor. "Brandy does not warm the system, as so many suppose; it merely warms the skin, and has a paralyzing action on the nerves which control the blood supply. This accounts for the flush which one sees on the face of a person who has just taken a glass of spirits. Brandy, in short, causes a relaxation of the blood vessels, and is responsible for the flush on the skin. Intelligent voyagers never now take alcohol with them, unless it be in minute quantities in their medicine chests. I have been in the arctic regions myself, and I know very well that brandy cannot only be dispensed with, but that one is decidedly better without it. An immense number of people, whenever they feel a chill, resort to alcohol, on the mistaken assumption that it warms the body; it is a pity they do not know that it has an absolutely contrary effect."

On being asked what he would recommend in cases of cold, he said:

"There is nothing better than simple hot water and getting under the blankets. The water can, of course, be flavored with lemon or orange, according to taste. A good drink of hot water has all the beneficial effects of brandy and none of its accompanying risks. If the feet can be put into hot water at the same time, so much the better. Spirits generally are worse than useless in cases of illness. An enormous number of people have taken rum under the impression that it keeps the influenza at a distance. As a fact, however, rum invites the influenza, from the depressing effects of alcohol on the nervous system. A nervous system depressed through the agency of alcohol is much more likely to take on any form of epidemic than one not similarly affected, inasmuch as the vitality is lowered."

Intoxicants on Board Steamers.

The consumption of intoxicants on board of the large ocean steamers plying between New York and European ports reaches a large aggregate. The New York Sun gives from the steward's department of the Cunard fleet for a year the following figures of the quantities of wines and liquor used: "Eight thousand and thirty quarts and 17,613 pints of champagne, 13,941 quarts and 7,310 pints of claret, 9,200 quarts of other wines, 489,344 pints of ale and porter, 174,921 quarts of mineral waters, and 34,000 quarts of spirituous liquors." Of this enormous liquor consumption on shipboard, it is undoubtedly true that by far the larger portion is by European voyagers, but it is also true that many Americans, a great many too many, drink a full share of these wines and liquors. A total abstinence mission is nowhere more needed than among those who, as well-to-do passengers, go down to the sea in ships.

Pest Without Drink.

The Medical Brief says: "Without doubt men who drink no spirits hold out better and do their work better than those who drink. Armies made of men of the former class march better, hold up longer under fatigue, enjoy better health, can bear exposure better, and consequently are free from drunkenness, suffer little from disease and crime. It lessens the power of resistance in exposure to great cold and becomes dangerous to use it. It may excite for a time, but is always followed by great depression. This has been clearly demonstrated in arctic explorations. In exposure to great heat the evidence is equally conclusive against its use. The array of testimony is indisputable."

The Reason.

God assumed that men will have common sense. Why is there not a command against intemperance in the Decalogue? Because common sense would teach man that a sin which breaks all the Ten Commandments need not be specified.—Progressive Age.

Artificial Flowers

FLOWERS, more particularly roses, made of ribbon and other fabrics have never been so popular as during the present season. The time it takes to make them has always kept the price of such flowers high. Many of them take so little material that they can be made of scraps of ribbon while others take from a third to a yard and a half to make. Big American Beauty roses made of wide satin ribbon doubled lengthwise and wound about a center of cotton are expensive but so durable that they are favored for many decorative purposes. They have been used, mounted on millinery stems with millinery foliage as favors and dinner souvenirs for a number of seasons, by the best hostesses. Table decorations of ribbon flowers are exquisite, not as substitutes for natural flowers, but used in novel ways and exaggerated sizes. A center piece of roses, or one immense rose makes a fascinating base for the light, and roses from which candles spring are little bits of perfection. Some of the newest ones are made of ribbon which is translucent and the heart of the rose (and this is a touch of real genius) is a tiny bulb glowing with light.

But it is the decoration of millinery that fabric flowers, fashioned in the milliner's own workrooms, have forged to the front in popular favor. People who want them should not complain of high prices. Their recourse is to make them at home—since the time of the milliner is money. Almost every woman owns stems and foliage which may be used with these ribbon flowers, for foliage and stems outlast the millinery flowers as a rule. Leaves are easily smoothed out with a small, slightly warm iron. She who is clever with paints can use them to advantage in freshening foliage.

The roses and flowers are made in such a variety of ways that it is best to select a certain kind and copy it. Those in which the petals are made of short lengths gathered at both ends and along one edge, take less material than those that are wound about a center. Buds are made of little squares of ribbon mounted in a millinery calyx, and take very little material.

Illustrations are given here of several varieties of roses and buds; a little experimenting will develop the flowers satisfactorily.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

IN VELVETEEN AND CASHMERE

Charming Dress That Is Made Effective by a Combination of Colors.

This charming dress is a combination of velveteen and very fine cashmere in a rich tone of amethyst.

The trained skirt is plain, and then over it is a long tunic of cashmere edged with a narrow border of skunk; the kimono bodice opens in front over a vest of velveteen with small lace yoke; the edges of bodice and oversleeves are trimmed with fur; the undersleeves are of lace. A handsome silk girdle is knotted round the waist, the long tasseled ends falling over front of skirt.

Materials required: 10 yards velveteen, 5 yards cashmere.

STYLES DISPLAY THE SHOES

Prevailing Short Skirts Make Footwear a Highly Important Consideration.

Footwear is made prominent this season by the styles in vogue, the short, scant walking skirt being well calculated to display the feet. The attention thus focussed has brought about some smart results. There is a marked preference for the high buttoned boot with its Cuban heel, which is shown in calfskin and suede and also in velvet, for the tendency of fashion to make much of rich fabrics has extended even to the world of footwear. Black, brown and navy-blue velvet are greatly favored to carry out the fashionable conceit of a one-tone street costume, and these harmonizing boots are really very fascinating with their long lines of tiny smoked-pearl buttons.

Slippers also partake of this general use of rich materials. Black satin is always correct for dressy wear, and this season black velvet is also greatly favored. The deforming rosette is being displaced by the widespread use of buckles for ornamenting slippers. For formal wear the scintillating rhinestones are of course the most effective. Very handsome evening slippers for full dress are sometimes fashioned of cloth of silver or gold, and, again, often of brocade. Of course, the hosiery always matches light-colored slippers, and many beautiful silk stockings are shown having elaborately wrought drawn-work decorations, or else daintily-embroidered floral designs.—The New Idea Woman's Magazine.

New Petticoats.

The prettiest thing I have seen recently in this line is a charming chiffon cloth skirt in two colors, a pink under a white, for instance, with knee deep plaited flounces plainly hemmed. Can you imagine anything softer or more utterly feminine than these? The colors are beautiful, too, all the pale shades in combination, besides such striking combinations as black over brilliant green or crimson for more practical wear.—Smart Set.

Robe Novelties.

Among the novelties in robes are those with the upper part of cashmere de soie.

The bottom of this material is finished with a pine-patterned border in exquisite colorings, while below the border in exquisite colorings, while below the border the frock is finished with a deep plain band of ratine in a much darker color than the cashmere.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl." —Mrs. Dema Bethune, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

The most democratic thing in the world

Gillette

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

PISO'S

THE BEST MEDICINE for COUGHS & COLDS

Painted While Asleep.

It is the craze of the pretty ladies of the Tiergartenstrasse's plutocrat society to be painted while asleep, writes a Berlin correspondent. The Austrian Countess Czivek started the bright idea. The well-known portraitist who had given her an appointment for the sitting has the vicious habit of making you wait. Tired of turning over French novels in an antechamber, the beautiful countess fell asleep. At last the procrastinating artist turned up.

Entranced by the unexpected vision of sleeping beauty he threw off a lightning sketch and as the countess awoke held it before her astonished eyes. The drawing was so dainty and seductive that the delighted sitter insisted upon a complete oil portrait painted while she simulated sleep. painted while she simulated sleep.

To Arrange Flowers.

Here are five golden rules which should be observed by those who often arrange flowers. Use plenty of foliage. Put your flowers in very lightly. Use artistic glasses. Do not put more than two or, at the most, three different kinds of flowers in one decoration. Arrange your colors to form a bold contrast or, better still, a soft harmony. The aim of the decorator should be to show off the flowers—not the vases that contain them; therefore the simpler ones are far preferable to even the most elaborate. Glasses for a dinner table should be either white, a delicate shade of green, or rose color, according to the flowers arranged in them.

EASY CHANGE
When Coffee Is Doing Harm.

A lady writes from the land of cotton of the results of a four years' use of the food beverage—hot Postum.

"Ever since I can remember we had used coffee three times a day. It had a more or less injurious effect upon us all, and I myself suffered almost death from indigestion and nervousness caused by it.

"I know it was that, because when I would leave it off for a few days I would feel better. But it was hard to give it up, even though I realized how harmful it was to me.

"At last I found a perfectly easy way to make the change. Four years ago I abandoned the coffee habit and began to drink Postum, and I also influenced the rest of the family to do the same. Even the children are allowed to drink it freely as they do water. And it has done us all great good.

"I no longer suffer from indigestion, and my nerves are in admirable tone since I began to use Postum. We never use the old coffee any more.

"We appreciatae Postum as a delightful and healthful beverage, which not only invigorates but supplies the best of nourishment as well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence places both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him, under suspicion of murder. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Allson West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance and hears of strange doings in the house next door.

CHAPTER XV.—Continued.

As we turned the corner I glanced back. Half a block behind us Johnson was moving our way slowly. When he saw me he stopped and proceeded with great deliberation to light a cigar. By hurrying, however, he caught the car that we took, and stood unobtrusively on the rear platform. He looked fagged, and absent-mindedly paid our fares, to McKnight's delight.

"We will give him a run for his money," he declared, as the car moved countryward. "Conductor, let us off at the muddiest lane you can find."

At one o'clock, after a six-mile ramble, we entered a small country hotel. We had seen nothing of Johnson for a half hour. At that time he was a quarter of a mile behind us, and losing rapidly. Before we had finished our luncheon he staggered into the inn. One of his boots was under his arm, and his whole appearance was deplorable. He was coated with mud, streaked with perspiration, and he limped as he walked. He chose a table not far from us and ordered Scotch. Beyond touching his hat he paid no attention to us.

"I'm just getting my second wind," McKnight declared. "How do you feel, Mr. Johnson? Six or eight miles more and we'll all enjoy our dinners." Johnson put down the glass he had raised to his lips without replying.

The fact was, however, that I was like Johnson. I was soft from my week's inaction, and I was pretty well done up. McKnight, who was a well-spring of vitality and high spirits, ordered a strange concoction, made of nearly everything in the bar, and sent it over to the detective, but Johnson refused it.

"I hate that kind of person," McKnight said pettishly. "Kind of a fellow that thinks you're going to poison his dog if you offer him a bone."

When we got to the car line, with Johnson a draggled and drooping tail to the kite, I was in better spirits. I had told McKnight the story of the three hours just after the wreck; I had not named the girl, of course; she had my promise of secrecy. But I told him everything else. It was a relief to have a fresh mind on it; I had puzzled so much over the incident at the farm-house, and the necklace in the gold bag, that I had lost perspective.

He had been interested, but inclined to be amused, until I came to the broken chain. Then he had whistled softly.

"But there are tons of fine gold chains made every year," he said. "Why in the world do you think that the—er—smeary piece came from that necklace?"

I had looked around. Johnson was far behind, scraping the mud off his feet with a piece of stick.

"I have the short end of the chain in the sealskin bag," I reminded him. "When I couldn't sleep this morning I thought I would settle it, one way or the other. It was hell to go along the way I had been doing. And—there's no doubt about it, Rich. It's the same chain."

We walked along in silence until we caught the car back to town.

"Well," he said finally, "you know the girl, of course, and I don't. But if you like her—and I think myself you're rather hard hit, old man—I wouldn't give a whoop about the chain in the gold purse. It's just one of the little coincidences that hang people now and then. And as for last night—if she's the kind of a girl you say she is, and you think she had anything to do with that, you—you're addled, that's all. You can depend on it, the lady of the empty house last week is the lady of last night. And yet your train acquaintance was in Altoona at that time."

Just before we got off the car, I reverted to the subject again. It was never far back in my mind.

"About the—young lady of the train, Rich," I said, with what I suppose was elaborate carelessness, "I don't want you to get a wrong impression. I am rather unlikely to see her again, but even if I do, I—I believe she is already 'bespoke,' or next thing to it."

He made no reply, but as I opened the door with my latch-key he stood looking up at me from the pavement with his quizzical smile.

"Love is like the measles," he orated. "The older you get it, the worse the attack."

"And There's Johnson Just Behind, the Coolest Proposition in Washington."

Johnson did not appear again that day. A small man in a raincoat took his place. The next morning I made my initial trip to the office, the raincoat still on hand. I had a short conference with Miller, the district attorney, at 11. Bronson was under surveillance, he said, and any attempt to sell the notes to him would probably result in their recovery. In the meantime, as I knew, the Commonwealth had continued the case, in hope of such contingency.

At noon I left the office and took a veterinarian to see Candida, the injured pony. By one o'clock my first day's duties were performed, and a long Sahara of hot afternoon stretched ahead. McKnight, always glad to escape from the grind, suggested a vaudeville, and in sheer ennui I consented. I could neither ride, drive nor golf, and my own company bored me to distraction.

"Coolest place in town these days," he declared. "Electric fans, breezy songs, airy costumes. And there's Johnson just behind—the coolest proposition in Washington."

He gravely bought three tickets and presented the detective with one. Then we went in. Having lived a normal, busy life, the theater in the afternoon is to me about on a par with ice cream for breakfast. Up on the stage a very stout woman in short pink skirts, with a smile that McKnight declared looked like a slash in a roll of butter, was singing nasally, with a laborious kick at the end of each verse. Johnson, two rows ahead, went to sleep. McKnight prodded me with his elbow.

"Look at the first box to the right," he said, in a stage whisper. "I want you to come over at the end of this act."

It was the first time I had seen her since I put her in the cab at Baltimore. Outwardly I presume I was calm, for no one turned to stare at me, but every atom of me cried out at the sight of her. She was leaning, bent forward, lips slightly parted, gazing raptly at the Japanese conjurer who had replaced what McKnight disrespectfully called the Columns of Hercules. Compared with the draggled lady of the farm house, she was radiant.

For that first moment there was nothing but joy at the sight of her. McKnight's touch on my arm brought me back to reality.

"Come over and meet them," he said. "That's the cousin Miss West is visiting, Mrs. Dallas."

But I would not go. After he went I sat there alone, painfully conscious that I was being pointed out and stared at from the box. The abominable Japanese gave way to yet more atrocious performing dogs.

"How many offers of marriage will the young lady in the box have?" The dog stopped sagely at "none," and then pulled out a card that said eight. Wild shouts of glee by the audience. "The fools," I muttered.

After a little I glanced over. Mrs. Dallas was talking to McKnight, but she was looking straight at me. She was flushed, but more calm than I, and she did not bow. I fumbled for my hat, but the next moment I saw that they were going, and I sat still. When McKnight came back he was triumphant.

"I've made an engagement for you," he said. "Mrs. Dallas asked me to bring you to dinner to-night, and I said I knew you would fall all over yourself to go. You are requested to bring along the broken arm, and any other souvenirs of the wreck that you may possess."

"I'll do nothing of the sort," I declared, struggling against my inclination. "I can't even tie my necktie, and I have to have my food cut for me."

"Oh, that's all right," he said easily. "I'll send Stogie over to fix you up, and Mrs. Dal knows all about the arm. I told her."

(Stogie is his Japanese factotum, so called because he is lean, a yellowish brown in color, and because he claims to have been shipped into this country in a box.)

The cinematograph was finishing the program. The house was dark and the music had stopped, as it does in the circus just before somebody risks his neck at so much a neck in the dip of death, or the hundred-foot dive. Then, with a sort of shock, I saw on the white curtain the announcement:

THE NEXT PICTURE IS THE DOOMED WASHINGTON FLIER, TAKEN A SHORT DISTANCE FROM THE SCENE OF THE WRECK ON THE FATAL MORNING OF SEPTEMBER TENTH. TWO MILES FARTHER ON IT MET WITH ALMOST COMPLETE ANNIHILATION.

I confess to a return of some of the sickening sensations of the wreck; people around me were leaning forward with tense faces. Then the letters were gone and I saw a long level stretch of track, even the broken stone between the ties standing out distinctly. Far off under a cloud of smoke a small object was rushing toward us and growing larger as it came.

Now it was on us, a mammoth in size, with huge drivers and a colossal tender. The engine leaped aside, as if just in time to save us from destruction, with a glimpse of a stooping fireman and a grimy engineer. The long train of sleepers followed. From a forward vestibule a porter in a white coat waved his hand. The rest of the cars seemed still wrapped in slumber. With mixed sensations I saw my own car, Ontario, fly past, and then I rose to my feet and gripped McKnight's shoulder.

On the lowest step of the last car, one foot hanging free, was a man. His black derby hat was pulled well down to keep it from blowing away, and his coat was flying open in the wind. He was swung well out from the car, his free hand gripping a small valise, every muscle tense for a jump.

"Good God, that's my man!" I said hoarsely, as the audience broke into applause. McKnight half rose; in his seat ahead Johnson stifled a yawn and turned to eye me.

I dropped into my chair limply, and tried to control my excitement. "The man on the last platform of the train," I said. "He was just about to leap; I'll swear that was my bag."

"Could you see his face?" McKnight asked in an undertone. "Would you know him again?"

"No. His hat was pulled down and his head was bent. I'm going back to find out where that picture was taken. They say two miles, but it may have been forty."

The audience, busy with its wraps, had not noticed. Mrs. Dallas and Allson West had gone. In front of us Johnson had dropped his hat and was stooping for it.

"This way," I motioned to McKnight, and we wheeled into the narrow passage behind us, back of the boxes. At the end there was a door leading into the wings, and as we went boldly through I turned the key.

The final set was being struck, and no one paid any attention to us. Luckily they were similarly indifferent to a banging at the door I had locked, a banging which, I judged, signified Johnson.

"I guess we've broken up his interference," McKnight chuckled.

Stage hands were hurrying in every direction; pieces of the side wall of the last drawing room menaced us; a switchboard behind us was singing like a tea-kettle. Everywhere we stepped we were in somebody's way. At last we were across, confronting a man in his shirt sleeves, who by dots and dashes of profanity seemed to be directing the chaos.

"Well?" he said, wheeling on us. "What can I do for you?"

"I would like to ask," I replied, "if you have any idea just where the last cinematograph picture was taken."

"Broken board—picnickers—lake?"

"No. The Washington Flier."

He glanced at my bandaged arm.

"The announcement says two miles," McKnight put in, "but we should like to know whether it is railroad miles, automobile miles, or policeman miles."

"I am sorry I can't tell you," he replied, more civilly. "We get those pictures by contract. We don't take them ourselves."

"Where are the company's offices?"

"New York." He stepped forward and grasped a super by the shoulder. "What in blazes are you doing with that gold chair in a kitchen set? Take that piece of pink plush there and throw it over a soap box, if you have not got a kitchen chair."

I had not realized the extent of the shock, but now I dropped into a chair and wiped my forehead. The unexpected glimpse of Allson West followed almost immediately by the revelation of the picture, had left me limp and unnerved. McKnight was looking at his watch.

"He says the moving picture people have an office down-town. We can make it if we go on now."

So he called a cab, and we started at a gallop. There was no sign of the detective. "Upon my word," Richey said, "I feel lonely without him."

The people at the down-town office of the cinematograph company were very obliging. The picture had been taken, they said, at M———, just two miles beyond the scene of the wreck. It was not much, but it was something to work on. I decided not to go home, but to send McKnight's Jap for my clothes, and to dress at the Incubator. I was determined, if possible, to make my next day's investigations without Johnson. In the meantime, even if it was for the last time, I would see Her that night. I gave Stogie a note for Mrs. Klopton, and with my dinner clothes there came back the gold bag wrapped in tissue paper.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Why Dickens Wrote "Christmas Carol."

I noticed a statement in one of the papers recently that Dickens wrote his "Christmas Carol" with the express object of reviving the popular interest in the Christmas season and its festivities. This is a pleasing fiction which had often been previously met with. The fact is that Dickens wrote the "Christmas Carol" in the autumn of 1843 because he was short of money and in great need of $5,000. The most candid chapter in Forster's "Life" is the one (in the second volume) which relates the tale of Dickens' disappointment and despair when he received the "Carol" accounts, for instead of the $5,000 he "had set his heart and soul upon," the sum due to him was only $1,150. Dickens wrote: "My year's bills, unpaid, are so terrific that all the energy and determination I can possibly exert will be required to clear me before I go abroad." Dickens ultimately cleared $2,630 by the "Christmas Carol" on a sale of 15,000 copies.—London Truth.

Good Joke on Voter.

An amusing story is told of what happened to a pluralist voter in the 1900 election in England. He was a keen politician and believing that the vote he possessed in a distant constituency would be of value to his candidate engaged a special train to take him there. On entering the polling booth he found the engineer of the train at his heels. He then discovered that the engineer happened to be on the voting register of the same town and was taking the opportunity of his accidental presence there to record his vote—which was given for the other side.

Not Wanted In Calf.

Perhaps the intending purchaser who recently wrote a London book seller: "Please forward me a copy of Tennyson, but please not one bound in calf, as I am a vegetarian," intended to employ the volume only as a fost for thought. — Christian Science Monthly.

BLAME PHYSICIANS FOR GROWTH OF DOPE HABIT

Druggists Say Prescriptions and Not Patent Medicines the Cause.

New York.—Blame for the prevalence and growth of the morphine habit was placed on the shoulders of physicians, who prescribed the drug, at a meeting of druggists here tonight to protest against the recently enacted city ordinance prohibiting the sale at retail of any preparation containing morphine or its salts except upon a doctor's prescription.

The ordinance is aimed primarily at paregoric and at stomach remedies, according to members of the board of health who were instrumental in obtaining its passage. Caswell Mayo, one of the druggists, said he had made a canvass by mail of several sanitariums and the replies convinced him 90 per cent. of the victims of drugs formed the habit as a result of using prescriptions given by physicians and only 8 per cent. from using proprietary medicines.

A LOST ART.

"It seems to me that our new maid ought at least to know how to serve water, if she was six years with her last employer."

"Well, it's not surprising, dear. I know her last employer."

ECZEMA GONE, BOILS CURED

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician, who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under his treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged, and as I had read the advertisements of Cuticura Remedies and testimonials of a great many people who had used them with wonderful success, I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." (Signed) Mrs. Mary W. Ramsey, 224 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 24, 1910.

The manly man makes altogether the best woman's man.

A Mother's Love

wisely directed, will cause her to give to her little ones only the most wholesome and beneficial remedies and only when actually needed, and the well-informed mother uses only the pleasant and gentle laxative remedy—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—when a laxative is required, as it is wholly free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Kow-Kure

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow cure. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without "Kow-Kure." It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "What to Do When Your Cows Are Sick" sent free. Ask your local dealer for "Kow-Kure," or send to the manufacturers.

Dairy Association Co., Lyndonville, Vt.

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief--Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver.

Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion—improve the complexion—brighten the eyes. Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S

ASTHMA

Remedy for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. Write for FREE SAMPLE. NORTHROP & LYMAN CO. Ltd., BUFFALO, N.Y.

KNOWN SINCE 1836 AS RELIABLE TRADE MARK

PLANTEN'S G & C OR BLACK CAPSULES

SUPERIOR REMEDY FOR MEN ETC ETC

AT DRUGGISTS. TRIAL BOX BY MAIL 50C

PLANTEN, 93 HENRY ST. BROOKLYN, N.Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

CANNING FACTORIES FOR SALE

For Farms, Large Communities or Towns. 15 sizes. Prices $85 to $850. Capacities as high as 9,000 cans tomatoes or 20,000 cans fruits in 10 hours. TERMS: A per cent of pack, or 2 or 3 yearly payments, or for cash. Write for Booklet. THOS. E. BROWN, Springfield, Mass.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult us by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of wrapping and mailing only, and we will send you a free copy of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in handsome French cloth binding.

Weak? Tired? Run-down?

These conditions come from overwork, a weak stomach, overtaxed nerves or feeble blood. When you feel "all in"—hardly able to drag about, no energy, no ambition, easily exhausted and can't sleep—take and note what a difference they make in your condition. The stomach is the first to feel the good effects. Food tastes good, the digestion is strengthened; bowels and bile work regularly, the blood is cleansed, and the nerves rested. The whole system responds to the tonic action of Beecham's Pills. Soon there is the buoyant feeling of returning health,

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Fresh Strength and New Life

Boxes 10c. and 25c., with full directions.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Lee Hayden, the past week, has been visiting his wife and parents at this place.

Garthright & Harvey do not give green stamps to their customers, but in place thereof sell them 20 pounds of granulated sugar for $1.

Miss Rachael Weems and mother, of Oakland, were Park visitors Monday.

Miss Grace Callis is a clerk in the post office at this place.

By an act of Congress Chauncy Devore, a nephew of Mrs. Winchell of this place, and seven other students of West Point, who were dismissed some time ago for hazing, have been reinstated.

Mr. L. H. Friend and wife, of Swanton, spent part of Monday at the Park.

The robins have returned. The wild geese are flying northward. Tuesday morning the birds sang sweetly. The past three days we have had spring weather. Wonder if the ground hog was fooled.

A class of nineteen probationers will be received into full membership, next Sunday, in the Methodist church.

Mrs. George Miller is seriously ill at her home, on K street.

W. H. Smith has purchased the Geo. Smith farm on the Broad Ford Run road. He will move to his new home in a few days.

Dr. Hinebaugh, on Monday, was called to the home of O. J. Schooley by the sudden illness of Mrs. Schooley.

Joseph Callis has purchased the Kilbourn farm, near Wesley chapel, from Daniel Orendorf. Joe thinks that he will make a farmer.

Miss Lula Friend is confined to her parent's home by a severe cold.

Wm. Landon has purchased the Dawson property on K street, and will move thereto next month. Consideration $812.

An enjoyable social was held at the home of E. E. Friend last Friday evening. Forty-two leaguers were in attendance.

Miss Orpha Slaughbaugh has a severe attack of the grippe. Her sister Miss Clara is much better.

Mrs. Emily Sanders is visiting friends in West Virginia.

Postmaster Rathbun is going to remodel the interior of the post office room.

The demand for houses at Loch Lynn cannot be met. Houses for rent would prove a good investment.

Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Ford, of Loch Lynn, on Tuesday gave a birthday party to their daughter Mildred. Her many playmates had a good time.

Truman Casteel is repairing a house, northwest of the Park, for Mrs. John Wilt and her family.

Superintendent Davis spent parts of Tuesday and Wednesday at the Park, returning to Baltimore yesterday on No. 14.

Several gentlemen, from different parts of Garrett county, happened to meet in one of our stores last Saturday. After exchanging neighborly greetings, one said, "Did you notice that two Oakland liquor sellers discontinued their subscriptions to the Republican because it published Dr. Williams' sermon and the resolutions passed by a public meeting in Loch Lynn." "Yes," replied another gentleman, "our district will furnish two subscriptions for every one the paper looses for publishing such good reading matter." "So will our district," said another. Tuesday afternoon I heard a gentleman from district No. 8 say, "Our neighborhood will provide two subscriptions for every one of that kind lost." I understand that Dr. Williams' sermon has been published in pamphlet form and is selling by the hundreds of copies, both in this State and West Virginia. It ought to be circulated by the thousands.

HAUSER.

Master Elwood Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martin, is very sick at this writing.

Mr. Floyd Artis visited home folks over Sunday and returned to Dobbin, W. Va., Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Roth spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, near Red House.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Roth visited their daughter, Mrs. Floyd Shaffer, Sunday.

Mr. Homer Gnegy is again able to be around and in the woods at work.

Master Henry Enlow and Ernest Gnegy visited Master Ervin and Brooks Roth Sunday.

Mrs. Rosella Sells, of Thomas, is reported better and is soon expected at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Gauer on a visit.

Rev. Wade is again quite seriously ill at his home in Eglon, W. Va. The entire neighborhood is anxiously hoping for a speedy recovery.

Mr. Jonas Yutzy brought a source of necessary annoyance into this neighborhood last Saturday. Jolly as Mr. Yutzy is known to be it is doubtful if he is entirely welcome. He brought two Democratic assessors and they are really doing a thorough job. They go afoot so as to be able to get to every place of abode. They explore as they go and take down the landmarks so as to be able to return when they are through with their work. They seem to be doing a fair assessment in this neighborhood.

We are very glad to acknowledge the receipt of a book of the History and Commercial Enterprise of New Germany. It is breezy, up to date and will, beyond a doubt, be a success, as a forerunner of a greater New Germany. A place for more Germans, more Irish and if they succeed in obtaining more Hauserians it is safe to say several more clothes lines and possibly more trunk lines. EYES AND EARS.

ASHER GLADE

The weather is cold at this time and the ground is covered with a couple inches of snow.

Mr. Owen Evans who was recently crushed by a log, is still improving.

A series of meetings is being held at this place by Rev. Geo. W. Vansickle, and at this time three or four have been reclaimed.

Mrs. Mary C. Umbel met with quite a misfortune one day last week. She stepped on a stone at the corner of her home when she slipped and fell and broke her arm and sprained her wrist. Surgical aid was rendered by Dr. Meyers, of Markleysburg, Pa.

Miss Binie Rush, our teacher, has been suffering with a severe cold this last week.

Miss Anna Meyers, teacher of the Rush school, attended church here a few evenings.

Eld. Jasper Barnhouse, of Uniontown, Pa., is now in our vicinity.

Mrs. Polly Barnhouse is sick at this time.

The others in the community who are sick are all improving, so far as we can learn. CARTER.

THE DEATH RECORD.

STINGLEY CLARK.

Stingley Clark, a former resident of Garrett county, dropped dead at his home in Bayard, W. Va., last Friday morning shortly after seven o'clock. The deceased was aged sixty years and leaves surviving him his widow, two daughters and one son.

GUY HOGUE.

Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock after an illness of seven weeks of pneumonia and complications, Guy, aged 17 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hogue. The deceased was an energetic young man and was a student in the Oakland grammar school, where he was a favorite with his classmates. His funeral will occur tomorrow morning from the Baptist church in Loch Lynn Heights with interment in the Oakland Cemetery.

ELIJAH BITTINGER.

Elijah Bittinger, an aged citizen of Bittinger, is dead, the result of a paralytic stroke. Mr. Bittinger was 74 years of age and was born where died. He served a term in the Union army, and was a prominent man in his community. He is survived by his wife; there are no children. The funeral took place Saturday morning, with services in the Lutheran church at Bittinger. Interment was made in adjoining cemetery.

SAMUEL D. HUMMEL.

Samuel D. Hummel died at his home near New Germany Sunday afternoon, Feb. 5, 1911, after an illness of less than three days, at the age of 69 years, 5 months and 8 days. The interment took place Wednesday following, at 2 p. m., in St. Paul Reformed church yard of New Germany, Rev. Moon officiating. Six of the sons of the deceased were pallbearers. Mr. Hummel is survived by eight sons, four daughters, a widow and three brothers, nearly all of whom were present Wednesday. Two children died in infancy. The deceased was a native of Pennsylvania; was born in the early forties and enlisted in the Federal army at the age of eighteen. He married a Miss Tate. Since 1865 his chief work has been saw milling.

MISS ELIZABETH ANN CHISHOLM.

Miss Elizabeth Ann Chisholm, aged 71 years and six months, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary J. Painter, in Oakland last Saturday after a brief illness. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late James and Marjory Chisholm and was born on the farm now owned by Mr. Benj. Shaffer in District No 8, where she grew to womanhood. For the past thirty years Miss Chisholm made her home in Oakland, residing with her sister, Mrs. Painter. She is survived by another sister, Mrs. D. M. Mason. She was also the sister of the late P. A. Chisholm, of Oakland, whose death occurred about one year ago. The funeral of the deceased lady took place from her late home Sunday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. E. Manges, of the Lutheran church, with interment in the Oakland cemetery.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows: Sunday school at 2:15 p. m. Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Epworth League Monday 7:30 p. m. Prayermeeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK'S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. Preaching at 10.30 a. m. Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Deer Park—Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Sunday school at 2.30 p. m. Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows: Loch Lynn—Preaching at 11 a. m. Ferndale—Preaching at 7.30 a. m. Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

New Fruit Store.

"Hello, Bessie," said Nora, "I have something new to tell you."

"What do you mean? Is there anything going on? I hav'nt been down town for a good while." "Why, yes; a new fruit store has been opened in the Ravenscroft building where you may get the finest fruit of all kinds; always fresh, for the least money. You may take the fruit home with you, examine it and if not satisfactory you may return it and get your money back."

Give us a call. JOSEPH & RATHA.

Just Arrived.

A lot of Fancy Gas Shades which were shipped last September and miscarried by the Railroad Company. The mannfacturers have instructed us to close them out at cost. Regular $1.00 and 75 ct. Fancy Shades of Crystal Stripe, Red, White and Flowered designs, while they last 75 and 50 cents.

S. LAWTON & SONS.

Co-Operative Buying.

Large co-operative buying will enable us to offer some very low prices on special lines. See our Saturday bargains. J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Ship Saved by Dancing.

The battleship Dominion was cautiously feeling her way toward Quebec on the night of Aug. 16, 1906, when the navigating officer, misled by a bush fire on land, took the wrong bearings and suddenly struck on a hidden reef with such force that the huge ship was shaken from stem to stern. Orders were at once given for the whole crew, officers as well as men, to assemble on deck with their kits in their hands, and all the 850 men were told to dance so as to keep the ship "alive" and so prevent the Dominion's keel from settling down on the ledge. At first the bluejackets whistled an accompaniment to keep the men in step till the captain ordered the ship's band to play lively selections. The men danced with a will, stamping their feet and swaying their bodies and doing all they could to rock the ship. In the end they succeeded, for finally, with the engines working full speed astern, the Dominion slowly gave way and backed again into deep water. The dancing had saved the ship.

The King of Hunky-Bunky.

This is a game which sounds very simple, but never fails to make fun. Select two persons and place them at opposite sides of the room, the farther apart the better. Give each a lighted candle and tell them they must not laugh or even smile. They are to advance toward each other very slowly, looking directly into each other's eyes. When they meet in the center of the room, with hands uplifted, in tones of great sorrow one says, "The king of Hunky-Bunky is defunct and dead!" The other responds: "Alas, alas! How died he?" The first person, with increased grief, says, "Just so, just so, just so." Then comes the response, "How sad, how sad, how sad!"

The couple rarely get beyond announcing that the king is dead before they are off in gales of laughter. A little prize may be awarded the couple who completely finish the message, something that may be divided, like a box of candy or a bunch of flowers. When one couple finishes or fails another pair may be chosen.

NOTICE OF FIRST MEETING OF CREDITORS.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland.
In the matter of Elias S. Braham, Bankrupt.
IN BANKRUPTCY

To the creditors of Elias S. Braham, of Bloomington in the county of Garrett, and District aforesaid, a Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 2nd day of February, A. D., 1911, the said party was adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at my Law Office, No. 6 Centre Street, in Cumberland, Maryland, on the 27th day of February, A. D., 1911, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact sub other business as may properly come before said meeting.

ALBERT A. DOUB,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

Feb 14, 1911.

NOTICE!
TO THE PUBLIC.

I have moved my
MEAT MARKET
INTO THE
Nally Building,
where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.
Beef, Veal, Lamb,
Mutton and Pork.
I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am
Yours respectfully,
H. McC. SMOUSE.
The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS J. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

GILMOR S. HAMILL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY.
Office in Ravenscroft Building, Second St.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing
Investigation of land titles and collection of claims. Loans negotiated.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
Exact Copy of Wrapper. THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Buying Over the Telephone
A Metropolitan Newspaper says that—
A few days ago a prominent business man called the agency of a well-known automobile, and purchased a 60 h. p. car by telephone. The transaction was closed so quickly that it almost took the agency manager's breath away.
If an automobile, why not your product?
Use the Bell
CHESAPEAKE & POTOMAC TELEPHONE COMPANY
D. P. DAVIS, Keyser, W. Va.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

BRISON WELCH,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 22nd day of December, 1910.

SUSAN E. WELCH,
Executrix.
43-3t-pd Mt. Lake Park Md.

GREATEST BARGAINS
EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE
CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.
400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.
Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 813-815 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 16, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, March 6th, 1911,

to transact all routine business.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

Clarence M. Rathbun and Alonzo D. Naylor vs. William D. King and wife.

No. 1096 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 10th day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Fred. A. Thayer, the attorney named in the mortgage filed in said cause, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 10th day of February, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of February, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $1000.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Marpiany, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

WILLIAM P. HANSEL,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 12th of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

DAVID P. HANSEL,
Executor,
Lonaconing, Md.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber Garrett county, Maryland, hath obtained from the Orphan's Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters of Administration on the personal estate of

MARGARET C. REINHARDT,

late of Garrett Co., Md., deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 12th day of July, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of January, 1911.

JAMES A. ENLOW,
Administrator,
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

Mortgagee's Sale
OF VALUABLE
Coal & Timber Lands
Lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from the Garrett Lumber company, Limited, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the 26th day of October, 1909, duly recorded in Garrett County, Md., wherein William U. Hensel, of Lancaster City was duly authorized to make sale of the real and personal property covered and conveyed by said mortgage, in case of default by said mortgagor in the payment of certain moneys secured by the same and such default having occurred, the undersigned William U. Hensel, as such attorney named in said mortgage to make this sale, will, on

SATURDAY,
the 25th day of February, 1911
AT 11.00 O'CLOCK A. M.,

in front of the Courthouse door in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, State of Maryland, sell at public auction, all the real and personal property, lots and parcels of ground, and timber and timber rights, covered and conveyed by said mortgage, the same lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in said Garrett County, Maryland, and the same being particularly described as follows, viz:

The land is located in the northern part of Garrett County, Md., and lies within districts No. 3 and No. 12. The county road running from Engle's Mills to Bittinger traverses this property in a southeasterly direction, the property being about a mile and a half from Engle's Mills and about two and a-half miles from Bittinger. The portion of the property, known as the second and third parts of "Rights of Man and Common Sense" being at the summit of Negro Mountain.

FIRST. All those four lots or parcels of ground, lying in Garrett County, Maryland, which are known as Military Lots Nos. 2478, 2479, 2480 and 2481, containing in the aggregate 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots of ground which were conveyed to Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others by deed dated March 30th, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Md., and being also part of the lands which were conveyed by J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by deed dated August 14, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 289, one of said Land Records.

SECOND. All those four lots and parcels of ground lying near Engles Mills, in Garrett County, Maryland, known as Military Lots Nos. 2454, 2455, 2456 and 2457, containing 200 acres of land more or less, they being the same lots and parcels of ground which were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others, by deed dated March 30, 1900, recorded in Liber 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being a part of the same lands which were conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

THIRD. All the timber and timber rights in and upon all those two parts of a tract of land called "The second and third parts of the Rights of Man" and "Common Sense," containing together 500 acres of land more or less, which said timber and timber rights were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by George T. Brew and wife, by deed dated March 28, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, Folio 285, one of said Land Records, excepting therefrom so much of the said timber and all that portion of said land which was conveyed away from the same by Louis Linnger prior and up to January 5, 1892, and being the same timber and timber rights described in and conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller and others to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated the 14th day of August, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

FOURTH. All the rest and residue of all that lot and parcel of land lying and being near Engle's Mills, in said county, and known as "Lot Number Two" of the four lots in which the tract known as "The Rights of Man," second and third parts, and "Common Sense" are now divided, contained within the following metes and bounds, to-wit:

Beginning for the same at the beginning of Lot No. 1, and running with the lines of the "Rights of Man," second part, East 64 perches, South 60 degrees East, 60 perches; North 70 degrees East, 25 perches; South 35 degrees East, 60 perches; then with the 61st line of "Park," East 64 perches to the beginning of the "Rights of Man" third part, and with the lines thereof, South 146 perches, East 111 perches to the end of the 25th line of Common Sense, and with the 26th line thereof corrected, South 6 degrees East, 150 perches to a line of the land conveyed by Robert Oliver to John Beachy, and with said line, East 26 perches to the given line of Common Sense, which is also the 3rd line of Lot No. 2350; then with the range of lots, North 676 perches to the end of the first line of Common Sense, and with the lines thereof East 20 perches, North 160 perches, West 80 perches, North 200 perches; then North 11 degrees East, 90 perches to the end of the 2nd line of Lot No. 2456; then with the lots, West 300 perches, South 320 perches to the beginning of the tract called "Ormes Trouble;" then reversing the given line thereof, South 15½ degrees West, 271 perches to the beginning, containing, in the residue of said tract land,

500 Acres, More or Less.

Being the same tract and parcel of land conveyed by George T. Brew to the said J. Frank Keller and others by deed dated May 24, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 280, of said Land Records, and being part of the lands conveyed by said J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by the said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid, excepting however, from said last tract and parcel of the timber and timber rights belonging to said land, which were conveyed by said George T. Brew and others to said Jacob G. Stauffer by the above recited deed of March 28, 1900, recorded as aforesaid.

FIFTH. All the plant and machinery, railways and tramways, buildings and improvements now on the lands hereinbefore mentioned and described together with all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, in and to all the same or which it may otherwise have under its charter.

All the above lots, tracts and parcels of lands and timber and timber rights, together with all the plant, machinery, railways, tramways, houses, buildings and improvements of every kind thereon, will be sold as a whole, as one property and plant.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by the mortgage—Cash, $1,000 of which shall be paid on the day of sale and the remainder which shall be paid as soon as said sale is ratified by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

WILLIAM U. HENSEL,
Attorney named in Mortgage.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of B. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of B. Worth Jennings, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS.
January 31st, 1911.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1911. NUMBER 51

GRANTSVILLE GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Was a Great Success And it Looks as Though the National Highway Would Regain its Glory.

From a correspondent at Grantsville, under date of February 17, the follow- account of the good roads meeting held there on last Thursday, has been received.

That the old time glory of the National Road might, to some extent be restored, the glory that belonged to it in the day when colonial burgers and wealthy land owners in their coach-and-tour, wended their way along it from their business in the west to their winter social diversements in Washington or Baltimore, the days when all that went to the great west or all that returned from there must pass over the Cumberland road, then if never again "The National road," this was the purpose of the conclave at Grantsville yesterday.

The one who surveyed and decided the route of the old highway was never a believer in the old saying, "the longest way 'round is the shortest way home." He was ordered to find a short a short route to the west, and the present location of the highway is evidence that he found and founded such. Up the Eckhart hill and down the smaller one just west of Frostburg, up Big Savage and down again before going up and down its little sister and repeating the same on Nigger mountain, the road follows the steepest possible grade.

"A direct road to the west," he was ordered, and he gave it, he would have run his road up a mountain at an angle of 45 degrees rather than have swerved from his western course. To the present day the road runs, with never a varience to get the benefit of grade up and down the sides of the Garrett ranges.

The people of the times of a hundred years ago were proud and justly so, of of their road; it was bestudded, it is true with tree stumps but these were far softer and more agreeable than the present road bed full of boulders. A man once made himself famous when he wrote a pathetic song entitled "If it's Good Enough for Washington, It's Good Enough for Me," the people of Garrett county agreed with this sentiment for about a hundred years, and they have a National highway about a hundred years behind the times.

Yesterday, over the stones and boulders of Big Savage, the ruts and miniature canyons of near Johnson's place and the never ending series of mud holes and foot deep ruts and half foot high stones, a bolk party of citizens of Frostburg braved the dangers that beset with every turn of the auto wheel, and journeyed to Grantsville to hold conclave with their Garrett county neighbors and cuss and discuss the neighborhood roads and everyone who had aught to do with their condition.

The meeting was called to order, in the Broadwater building, by Mayor Henry Bonig. Mr. Chris Otto was elected as chairman and J. D. Miller as secretary. A long discussion was then indulged in by the citizens of the two counties as to the condition of the pike and its possible means of betterment. There was no argument against it being in a bad condition. The talk at times was warm and to the point and the subject was handled without gloves, which, after the eighteen miles of experience that the talkers had undergone was entirely pardonable.

On the invitation of the chairman Mr. Thomas Johnson in a few words stated the object of the meeting.

Mr. Johnson's address was followed by remarks by Olin R. Rice, secretary of the Frostburg board of trade, Dr. Timothy Griffith, member of the board of road directors of Allegany county, George Stern and W. E. Hitchins, of Frostburg. These gentlemen all suggested methods, ways and means by which they thought that desires of the citizens of Garrett county could be brought to an early fruition.

Mr. Otho Fike, commissioner from Garrett county, stated that present deplorable conditions was due to the fact that the commissioners of Garrett county were under the impression that the state was going to rebuild the road a distance of five miles west from the Allegany county line. For this reason for the past two years no appropriation in the annual levy hnd been made in Garrett county. The people of Garrett county blame the commissioners for conditions, not having taken any interest in the roads in this end of the county. Mr. Fike stated that he was willing to act in any capacity and do all he could to secure a better highway for the people of his county.

Mr. H. V. Hesse, superintendent of the Consolidation Coal Co., followed Mr. Fike and in a short address full of profitable suggestions impressed the idea that an immediately organized effort on the part of Garrett county citizens was necessary.

At the conclusion of the addresses and after consideaable discussion a committee of three consisting of H C. Bonig, Thomas Johnson and C. D. Hershberger was appointed to raise funds and co-operate with a committee of two from the Frostburg board of trade to stir up a state wide agitation for the rebuilding of the National pike. Mr. D. Lindley Sloan, of Cumberland, was selected as the counsel and representative for the two committees.

It was a business men's meeting and it was one in which business was the sole thought. But it was the necessary kind of business; the business that will grant the farmers of eastern Garrett county a ready market for their produce, that will place Grantsville on the map, that will be of unbound benefit to every resident of Frostburg and which will insure possibility of taking a pleasant drive over historic old highway without danger to life or limb or without violating the cruelty to animal laws with regards to the horse.

Tourists say it is the worst road east of the Rockies but it is doubtful if the pony path to Cripple Creek has anything on a quarter mile stretch on the eastern slope of Big Savage. And as long as the roads are as they are the tourists are going to patronize the hotels at Bedford Springs and Altoona.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Garthright & Harvey

Masterpiece Flour

Is rich in gluten, which absorbs water readily and swells to several times its dry bulk. As dough it becomes elastic and tenacious, capable of holding air that is kneaded into it, or the gases produced by yeast, thereby becoming porus or light, a quality in bread for which every housewife and baker strives. A barrel of hard-wheat flour makes about 325 of the ordinary one-pound loaves sold by the bakers. A barrel of the soft-wheat flour makes from 270 to 290 loaves of the same weight. The solt-wheat flour contains a higher per cent of moisture and will not absorb as much as flour richer in gluten.

Masterpiece Flour is made from the hard-wheat, and is without an equal for bread.

Every sack guaranteed.

Garthright & Harvey

CHARGES AGAINST COUNTY SCHOOL SUP'T BROWNING

What The Baltimore American Said Thursday Concerning the Case.

From the morning edition of The Baltimore American of last Thursday the following account of the meeting of the State Board of Education, held in Baltimore on Wednesday when the case of Superintendent Browning was deferred and moved to Oakland where the matter will be tried next Thursday, is taken:

As the result of a vigorous and determined protest on the part of Richard Semmes, attorney for the people of Garrett county, against the hearing of the charges against Superintendent of Schools Edward A. Browning yesterday, the State Board of Education, in session in the Union Trust Building, postponed the date of hearing until March 2, at which time the trial will be held in open court before the board at Oakland, county seat of Garrett county.

Mr. Semmes' protest was based upon the contention that he had had no official notification of the trial being set for yesterday, and was not prepared to present his witnesses. He further declared that, as the charges were sent before the board for the first time Wednesday morning, there could not possibly have been time for them to properly consider them and decide whether they were of a sufficiently grave character to warrant the calling of Mr. Browning before the body.

The charges as specifically set forth by Mr. Semmes are of a graver nature than was at first supposed. Besides the general allegations of incompetence and dereliction of duty, the complaint contains charges that Mr. Browning had used his office to give contracts for school buildings to his brother in spite of the fact that other contractors entered lower bids. They further allege that he was unjust and discriminated against teachers with whom he had personal differences in the matters of salaries, promoting his friends without reference to ability. Other charges are that he failed to visit the schools of his county twice a year as prescribed by law; that he failed to look into the ages of a number of teachers whom he had appointed, with the result that several were under age, and that he was unjust and discriminating in the award of state scholarships.

Mr. Semmes declared, following the decision of the state board yesterday, that he would prove every one of the charges in open court at Oakland in March.

Mr. Browning and his attorney, William R. Offutt, were not pleased with the decision of the board. They contended that in view of the fact that they had received notification to appear for the hearing and had brought two witnesses, School Commissioners C. A. Deffinbaugh and C. E. Ellithorpe, the trial should be held as scheduled.

Mr. Browning declared that the whole affair was the outgrowth of political differences which were agitating the county.

"There is not a good reputable man in the whole list of signers of the petition for an investigation of my office," he said. "I will prove that to every man, woman and child in the county when my trial is held."

It is expected that the Governor will attend the hearing at Oakland and administer the oath to witnessess.

Prices Advancing.

Wire nails, barbed wire and field fencing have all advanced $1.00 per ton, and there is likely to be another advaned at any time, but we are still taking orders on our contract, shipment to be made March 1st at special low prices. Wire nails at $2.00 per keg base, barbed wire at $2.50 per hundred, 30 rod bundles, heavy barbed wire, at $1.75, 80 rod bundles, light wire, at $1.65. Jumbo field fencing, all No. 9 wire, made of the best open-hearth steel, at 3c per pound, thus paying for actual values, not rod price. Light weight fence is no longer recommended by the manufacturer or dealer. The wise farmer will buy only heavy all No. 9 fencing, samples of which are now on exhibition at our store at special prices to March 1st.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

A Carload of Automobiles.

Messrs. A. D. Naylor & Co., of Oakland, agents for the Ford automobile, have ordered four cars which will be shipped from the factory in a few days. The local firm has already disposed of three of the cars to Oakland people, the purchasers being Dr. Henry W. McComas, James P. Treacy and D. M. Dixon.

Weather Extremely Bad.

The weather since Sunday has been as blizzardly as it is possible for it to get, barring extremely low temperature. Snow has been falling and blowing every day since Sunday and the result is numerous roads are almost impassable owing to the deep drifts with which they are encumbered. The thermometer registered on Tuesday morning eight degrees above zero and has been hovering around that mark almost continuously since. A continuation of similar conditions for a few days longer will be sufficient to form ice several inches in thickness. Little if any ice has been harvested and stored in Oakland ice houses, and at the Park an insufficient quantity to meet the usual demands has been stored in the ice house belonging to the Association and from which the residents there are supplied during the summer months.

Money to loan in amounts to suit borrower. RENNINGER & OFFUTT, attorneys.

MARYLAND DAY IN THE SCHOOLS

As March 25 Falls on Saturday, the Event Will be Celebrated Friday, March 24.

Dr. M. Bates Stephens, superintendent, and Mr. B. K. Purdum, assistant superintendent of public instruction, are preparing to make assignments of speakers for the annual Maryland Day in the public schools. The date set aside for this event, which is devoted to the exploiting of Maryland history by leading citizens familiar with the subject and by pupils, is March 25, but as this date this year falls on Saturday, Friday, March 24, has been selected.

It is expected that Dr. Stephens and Mr. Purdum will make the assignments this week or next in order that the speakers selected may have ample time in which to prepare their addresses.

The subject selected for this year is "Marylanders of National Fame." In announcing the topic for 1911 the Teachers' Year Book says:

"During the history of our colony and state, she has produced many men of those achievements we should be proud. Many of Maryland's prominent sons have devoted their labor, time and talents to the internal affairs of their beloved state, and their fame has consequently not extended beyond its borders. On the other hand, Maryland has produced her full quota of honored sons whose labors in connection with the affairs of the nation have been of such a conspicuous character that they have won for themselves national fame.

"It is fitting that the career of these men should be brought to the attention of every boy and girl of Maryland, and thus increase their pride in our native state.

"Among the more prominent Marylanders of national reputation, a study of whose lives and deeds is suggested, are:

Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore, who was born in England in 1606, never set foot upon the soil of Maryland, though he wisely, tactfully and graciously directed the affairs of the colony for 43 years, during most of the period known as the "Golden Age of the Colony." During this period the colony grew from a settlement of 300, sheltered in shacks and wigwams on the St. Mary's River, to a community of 30,000 people settled in 19 counties, each having an organized civil and military government.

Charles Carroll of Carrollton, who won immortal fame as a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Hon. John Eager Howard, one of the heroes of the Revolution.

Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star-spangled Banner," which is now the national anthem.

Chief Justice Roger Brook Taney, of the United States Supreme Court.

Samuel Chase, also a signer of the Declaration of Independence, who was a mainstay of the Revolution in Maryland.

He was also an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

William Pinkney, one of the most distinguished jurists of his day, an attorney general of the United States, a member of Congress, a United States senator and a minister of Russia.

William Wirt, also an attorney general of the United States, who prosecuted Aaron Burr for treason and who accepted the nomination of the Anti-Masonic party for president of the United States.

Hon. William Smallwood, also a Revolutionary hero.

Edgar Allen Poe, the poet and author.

Henry Winter Davis, the distinguished statesman of the period of the war between the states.

James R. Randall, author of "Maryland, My Maryland."

John Wilkes Booth, the world-famous actor.

John Pendleton Kennedy, statesman, secretary of the Navy under President Fillmore, and man of letters.

John Hanson, president of the Continental Congress and as such was the first president of the United States.

Arthur Pue Gorman, United States senator and statesman.

Thomas Swann, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, mayor of Baltimore, governor of Maryland and member of Congress.

In Memoriam.

Charles Guy Hogue, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hogue, passed away peace Wednesday, Feb. 15, 1911. He lived upon earth 17 years, 7 months and 7 days.

"Art gone: the abyss of heaven
Hath swallowed up thy form; yet on my heart,
Deep graven has sunk the lesson thou hast given,
And shall not soon depart."

He had given his heart into the keeping of his Saviour several years ago. Even so young his piety and faithfulness to his Lord were remarkable. He lived a life which was clear and pure, such should be an example for all by who knew him. He was dutiful and obedient to his parents and would give them a moment's anxiety or pain though any act of his. He endured a long and painful illness which he bore and tested his life with christian fortitude and patience. He was more concerned for the comfort and welfare of those who watched by his bedside than he was for his own. When he knew he could see no evidence of fear was apparent. He bade those about him farewell and resigned himself with patience to the will of his Heavenly Father.

The funeral was preached in the Baptist church at Loch Lynn, of which he was a member, by his pastor. His body was laid to rest in the Oakland cemetery. Six of his schoolmates acted as pallbearers. There are many hearts bereaved by his departure, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope, but look forward with joy to the time when they shall see his face. Then it will not be marked with suffering, but will be lit up with joy and peace. C. W. H.

Osbach portico or outdoorlamp, one inverted mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. Shirer & Co. 6t

HEARING PROMISES TO BE LARGELY ATTENDED

Interest in School Superintendent Muddle General Throughout County.

What promises to be a highly interesting event to the great majority of the people of Garrett county, especially those who desire to see a change made in the management and administration of the affairs of the public school system of the county, is scheduled to take place at the court room in Oakland next Thursday morning when the State Board of Education will meet to hear testimony in the case of the petitioners against E. A. Browning, County Superintendent of the public schools.

As stated in these columns last week the State Board of Education at its meeting in Baltimore on Wednesday last, upon the representations made by Mr. R. T. Semmes, who is attorney for the petitioners, that it would be impossible to take witnesses to Baltimore to attend the hearing, set next Thursday as the day and Oakland as the place to assemble and take testimony of the witnesses and to hear the arguments of counsel on both sides. Mr. W. R. Offutt, of Oakland, represents the school superintendent.

For the petitioners a large number of witnesses will be summoned, the number being variously estimated at between forty and one hundred. A list containing the names of forty-four witnesses on the part of the petitioners has already been forwarded to the State Board who will issue the proper papers and have the parties summoned. In addition to these forty-four witnesses a large number of people from every section of the county have signified their willingness to appear and testify without the formality of being served with a legal paper, hence it is safe to assume that the town will be crowded next Thursday, for many partisans of both sides will be present who will not appear as witnesses.

The members of the State Board will probably arrive in Oakland on train No. 3 Thursday morning. The body is composed of seven members, including the Governor, who is the presiding member, and Dr. M. Bates Stephens, the Secretary.

The probabilities are that the Board will be in session all day Thursday, Friday and possibly Saturday, as it will be impossible to examine the great number of witnesses in the matter under three days.

Bankers to Meet at Deer Park.

At a meeting last week of the executive committee of the Maryland Bankers' Association, in the National Mechanics' Bank, Baltimore, it was decided to hold the next annual convention of the organization at Deer Park Hotel, if satisfactory arrangements can be perfected.

The time will be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 20, 21 and 22.

Among the most important questions to be discussed will be those of bank stock taxation and the payment of interest on deposits. The former will likely result in reaching the legislature at the next session, and most of the bankers feel that some agreement can be made in regard to the interest methods. About 200 bankers will attend the convention.

PITTSBURG PEOPLE WANT THE OAKLAND

An Offer Made to Lease The Hotel the Coming Season.

Local people have succeeded after some trouble in getting some Pittsburg hotel men interested in the lease of the Oakland Hotel for the coming season and a proposition to that end has been submitted to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, owners of the property.

The matter is being held under advisement by the officials of the railway company and a decision may be reached at an early day.

In a letter received Tuesday by an Oakland gentlemen from the Pittsburg hotel people they outline a plan whereby they expect to fill the house to overflowing with people from Pittsburg and vicinity by advertising a low rate ten-day excursion at a fixed sum which will include board and rooms at the Oakland which in itself should be a great inducementfor people to come to the best spot on earth to spend a week or several months.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

Bartlett Conley and Viola Francis Morehead, both of Bloomington.

Carl Anderson Metheny, of Terra Alta, W. Va., and Dora Bell Beatty, of Amblesburg, W. Va.

Alvira Clarance Schriver and Bessie Elizabeth Boyles, both of Garrett county.

William Arthur Lee and Annie Key kendall, both of Gorman, Garrett county.

Tarlton Humbertson and Alverta Sophia Frazee, both of Friendsville.

Upton William Stalnaker and Susie Winters Conrad, both of Monterville, W. Va.

Warren Eddington Shaffer, of Newburg, W. Va., and Annettie E. Koch, of Howesville, W. Va.

Italian Bled to Death on Train.

Vincenzo Sandello, 23 years old, an Italian miner, who was crushed under a mine car while working in the mines at Dodson, died on the Western Maryland train Saturday while being taken to Cumberland for hospital treatment. His left leg was almost severed at the hip and he bled to death. The body was removed to the Stein undertaking room and the funeral took place Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from St. Patrick's Catholic church with interment in St. Patrick's cemetery Cumberland.

Will Attack Constitutionality of Act.

Messrs. Bernard Carter & Sons, the Baltimore attorneys, have filed with the county commissioners of Allegany county a notice of appeal from the assessment made upon the C. & P. Telephone Company of the act providing for the assessment.

Married.

HUMBERTSON—FRAZEE—At the parsonage of St. Paul's M. E. church on Monday, February 20, by Rev. G. R. Williamson, Mr. Tarlton Humbertson and Miss Alverta Sophia Frazee, both of Friendsville, this county.

Call for Your Letters.

Lucinda M. Beeghley, Florence King, May Durst, J. G. Johnson, Recchia Leone, John H. Bell.

DIXON & KELSO

The following is Dixon & Kelso's spring prices for

American Fence

BEST IN THE MARKET

7 Wire 26 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
6 Wire 35 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
8 Wire 32 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	21c
9 Wire 39 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
8 Wire 45 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
10 Wire 47 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	25c
9 Wire 49 inch Hog Fence. per rod,	25c
80-rod roll light weight Barb,	$1.65
80-rod roll, 4-point, Hog or Cattle Barb,	2.40
100 lbs standard Barb, Hog or Cattle,	2.65

We have three cars of the above in stock and can furnish any of this fence in large quantities.

Will make special price on big lots.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

"I Have Not Forgotten—Anything."

The MAN in LOWER TEN

by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR OF THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. C. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS - MERRILL COMPANY

12

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl, whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Shadow of a Girl.

Certain things about the dinner at the Dallas house will always be obscure to me. Dallas was something in the fish commission, and I remember his reeling off fish eggs in billions while we ate our caviar. He had some particular stunt he had been urging the government to for years—something about forbidding the establishment of mills and factories on riverbanks—it seems they kill the fish, either the smoke, or the noise, or something they pour into the water.

Mrs. Dallas was there, I think. Of course, I suppose she must have been; and there was a woman in yellow; I took her in to dinner, and I remember she loosened my clams for me so I could get them. But the only real person at the table was a girl across in white, a sublimated young woman who was as brilliant as I was stupid, who never by any chance looked directly at me, and who appeared and disappeared across the candles and orchids in a sort of halo of radiance.

When the dinner had progressed from salmon to roast, and the conversation had done the same thing—from fish to scandal—the yellow gown turned to me.

"We have been awfully good, haven't we, Mr. Blakeley?" she asked. "Although I am crazy to hear, I have not said 'wreck' once. I'm sure you must feel like the survivor of Waterloo, or something of the sort."

"If you want me to tell you about the wreck," I said, glancing across the table, "I'm sorry to be disappointing, but I don't remember anything."

"You are fortunate to be able to forget it." It was the first word Miss West had spoken directly to me, and it went to my head.

"There are some things I have not forgotten," I said, over the candles. "I recall coming to myself some time after, and that a girl, a beautiful girl—"

"Ah!" said the lady in yellow, leaning forward breathlessly. Miss West was staring at me coldly, but, once started, I had to stumble on.

"That a girl was trying to rouse me, and that she told me I had been on fire twice already." A shudder went around the table.

"But surely that isn't the end of the story," Mrs. Dallas put in aggrievedly. "Why, that's the most tantalizing thing I ever heard."

"I'm afraid that's all," I said. "She went her way and I went mine. If she recalls me at all, she probably thinks of me as a weak-kneed individual who faints like a woman when everything is over."

"What did I tell you?" Mrs. Dallas asserted triumphantly. "He fainted, did you hear? when everything was over! He hasn't begun to tell it."

I would have given a lot by that time if I had not mentioned the girl. But McKnight took it up there and carried it on.

"Blakeley is a regular geyser," he said. "He never spouts until he reaches the boiling point. And by that same token, although he hasn't said much about the Lady of the Wreck, I think he is crazy about her. In fact, I am sure of it. He thinks he has locked his secret in the caves of his soul, but I call you to witness that he has it nailed to his face. Look at him!"

I squirmed miserably and tried to avoid the startled eyes of the girl across the table. I wanted to choke McKnight and murder the rest of the party.

"It isn't fair," I said as coolly as I could. "I have my fingers crossed; you are five against one."

"And to think that there was a murder on that very train," broke in the lady in yellow. "It was a perfect crescendo of horrors, wasn't it? And what became of the murdered man, Mr. Blakeley?"

McKnight had the sense to jump into the conversation and save my reply.

"They say good Pittsburgers go to Atlantic City when they die," he said. "So—we are reasonably certain the gentleman did not go to the seashore."

The meal was over at last, and once in the drawing room it was clear we hung heavy on the hostess' hands. "It is so hard to get people for bridge in September," she wailed. "There is absolutely nobody in town. Six is a dreadful number."

"It's a good poker number," her husband suggested.

The matter settled itself, however. I was hopeless, save as a dummy; Miss West said it was too hot for cards, and went out on a balcony that overlooked the Mall. With obvious relief Mrs. Dallas had the card table brought, and—I was face to face with the minute I had dreaded and hoped for for a week.

Now it had come, it was more difficult than I had anticipated. I do not know if there was a moon, but there was the urban substitute for it—the arc light. It threw the shadow of the balcony railing in long black bars against her white gown, and as it swung sometimes the face was in the light. I drew a chair close so that I could watch her.

"Do you know," I said, when she made no effort at speech, "that you are a much more formidable person to-night, in that gown, than you were the last time I saw you?"

The light swung on her face; she was smiling faintly.

"The hat with the green ribbons!" she said. "I must take it back; I had almost forgotten."

"I have not forgotten—anything." I pulled myself up short. This was hardly loyalty to Richey. His voice came through the window just then, and perhaps I was wrong, but I thought she raised her head to listen.

"Look at this hand," he was saying. "Regular pianola; you could play it with your feet."

"He's a dear, isn't he?" Alison said unexpectedly. "No matter how depressed and downhearted I am, I always cheer up when I see Richey."

"He's more than that," I returned warmly. "He is the most honorable fellow I know. If he wasn't so much that way, he would have a career before him. He wanted to put on the doors of our offices, Blakeley and McKnight, P. B. H., which is Poor But Honest."

From my comparative poverty to the wealth of the girl beside me was a single mental leap. From that wealth to the grandfather who was responsible for it was another.

"I wonder if you know that I had been to Pittsburg to see your grandfather when I met you?" I said.

"You!" She was surprised.

"Yes. And you remember the alligator bag that I told you was exchanged for the one you cut off my arm?" She nodded expectantly. "Well, in that valise were the forged Andy Bronson notes, and Mr. Gilmore's deposition that they were forged."

She was on her feet in an instant. "In that bag!" she cried. "Oh, why didn't you tell me that before? Oh, it's so ridiculous, so—so hopeless. Why, I could—"

She stopped suddenly and sat down again. "I do not know that I am sorry, after all," she said after a pause. "Mr. Bronson was a friend of my father's. I—I suppose it was a bad thing for you, losing the papers?"

"Well, it was not a good thing," I conceded. "While we are on the subject of losing things, do you remember—do you know that I still have your gold purse?"

She did not reply at once. The shadow of a column was over her face, but I guessed that she was staring at me.

"You have it!" She almost whispered.

"I picked it up in the street car," I said, with a cheerfulness I did not feel. "It looks like a very opulent little purse."

Why didn't she speak about the necklace? For just a careless word to make me sane again!

"You!" she repeated, horror-stricken. And then I produced the purse and held it out on my palm.

"I should have sent it to you before, I suppose, but, as you know, I have been laid up since the wreck."

We both saw McKnight at the same moment. He had pulled the curtains aside and was standing looking out at us. The tableau of give and take was unmistakable; the gold purse, her outstretched hand, my own attitude. It was over in a second; then he came out and lounged on the balcony railing.

"They're mad at me in there," he said airily, "so I came out. I suppose the reason they call it bridge is because so many people get cross over it."

The heat broke up the card group soon after, and they all came out for the night breeze. I had no more words alone with Alison.

I went back to the Incubator for the night. We said almost nothing on the way home; there was a constraint between us for the first time that I could remember. It was too early for bed, and so we smoked in the living room and tried to talk of trivial things. After a time even those failed, and we sat silent. It was McKnight who finally broached the subject.

"And so she wasn't at Seal Harbor at all."

"No."

"Do you know where she was, Lolie?"

"Somewhere near Cresson."

"And that was the purse—her purse with the broken necklace in it?"

"Yes, it was. You understand, don't you, Rich, that, having given her my word, I couldn't tell you?"

"I understand a lot of things," he said, without bitterness.

We sat for some time and smoked. Then Richey got up and stretched himself. "I'm off to bed, old man," he said. "Need any help with that gamearm of yours?"

"No, thanks," I returned.

I heard him go into his room and lock the door. It was a bad hour for me. The first shadow between us and the shadow of a girl at that.

CHAPTER XVII.

At the Farm House Again.

McKnight is always a sympathizwith the early worm. It was la when he appeared. Perhaps, likeself, he had not slept well. Bu was apparently cheerful enough, he made a better breakfast than It was one o'clock before we g Baltimore. After a half hour's we took a local for M———, th tion near which the cinemato picture had been taken.

We passed the scene of the w McKnight with curiosity, I wit sickening sense of horror. Bac the fields was the little farm h where Alison West and I had int ed getting coffee, and winding a from the track, maple trees sha it on each side, was the lane w we had stopped to rest, and whe had—it seemed presumption be belief now—where I had tried to fort her by patting her hand.

We got out at M———, a sl place with two or three houses an general store. The station was a roomed affair, with a railed-off pl at the end, where a scale, a telegr instrument and a chair constituted entire furnishing.

The station agent was a young with a shrewd face. He stopped hmering a piece of wood over a hol the floor to ask where we wante

"We're not going," said McKnight, "we're coming. Have a cigar?"

The agent took it with an inquiring glance, first at it and then at us.

"We want to ask you a few questions," began McKnight, perching himself on the railing and kicking the chair forward for me. "Or, rather, this gentleman does."

"Wait a minute," said the agent, glancing through the window. "There is a hen in that crate choking herself to death."

He was back in a minute, and took up his position near a sawdust-filled box that did duty as a cuspidor.

"Now fire away," he said.

"In the first place," I began, "do you remember the day the Washington Flier was wrecked below here?"

"Do I!" he said. "Did Jonah remember the whale?"

"Were you on the platform here when the first section passed?"

"I was."

"Do you recall seeing a man hanging to the platform of the last car?"

"There was no one hanging there when she passed here," he said with conviction. "I watched her out of sight."

"Did you see anything that morning of a man about my size, carrying a small grip, and wearing dark clothes and a derby hat?" I asked eagerly.

McKnight was trying to look unconcerned, but I was frankly anxious. It was clear that the man had jumped somewhere in the mile of track just beyond.

"Well, yes, I did." The agent cleared his throat. "When the smash came the operator at MX sent word along the wire, both ways. I got it here, and I was pretty near crazy, though I knew it wasn't any fault of mine.

"I was standing on the track looking down, for I couldn't leave the office, when a young fellow with light hair limped up to me and asked me what that smoke was over there.

"'That's what's left of the Washington Flier,' I said, 'and I guess there's souls going up in that smoke.'

"'Do you mean the first section?' he said, getting kind of greenish-yellow.

"'That's what I mean,' I said; 'split to kindling wood because Rafferty, on the second section, didn't want to be late.'

"He put his hand out in front of him, and the satchel fell with a bang.

"'My God!' he said, and dropped right on the track in a heap.

"I got him into the station and he came around, but he kept on groaning something awful. He'd sprained his ankle, and when he got a little better I drove him over in Carter's milk wagon to the Carter place, and I reckon he stayed there a spell."

"That's all, is it?" I asked.

"That's all—or, no, there's something else. About noon that day one of the Carter twins came down with a note from him asking me to send a long-distance message to some one in Washington."

"To whom?" I asked eagerly.

"I reckon I've forgot the name, but the message was that this fellow—Sullivan was his name—was at M——,

"Do You Recall Seeing a Man Hanging to the Platform of the Last Car?"

and if the man had escaped from the wreck would he come to see him."

"He wouldn't have sent that message to me," I said to McKnight, rather crestfallen. "He'd have every object in keeping out of my way."

"There might be reasons," McKnight observed judicially. "He might not have found the papers then."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Russian Wheat Production.

An enormous crop of wheat has been grown in Russia this year, placing that land for the first time at the head of wheat-growing countries. Its harvest of 783,000,000 bushels exceeds that of the United States by 26,000,000 bushels, and is greater than its own previous record by about 100,000,000 bushels. The development of wheat growing has been most rapid along the line of the Trans-Siberian railway. As the home consumption is small in proportion to population, this has made Russia one of the great sources of supply for the rest of the world. France consumes much of the wheat that it grows. The present price of wheat in the United States, when placed against the surplus product of Russia, makes it more difficult for this country to hold its place as an exporter of that cereal.

Helps Poor Girls.

Mrs. James J. Storrow, wife of the Boston banker, is interested in a number of charities, among them being the girl's bowl shop. In the spare time which the girls have, they make pottery articles, which they sell, the money to be used for purposes of education. Mrs. Storrow has a girls' library club, and every summer she sends a number of girls to the country, 14 at a time.

EXCELLENT GRAIN FIELDS IN WESTERN CANADA

YIELDS OF WHEAT AS HIGH AS 54 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

Now that we have entered upon the making of a new year, it is natural to look back over the past one, for the purpose of ascertaining what has been done. The business man and the farmer have taken stock, and both, if they are keen in business detail and interest, know exactly their financial position. The farmer of Western Canada is generally a business man, and in his stock-taking he will have found that he has had a successful year. On looking over a number of reports sent from various quarters, the writer finds that in spite of the visitation of drouth in a small portion of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, many farmers are able to report splendid crops. And these reports come from different sections, covering an area of about 25,000 square miles. As, for instance, at Laird, Saskatchewan, the crop returns showed that J. B. Peters had 12,800 bushels from 320 acres, or nearly 40 bushels to the acre. In the Blaine Lake district the fields ranged from 15 to 50 bushels per acre. Ben Crews having 1,150 bushels from 24 acres; Edmond Trotter 1,200 bushels off 30 acres, while fields of 30 bushels were common. On poorly cultivated fields but 15 bushels were reported.

In Foam Lake (Sask.) district 100 bushels of oats to the acre were secured by Angus Robertson, D. McRae and C. H. Hart, while the average was 85. In wheat 30 bushels to the acre were quite common on the newer land, but off 15 acres of land cultivated for the past three years George E. Wood secured 455 bushels. Mr. James Traynor, near Regina (Sask.) is still on the shady side of thirty. He had 50,000 bushels of grain last year, half of which was wheat. Its market value was $25,000. He says he is well satisfied.

Arthur Somers of Strathclair threshed 100 acres, averaging 25 bushels to the acre. Thomas Foreman, of Milestone, threshed 11,000 bushels of wheat, and 3,000 bushels of flax off 600 acres of land. W. Weatherstone, of Strathclair, threshed 5,000 bushels of oats from 95 acres. John Gonzilla, of Gillies, about twenty-five miles west of Rosthern, Sask., had 180 bushels from 3 acres of wheat. Mr. Gonzilla's general average of crop was over 40 bushels to the acre. Ben Cruise, a neighbor, averaged 45 bushels to the acre from 23 acres. W. A. Rose, of the Walderheim district, threshed 6,000 bushels of wheat from 240 acres, an average of 25 bushels. 100 acres was on summer fallow and averaged 33 bushels. He had also an average of 60 bushels of oats to the acre on a 50-acre field. Wm. Lehman, who has a farm close to Rosthern, had an average of 27 bushels to the acre on 60 acres of summer fallow. Mr. Midsky, of Rapid City (Man.) threshed 1,000 bushels of oats from 7 acres.

The yield of the different varieties of wheat per acre at the Experimental Farm, Brandon, was: Red Fife, 28 bushels; White Fife, 34 bushels; Preston, 32 bushels; early Red Fife, 27 bushels.

The crops at the C. P. R. demonstration farms at Strathmore (Alberta) proved up to expectations, the Swedish variety oats yielding 110 bushels to the acre. At the farm two rowed barley went 48½ bushels to the acre. Yields of from 50 bushels to 100 bushels of oats to the acre were quite common in the Sturgeon River Settlement near Edmonton (Alberta). But last year was uncommonly good and the hundred mark was passed. Wm. Craig had a yield of oats from a measured plot, which gave 107 bushels and 20 lbs. per acre.

Albert Teskey, of Olds (Alberta) threshed a 100-acre field which yielded 101 bushels of oats per acre, and Joseph McCartney had a large field equally good. At Cupar (Sask.) oats threshed 80 bushels to the acre. On the Traquairs farm at Cupar, a five-acre plot of Marquis wheat yielded 54 bushels to the acre, while Laurence Barknel had 37 bushels of Red Fife to the acre. At Wordsworth, Reeder Bros.' wheat averaged 33¾ bushels to the acre, and W. McMillan's 32. William Krafft of Alix (Alberta) threshed 1,042 bushels of winter wheat off 19¾ acres, or about 53 bushels to the acre. John Laycroft of Dinton, near High River, Alberta, had over 1,100 bushels of spring wheat from 50 acres.

E. F. Knipe, near Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, had 800 bushels of wheat from 20 acres. W. Metcalf had over 31 bushels to the acre, while S. Henderson, who was hailed badly, had an average return of 32 bushels of wheat to the acre.

McWhirter Bros. and John McBain, of Redvers, Saskatchewan, had 25 bushels of wheat to the acre. John Kennedy, east of the Horse Mills district near Edmonton, from 40 acres of spring wheat got 1,767 bushels, or 44 bushels to the acre.

J. E. Vanderburgh, near Dayslow, Alberta, threshed four thousand bushels of wheat from 120 acres. Mr. D'Arcy, near there, threshed ten thousand and fifty-eight bushels (machine measure) of wheat from five hundred acres, and out of this only sixty acres was new land.

At Fleming, Sask., A Winter's wheat averaged 39 bushels to the acre and several others report heavy yields. Mr. Winter's crop was not on summer fallow, but on a piece of land broken in 1882 and said to be the first broken in the Fleming district.

The agent of the Canadian government will be pleased to give information regarding the various districts in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, where free homesteads of 160 acres are available.

NO CHANCE.

Puggles—May I offer you my hand and fortune?

Jessie—No, thanks, dear boy. Your fortune's too small and your hand's too large.

A woman's idea of a great financier is a man who can straighten out her expense account.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Men are known by the good they do rather than the goods they have.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Even a stingy man loosens up when asked for advice.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all humors, catarrh and rheumatism, relieves that tired feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, nervousness, builds up the whole system.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Your Liver is Clogged up

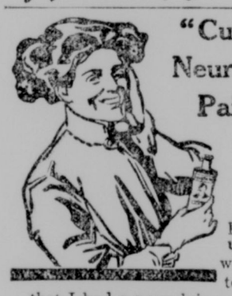
That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good



"Cured Neuralgia Pain"

"I take pleasure in writing to you that I had a neuralgia pain in my arm for five years, and I used your Liniment for one week and was completely cured. I recommend your Liniment very highly."—Mrs. J. McGraw, 1216 Mandeville St., New Orleans, La.

Cured Quinsy Sore Throat

Mr. Henry L. Caulk, of 1242 Wilson St., Wilmington, Del., writes:—"I bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for the quinsy sore throat and it cured me. I shall always keep a bottle in the house."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

gives instant relief from rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, croup, sore throat, tonsilitis, hoarseness and chest pains.

Prices, 25c., 50c. & $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

REMEMBER PISO'S for COUGHS & COLDS

Modish Coiffures

QUANTITIES of puffs and curls, and all sorts of little headdresses, continue to mark the coiffure of milady of fashion when she prepares to do honor to a state occasion, or to dress with dignity. This elaboration in hair dressing is very becoming in the majority of cases, and those women who have once tried it realize the charm of it. Only the grand beauty may turn her back upon careful arrangement of the hair and still be as attractive as her artfully-groomed sister who knows the fascination of soft curls and smooth puffs.

Unless one has plenty of time and some one to help out, the natural hair can hardly be arranged in the manner shown in the illustrations. No matter how generous nature may have been, puffs and curls are, as a rule, pinned on. Mere man may long to believe them growing on the head of her he admires, but when the knowledge dawns on him that they do not, he still confesses to their fascination.

Not every one can accomplish a successful coiffure either simple or complex, and it is therefore a good plan to decide upon a becoming model, just as one decides upon a becoming hat. When so much progress has been made, the next step takes one to the hairdressing establishment with instructions to the hairdresser to copy the model. If time is precious the coiffure may be manufactured and simply pinned on. But the lady of leisure may achieve her coiffure by having her own hair curled and puffed. This undertaking is much more difficult than that of pinning on the made coiffure.

Bands, decorated with embroideries and gorgeous with gold and jewels, predominate in hair ornaments. There are many other decorations, however, most of them designed to glitter or twinkle in the lights that shine by night. A plain ribbon or velvet band, finished with a bow and the shell barrette are favorites for day wear. No one should neglect to notice the little fringe of curls that nestle about the neck in many of the new styles. A curlless coiffure is hardly to be found, but the curls are placed wherever they will do the most good—that is, wherever they are found to be most effective in enhancing the beauty or the style of their wearer.

In the matter of the coiffure every woman should lay to her heart that French adage which runs: "There is nothing so beautiful as care." Careful hairdressing works wonders and in itself is immensely attractive.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

FOR LITTLE MAIDS.

New models of cheviot and Henrietta cloth for little maids of six.

Dressing for Work.

In the food and raiment brigade, the "do-your-own-work" mothers have a hard time keeping themselves presentable in the eyes of their families. They must wear faded things sometimes, and they cannot spare much of the early morning time for beautifying. Still it is possible for the houseworkers to don one accessory that never fails to freshen and improve the toilet. This is a plain white collar, which costs nothing and requires only a moment to adjust. When the career of white shirtwaists is ended, front plaits, tucked lengths and those of insertion should be cut out, leaving sufficient plain material to hem over the upper edge, so as to avoid scratching the neck. They should be two inches in width and the neck length.

Trimming at the Neck.

Fur is never used around the neck of an evening gown, which always blends as closely as possible with the lines of the shoulders.

If trimming is added at all it is in flat bands and flesh-colored tulle or chiffon is often laid in around the decolletage to soften the dividing line between hair, flesh and fabric.

MANICURING DONE AT HOME

Few Implements Needed, the Chief Thing Being Constant Care and Attention.

You can train yourself to be your own manicure; there is no need to buy a book on the subject, nor is an elaborately-fitted manicure case necessary.

Four implements suffice, and in fact three are all that are absolutely required—a pair of nail scissors, a nail file and a chamois-covered polisher will answer all purposes, but an orange stick may be added for keeping the cuticle or scarf-skin, back from the nail.

The nails should be kept just the length of the fingers and trimmed in an oval curve. After trimming the nails, push the scarf-skin down closely about the base, so that the lunula—commonly called the "half moon"—shows distinctly.

If the nails have been neglected, it will take time and patience to get them right; but a few weeks' attention daily will accomplish wonders. If the scarf-skin has grown upon the nail, do not trim it off, but push it carefully back, using the rounded tip of the file; if necessary, lift the skin from the nail, but avoid breaking it. A little polishing powder may be used once or twice a week and a light rubbing with the chamois polisher every day gives the finishing touch to manicuring.

Modish Evening Frocks.

One may be smart and well gowned this season without a great outlay of money, though a large percentage of the gowns for evening wear are of extreme elegance and of a startling price, thanks to the exquisite materials used and the beautiful embroideries so lavishly set upon diaphanous tulles, chiffons, etc.

Provided one achieves the correct lines in an evening frock and is knowing in the matter of color one may eliminate all elaboration and go in for most pronounced simplicity.

Smart Millinery.

The trig little three-cornered hat so popular last season seems to have appeared again. Women should rejoice at this, for the shape is universally becoming.

It is modified and changed a little of course, but in general outline it gives the same effect.

Temperance

GREAT ILLS OF ALCOHOLISM

Professor Strumpel, Leading Author on Nervous Diseases, Gives Interesting Experiences.

Professor Strumpel, a leading authority on nervous diseases in Europe, has been giving his medical colleagues some interesting experiences of his researches in the field of "Alcoholism as Viewed From the Medical Standpoint," says a correspondent of the Chicago Daily News. In a private talk before the most noted medical scientists in Vienna the professor outlined in an impassively judicial manner an appalling number and variety of physical and mental diseases resulting from the excessive use of alcohol. He confined himself chiefly to the subject of chronic alcoholism, as acute alcoholism was generally the result of isolated cases of intoxication, the effects of which were usually only temporary and without any lasting consequences.

In the beginning he pointed out that persons who regularly indulge in large quantities of alcohol suffer from chronic catarrh of the throat, stomach and intestines, but, serious as these were, they didn't usually develop further complications and, therefore, to the doctor, were of little interest. But it was another thing altogether when it concerns that organ which first introduces alcohol into the blood—that is, the liver. All sufferers from liver diseases are in the most part alcoholists one must with justice assume an original connection between such diseases and the use of alcohol; all the more so as the patients are usually imbibers of "schnaps" and spirits and not of beer or wine, so that is evident the connection depends largely upon the quantity and intensity of the alcohol consumed. Through the liver the alcohol enters the great arteries and circulates through the whole body. Then it begins an insidious attack upon the vast network of blood vessels, developing later into calcination of the arteries and blood vessels. This disease is frequently found among drunkards. But it would be scientifically wrong to attribute the calcination of the arteries solely to alcoholism, as it may also result from excessive smoking, extraordinary overwork, chronic infections, insufficient nutrition and other causes.

A second symptomatic disease among drinkers is the "beer heart." This consists in an extraordinary enlargement of the heart, with all other indications of heart disease. Men with "beer hearts" almost invariably die at an age in which healthy men have scarcely attained full power. An intemperate consumption of nourishing matter fat is produced which cannot be got rid of in the same degree, consequently it accumulates internally and is responsible for the bloated corpulency of beer drinkers. Respiratory diseases and cases of suffocation are the next consequence.

Professor Strumpel passed over the effects of alcohol upon the nervous system and the horrible mental disorders, delirium tremens and the like, as these, he said, had been so frequently and emphatically set forth. He went on to discuss the effect of alcohol in disturbing the general functional workings of the body manifested in such complaints as gout, diabetes and kidney diseases, all of which he said, were found largely among drinkers.

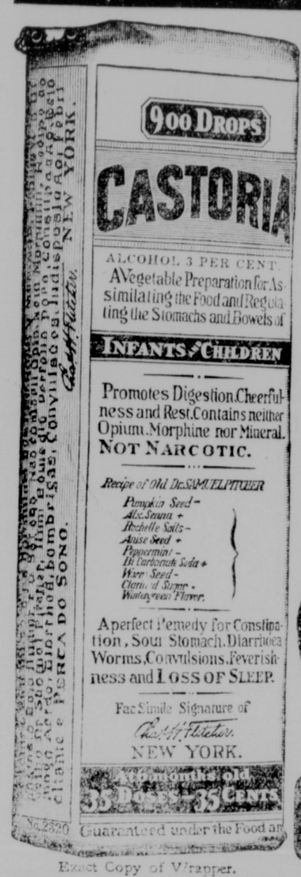
Among the indirect consequences of alcoholism were an increased susceptiveness with a weakened power of resistance in the physical system rendering the subject liable to a number of ravaging diseases, chief among which is tuberculosis. It had been abundantly proved that, whereas in ordinary cases of inflammation of the lungs normal persons recover, to drinkers the disease almost always proves fatal.

Story of Drinking Man.

Chaplain McCabe tells the story of a drinking man, who, being in a state late at night, heard the wife of the saloonkeeper say to her husband: "Send that fellow home; it is late." "No, never mind," replied her husband; "he is shingling our roof for us." This idea lodged in the mind of the drunkard, and he did not return to the saloon for six months. When he did, the saloonkeeper in the streets of the latter said: "Why don't you come round to my place any more?" "Thank you for your kind hospitality," replied his former victim; "I have been shingling my own roof lately." The industrial aspect of the temperance reform is embodied in this illustration.

Whisky Trade Degrading

"A trade which flourishes upon the ruin of its supporters; which derives its revenues from the plunder of homes, from the defrauding of little children and from the degradation of manhood; which requires for its prosperity the injury of the community; which ministers to every vicious passion and propensity; which makes drunkards and thieves, and blasphemers and gamblers, and wife-beaters and murderers; which brutalizes and degrades all who are brought in contact with it, cannot claim the respect, and assuredly ought not to be able to claim the encouragement of the community."—New York Tribune.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

the guest of Miss Effie Bittinger at the telephone exchange this week.

George Yommer purchased a fine Jersey cow over in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, one day last week.

C. E. Ellithorp made a business trip to Baltimore last week.

Dennis Detriech has been seriously ill for a few days, but at last report he was improving.

Rev. Young of Salisbury, Pa., delivered an excellent sermon from the Lutheran pulpit in this village last Saturday evening.

Miss Leanora Wiley returned to her home at this place last Monday afternoon, after a two weeks stay with her grandmother in Grantsville.

Mrs. Earl Selders was quite ill last week and was attended by Dr. Ricketts, of Accident.

John H. Stark made a business trip to Salisbury and Meyersdale, Pa., last week.

Daniel Brenneman, of Manidiers Ridge, was a business caller in this village last week.

Most camp owners in this section opened their camps last week and gathered a large quantity of water on Saturday.

Wood's Trade Mark

Clover and Grass Seeds

best qualities obtainable.

Sow Clover and Grass seeds in March on your fall-sown Wheat or other grain crops.

"Wood's Crop Special" tells the advantages of these seedings, and gives prices and seasonable information each month about all Farm seeds.

"Wood's Crop Special" and Descriptive Seed Catalog mailed free on request.

T. W. WOOD & SONS
Seedsmen, - Richmond, Va.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.

TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400

200 Young Broke Mules 200

HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.

MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be infoal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

New Assessment Appeals.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO., OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 17, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garret County, Maryland, acting as a Board of Control and Review, will be at their office in the town of Oakland, to hear appeals on the new assessments on the following dates:

For District No. 1—March 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, 1911.

For District No. 10—March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20, 1911.

For District No. 4—March 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1911.

For District No. 13—March 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1911.

By order of the Board.

A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

Wm. R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger vs. Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley, his wife.

No. 1719 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 18th day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger, trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $900.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO., OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 16, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, March 6th, 1911,

to transact all routine business.

By order of the Board.
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-06-1y.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS I. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Mortgagee's Sale

OF VALUABLE

Coal & Timber Lands

Lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the 26th day of October, 1909, duly recorded in Garrett County, Md., wherein William U. Hensel, of Lancaster City was duly authorized to make sale of the real and personal property covered and conveyed by said mortgage, in case of default by said mortgagor in the payment of certain moneys secured by the same and such default having occurred, the undersigned William U. Hensel, as such attorney named in said mortgage to make this sale, will, on

SATURDAY,

the 25th day of February, 1911

AT 11:00 O'CLOCK A. M.,

in front of the Courthouse door in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, State of Maryland, sell at public auction, all the real and personal property, lots and parcels of grounds, and timber and timber rights, covered and conveyed by said mortgage, the same lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in said Garrett County, Maryland, and the same being particularly described as follows, viz:

The land is located in the northern part of Garrett County, Md., and lies within districts No. 3 and No. 12. The county road running from Engle's Mills to Bittinger traverses this property in a southeasterly direction, the property being about a mile and a-half from Engle's Mills and about two and a-half miles from Bittinger. The portion of the property, known as the second and third parts of "Rights of Man and Common Sense" being at the summit of Negro Mountain.

FIRST. All those four lots or parcels of ground, lying in Garrett County, Maryland, which are known as Military Lots Nos. 2478, 2479, 2480 and 2481, containing in the aggregate 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots of ground which were conveyed to Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others by deed dated March 20th, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 281, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Md., and being also part of the lands which were conveyed by J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by deed dated August 14, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 389, one of said Land Records.

SECOND. All those four lots and parcels of ground lying near Engles Mills, in Garrett County, Maryland, known as Military Lots Nos. 2454, 2455, 2456 and 2457, containing 200 acres of land more or less, they being the same lots and parcels of ground which were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others, by deed dated March 20, 1900, recorded in Liber 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being a part of the same lands which were conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

THIRD. All the timber and timber rights in and upon all those two parts of a tract of land called "The second and third parts of the Rights of Man" and "Common Sense," containing together 500 acres of land more or less, which said timber and timber rights were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by George T. Brew and wife, by deed dated March 28, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, Folio 283, one of said Land Records, excepting therefrom so much of the said timber and all that portion of said land which was conveyed away from the same by Louis Lindner, Jr., and up to January 2, 1903, and being the same timber and timber rights described in and conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller and others to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated the 14th day of August, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

FOURTH. All the rest and residue of all that lot and parcel of land lying and being near Engle's Mills, in said county, and known as "Lot Number Two" of the four lots in which the tract known as "The Rights of Man," second and third parts, and "Common Sense" are now divided, contained within the following metes and bounds, to-wit:

Beginning for the same at the beginning of Lot No. 1, and running with the lines of the "Rights of Man," second part, East 64 perches, South 60 degrees East, 90 perches; North 70 degrees East, 25 perches; South 36 degrees East, 60 perches; then with the 61st line of "Park," East 64 perches to the beginning of the "Rights of Man" third part, and with the lines thereof, South 146 perches, East 111 perches to the end of the 25th line of Common Sense, and with the 26th line thereof corrected, South 6 degrees East, 150 perches to a line of the land conveyed by Robert Oliver to John Beachy, and with said line, East 26 perches to the given line of Common Sense, which is also the 3rd line of Lot No. 2456, then with the lots, West 330 perches, South 320 perches to the beginning of the tract called "Ormes Trouble;" then reversing the given line thereof, South 15½ degrees West, 251 perches to the beginning, containing, in the residue of said tract land,

500 Acres, More or Less.

Being the same tract and parcel of land conveyed by George T. Brew to the said J. Frank Keller and others by deed dated May 24, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 390, of said Land Records, and being part of the lands conveyed by said J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by the said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid, excepting however, from said last tract and parcel of the timber and timber rights belonging to said land, which were conveyed by said George T. Brew and others to said Jacob G. Stauffer by the above recited deed of March 28, 1900, recorded as aforesaid.

FIFTH. All the plant and machinery, railways and tramways, buildings and improvements now on the lands hereinbefore mentioned and described together with all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, in and to all the same or which it may otherwise have under its charter.

All the above lots, tracts and parcels of lands and timber and timber rights, together with all the plant, machinery, railways, tramways, houses, buildings and improvements of every kind thereon, will be sold as a whole, as one property and plant.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by the mortgage—Cash, $1,000 of which shall be paid on the day of sale and the remainder which shall be paid as soon as said sale is ratified by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

WILLIAM U. HENSEL,
Attorney named in Mortgage.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of H. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of H. Worth Jennings, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS.

January 31st, 1911.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1911. NUMBER 51

GRANTSVILLE GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Was a Great Success And it Looks as Though the National Highway Would Regain its Glory.

From a correspondent at Grantsville, under date of February 17, the follow- account of the good roads meeting held there on last Thursday, has been received.

That the old time glory of the National Road might, to some extent be restored, the glory that belonged to it in the day when colonial burgers and wealthy land owners in their coach-and-tour, wended their way along it from their business in the west to their winter social diversements in Washington or Baltimore, the days when all that went to the great west or all that returned from there must pass over the Cumberland road, then if never again "The National road," this was the purpose of the conclave at Grantsville yesterday.

The one who surveyed and decided the route of the old highway was never a believer in the old saying, "the longest way 'round is the shortest way home." He was ordered to find a short a short route to the west, and the present location of the highway is evidence that he found and founded such. Up the Eckhart hill and down the smaller one just west of Frostburg, up Big Savage and down again before going up and down its little sister and repeating the same on Nigger mountain, the road follows the steepest possible grade.

"A direct road to the west," he was ordered, and he gave it, he would have run his road up a mountain at an angle of 45 degrees rather than have swerved from his western course. To the present day the road runs, with never a varience to get the benefit of grade up and down the sides of the Garrett ranges.

The people of the times of a hundred years ago were proud and justly so, of of their road; it was bestudded, it is true with tree stumps but these were far softer and more agreeable than the present road bed full of boulders. A man once made himself famous when he wrote a pathetic song entitled "If it's Good Enough for Washington, It's Good Enough for Me," the people of Garrett county agreed with this sentiment for about a hundred years, and they have a National highway about a hundred years behind the times.

Yesterday, over the stones and boulders of Big Savage, the ruts and miniature canyons of near Johnson's place are the never ending series of mud holes and foot deep ruts and half foot high stones, a bold party of citizens of Frostburg braved the dangers that beset with every turn of the auto wheel, and journeyed to Grantsville to hold conclave with their Garrett county neighbors and cuss and discuss the neighborhood roads and everyone who had aught to do with their condition.

The meeting was called to order, in the Broadwater building, by Mayor Henry Bonig. Mr. Chris Otto was elected as chairman and J. D. Miller as secretary. A long discussion was then indulged in by the citizens of the two counties as to the condition of the pike and its possible means of betterment. There was no argument against it being in a bad condition. The talk at times was warm and to the point and the subject was handled without gloves, which, after the eighteen miles of experience that the talkers had undergone was entirely pardonable.

On the invitation of the chairman Mr. Thomas Johnson in a few words stated the object of the meeting.

Mr. Johnson's address was followed by remarks by Olin R. Rice, secretary of the Frostburg board of trade, Dr. Timothy Griffith, member of the board of road directors of Allegany county, George Stern and W. E. Hitchins, of Frostburg. These gentlemen all suggested methods, ways and means by which they thought that desires of the citizens of Garrett county could be brought to an early fruition.

Mr. Otho Fike, commissioner from Garrett county, stated that present deplorable conditions was due to the fact that the commissioners of Garrett county were under the impression that the state was going to rebuild the road a distance of five miles west from the Allegany county line. For this reason for the past two years no appropriation in the annual levy hnd been made in Garrett county. The people of Garrett county blame the commissioners for conditions, not having taken any interest in the roads in this end of the county. Mr. Fike stated that he was willing to act in any capacity and do all he could to secure a better highway for the people of his county.

Mr. H. V. Hesse, superintendent of the Consolidation Coal Co., followed Mr. Fike and in a short address full of profitable suggestions impressed the idea that an immediately organized effort on the part of Garrett county citizens was necessary.

At the conclusion of the addresses and after consideaable discussion a committee of three consisting of H. C. Bonig, Thomas Johnson and C. D. Hershberger was appointed to raise funds and co-operate with a committee of two from the Frostburg board of trade to stir up a state wide agitation for the rebuilding of the National pike. Mr. D. Lindley Sloan, of Cumberland, was selected as the counsel and representative for the two committees.

It was a business men's meeting and it was one in which business was the sole thought. But it was the necessary kind of business; the business that will grant the farmers of eastern Garrett county a ready market for their produce, that will place Grantsville on the map, that will be of unbound benefit to every resident of Frostburg and which will insure possibility of taking a pleasant drive over historic old highway without danger to life or limb or without violating the cruelty to animal laws with regards to the horse.

Tourists say it is the worst road east of the Rockies but it is doubtful if the pony path to Cripple Creek has anything on a quarter mile stretch on the eastern slope of Big Savage. And as long as the roads are as they are the tourists are going to patronize the hotels at Bedford Spriugs and Altoona.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Garthright & Harvey

Masterpiece Flour

Is rich in gluten, which absorbs water readily and swells to several times its dry bulk. As dough it becomes elastic and tenacious, capable of holding air that is kneaded into it, or the gases produced by yeast, thereby becoming porus or light, a quality in bread for which every housewife and baker strives. A barrel of hard-wheat flour makes about 325 of the ordinary one-pound loaves sold by the bakers. A barrel of the soft-wheat flour makes from 270 to 290 loaves of the same weight. The solt-wheat flour contains a higher per cent of moisture and will not absorb as much as flour richer in gluten.

Masterpiece Flour is made from the hard-wheat, and is without an equal for bread.

Every sack guaranteed.

Garthright & Harvey

CHARGES AGAINST COUNTY SCHOOL SUP'T BROWNING

What The Baltimore American Said Thursday Concerning the Case.

From the morning edition of The Baltimore American of last Thursday the following account of the meeting of the State Board of Education, held in Baltimore on Wednesday when the case of Superintendent Browning was deferred and moved to Oakland where the matter will be tried next Thursday, is taken:

As the result of a vigorous and determined protest on the part of Richard Semmes, attorney for the people of Garrett county, against the hearing of the charges against Superintendent of Schools Edward A. Browning yesterday, the State Board of Education, in session in the Union Trust Building, postponed the date of hearing until March 2, at which time the trial will be held in open court before the board at Oakland, county seat of Garrett county.

Mr. Semmes' protest was based upon the contention that he had had no official notification of the trial being set for yesterday, and was not prepared to present his witnesses. He further declared that, as the charges were sent before the board for the first time Wednesday morning, there could not possibly have been time for them to properly consider them and decide whether they were of a sufficiently grave character to warrant the calling of Mr. Browning before the body.

The charges as specifically set forth by Mr. Semmes are of a graver nature than was at first supposed. Besides the general allegations of incompetence and dereliction of duty, the complaint contains charges that Mr. Browning had used his office to give contracts for school buildings to his brother in spite of the fact that other contractors entered lower bids. They further allege that he was unjust and discriminated against teachers with whom he had personal differences in the matters of salaries, promoting his friends without reference to ability. Other charges are that he failed to visit the schools of his county twice a year as prescribed by law; that he failed to look into the ages of a number of teachers whom he had appointed, with the result that several were under age, and that he was unjust and discriminating in the award of state scholarships.

Mr. Semmes declared, following the decision of the state board yesterday, that he would prove every one of the charges in open court at Oakland in March.

Mr. Browning and his attorney, William R. Offutt, were not pleased with the decision of the board. They contended that in view of the fact that they had received notification to appear for the hearing and had brought two witnesses, School Commissioners C. A. Deffinbaugh and C. E. Ellithorpe, the trial should be held as scheduled.

Mr. Browning declared that the whole affair was the outgrowth of political differences which were agitating the county.

"There is not a good reputable man in the whole list of signers of the petition for an investigation of my office," he said. "I will prove that to every man, woman and child in the county when my trial is held."

It is expected that the Governor will attend the hearing at Oakland and administer the oath to witnessess.

Prices Advancing.

Wire nails, barbed wire and field fencing have all advanced $1.00 per ton, and there is likely to be another advaned at any time, but we are still taking orders on our contract, shipment to be made March 1st at special low prices. Wire nails at $2.00 per keg base, barbed wire at $2.50 per hundred, 30 rod bundles, heavy barbed wire, at $1.75, 80 rod bundles, light wire, at $1.65. Jumbo field fencing, all No. 9 wire, made of the best open-hearth steel, at 3c per pound, thus paying for actual values, not rod price. Light weight fence is no longer recommended by the manufacturer or dealer. The wise farmer will buy only heavy all No. 9 fencing, samples of which are now on exhibition at our store at special prices to March 1st.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

A Carload of Automobiles.

Messrs. A. D. Navlor & Co., of Oakland, agents for the Ford automobile, have ordered four cars which will be shipped from the factory in a few days. The local firm has already disposed of three of the cars to Oakland people, the purchasers being Dr. Henry W. McComas, James P. Treacy and D. M. Dixon.

Weather Extremely Bad.

The weather since Sunday has been as blizzardly as it is possible for it to get, barring extremely low temperature. Snow has been falling and blowing every day since Sunday and the result is numerous roads are almost impassable owing to the deep drifts with which they are encumbered. The thermometer registered on Tuesday morning eight degrees above zero and has been hovering around that mark almost continuously since. A continuation of similar conditions for a few days longer will be sufficient to form ice several inches in thickness. Little if any ice has been harvested and stored in Oakland ice houses, and at the Park an insufficient quantity to meet the usual demands has been stored in the ice house belonging to the Association and from which the residents there are supplied during the summer months.

Money to loan in amounts to suit borrower. RENNINGER & OFFUTT, attorneys.

MARYLAND DAY IN THE SCHOOLS

As March 25 Falls on Saturday, the Event Will be Celebrated Friday, March 24.

Dr. M. Bates Stephens, superintendent, and Mr. B. K. Purdum, assistant superintendent of public instruction, are preparing to make assignments of speakers for the annual Maryland Day in the public schools. The date set aside for this event, which is devoted to the exploiting of Maryland history by leading citizens familiar with the subject and by pupils, is March 25, but as this date this year falls on Saturday, Friday, March 24, has been selected.

It is expected that Dr. Stephens and Mr. Purdum will make the assignments this week or next in order that the speakers selected may have ample time in which to prepare their addresses.

The subject selected for this year is "Marylanders of National Fame." In announcing the topic for 1911 the Teachers' Year Book says:

"During the history of our colony and state, she has produced many men of whose achievements we should be proud. Many of Maryland's prominent sons have devoted their labor, time and talents to the internal affairs of their beloved state, and their fame has consequently not extended beyond its borders. On the other hand, Maryland has produced her full quota of honored sons whose labors in connection with the affairs of the nation have been of such a conspicuous character that they have won for themselves national fame.

"It is fitting that the career of these men should be brought to the attention of every boy and girl of Maryland, and thus increase their pride in our native state.

"Among the more prominent Marylanders of national reputation, a study of whose lives and deeds is suggested,

"Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore, who was born in England in 1606. He never set foot upon the soil of Maryland, though he wisely, tactfully and judiciously directed the affairs of the colony for 43 years, during most of the period known as the "Golden Age of the Colony." During this period the colony grew from a settlement of 300, sheltered in shacks and wigwams on the St. Mary's River, to a community of 30,000 people settled in 10 counties, each having an organized civil and military government.

"Charles Carroll of Carrollton, who won immortal fame as a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

"John Eager Howard, one of the heroes of the Revolution.

"Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star-spangled Banner," which is now the national anthem.

"Chief Justice Roger Brook Taney, of the United States Supreme Court.

"Samuel Chase, also a signer of the Declaration of Independence, who was a mainstay of the Revolution in Maryland. He was also an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

"William Pinkney, one of the most distinguished jurists of his day, an attorney general of the United States, a member of Congress, a United States Senator and a minister of Russia.

"William Wirt, also an attorney general of the United States, who prosecuted Aaron Burr for treason and who accepted the nomination of the Anti-Masonic party for president of the United States.

"John. William Smallwood, also a Revolutionary hero.

"Edgar Allen Poe, the poet and author.

"Henry Winter Davis, the distinguished statesman of the period of the war between the states.

"James R. Randall, author of "Maryland, My Maryland."

"Edwin Booth, the world-famous actor.

"John Pendleton Kennedy, statesman, secretary of the Navy under President Fillmore, and man of letters.

"John Hanson, president of the Continental Congress and as such was the first president of the United States.

"Arthur Pue Gorman, United States Senator and statesman.

"Thomas Swann, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, mayor of Baltimore, governor of Maryland and member of Congress.

In Memoriam.

Charles Guy Hogue, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hogue, passed away peace Wednesday, Feb. 15, 1911. He lived upon earth 17 years, 7 months 5 days.

"Art gone; the abyss of heaven
Hath swallowed up thy form; yet on my heart,
Deep has sunk the lesson thou hast given,
And shall not soon depart."

He had given his heart into the keeping of his Saviour several years ago. So young his piety and faithfulness to his Lord were remarkable. He lived a life which was clear and pure, which should be an example for many who knew him. He was dutiful obedient to his parents and gave them a moment's anxiety or trouble through any act of his. He endured a long and painful illness which marked his life with christian fortitude and patience. He was more concerned for the comfort and welfare of those who watched by his bedside than he was for his own. When he knew he must die no evidence of fear was apparent. He bade those about him farewell and resigned himself with patience to the will of his Heavenly Father.

The funeral was preached in the Baptist church at Loch Lynn, of which he was a member, by his pastor. His body was laid to rest in the Oakland cemetery. Six of his schoolmates acted as pallbearers. There are many hearts bereaved by his departure, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope, but look forward with joy to the time when they shall see his face. Then it will not be marked with suffering, but filled up with joy and peace. C. W. H.

Welsbach portico or outdoorlamp, one hundred mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. Shirer & Co. 6t

HEARING PROMISES TO BE LARGELY ATTENDED

Interest in School Superintendent Muddle General Throughout County.

What promises to be a highly interesting event to the great majority of the people of Garrett county, especially those who desire to see a change made in the management and administration of the affairs of the public school system of the county, is scheduled to take place at the court room in Oakland next Thursday morning when the State Board of Education will meet to hear testimony in the case of the petitioners against E. A. Browning, County Superintendent of the public schools.

As stated in these columns last week the State Board of Education at its meeting in Baltimore on Wednesday last, upon the representations made by Mr. R. T. Semmes, who is attorney for the petitioners, that it would be impossible to take witnesses to Baltimore to attend the hearing, set next Thursday as the day and Oakland as the place to assemble and take testimony of the witnesses and to hear the arguments of counsel on both sides. Mr. W. R. Offutt, of Oakland, represents the school superintendent.

For the petitioners a large number of witnesses will be summoned, the number being variously estimated at between forty and one hundred. A list containing the names of forty-four witnesses on the part of the petitioners has already been forwarded to the State Board who will issue the proper papers and have the parties summoned. In addition to these forty-four witnesses a large number of people from every section of the county have signified their willingness to appear and testify without the formality of being served with a legal paper, hence it is safe to assume that the town will be crowded next Thursday, for many partisans of both sides will be present who will not appear as witnesses.

The members of the State Board will probably arrive in Oakland on train No. 3 Thursday morning. The body is composed of seven members, including the Governor, who is the presiding member, and Dr. M. Bates Stephens, the Secretary.

The probabilities are that the Board will be in session all day Thursday, Friday and possibly Saturday, as it will be impossible to examine the great number of witnesses in the matter under three days.

Bankers to Meet at Deer Park.

At a meeting last week of the executive committee of the Maryland Bankers' Association, in the National Mechanics' Bank, Baltimore, it was decided to hold the next annual convention of the organization at Deer Park Hotel, if satisfactory arrangements can be perfected.

The time will be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 20, 21 and 22.

Among the most important questions to be discussed will be those of bank stock taxation and the payment of interest on deposits. The former will likely result in reaching the legislature at the next session, and most of the bankers feel that some agreement can be made in regard to the interest methods. About 200 bankers will attend the convention.

PITTSBURG PEOPLE WANT THE OAKLAND

An Offer Made to Lease The Hotel the Coming Season.

Local people have succeeded after some trouble in getting some Pittsburg hotel men interested in the lease of the Oakland Hotel for the coming season and a proposition to that end has been submitted to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, owners of the property.

The matter is being held under advisement by the officials of the railway company and a decision may be reached at an early day.

In a letter received Tuesday by an Oakland gentlemen from the Pittsburg hotel people they outline a plan whereby they expect to fill the house to overflowing with people from Pittsburg and vicinity by advertising a low rate ten-day excursion at a fixed sum which will include board and rooms at the Oakland which in itself should be a great inducementfor people to come to the best spot on earth to spend a week or several months.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

Bartlett Conley and Viola Francis Morehead, both of Bloomington.

Carl Anderson Metheny, of Terra Alta, W. Va., and Dora Bell Beatty, of Amblesburg, W. Va.

Alvira Clarance Schriver and Bessie Elizabeth Boyles, both of Garrett county.

William Arthur Lee and Annie Key kendall, both of Gorman, Garrett county.

Tarlton Humbertson and Alverta Sophia Frazee, both of Friendsville.

Upton William Stalnaker and Susie Winters Conrad, both of Monterville, W. Va.

Warren Eddington Shaffer, of Newburg, W. Va., and Annettie E. Koch, of Howesville, W. Va,

---

Italian Bled to Death on Train.

Vincenzo Sandello, 23 years old, an Italian miner, who was crushed under a mine car while working in the mines at Dodson, died on the Western Maryland train Saturday while being taken to Cumberland for hospital treatment. His left leg was almost severed at the hip and he bled to death. The body was removed to the Stein undertaking room and the funeral took place Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from St. Patrick's Catholic church with interment in St. Patrick's cemetery Cumberland.

Will Attack Constitutionality of Act.

Messrs. Bernard Carter & Sons, the Baltimore attorneys, have filed with the county commissioners of Allegany county a notice of appeal from the assessment made upon the C. & P. Telephone Company of the act providing for the assessment.

Married.

HUMBERTSON—FRAZEE—At the parsonage of St. Paul's M. E. church on Monday, February 20, by Rev. G. R. Williamson, Mr. Tarlton Humbertson and Miss Alverta Sophia Frazee, both of Friendsville, this county.

Call for Your Letters.

Lucinda M. Beeghley, Florence King, May Durst, J. G. Johnson, Recchia Leone, John H. Bell.

DIXON & KELSO

The following is Dixon & Kelso's spring prices for

American Fence

BEST IN THE MARKET

7 Wire 26 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
6 Wire 35 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	19c
8 Wire 32 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	21c
9 Wire 39 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
8 Wire 45 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	23c
10 Wire 47 inch Hog Fence, per rod,	25c
9 Wire 49 inch Hog Fence. per rod,	25c
80-rod roll light weight Barb,	$1.65
80-rod roll, 4-point, Hog or Cattle Barb,	2.40
100 lbs standard Barb, Hog or Cattle,	2.65

We have three cars of the above in stock and can furnish any of this fence in large quantities.

Will make special price on big lots.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

"I Have Not Forgotten—Anything."

The MAN in LOWER TEN

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR OF THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. C. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

12

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl, whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, the partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold locket and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Shadow of a Girl.

Certain things about the dinner at the Dallas house will always be obscure to me. Dallas was something in the fish commission, and I remember his reeling off fish eggs in billions while we ate our caviar. He had some particular stunt he had been urging the government to for years—something about forbidding the establishment of mills and factories on riverbanks—it seems they kill the fish, either the smoke, or the noise, or something they pour into the water.

Mrs. Dallas was there, I think. Of course, I suppose she must have been; and there was a woman in yellow; I took her in to dinner, and I remember she loosened my clams for me so I could get them. But the only real person at the table was a girl across in white, a sublimated young woman who was as brilliant as I was stupid, who never by any chance looked directly at me, and who appeared and disappeared across the candles and orchids in a sort of halo of radiance.

When the dinner had progressed from salmon to roast, and the conversation had done the same thing—from fish to scandal—the yellow gown turned to me.

"We have been awfully good, haven't we, Mr. Blakeley?" she asked. "Although I am crazy to hear, I have not said 'wreck' once. I'm sure you must feel like the survivor of Waterloo, or something of the sort."

"If you want me to tell you about the wreck," I said, glancing across the table, "I'm sorry to be disappointing, but I don't remember anything."

"You are fortunate to be able to forget it." It was the first word Miss West had spoken directly to me, and it went to my head.

"There are some things I have not forgotten," I said, over the candles. "I recall coming to myself some time after, and that a girl, a beautiful girl—"

"Ah!" said the lady in yellow, leaning forward breathlessly. Miss West was staring at me coldly, but, once started, I had to stumble on.

"That a girl was trying to rouse me, and that she told me I had been on fire twice already." A shudder went around the table.

"But surely that isn't the end of the story," Mrs. Dallas put in aggrievedly. "Why, that's the most tantalizing thing I ever heard."

"I'm afraid that's all," I said. "She went her way and I went mine. If she recalls me at all, she probably thinks of me as a weak-kneed individual who faints like a woman when everything is over."

"What did I tell you?" Mrs. Dallas asserted triumphantly. "He fainted, did you hear? when everything was over! He hasn't begun to tell it."

I would have given a lot by that time if I had not mentioned the girl. But McKnight took it up there and carried it on.

"Blakeley is a regular geyser," he said. "He never spouts until he reaches the boiling point. And by that same token, although he hasn't said much about the Lady of the Wreck, I think he is crazy about her. In fact, I am sure of it. He thinks he has locked his secret in the caves of his soul, but I call you to witness that he has it nailed to his face. Look at him!"

I squirmed miserably and tried to avoid the startled eyes of the girl across the table. I wanted to choke McKnight and murder the rest of the party.

"It isn't fair," I said as coolly as I could. "I have my fingers crossed; you are five against one."

"And to think that there was a murder on that very train," broke in the lady in yellow. "It was a perfect crescendo of horrors, wasn't it? And what became of the murdered man, Mr. Blakeley?"

McKnight had the sense to jump into the conversation and save my reply.

"They say good Pittsburgers go to Atlantic City when they die," he said. "So—we are reasonably certain the gentleman did not go to the seashore."

The meal was over at last, and once in the drawing room it was clear we hung heavy on the hostess' hands. "It is so hard to get people for bridge in September," she wailed. "There is absolutely nobody in town. Six is a dreadful number."

"It's a good poker number," her husband suggested.

The matter settled itself, however. I was hopeless, save as a dummy; Miss West said it was too hot for cards, and went out on a balcony that overlooked the Mall. With obvious relief Mrs. Dallas had the card table brought, and—I was face to face with the thing I had dreaded and hoped for for a week.

Now it had come, it was more difficult than I had anticipated. I do not know if there was a moon, but there was the urban substitute for it—the arc light. It threw the shadow of the balcony railing in long black bars against her white gown, and as it swung sometimes the face was in the light. I drew a chair close so that I could watch her.

"Do you know," I said, when she made no effort at speech, "that you are a much more formidable person to-night, in that gown, than you were the last time I saw you?"

The light swung on her face; she was smiling faintly.

"The hat with the green ribbons!" she said. "I must take it back; I had almost forgotten."

"I have not forgotten—anything." I pulled myself up short. This was hardly loyalty to Richey. His voice came through the window just then, and perhaps I was wrong, but I thought she raised her head to listen.

"Look at this hand," he was saying. "Regular pianola; you could play it with your feet."

"He's a dear, isn't he?" Alison said unexpectedly. "No matter how depressed and downhearted I am, I always cheer up when I see Richey."

"He's more than that," I returned warmly. "He is the most honorable fellow I know. If he wasn't so much that way, he would have a career before him. He wanted to put on the doors of our offices, Blakeley and McKnight, P. B. H., which is Poor But Honest."

From my comparative poverty to the wealth of the girl beside me was a single mental leap. From that wealth to the grandfather who was responsible for it was another.

"I wonder if you know that I had been to Pittsburg to see your grandfather when I met you?" I said.

"You!" She was surprised.

"Yes. And you remember the alligator bag that I told you was exchanged for the one you cut off my arm?" She nodded expectantly. "Well, in that valise were the forged Andy Bronson notes, and Mr. Gilmore's deposition that they were forged."

She was on her feet in an instant. "In that bag!" she cried. "Oh, why didn't you tell me that before? Oh, it's so ridiculous, so—so hopeless. Why, I could—"

She stopped suddenly and sat down again. "I do not know that I am sorry, after all," she said after a pause. "Mr. Bronson was a friend of my father's. I—I suppose it was a bad thing for you, losing the papers?"

"Well, it was not a good thing," I conceded. "While we are on the subject of losing things, do you remember—do you know that I still have your gold purse?"

She did not reply at once. The shadow of a column was over her face, but I guessed that she was staring at me.

"You have it!" She almost whispered.

"I picked it up in the street car," I said, with a cheerfulness I did not feel. "It looks like a very opulent little purse."

Why didn't she speak about the necklace? For just a careless word to make me sane again!

"You!" she repeated, horror-stricken. And then I produced the purse and held it out on my palm.

"I should have sent it to you before, I suppose, but, as you know, I have been laid up since the wreck."

We both saw McKnight at the same moment. He had pulled the curtains aside and was standing looking out at us. The tableau of give and take was unmistakable; the gold purse, her outstretched hand, my own attitude. It was over in a second; then he came out and lounged on the balcony railing.

"They're mad at me in there," he said airily, "so I came out. I suppose the reason they call it bridge is because so many people get cross over it."

The heat broke up the card group soon after, and they all came out for the night breeze. I had no more words alone with Alison.

I went back to the Incubator for the night. We said almost nothing on the way home; there was a constraint between us for the first time that I could remember. It was too early for bed, and so we smoked in the living room and tried to talk of trivial things. After a time even those failed, and we sat silent. It was McKnight who finally broached the subject.

"And so she wasn't at Seal Harbor at all."

"No."

"Do you know where she was, Lolie?"

"Somewhere near Cresson."

"And that was the purse—her purse with the broken necklace in it?"

"Yes, it was. You understand, don't you, Rich, that, having given her my word, I couldn't tell you?"

"I understand a lot of things," he said, without bitterness.

We sat for some time and smoked. Then Richey got up and stretched himself. "I'm off to bed, old man," he said. "Need any help with that game arm of yours?"

"No, thanks," I returned.

I heard him go into his room and lock the door. It was a bad hour for me. The first shadow between us and the shadow of a girl at that.

CHAPTER XVII.

At the Farm House Again.

McKnight is always a sympathizer with the early worm. It was late when he appeared. Perhaps, like myself, he had not slept well. But he was apparently cheerful enough, and he made a better breakfast than I. It was one o'clock before we got to Baltimore. After a half hour's wait we took a local for M———, the station near which the cinematograph picture had been taken.

We passed the scene of the wreck. McKnight with curiosity, I with a sickening sense of horror. Back from the fields was the little farm house where Alison West and I had indulged getting coffee, and winding away from the track, maple trees shaded it on each side, was the lane where we had stopped to rest, and where I had—it seemed presumption to the belief now—where I had tried to comfort her by patting her hand.

We got out at M———, a small place with two or three houses and a general store. The station was a one-roomed affair, with a railed-off place at the end, where a scale, a telegraph instrument and a chair constituted the entire furnishing.

The station agent was a young man with a shrewd face. He stopped hammering a piece of wood over a hole in the floor to ask where we wanted to go.

"We're not going," said McKnight, "we're coming. Have a cigar?"

The agent took it with an inquiring glance, first at it and then at us.

"We want to ask you a few questions," began McKnight, perching himself on the railing and kicking the chair forward for me. "Or, rather, this gentleman does."

"Wait a minute," said the agent, glancing through the window. "There is a hen in that crate choking herself to death."

He was back in a minute, and took up his position near a sawdust-filled box that did duty as a cuspidor.

"Now fire away," he said.

"In the first place," I began, "do you remember the day the Washington Flier was wrecked below here?"

"Do I!" he said. "Did Jonah remember the whale?"

"Were you on the platform here when the first section passed?"

"I was."

"Do you recall seeing a man hanging to the platform of the last car?"

"There was no one hanging there when she passed here," he said with conviction. "I watched her out of sight."

"Did you see anything that morning of a man about my size, carrying a small grip, and wearing dark clothes and a derby hat?" I asked eagerly.

McKnight was trying to look unconcerned, but I was frankly anxious. It was clear that the man had jumped somewhere in the mile of track just beyond.

"Well, yes, I did." The agent cleared his throat. "When the smash came the operator at MX sent word along the wire, both ways. I got it here, and I was pretty near crazy, though I knew it wasn't any fault of mine.

"I was standing on the track looking down, for I couldn't leave the office, when a young fellow with light hair limped up to me and asked me what that smoke was over there.

"'That's what's left of the Washington Flier,' I said, 'and I guess there's souls going up in that smoke.'

"'Do you mean the first section?' he said, getting kind of greenish-yellow.

"'That's what I mean,' I said; 'split to kindling wood because Rafferty, on the second section, didn't want to be late.'

"He put his hand out in front of him, and the satchel fell with a bang.

"'My God!' he said, and dropped right on the track in a heap.

"I got him into the station and he came around, but he kept on groaning something awful. He'd sprained his ankle, and when he got a little better I drove him over in Carter's milk wagon to the Carter place, and I reckon he stayed there a spell."

"That's all, is it?" I asked.

"That's all—or, no, there's something else. About noon that day one of the Carter twins came down with a note from him asking me to send a long-distance message to some one in Washington."

"To whom?" I asked eagerly.

"I reckon I've forgot the name, but the message was that this fellow—Sullivan was his name—was at M———,

"Do You Recall Seeing a Man Hanging to the Platform of the Last Car?"

and if the man had escaped from the wreck would he come to see him."

"He wouldn't have sent that message to me," I said to McKnight, rather crestfallen. "He'd have every object in keeping out of my way."

"There might be reasons," McKnight observed judicially. "He might not have found the papers then."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Russian Wheat Production.

An enormous crop of wheat has been grown in Russia this year, placing that land for the first time at the head of wheat-growing countries. Its harvest of 783,000,000 bushels exceeds that of the United States by 26,000,000 bushels, and is greater than its own previous record by about 100,000,000 bushels. The development of wheat growing has been most rapid along the line of the Trans-Siberian railway. As the home consumption is small in proportion to population, this has made Russia one of the great sources of supply for the rest of the world. France consumes much of the wheat that it grows. The present price of wheat in the United States, when placed against the surplus product of Russia, makes it more difficult for this country to hold its place as an exporter of that cereal.

Helps Poor Girls.

Mrs. James J. Storrow, wife of the Boston banker, is interested in a number of charities, among them being the girl's bowl shop. In the spare time which the girls have, they make pottery articles, which they sell, the money to be used for purposes of education. Mrs. Storrow has a girls' library club, and every summer she sends a number of girls to the country, 14 at a time.

EXCELLENT GRAIN FIELDS IN WESTERN CANADA

YIELDS OF WHEAT AS HIGH AS 54 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

Now that we have entered upon the making of a new year, it is natural to look back over the past one, for the purpose of ascertaining what has been done. The business man and the farmer have taken stock, and both, if they are keen in business detail and interest, know exactly their financial position. The farmer of Western Canada is generally a business man, and in his stock-taking he will have found that he has had a successful year. On looking over a number of reports sent from various quarters, the writer finds that in spite of the visitation of drouth in a small portion of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, many farmers are able to report splendid crops. And these reports come from different sections, covering an area of about 25,000 square miles. As, for instance, at Laird, Saskatchewan, the crop returns showed that J. B. Peters had 12,800 bushels from 320 acres, or nearly 40 bushels to the acre. In the Blaine Lake district the fields ranged from 15 to 50 bushels per acre, Ben Crews having 1,150 bushels from 24 acres; Edmond Trotter 1,200 bushels off 30 acres, while fields of 30 bushels were common. On poorly cultivated fields but 15 bushels were reported.

In Foam Lake (Sask.) district 100 bushels of oats to the acre were secured by Angus Robertson, D. McRae and C. H. Hart, while the average was 85. In wheat 30 bushels to the acre were quite common on the newer land, but off 15 acres of land cultivated for the past three years George E. Wood secured 495 bushels. Mr. James Traynor, near Regina (Sask.) is still on the shady side of thirty. He had 50,000 bushels of grain last year, half of which was wheat. Its market value was $25,000. He says he is well satisfied.

Arthur Somers of Strathclair threshed 100 acres, averaging 25 bushels to the acre. Thomas Foreman, of Millestone, threshed 11,000 bushels of wheat, and 3,000 bushels of flax off 600 acres of land. W. Weatherstone, of Strathclair, threshed 5,000 bushels of oats from 96 acres. John Gonzilla, of Gillies, about twenty-five miles west of Rosthern, Sask., had 180 bushels from 3 acres of wheat. Mr. Gonzilla's general average of crop was over 40 bushels to the acre. Ben Cruise, a neighbor, averaged 45 bushels to the acre from 23 acres. W. A. Rose, of the Walderheim district, threshed 6,000 bushels of wheat from 240 acres, an average of 25 bushels. 100 acres was on summer fallow and averaged 33 bushels. He had also an average of 60 bushels of oats to the acre on a 50-acre field. Wm. Lehman, who has a farm close to Rosthern, had an average of 27 bushels to the acre on 60 acres of summer fallow. Mr. Midsky, of Rapid City (Man.) threshed 1,000 bushels of oats from 7 acres.

The yield of the different varieties of wheat per acre at the Experimental Farm, Brandon, was: Red Fife, 28 bushels; White Fife, 34 bushels; Preston, 32 bushels; early Red Fife, 27 bushels.

The crops at the C. P. R. demonstration farms at Strathmore (Alberta) proved up to expectations, the Swedish variety oats yielding 110 bushels to the acre. At the farm two rowed barley went 48½ bushels to the acre. Yields of from 50 bushels to 100 bushels of oats to the acre were quite common in the Sturgeon River Settlement near Edmonton (Alberta). But last year was uncommonly good and the hundred mark was passed. Wm. Craig had a yield of oats from a measured plot, which gave 107 bushels and 20 lbs. per acre.

Albert Teskey, of Olds (Alberta) threshed a 100-acre field which yielded 101 bushels of oats per acre, and Joseph McCartney had a large field equally good. At Cupar (Sask.) oats threshed 80 bushels to the acre. On the Traquairs farm at Cupar, a five-acre plot of Marquis wheat yielded 54 bushels to the acre, while Laurence Barknel had 37 bushels of Red Fife to the acre. At Wordsworth, Reeder Bros.' wheat averaged 33¾ bushels to the acre, and W. McMillan's 32. William Krafft of Alix (Alberta) threshed 1,042 bushels of winter wheat off 19¾ acres, or about 53 bushels to the acre. John Laycroft of Dinton, near High River, Alberta, had over 1,100 bushels of spring wheat from 50 acres.

E. F. Knipe, near Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, had 800 bushels of wheat from 20 acres. W. Metcalf had over 31 bushels to the acre, while S. Henderson, who was hailed badly, had an average return of 32 bushels of wheat to the acre.

McWhirter Bros. and John McBain, of Redvers, Saskatchewan, had 25 bushels of wheat to the acre. John Kennedy, east of the Horse Mills district near Edmonton, from 40 acres of spring wheat got 1,767 bushels, or 44 bushels to the acre.

J. E. Vanderburgh, near Dayslow, Alberta, threshed four thousand bushels of wheat from 120 acres. Mr. D'Arcy, near there, threshed ten thousand and fifty-eight bushels (machine measure) of wheat from five hundred acres, and out of this only sixty acres was new land.

At Fleming, Sask., A Winter's wheat averaged 39 bushels to the acre and several others report heavy yields. Mr. Winter's crop was not on summer fallow, but on a piece of land broken in 1882 and said to be the first broke in the Fleming district.

The agent of the Canadian government will be pleased to give information regarding the various districts in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, where free homesteads of 160 acres are available.

NO CHANCE.

Puggles—May I offer you my hand and fortune?

Jessie—No, thanks, dear boy. Your fortune's too small and your hand's too large.

A woman's idea of a great financier is a man who can straighten out her expense account.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Men are known by the good they do rather than the goods they have.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Even a stingy man loosens up when asked for advice.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all humors, catarrh and rheumatism, relieves that tired feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, nervousness, builds up the whole system.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Your Liver is Clogged up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, and Sick Headache.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

"Cured Neuralgia Pain"

"I take pleasure in writing to you that I had a neuralgia pain in my arm for five years, and I used your Liniment for one week and was completely cured. I recommend your Liniment very highly."—Mrs. J. McGraw, 1216 Mandeville St., New Orleans, La.

Cured Quinsy Sore Throat

Mr. Henry L. Caulk, of 1242 Wilson St., Wilmington, Del., writes:—"I bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for the quinsy sore throat and it cured me. I shall always keep a bottle in the house."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

gives instant relief from rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, croup, sore throat, tonsilitis, hoarseness and chest pains.

Prices, 25c., 50c. & $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

REMEMBER PISO'S for COUGHS & COLDS

Modish Coiffures

QUANTITIES of puffs and curls, and all sorts of little headdresses, continue to mark the coiffure of milady of fashion when she prepares to do honor to a state occasion, or to dress with dignity. This elaboration in hair dressing is very becoming in the majority of cases, and those women who have once tried it realize the charm of it. Only the grand beauty may turn her back upon careful arrangement of the hair and still be as attractive as her artfully-groomed sister who knows the fascination of soft curls and smooth puffs.

Unless one has plenty of time and some one to help out, the natural hair can hardly be arranged in the manner shown in the illustrations. No matter how generous nature may have been, puffs and curls are, as a rule, pinned on. Mere man may long to believe them growing on the head of her he admires, but when the knowledge dawns on him that they do not, he still confesses to their fascination.

Not every one can accomplish a successful coiffure either simple or complex, and it is therefore a good plan to decide upon a becoming model, just as one decides upon a becoming hat. When so much progress has been made, the next step takes one to the hairdressing establishment with instructions to the hairdresser to copy the model. If time is precious the coiffure may be manufactured and simply pinned on. But the lady of leisure may achieve her coiffure by having her own hair curled and puffed. This undertaking is much more difficult than that of pinning on the made coiffure.

Bands, decorated with embroideries and gorgeous with gold and jewels, predominate in hair ornaments. There are many other decorations, however, most of them designed to glitter or twinkle in the lights that shine by night. A plain ribbon or velvet band, finished with a bow and the shell barrette are favorites for day wear. No one should neglect to notice the little fringe of curls that nestle about the neck in many of the new styles. A curlless coiffure is hardly to be found, but the curls are placed wherever they will do the most good—that is, wherever they are found to be most effective in enhancing the beauty or the style of their wearer.

In the matter of the coiffure every woman should lay to her heart that French adage which runs: "There is nothing so beautiful as care." Careful hairdressing works wonders and in itself is immensely attractive.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

FOR LITTLE MAIDS.

New models of cheviot and Henrietta cloth for little maids of six.

Dressing for Work.

In the food and raiment brigade, the "do-your-own-work" mothers have a hard time keeping themselves presentable in the eyes of their families. They must wear faded things sometimes, and they cannot spare much of the early morning time for beautifying. Still it is possible for the houseworkers to don one accessory that never fails to freshen and improve the toilet. This is a plain white collar, which costs nothing and requires only a moment to adjust. When the career of white shirtwaists is ended, front plaits, tucked lengths and those of insertion should be cut out, leaving sufficient plain material to hem over the upper edge, so as to avoid scratching the neck. They should be two inches in width and the neck length.

Trimming at the Neck.

Fur is never used around the neck of an evening gown, which always blends as closely as possible with the lines of the shoulders.

If trimming is added at all it is in flat bands and flesh-colored tulle or chiffon is often laid in around the decolletage to soften the dividing line between hair, flesh and fabric.

MANICURING DONE AT HOME

Few Implements Needed, the Chief Thing Being Constant Care and Attention.

You can train yourself to be your own manicure; there is no need to buy a book on the subject, nor is an elaborately-fitted manicure case necessary.

Four implements suffice, and in fact three are all that are absolutely required—a pair of nail scissors, a nail file and a chamois-covered polisher will answer all purposes, but an orange stick may be added for keeping the cuticle or scarf-skin, back from the nail.

The nails should be kept just the length of the fingers and trimmed in an oval curve. After trimming the nails, push the scarf-skin down closely about the base, so that the lunula—commonly called the "half moon"—shows distinctly.

If the nails have been neglected, it will take time and patience to get them right; but a few weeks' attention daily will accomplish wonders. If the scarf-skin has grown upon the nail, do not trim it off, but push it carefully back, using the rounded tip of the file; if necessary, lift the skin from the nail, but avoid breaking it. A little polishing powder may be used once or twice a week and a light rubbing with the chamois polisher every day gives the finishing touch to manicuring.

Modish Evening Frocks.

One may be smart and well gowned this season without a great outlay of money, though a large percentage of the gowns for evening wear are of extreme elegance and of a startling price, thanks to the exquisite materials used and the beautiful embroideries so lavishly set upon diaphanous tulles, chiffons, etc.

Provided one achieves the correct lines in an evening frock and is knowing in the matter of color one may eliminate all elaboration and go in for most pronounced simplicity.

Smart Millinery.

The trig little three-cornered hat so popular last season seems to have appeared again. Women should rejoice at this, for the shape is universally becoming.

It is modified and changed a little of course, but in general outline it gives the same effect.

Temperance

GREAT ILLS OF ALCOHOLISM

Professor Strumpel, Leading Authority on Nervous Diseases, Gives Interesting Experiences.

Professor Strumpel, a leading authority on nervous diseases in Europe, has been giving his medical colleagues some interesting experiences of his researches in the field of "Alcoholism as Viewed From the Medical Standpoint," says a correspondent of the Chicago Daily News. In a private talk before the most noted medical scientists in Vienna the professor outlined in an impassively judicial manner an appalling number and variety of physical and mental diseases resulting from the excessive use of alcohol. He confined himself chiefly to the subject of chronic alcoholism, as acute alcoholism was generally the result of isolated cases of intoxication, the effects of which were usually only temporary and without any lasting consequences.

In the beginning he pointed out that persons who regularly indulge in large quantities of alcohol suffer from chronic catarrh of the throat, stomach and intestines, but, serious as these were, they didn't usually develop further complications and therefore, to the doctor, were of less interest. But it was another thing altogether when it concerns that organ which first introduces alcohol into the blood—that is, the liver. All sufferers from liver diseases are at the most part alcoholists one may with justice assume an original connection between such diseases and the use of alcohol; all the more so as the patients are usually imbibers of "schnaps" and spirits and not of beer or wine, so that is evident the connection depends largely upon the quantity and intensity of the alcohol consumed. Through the liver the alcohol enters the great arteries and circulates through the whole body. Thus it begins an insidious attack upon the vast network of blood vessels, developing later into calcination of the arteries and blood vessels. This disease is frequently found among drunkards. But it would be scientifically wrong to attribute the calcination of the arteries solely to alcoholism, as it may also result from excessive smoking, extraordinary overwork, chronic infections, insufficient nutrition and other causes.

A second symptomatic disease among drinkers is the "beer heart." This consists in an extraordinary enlargement of the heart, with all other indications of heart disease. Persons with "beer hearts" almost invariably die at an age in which healthy hearts have scarcely attained full power. An intemperate consumption of nourishing matter fat is produced which will not be got rid of in the same degree, consequently it accumulates internally and is responsible for the bloated corpulency of beer drinkers. Respiratory diseases and cases of suffocation are the next consequence.

Professor Strumpel passed over the effects of alcohol upon the nervous system and the horrible mental disorders, delirium tremens and the like, as these, he said, had been so frequently and emphatically set forth. He went on to discuss the effect of alcohol in disturbing the general functional workings of the body manifested in such complaints as gout, diabetes and kidney diseases, all of which, he said, were found largely among drinkers.

Among the indirect consequences of alcoholism were an increased receptiveness with a weakened power of resistance in the physical system rendering the subject liable to a number of ravaging diseases, chief among which is tuberculosis. It had been abundantly proved that, whereas in ordinary cases of inflammation of the lungs normal persons recover, to drinkers the disease almost always proves fatal.

Story of Drinking Man.

Chaplain McCabe tells the story of a drinking man, who, being in a saloon late at night, heard the wife of the saloonkeeper say to her husband: "Send that fellow home; it is a shame." "No, never mind," replied her husband; "he is shingling our roof for us." This idea lodged in the mind of the drunkard, and he did not return to the saloon for six months. When he called, the saloonkeeper in the streets of his former victim; "I have not shingling my own roof lately." Still, the industrial aspect of the temperance reform is embodied in this illustration.

Whisky Trade Degrading

"A trade which flourishes upon the ruin of its supporters; which builds its revenues from the plunder of homes, from the defrauding of childhood and from the degradation of manhood; which requires for its prosperity the injury of the community; which ministers to every vile and vicious passion and propensity; which makes drunkards and thieves, and embezzlers and gamblers, and wife beaters and murderers; which brutalizes and degrades all who are brought in contact with it, cannot claim the respect, and assuredly ought not to be able to claim the encouragement of the community."—New York Tribune.

UNKIND.

Wifey—I smell something like leather burning! Is it that cigar?

Hubby—No; but I wouldn't wonder if it's the crust of that pie you just put into the oven.

PAINFUL FINGER NAILS CURED

"I have suffered from the same trouble (painful finger nails) at different periods of my life. The first time of its occurrence, perhaps twenty-five years ago, after trying home remedies without getting helped, I asked my doctor to prescribe for me, but it was not for a year or more that my nails and fingers were well. The inflammation and suppuration began at the base of the finger nail. Sometimes it was so painful that I had to use a poultice to induce suppuration. After the pus was discharged the swelling would go down until the next period of inflammation, possibly not more than a week or two afterwards. These frequent inflammations resulted in the loss of the nail. I had sometimes as many as three fingers in this state at one time.

"Perhaps ten years later I began again to suffer from the same trouble. Again I tried various remedies, among them a prescription from a doctor of a friend of mine, who had suffered from a like trouble. This seemed to help somewhat for a time, but it was not a permanent cure; next tried a prescription from my own doctor, but this was so irritating to the sensitive, diseased skin that I could not use it. I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had used the Cuticura Ointment previously on my children's scalps with good effect. I did not use the Soap exclusively, but I rubbed the Cuticura Ointment into the base of the nail every night thoroughly, and as often beside as I could. I had not used it but a few weeks before my nails were better, and in a short time they were apparently well. There was no more suppuration, nor inflammation, the nails grew out clean again. One box of Cuticura Ointment was all that I used in effecting a cure." (Signed) Mrs. I. J. Horton, Katonah, N. Y., Apr. 13, 1910. On Sept. 21, Mrs. Horton wrote: "I have had no further return of the trouble with my finger nails."

Very Tortuous Indeed.

The late Hugh J. Grant of New York once talked at a political banquet, about a noted corporation lawyer.

"Oh, yes, he's a grand mind," he said. "A grand legal mind. He's got the most tortuous mind in America."

Mr. Grant shook his head.

"A tortuous mind indeed," he repeated. "Why, if he swallowed a nail, he'd bring up a screw."

Resinol Ointment Is an Excellent Remedy for All Scalp Troubles.

I suffered with eruption on my scalp for 15 years when Resinol Salve was recommended to me by one of the best known men in Baltimore. Since using I am so much better that I believe the trouble is practically cured. Rev. H. C. Jones, Extension, La.

And people who do as they please seem to get along just about as well as those who are always trying to please others.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Love making is one kind of cold weather picnic.

FRENCH BEAN COFFEE, A HEALTHFUL DRINK

The healthiest ever; you can grow it in your own garden on a small patch 10 by 10, producing 50 pounds or more. Ripens in Wisconsin 90 days. Used in great quantities in France, Germany and all over Europe. Send 15 cents in stamps and we will mail you a package giving full culture directions as also our mammoth seed catalog free, or send 31 cents and get in addition to above 10,000 kernels unsupassable vegetable and flower seeds—enough for bushels of vegetables and flowers. John A. Salzer Seed Co., 182 S. 8th St., La Crosse, Wis.

Had an Eye to the Future.

"It would probably take many generations of adversity to train Americans into the farseeing thriftiness of my people," once observed an American of Scotch birth. "I remember a case of a Scotch woman who had been promised a new bonnet by a lady. Before she undertook the purchase the lady called and asked the good woman:

"'Would you rather have a felt or a straw bonnet, Mrs. Carmichael?'

"'Weel,' responded Mrs. Carmichael thoughtfully, 'I think I'll tak' a straw ane. It'll maybe a mouthfu' to the coo when I'm done wi' it.'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over 30 Years.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Disapproving Constituent.

"How is your member of congress spending the holidays?"

"Doin' nothin' at home instead of in Washington."

Stiff neck! Doesn't amount to much, but mighty disagreeable. You will be surprised to see how quickly Hamlins Wizard Oil will drive that stiffness out. One night, that's all.

Boasting of saying what you think is often an excuse for not thinking what you say.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take.

Some men borrow trouble and some buy it by the bottle.

A $—Dollar for a Dime

Why spend a dollar when 10c buys a box of CASCARETS at any drug store? Use as directed—get the natural, easy results. Saves many dollars wasted on medicines that do not cure. Millions regularly use CASCARETS. Buy a box now—10c. week's treatment—proof in the morning. 908

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 100 acres, or 40 1-2 bu. per acre, 25, 30 and 45 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 152 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

Write at once to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (736)

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.)

Work Less—Earn More

On a five acre truck farm in the Pensacola District of Florida. Our lands are rich and fertile. Nine miles from city. Two railroads through property. Canning factory takes the crops. No long haul or commission house trouble. Terms $10.00 cash—$5.00 a month. Write for our descriptive literature.

PENSACOLA REALTY CO., Pensacola, Fla., P. O. Box 27

MICHIGAN FARMS—If you are not satisfied with your present condition and prospect for the future, then move to Michigan and make sure of a good yearly income from a farm in the rich agricultural section of Central Michigan; a farm that will produce large crops of grains, fruits and vegetables, near the very best markets where you get top prices for all you raise. I have several fine farms for sale, and some raw land, that will suit you in price, kind and location. John F. Wilkinson, Lansing, Michigan.

FREE Transportation Florida and Returns. Mail names live land buyers. This ad has value. White Florida Land Syndicate, Jacksonville, Florida.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 6-1911.

A READER CURES HIS CONSTIPATION—TRY IT FREE

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practised the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by tranquilizing the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

COLT DISTEMPER

Can be handled very easily. The sick are cured, and all others in the same stable, no matter how "exposed," kept from having the disease, by using SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER CURE. Give on the tongue, or in food. Acts on the blood and expels germs of all forms of distemper. Best remedy ever known for mares in foal. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. 50c and $1 a bottle. At druggists or dozen of druggists and harness dealers, or sent express paid by manufacturers. Cut shows how to position throat. Our free Book tells everything. Local agents wanted. Largest selling horse remedy in existence—twelve years.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

W. L. DOUGLAS

ESTAB 1876 $3, $3.50 & $4 SHOES FOR MEN & WOMEN

IF YOU COULD VISIT W. L. DOUGLAS LARGE FACTORIES AT BROCKTON, MASS., and see how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why dollar for dollar they are guaranteed to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other $3.00, $3.50 or $4.00 shoes you can buy. Quality counts.—It has made W. L. Douglas shoes a household word everywhere.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price are stamped on the bottom, which is a safeguard against substitutes, and the value of which are unknown. Refuse all substitutes. You are entitled to the best. Insist upon having the genuine W. L. Douglas shoes.

BOYS' SHOES

If your dealer can't supply you with W. L. Douglas Shoes, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass. $2.00 $2.50 & $3.00

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, In Plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition, cloth-bound, sent for 31 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of wrapping and mailing only. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A Country School for Girls in New York City

Best Features of Country and City Life

Out-of-door Sports on School Park of 25 acres near the Hudson River. Full Academic Course from Primary Class to Graduation. Upper Class for Advanced Special Students. Music and Art. Summer Session. Certificate admits to College. School Coach Meets Day Pupils.

Miss Bangs and Miss Whitin, Riverdale Ave., near 253d St., West

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or of new asthmatic symptoms. Whitten's system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 3 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHITTEN, M. D., Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

ONE LADY wanted in this section to make good money selling brand new necessity for women. Send today for free particulars. M. Rubert, 3485 Broadway, N. Y.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months..... .75
One copy three months..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1911.

IN THE House of Representatives the other day, the chaplain offered this brief but very appropriate and suggestive prayer: "Infinite Spirit, Father of all souls, broaden the scope of our vision, quicked our spiritual pulse and draw us closer to Thee that we may have more religion, fewer isms, more morality, fewer criminalities, more sobriety, more harmony, fewer strikes, cleaner homes, fewer divorces, a better government, and fewer laws, that Thy kingdom may come and Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Amen."

COME EAST, YOUNG MAN.

That is certainly an impression declaration made by a former Easton man who is now residing in one of the boomed cities of the West in a recent letter to a Baltimore man, to the effect that a great many who left the South and the East to seek much-heralded advantages in the West are anxiously waiting a chance to get back to the Atlantic Slope. It is said that "There are so many people on the Pacific Coast that have experienced such bitter disappointments they are eagerly hunting for some place to go to start life over again on a safe, conservative basis."

The advertising method is sometimes conducted in the West with an entire disregard for the truth. Advantages are not only exaggerated, but opportunities of a purely imaginary kind are sometimes set forth with a picturesqueness of detail that classifies such appeals as nothing less than confidence games. This sort of advertising is often done by unscrupulous private individuals, land agents or some other kind of promoter who has a theoretic opportunity for sale.

There is just now a steady trend from the West and the Northwest to the old South—that section which lies south of Mason and Dixon's line and east of the Mississippi River. There is no other section of the United States offering more abundant real opportunities. And when it is agricultural opportunity that is being hunted for there is no other county in the Union that has more attractive inducements of offer than Garrett. The proper dictum just now is: Come East, young man, and to the East that is below the Mason and Dixon line and in Garrett county.

HOBSON'S CHOICE

Representative Hobson has greatly edified the nation and interested the world by his lurid prophesy with regard to the war with Japan he sees impending. His choice is not that of the peace people, but that of the jingoist, who is bent upon increasing armament until the nation will shake under the weight of its arms. No intelligent American interested in the safeguarding of the peace of the nation by adequate armament will be disposed to doubt the widom of considerable more speed in the building of war vessels than at present is being shown. Yet not many persons can appreciate the state of minds of the hero of the Spanish-American War when he calls for feverish preparations for a strife that will burst upon the country within a year. There is absolutely nothing of war moment between this country and Japan, and as long as excitable public sentiment is not created over some act or policy offensive to the Island Empire the United States may posess the Philippines in peace, it may continue its benevolent jurisdiction over the Hawaii Islands unchallenged, and it may rest secure in the fact that it has no reason to apprehend invasion of its Northwest domestic borders.

Mr. Hobson's choice, that of the alarmist, is unfortunate, because thro such talk a wrong impression is apt to be created and an unfounded alarm engendered. There is no use whatever in any of this kind of declamation. The one necessity is that the United States should have provident regard for the future; that it should bear in mind that it can hardly enter upon its widened career as a contestant for the trade of the East without creating jealousies and suspicions, and that a nation's navy should be adequate for the range of its commerce and the extent of its coast line.

There is no specific cause for alarm at the present time, but there is no assurance that such will not arise. In fact, the only adequate way to prevent serious difficulties occurring is to exercise the eternal vigilance that is the price of liberty. Of course, the United States has the men and resources to take care of itself in hostilities with any combination of powers, but it does not seek to have occasion to demonstrate its staying ability where the loss of multitudes of lives and the expenditure of millions of treasure would be involved. So that it is doing the things it should do; it is preparing to fortify the canal, it is strengthening itself by adequate fortifications at Pearl Harbor, and it is building ships of the first class with a fair degree of celerity. Here is its one laxness. It should build up a navy twice as rapidly as provided for in the programs of any of the other powers that are transforming treasury millions into naval defense millions. The choice of Mr. Hobson to be a clarion-toned prophet will not cause the people to look for craters.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

How Many Schools has He Visited

To the Editor of The Republican:

The state school law provides that the County Superintendent of public schools in Garrett county shall make two official visits to each school annually, or approximately three hundred and thirty visits each year, or about two and one-half visits each day or twelve schools each week during the school year.

By observation the writer is lead to believe and is taking no chances in asserting that the County Superintendent has visited less than 25 per cent. of the schools in the county during the present school year.

The tax payers are paying a clerk $400 per year to do the office and clerical work of the school board. What are we getting for the $1400 per year paid to the County Superintendent?

A TAX PAYER.

Oakland, Feb. 22, 1911.

Many, Many Thanks.

To the Editor of The Republican:

I feel that I must compliment you for the good wholesome reading matter which has been published in the columns of your paper for some months past. Your efforts toward elevating our schools and the moral tone of our town will, in time have good effect. Maybe not immediately, but I make the prediction that eventually the right will win.

While upon numerous occasions I have heard many complaints concerning the appearance and general decreptitude of the other local papers I have never heard anything detrimental of THE REPUBLICAN along this line. It has been always up-to-date. A READER.

Oakland, Md., Feb. 22, 1911.

Maple Sugar Making.

To the Editor of The Republican:

The session for making maple sugar is near at hand. It usually commences in the last half of February and lasts till spring weather comes. The present indications are very favorable for a good season. The cold winter weather and deep snows in the mountain region are favorable for large yields. Maple sugar cannot be produced without cold freezing weather, with plenty of snow. These elements put the water into the outer parts of the trees, which is procured by the tapping process of the trees. Some persons call this sweet water sap, but this is a palpable error. Sugar trees, like all other trees, have sap, which comes only with the warm spring weather. The sap of a sugar tree when coming late spoils or injures the sugar, gives it a dark color and an ill taste. The fair and sweetest sugar is made in the early part of the season, when the water is entirely free from any impurities. The cake sugar and molasses are generally made in the latter part of the season, when the sugar water will not produce fair sugar.

The maple sugar regions are confined to the cold, wintry climates. Sugar trees are not to be found in warm climates. Our sugar belt is in the Allegany mountains in Garrett county, chiefly between Meadow and Negro Mountains, with large portions on the Pennsylvania side in Somerset county. The sugar making interest is quite an important one in Garrett and Somerset counties. The chief sugar manufacturer in Garrett county is Mr. Ralph Engle. He has two camps, (properly orchards), near each other. He makes large quantities of a good article and gets big prices, about double the cost of granulated sugar. There are a large number of makers in Garrett county, with nice profits, about double the prices of the granulated article. There are a large number of makers in Garrett, but hardly any in old Allegany. On the Pennsylvania side, we find Elijah Livengood, the sugar king, so called. He has two camps, one on the Maryland side and the other on the Pennsylvania side of the historic line.

"Sugar Camp" no doubt takes its name from the log hut that in early times was the place where the sugar was made in a primitive manner, with great hardships and expenses. Sugar orchard is certainly a more suitable name for the place where the sweet article ir made. JACOB BROWN.

Cumberland, Md.

Washington-Montana Exhibition Car.

The Washington-Montana Exhibition car, containing the greatest collection of fruits, grains, grasses and vegetables ever exhibited by a railroad, will be here on February 28th, and will be placed near the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station for public inspection. This car is sent out by the Great Northern Railroad and in addition to the exhibit within the car a stereoptican lecture, free to the public, will be given, probably in the court room, as a move to have that portion of the court house given over for the purpose is being made. Speakers accompany the exhibition who will explain to all the great natural resources of the country represented by the exhibits.

Relieved by Congress.

A notable victory for the Quakers, Dunkards and Mennonnites was won in congress by Representative Butler when he had stricken from the law language which on its face classed them as disloyal to the Union during the civil war because their religion forbade them going to war.

Subscribe for The Republican, Oldest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

THE BILLBOARDS—ISSUE ONE

Efforts of State Tuberculosis Association Toward Publicity.

Since the first of the month a number of large eight sheet posters on the billboards about the city have attracted considerable attention, largely on account of the fact that they do not advertise anything for sale. They are designed as a warning and to instill into people's minds a few facts about tuberculosis and its prevention. They call attention to the fact that a careless consumptive is a menace to his relatives and friends, and to the further fact that bad air in sleeping rooms, school rooms, and other places where people must remain for hours at a time, is bad for the health and may be a contributing cause to consumption.

These posters are a part of a nation wide campaign of education. Those in Oakland were posted gratuitously by the New York Bill Posting Co., through the courtesy of its manager, Mr. D. A. Stephens, the billboard space and the work of posting having been contributed by Mr. Stephens to the Maryland Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, without expense. Similar posters have been put all over the country through the co-operation of the National Associations of Bill Posters. This is a part of what is undoubtedly the greatest free advertising and publicity campaign in the history of the advertising business in the United States.

Saturday Bargain Sales

Will be a new departure at our store commencing on Saturday morning, February 18th. All bargains will be shown and priced in plain figures during the week in our center show window and subject to stock on hand. The bargains are only offered on Saturdays to cash buyers and will not be held or promised to the trade during the week.

Special lines and factory shipments will be bought for our Saturday sales that will include a large variety of goods along household lines, such as granite ware, glassware, tinware, specialties in hardware, woodenware, 5 and 10 cent goods, paints, novelties, etc., suited to the wants of the housewife.

Watch the show and see what bargains we will have to offer you on Saturday of each week.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS

Appeals From New Assessment.

By notice printed elsewhere in these columns today the Board of County Commissioners give notice that as a board of control and review the commissioners will be in session at the court house to hear and determine appeals from the new assessments made in Districts Nos. 1, 10, 4 and 13. Specific dates are set for appeals from the several districts and these should be kept in mind by those having business before the board concerning the assessment of their properties

B. & O. Invites Complaints.

The new time cards and folders of the Baltimore and Ohio are occasioning much favorable comment from the patrons of that system, and Assistant General Passenger Agent Taggart is swollen with pride in consequence. An innovation consists in an insert page in the form of a private postcard wherein patrons are invited and urged to indite any complaints regarding service, as well as suggestions for improvement thereof. The Baltimore and Ohio is the first railroad, so far as known, to furnish persons with grievances, imaginary or real with facilities for registering the same at headquarters.

New Mill Machinery Received.

Last Friday and Saturday Messrs. Dixon & Kelso, of Oakland, received from the manufacturers at Chamberburg, Pa., two car loads of machinery which is to be installed in the building of the Oakland firm on Liberty street for the purpose of manufacturing flour. The machines are of the latest improved patterns of the roller process type for the manufacture of wheat flour, three grades of which will be made by the firm. It will require three or four practical millwrights two months to properly instal the machines in the building, erect the elevators and get the mill in running order. Upon the completion of the work the local firm mill begin the manufacture of flour upon a large scale.

Pretty Poor Stuff.

A drunken Slav with jugs of whisky deposited and insecurely held under each arm was passing down Second street last Friday when one of the containers slipped from its anchorage and fell to the pavement with the result that it broke and the contents flowed like water and smelled like a skunk. The absence of alcohol but the presence of some other ingredient that produces drunkenness was evident. Several attempts were made to set the fluid on fire, all of them failing

Funeral.

The funeral services of Charles Frazee were held at the residence of his father, A. J. Frazee, near Selbysport on Friday, February 10 at 2 p. m. The young man had been going to school at Ada, Ohio, at which place he died. He was a bright boy and was liked by all. The contributions of flowers were many and beautiful.

Has Bought Modern Home.

Tuesday Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill purchased the residence of Mr. W. R. Smith located on Green street extended, the consideration being $10,000. The house was recently built and is surrounded by large well kept grounds. It is one of the most beautiful homes in Oakland and the new owner will soon occupy it.

Journalistic.

A Kansas editor "sets his editorials in type by music." That is, he has a large grapophone in the composing room and if in a hurry, he puts in a record a lively one, something like "The Cabanola Glide." If it be a dull day, he has the instrument reproduce a dreamy waltz or lullaby. If a candidate for mayor, councilman, bailiff or policeman drops in, and he is "a live one," he turns on "See the Conquering Hero Comes," or something like that. The editor's last effort, however, is reported as a triumphial march entitled—"The Seven-Column Paper in a Five-Column Town."

Subscribed for The Republican.

At Everett Tunnel.

The construction company that has charge of the work at Everett tunnel, on the seventeen mile grade, are pushing the work as rapidly as possible. They have men working day and night in order so complete the work of making the tunnel a cut.

Appointments For Deer Park Charge, M. E. Church.

Feb. 26, North Glade, 11 a. m. Bond, revival meeting, 7:30 p. m. Thayerville, 3 p. m., by Bro. H. S. Tasker, or Geo. W. Moon.

March 5, Swanton 11 a. m. Bond, reval meeting, 7:30 p. m. Wilson, 3 p. m, by Bro. J. C. Rodehaver. Deer Park, 7:30 p. m.

March 12. Pastor at Mountain Lake Park quarterly meeting. Deer Park, 7:30 p. m. Revival meeting begins 7:30 p. m., at Dodge.

March 18. Quarterly conference, following preaching at 11 a. m., at Dodge, by Rev. P. Z. Musgrave. Also 19th at 11 a. m., followed by sacrament of Lord's Supper. Armstead, 3 p. m. Dodge revival meeting, 7:30 p. m.

March 25, (Saturday), Wilsons, 3 p.m.

March 26, North Glade, 11 a. m. Thayerville, 3 p. m., Sacrament. Dodge, 7:30 p. m.

April 2. Armstead, Sacrament, 11 a. m. Dodge, 3. m. Deer Park, 7:30 p. m.

April 9, Bond, 11 a. m. Harrison, 3 p. m. Bond, 7:30 p. m.

April 16, Deer Park, 11 a. m. Wilsons, 3 p. m. Swanton, 7:30 p. m.

April 23, North Glade 11 a. m. Thayerville, 7:30 p. m.

April 30, Armstead, 11 a. m. Dodge, 3 p. m. Thayerville, 7:30 p. m. Deer Park, 7:30 p. m. by some substitute.

Members and friends please clip out this list for reference.

D. L. REID, Pastor.

Special Bargains.

Special Saturday bargains will be found at Davis' Hardware on Saturday of each week. Watch the window.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows: Sunday school at 2:15 p. m. Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Epworth League Monday 7:30 p. m. Prayermeeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK'S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m. Sunday school at 2:30 p. m. Epworth League at 6:45 p. m. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Wesley Chapel—Preaching at 11 a. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows: Loch Lynn—Preaching at 11 a. m. Deer Park—Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

HAUSER.

Rev. Wade was removed from his home in Eglon to Davis, W. Va., and was operated on last Saturday. The doctors report him as much improved and expect him to be about and in good health in a few weeks. Rev. Wade has been seriously ill for the most part of the past year. Everyone in or near this place are anxiously waiting and hoping for his speedy recovery.

Mrs. H. C. Fowler was sick with an attack of la grippe during the larger part of last week.

Mr. Ike Arnold is sick at the present time.

Master Guy Devers was quite sick with a severe cold last wsek.

Mr. Joe Martin was attacked last week with a severe case of la grippe. Master Elwood is much improved.

Miss Bertha Nicholson visited home folks Saturday and returned Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Roth and Mr. and Mrs. Lem Reed visited with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mosser last Sunday.

Miss Marguerite Roth visited Misses Hilda and Pearl Mosser last Sunday.

Just Arrived.

A lot of Fancy Gas Shades which were shipped last September and miscarried by the Railroad Company. The mannfacturers have instructed us to close them out at cost. Regular $1.00 and 75 ct. Fancy Shades of Crystal Stripe, Red, White and Flowered designs, while they last 75 and 50 cents,

S. LAWTON & SONS.

SATURDAY BARGAINS

CHOICE

7 C.

See Window Display

J. M. DAVIS & SONS

The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County.

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department Takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.

Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays. 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

ORDER NISI.

George T. Dunlop, et al., vs, John T. Shanks, et. al.,

No. 1158 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland

Ordered this 22nd day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Edward H Sincell, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sales to be $900.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

NOTICE OF FIRST MEETING OF CREDITORS.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland.

In the matter of Elias S. Braham, Bankrupt

IN BANKRUPTCY

To the creditors of Elias S. Braham, of Bloomington in the county of Garrett, and District aforesaid, a Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 2nd day of February, A. D., 1911, the said party was adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at my Law Office, No. 6 Centre Street, in Cumberland, Maryland, on the 27th day of February, A. D., 1911, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact suh other business as may properly come before said meeting.

ALBERT A. DOUB,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

Feb 14, 1911.

GILMOR S. HAMILL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY.

Office in Ravenscroft Building, Second St.

Particular attention given to Conveyancing Investigation of land titles and collection of claims. Loans negotiated.

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of Instruction leading to professional degree of B. S. Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Prop'r

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars

Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL.	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS. .	45,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.
G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.
S. T. JONES, Cashier.
G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt — Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis — George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell — William R. Stull
Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Makes Home Baking Easy

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

NO ALUM. NO LIME PHOSPHATE

Mr. D. W. Fraker, of near McHenry, was in Oakland yesterday.

Mr. P. J. Garrett, of Deer Park, was in the city Tuesday on business.

Mr. Charles A. Ashby, of Deer Park, was in Oakland yesterday on business.

Miss Marie Grusendorf, of Hutton, spent Friday evening in Oakland with friends.

Mr. D. Y. Morris returned to Oakland Monday afternoon from a brief visit to Kingwood.

Mrs. Charles D. Smith, of Parsons, W. Va., is here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. A. D. Naylor.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

Mrs. James Willison entertained a number of ladies at her home last Thursday night at cards.

Miss Hattie Wheeler, of Reedsville, W. Va., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. D. H. Loar, in Oakland.

Mr. John W. McCullough, one of the prominent citizens of Friendsville, is in Oakland today on business.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Sincell, of Keyser, were guests of relatives in Oakland last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. James Wilburn, of near Hoyes, was in the city last Friday when he made this office a brief business visit.

Rev. A. R. Gay, of Toronto, Canada, will preach in the Presbyterian church, Sunday, Feb. 26, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, who visited relatives and friends at Kitzmiller and Keyser last week, returned to Oakland last Thursday.

Yesterday being a legal holiday the banks of Oakland were closed for the day and at the postoffice Sunday hours were observed.

Mrs. Leah F. Sincell left Oakland last Friday for Cumberland and Lonaconing where she will visit her daughters for some weeks.

The Republican for Job Printing.

Mr. W. R. Stull, who spent Tuesday in Oakland, left here the same afternoon for Florida, where he expects to remain until early spring.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bond, of of Thomas, W. Va., and Mr. James Bond, of Brockwayville, Pa., are here as guests of Mr. Ninian U. Bond.

Dr. J. H. Ravenscroft has moved his family from Hambleton, W. Va., to Kitzmiller, this county, where he will pursue the practice of his profession.

Mrs. F. G. Hyde, who spent a number of weeks in New York and Washington, where she was the guest of relatives, returned home Saturday morning.

Mr. Frank B. Palmer, of the B. & O. freight department at Clarksburg, W. Va., spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Palmer, in Oakland.

Dr. John G. Robinson returned to his home in Oakland Tuesday from Bond where he had directed the music at a series of meetings held there during the previous week.

Mr. W. H. Bowers, of the Enterprise Store Company at Hutton, was in Cumberland last Friday on business, in company with Mr. J. O. Thomas, manager of the company.

Prof. Bert Browning, principal of the Accident graded school, spent last Saturday in Oakland on business, being accompanied here by his brother Ray from Thaverville.

Mrs. Patrick J. Garrett, of Deer Park, was in the city last Saturday, having come here to visit her father, ex-Senator R. T. Browning, were condition is steadily improving.

Mr. U. M. Stanton, one of the progressive farmers of Grantsville District, was in Oakland last Friday on business, returning home the same afternoon via Frostburg.

County Superintendent E. A. Browning returned to Oakland last Thursday night from Baltimore. He was preceded to Oakland by Mr. C. A. Deffnbaugh Thursday morning, both of whom had been in Baltimore to appear before the State Board of Education.

TO THE RESCUE!

A BANK ACCOUNT IS YOUR RESERVE IN THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

W. L. DOUGLAS, the great Boston shoe manufacturer and former Governor of Massachusetts, first saved and banked $600 he got for making and mending shoes. This was his start in business. Today he is worth many millions.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.
OAKLAND, MD.

GLASS REMOVED AND WINDOW ROBBED

Pair of Shoes and Umbrella Extracted from Offutt Store.

Sometime during the hours intervening between midnight Sunday and daylight Monday morning a piece of the large plate glass, which had previously been broken, in the Second street front of the Offutt store in Oakland was pushed or pried out of position and through the aperture thus made a pair of shoes and an umbrella, which were being exhibited in the window, were extracted and carried off by the thief.

As soon as the robbery became known officers traced the thief or thieves by tracks left in the snow to the Baltimore and Ohio pumping station east of town and up through the yard of the property located just above the station and occupied by Mr. David Glaze and family. The tracks indicated that there were two in the party, a man and a woman. Just before the officers arrived Mr. Glaze discovered the shoes and umbrella partly covered by snow which had fallen during the night, lying in his front yard. The goods were promptly returned to the store from which they had been stolen. As yet no trace of the robbers have been discovered by the officials.

Miss Ora Cale and Mrs. W. L. Buzzell, of William, W. Va., who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Perry W. Frantz at the Frantz Hotel last week, have returned to their homes at William.

According to the recent census returns given out by the department at Washington, the population of Piedment, W. Va., decreased 231 in the ten years preceding the recent census.

The Mayor and council of Cumberland at a recent meeting of the municipal officers of that city awarded a contract to a Philadelphia firm for the erection of a new city hall to cost $70,000

Carl Brown, of Oakland, who pitched for the Grafton base ball team last summer, during the city's membership in the West Virginia League, was in the city on a visit to friends Monday.—Grafton Sentinel.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Mr. William Bishoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Bishoff, of near Oakland, left here yesterday afternoon for Baltimore to resume his position in the railway mail service. His route has not yet been assigned him.

Messrs. Charles Liller, Urcel Taylor and Cal Echard were at Keyser Monday afternoon attending the funeral of their friend, the late Clyde Davis, a member of the Keyser Band, who died at Keyser on Saturday of tuberculosis.

A number of Oakland people went to Baltimore Monday to visit the automobile show now being held in that city. Among the visitors were Dr. Webster Ravenscroft, Sheriff Andrew Shartzer and State Senator Harvey J. Speicher.

An interesting revival meeting is being conducted by Rev. D. L. Reid, the pastor, at Bond. The services will continue up to and including Sunday, March 5. The meetings so far have been profitable to the membership of the church and great good is expected to result from these meetings.

An effort is being made by the manager of the Enterprise Store Company at Hutton to have the affairs of the concern taken out of the hands of the receivers recently appointed by the Court. A proposition has been made to the creditors of the concern and the probabilities are that matters will be satisfactorily adjusted.

Recently this office has been in receipt a number of unsigned communications bearing upon matters of public interest, but following a well established custom not to publish communications from an anonymous source, these letters have gone the way of thousands of others in well-regulated newspapers offices and will never appear in print.

Mr. Henry Wend and family, who having been residing at Hutton for the past several years, and who recently disposed of their property to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for a right-of-way for the new tracks of the company now being constructed north of 58-cut, expect to leave Hutton sometime within the next month for the State of Washington, where they will make their future home.

Mr. W. C. Dunnington, whose lease for Mountain Lake Park Hotel expires with the close of the coming season, is making preparations for the early opening of that far-famed hostelry. He has received many inquiries concerning rates, etc., thus early in the year which indicates that the season at the Park will open early and will be a busy one. With the park well filled and other near-by resorts liberally patronize, Oakland will feel its good effects commercially, and everyone in the town and surrounding community should endeavor to boost the Park and not hamper the management in getting people interested in it by coming here and locating for a few months each year.

CHURCH RALLY A GREAT SUCCESS

$1300 Raised at the Morning Service in St. Paul's M. E. Church.

A debt aggregating about $1300 which has been resting upon the members of St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland for a number of months past, was wiped off the slate at the morning service held in that church on Sunday last, when the entire amount was pledged, a goodly portion being paid in cash.

The debt had accumulated in small amounts and represented repairs made in the parsonage, the installation of a water motor to operate the organ, fuel, gas installation and gas fixtures and other incidentals. The ease with which the fund was raised is a great source of congratulation to both the pastor and official members of the church.

Cash Prizes Given for a Name for Our New Wheat Mill.

We will give three grand cash prizes for the most suitable name sent to us for our new Wheat Mill. Contest open to all in Garrett county. Conditions, that only one name can be submitted by each person. At the close the contest the name will be chosen by three judges selected to decide on the best name submitted, and winners names will be published. Write name plainly.

Contest to close Saturday, March 11. First prize, $10 cash; second prize, $5 cash; third prize, $2.50 cash.

Our wheat mill will be in operation about six weeks, and will be of the very newest pattern, with daily capacity of 65 barrels.

DIXON & KELSO.

Mr. G. A. Fraley returned to Oakland Thursday morning from Baltimore, being accompanied by Mrs. Fraley, whose improvement in health since a recent operation performed on her brain by a specialist in Johns Hopkins Hospital in that city, has been exceedingly slow, but progressing steadily. Mrs. Fraley's family and friends are gratified with her return to her home and with the prospects for her ultimate recovery.

The special sale of household utensils, advertised in these colrmns last week by Messrs. J. M Davis & Sons, proved to be a great success. Hundreds of useful articles were bought by the patrons of this wide-awake firm at prices that were far below the value of the goods. These Saturday sales will continue indefinitely and each week new bargains will be offered. See the centre display window of the firm for the bargains to be offered Saturday of this week.

Mr. John Ault, who recently went to Pittsburg from Oakland with the intention of making a visit to relatives, has decided his family in Oakland that he intends to locate permanently in that city and will return here shortly to arrange his business matters and remove his furniture and members of his family to Pittburg where they will locate permanently. The many friends of Mr. Ault and his estimable family regret to learn of their intended departure from here.

J. A. Kelly, the liveryman, who conducted very successfully last October public action of horses, mules, carriages, etc., has had large posters printed at this office announcing another sale which is to take place at his livery barn in Oakland on March 4th, when about fifty head of horses will be offered including brood mares, stallions, drivers and general purpose horses, besides a number of half-bred Percheron and Belgian colts ranging from one to three years old. Several registered Jersey cows will also be offered as well as farming machinery, wagons, carriages and other property. Some bargains of rare value may be had by attending this sale as nearly all the property listed will be sold without reserve.

A number of the members of Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons went to Westernport Monday afternoon where they attended a communication of Hiram Lodge of that city, when four initiations into the mysteries of the Craft occurred. Following the lodge session a banquet was served by the ladies of the Eastern Star to the Masons which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present. The guests from Oakland speak in the highest praise of the Westernport ladies for their hospitality and excellent entertainment. Those who are members of the local lodge and went over here to Westernport were Dr. F. Bartlett, Rev. E. Manges, Dr. W. Pinkwater, Messrs. Herman Creutzburg, James L. Pollock, Charles J. Lineman, A. D. Naylor, J. C. Renning-ton, E. Sliger, Arthur Lawton, Benj. Sincell, Will B. Miller, Charles E. Cleary and E. M. Mickey.

New Fruit Store.

"Hello, Bessie," said Nora, "I have something new to tell you."

"What do you mean? Is there anything going on? I hav'nt been down town for a good while." "Why, yes; a new fruit store has been opened in the Ravenscroft building where you may get the finest fruit of all kinds; always fresh for the least money. You may take the fruit home with you, examine it and if not satisfactory you may return it and get your money back." Give us a call. JOSEPH & RATHA.

Valuable Farm at Public Auction.

The undersigned will offer at public sale in front of the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday, March 1st, 1911, at two o'clock p. m., his farm of 100 acres, lying in District No. 4 at the mouth of Dry Run, 2½ miles from the town of Oakland. About forty acres of the farm is cleared and and under cultivation; apple trees and other good fruit; house and barn; 3 good springs; about 100 feet saw timber.

TERMS of Sale—$800 in cash on day of sale and balance to suit purchaser.

For further information address
DAVID T. MICHAEL,
R. D., 1, Swanton, Md.

Garthright's Notice.

This is hereby given to all who are indebted to me either on note or open account to make immediate settlement as I must close up my personal affairs. If settlement is not made within a reasonable time my books will be placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to force settlement.

Thanking all for their patronage and asking a continuance of the same for my new firm, I am,

Very respectfully,
P. T. GARTHRIGHT.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

PUMPS.

A Bargain in a Few Second Hand

PUMPS.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp. P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

FRIENDSVILLE.

That was a warm spell we had last week but it did not fool us.

Charley Lash is visiting among his old friends here. The south does not seem to agree with him.

Salathiel Savage was driving around with F. C. Giffin last week. The latter is in the employ of the Pension office and was here to make a list of the old soldiers who draw pensions. It took them four days to visit all in this vicinity.

George F. Frazee was a visitor for a few days to Connellsville last week.

Mrs. Rebecca Brown has been seriously ill for some time.

The revival services in the Christian church came to a close Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ober arrived on the noon train Saturday to visit relatives and friends.

During the absence of his father, W. W. Savage took his place as funeral director at the funeral of Sol Frantz's baby, some miles west of town.

Geo. D. Browning is visiting in Friendsville for a few days.

That was good news regarding the new road and the engineers are coming just as soon as the weather will permit.

We heard that the B. and O. R. R. Co., intended extending its road to Oakland from Kendall, but lately nothing new has transpired. It would be quite a joke on the B. and O. if the Western Maryland were to put a road through from their lines at Confluence and although it is a water grade, there is only about room for one line of railroad, so the first to get there is the lucky one.

Our Mayor has improved the crossing on Walnut street 100 per cent, and we can cross now without getting in the mud.

The town council met to reorganize Monday evening.

Henry Speicher, representing Speicher Bros., shipped a valuable horse to New Jersey on Monday.

John W. McCullough is at home with his family this week.

Which will it be, the Baltimore and Ohio or the Western Maryland to go through here to Oakland.

Co-Operative Buying.

Large co-operative buying will enable us to offer some very low prices on special lines. See our Saturday bargains. J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

We are offering this week some extra Bargains in Pocket Knives. Values 50 cents to $1 for 30 cents to 75 cents; by mail 5 cents extra.

Extra Values Saturday in Enameled Ware. Values up to 60 cents on Saturday your choice for 25 cents.

A choice Assortment of Tinware. Values up to 25 cents, your choice Saturday for 10 cents.

Will give double Trading Stamps on Saturday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,
S. LAWTON & SONS.

Subscribe for The Republican.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

It's no longer "grippe" in London. Just "Flu."

Nobody has been heard to complain of lack of variety in the weather.

Aviators are still making new world records, and yet the sport is in its infancy.

Everything comes to him who waits; another restaurant employe has fallen heir to a fortune.

If the aeroplanes will abolish war the peace commission should at once subsidize all it can reach.

Aviators as a class are going to be more careful this year. Natural selection will eliminate the reckless ones.

It took a postal card 36 years to go from Connecticut to Indiana. Bet a dollar he had it in his pocket all the time.

In Cleveland an engineer has been made a present of a locomotive. This is better than a white elephant, as it consumes no hay.

In New York they are trying to remedy the evils of divorce by remedying the evils of marriage. That seems a thoughtful method.

Medicine Hat wants its name changed. We would be better pleased if it changed the brand of weather it sends down this way.

We are glad to learn that "red shirts make hens lay," but what garment would influence them to cut their present prices on eggs?

They say that bad roads cost this country three million dollars a year. We could have a pretty good little war for that sum. Let us fix the roads.

Without questioning for one second the bravery of our own policemen, we would point out that the London bobby has to face all comers without a revolver.

Puccini, when he started back to Italy, was kissed by 40 men who sing in grand opera. After having gone through that, sea-sickness will have no terrors for him.

It is no crime to steal an umbrella on a rainy day in New Jersey. Will all persons who indulge in that pastime please go to New Jersey to oblige the rest of us?

A Canton (O.) man says that 50-cent hats are good enough for any woman, but the Canton man will no doubt experience considerable difficulty getting any woman to wear one.

An Ohio doctor who dissected 100 cats reports that he found tuberculosis germs in every one of them. He does not say what he did with the supply of germs thus secured.

In trying to get rid of corrupt policemen Gotham seems to have leaped out of the frying pan into the fire. They are more honest than they used to be, but they now write poetry.

Following the hobble we are to have the bi-plane skirt. As it is to be a bifurcated garment man had better look to his own. Plainly the trend of feminine fashions is toward the mannish; but the more manlike woman becomes the less womanly she is.

Now a medical expert has cut out a man's lungs to cure tuberculosis. The operation is claimed to be a new one, but if successful will be followed up by the theory of curing diseases generally by the simple process of removing the organ affected so that a man with more than his average share of trouble in the shape of disease will find life but a hollow sort of affair.

The wife of a Pennsylvania farmer found a nugget of gold in the crop of a chicken she was dressing, and now there is great excitement, the community having resolved itself into a prospecting party. But the chances are that there is more gold in chickens killed and prepared for market at present prices than in mines or placers in the Keystone state.

Official figures from annual reports show that the post office department has nearly reached the point where it is self-sustaining. And there are several changes which might yet be effected in the interest of economy and the saving of public money. It is no function of the government to make a profit in carrying the people's mails, but everybody would share in the benefit should the cost be so reduced as to permit lower postage rates.

And now it is discovered that an epidemic of tuberculosis prevails among the rabbits of New York state. Another result, no doubt, of leading a fast life and going the pace that kills.

A Nantucket fisherman hooked a large codfish, from whose stomach, when cut open, flew out a good-sized duck, whose escaping flight was stopped by a sportman's bullet. Both Jonah and the champion fish story are surpassed, while even the Ananias club is gasping with astonishment.

The World's Wonders

STRANGE THINGS FOUND IN VARIOUS PORTIONS OF THE EARTH

Turf Gatherers on Stilts

The province of East Prussia, which adjoins the Russian frontier and is inhabited by Lithuanians, possesses many lakes and a great deal of marshy ground. The latter has much turf. This the Lithuanians sell to the Germans, who use it as fuel. The turf-gatherers walk over the marshy ground on stilts, carrying on their heads the bundles of turf they have dug. Thus the turf is borne to the railway station. At times certain of the men will do a little smuggling over the frontier, their stilts enabling them to cross boggy land which stops the progress of the Russian soldiers.

HOLY CROWN OF HUNGARY

One of the most treasured relics of the kingdom of Hungary is the holy crown, now preserved at Budapest. The upper part of this crown was presented to St. Stephen by Pope Sylvester I. (999-1003), and its lower part was a gift to Prince Giza from the Emperor Michael VII., who reigned at Constantinople from 1071 to 1078.

MOUSE CAUSES PANIC.

An innocent little mouse caused a panic in a street car in Portland, Ore., recently and brought the track repairing gang which was working with picks and shovels in the street rushing to the rescue.

The mouse had been chased up a tree by a cat and gradually worked its way out on the branch overhanging the street car tracks. As the car came along the trolley flew off, struck the limb on which the mouse was clinging, jerked it on to the roof of the car, through a ventilator, and on to a woman's lap, where it took a short cut for the pocket of her coat.

Forty women screamed, grabbed their skirts and were soon tiptoeing on their seats. The woman in whose pocket the mouse was hidden sat pale and motionless until a lone male passenger seized the mouse and threw it out at the window, just as the street gang came flocking aboard to quell the supposed riot.

WHAT THE NET BROUGHT UP.

A strange catch was made the other week by the Scotch trawler Locust, while at work on the fishing grounds about 16 miles east of the May island. In the net was the body of a young man who had been comparatively only a short time drowned, as the body was quite fresh in appearance when taken on board the trawler. It was evidently that of a young seafaring man, as it was fully clothed in oilskins and sou'-wester, who had most likely fallen, or been washed overboard from some vessel while off the Forth. The crew of the Locust was not a little upset at the unusual and somewhat eerie incident, and immediately made for Granton, where the body was landed.

MUST WIFE GO TO SCHOOL?

The Zurich municipal authorities will shortly be called upon to decide a curious case. An Italian schoolgirl, aged 13 years, whose parents reside at Zurich, returned from a short visit to Italy, and, stating she was married, refused to return to school. In this canton children are obliged to attend school until the age of 15. On making inquiries the Zurich authorities found that the little Italian girl had been legally married in her own country to a respectable young working man of her own class, who intends to come to Switzerland when he has saved some money and make his girl wife a home. Can a married "woman" be compelled to attend school? is the question that the authorities will have to settle.

CANVASSER AND THE CORPSE.

While on a round of canvassing for votes during the recent election in the old country two Glasgow political enthusiasts had a rather eerie experience. One of them relates the incident, and says:

"On rapping at a door after asking to see the man of the house, we were shown into a room by a woman. This woman must have been dull of hearing, for we made our object plain enough, but she evidently misunderstood our mission, as after events proved. Telling us to wait a while, the woman left us in the room, and from the kitchen adjoining we could hear a number of women talking. We were in momentary expectation of seeing the voter enter room, but the woman came to the door instead and told us, "Ye can come ben the noo, the corpse is washed and ready for ye." Judge our amazement on entering the kitchen to see a black-whiskered man laid out on a bed—dead. He proved to be our man, too, and his death occurred about an hour before. We had been mistaken for the undertaker and his assistant, to the former of whom my companion bore a striking resemblance."

GHASTLY OBJECT LESSON

A gruesome incident happened recently at Auburn, a township near Seattle, in the course of a local option election. Both factions were making a hard fight and the prohibitionists appeared to be in the lead until late in the afternoon. Then the tide began to turn. In a frantic effort, the anti-saloon leaders appealed to the deputy coroner, an ardent Prohibitionist, for aid. He hurried to his establishment, where the bodies of the two men who had died from alcoholism lay. Bolstering the corpses in an upright position in their windows. Above the heads of each a sign read: "He died of drink." As voters hurried by, the anti-saloon men directed their attention to the exhibition. There was no desecration of the dead," said the coroner. "The men were without friends and their bodies might as well have been put to some good use.

WATCH STOPS WHEN MAN DIES

A strange coincidence is reported in connection with the death of Mr. George Platten, who died at Bishop's Stortford, Eng., recently at the age of 74. He was head gamekeeper for many years to the late Marquis of Salisbury, and at big shooting parties he used to load for the distinguished guests, which often included the late King Edward, when prince of Wales. In early life he was presented with a handsome watch by a royal guest, which he set much store by never letting it go out of his possion, and taking it to bed with him at night. On the day of his death it was found beneath his pillow, and was found to have stopped at the exact moment the old man died.

Modern Crossing of Jordan

Crossing the River Jordan is no longer the picturesque proceeding that it has been since the dawn of history. Where the ancient ferry ran for countless years there is now a wooden lattice bridge built by the Turkish government and farmed out by it for 3,000 Turkish pounds annually. Every person and animal that crosses the bridge must pay a toll.

Is Life Worth Living?

By REV. F. M. HUBBELL
Pastor of Congregational Church
Mayville, N. D.

TEXT—My soul is weary of life.—Job X, 1.

At one time Job, with a large happy family, had lived in comfort surrounded by flocks and herds and great abundance. But calamity after calamity fell upon him. The Sabeans carried off his oxen; the lightning fell upon his sheep; the Chaldeans took away his camels; a storm buried his sons under a fallen building; he himself was smitten from head to foot with loathsome sores. And Job began to wish that he was dead—perhaps he even thought of committing suicide.

But calamity stricken Job is only one of a vast multitude who, crushed to earth by the relentless weight of adversity, have eked out a miserable existence, while perhaps the mind has been crowded with thoughts of self-destruction. We are moved therefore to ask, with Job of old and with the poor wretch, the tragical ending of whose life is noted in last night's paper.

Now one's answer to this question depends, not so much upon the experiences, painful and pleasurable, through which he passes, as upon the significance which he attaches to those experiences. This is conclusively shown from the fact that from no quarter are the answers uniform.

Out of similar conditions one bewails existence while another rejoices in it. From the fires of persecution there comes back to our question, now a positive negative, now as possible an affirmative, and again a mere question point. Such different estimates of life grow out of a man's fundamental beliefs—they seem often to depend absolutely upon his experiences—the experiences often affect the beliefs; but a man's philosophy of life is the determining factor.

One man declares there is no God; another believes in the Christ revelation of God—and they reach different conclusions as to whether life is worth living.

Take the first man who denies the existence of a personal God. Then, for him, there's no conscious, intelligent volitional cause for his existence. His own mental and heart powers are simply unique products of such materials and forces as food, water, light, air, heat and electricity. He is but a creature of circumstances, developed from a material thing—call it a protoplasmic germ—into a sentient being that hungers and thirsts, suffers physical pain, writhes in mental agony.

Moral responsibility is excluded; there's no moral source for it—no higher moral to be held responsible to. Then there's no obligation resting upon the strong to regard the weak; the midnight ruffian is as innocent as the babe he murders, groveling millions must suffer to no purpose, for no directing God means no directing purpose. To endure for a time is of no avail, for immortality has no meaning. The soul is but a figment of the imagination; imagination is but a bubble oozing out of brain tissue; human love merely the effervescence which passes off from chemical reaction.

The bald pessiminism of Von Hartman and Schopenhauer is a widely accepted doctrine of life today. Von Hartman finds no purpose in history; progress simply increases man's consciousness of the vanity of life. Schopenhauer says: "To live is to desire, to desire is to want, to want is to suffer; hence, to live is to suffer.

But the average man cannot escape the conviction that God lives and reigns. What answer, then, does the man make who knows only the stern, relentless God discoverable from nature? This man admits a controlling purpose. The apparent invariableness of natural law seems shut out the possibility of special Providence. Though his whole nature cries out to God in prayer, he has no assurance of being heard. And he feels the burden of sin with no hope of mercy. Conscience cries out his guilt; swift penalties falling when physical law is violated suggest dire consequences for the violation of moral law.

To square himself with an angry God he mutilates his body, consigns his children to the flames, expects to become an Ixyon bound to a revolving wheel, a Tantalus with an insatiable thirst. To drown the voice of conscience he plunges into dissipation or throws himself into the turmoil of trade, and yet conscience speaks. He tries to fulfill its behests, but the man, tempted in all points like as he, yet without compass or rudder, he struggles in turbulent waters to enter a harbor of safety.

And that harbor may be the very vortex of a whirlpool, for he knows not his own destiny. To this man who knows not Jesus Christ, it is a real question whether life be worth living. Job never doubted the existence of God, but he knew him not as a father, and in the hour of calamity he cursed the day of his birth.

To the Christian man, however, there can be only an affirmative answer to our question. God is Christ revealed to him; and he is borne irresistibly onward through all circumstances, murmuring: 'All things work together for good,' 'Not a sparrow falleth,' 'Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth,' 'Adversity yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness,' 'Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows.'

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R. F. D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

It Wasn't a Fire.

The principal of one of the New York East Side night schools was enrolling a new pupil, who was togged out in a suit of clothes so new that it hurt him. Just before the boy came in the principal had heard the sound of fire engines in the street.

"What is your name?" the principal asked the lad.

"Tom Dugan," was the reply.

"Where was the fire, Tommy?" asked the principal as he wrote down the name. There was no reply; only a scowl.

"I say, where was the fire?" repeated the principal.

"Don't git gay wit me," was the somewhat astonishing answer. "Dere wasn't no fire, see? I bought dis here suit and I paid seven-fifty for it."

Careless and Cappy.

We have undertaken to blend in one the best of the two proverbial conditions—to be careless and happy, hairless and cappy. We are now happy and cappy, and frequently careless as well. A pretty figure may be conjured up—a figure in leaf-green satin veiled with rose and silver shot gauze.

The dark hair is covered by a sailor's cap, point and all, worn flatly over the whole head, the point falling at the back. Instead of being made of scarlet cashmere, it is of the gauze, over silver tissue, and studded with pink and yellow topaz, while it is bordered with great gray pear-shaped pearls, these, of course, hanging around the back of the neck and over the soft hair in front.

We have taken to caps!

Where He Made It.

"Hullo, Binks!" said Wobbles. "I hear you've been in the chicken business."

"Yep," said Binks.

"Made anything out of it?" asked Wobbles.

"Yep," said Binks. "Ten thousand dollars."

"Ten thousand dollars in the chicken business?" demanded Wobbles.

"Nope. Out of it," said Binks.—Harper's Weekly.

Illness at the Zoo.

An unexpected result of the Portuguese revolution was the indisposition of the animals at the Lisbon zoological gardens. They all became ill, it being been so alarmed by the bombarding that they refused to drink.

If You Knew How Good

are the sweet, crisp bits of

Post Toasties

you would, at least, try 'em.

The food is made of perfectly ripe white corn, cooked, sweetened, rolled and toasted.

It is served direct from the package with cream or milk, and sugar if desired—

A breakfast favorite!

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

"BE YE RECONCILED TO GOD"

Text, "You that were sometime alienated, and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled" (Colossians i, 21).

"2.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle, New York, preached today from the above text. He said in part:—

In order to use a telescope to advantage we need first to obtain a proper focus on the object to be examined. And so it is with the Divine Plan and Purpose. Looking at it with the eye of faith through the Telescope of God's Word, adjustment of the focus is necessary. This focusing of the Word, Christian people in the past have very generally overlooked. As a result the Divine Plan has a blurred and indistinct appearance to our sight. The various word-pictures, symbols, types, allegories and plain statements of the Scriptures without this focusing together, make a very unsatisfactory and nondescript matter of the Gospel of Christ, one that is unsatisfactory to everybody, one that the learned of our day have repudiated entirely—an ambiguous collation that is a source of vexation to millions of God's consecrated people. The difficulty is that the Telescope was tampered with during the dark ages and the proper focus was lost. Since then Christian people have feared to readjust it. They have gloried in the fact that they never changed the focus. However, they have overlooked the fact that some one else did change it for them long ago and that the unsatisfactory view we have gotten is the result of this and is entirely out of accord with the clear and beautiful vision of God's Grace and Truth and Mercy and Love and Wisdom and Power as seen by the Apostles in the early Church.

International Bible Students' Association.

Some of us, dear friends, instead of throwing away the Telescope of the Word of God, are taking pleasure in cleaning the lenses of the dust of the dark ages and adjusting the focus by a careful endeavor to speak where the Word of God speaks and to be silent where it is silent, and to bring, as the Apostle suggests, our every thought into captivity to the will of God in Christ as outlined in the Bible. The result, we all can testify, is not only comforting, but happifying; not only enlightening, but refreshing. Truly, as the Apostle suggests, we have come to "Times of Refreshing from the presence of the Lord." And all this, we perceive, is exactly what the Scriptures foretold, namely, that a falling away and darkening of the understanding would follow the death of the Apostles, but that in the end of the age the darkness would begin to scatter before the oncoming light of the Sun of righteousness, in the morning of the New Dispensation of Messiah's reign.

In accord with all this, note the fact that for centuries we have been overlooking certain Scriptures while accepting others. We accepted the Apostle's statement in our text respecting the reconciliation of the Church, but we overlooked entirely other Scriptures which speak of a still different reconciliation—"God through Christ reconciling the world unto himself" (II Corinthians v, 19). We should have noted the difference between the Church and the world in this and many other passages of Scripture. We should have remembered the Lord's words, "Ye are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." We should have seen that the salvation and reconciling of the Church is one thing and the salvation and reconciling of the world is quite another thing; that these are two different salvations—the first to heavenly, spiritual conditions and joint-heirship with Christ in his Kingdom; the other to an earthly inheritance, to earthly perfection and life everlasting and an Eden that is to be world-wide—Paradise restored. God's footstool made glorious.

God's Purposes to Be Accomplished.

Nevertheless nothing has been lost. No feature of the Divine Plan has been thwarted, for these two salvations do not progress at the same time. During this Gospel Age none are saved, nor desirous to be saved, except those "drawn of the Father," "called of God." These have been privileged to approach God through the Son, whose name is "the only name given under heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved" (Acts iv, 12). Only those who take up their cross and follow the Lamb through evil report and good report, faithful unto death, can now be spirit-begotten; in the resurrection, these will be spirit-born, members of the Bride of Christ, the Lamb's Wife and joint-heir with him in his Kingdom. It does not matter to the remainder of mankind that they have been allowed to remain in ignorance of the great fact that God is about to pour out upon humanity a great blessing; about to pour out his holy Spirit upon all classes; about to establish the Kingdom of his dear Son for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come;" about to cause the knowledge of the Lord to fill the whole earth; about to give to every son and daughter of Adam one full, fair, righteous opportunity to come to a knowledge of the Truth that they may be saved.

If the knowledge of God's grace has proven to be a grand, glorious, inspiring message to the sanctified in Christ Jesus, the Church of this Gospel Age, called to the heavenly calling, will not the message of reconciliation to the world, in due time, likewise bring to the world comfort, joy, blessing as they shall be invited to the earthly portion—to full restitution to human perfection—to all that was lost by Adam and that is to be recovered by the sacrifice of Jesus. No wonder the Scriptures assure us that the night of weeping is nearly over and the morning of joy already dawning! No wonder the Apostle declares that "the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together," and that they are "waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God" (Rom. viii, 22, 19).

The work of this Gospel Age has been the calling, the testing, the proving, the fitting, the polishing of these sons of God for the glorious heavenly state to which they have been called. The Apostle urges that however humble the position of God's saints in the present life, "We know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." When he shall appear in his glory we also shall appear with him. When he shall reign as the King of kings and Lord of lords, when to him every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, the elect Church, his Bride, will be with him in his Throne, sharers of his glory and participants in his work—the work of blessing and uplifting the world—reconciling the world to God.

Calvin and Knox—Wesley and Whitfield.

Calvin, Knox and others of the reformers, we may then see, were quite right in their insistence that none at the present time are in a reconciled condition toward God except the comparatively few of our race—the saints. These turn from sin to righteousness, turn from disobedience to faith and consecration, and in and through the merit of the Redeemer are acceptable as probationary members of the elect Church. If faithful they will shortly, in the "first resurrection," constitute the Church of glory, the Bride, the Lamb's Wife and Joint-Heir.

Brothers Wesley, Whitfield and others were also right in their proposition that God was not content with electing merely a saintly handful, but surely loved the whole world and would surely give to every member of the race a full opportunity to come to a knowledge of the Truth and to seek a share in the merit of his sacrifice for sins and an opportunity for life everlasting.

Those dear brethren contended earnestly with each other over their differences, the one upholding the doctrine of Election, the other contending for the doctrine of Free Grace. Now we see that both were right! Now we see that the election belongs to this Gospel Age and to the High Calling to the divine nature and that in an age following this Free Grace toward all of the race of Adam will prevail. "The knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth;" "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess." Then those who, under the rule and assistance and uplifting influences of the "elect" will come into harmony with the Divine Law, will be blessed with full reconciliation to God and eternal life on the human plane—in Paradise restored—while the intelligently perverse, instead of being everlastingly tortured, as we had supposed, will, as the Apostle says, be punished with everlasting destruction (II Thessalonians i, 9).

"Hallelujah, What a Savior!"

From this viewpoint the glory of our Redeemer and the glory of our heavenly Father are multiplied a million times. Our Redeemer not only is to be the Savior of the "little flock," his Church, his Bride, on the spirit plane of glory, but additionally, through the agency of his Millennial Kingdom, he is to be the Savior of the world. He "tasted death for every man," as the Scriptures declare, and, as they express it, "He shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied" (Isaiah liii, 11). Who could suppose that the Savior would be satisfied with the result of his labor if only about one in a million, as members of his Church, reach the heavenly glory-land?

Who in our day could for a moment believe the suggestion of Brother Jonathan Edwards, the great New England preacher, who declared that the Lord and his saints would, together, look over the battlements of heaven at their neighbors and friends and children suffering an eternity of untellable torture at the hands of demons, and turn around and praise God the louder on this behalf? Poor Brother Edwards had, we believe, but a small conception of Divine Justice and Divine Love. And his difficulty was that he did not see what is now so distinct and clear to Bible students, namely, that the Bible Hell to which all humanity goes is not a place of torture nor of consciousness at all, but the grave, sheol, hades, the tomb.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mrs. Brison Welch is visiting her old home, near McHenry.

Harvey Cuppett, of Loch Lynn, filled the appointments of Dr. Reid, last Sunday, at Armstead, Dodge and Deer Park.

Rumor says that Judge Sanders has sold his property on G street.

L. H. Friend, of Swanton, will move into Mrs. L. C. Binkley's cottage, on F street, about the first of April.

Park Supt. Dr. Shelton and wife are guests of the Arnold cottage for a short time.

B. & O. Agent Sperry and Miss Louise spent a few days at Pittsburg last week visiting relatives, and Mrs. Sperry visited her sister at Westernport. Chas. Bunce acted as station agent during Mr. Sperry's absence.

John Gortner, who has been quite ill, is recovering.

Richard Wrightsman and family have moved into the Jamison cottage on the corner of Philadelphia avenue and H street.

Thomas Harris will move into the house now occupied by Mrs. John Welt, who will move into a house on the Castleel farm.

Mrs. W. G. Myers has purchased the Hammond cottage. Consideration $900.

Justice Murphey, of Parkersburg, was here last Friday taking up ties, lumber and mining props.

Mr. Oliver Hayward and family, of Bond, have moved into the T. C. Miller cottage, on E street, which Mr. Hayrecently purchased.

Charley Bunce has opened his blacksmith shop for business.

John Baker, of Loch Lynn, is visiting his sister in Pennsylvania.

Will Hessie and wife, of Pittsburg, are visiting the home of Mr. Levi Richard.

A protracted meeting will commence in the United Brethren Church, in Loch Lynn, this evening.

Plenty of snow, freezing weather and raw winds the past week.

Sixteen wild geese were on the lake last Friday, and for the past few days wild ducks have been stopping on the lake.

Miss Bertha Kelley, of Piedmont, is visiting her friend, Miss Bessie Eckard, of the Park.

Last Saturday six of the young people of Deer Park, who had professed conversion in the meeting recently held there, came to Loch Lynn to be baptized by the pastor of the Baptist church at that place, as there is no baptistry in the church at Deer Park. They were accompanied by quite a number of their friends. Many eyes were wet when they saw these young disciples go down into the watery grave in obedience to their Lord's command. The good people of Loch Lynn extended their hospitality to these visitors until the departure of the afternoon train.

HOYES.

February is giving us quite a variety of weather. We have had rain, sleet and snow and are experiencing a blizzard at this writing.

An epidemic of colds and grip has had full sway in this community for several weeks past. Scarcely any escape.

Miss Bertha Dewitt and Aunt Emily Dewitt left Hoyes for Connellsville, Pa. Miss Emily expects to make an extended visit to her sisters, and Miss Bertha will return in a week or ten days.

Mr. Meshach Mattingly, who has been quite a severe attack of bronchitis, is very much better and able to be out again.

Messrs. William Maffett aud John McRobie, of Oakland made a business trip to Friendsville last week and on their return home spent a few hours in Hoyes with W. A. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dewitt spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Dewitt's parents, Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Friend.

Mrs. Edmund Hines and baby of Belmont, were guests of M. Mattingly's several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Custer were visiting Mrs. Custer's parents Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Dewitt was taken very seriously ill Sunday morning and is now slightly improved at this writing.

Miss Ada Dewitt, of Sang Run, is visiting relatives and friends in Hoyes several days the past week.

Saturday evening a crowd of young people gathered and gave a young man of our neighborhood an old fashioned serenading, but after all had enjoyed the music they were informed that the young man was not married, so they will have to come again.

Willie Bishoff, railway postal clerk, left Hoyes Tuesday for Baltimore where he will again resume his position.

SUTTON.

Our neighbors are making the crooked way straight, and the rough way smooth and the hard way soft by changing the county road at L. Wiland's and Hetz's,

Mr. Charles Chaney purchased a fine horse one day last week from Mike Race, of Frostburg, also Mr. George Pope purchased one from the same party.

We are glad to see Mr. Harrison Miller back in our community, he having recently moved with his family from Sand Patch, Pa., to his farm near Sutton.

Rev. D. M. Merrill and Garrett Coleman were visiting at H. S. Coleman's last Friday.

Mr. Freeman Coleman is preparing to return to Akron, Ohio, where he was formerly engaged in business.

Sutton turned out well at the meeting held in Grantsville last Thursday. We believe the meeting will accomplish its purpose. It was well attended and a set of excellent resolutions were passed and forwarded to the County Roads Commisssion.

BITTINGER.

E. S. Brenneman has placed his order with the village merchant for a high silk hat and a hobby horse, the former for himself and the latter for the little son which was left in his home by the Stork last Saturday evening.

Benjamin Long, of Mt. Lake Park, was the guest of Miss Effie Bittinger at the telephone exchange this week.

George Yommer purchased a fine Jersey cow over in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, one day last week.

C. E. Ellithorp made a business trip to Baltimore last week.

Dennis Detriech has been seriously ill for a few days, but at last report he was improving.

Rev. Young of Salisbury, Pa., delivered an excellent sermon from the Lutheran pmlpit in this village last Saturday evening.

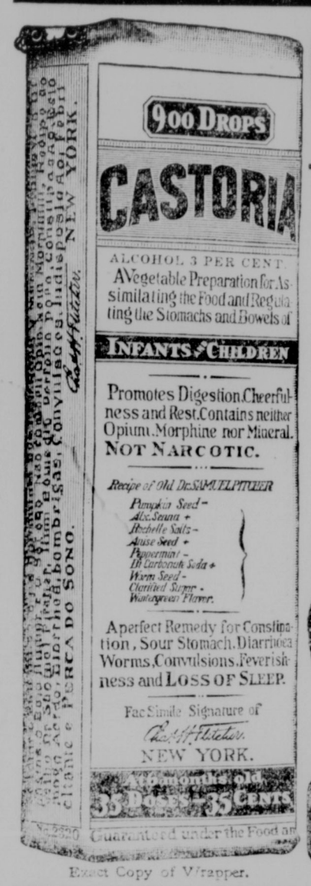
Miss Leanora Wiley returned to her home at this place last Monday afternoon, after a two weeks stay with her grandmother in Grantsville.

Mrs. Earl Selders was quite ill last week and was attended by Dr. Ricketts, of Accident.

John H. Stark made a business trip to Salisbury and Meyersdale, Pa., last week.

Daniel Brenneman, of Manidiers Bluff, was a business caller in this village last week.

Most camp owners in this section opened their camps last week and gathered a large quantity of water on Saturday.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Wood's Trade Mark

Clover and Grass Seeds

best qualities obtainable.

Sow Clover and Grass seeds in March on your fall-sown Wheat or other grain crops.

"Wood's Crop Special" tells the advantages of these seedings, and gives prices and seasonable information each month about all Farm seeds.

"Wood's Crop Special" and Descriptive Seed Catalog mailed free on request.

T. W. WOOD & SONS
Seedsmen, - Richmond, Va.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be natural, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 50 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT at company's main office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3656. 45-5m

New Assessment Appeals.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 17, 1910.

The County Commissioners for Garrett County, Maryland, acting as a Board of Control and Review, will be at their office in the town of Oakland, to hear appeals on the new assessments on the following dates:

For District No. 1—March 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, 1911.

For District No. 10—March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20, 1911.

For District No. 4—March 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1911.

For District No. 13—March 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1911.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

Wm. R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger vs. Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley, his wife. No. 1719 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 18th day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger, trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $400.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 16, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, March 6th, 1911,

to transact all routine business.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all calls day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS I. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Mortgagee's Sale

OF VALUABLE

Coal & Timber Lands

Lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the 26th day of October, 1906, duly recorded in Garrett County, Md., wherein William U. Hensel, of Lancaster City was duly authorized to make sale of the real and personal property covered and conveyed by said mortgage, in case of default by said mortgagor in the payment of certain moneys secured by the same and such default having occurred, the undersigned William U. Hensel, as such attorney named in said mortgage to make this sale, will, on

SATURDAY, the 25th day of February, 1911

AT 11.00 O'CLOCK A. M.,

in front of the Courthouse door in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, State of Maryland, sell at public auction, all the real and personal property, lots and parcels of grounds, and timber and timber rights, covered and conveyed by said mortgage, the same lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in said Garrett County, Maryland, and the same being particularly described as follows, viz:

The land is located in the northern part of Garrett County, Md., and lies within districts No. 3 and No. 12. The county road running from Engle's Mills to Bittinger traverses this property in a southeasterly direction, the property being about a mile and a half from Engle's Mills and about two and a-half miles from Bittinger. The portion of the property, known as the second and third parts of "Rights of Man and Common Sense" being at the summit of Negro Mountain.

FIRST. All those four lots or parcels of ground, lying in Garrett County, Maryland, which are known as Military Lots Nos. 2475, 2476, 2480 and 2481, containing in the aggregate 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots of ground which were conveyed to Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others by deed dated March 30th, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Md., and being also part of the lands which were conveyed by J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by deed dated August 14, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 589, one of said Land Records.

SECOND. All those four lots and parcels of ground lying near Engles Mills, in Garrett County, Maryland, known as Military Lots Nos. 2474, 2475, 2476 and 2477, containing 200 acres of land more or less, they being the same lots and parcels of ground which were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others, by deed dated March 30, 1900, recorded in Liber 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being a part of the same lands which were conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

THIRD. All the timber and timber rights in and upon all those two parts of a tract of land called "The second and third parts of the Rights of Man" and "Common Sense," containing together 500 acres of land more or less, which said timber and timber rights were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by George T. Brew and wife, by deed dated March 28, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 283, one of said Land Records, excepting therefrom so much of the said timber and all that portion of said land which was conveyed away from the same by Louis Lamberson and up to January 1, 1910, and being the same timber and timber rights described in and conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller and others to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated the 18th day of August, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

FOURTH. All the rest and residue of all that lot and parcel of land lying and being near Engle's Mills, in said county, and known as "Lot Number Two" of the four lots in which the tract known as "The Rights of Man," second and third parts, and "Common Sense" are now divided, contained within the following metes and bounds, to-wit:

Beginning for the same at the beginning of Lot No. 1, and running with the lines of the "Rights of Man," second part, East 64 perches, South 60 degrees East, 60 perches; North 70 degrees East, 25 perches; South 35 degrees East, 60 perches; then with the 61st line of "Paris," East 64 perches to the beginning of the "Rights of Man" third part, and with the lines thereof, South 146 perches, East 111 perches to the end of the 25th line of Common Sense, and with the 26th line thereof corrected, South 6 degrees East, 150 perches to a line of the land conveyed by Robert Oliver to John Beachy, and with said line, East 26 perches to the given line of Common Sense, which is also the 3rd line of Lot No. 2350; then with the range of lots, North 676 perches to the end of the first line of Common Sense, and with the lines thereof East, 20 perches, North 10 perches, West 80 perches, North 200 perches; then North 11 degrees East, 90 perches to the end of the 2nd line of Lot No. 2476; then with the lots, West 300 perches, South 320 perches to the beginning of the tract called "Ormes Trouble;" then reversing the given line thereof, South 15½ degrees West, 271 perches to the beginning, containing, in the residue of said tract land,

500 Acres, More or Less.

Being the same tract and parcel of land conveyed by George T. Brew to the said J. Frank Keller and others by deed dated May 24, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 200, of said Land Records, and being part of the lands conveyed by said J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by the said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid, excepting however, from said last tract and parcel the timber and timber rights belonging said land, which were conveyed by George T. Brew and others to said Jacob Stauffer by the above recited deed of March 28, 1900, recorded as aforesaid.

FIFTH. All the plant and machinery railways and tramways, buildings improvements now on the lands hereinbefore mentioned and described together with the rights, privileges, and franchises of said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited to all the same or which it may lawfully have under its charter.

All the above lots, tracts and parcels of lands and timber and timber rights together with all the plant, machinery, railways, tramways, house buildings and improvements of every kind thereon, will be sold as a whole, as one property and plant.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by the mortgage—Cash, $1,000 of which shall be paid on the day of sale and the remainder which shall be paid as soon as said sale is ratified by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

WILLIAM U. HENSEL,
Attorney named in Mortgage.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

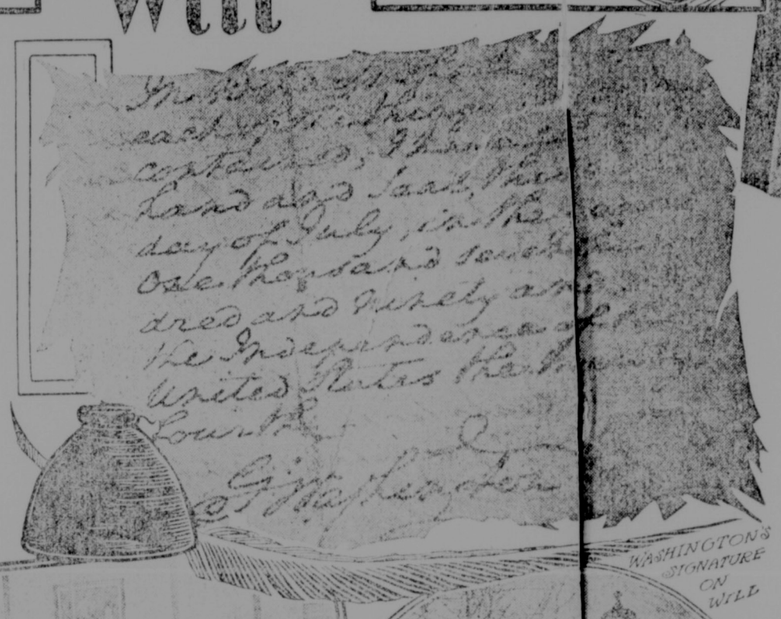
Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of B. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

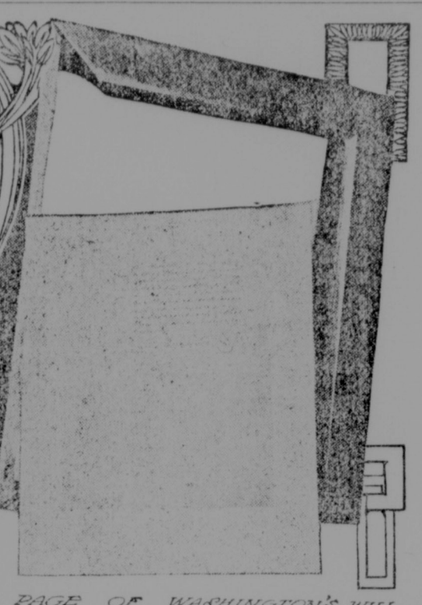
CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of
B. WORTH JENNINGS, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS,
January 31st, 1911.

Restoring George Washington's Will

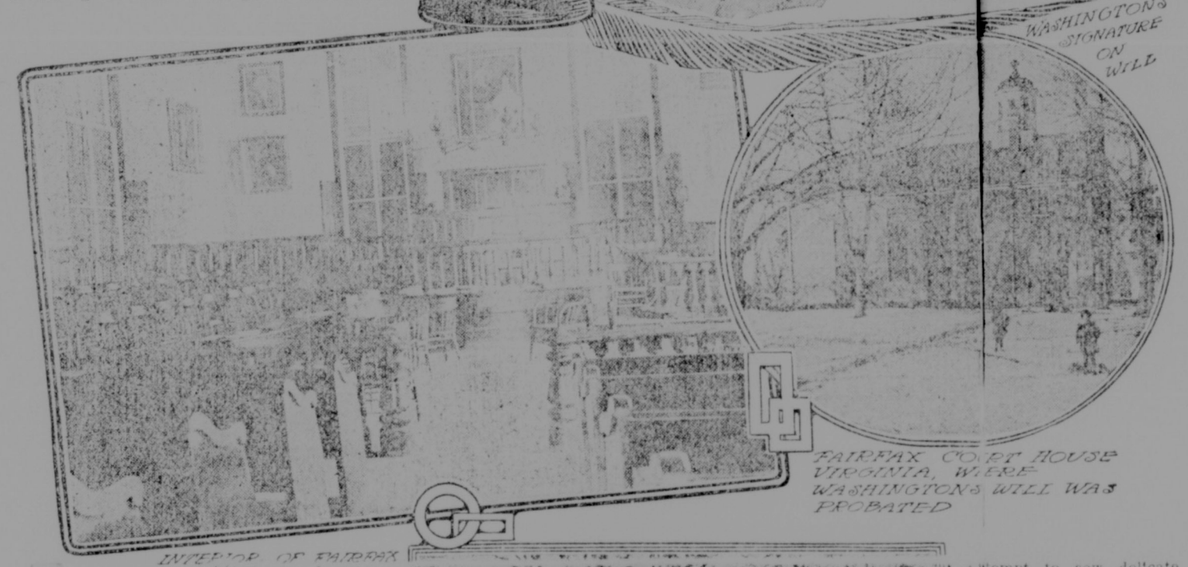
THE last will and testament of George Washington — perhaps the most precious and the most interesting of all the relics of the Father of His Country—has recently been saved to the nation. Moreover this rescue of the most significant document penned by our first president took place just in the nick of time. A few years more and the country might have had to mourn the loss of this priceless souvenir just as it has been mourning these many years past the disappearance of the original penned drafts of some of the famous speeches delivered by some of our most famous men on historic occasions.

It was not, in the present case, that fire or theft threatened the Washington relic—although it must be admitted that there is a possibility of loss by either of these means so long as it remains in its present depository. However, the destructive agent that recently aroused some of the nation's most prominent officials to the peril of the Washington will is nothing less than the ravages of time. Until





PAGE OF WASHINGTON'S WILL AND BOX IN WHICH IT WAS KEPT



WASHINGTON'S SIGNATURE ON WILL

FAIRFAX COURT HOUSE VIRGINIA, WHERE WASHINGTON'S WILL WAS PROBATED

INTERIOR OF FAIRFAX COURT HOUSE, WHICH APPEARS NOW JUST AS IT DID 100 YEARS AGO

within the past few months the public at large did not know of the whereabouts of the Washington will, if indeed it even knew of the existence of the paper. However, the officials of the state department and the library of congress knew its resting place in an obscure county courthouse in Virginia, and whereas they realized the futility of their ambition to ever get permission to transfer it to Washington, where it ought to repose as a great national relic, they still had sufficient interest in it to keep a watchful eye on it, so to speak.

Some months ago it suddenly came to the ears of these interested parties that the will—long known to be in a poor state of preservation—was in imminent danger of going utterly to ruin. Obviously quick action and heroic measures were necessary and thereupon there was inaugurated that project which has lately witnessed the complete restoration of the will by means of a miracle of manuscript surgery and document restoration carried on by the greatest experts in the country in this highly specialized line of work.

Persons who are at all conversant with the care with which Uncle Sam fosters and safeguards all the important state and private papers of historical value that are in his keeping—for instance, the Declaration of Independence which is never even exposed to light—may naturally marvel that so priceless a trophy as the will of Washington should have been allowed to fall into decay. The explanation is found in the fact, above noted, that the will is not and never has been in the ossession of the federal government. It was d for probate in the year 1800 at the county of the county in Virginia where Washingesided and in that state it has remained ince. A century of wear and tear might xpected to play havoc with almost any ment and at times during this cycle the shington relic saw some rather rough hang ng for so fragile an object. During the Civil war, for example, it was carried to Richmond for safe keeping and came near being lost entirely in the confusion that attended the fall of the Confederacy.

However, the worst experience of all came only a few years ago and resulted from an error of judgment on the part of the custodians of the will, who supposed that they were acting for the best. It had come about that as a result of the handling of the will the pinning together of the 23 pages and the wear along the lines of the creases in which it had been folded almost every one of the sheets was completely severed through the middle. The persons in charge of the will realized in a vague sort of way that something ought to be done and they finally hit upon the plan of sewing together the severed sections of each sheet.

When the government officials and other prominent men interested in all existing mementoes of George Washington heard what had been done they were all but ready to weep. As though it were not bad enough to mpt to sew delicate eets of paper, it transed that subsequent dlings of the sewed ets had caused the ads to wear and cut way through the pa- and ultimately the es were literally in ds. All the while the ic was on display in an inary wooden box with lass cover which perted the will to be conntly exposed to the ht while on exhibition the county seat of Fairx county and which ould probably have fadout the handwriting tirely had not the docuent been penned with an ceptional quality of ink.

NEW OFFICE OF THE CLERK OF THE COURT AT FAIRFAX WHERE THE WILL IS NOW PRESERVED

It was at this juncture at the government offials who volunteered llowed to take a hand to work of restoration was of a federal expert who of the saving of damaged pts. He devoted weeks he has wrought is little In so far as the casual the will is in practically it was when it left the ished author. It is only to the light that one ally, the document is but self.

les were encountered in estoration of the will. It to have the odd salvage the department of state, ons of which branch of already worked wonders n of the United States, Independence and other in order to get the bene state department's experts it would be necessary to remove the will to Washington for the interim while the work of restoration was in progress, and the county officials at Fairfax who had the say in the matter refused flat-footed to allow the document to leave Virginia.

It looked for a time as though this might block the whole plan, but finally the officials of the library of congress, who have on their staff a manuscript surgeon almost as skillful as the one at the state department, offered to send this wizard to Fairfax Courthouse and have him carry on the work there. This was done and the outcome has been as satisfactory as though the work of rejuvenation had been conducted in the well-equipped plant at the national capital. However, there were many handicaps and not the least of these was found in the necessity for transporting to Fairfax a heavy press and other paraphernalia needed for the intricate piecing of the torn and ragged pages and mounting them on the cardboard mounts, one of which has been provided for each page of the will.

Unquestionably the gratifying success which has attended this attempt to restore the Washington will to the appearance it bore one hundred years ago has been due in no small measure to the aid afforded by a number of blank sheets of paper made especially for George Washington and watermarked with his name. When the government officials first inspected the torn and tattered will with a view to applying their ingenious "first aid" treatment they at once realized that an inordinate amount of piecing and patching would be necessary and they were in a quandary where to obtain material that would match the original, for, of course, the will was written on very distinctive paper, and to patch it with ordinary paper of present-day manufacture would have resulted in only partially concealing the wounds made by time and careless hands.

There was a long search for paper that could be used with confidence that no person examining the restored document without the aid of a magnifying glass could tell where the original left off and a patch began. Finally the officials discovered in a second-hand bookstore in Washington a number of sheets of the writing paper which General Washington had manufactured especially for his personal use and this paper was used wherever new tissue had to be grafted on the original document, with the result that the appearance of the original has been simulated so as to defy detection. Each sheet of the will has been so backed or mounted upon "crepeline" that it will stand any reasonable amount of handling and the ink of the will has been "set" so that there is little danger of further fading.

However, for all that the precious document has been put in condition to stand another century of strenuous existence if need be, it is not likely that it will ever again be called upon to suffer such neglect or abuse as in the past. The county officials who are the custodians of the will appear to be aroused to the necessity of giving it more intelligent care than it enjoyed in years gone by. To that end the pages of the will have been bound in the form of a book with handsome red levant cover and a special fireproof, burglar-proof steel safe, made specially for the purpose under the supervision of the government officials will henceforth be the repository of this relic.

The attention which this restoration of the will is receiving is expected to result in the visits in future of considerable numbers of tourists and sightseers to Fairfax Courthouse, the Virginia hamlet where the will has its home—the more so since this historic spot can now be reached by trolley from the national capital. The county seat of the county where Washington lived and died has many picturesque landmarks not the least interesting of which is the old courthouse in which Washington's will was probated and which presents today the same appearance that it did on that historic day more than a century ago. The will is not kept in the courthouse but in the office of the clerk of the court, which occupies a separate building. The work of restoring the Washington will, had it been entrusted to any manuscript surgeon outside the government service—and there are only a few such in the country—would have cost $200 to $300 at least and it is probable that several times the latter sum might have been demanded for the service for which the government made no charge.

Temples of Babylon

The Deutsche Orient-Geselischaft gives an interesting account of the past year's excavation work in three different parts of Babylon.

In the town quarter known as Kasr were laid bare several hundred meters of a wall about 35 feet thick, broken by numerous door openings which were originally flanked by towers. The most interesting find here was a coffin of burned clay, on the lid of which was a relief of a bearded head.

Near the north wall of the quarter known as Sachn was discovered a system of drains, built of brick, laid in asphalt. Here were also found several fragments of tablets with cuniform inscriptions from the time of Nebuchadnezzar. This discovery enabled the excavators to complete fragmentary tablets discovered some time before.

The legend proved to refer to the building of the Zigurrat, the temple tower of Babylon. The beginning reads as follows: "Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, reverer of the great gods, establisher of Esagila and Ezida, son of Nabopolassar, of the king of Babylon, am I. When Marduk, the great lord, elevated my head I abased myself reverently before Marduk, the god who created me."

After this Nebuchadnezzar goes on to boast that he made the temple "brilliant as the day with bitumen and blue glittering bricks" and that for the same end he has had mighty cedars prepared. The inscription ends with Nebuchadnezzar's prayer that Marduk will reward his pious deeds by granting him "eternal days."

Work was also carried on at the town wall built by Nabonid, the last king of Babylon, who reigned 555-538 B. C. About 400 meters of this wall were uncovered. The wall is about 25 feet thick and has a tower every 60 feet.

The main gate lies in the line of the great Babylonian procession street. The pavement of the processional street at this point is proved, built his fortifiins of works constructed as the excavators found ned inscription of Herlruler, whose inscriptions issing, describes himself of good deeds."

It is constructed of two icks set in asphalt and coating of asphalt.

ade in Assur by Dr. W. April to October yielded results. The complete emple of Assur was laid of the great building hird millennium, B. C. st Mesopotamian temple ewed by the King Samsi- and it was burned down r Salmanassar I., who, it on exactly the old s were made by Dr. An- in the southeast front a relief of a bull three times larger than life size. Another find was an inscription of Sennacherib to the effect that he had "builded a house to the God Ninib." This presumably refers to an extension of the temple at the east corner, of which little now remains, but the temple well built by Sennacherib is intact.

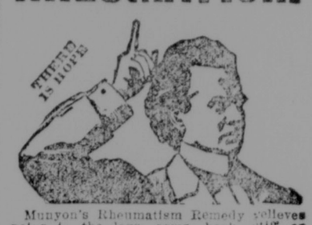
The Temple of Assur is shown to have been of vast extent. The excavations reveal a courtyard surrounded by rooms and two immense halls. The excavators found here fragments of enameled brick dating from modern Assyrian times and showing markedly the influence of Egypt. These bricks depict battles, prisoners and soldiers on march and the destruction of fortresses.

RHEUMATISM



Munyon's Rheumatism Remedy relieves pains in the legs, arms, back, stiff or swollen joints. Contains no morphine, opium, cocaine or drugs to deaden the pain. It neutralizes the acid and drives out all rheumatic poisons from the system. Write Prof. Munyon, 53d and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa., for medical advice, absolutely free.

Nervous Women

will find that Nature responds promptly to the gentle laxative effects, and the helpful tonic action of

Beecham's Pills

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c

CANNING FACTORIES FOR SALE for Farms, Large Communities or Towns. 15 sizes. Prices $85 to $850. Capacities as high as 6,000 cans tomatoes or 20,000 cans fruits in 10 hours. Terms: A per cent of pack, or 2 or 3 yearly payments, or for cash. Write for Booklet. THOS. H. BROWN, Springfield, Mo.

PATENT YOUR IDEAS. They may bring you wealth. 64-page Book Free. Est. 1869. Fitzgerald & Co., Pat. Atys., Box B, Washington, D.C.

NOTHING AT ALL.

Brown—What your son doesn't know about horse racing isn't worth knowing.

Walker—And what he does know about it isn't worth knowing, either.

Great Baseball Play.

"What was the greatest baseball play you ever saw?" asked a friend of Governor-elect John W. Tener.

"The greatest play I ever saw," said he, "took place in an amateur game on a town lot at Charleroi. The teams were playing on a wet field and an outfielder who wore a derby hat went after a high fly. He came to a little pond and taking his eye off the ball made a jump to cross it. As he was leaping the ball struck him on the head, went through the crown of his hat and lodged there. The base runner was out and the fielder had not touched the ball with his hands. Can you beat it?"—Washington Correspondence Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Lord's Advertisements.

Willie had been to see his old nurse, and she had shown him her treasures, including some very strikingly colored scripture texts which graced her walls.

A few days afterward his aunt gave him a dime to spend at a bazar. Seeing that he seemed unable to find what he wanted, she asked him what he was looking for.

"I am looking for one of the Lord's advertisements, like Mary has in her room," said Willie.

RESULTS OF FOOD.

Health and Natural Conditions Come From Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well-known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which makes a joy of living.

"Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 40 years. Since then the entire rest has, of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed one great cause of illness in the past, namely, constipation, and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates, and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of aiding others in their search for health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

"BE YE RECONCILED TO GOD"

Text, "You that were sometime alienated, and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled" (Colossians i, 21).

2.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle, New York, preached today from the above text. He said in part:—

In order to use a telescope to advantage we need first to obtain a proper focus on the object to be examined. And so it is with the Divine Plan and Purpose. Looking at it with the eye of faith through the Telescope of God's Word, adjustment of the focus is necessary. This focusing of the Word, Christian people in the past have very generally overlooked. As a result the Divine Plan has a blurred and indistinct appearance to our sight. The various word-pictures, symbols, types, allegories and plain statements of the Scriptures without this focusing together, make a very unsatisfactory and nondescript matter of the Gospel of Christ, one that is unsatisfactory to everybody, one that the learned of our day have repudiated entirely—an ambiguous collation that is a source of vexation to millions of God's consecrated people. The difficulty is that the Telescope was tampered with during the dark ages and the proper focus was lost. Since then Christian people have feared to readjust it. They have gloried in the fact that they never changed the focus. However, they have overlooked the fact that some one else did change it for them long ago and that the unsatisfactory view we have gotten is the result of this and is entirely out of accord with the clear and beautiful vision of God's Grace and Truth and Mercy and Love and Wisdom and Power as seen by the Apostles in the early Church.

International Bible Students' Association.

Some of us, dear friends, instead of throwing away the Telescope of the Word of God, are taking pleasure in cleaning the lenses of the dust of the dark ages and adjusting the focus by a careful endeavor to speak where the Word of God speaks and to be silent where it is silent, and to bring, as the Apostle suggests, our every thought into captivity to the will of God in Christ as outlined in the Bible. The result, we all can testify, is not only comforting, but happifying; not only enlightening, but refreshing. Truly, as the Apostle suggests, we have come to "Times of Refreshing from the presence of the Lord." And all this, we perceive, is exactly what the Scriptures foretold, namely, that a falling away and darkening of the understanding would follow the death of the Apostles, but that in the end of the age the darkness would begin to scatter before the oncoming light of the Sun of righteousness, in the morning of the New Dispensation of Messiah's reign.

In accord with all this, note the fact that for centuries we have been overlooking certain Scriptures while accepting others. We accepted the Apostle's statement in our text respecting the reconciliation of the Church, but we overlooked entirely other Scriptures which speak of a still different reconciliation—"God through Christ reconciling the world unto himself" (II Corinthians v, 19). We should have noted the difference between the Church and the world in this and many other passages of Scripture. We should have remembered the Lord's words, "Ye are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." We should have seen that the salvation and reconciling of the Church is one thing and the salvation and reconciling of the world is quite another thing; that these are two different salvations—the first to heavenly, spiritual conditions and joint-heirship with Christ in his Kingdom; the other to an earthly inheritance, to earthly perfection and life everlasting and an Eden that is to be world-wide—Paradise restored. God's footstool made glorious.

God's Purposes to Be Accomplished.

Nevertheless nothing has been lost. No feature of the Divine Plan has been thwarted, for these two salvations do not progress at the same time. During this Gospel Age none are saved, nor desirous to be saved, except those "drawn of the Father," "called of God." These have been privileged to approach God through the Son, whose name is "the only name given under heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved" (Acts iv, 12). Only those who take up their cross and follow the Lamb through evil report and good report, faithful unto death, can now be spirit-begotten; in the resurrection, these will be spirit-born, members of the Bride of Christ, the Lamb's Wife and joint-heir with him in his Kingdom. It does not matter to the remainder of mankind that they have been allowed to remain in ignorance of the great fact that God is about to pour out upon humanity a great blessing; about to pour out his holy Spirit upon all classes; about to establish the Kingdom of his dear Son for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come;" about to cause the knowledge of the Lord to fill the whole earth; about to give to every son and daughter of Adam one full, fair, righteous opportunity to come to a knowledge of the Truth that they may be saved.

If the knowledge of God's grace has proven to be a grand, glorious, inspiring message to the sanctified in Christ Jesus, the Church of this Gospel Age, called to the heavenly calling, will not the message of reconciliation to the world, in due time, likewise bring to the world comfort, joy, blessing as they shall be invited to the earthly portion—to full restitution to human perfection—to all that was lost by Adam and that is to be recovered by the sacrifice of Jesus. No wonder the Scriptures assure us that the night of weeping is nearly over and the morning of joy already dawning! No wonder the Apostle declares that "the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together," and that they are "waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God" (Rom. viii, 22, 19).

The work of this Gospel Age has been the calling, the testing, the proving, the fitting, the polishing of these sons of God for the glorious heavenly state to which they have been called. The Apostle urges that however humble the position of God's saints in the present life, "We know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." When he shall appear in his glory we also shall appear with him. When he shall reign as the King of kings and Lord of lords, when to him every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, the elect Church, his Bride, will be with him in his Throne, sharers of his glory and participants in his work—the work of blessing and uplifting the world—reconciling the world to God.

Calvin and Knox—Wesley and Whitfield.

Calvin, Knox and others of the reformers, we may then see, were quite right in their insistence that none at the present time are in a reconciled condition toward God except the comparatively few of our race—the saints. These turn from sin to righteousness, turn from disobedience to faith and consecration, and in and through the merit of the Redeemer are acceptable as probationary members of the elect Church. If faithful they will shortly, in the "first resurrection," constitute the Church of glory, the Bride, the Lamb's Wife and Joint-Heir.

Brothers Wesley, Whitfield and others were also right in their proposition that God was not content with electing merely a saintly handful, but surely loved the whole world and would surely give to every member of the race a full opportunity to come to a knowledge of Christ and to seek a share in the merit of his sacrifice for sins and an opportunity for life everlasting.

Those dear brethren contended earnestly with each other over their differences, the one upholding the doctrine of Election, the other contending for the doctrine of Free Grace. Now we see that both were right! Now we see that the election belongs to this Gospel Age and to the High Calling to the divine nature and that in an age following this Free Grace toward all of the race of Adam will prevail. "The knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth;" "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess." Then those who, under the rule and assistance and uplifting influences of the "elect" will come into harmony with the Divine Law, will be blessed with full reconciliation to God and eternal life on the human plane—in Paradise restored—while the intelligently perverse, instead of being everlastingly tortured, as we had supposed, will, as the Apostle says, be punished with everlasting destruction (II Thessalonians i, 9).

"Hallelujah, What a Savior!"

From this viewpoint the glory of our Redeemer and the glory of our heavenly Father are multiplied a million times. Our Redeemer not only is to be the Savior of the "little flock," his Church, his Bride, on the spirit plane of glory, but additionally, through the agency of his Millennial Kingdom, he is to be the Savior of the world. He "tasted death for every man," as the Scriptures declare, and, as they express it, "He shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied" (Isaiah liii, 11). Who could suppose that the Savior would be satisfied with the result of his labor if only about one in a million, as members of his Church, reach the heavenly glory-land?

Who in our day could for a moment believe the suggestion of Brother Jonathan Edwards, the great New England preacher, who declared that the Lord and his saints would, together, look over the battlements of heaven at their neighbors and friends and children suffering an eternity of untellable torture at the hands of demons, and turn around and praise God the louder on this behalf? Poor Brother Edwards had, we believe, but a small conception of Divine Justice and Divine Love. And his difficulty was that he did not see what is now so distinct and clear to Bible students, namely, that the Bible Hell to which all humanity goes is not a place of torture nor of consciousness at all, but the grave, sheol, hades, the tomb.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mrs. Brison Welch is visiting her old home, near McHenry.

Harvey Cuppett, of Loch Lynn, filled the appointments of Dr. Reid, last Sunday, at Armstead, Dodge and Deer Park.

Rumor says that Judge Sanders has sold his property on G street.

L. H. Friend, of Swanton, will move into Mrs. L. C. Binkley's cottage, on F street, about the first of April.

Park Supt. Dr. Shelton and wife are guests of the Arnold cottage for a short time.

B. & O. Agent Sperry and Miss Louise spent a few days at Pittsburg last week visiting relatives, and Mrs. Sperry visited her sister at Westernport. Chas. Bunce acted as station agent during Mr. Sperry's absence.

John Gortner, who has been quite ill, is recovering.

Richard Wrightsman and family have moved into the Jamison cottage on the corner of Philadelphia avenue and H street.

Thomas Harris will move into the house now occupied by Mrs. John Witt, who will move into a house on the Casteel farm.

Mrs. W. G. Myers has purchased the Hammond cottage. Consideration $900.

Justice Murphey, of Parkersburg, was here last Friday taking up ties, lumber and mining props.

Mr. Oliver Hayward and family, of Bond, have moved into the T. C. Miller cottage, on E street, which Mr. H. recently purchased.

Charley Bunce has opened his blacksmith shop for business.

John Baker, of Loch Lynn, is visiting his sister in Pennsylvania.

Will Hessie and wife, of Pittsburg, are visiting the home of Mr. Levi Schard.

A protracted meeting will commence in the United Brethren Church, in Loch Lynn, this evening.

Plenty of snow, freezing weather and raw winds the past week.

Sixteen wild geese were on the lake last Friday, and for the past few days wild ducks have been stopping on the lake.

Miss Bertha Kelley, of Piedmont, is visiting her friend, Miss Bessie Eckard, of the Park.

Last Saturday six of the young people of Deer Park, who had professed conversion in the meeting recently held there, came to Loch Lynn to be baptised by the pastor of the Baptist church at that place, as there is no baptistry in the church at Deer Park. They were accompanied by quite a number of their friends. Many eyes were wet when they saw these young disciples go down into the watery grave in obedience to their Lord's command. The people of Loch Lynn extended their hospitality to these visitors until the time of the afternoon train.

HOYES.

February is giving us quite a variety of weather. We have had rain, sleet and snow and are experiencing a blizzard at this writing.

An epidemic of colds and grip has had full sway in this community for several weeks past. Scarcely any escape.

Miss Bertha Dewitt and Aunt Lilly Dewitt left Hoyes for Connellsville, Pa. Miss Emily expects to make an extended visit to her sisters, and Miss Bertha will return in a week or ten days.

Mr. Meshach Mattingly, who had been quite a severe attack of bronchitis, is very much better and able to be out again.

Messrs. William Maffett and Josh McRobie, of Oakland made a business trip to Friendsville last week and on their return home spent a few hours in Hoyes with W. A. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dewitt spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Dewitt's parents, Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Friend.

Mrs. Edmund Hines and baby of Elmont, were guests of M. Mattingly's several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Custer were visiting Mrs. Custer's parents Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Dewitt was taken very seriously ill Sunday morning and is only slightly improved at this writing.

Miss Ada Dewitt, of Sang Run, is visiting relatives and friends in Hoyes several days the past week.

Saturday evening a crowd of young people gathered and gave a young man of our neighborhood an old fashioned serenading, but after all had enjoyed the music they were informed that the young man was not married, so they will have to come again.

Willie Bishoff, railway postal clerk, left Hoyes Tuesday for Baltimore, where he will again resume his position.

SUTTON.

Our neighbors are making the crooked way straight, and the rough way smooth and the hard way soft by changing the county road at L. Wiland's and Hetz's.

Mr. Charles Chaney purchased a fine horse one day last week from Mr. Race, of Frostburg, also Mr. George Pope purchased one from the same party.

We are glad to see Mr. Harrison Miller back in our community, he having recently moved with his family from Sand Patch, Pa., to his farm near Sutton.

Rev. D. M. Merrill and Garrett Coleman were visiting at H. S. Coleman's last Friday.

Mr. Freeman Coleman is preparing to return to Akron, Ohio, where he was formerly engaged in business.

Sutton turned out well at the meeting held in Grantsville last Thursday. We believe the meeting will accomplish its purpose. It was well attended and a set of excellent resolutions were passed and forwarded to the County Roads Commisssion.

BITTINGER.

E. S. Brenneman has placed his office with the village merchant for a while. A silk hat and a hobby horse, the former for himself and the latter for the little son which was left in his home by the Stork last Saturday evening.

Benjamin Long, of Mt. Lake Park, was the guest of Miss Effie Bittinger at the telephone exchange this week.

George Yommer purchased a fine Jersey cow over in Somerset county, Pennsylvania, one day last week.

C. E. Ellithorp made a business trip to Baltimore last week.

Dennis Detriech has been seriously ill for a few days, but at last report he was improving.

Rev. Young of Salisbury, Pa., delivered an excellent sermon from the Lutheran pulpit in this village last Saturday evening.

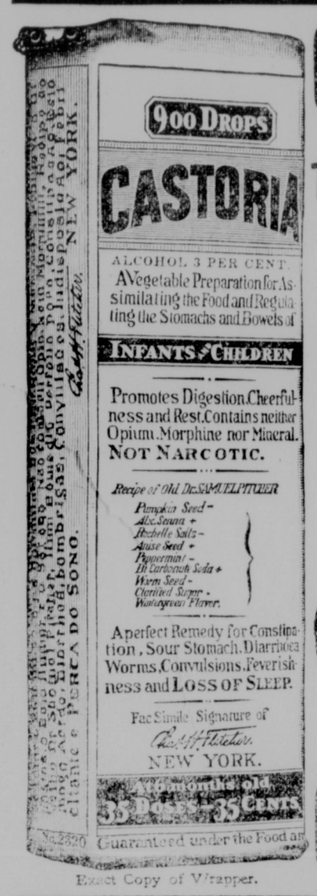
Miss Leanora Wiley returned to her home at this place last Monday afternoon, after a two weeks stay with her grandmother in Grantsville.

Mrs. Earl Selders was quite ill last week and was attended by Dr. Ricketts, of Accident.

John H. Stark made a business trip to Salisbury and Meyersdale, Pa., last week.

Daniel Brenneman, of Manidiers Ridge, was a business caller in this village last week.

Most camp owners in this section opened their camps last week and gathered a large quantity of water on Saturday.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Wood's Trade Mark

Clover and Grass Seeds

best qualities obtainable.

Sow Clover and Grass seeds in March on your fall-sown Wheat or other grain crops.

"Wood's Crop Special" tells the advantages of these seedings, and gives prices and seasonable information each month about all Farm seeds.

"Wood's Crop Special" and Descriptive Seed Catalog mailed free on request.

T. W. WOOD & SONS
Seedsmen, - Richmond, Va.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.

TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400

200 Young Broke Mules 200

HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.

MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 50 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3055. 45-5m

New Assessment Appeals.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 17, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett County, Maryland, acting as a Board of Control and Review, will be at their office in the town of Oakland, to hear appeals on the new assessments on the following dates:

For District No. 1—March 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, 1911.

For District No. 10—March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20, 1911.

For District No. 4—March 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1911.

For District No. 13—March 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1911.

By order of the Board.
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

Wm. R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger vs. Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley, his wife.
No. 1719 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 18th day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger, trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $900.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 16, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, March 6th, 1911,

to transact all routine business.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS I. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Mortgagee's Sale

OF VALUABLE

Coal & Timber Lands

Lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to the Lancaster Trust Company of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the 26th day of October, 1900, duly recorded in Garrett County, Md., wherein William U. Hensel, of Lancaster City was duly authorized to make sale of the real and personal property covered and conveyed by said mortgage, in case of default by said mortgagor in the payment of certain moneys secured by the same and such default having occurred, the undersigned William U. Hensel, as such attorney named in said mortgage to make this sale, will, on

SATURDAY, the 25th day of February, 1911

AT 11:00 O'CLOCK A. M.,

in front of the Courthouse door in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, State of Maryland, sell at public auction, all the real and personal property, lots and parcels of grounds, and timber and timber rights, covered and conveyed by said mortgage, the same lying Southwest of Grantsville and Northeast of Accident, in said Garrett County, Maryland, and the same being particularly described as follows, viz:

The land is located in the northern part of Garrett County, Md., and lies within Districts No. 3 and No. 12. The county road running from Engle's Mills to Bittinger traverses this property in a southeasterly direction, the property being about a mile and a half from Engle's Mills and about two and a half miles from Bittinger. The portion of the property, known as the second and third parts of "Rights of Man and Common Sense" being at the summit of Negro Mountain.

FIRST. All those four lots or parcels of ground, lying in Garrett County, Maryland, which are known as Military Lots Nos. 243, 247, 250 and 283, containing in the aggregate 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots of ground which were conveyed to Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others by deed dated March 30th, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 281, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Md., and being also part of the lands which were conveyed by J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by deed dated August 14, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 589, one of said Land Records.

SECOND. All those four lots and parcels of ground lying near Engles Mills, in Garrett County, Maryland, known as Military Lots Nos. 244, 245, 246 and 247, containing 200 acres of land more or less, being the same lots and parcels of ground which were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by Joseph V. Einstein and others, by deed dated March 30, 1900, recorded in Liber 38, folio 284, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being a part of the same lands which were conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

THIRD. All the timber and timber rights in and upon all those two parts of a tract of land called "The second and third parts of the Rights of Man" and "Common Sense," containing together 500 acres of land more or less, which said timber and timber rights were conveyed to the said Jacob G. Stauffer by George T. Brew and wife, by deed dated March 28, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 283, one of said Land Records, excepting therefrom so much of the said timber and all that portion of said land which was conveyed away from the same by Louis [illegible] and up to January [illegible] and conveyed by the said J. Frank Keller and others to the said Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by said deed dated the 14th day of August, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid.

FOURTH. All the rest and residue of all that lot and parcel of land lying and being near Engle's Mills, in said county, and known as "Lot Number Two" of the four lots in which the tract known as "The Rights of Man," second and third parts, and "Common Sense" are now divided, contained within the following metes and bounds, to-wit:

Beginning for the same at the beginning of Lot No. 1, and running with the lines of the "Rights of Man," second part, East 64 perches, South 60 degrees East, 90 perches; North 70 degrees East, 25 perches; South 35 degrees East, 90 perches; then with the 61st line of "Park," East 64 perches to the beginning of the "Rights of Man" third part, and with the lines thereof, South 146 perches, East 111 perches to the end of the 25th line of Common Sense, and with the 26th line thereof corrected, South 6 degrees East, 15½ perches to a line of the land conveyed by Robert Oliver to John Beachy, and with said line, East 26 perches to the given line of Common Sense, which is also the 3rd line of Lot No. 2350; then with the range of lots, North 676 perches to the end of the first line of Common Sense, and with the lines thereof, East 20 perches, North 160 perches, West 80 perches, North 200 perches; then North 14 degrees East, 90 perches to the end of the 2nd line of Lot No. 2456; then with the lots, West 90 perches, South 320 perches to the beginning of the tract called "Ormes Trouble;" then reversing the given line thereof, South 15½ degrees West, 271 perches to the beginning, containing, in the residue of said tract land,

500 Acres, More or Less.

Being the same tract and parcel of land conveyed by George T. Brew to the said J. Frank Keller and others by deed dated May 24, 1900, recorded in Liber E. Z. T. No. 38, folio 280, of said Land Records, and being part of the lands conveyed by said J. Frank Keller and others to the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, by the said deed dated August 14, 1900, and recorded as aforesaid, excepting however, from said last tract and parcel of the timber and timber rights belonging said land, which were conveyed by George T. Brew and others to said Jacob Stauffer by the above recited deed of [illegible] 28, 1900, recorded as aforesaid.

FIFTH. All the plant and machinery railways and tramways, buildings improvements now on the lands hereinbefore mentioned and described together with the rights, privileges, and franchises of said Garrett Lumber Company. Limited to all the same or which it may otherwise have under its charter.

All the above lots, tracts and parcels of land and timber and timber rights together with all the plant, machinery, railways, tramways, houses buildings and improvements of every kind thereon, will be sold as a whole, as one property and plant.

TERMS OF SALE, as prescribed by the mortgage—Cash, $1,000 of which shall be paid on the day of sale and the remainder which shall be paid as soon as said sale is ratified by the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

WILLIAM U. HENSEL,
Attorney named in Mortgage.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of B. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of
B. WORTH JENNINGS, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS.
January 31st, 1911.

KODAK ●● SAFETY ● FILM

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 34. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1911. NUMBER 52

Circuit Clerks Office

SEVENTEEN YEAR LOCUST IS DUE SURE THIS YEAR

Agricultural Department Has Sent Out Warning Against Insects.

In view of the fact that a warning has just been given by the Agricultural Department of the return of the seventeen-year locusts, the coming summer, a description of the destructvie insect will be of interest. In its general acceptance of the term "locust" is strictly applicable only to certain insects of the order of Orthoptere of the family Acryidae, having the attributes of migration.

The biology of the insects may be briefly described. The females excavate holes in the earth, in which the eggs are deposited regularly arranged in a long cylindrical mass enveloped in a glutinous secretion. The young larvae hatch and immediately begin their destructive career. They increase rapidly in size, and a they approach the state of full development the rudiments of wings begin to appear. Naturally, in this state they are incapable of flight, but their locomotive powers are nevertheless extensive for their voracity is great.

Once winged and perfect, their powers become infinitely more disastrous redoubled by the migratory instinct. While the laws regulating this instinct are not yet perfectly understood, food and temperature are known to have much to do with it, and there is a tendency for the flights to take a particular direction, varied by the physical circumstances of the breeding districts. It is likewise certain that each species has its area of constant location, in which it always exists, and its area of extraordinary migration to the extremes of which it only occasionally extends.

Perhaps the most feasible of the suggestions as to the causes of the migratory impulse is that locusts naturally breed in dry, sandy districts in which food is scarce, and thus impelled to wander in order to procure the necessaries of life but against this it has been argued that swarms bred in a highly productive district in which they have temporarily settled, will seek the barren home of their ancestors. Another ingenious suggestion is that migration is intimately connected with a dry condition of the atmosphere, urging them to move on until compelled to stop for food or procreative purposes.

The distance particular swarms may travel depends upon a variety of circumstances, but one thousand miles may be taken as a moderate estimate. Sometimes it its very much more. As a rule, the progress is only gradual and this adds vastly to the devastating effects, which may be likened to those caused by a foreign army spreading destruction throughout an invaded country. When an extensive swarm settles in a district all vegetation rapidly disappears, and then hunger urges the insects on another stage. Such is their voracity that they have been known to attack dry animal substances, and it is claimed that even cannibalism is the outcome of the failure of all other kinds of foods.

The sizes of swarms varies greatly, and there are authentic accounts of such large ones that the light of the sun was temporarily obscured.

As to methods of checking the ravages of locusts, unfortunately little can be said. Some little can be done by destroying the eggs and the young insects before they develop wings, but infinitesimally little can be done with the winged hordes having the migratory instinct upon them. Starvation, the outcome of their own work does much. It has been found that with all migratory locusts the breeding places or true homes, are comparatively barren districts, usually elevated plateaus. Hence the progress of civilization, with its concomitant necessity for converting these heretofore barren plains into areas of fertility may and probably will gradually lessen the evil.

Locusts, like all other animals, have their natural enemies. They are greedily devoured by many birds, and it has many times been noticed that migratory swarms of the insects were closely followed by myriads of birds. Predatory insects of other orders also attack them, especially in the unwinged condition, and they have deadly parasite foes.

Although they are to us an unmixed evil, the locusts are considered delicacies by certain savage and semi-civilized people, and are eaten in large quantities. For some time they have not been excessively destructive to this region, and there is little cause to fear their periodic arrival.

Mr. Martin Spoke.

Attorney Fred T. Martin attended the meeting of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution of West Virginia, of which he is vice president, at Wheeling Wednesday, and a splendid time was enjoyed at a big banquet of the Society. Mr. Martin was one of the leading speakers at the banquet, and ex-Governor A. B. White was another of the speakers. Mrs. Linna Hennig-Sherman, well known here, took a prominent part in the banquet of the Daughters of the Revolution, held in connection with the meeting of the first named society.—Grafton Sentinel.

Garthright & Harvey

THE FLOUR

For Every Day Use.

Sunday

Monday Thursday

Tuesday Friday

wednesday Saturday

Sunday

Every Sack Guaranteed

Garthright & Harvey,

MT. LAKE PARK, MD.

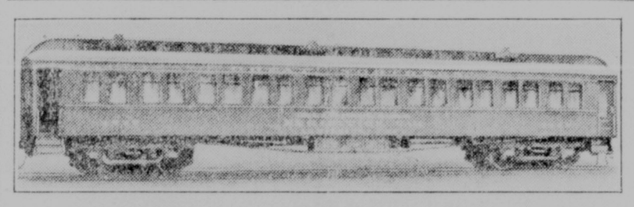
School Superintendent's Hearing Will Begin This Morning

Many Witnesses Have Been Summoned From All Parts of the County.

This morning at ten o'clock the trial of County Superintendent Ed. A. Browning, charged with inefficiency and violations generally of the school law of the State, will begin in the court room in Oakland.

By direction of the State Board of Education Justice Teats issued summons for about fifty witnesses and these were served by Sheriff Shartzer. The witnesses come from all portions of the county.

Members of the State Board of Education who arrived in Oakland last night and will be present at the hearing today, are Dr. M. Bates Stephens, Dr. T. H. Lewis, Col. W. S. Powell, Messrs. Clayton Purnell and H. C. Longnecker, who were accompanied by the assistant secretary of the board, Mr. B. K. Purdum.



A MAGNIFICENT EXHIBIT

Colonist Car of the Great Northern Attracts People to See Exhibits.

The special car of exhibits showing the products of Oregon, Washington and Montana, sent out by the Great Northern Railroad to advertise the great natural and agricultural resources of the northwest, was brought to Oakland Tuesday morning and after being placed on the siding in the Baltimore and Ohio depot yards was the centre of attraction and was visited by several thousand people from Oakland and the surrounding community, all of whom were greatly entertained and interested by the exhibits of fruit, grasses, grains and minerals, as well as lumber and other forest products attractively arranged along both sides of the car.

The fruit exhibit, showing apples, peaches, cherries, plums, and many other varieties, encased in glass jars and preserved by a secret process, looked as fresh as they did when plucked from the trees upon which they grew. All were extra large and were of course the choicest specimens that could be secured.

The car was in charge of Mr. O. A. Atwood, immigration agent of the Great Northern Railway, and Mr. E. A. Wilson, assistant agricultural agent of the same system, both courteous gentlemen who took pleasure in explaining any question that was asked and in showing the exhibits to their visitors.

Tuesday evening a steropticon lecture, attended by a great crowd of people, was given in the court house by the gentlemen having charge of the colonist car. Those present were well repaid for attending as the lecture was most interesting from start to finish. Mr. Atwood demonstrated to the satisfaction of all that he was an interesting and lucid talker, thoroughly in touch with his work and the success awaiting those who seek homes in the northwest.

The car was taken from here to Keyser yesterday morning where the exhibits were thrown open to the public of that city. A counter exhibit has been arranged by the fruit growers of the Keyser section which compare favorably and in some cases excelled that of the northwest.

He's "Sure Some" Happy.

Probably the happiest man in Garrett county is our lifetime friend William A. Sturgiss, son of Col. and Mrs. A. G. Sturgiss. He has just cause for being happy: a little daughter arrived at his home Tuesday morning at 10.40 o'clock and for hours thereafter the delighted father was kept busy answering telephones conveying to him the messages of congratulation from his numerous friends in Oakland and elsewhere.

Fire Clay Found.

Diligent search is being made hereabout for brick and the searchers have been making tests here and there, mostly near the Garrett county line. It has been discovered that on Laurel Run there is an abundance of the best fire brick clay, suited to the manufacture of the best grade of brick. This is considered a valuable find. It is more than probable that within a year there will be at least one big fire brick plant in operation near Lonaconing.—Lonaconing Corr. Cumberland Times.

MARCH FORECAST

Peter R. Smith Predicts the Month to Be Wet and Cool.

The disturbing causes of the meteorology denote March a very disagreeable month. Much of it will be wet and cool. The weather will be attended with much cloudy weather, snow, sleet and cool waves. Thunder showers will be experienced and some very hot days. Spring weather will be late, occasionally a pleasant day in March will be offset by many disagreeable days.

April is likely to come to the front with fair, good weather about the second week of the month.

March will come in with a storm wave developing in the west and will be on transit from the 2d to the 6th. In the different sections of the country the disturbing causes denote this to be a much intensified period of disturbance.

From the 1st to the 5th the temperature will grow warmer till rain is developed. Rain, sleet, snow, thunder and wind will be the disturbing causes of the wave. On the heels of the wave the weather will change to very cold for the season. The counter wave will most likely reach a blizzard in the northern border states.

A storm wave falls on the 8th, 9th and 10th. The disturbing causes remain at this time the same as at the previous period and somewhat intensified. Rain, sleet, and snow will be developed, followed by very cool weather.

A storm period will center on the 8th, 9th and 10th. The temperature will be much warmer during the passage of the wave. Rain, sleet and snow will prevail at this period. High winds will prevail during the passage of the wave. A cold wave will follow.

From the 12th to the 16th storms will be on passage across the country. During the passage of the storms the temperature will be much warmer, rain, sleet, snow and thunder will prevail. These rains and disturbed spell will be followed by very cool weather.

Rain, snow, sleet and thunder will prevail from the 19th to the 22d. This disturbed spell comes at the vernal equinox, which is likely to be much intensified with rain and wind, followed with a very cool wave

On or touching the 24th a wave of disturbance will be on passage to the 28th. Rain and snow flurries will prevail within the period of its passage. Cool weather will follow the wave.

The Jennings Cornet Band.

A twenty-four piece band has been organized at Jennings, composed at present, as follows:

Cornets, Harry Miller, Olin Custer, John Blocher, W. W Baum and Lawrence Bittinger; tenors, Gideon Miller, Laurence Upole, Bruce Shaw, Arthur Warnick, Galen Beachy, Fay Yommer, and Anthony Emerson; altos, Clarence White, Ross Durst, Christian Yommer, Harry Shaw and Harry Butler; bass, W. H. Moyer and Dick Patten; baritone, Oscar Smith; cymbals, Russel Stark; clarinet, G. R. Boucher; snare drum, Chas. Faidley; bass drum, Edward Pritts; band master, W. W. Morris, D. D.

Subscribe for The Republican, Cheapest and Best Paper in Garrett county.

COCKING MAIN AT KITZMILLER RAIDED

By Sheriff Shartzer and Deputies Who Placed Participants Under Arrest.

Last Saturday evening Sheriff Shartzer was put wise to the fact that a cocking main was to be pulled off at Kitzmiller, over on the Western Maryland railroad, that night and that it would be attended by sports and near-sports from various points along the line and also from the Georges Creek region and he accordingly arranged to be present, not as a spectator or one in accord or sympathy with the affair, but in his official capacity as a preserver of the peace and the representative of the law.

With six deputies the Sheriff left Oakland via the overland route and arrived at Kitzmiller about two o'clock Sunday morning, just when the interest in the main was at its height and after four prime birds had "bit the dust" for the edification of those present.

The main was held in the opera house at Kitzmiller and it has been variously estimated that the number present totalled about 150 men and boys. At the foot of the stairway leading from the street to the upper floor of the building a guard had been placed to give an alarm to those in attendance should the officers appear. The guard was easily captured by the Sheriff who slipped a pair of handcuffs over his wrists and was left alone while the officers made their way to the room above, taking the participants entirely by surprise. At sight of the officers they were recognized and a scramble was made to escape, many going through the window, glass, sash and all being carried with the men hurtling through the air to the ground a distance of twenty feet or more. In the meantime the handcuffed guard escaped, carrying away with him the bracelets.

Of the 150 men and boys present half made their escape through the windows, those upon the stage sliding down a rope fixed at one of the back windows in anticipation of the visit of the officers. Of those captured a number were boys who were allowed to go by the Sheriff. From the men a forfeit of $5 each was exacted for their appearance in Oakland on Tuesday to stand trial, the Justice of the Peace at Kitzmiller being disqualified to act in the matter of taking bonds for the appearance of those arrested. In all $185 was collected by the Sheriff as forfeits and he still has that amount as none appeared for trial except a young man named Harvey, who came over to Oakland Tuesday morning and was arraigned before Justice Teats charged with cruelty to animals. He was found guilty and fined $2 and costs, amounting in all to $7.91.

The forfeiture of the money placed in Sheriff Shartzer's hands does not release those participating and the matter will in all probability be brought to the attention of the grand jury and indictments returned.

In the meantime the Sheriff stands ready to refund to all who may apply for the forfeit money in his hands, they making application for the same at his office in Oakland.

FINANCIAL AID

Is Being Given the Movement Looking to the Betterment of National Road.

The business and professional men and farmers of the eastern end of Garrett county including all that territory along the old National Road from Keyser's Ridge on the west to the Allegany county line on the east, and as far north as the Mason & Dixon line, have raised by subscription a sum of money equal to that raised by the Frostburg Board of Trade to keep up the agitation for the building of the five-mile stretch of the old National Road in Garrett county from the Allegany county line west, a model road by the State Highway Commission, and those interested declare that the agitation shall only cease when something tangible has been accomplished.

The people of the two counties who are directly interested in the reconstruction of the old highway, are deeply in earnest in their endeavors to have the Highway Commission do something toward carrying out the original intention of making the old road part of highways to be improved throughout the State.

Orphans' Court Proceedings.

The semi-monthly session of the Orphans' Court for Garrett county convened and adjourned yesterday when the following business was transacted:

Letters of administration were granted G. A. Lininger on the personal estate of Sarah Fike; to Noah Bittner on the personal estate of Jeremiah Bittner; to Stella Evans-Davis on the personal estate of William Evans; to Edward Z. Tower on the personal estate of Enos D. Kepner.

Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill was appointed guardian of Thelma Saucer, of Crellin.

More Pay For the Parson.

A Nation-wide movement to get better salaries for ministers, was started by laymen representing different religious denominations, who met Monday in the Chamber of Commerce, Cleveland, Ohio. A resolution was offered urging that the question of pastors' salaries be carefully considered. The movement was started by F. M. Barton, who showed that the average salary for preachers, except in the 150 largest cities, was $573 per year. Barton said that he had received letters from many influential men in favor of the movement.

DIXON & KELSO

Dixon & Kelso offer extraordinary values in

Ladies White Shirt Waists

Only 99c.

Regular $1.25 and $1.50 values.

In all the latest styles, including plain White Linen, Tailored; White Linen, Embraidered, and best quality of Lawn.

Without a doubt tne best value ever offered.

Buy one and tell your friends.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

With jimswinger coats vests are cut low to show shirt studs.

How long will the aviators stick to their agreement not to indulge in reckless flying?

America has 26 licensed aviators, and the 26 have formed a trust in order to prolong their own lives.

More ink than blood was shed over the now famous battle of London, in which two men stood off 200.

In the matter of safety we do not see that the submarines have much advantage over the flying machines.

The Cleveland man who sued for "time lost in answering mistaken telephone calls" must have further time to lose.

New York has a musical comedy which is said to be not comic. There are others, some of which are not musical, either.

It is no crime to steal umbrellas on rainy days in New Jersey. And now will not those who are addicted to the habit please go there?

Vienna's birth rate has fallen enormously. Evidently the stork does not love the apartment houses in which so many Vienna families live.

A navy officer has invented a pistol for shooting flies. It ought to make popular a new summer sport, for the game will never be lacking.

Africa led all the rest of the world in gold production last year. The African output was $175,000,000, or nearly double that of the United States.

Russia proposes to build a $75,000,000 fleet of battleships for the Black Sea. They will be perfectly safe there if the Russian sailors can keep them afloat.

The thugs who beat a policeman, took his revolver away from him and left him lying unconscious in the street should be chidden for violating the golden rule.

"Medical records show," says a nerve specialist, "that persons who are not loquacious have always been remarked for their good health." Let him explain that to his wife.

We are inclined to be skeptical about that Alaska fire which destroyed half a town with the mercury 50 degrees below. Wouldn't the flames freeze in weather like that?

Talk about your western corn harvests. Capt. Drake of Marlborough county, South Carolina, holds the world's record of 254 and a fraction bushels of the grain to the acre.

More than half the members of the senior class at Wellesley college are reported to be engaged to be married. The comments of the girls at Smith and Vassar ought to be interesting.

If auto owners were more careful as to the kind of men they employ as chauffeurs possibly there would be fewer joy rides. Sometimes, however, the owner sets the chauffeur a bad example.

If things keep on going as they have been it may be necessary to substitute the letter "r" for "h" in the last word of the usual notice on the theater programs: "Ladies will please remove their hats."

In New York they are going to demonstrate how a child can be clothed adequately for $7 a year. Even the owner of a fashionable flat building should admit that a good child is worth as much as that.

Twelve women jurors in San Francisco agreed so promptly that they pronounced for a divorce without awaiting the judge's charge, but the lady jurors will learn in time to wrangle over verdicts just like men.

It is saddening, however, to note that the dear "Old Philadelphia Lady" who has been trying for more than eleven years to find out, through the columns of the New York Herald's Paris edition, "how to figure the temperature from Centigrade to Fahrenheit, and vice versa," has not yet succeeded.

Maine has been one of the great sources of the eastern seaboard's ice supply, but even Maine, where the ice crop seldom fails, is ceasing to depend upon the weather. Artificial ice has been made for some time at the plant of the Maine insane hospital in Augusta and now a large ice manufacturing plant is to be established in Lewiston.

A man in Missouri has just died who in a married life of 69 years never quarreled with his wife nor told her a lie. The great majority of husbands will refuse to believe in such superhuman virtue, particularly as to the last detail.

Forty-five of the Brazilian sailors who mutinied have died from various causes since their surrender. Twenty-six succumbed to sunstroke while engaged in compulsory government work. This form of capital punishment is effective, if unofficial.

The Chain of Christian Life

By REV. TRELORE
Pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Houston, Texas

TEXT—Make a chain; for the land is full of bloody crimes, and the city is full of violence.—Ezekiel 7:23.

Ezekiel is about to pronounce doom upon the people of the upper classes, and in the last part of the verse he speaks of general conditions of the land and city.

I do not propose to discuss the things they were in the days of the prophet. But I would take the expression, "Make a Chain," and let Jesus speak to us as we examine the different links in the chain, knowing as we do so that no chain is stronger than its weakest link.

I would point out to you then the different links in the chain of Christian life and, if possible, strengthen those links so our work the coming year might be more steadfast and as a church and people we might fill the place our Father has assigned us in this part of the city.

First, I would let the links represent things in our individual lives, know that no church can be stronger intellectually, spiritually or morally than are the members of that church.

Here is a link, we will call it the link of love. Do we have it in our lives? "God is love."

John said, "Little children, love one another." Our usefulness as Christians will be determined by our love for God and his cause. By it our work for the church is measured. If the love of God is in our hearts we will be as David when he said "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the lord." Men shun God's house and never enter it because they do not love God.

Here is a link we will call personal work. How much it is needed in our church to keep the members of the church busy, this should not be necessary and would not be needed if we were all alive to our opportunities.

A great field for personal work lies outside the church, we can go out and find Bible school scholars and bring them in. What a great improvement it would be if every member of our church capable of teaching a class in the school would go out and find the class and bring them into the Bible school and teach them.

This link we will call home mission. It is sometimes misunderstood; we think of our Mexican work or the work in the western states. But while this is true and that is a part of the home mission work, yet I would bring you face to face with the homes in our community, many of them are in need of words of sympathy, some are needing the bread and butter to sustain physical life, others have never accepted Jesus as a personal savior.

Home missions would carry us to the needy communities around us where Bible schools could be organized and chapels built, churches organized, etc.

This much needed work done would mean more for our city, state and nation than we can imagine, brethren. Make a chain and bind together all the important features of our work.

I would put in a link here in the chain which I hope will be strong enough to bring our church up to self-support and pay off our debt. I wish we might all adopt the Bible plan of giving one-tenth of our income to the Lord's work, and in a short time our debt would be gone and home expenses met and we would be looking for new fields to enter for Jesus' sake.

I may have left out many links which should be in the chain, but weld these and many others together with the great love of God and the power of God, and you will have a chain strong enough to rescue the perishing soul and to make your influence felt around the world.

What use would I make of the chain?

We, as individual members of this church, are links in the great chain that holds this church here in this community, as the great ship is held in place in yonder gulf the anchor's power is measured by the weakest link in the chain that holds the ship; so the power of this church is measured by our strength as individual members of the church.

The church is anchored, a mighty storm is brewing, sins of all kinds are endeavoring to wipe out the influence of the church.

The saloon, which carries with it the bulk of all crimes and makes any land or city, such as the prophet saw when he said in this verse, "The land is full of bloody crimes, and the city is full of violence." This greatest of all foes against the individual, the home, the church and our nation, has been crowded out of north Texas, west Texas, central Texas, and here on the very banks of the Gulf of Mexico the saloon will make its final fight. God grant that his people will make the fight of all fights and drive from our city and state this great enemy of mankind with all its kindred vices, and may the church of Jesus Christ prove true to all that has been intrusted to it.

Cleanliness.

A cake of soap is a means of grace. A five-cent can of lye may do more than a five-dollar Bible.—Rev. J. B. Clayton, Baptist, Washington, D. C.

Nobody wants mere ornaments in this world, but everybody wants integrity.—Ruskin.

Temperance

ALCOHOL IS SUBTLE POISON

Its Action at First Fills Person With Serene Self-Complacency, Ending Fatally.

A quart of Madeira wine consists of two pounds and a little over four ounces of water, two ounces of gummy and tartareous matter, a little over two ounces of an oily, resinous substance, and a little over two ounces of alcohol. Take out the alcohol, and the remainder of the Madeira wine is a nauseous mess, which no one would think of drinking. Take the alcohol out of beer, and it is a sour slop, which no sane man would dream of taking into his stomach, says the Toledo Blade. Whisky consists of nearly equal parts of water and impure alcohol, the latter containing fusil oil and some essential oils derived from the grain, which give it flavor. It is the alcohol which produces intoxication, if imbibed in sufficient quantity. There is nothing else in any intoxicant which would commend it to the palate of any man.

Now, the scientific verdict as to alcohol is that it is a poison—no more, no less—and, as a poison, its action is first upon the nerve centers. Its action is generally at first to fill the person with a serene and perfect self-complacency. His feelings and faculties are rendered more intense from the stimulation of the nerves by the poison. With most persons this is shown by increased vivacity, and a tendency to talk much more than is usual.

As intoxication progresses, the senses gradually become hazy, a soft humming seems to fill the pauses in the conversation, a filmy haze obscures the vision, the victim finds it difficult to preserve his equilibrium; next, objects appear double, or flit confused before the eyes; the drunkard becomes boisterous, ridiculous; articulation becomes difficult, and he finally falls to the ground insensible—that is, he is "dead drunk."

From this state, after a period of deep slumber, he awakes exhausted, feverish, sick and giddy, with throbbing head, ringing ears and bloodshot eyes.

The poison first affects the lobes of the brain, and the other nerve centers of the cerebro-spinal system are successfully brought under the influence of the poison, until, in the state commonly known as "dead drunk," the only ones that are not paralyzed are those known as the automatic centers, which regulate and keep up breathing and the circulation. Enough alcohol can be taken, however, to paralyze these, in which case the deep sleep of drunkenness becomes a stupor which passes into death.

There is a parallel between apoplexy and intoxication. To be drunk is simply apoplectic. Such is the action of alcohol upon the nervous system, and its action upon other parts of the body is no less injurious.

When an alcoholic drink is taken into the stomach, the alcohol is rapidly absorbed through the coats of that organ, passes directly into the circulation, and is carried with the blood to every part of the system.

That which goes to the brain produces successively the symptoms enumerated above; that carried to the lungs begins to be expelled with the expired breath of these organs. Experiments have been tried in which wine was administered in capsules, so that not one particle touched the interior of the mouth or throat; yet in two or three minutes the odor of alcohol was noted on the breath, showing that in that short time it had been absorbed, passed into the blood and was being expelled by the lungs.

The blood loaded with alcohol, in passing through the liver, sets up an irritation which frequently causes an incurable disease to that very important organ—cirrhosis of the liver, better known as "hobnail liver." The kidneys are stimulated and irritated and long indulgence in the drinking habit leads to incurable diseases in them. The skin is also affected, and does its part in expelling the alcohol from the system. In point of fact all the excretory organs set at work as soon as the alcohol gets into the system, in the endeavor to rid the body of the poison. The liver, kidneys, lungs and skin are all over-stimulated in this effort.

We hope we may have made it clear in this brief statement of the action of alcohol that it is absolutely and entirely a poison. It is in no sense a food. It injures the brain, the nerves, over-excites the heart, irritates the stomach, liver and kidneys; never does any good, but always harm.

There is a vast amount of ignorance among the people as to the real nature of alcohol. It is the fewer number of our people, even at this date, who are convinced that alcohol is a poison; and this ignorance of the masses is one of the bulwarks of the traffic. We need more education, especially in the family, in the church, and in the common schools, as to the real nature and effect of this potent poison. When the masses of the people understand its true nature, a tremendous impulse will be given to the effort to pulverize the rum power.

Workman Who Thinks.

The bishop of Sheffield, in a sermon to labor delegates, said that there was no stronger critic of the workman who drinks than the workman who thinks.

A Very Demure Young Lady

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press

It was a matter of wonder that such an ambitious, aggressive mother as Mrs. Kent should have such a demure daughter as Estelle. Yes, the mother was very aggressive, and the daughter was very, very demure. That was an opposite other mothers could not help but remark.

At seventeen Miss Estelle was sent to Vassar. She might have preferred another school, but her mother said Vassar, and that settled that. Mrs. Kent was a widow with an income none too large, but she had plans and schemes far ahead.

At eighteen and nineteen Miss Estelle was still acquiring knowledge, but at twenty she had finished. She had had vacations, of course, and there had been no change in her demureness. She was given three or four days in which to draw her breath after getting home for good, and then her mother called her to her side and said:

"Estelle, you are now twenty years old."

"Yes, mamma."

"You should be thinking of matrimony."

"I am, mamma."

"You have a handsome face and a good education, and you ought to marry well."

"So I should mamma."

"But the trouble is," continued the mother, "that there are no eligible young men around here. That is, none who could support you in the style you deserve."

"Not one, mamma."

"But there is a gentleman, after all—a middle-aged gentleman—a man of wealth who has been attracted to you. He has seen you on various occasions during your vacations, and has become smitten. He was here the other day to ask the privilege of calling on you."

"Yes, mamma."

"And I granted it. Estelle, you at least know of Mr. Henderson—the gentleman who owns the Golden Brewery?"

"Yes, mamma."

"I have heard it said that he is all of forty-eight years old, and dyes his whiskers. Those innuendoes are always thrown out against the rich. He is a fat man and baldheaded, but

"Estelle, Isn't He Just Splendid?"

you don't think that counts against him, do you?"

"Of course not, mamma."

"Fat can be reduced and bald heads covered with wigs. Mr. Henderson may not be as well educated as some, but he's a thorough business man. I thought you might be prejudiced against him because he is a brewer."

"Oh, no, mamma."

"Of course he doesn't rinse out the kegs and bottles and refill them again, nor does he drive one of his wagons. He stays in the office and counts the cash."

"Yes, mamma," was the same demure and dutiful reply.

"Mr. Henderson will probably call within a day or two. He has purchased a beautiful auto, and as soon as he can find a chauffeur to run it we are to go for a ride. I knew you would think as I do about this matter, but still I want to praise you for your good common sense."

"Thanks, mamma."

Mrs. Kent smiled with satisfaction. She hugged herself in her complacency. She believed the match as good as made. Within a radius of ten miles of her were a hundred other mothers who could have told her that it was the demure young lady to have an eye on, but the caution would have done no good. That same evening a letter was mailed to somebody up the state which contained the following sentence:

"Come at once and hire to him as a chauffeur. You know how to run an auto. We'll plan the rest after you get here."

Miss Demure was planning a little scheme. It was "yes, mamma," to everything, and mamma thought a girl twenty years old—.

Mr. Henderson called. Yes, he was short and fat and pudgy. He wore a wig and looked his age, no matter what it was. No, he was not an educated man. He was just a millionaire, with a loving heart, and when he made this announcement he laid his hand on his right side, as if his heart had moved over. He had hired a chauffeur that day, and could invite mother and daughter to go out for a spin with him on the next. The chauffeur was fine-looking and would be a man to do credit to him. After his call had lasted an hour, and the brewer who didn't rinse his own bottles had rendered himself as agreeable as he could, he bowed himself out, and the mother turned to the daughter with:

"Estelle, isn't he just splendid?"

"He is, mamma," was the reply.

"Can you find anything to criticise?"

"Not a thing, mamma."

"Then let me give you a motherly kiss."

And just one hour after that motherly kiss had been implanted on her demure cheek Miss Estelle was walking and talking with the brewer's chauffeur in the reading room of the town library! They talked about something that both smiled and giggled over, and the deceitful young lady almost whistled the air of a topical song as she made her way homeward.

The "spin" was taken next afternoon. Truly, it was a fine auto, and truly it was a distinguished looking chauffeur. The ladies occupied the tonneau and the brewer sat beside the driver that he might show off his fat back and red neck. Ten—twenty—thirty miles an hour, and then a stop! The auto had gone dead. That was the way with all new autos, the chauffeur said. The bobcrank got foul of the jim crow, or some such thing, and the matter was easily remedied.

All four persons got out. Mrs. Kent and Mr. Henderson sauntered up the road a bit, and Miss Estelle, the demure, sauntered down, while the chauffeur crawled under the machine to beg of the bobcrank to behave itself.

"Ah, but she's a sweet girl!" whispered the brewer in the ear of the widow.

"She surely is."

"I quite flatter myself that she has taken a liking to me at first sight."

"It surely looks that way."

"You are my friend. Have you spoken to her?"

"Most certainly."

"Many, many thanks. In case she makes me the happiest man on earth—"

Both happened to glance down the road at this instant, and both saw that the auto had disappeared. They ran to the first turn in the highway—no auto!

"Oh, what can have happened!" exclaimed the widow.

"I know—I know!" shouted the brewer. "They have eloped. Nothing ailed that bobcrank. It was a put-up job. He is her lover!"

"Oh, no, no, no! It can't be!"

"But I say it is! The demure little cat has made a fool of me! I see it all—I see it all! By thunder—"

"Sir! Don't you swear in my presence!" warned the widow.

"Yes, she's a cat, and I believe you are either a scheming woman or—or—"

"You fat, bald-headed vulgarian, how dare you!"

It was three miles back to a farmhouse where the widow could hire a conveyance to take her home.

That night at ten o'clock, when the demure Estelle brought her newmade husband back and introduced him, the widow almost hugged him as she exclaimed:

"I'm glad of it! That keg washer of a brewer called me a dodo and my darling a—a cat!"

Burned Out a Squirrel Family.

C. H. Brown of Malden kindled a fire in a parlor stove that had not been used before this winter and as a result a family of squirrels was burned out of their home and the fire department made a hurried visit to the Brown residence. Near by there is heavily wooded land where squirrels abound. The squirrels's nest included a bushel of sticks, leaves and moss and the chimney was effectually blocked when Mr. Brown attempted to start the fire.

While the inmates of the house were wondering at the smoke that filled the rooms a passerby was surprised to find flames shooting from the chimney and he rang an alarm. No serious damage was occasioned and as no dead squirrels were found it is presumed that they escaped.—Boston Transcript.

Part of the Role.

"Shall we pose as millionaires, or as foreign dukes at the hotel?"

"As the latter, my boy. As millionaires, we might be expected to display some evidences of wealth. But as dukes, nobody can possibly take it amiss if we skip."

Doing Him Justice.

"He is hard-hearted; whenever he runs anyone down with his auto he speeds up and leaves them."

"That's because he's tender-hearted. It breaks his heart to hear their groans of pain."

COLDS

Munyon's Cold Remedy Relieves the head, throat and lungs almost immediately. Checks Fevers, stops Discharges of the nose, takes away all aches and pains caused by colds. It cures Grip and obstinate Coughs and prevents Pneumonia. Write Prof. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa., for medical advice absolutely free.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

Genuine must bear Signature

Breath Good

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

RAW FURS I pay highest prices. Write J. J. Gleed, Exporter, E. Aurora, N. Y.

TAKE A DOSE OF PISO'S
THE BEST MEDICINE for COUGHS & COLDS

DOWN ON HIM.

The Cynic (with incipient mustache)—Poof! Lady footballers, indeed! Why, I don't suppose half of you know what "touch down" means.

Young Lady—Your best girl does if you ever kissed her.

Always Worrying.

The late John H. Barker, of Michigan City, who left a fortune of over $30,000,000 to his 14-year-old daughter, was strongly opposed to speculation.

"Do not speculate," Mr. Baker once said in an address to young men. "Speculators stand on shaky ground. They know no peace."

Mr. Baker smiled.

"In fact," he said, "a speculator is always worrying about the money market, while his wife is always worrying about the market money."

HEREDITY
Can Be Overcome in Cases.

The influence of heredity cannot, of course, be successfully disputed, but it can be minimized or entirely overcome in some cases by correct food and drink. A Conn. lady says:

"For years while I was a coffee drinker I suffered from bilious attacks of great severity, from which I used to emerge as white as a ghost and very weak. Our family physician gave me various prescriptions for improving the digestion and stimulating the liver, which I tried faithfully but without perceptible result.

"He was acquainted with my family history for several generations back, and once when I visited him he said: 'If you have inherited one of those torpid livers you may always suffer more or less from its inaction. We can't dodge our inheritance, you know.'

"I was not so strong a believer in heredity as he was, however, and, beginning to think for myself, I concluded to stop drinking coffee, and see what effect that would have. I feared it would be a severe trial to give it up, but when I took Postum and had it well made, it completely filled my need for a hot beverage and I grew very fond of it.

"I have used Postum for three years, using no medicine. During all that time I have had absolutely none of the bilious attacks that I used to suffer from, and I have been entirely free from the pain and debilitating effects that used to result from them.

"The change is surely very great, and I am compelled to give Postum the exclusive credit for it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest

MARVELS of THE EARTH

CURIOUS, ODD AND INTERESTING OBJECTS AND PLACES

Remarkable Statue of Maori

This extraordinary statue, which has just been completed at the Museum of Natural History, in New York, shows a dancing Maori posed on the largest block of jade in the world. The "boulder" came from West Ireland, New Zealand, weighs seven thousand pounds, is valued at five thousand dollars, and was presented to the museum by J. Pierpont Morgan.

ADOPTED CHILD OF A QUEEN

In the Princess Mary Village Homes at Addleston, Surrey, lives little Rosie Bloxham, who has the unusual distinction of being the adopted child of a queen, Mary of England. On Christmas Queen Mary sent the little one a china tea set, together with a card on which was written in her majesty's own hand: "Rosie Bloxham, from the queen. Christmas, 1910."

DEATH WARNING BY A CHILD.

A very curious incident happened in en English country town recently, in which a man was warned of the death of his father. In relating the experience he says: "My father had been in hospital for some considerable time, but was in his usual health, so far as we knew, when we retired for the night.

In the morning our lad, aged five years, looked up and astonished us by saying: "Daddie, grandpa is dead. I saw a ticket up at the hospital saying he is dead."

Beyond the usual comment no further notice was taken. In less than an hour, however, I had a message by 'phone informing me that my father had passed away about midnight. My little son had got the warning in some mysterious form, and conveyed it to me as best he could. How it got impressed on his young mind I am unable to say, but the facts are indisputable."

AUSTRALIA'S LATEST MARVEL

The latest Australian marvel is a wonderful sheep. A squatter while mustering his flocks one day lately climbed for fun the summit of a high peak on his estate. On reaching the top he was astonished to find a merino sheep in a grassy sheltered hollow. The animal had apparently lost its gregarious instincts, developed misanthropic tendencies, and led an exalted hermit existence for years. Having never been shorn, its wool was more than a couple of feet in length, said to be the longest staple of wool on record.

CAT NURSING A RAT

Cats and rats are commonly regarded as inevitable enemies, but a story comes from Scotland of an instance in which this hatred has given place to warm affection. The other day while potatoes were being lifted in Glenfeshire Forest, near Kingussie, one of the workers came on a rat's nest containing a number of young ones. These were promptly dispatched with the exception of one, which the finder retained. Shortly afterwards the baby rat was adopted by a cat which at the time was nursing kittens. Instead of devouring the rat, as one would expect, pussy quietly gave it a place beside her own offspring, bestowing upon the newcomer as much care and affection as she formerly devoted to her own family. At the time of writing the rat was still under pussy's maternal care.

RELIGION FOR BURGLARS

Religiou takes strange forms in India. Sir Herbert Risley, speaking of the castes of eastern Bengal at a meeting of the Royal Anthropological Institute, said a curious system of religious worship prevailed among a caste who were professional burglars. They made a space in the ground, and a man then cut his arm and prayed to one of the earth's gods that there might be a dark night and that he might succeed in obtaining great booty and escape capture.

DEATH'S HEAD IN THE PULPIT.

An extraordinary story comes from Geblingen, a small town not very far from Metz. It reads like a parody of "Hamlet" in the pulpit. The priest of this place had been worked into a state of great indignation by the loose attitude towards sacred things displayed by the youth of both sexes belonging to his parish. A short time ago when mass was over the priest appeared in the pulpit determined to read his flock a severe lesson. From under his robe he produced a skull, and, to the terror of the congregation, held it up before them. Then he began to address the grim relic.

"Art thou the skull of a maid or of a youth?" he asked. "Art thou a husband or a wife? Didst thou live in Geblingen? Are any of thy relatives in this church? Wert thou a drunkard? Art thou in heaven or in hell?" Then after a pause he again addressed the skull. "If thou art in hell give me no answer." The preacher received no answer, a proof that the former owner of the skull was in hell. Weak-minded people fainted, and at the conclusion of the sermon the congregation filed out pale and excited, and not likely to forget that particular sermon for a long time.

BOY'S EXTRAORDINARY CRIME

An extraordinary crime has been committed in a country place in France by a small boy, nine years of age, who killed his baby brother only ten months old because, he said, the baby cried too much. The two children were in a farmhouse, whilst the mother was lying on the floor unconscious from drink. The boy was in another room with the baby. A neighbor happened to pass, when the boy ran out to him, and said, "I think that baby is dead." When the neighbor entered he found the child dead in the cradle with its skull smashed, and about twenty knife-cuts. The boy first said that the baby had fallen and struck its head against the wall, but when closely questioned the blurted out that he had killed his little brother. He was trying to sleep, he said, when the baby started to cry. He was unable to quiet it, and then he got angry, and struck it on the head with a hammer, besides stabbing it with a table knife all over the body.

DWARF AND GIANT BEES

In some of the East Indian islands and on the mainland of Hindustan are to be found the smallest race of honey bees in the world. These dwarf honey collectors are known to entomologists as Apis florea. Their honey combs are no larger than a child's hand, and the cells are about the size of a small pin head. This honey is excellent, as is the wax. The little creatures build the combs on the branch of a low tree, and as they have not to provide for winter they work all the year through, raising broods like themselves.

In this same land there is a race of giant bees, Apis dorsata, as large as field crickets. These monsters of the bee world build honey combs that are from six to seven feet in length, four or more feet in width, and which weigh from 300 to 400 each.

COLLIE GOOD TROUT FISHER.

Charles Sherwood of Albion, Wis., is looking for expert information as to how far an owner's responsibility extends over a dog that persistently violates the game laws of the state. Mr. Sherwood has a collie with a penchant for trout fishing. He has cuffed the dog for it, but each time it only returns with a larger fish.

Immense Root of Alfalfa

Alfalfa has become one of the chief crops of vast portions of the west for it is invaluable as fodder, requires comparatively little cultivation and is harvested several times a year. The growth of this plant, called lucerne in other countries, is indicated by the accompanying photograph of a giant alfalfa root that was taken up in California.

SHIRE HORSE ESSENTIALLY ENGLISH FARMERS' OWN

Animal Has Improved Vastly in Recent Years, in Uniformity of Type, in Feet, Action, Pasterns and Quality of Hair and Bone.

English Shire Mare and Colt.

(By G. T. BARROWS, England.)

The Shire horse is essentially the English farmer's own. Across the border the Clydesdale holds sway. It is flattering to the English breeder to know that America and Canada are now taking more Shires than they have ever done before.

England today is being constantly scoured by American buyers for the right kind of Shire horses.

The English Shire horse has improved vastly of recent years, in uniformity of type, in feet, action and has vastly better pasterns and quality of hair and bone.

The farmer's brood mare—the rent payer—is a real feminine type, namely, neither of the gelding or the stallion appearance. She is always mated to a stallion of great masculinity, possessing good, wide, strong feet, and is naturally a free mover, with flat, round bone, of strong consititution and as big as possible.

In the large studs the greatest care is taken over the matter of suitable stallions selected. Very few traveling stallions are to be found without a veterinary surgeon's certificate of soundness.

If anything, some of the farmers who have found breeding a rapid means of acquiring wealth, are inclined to get quality at the expense of weight and substance. Shows are the best advertisement that the English tenant-farmer has for getting rid of his wares to the landlord or the rich breeder.

Shows in an English summer are as plentiful as sparrows. They are held upon the slightest provocation, where two or three horse breeders are gathered together.

One of the most gratifying features of the Shire horse breeding in the old country, is that the rich man settles in the locality, or suddenly becomes prominent as a breeder of first-class animals. He spends no end of money on buying and maturing.

These often fall into the hands of the farmer cheaply, and very often the farmer sells back their offspring at considerable prices.

Shire service is cheap in England, when one considers the enormous outlay of some of the breeders, and the tenant farmer, or the farmer whose land is only rented, has all the benefits of his rich proprietor's patronage.

The old country may have old-fashioned ways, but the farmer knows when he is well off and he knows that to raise Shire horses successfully is to have a bank balance and to have no haunting fears from a disastrous season.

HORSE SHOEING IS SCIENCE

No Man Is Fully Equipped for Task Unless He Understands Anotomy of Animal's Foot—Advance Being Made.

By WM. J. KELLY.

Formerly the ordinary blacksmith, who knew very little about the underlying principles that should govern horse shoeing, was called upon to shoe horses. As a result very much of the work done was inferior and such work re-acted in many instances against the usefulness of the horse that was thus shod.

The advance that has been made in this branch of blacksmithing during recent years, has been very great.

The work of shoeing horses is so variable in its requirements that no small degree of skill is required on the part of those engaged in the business.

It would perhaps be correct to say that no horse shoer is fully equipped for his work who does not understand considerable about the anatomy of the horse's foot. He should also be able to detect defects in the animal's locomotion and should know how to shoe the horse in such a way that the evils arising from these defects will be lessened or overcome entirely.

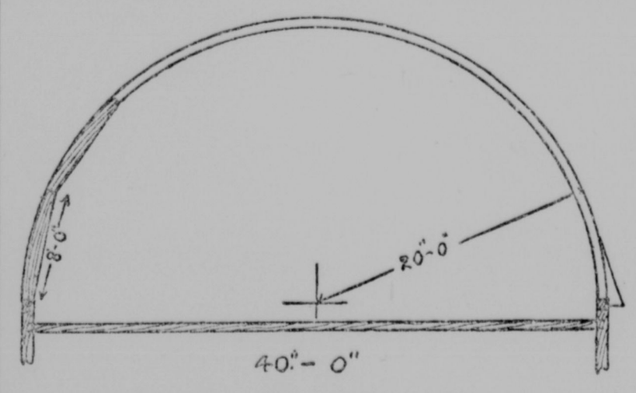
Neighborhood Exchanges.

The difficulty of exchanging tools and labor with neighbors is in the personality. Some men will expect to use borrowed tools all through the favorable weather and then return them in a damaged condition too late to be of much use to the owner. In borrowing labor this kind of neighbor will work the hired man half to death and then in returning the labor spend half his time telling stories. In exchanging labor or anything else pick out a farmer who will practice the golden rule.

New Mint Region.

Peppermint growers of New York and Michigan will meet competition from the reclaimed lands of Louisiana. A distillation plant is also in operation. A party of expert agriculturists recently inspecting the region were convinced that the crop can be grown in limited quantities at a good profit. Peppermint oil was imported into the United States during the fiscal year to the extent of 1,238 pounds, worth $6,416, while the exports of American peppermint oil amounted to 161,811 pounds, worth $288,318.

PRACTICAL ARCHED ROOF BARN



The accompanying plan of arched roof will not need any bracing, providing it is built on a wood frame. If placed on a concrete wall it would need to be fastened to the wall in some manner. This arch could be made out of one-inch lumber, three ply thick, using eight pieces. These will be a trifle shorter than eight feet. Cut outside to circle of 20 feet radius. It will be a little stronger by leaving inside straight. These should be placed about two feet centers. Nail on outlook like shown on plan for cornice. You can make them out of two-inch by eight-inch the same length, which takes a little more lumber, and we do not consider they would be as strong.

It would be better to use a 3 by 8 inch or a 3 by 6 inch bolted on to underside of ridge to fasten track to, as this would bring the load on two or three rafters.

CANADA GETS $1,500 TROPHY.

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION, AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, AWARDS TROPHY FOR PECK OF OATS GROWN IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Again Canada is to the fore, and has secured at the National Corn Exposition just closed at Columbus, Ohio, the magnificent Colorado silver trophy valued at $1,500, for the best peck of oats. These oats were grown by Messrs. Hill & Son, of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, and, as may readily be understood, were of splendid quality to have been so successful in a contest open to the world, and in which competition was keen. At the same Exposition there were exhibits of wheat and barley, and in all these competitions, the grain shown by Canada secured a wonderful amount of attention, and also a number of awards. During recent exhibitions at which grain from Western Canada was given permission for entry, it always took first place. At the Spokane Interstate Fair, last fall, where the entries were very large, and the competition keen, the Province of Alberta carried off the silver cup, given by Governor Hay, for the best state or province display, and a score of prizes was awarded Canadian exhibitors for different exhibits of wheat, oats and barley threshed and in the sheaf. Vegetables also received high awards. A pleasing feature of these exhibits was they were mostly made by farmers who had at one time been American Citizens and were now farming in Canada. The Department of the Interior is just in receipt of a magnificent diploma given by the Tri-State Board of Examiners at the Fair held in Cincinnati last fall for agricultural display by Canada.

The Surveyor-General of Canada has just completed a map showing that a large area of land was surveyed last year in the northern portion of Saskatchewan and Alberta in order to be ready for the rush of homesteaders to that district during the coming spring and summer. It is understood surveys covering several hundreds of thousands of acres will be made in addition to these during the coming summer.

A return just issued by the Dominion Lands Branch shows that 48,257 homestead entries were made last year as compared with 37,061 in 1909; of this 48,257, 14,704 were made by Americans. North Dakota coming first on the list with 4,810, Minnesota gives 2,528, South Dakota 1,133, Wisconsin 745, Washington 730, Michigan 706, Iowa 645, while other states show less, but with the exception of Delaware, District of Columbia and the Indian Territory, every state and territory contributed.

The prospects for an abundant crop in all parts of Western Canada for 1911 are said to be excellent. In the districts that required it there was an ample rainfall last autumn, and the snowfall during the present winter is greater than in many previous years. Both are essential factors to the farmers, who look upon the moisture that these will produce as being highly beneficial.

A large immigration from the United States is expected, and the demand for literature and information from the various Government Agencies located at different points in the States is the greatest it has ever been.

Since the above was written word has been received that in addition to honors won at Columbus, Ohio, Canada won first and second on wheat and first and second on oats, as well as diplomas.

Norman Cherry of Davis, Saskatchewan, who was in the reserve for first on wheat, secured the award, with G. H. Hutton of Lacombe, Alberta, second. J. C. Hill & Sons got first on oats besides the silver trophy. G. H. Hutton took second in oats.

USE FOR THE NEWSPAPER

Story That Contains a Moral It Might Be Well to Keep in Memory.

A little King Charles dog, a pet in a family where he had been the playmate of a little boy, slipped through an open door some time ago and disappeared. Servants and the children of the house searched everywhere, asked questions at all places where is was thought possible the dog might be in hiding, but to no avail, and the animal was finally given up for lost and there was deep mourning in the nursery. One day recently the woman who owned the dog met a neighbor at a florist's shop, who had on a leash a dog strangely like the lost pet, and asked where he came from. "Why, he ran into our house a few days ago and we don't know where he belongs." The dog knew his old mistress and was quickly surrendered. "You might have had him sooner, had you advertised," said one woman. "And you could have found the owner sooner had you advertised," said the other—and the newspaper man who heard the story added the moral.

As a Reminder.

His Wife—John, do you remember what took place just three years ago today?

Her Husband—What! Is this our wedding anniversary?

His Wife—No-no. Three years ago today you bought me a new hat.—Harper's Bazar.

Knew His Cue.

"She told him that she must not see him any more."

"What did he do?"

"Turned out the gas."—Exchange.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months..... .75
One copy three months ..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1911.

THE MACHINE BUILDER RESUMES.

Machine Builder Austin L. Crothers, is slowly, but surely making his last move in machine building. He seized the Roads Commission first. By switching Hering from the Board of Public Works he got control of that Board and of the Public Service Commission, thus killing two birds with one stone. Having thus fastened his clutches on the Roads Commission, the Board of Public Works and Public Service Commission, there still remained the Police Board of Baltimore as the one powerful agency beyond his control. He tried to get this without making too much noise but the Police Board was not pliable and it refused to move Farnan and substitute a Crothers man. Since they wouldn't oblige him, the machine builder decided to get control anyway and the only way to do it was to get rid of them. He now makes a pretense, after months of procrastination, of giving them a trial. The verdict was decided upon long ago, but appearances must be kept up! In due time he will have his clutches on the Police Board and will then have all the most powerful political boards under his thumb. His scheming is potent to all observers. The one question in everybody's mind is: what good can all this do Austin L. Crothers? His measure has been taken, he was been found wanting. If he means to be a candidate in the primaries with a newly created machine of his own office-holders, can he win? It isn't at all likely.

LAST WEEK OF CONGRESS

The life of the Sixty-first Congress expires by limitation on the last day of the present week. Much in the way of important legislation has been already accomplished, and there is yet opportunity during the five remaining working days to round out a record upon which the expiring Congress may invite the calm, critical judgment of the American people. Even the much criticised Payne Tariff is demonstrating that it has wearing qualities. There are more people today than there were six months ago who will acknowledge that the contention that the Payne law is the very best tariff that has ever been framed by an American Congress is no wild mistatement of the truth. A system of tariff schedules that will give universal satisfaction never was framed and never will be. When the Sixty-second Congress organizes and the Democrats begin to tinker with the tariff schedules, the people of this country will likely wake up suddenly to the fact that, in the matter of tariffs, it is wise to let well enough alone. And the Democrats may get at the business of tariff tinkering sooner than the country expects.

For it will be decided within the next five days whether or not the Sixty-second Congress will be called into extra session. The President has made it very plainly understood that he intends to call an extra session within thirty days or so after adjournment next Saturday, unless the Canadian reciprocity agreement shall be brought to a vote in the meantime. At the close of last week various rumors were afloat about the Capitol concerning possible arrangements under which the McCall bill would be submitted to a vote in the Senate, but the time remaining is so short and there is such a pronounced undercurrent of opposition to the reciprocity measure that failure to bring up the agreement and the extra session in consequence seems inevitable. If, as now seems probable, the Sixty-second Congress shall be called into extra session on or about the 4th, of April, the House will be Democratic by a large majority, and the Congress once in session may not confine its activities to the consideration of a trade agreement between the United States and Canada.

It cannot be accepted as conclusively determined, however, that the reciprocity bill will not pass before this Congress passes up its record. The quick passage of the Senate last week of the Japanese treaty shows how speedily a measure affecting internationai relations can be put through the body when the way has been smoothed. What the Democratic majority in the House would do to the reciprocity measure, once the extra session is under way, is altogether a matter of guessing. The proposed agreement with Canada might be utilized for the purpose of undertaking a general and comprehensive redraft of the tariff schedules. Hints and suggestions were afloat last week to the effect that the Democratic majority of the next House will, in case it is given the opportunity, tack on the reciprocity bill a revision of certain of the Payne tariff schedules. Once begun, there is no telling where the business of revising the existing schedules will end. The potential uncertainties of an extra session, assuredly constitute what ought to be a determining reason why the Senate of the Congress that is about to end should shoulder the responsibility which is fairly placed upon it and pass upon the reciprocity agreement. It is a responsibility that should not be dodged, and it is reasonable, therefore, to assume that there is more than a possibility that the Canadian Reciprocity bill will have been enacted and sent to the President for his signature when the present Congress shall have finished its work.

The passage in the House on Saturday of the bill appropriating $3,000,000 for the fortification of the Panama Canal settles with practical certainty the question of fortifying the waterway. Sentiment in the Senate is known to be stronger in favoring the proposal than in the House. It was demonstrated last week that measures which to all appearances may be dangling in uncertainty for weeks can be quickly disposed of when Congress gets tensely in earnest about doing things. Several of the important measures this session which are yet dangling may be enactments before Saturday noon. The Gallinger bill, which provides a mail-subvention method for extending government aid to American shipping lines engaging in South American trade, yet pass the House, just as the reciprocity agreement has something more than a fighting chance in the Senate. The final doings of the Sixty-first Congress may be—probably will be—of large significance.

PROTECTION FOR COUNTRY MERCHANTS.

The average country merchant works under trying conditions. He extends credit freely, carrying customers for weeks. When some of the same customers are able to pay cash they buy, not from the merchant who has carried them, but from a mail-order house, which is sometimes able to undersell the merchant precisely because it gives nobody credit. About the time the merchant has built up a really profitable trade somebody is pretty sure to open a rival shop across the street. Sometimes wholesale houses that the merchant has patronized will cheerfully supply the rival shop with a stock of goods, although its chief asset may be a pious hope of taking away part of the older shop's trade. Such conditions would tend to make anybody nervous; and it is not strange that many country merchants oppose a parcels-post in the fear that it will give an additional advantage to the mail-order houses.

Probably the multiplication of rival shops is greater menace to the retail trade than the mail-order houses are.

The Comptroller of the Currency will no longer permit the organization of a new national bank whose principal object seems merely to be taking business away from banks already established. A license will not be issued for a new bank unless it appears there is some reasonable need of additional banking facilities in that locality. Multiplication of competitive banks is sure to weaken the whole banking position. Two strong banks can serve a community better than four weak ones. So can two strong retail stores, if people only realize it.

In the present state of the retail trade no such salutary control over mere wasteful competition is possible; but one can imagine a degree of organization by which it might be achieved.

The country town is very important to the farmer and should be able to count upon his support; but sentiment plays little part in buying goods and if a parcels-post will really get city goods to the farmer cheaper than he can buy them at home he will proably favor that measure.

There must be somewhat a better protection for the country retail trade than simple reliance upon high express rates. —Saturday Evening Post.

DON'T MOPE—HUSTLE.

When a man is "up against it" he had better not sit down and brood over the fact. A lot of energy and time is wasted in doing this. Many a good man, successful, has been "all in" at some stage of his career, but by pulling himself together and avoiding the mistakes that got him in the hole, has come out on top. It will be fonnd that in the majority of cases the trouble with the "unfortunate man" is that he has allowed his business, his profession or his work to master him instead of his mastering it. There is nothing to be gained by allowing oneself to imagine that the world is all wrong and that everybody in it is on the lookout to "do" everybody else. The world is all right and will treat every man right if he does his part. Don't mope, then. Shake hands with the world—make it your friend and merit the best it gives, remembering, however, that it only awards its prizes to those who labor in earnest to obtain them.

The Republican for Job Printing.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Public Sentiment.

To the Editor of the Republican:

The destiny of man is the concern of the world. God in creation made him the central idea. Personally, I believe there are better times ahead. There is more agitation on the subjects of principle today than ever before, and I believe it was Wendell Phillips who said that agitation is half the victory.

At the present time there is a very healthy public sentiment in our county favorable to the overthrow of all saloons in Oakland. Let us then strive to crystalize public sentiment at this time and bring it to bear directly upon this reform so much desired by many of our citizens.

Can we not circulate petitions in every part of our county and have them signed so numerously that public sentiment will demand a dry town? Can we close the doors of every saloon in Oakland and thereby reduce the expenses of our Court and save many an honest dollar to the tax payers of our county, for in this country where the government is of the people by the people and for the people it is very important that we legislate along the line of purity, soberness and whatever makes peace, happiness and good will on earth.

P. T. LIPSCOMB.

Mt. Lake Park, Feb'y 28, 1911.

Why This Discrepancy in the Cost of School Books?

To the Editor of The Republican:

In leafing through the report of the Board of Education for 1909 I casually compared the prices paid for school books by the various county boards and noticed that in some instances the prices were at a great variance. For the readers used that year Dorchester county paid, less the discount, about 37 cents for the same book which the illustrious Board of School Commissioners of our own county of Garrett paid the book trust 75 cents.

As a taxpayer and citizen of Garrett county I respectfully ask why this discrepancy in the cost of school books?

Respectfully,

TAXPAYER AND CITIZEN.

Oakland, Md., Feb. 27th, 1911.

Commends Efforts.

To the Editor of the Republican.

As an interested observer, I have been much gratified at the fearless efforts of the editor of The Republican and others of Oakland against the liquor traffic. It is indeed gratifying and refreshing to know that there are still a few men who dare to stand up and show their manhood. Prosper the day when not only Oakland but the entire state, yes, the entire nation, shall be entirely free from this terrible curse! OBSERVER.

Grantsville, Md., Feb. 27, 1911.

Married.

STEAD—GOLDSBOROUGH—Instead of the beautiful church wedding which was planned for Miss Frances Goldsborough and Mr. William Force Stead, which was to have been celebrated in Epiphany Church, Washington, with an attractive pageant of bridesmaids and attendants, the event was quietly celebrated Saturday at noon in the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund K. Goldsborough in K street, on account of the family mourning. The handsome old residence was beautifully decorated with palms, vines and flowers, white being principally used. In the bay window of the front drawing-room an altar was built of tall palms, smilax and Easter lilies, before which the bridal party stood.

The Rev. Dr. Randolph Harrison McKim, rector of Epiphany Church, with the Rev. G. Freeland, assistant rector, officiated. The bride, who was unattended, was escorted by her father, and wore an exquisite gown of white satin embroidered in pearls. Her veil of cross point lace was arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms. It was the same worn by her great aunt many years ago. Her only ornament was a string of rare pearls, worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Fitzhugh Coyle. An informal reception followed the ceremony. After the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Stead left there for New York, whence they will sail next week to spend their honeymoon. Mr. Stead is United States vice consul at Nottingham, England.

Cash Prizes Given for a Name for Our New Wheat Mill.

We will give three grand cash prizes for the most suitable name sent in to us for our new Wheat Mill. Contest open to all in Garrett county. Conditions, that only one name can be submitted by each person. At the close of the contest the name will be chosen by three judges selected to decide on the best name submitted, and winners names will be published. Write name plainly.

Contest to close Saturday, March 11. First prize, $10 cash; second prize, $5 cash; third prize, $2.50 cash.

Our wheat mill will be in operation in about six weeks, and will be of the very newest pattern, with daily capacity of 65 barrels.

DIXON & KELSO.

Public Sale of Personal Property.

On Wednesday, March 11th, beginning at 10 o'clock I will sell a large lot of household goods at the residence of Mr. John A. Grant in Oakland. See posters for partictlars. E. J. FRINGER, Auctioneer.

HAUSER.

Rev. Wade, who was operated upon last week, is reported getting along very nicely. Mrs. Wade and daughter, Miss Lena, returned home last Friday morning. The two sons returned to their homes—one in Virginia and the other in Pennsylvania—earlier in the week.

Mr. Elmer Shaffer made a trip to Thomas, W. Va., Sunday to see his wife, who is convalescent after being operated upon early last week. We are glad to say she is doing nicely.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. David Fike is reported very sick at this time.

Miss Gertie Sisler is sick at this writing.

It is reported that a widower living near here and a widow who lived near Keyser or some seaport near there, had decided that the condition of single-blessedness were no longer tolerable and as a result she has changed her residence and the widower (late) has decided to build a new house. Having not learned the lady's name we will not give any longer account and will keep our good wishes until the bride and groom invite reporters to attend their wedding or to be entertained in the new house.

Master Harry Enlow visited Masters McKinley and Ernest Gnegy Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mosser spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lem Reed.

Miss Bertha Nicholson visit Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Floyd Shaffer.

Mr. Forrest Hauser, of Stemple Ridge, has returned home after a short sojourn in this neighborhood.

This snow was a disappointment as the ground was soaked full of water when the snow fell and of course the roads were soft, so not much logging has been done.

Spring will be hailed with great joy. A few will probably place their glasses in proper position, square a Teddy grin, and shout "delighted." Spring is certainly welcomed because it causes hope to spring eternal in both plant and animal world. With all her uncertainty she causes the white coat with here and there a brown patch to disappear and bring with it the bright green and dotted with the variegated colors of many flowers. Welcome always.

PARADISE.

As there have been no items for some time from this place we will write a few.

Mr. Robert Michael, of Purgetsville, W. Va., was the guest of his aunt Mrs. Mahlon Schooley, several days last week

A number of the young people of this place attended the spelling match at Dodge Friday evening.

Mr. Lawson L. Schooley, of Fairmont, W. Va., has returned from Canton, O., where he spent several weeks among relatives and is now the guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Schooley.

Mr. Harry Paugh is working for Fred Rodeheaver at this writing.

Mrs. Ethel Miller spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Emma Rodeheaver.

Fred Mills, of Keyser, was visiting relatives at this place one day last week.

Mrs. I. D. Ryan is visiting her parents at Tunnelton.

Wishing THE REPUBLICAN much success. RED WING.

BITTINGER.

The literary program rendered by the pupils of the Bittinger school, Wednesday evening, February 22nd, was highly appreciated by all who attended. Notwithstanding the extremely bad weather the attendance was good and the receipts at the door amounted to nearly $10, and the pupils of the school voluntarily raised the deficiency and the Board of School Commissioners will be asked to contribute the amount provided for by law, and the fund thus raised will be used in establishing a library for the school. Rev. W. W. Morris, of Grantsville, as principal speaker on the occasion, and Milton Miller, also of Grantsville, as a vocal soloist, added much to the interest and attractiveness of the evening's program.

A special pension examiner, of Washington, D. C., was visiting the veterans of the Civil War residing in this district last Monday.

The sugar camps in this neighborhood were scenes of great activity last Monday, the jolly farmers boys and girls were kept busy taking care of a good run of sugar water.

Jacob Brenneman has recently purchased an evaporator which he is having placed in his sugar camps, to be used in making sugar and syrup.

Mrs. Elias Orendorf was visiting her son, Lewis Orendorf, near McHenry, for a few days.

Those of our neighbors who have ice houses, were fortunate in succeeding in filling them with a fair quality of ice, on last Friday. For a time it was thought that those who had neglected putting away ice early in the winter would be obliged to have ice shipped in for next summer.

F. L. Snyder was visiting friends and relatives here last Saturday and Sunday.

22222 The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County. 22222

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. MCCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. MCCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. MCCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. MCCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer or Garrett County.

ORDER NISI.

George T. Dunlop, et al., vs. John T. Shanks, et. al.
No. 1158 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland

Ordered this 22nd day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Edward H Sincell, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sales to be $100.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

NOTICE OF FIRST MEETING OF CREDITORS.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland.

In the matter of Elias S. Braham, Bankrupt
IN BANKRUPTCY

To the creditors of Elias S. Braham, of Bloomington n the county of Garrett, and District aforesaid, a Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 2nd day of February, A. D., 1911, the said party was adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at my Law Office, No. 6 Centre Street, in Cumberland, Maryland, on the 27th day of February, A. D., 1911, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact suh other business as may properly come before said meeting.

ALBERT A. DOUB,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

Feb 14, 1911.

GILMOR S. HAMILL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY.

Office in Ravenscroft Building, Second St. Particular attention given to Conveyancing Investigation of land titles and collection of claims. Loans negotiated.

The man Who Makes
A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of Instruction leading to professional degree of B. S.—Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars.

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Prop'r

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	50,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt — Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis — George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell — William R. Stull
Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Mr. David T. Michael, of near Bond, was in Oakland yesterday on business.

Mr. William Weber returned to Oakland from a few days' visit to Pittsburg Monday afternoon.

Mr. W. R. Savage, of Deer Park, was in Oakland last Friday when he made a business call at this office.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

Mr. Samuel A. Kendall, of Meyersdale and Washington, was in Oakland and at Crellin Tuesday on business.

Mr. W. Hamill Spedden, of Fairmont, spent Saturday and Sunday at Crellin with his brother, Mr. E. M. Spedden.

Attorney Samuel T. Speers, of Elkins, was in Oakland last Friday in consultation with a local attorney on legal business.

Mrs. D. E. Offutt returned to Oakland last Friday after spending a week with her niece, Mrs. Brady, at Parkersburg, W. Va.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Sheriff Andrew Shartz returned to Oakland last Friday night from a visit of two or three days to the automobile show in Baltimore.

Mr. James A. Delawder was at Terra Alta last Saturday where he attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Adair, who was a distant relative.

Capt. James A. Hayden, of the Park, who was ill for several weeks with an aggravated attack of the grip, was in Oakland Saturday for the first time since his illness.

Welsbach portico or outdoorlamp, one inverted mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. G. A. Shirer & Co. 6t

Mr. John W. McCullough, of Friendsville, who was in Oakland a day or two last week on business connected with his varied interests in this and other counties, returned to his home Saturday.

Mr. Josephus Howell, of Bond, was in Oakland yesterday on business, having come here for the purpose of purchasing a farm. The property was not sold yesterday but will be later.

Attention is directed to the advertisement appearing in this issue of the Frostburg Garage, Frostburg, Md., which concern handles only first class automobiles and repairs for the same.

Mrs. Julian Lynne, of Shenandoah Junction, West Va., arrived in Oakland Monday afternoon to visit her mother, Mrs. George W. Legge, who has been quite ill for a week or more with an attack of the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Elwood Offutt and Miss Elizabeth Offutt, who attended the automobile show in Baltimore several days last week, returned to their homes Friday evening.

Several good second hand coal ranges at A. D. Naylor's, for sale cheap. 3t

Miss Lulu Fringer, who went from Oakland to Baltimore some weeks ago, left that city Monday evening for Anderson, S. C., where she will be engaged this spring as a milliner in a large department store.

Hon. S. A. Kendall came up from Washington on Saturday to spend a few days in Meyersdale. From here he went to Oakland and other points and returned to attend the Merchants banquet tonight. His theory is that when a man wants to accomplish something along any line he must be a hustler. And he practices what he preaches.—Meyersdale Commercial.

YOU CANNOT successfully fight the business battles of life without money. Have you ever said to yourself; "If I only had $1,000 NOW.

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
OAKLAND, MD.

Makes the most nutritious food and the most dainty and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

No fussing or fretting over the biscuit-making. Royal is the aid to many a cook's success.

Royal Cook Book—800 Receipts—Free. Send Name and Address.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

REPORT UNFOUNDED

Judge U. S. G. Kendall is Still Among the Living.

A report published in the Fairmont Times of Monday evening, and which was given credence by almost everyone under whose eye it fell, to the effect that Judge U. S. G. Kendall, who recently left Oakland for Detroit, Mich., had been shot to death at Clinton, Ill., last Friday night by a man named Arthur Jones, was the rankest fake ever perpetrated upon the public and the friends of the gentleman whose name was used in connection with the affair.

The writer of the telegram to the Times was evidently acquainted with the Judge as his name, former home and professional life as a judge at Fairmont was set out succintly and would lead those best acquainted with Judge Kendall to believe that he was the victim of an outraged husband's vengeance.

William Ward arrived in Oakland yesterday morning from Richmond, Va., where he had been for some months recuperating from an attack of typhoid fever which he contracted in Panama after his return there last fall from Oakland.

Messrs. D. E. Offutt and Gilmor S. Hamill left Oakland yesterday afternoon for a point in Ohio, near Wheeling, W. Va., where they went to attend a meeting of the directors of a coal company in which they have interests.

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Crane, of Terra Alta, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Scott T. Jones in Oakland Tuesday. They came to Oakland to visit the Great Northern Railway Company's exhibit of fruit, etc., shown here that day.

Mrs. Anna Jones of Terra Alta, after spending a few days here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Scott T. Jones, returned to Terra Alta Sunday afternoon and on Tuesday left that point for a city in California, where she will in the future reside.

Mrs. Henry Sanders, of near Oakland, who was in Baltimore for two weeks receiving treatment in one of the hospitals of that city, returned to Oakland Monday afternoon. Her husband, ex-Judge Sanders, went to Baltimore last week for the purpose of accompanying her home, returning here with her.

Dr. W. W. Davis, the retiring superintendent of Mountain Lake Park, is spending this week in Oakland and at the Park engaged in going over matters pertaining to the management of the Association's interests with the new Superintendent, Dr. Shelton, who will succeed Dr. Davis about April 1st.

Mr. John Ault returned to his home near Oakland last Thursday night from a visit of two weeks to points in Pennsylvania including Pittsburg, Johnstown, Braddock and McKees Rocks. His plans for the removal of his family from Oakland to Pittsburg have been somewhat latered since his return here and he will continue to reside near Oakland until next fall at least.

Mr. and Mrs. David Durst were in Gratton, West Va., Tuesday where they attended the funeral of the late Henry Compton, aged more than eighty-five years, who was the only surviving uncle of Mr. Durst. The deceased gentleman was one of the pioneer residents of Grafton where he was highly respected and honored.

Hon. William U. Hensel, of Lancaster, Pa., ex-Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania under the late Governor Pattison, was in Oakland last Saturday attending the sale of the lands belonging to the Garrett Lumber Company, limited, which were sold under a mortgage executed to the Lancaster Trust Company, of which Gen. Hensel is counsel. The land was bid in by the trust company at a nominal sum.

Mr. Harry McCue, attached to the United States Battleship Conneticut, now stationed in Cuban waters, arrived here yesterday morning from Indianapolis, Ind., to which city he was called several days ago owing to the illness and subsequent death of his wife, whose funeral took place in Indianapolis Monday, her death being due to peritonitis. Mr. McCue will visit his parents in Oakland about two weeks before returning to Cuba.

Mr. John A. Grant, for twenty-two years head clerk in Messrs. D. E. Offutt & Sons store in Oakland, resigned his position Saturday and is having his furniture packed and stored preliminary to leaving Oakland and taking up his residence at some point in Pennsylvania or New York. Mr. Grant has been a life-long citizen of Oakland with the exception of a few months which was spent in California, and his removal from here is sincerely regretted by hosts of friends of both himself and his estimable wife. The best wishes of their acquaintances for success will accompany them wherever they may go.

FOREIGNER BROUGHT TO JAIL

Charged With Committing Serious Crime and Carrying Concealed Weapons.

A foreigner, evidently a Slav, employed in one of the mines near Kitzmiller, was brought to Oakland Monday afternoon by Constable Pool of Kitzmiller, and turned over to the Sheriff, the prisoner being charged with criminally assaulting the wife of another and also with carrying concealed weapons. The man was committed to jail by Justice Lee of Kitzmiller, and will be held for the action of the grand jury in June.

THE FIRST TIME AT POPULAR PRICES

The Greatest of American Plays "Paid in Full"

Those who are curious about the theatre—and no other single contributory to the present day social structure possesses so general interest—will be entertained by some striking bits of information relating to a successful play. The play is "Paid in Full," written by Eugene Walter, produced by the Wagenhals & Kemper Co., pronounced by public and critics the greatest and most enjoyable American drama of the time, and shown by actual proof to be the most notable success the stage in this country has known. "Paid in Full" is now in only its third year, its second outside of New York, yet it has been played a total of two hundred and forty-four weeks, with over two thousand performances. This astonishing result was attained by five companies simultaneously in different parts of the United States and in Canada. Never before had any one play been acted by so many companies. No other play could have stood it. All last season these five companies presented this play in New York, in all the big cities, in the small ones as well, from coast to coast, from interior Canada to the Gulf, back and forth, covering the same territory repeatedly, demanded by theatre managers for return engagements, frequently as many as five and six times, invariably doing bigger business on each "repeat," and this in cities which too often for theatrical good turned out a mere corporal's guard for other attractions known as popular successes. The career of "Paid in Full" is the beginning has a play grown in favor like this one. Truly astonishing is its record of return visits. It will be seen here at Beckwith's Theatre Friday, March 3d. Seats on sale at Oakland Pharmacy.

Call for Your Letters.

Royce Webster, Savilla Miller, Gertrude Davis, Mrs. A. S. Arnett, John L. Porennen, Alessander Forasiepi, W. H. Peaslee, Oakland Hotel, Mrs. H. K. Friend, Dr. J. Lee McComas.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows: Sunday school at 2:15 p. m. Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Epworth League Monday 7:30 p. m. Prayermeeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m. Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

PRESBYTERIAN.

Preaching Sunday, March 5th, both at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. by the Rev. A. R. Gay.

All cordially invited to attend these services.

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m. Sunday school at 2.30 p. m. Epworth League at 6:45 p. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows: Loch Lynn—Preaching at 11 a. m. Ferndale—Preaching at 7.30 a. m. Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

DEER PARK M. E. CHARGE.

Please note change in appointments: Saturday, March 4, Swanton, 7.30 p.m. Sunday, March 5, Swanton, 11 a. m.; Deer Park, 7.30 p. m; Wilson 3 p. m., as published.

Quarterly Conference at Dodge Monday, March 20, instead of Saturday, 11 a. m.

D. L. REID, Pastor.

Co-Operative Buying.

Large co-operative buying will enable us to offer some very low prices on special lines. See our Saturday bargains.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

We are offering this week some extra Bargains in Pocket Knives. Values 50 cents to $1 for 30 cents to 75 cents; by mail 5 cents extra.

Extra Values Saturday in Enameled Ware. Values up to 60 cents on Saturday your choice for 25 cents.

A choice Assortment of Tinware. Values up to 25 cents, your choice Saturday for 10 cents.

Will give double Trading Stamps on Saturday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,
S. LAWTON & SONS.

Subscribe for The Republican.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

PUMPS.

A Bargain in a Few Second Hand

PUMPS.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

PRICES RIGHT. BOTH PHONES.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"You Don't Think He Locked the Door Himself?"

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl, whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip. Blakeley learns that a man named Sullivan leaped from the train near M—— and sprained his ankle. He stayed some time at the Carter place.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued.

"Was the name Blakeley?" I asked.

"It might have been—I can't say. But the man wasn't there, and there was a lot of noise. I couldn't hear well. Then in half an hour down came the other twin to say the gentleman was taking on awful and didn't want the message sent."

"He's gone, of course?"

"Yes. Limped down here in about three days and took the noon train for the city."

It seemed a certainty now that our man, having hurt himself somewhat in his jump, had stayed quietly in the farm house until he was able to travel. But, to be positive, we decided to visit the Carter place.

I gave the station agent a five-dollar bill, which he rolled up with a couple of others and stuck in his pocket. I turned as we got to a bend in the road, and he was looking curiously after us.

It was not until we had climbed the hill and turned onto the road to the Carter place that I realized where we were going. Although we approached it from another direction, I knew the farm house at once. It was the one where Alison West and I had breakfasted nine days before. With a new restraint between us, I did not tell McKnight. I wondered afterward if he had suspected it. I saw him looking hard at the gatepost which had figured in one of our mysteries, but he asked no questions. Afterward he grew almost taciturn, for him, and let me do most of the talking.

We opened the front gate of the Carter place and went slowly up the walk. Two ragged youngsters, alike even to freckles and squints, were playing in the yard.

"Is your mother around?" I asked.

"In the front room. Walk in," they answered in identical tones.

As we got to the porch we heard voices, and stopped. I knocked, but the people within, engaged in animated, rather one-sided conversation, did not answer.

"'In the front room. Walk in,'" quoted McKnight, and did so.

In the stuffy farm parlor two people were sitting. One, a pleasant-faced woman with a checked apron, rose, somewhat embarrassed, to meet us. She did not know me, and I was thankful. But our attention was riveted on a little man who was sitting before a table, writing busily. It was Hotchkiss!

He got up when he saw us, and had the grace to look uncomfortable.

"Such an interesting case," he said nervously, "I took the liberty—"

"Look here," said McKnight suddenly, "did you make any inquiries at the station?"

"A few," he confessed. "I went to the theater last night—I felt the need of a little relaxation—and the sight of a picture there, a cinematograph affair, started a new line of thought. Probably the same clew brought you gentlemen. I learned a good bit from the station agent."

"The son-of-a-gun," said McKnight. "And you paid him, I suppose?"

"I gave him five dollars," was the apologetic answer.

Mrs. Carter, hearing sounds of strife in the yard, went out, and Hotchkiss folded up his papers.

"I think the identity of the man is established," he said. "What number of hat do you wear, Mr. Blakeley?"

"Seven and a quarter," I replied.

"Well, it's only piling up evidence," he said cheerfully. "On the night of the murder you wore gray silk underclothing, with the second button of the shirt missing. Your hat had 'L. B.' in gilt letters inside, and there was a very minute hole in the toe of one black sock."

"Hush," McKnight protested. "If word gets to Mrs. Klopton that Mr. Blakeley was wrecked, or robbed, or whatever it was, with a button missing and a hole in one sock, she'll retire to the Old Ladies' home. I've heard her threaten it."

Mr. Hotchkiss was without a sense of humor. He regarded McKnight gravely and went on:

"I've been up in the room where the man lay while he was unable to get away, and there is nothing there. But I found what may be a possible clew in the dust heap.

"Mrs. Carter tells me that in unpacking his grip the other day she shook out of the coat of the pajamas some pieces of a telegram. As I figure it, the pajamas were his own. He probably had them on when he effected the exchange."

I nodded assent. All I had retained of my own clothing was the suit of pajamas I was wearing and my bath robe.

"Therefore the telegram was his, not yours. I have pieces here, but some are missing. I am not discouraged, however."

He spread out some bits of yellow paper, and we bent over them curiously. It was something like this:

Man with p—— Get——

Br——

We spelled it out slowly.

"Now," Hotchkiss announced, "I make it something like this: The 'p—' is one of two things, pistol—you remember the little pearl-handled affair belonging to the murdered man—or is it pocketbook. I am inclined to the latter view, as the pocketbook had been disturbed and the pistol had not."

I took the piece of paper from the table and scrawled four words on it.

"Now," I said, rearranging them, "it happens, Mr. Hotchkiss, that I found one of these pieces of the telegram on the train. I thought it had been dropped by some one else, you see, but that's immaterial. Arranged this way it almost makes sense. Fill out that 'p—' with the rest of the word, as I imagine it, and it makes 'papers,' and add this scrap and you have:

"'Man with papers (in) lower ten, car seven. Get (them).'"

McKnight slapped Hotchkiss on the back.

"You're a trump," he said. "Br—is Bronson, of course. It's almost too easy. You see, Mr. Blakeley here engaged lower ten, but found it occupied by the man who was later murdered there. The man who did the thing was a friend of Bronson's, evidently, and in trying to get the papers we have the motive for the crime."

"There are still some things to be explained." Mr. Hotchkiss wiped his glasses and put them on. "For one thing, Mr. Blakeley, I am puzzled by that bit of chain."

I did not glance at McKnight. I felt that the hands with which I was gathering up the bits of torn paper were shaking. It seemed to me that this astute little man was going to drag in the girl in spite of me.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A New World.

Hotchkiss jotted down the bits of telegram and rose.

"Well," he said, "we've done something. We've found where the murderer left the train, we know what day he went to Baltimore, and, most important of all, we have a motive for the crime."

"It seems the irony of fate," said McKnight, getting up, "that a man should kill another man for certain papers he is supposed to be carrying, find he hasn't got them after all, decide to throw suspicion on another man by changing berths and getting out, bag and baggage, and then, by the merest fluke of chance, take with him, in the valise he changed for his own, the very notes he was after. It was a bit of luck for him."

"Then why," put in Hotchkiss doubtfully, "why did he collapse when he heard of the wreck? And what about the telephone message the station agent sent? You remember they tried to countermand it, and with some excitement."

"We will ask him those questions when we get him," McKnight said. We were on the unrailed front porch by that time, and Hotchkiss had put away his notebook. The mother of the twins followed us to the steps.

"Dear me," she explained volubly, "and to think I was forgetting to tell you! I put the young man to bed with a spice poultice on his ankle; my mother always was a firm believer in spice poultices. It's wonderful what they will do in croup! And then I took the children and went down to see the wreck. It was Sunday, and the mister had gone to church; hasn't missed a day since he took the pledge nine years ago. And on the way I met two people, a man and a woman. They looked half dead, so I sent them right here for breakfast and some soap and water. I always say soap is better than liquor after a shock."

Hotchkiss was listening absently; McKnight was whistling under his breath, staring down across the field to where a break in the woods showed a half dozen telegraph poles, the line of the railroad.

"It must have been 12 o'clock when we got back; I wanted the children to see everything, because it isn't likely they'll ever see another wreck like that. Rows of—"

"About 12 o'clock," I broke in, "and what then?"

"The young man upstairs was awake," she went on, "hammering at his door like all possessed. And it was locked on the outside!" She paused to enjoy her sensation.

"I would like to see that lock," Hotchkiss said promptly, but for some reason the woman demurred. "I will bring the key down," she said and disappeared. When she returned she held out an ordinary door key of the cheapest variety.

"We had to break the lock," she volunteered, "and the key didn't turn up for two days. Then one of the twins found the turkey gobbler trying to swallow it. It has been washed since," she hastened to assure Hotchkiss, who showed an inclination to drop it.

"You don't think he locked the door himself and threw the key out of the window?" the little man asked.

"The windows are covered with mosquito netting, nailed on. The mister blamed it on the children, and it might have been Obadiah. He's the quiet kind, and you never know what he's about."

"He's about to strangle, isn't he," McKnight remarked lazily, "or is that Obadiah?"

Mrs. Carter picked the boy up and inverted him, talking amiably all the time. "He's always doing it," she said, giving him a shake. "Whenever we miss anything we look to see if Obadiah's black in the face." She gave another shake, and the quarter I had given him shot out as if blown from a gun. Then we prepared to go back to the station.

From where I stood I could look into the cheery farm kitchen, where Alison West and I had eaten our al fresco breakfast. I looked at the table with mixed emotions, and then, gradually, the meaning of something on it penetrated my mind. Still in its papers, evidently just opened, was a hat box, and protruding over the edge of the box was a streamer of vivid green ribbon.

On the plea that I wished to ask Mrs. Carter a few more questions, I let the others go on. I watched them down the flagstone walk; saw McKnight stop and examine the gate posts and saw, too, the quick glance he threw back at the house. Then I turned to Mrs. Carter.

"I would like to speak to the young lady upstairs," I said.

She threw up her hands with a quick gesture of surrender. "I've done all I could," she exclaimed. "She won't like it very well, but—she's in the room over the parlor."

I went eagerly up the ladder-like stairs, to the rag-carpeted hall. Two doors were open, showing interiors of four poster beds and high bureaus. The door of the room over the parlor was almost closed. I hesitated in the hallway; after all, what right had I to intrude on her? But she settled my difficulty by throwing open the door and facing me.

"I—I beg your pardon, Miss West," I stammered. "It has just occurred to me that I am unpardonably rude. I saw the hat downstairs and I—I guessed—"

"The hat!" she said. "I might have known. Does Richey know I am here?"

"I don't think so." I turned to go down the stairs again. Then I halted. "The fact is," I said, in an attempt at justification, "I'm in rather a mess these days, and I'm apt to do irresponsible things. It is not impossible that I shall be arrested, in a day or so, for the murder of Simon Harrington."

She drew her breath in sharply. "Murder!" she echoed. "Then they have found you after all!"

"I don't regard it as anything more than—er—inconvenient," I lied. "They can't convict me, you know. Almost all the witnesses are dead."

She was not deceived for a moment. She came over to me and stood, both hands on the rail of stair. "I know just how grave it is," she said quietly. "My grandfather will not leave one stone unturned, and he can be terrible—terrible. But"—she looked directly into my eyes as I stood below her on the stairs—"the time may come—soon—when I can help you. I'm afraid I shall not want to; I'm a dreadful coward, Mr. Blakeley. But—I will." She tried to smile.

"I wish you would let me help you," I said unsteadily. "Let us make it a bargain; each help the other!"

The girl shook her head with a sad little smile. "I am only as unhappy as I deserve to be," she said. And when I protested and took a step toward her she retreated, with her hands out before her.

"Why don't you ask me all the questions you are thinking?" she demanded, with a catch in her voice. "Oh, I know them. Or are you afraid to ask?"

I looked at her, at the lines around her eyes, at the drawn look about her mouth. Then I held out my hand. "Afraid!" I said, as she gave me hers. "There is nothing in God's green earth I am afraid of, save of trouble for you. To ask questions would be to imply a lack of faith. I ask you nothing. Some day, perhaps, you will come to me yourself and let me help you."

The next moment I was out in the golden sunshine; the birds were singing carols of joy; I walked dizzily throught rainbow-colored clouds, past the twins, cherubs now, swinging on the gate. It was a new world into which I stepped from the Carter farmhouse that morning, for—I had kissed her!

(TO BE CONTINUED)

He Could Not Recommend It.

The editor of the Plunkville Argus was seated at his desk, busily engaged in writing a fervid editorial on the necessity of building a new walk to the cemetery, when a battered specimen of the tramp printer entered the office.

"Mornin', boss!" said the caller. "Got any work for a 'print'?"

"I have," answered the editor. "You happened in just right this time. I've got only a boy to help me in the office and I need a man to set type for about a week. I have to make a trip out west. You can take off your coat and begin right now. I start to-morrow morning."

"All right," said the typographical tourist, removing his coat. "What road are you going to travel on?"

"The X., Y. & Z., mostly. I've never been on it. Know anything about it?"

"I know all about it. I've traveled it from one end to the other."

"What kind of a road is it?"

"Punk!" said the printer, in a tone indicative of strong disgust. "The ties are too far apart!"—Youth's Companion.

Must Wait for Remarriage.

In Louisiana the law permits a widow to marry again only provided she has waited until ten months after the death of her husband.

HER TROUBLE.

She—How's your wife?

He—Her head troubles her a good deal.

She—Neuralgia?

He—No; she wants a new hat.

CURED HER BABY OF ECZEMA

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another, but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough, I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years she was never without the terrible eruption, but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910.

Runs on the Bank of England.

Even the Bank of England has not been entirely free from runs nor from the necessity of saving itself by strategy. In 1745, for instance, it was forced to employ agents to present notes, which were paid as slowly as possible in sixpences, the cash being immediately brought in by another door and paid in again, while anxious holders of notes vainly tried to secure attention. In 1825 too only the accidental discovery of 700,000 £1 notes saved the bank from stopping payment.—London Chronicle.

USE ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes your feet feel easy and comfortable and makes walking a delight. Sold everywhere, 25c. Do not accept substitutes. For free trial package, address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

The saint who says he cannot sin may be an earnest man, but it is wisest to trust some other man with the funds of the church.

Don't worry about your complexion—take Garfield Tea, the blood purifier.

It sometimes happens that the black sheep of a family is a blonde.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

An undertaker knows a lot of "dead ones" that he is unable to bury.

Garfield Tea has brought good health to thousands! Unequaled for constipation.

Many men enjoy a dry smoke. Why not a dry drink?

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Angelfood cakes seldom make boys angelic.

Constipation is an avoidable misery—take Garfield Tea, Nature's Herb laxative.

Misery is the affinity of company.

No Need to Be Good.

A little Shaker Heights girl surprised her parents last week by refusing to be scared into being good. "It's no use telling me Santa Claus won't come, or that the angels will write it down in their book if I'm naughty, mamma," she said. "I might as well tell you that they think up in heaven that I'm dead."

"But why should they think that, dear?"

"Because, I haven't said my prayers for two weeks."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stop

taking liquid physic or big or little pills, that which makes you worse instead of curing. Cathartics don't cure—they irritate and weaken the bowels. CASCARETS make the bowels strong, tone the muscles so they crawl and work—when they do this they are healthy, producing right results. 907

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

Kow-Kure

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow cure. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without "Kow-Kure." It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "What to Do When Your Cows Are Sick" sent free. Ask your local dealer for "Kow-Kure," or send to the manufacturers. Dairy Association Co., Lyndonville, Vt.

The Bad Effects of CONSTIPATION

Impure blood, offensive breath, heavy head, shortness of breath, bilious attacks, fitful sleep, loss of appetite, feverish conditions, all come from one cause—Constipation.

The Good Effects of BEECHAM'S PILLS remedy these conditions because they remove the cause. They start the bowels, work the liver, sweeten the breath, cleanse the blood, tone the stomach, clear the head, improve the appetite and bring restful sleep.

The oldest and best corrective medicine before the public is Beecham's Pills.

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c.

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA

Remedy for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. Write for FREE SAMPLE. NORTHROP & LYMAN CO. Ltd., BUFFALO, N.Y.

FLORIDA FARM FOR $300.00

$10.00 cash—$5.00 a month buys five acre truck farm in the famous Pensacola District. Soil expert and demonstration farm make mistakes impossible. Net profit from $1,500 to $5,000 yearly. Canning factory on property guarantees steady market. Come to the land of SUNSHINE AND SUCCESS. Write for literature. PENSACOLA REALTY CO., Pensacola, Fla., P. O. Box 27

Consider your personal appearance

CHIC

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

A Country School for Girls in New York City

Best Features of Country and City Life

Out-of-door Sports on School Park of 35 acres near the Hudson River. Full Academic Course from Primary Class to Graduation. Upper Class for Advanced Special Students. Music and Art. Certificate admits to College. School Coach Meets Day Pupils. Miss Bangs and Miss Whiton, Riverdale Ave., near 252d St., West

Hats for Matrons

IN SPITE of all the jibes flung at womankind for her fickleness as to fashions in headwear, there are some sorts of hats that are always worn and always in style, or able to defy the passing fads of the moment. Among them are the small toques designed for elderly matrons and others who affect inconspicuous and good styles, the walking hat, dear to all women, and the big picture hat, with broad brim of graceful flowing lines which is the rose in the rosebud garden of hats every season. All the styles vary a little from time to time, but hardly enough to identify themselves as belonging to a certain year.

Three pretty and becoming hats for matrons are pictured here suitable to almost any season. The variation of the English walking hat, with brim faced with velvet, and turning up at the left, is finished with a very ample drapery of silk. The arrangement of this drapery gives the impression of a shape turned up at both sides, as in the regulation walking shape. Such a hat needs no additional trimming, but may be adapted to young wearers by the addition of a smart feather, or it may be elaborated for anyone by a tuft of ostrich half plumes. One must look far for a more elegant hat or a model so universally becoming. Hats of this character require the work of an experienced milliner; nothing short of perfection in draping and in finish is permissible in them. Facings must fit; trimmings must be placed by a practiced eye, otherwise the hat is a dismal failure and impossible.

The toque of silk or hair braid shown in the second figure is easier to accomplish. It is made on a light wire frame which has an ample head size. The frame is covered with chiffon and faced with maline shirred on the coronet is covered with ruffles of the braid and the crown is made by puffing a drapery of braid over it.

Black satin ribbon three inches wide is puffed to the toque brim from the back to a point at the middle of the left brim. Here a ribbon plume is set made by sewing short loops to a wire support. Two jet ornaments or pins fasten the plume to the hat, and add a pretty touch of brilliance to the lustrous surface of the ribbon. The hat is good in any dark or rich color, but is at its best in black. The materials of which it is made must be excellent in quality.

A hat with drooping brim and large crown, of black hair braid, is made strictly a mode of the season, but, as it is patterned after the Corday hat, it is not likely to ever be out of style. It is an elegant bit of millinery, trimmed with ropes of Tuscan straw and an applique of leaves made of black satin forming a close set wreath. One or two plumes mounted at the side, complete a hat to be proud of.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

PRETTY PRESENT FOR FRIEND

Embroidery Scissors Holders One of the Most Acceptable Gifts That Can Be Made.

If you can do even the simplest sort of crocheting, you must make yourself and your friends one of the little crocheted silk embroidery scissors holders. These consist simply of a cork, crocheted around in silk everywhere except the top surface, and with a crocheted string or handle to which the scissors are attached. Then when they are not in use the points are stuck into the cork and they are out of harm's way.

An accompaniment of this, not quite so new, but very useful, is a tiny glass medicine vial without a lid, crocheted all over very finely. Into it are dropped broken needles and bent pins, and they are far safer there than thrown carelessly on the floor or in the wastebasket. When the vial is full slip off the silk—a little drawing string at the bottom permits this—and empty it, burying the needles in the earth or throwing them into the fire.

These two little sewing contrivances, attached by a bit of ribbon in the same color, will make charming favors for the next luncheon of your sewing society.

CREPE DE CHINE WAIST.

This attractive waist is of white crepe de chine made with tucks in different widths and trimmed with bands of cream lace or embroidery.

The guimpe is made of bands of valenciennes insertion, the collar edged with black velvet, of which the knot on the front of the waist is also made.

GIVE COMFORT IN BOUDOIR

Dainty Bedroom Slippers Should Be a Standard Article for Every-day Use.

A dainty pair of bedroom slippers may be made from two lapped sections of shirred three-inch ribbon (the length, of course, depending on the size of the foot) attached across the front of a lamb's-wool sole. This forms the toe and instep portion.

The sides and back of the slipper are formed of a straight band of ribbon, lined with satin and sewed to the sole. If desired, it can be stiffened with bristol board. Flowered taffeta ribbon is best for this purpose, but it should not be too flimsy.

A drawstring passed through the upper edge of the sides may be tied in a bow in front, or the upper edge may be finished at the sides and back by a two-inch wide portion lined with the satin in a contrasting cover portion, turned down like a collar and caught by a few stitches or a baby ribbon rosette.

Bedroom Wall Papers.

Some of the cut-out borders are charming used with simple, almost plain, side walls, and chintz or cretonne curtains carrying out the design of the border. Then again, if the wall spaces are large, it is sometimes interesting to divide them up into panels, either with simple ribbon or flower borders or with floral crowns and borders similar to the one illustrated. The panelled rooms, however, have the disadvantage of seeming to require a little more elaborate furnishing than those in which the walls are treated simply. They seem to demand Sheraton, Heppelwhite, or Adams furniture.—Harper's Bazar.

Wedding Silver.

The necessary silver for a bride is: Four sets of spoons, which includes soup, dessert, tea, and after-dinner coffee; butter knives; four sets of forks, including oyster forks, and two sizes of steel knives with silver handles. If the carving is to be done on the table, two sets of carvers will be needed.

The newest and prettiest chest to hold these comes without drawers now, and the silver is arranged in piles, with the two sets of knives spread in the cover of the box—the whole lined with soft ooze leather.

Metal Fabrics.

Metal tunic draperies at the back flexible and glittering, are a marked feature in dressy gowns, falling from between the shoulders. Gauze and small metal discs on thin fabrics give much style to a gown.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A CHEERFUL temper joined with innocence will make beauty attractive, knowledge delightful and wit good natured.

What to Have for Dinner.

In serving a dinner menu, care must be used to have the meal as well balanced as possible.

Huntington Soup.—To a cup of corn add two cups of chicken broth and two cups of tomatoes, a sliced onion. Bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer 20 minutes; rub through a sieve. Melt one and a half tablespoonfuls of butter and add the same quantity of flour and a teaspoonful of salt; stir and mix well, then add the hot mixture. Season with cayenne and salt, if needed, and serve.

Beef Steak a la Henriette.—Wipe a porter house steak, cut one and a half inches thick, broil over a clear fire eight minutes. Pour one-half of the sauce on a hot platter, lay the steak on the sauce, cover with the remaining sauce and garnish with grated or shaved horseradish and parsley.

Sauce Henriette.—Mash half a cup of butter and divide in three parts. Put one piece in a sauce pan with the yolks of three eggs slightly beaten and mixed with one tablespoon of water and half a teaspoon of lemon juice. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until the butter is melted. Add the second piece of butter and when melted, the third piece, then add two tablespoonfuls of tomato puree, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-half tablespoon of chopped parsley, half a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne pepper. This sauce should be perfectly smooth and of the consistency of a rich boiled custard.

To prepare the tomato puree, cook a cup of tomato until reduced to three tablespoonfuls, using care not to scorch it. Strain through a fine sieve.

Sauted Potato Balls.—Cut the balls from potatoes with a French cutter. Cook ten minutes in boiling water, well salted. Drain, put into an omelet pan with a piece of butter and a sprinkling of paprika. Cover, set on the back part of the range and cook until delicately browned, shaking the pan occasionally to insure having an even color.

The pieces of potato left after making the balls may be cooked for mashed potato, so that nothing is wasted.

THE chief pleasure in eating does not consist in costly seasoning or exquisite flavor, but in yourself. Do you seek sauce by sweating?

—Horace.

New Ways of Serving Common Foods.

As there are over two hundred ways of serving the common potato, and most housekeepers' knowledge consists of about five methods of cooking them, we need to add a few new recipes to our repertoire.

Parisian Potatoes.—Wash, pare and soak in cold water eight small potatoes, remove in half an hour and put on to boil for 15 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain and put into a baking dish, basting three times while baking with a third of a cup of butter.

Celery and Cream Cheese Salad.—Mix one-half cup of finely-chopped celery with one cream cheese. Make the mixture into small balls, arrange on lettuce leaves and pour over a French dressing. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with radishes cut in fancy shapes.

Spiced Apple.—Wipe, core and pare six large apples and arrange in a baking dish. Mix sugar, cinnamon and a dash of salt, and fill the cavities. Add water and bake until the apples are soft, basting often with the hot sirup in the pan. Remove from the oven, cool slightly and pile a meringue on the top of each apple. Return to the oven and bake eight minutes. Chill and serve with sugar and cream.

To make the meringue: Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar gradually, beating, then flavor with half a teaspoonful of vanilla.

Apple Charlotte.—Put a cup and a half of apple sauce in a buttered baking pan. Remove the crusts from four slices of stale bread, butter generously, cut in triangles and arrange as closely as possible on top of the sauce. Sprinkle with a third of a cup of sugar and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with thin cream.

Dressed Cucumbers.—Peel the cucumbers and draw a three-tined fork the entire length all around, then cut in slices and serve with French dressing.

Nellie Maxwell.

Settling George.

"No, George," she said in her gravest tones, "I cannot become engaged to you, and I am very sorry to see you show this mad infatuation. Remember that I am much older than you are, and believe me when I say I will always be an elder sister to you."

"You ain't hardly any older than me," declared the disappointed youth.

"I am fifteen, while you are but fourteen. And remember, George, that to a woman a year is a lifetime."

WISE GIRL.

"I suppose your sister is busily preparing for her wedding?"

"Yes, she is up in her room now destroying all her old letters."

From Pain to Pleasure a Quick Transition.

I suggested Resinol and gave a neighbor one of your sample boxes for a child of a few months whose lower limbs were broken out with a rash resembling Eczema. The sample was applied at once and changed the wail of pain into smiles. Two jars were used with complete recovery in the surprisingly short time of two days. That tired mother's looks and words of gratitude were from the heart.
Geo. E. Ames, D. D. S., Boulder, Colo.

Policy.

He—Darling, I would die for you!

She—Dearest, do you carry much insurance?

Drink Garfield Tea at night! It insures normal action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

The man in the church with the roving eyes looking over the bulbous nose is pretty sure to be strong on the doctrines.

Great Home Eye Remedy,

for all diseases of the eye, quick relief from using PETTIT'S EYE SALVE. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

Let us make the best of our friends while we have them, for how long we shall keep them is uncertain.—Seneca.

A good way to keep well is to take Garfield tea frequently. It insures good health.

Happiness grows at our own fireside and is not to be picked in strangers' gardens.—Douglas Jerrold.

Many people have receding gums. Rub Hamlins Wizard Oil on gums and stop the decay; chase the disease germs with a mouth wash of a few drops to a spoonful of water.

"Papa, what is flattery?"

"Praise of other people, my son."—Boston Transcript.

Take Garfield Tea! Made of Herbs, it is pure, pleasant and health giving.

Duty makes us do things well, but love makes us do them beautifully.—Phillips Brooks.

Constipation causes many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative three for cathartic.

Reforms come slowly because we all would rather wield the ax than bear the knife.

Garfield Tea purifies the blood and eradicates rheumatism. It is made of Herbs.

The brotherhood of man does mean better wages, but it also means better work.

A Sad Face.

He—What a sweet, sad face she has.

She (in a huff)—Enough to make any one sad to have such a face as that.

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Ever hear of a pearl being found in a church fair oyster?

The very best advice: take Garfield Tea whenever a laxative is needed.

All the world's a stage, and life is the greatest on earth.

Roots Barks Her

That have great medicinal powe raised to their highest efficiency, for fying and enriching the blood, as are combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

40,366 testimonials received by a count in two years. Be sure to

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Women Who Suffer

from woman's ailments are invited to write to the names and addresses here given, for positive proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does cure female ills.

Tumor Removed.
Elmo, Mo.—Mrs. Sarah J. Stuart, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 16.
Peoria, Ill.—Mrs. Christina Reed, 105 Mound St.
Natick, Mass.—Mrs. Nathan B. Greaton, 51 North Main St.
Milwaukee, Wis.—Mrs. Emma Imse, 833 1st St.
Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Alvena Sperling, 1468 Clybourne Ave.
Galena, Kan.—Mrs. R. R. Huey, 713 Mineral Av.
Victoria, Miss.—Mrs. Willie Edwards.
Cincinnati, Ohio.—Mrs. W. H. Housh, 7 Eastview Ave.

Change of Life.
Epping, N. H.—Mrs. Celia E. Stevens.
Streator, Ill.—Mrs. J. H. Campbell, 206 North Second St.
Brooklyn, N. Y.—Mrs. Frank, 806 Halsey St.
Noah, Ky.—Mrs. Lizzie Holland.
Cathamet, Wash.—Mrs. Elva Barber Edwards.
Circleville, Ohio.—Mrs. Alice Kirlin, 333 West Huston St.
Salem, Ind.—Mrs. Lizzie S. Hinkle, R.R. No. 2.
New Orleans, La.—Mrs. Gaston Blondeau, 1812 Terpsichore St.
Mishawaka, Ind.—Mrs. Chas. Bauer, Sr., 523 East Marion St.
Racine, Wis.—Mrs. Katie Kuhlk, R. 2, Box 51.
Beaver Falls, Pa.—Mrs. W. P. Boyd, 2410 9th Av.

Maternity Troubles.
Bronaugh, Mo.—Mrs. D. F. Aleshire.
Phenix, R.I.—Mrs. Wm. O. King, Box 282.
Carlstadt, N.J.—Mrs. Louis Fischer, 32 Monroe St.
South Sanford, Me.—Mrs. Charles A. Austin.
Schenectady, N.Y.—Mrs. H. Porter, 742 Albany St.
Taylorville, Ill.—Mrs. Joe Grantham, 825 W. Vandeveer St.
Cincinnati, Ohio.—Mrs. Sophia Hoff, 515 McMicken Ave.
Big Run, Pa.—Mrs. W. E. Pooler.
Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. M. Johnston, 210 Siegel St.

Backache.
Peoria, Ill.—Mrs. Clara L. Gauwitz, R. R. No. 4, Box 62.
Augusta, Me.—Mrs. Winfield Dana, R. F. D. 2.
St. Paul, Minn.—Mrs. B. M. Schorn, 1083 Woodbridge St.
Pittsburg, Pa.—Mrs. G. Leiser, 5219 Kinkaid St., E. E.
Kearney, Mo.—Mrs. Thomas Asburry.
Blue Island, Ill.—Mrs. Anna Schwartz, 328 Grove St.
East Earl, Pa.—Mrs. Augustus Lyon, R.F.D 2.

Operations Avoided.
Silkeston, Mo.—Mrs. Dema Bethune.
Gardiner, Me.—Mrs. S. A. Williams, 142 Washington Ave.
Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Wm. Ahrens, 2239 W. 21st St.
Bellevue, Ohio.—Mrs. Edith Wieland, 238 Monroe St.
DeForest, Wis.—Mrs. Auguste Vespermann.
Dexter, Kansas.—Mrs. Lizzie Scott.

Organic Displacements.
Black Duck, Minn.—Mrs. Anna Anderson, Box 19.
Wesleyville, Pa.—Mrs. Maggie Ester, R.F.D. 1.
Trenton, Mo.—Mrs. W. T. Purnell, 307 Lincoln Avenue.
Camden, N.J.—Mrs. Ella Johnston, 289 Liberty St.
Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Wm. Tully, 2062 Ogden Avenue.

Painful Periods.
Caledonia, Wis.—Mrs. Ph. Schattner, R.R. 14, Box 54.
Adrian, Mo.—Mrs. C. B. Mason, R.R. No. 2.
N. Oxford, Mass.—Miss Amelia Duso, Box 14.
Baltimore, Ohio.—Mrs. A. A. Balenger, R.F.D. 1.
Negaunee, Mich.—Mrs. Mary Sedlock, Box 1273.
Orrville, Ohio.—Mrs. E. F. Wagner, Box 620.
Atwater, Ohio.—Miss Minnie Muelhaupt.
Prairie du Chien, Wis.—Mrs. Julia Konichcek, R. No. 1.

Irregularity.
Buffalo, N.Y.—Mrs. Clara Darbrake, 17 Marlemont St.
Winchester, Ind.—Mrs. May Deal, R.R. No. 7.
St. Regis Falls, N.Y.—Mrs. J. H. Breyere.
Grayville, Ill.—Mrs. Jessie Schaar, Box 24.
Hudson, Ohio.—Mrs. Geo. Strickler, R. No. 5, Box 52.

Ovarian Trouble.
Murrayville, Ill.—Mrs. Chas. Moore, R. R. 3.
Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. Chas. Boell, 2219 N. Mole St.
Minneapolis, Minn.—Mrs. John G. Moldan, 2115 Second St., North.
Hudson, Ohio.—Mrs. Lena Carmocino, R.F.D.7.
Westwood, Md.—Mrs. John F. Richards.
Benjamin, Mo.—Mrs. Julia Frantz, R.F.D. 1.

Female Weakness.
W. Terre Haute, Ind.—Mrs. Artie E. Hamilton.
Elmo, Mo.—Mrs. A. C. DaVault.
Lawrence, Iowa.—Mrs. Julia A. Snow, R. No. 3.
Utica, Ohio.—Mrs. Mary Earlwine, R.F.D. 3.
Bellevue, Ohio.—Mrs. Charley Chapman, R.F.D. No. 7.
Elgin, Ill.—Mrs. Henry Leiseberg, 743 Adams St.
Schaefferstown, Pa.—Mrs. Cyrus Hetrich.
Cresson, Pa.—Mrs. Ella E. Alkey.
Fairchance, Pa.—Mrs. Idella A. Dunham, Box 152.

Nervous Prostration.
Knoxville, Iowa.—Mrs. Clara Franks, R.F.D. 3.
Oronogo, Mo.—Mrs. Mae McKnight.
Camden, N.J.—Mrs. W. P. Valentine, 902 Lincoln Avenue.
Muddy, Ill.—Mrs. May Nolen.
Brookville, Ohio.—Mrs. R. Kinnison.
Fitchville, Ohio.—Mrs. C. Cole.
Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. Frank Clark, 2416 E. Allegheny Ave.

These women are only a few of thousands of living witnesses of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. Not one of these women ever received compensation in any form for the use of their names in this advertisement—but are willing that we should refer to them because of the good they may do other suffering women to prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a reliable and honest medicine, and that the statements made in our advertisements regarding its merit are the truth and nothing but the truth.

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any stage are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue, acts on the Blood and Glands, expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle. $5 and $10 a dozen. If this not Keep it. Show to your druggist who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper Causes and Cures." Special Agents wanted.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a free homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time

—not a year from now, when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 60 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
Use address nearest you. 87

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapses. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whitsel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. Sent on FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHITZEL, M. D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

Save Your Orchards
USE
CLOVER LEAF LIME-SULPHUR for SPRAYING
Write for prices and booklet
John D. Owens & Son, Owens, Marion Co., Ohio

SOLDIERS AND WIDOWS, are now entitled to 320 acre homestead FREE. Send postage for application blank and particulars. C. E. MUNSON, ABERDEEN, SOUTH DAKOTA.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

/ED FOR HERSELF

aric Leigh bore his fate like a man
n he learned from the lips of Auro-
Stanley that she was the promised fe of another. Aurora's betrothed sband was expected from Europe, id the preparations for the wedding ad already begun. But one morning ne thunderbolt fell.

Her father had speculated heavily and lost. Hoping to retrieve his losses, he had become an embezzler and a forger, and his sin had found him out. He was a hunted criminal.

The dainty, spoiled child of luxury was forsaken by her butterfly friends and sneered down as the beggared daughter of a fleeing criminal.

"I am so glad Charles is rich," she thought. And for the first time since she knew him she thought of him with something like affection and yearned for his coming. "The steamer came in this morning, and in a few hours more he will be here to comfort and protect me."

But before he came she had another guest.

Looking from a window of the grand mansion that in another week would be her home no longer, she saw Alaric Leigh coming up the marble steps.

"Miss Stanley," he began gravely, "I have come on a most disagreeable errand. I am commissioned to inform you that your unhappy father has returned to the city and means to give himself up to justice."

"He must not!" she gasped.

"He has no means to do otherwise," answered the young man gravely. "He sent me to tell you that if you could dispose of your diamonds he might by the proceeds not only reach Europe in safety, but also establish some sort of business there by which he might some time regain an honorable name and place among his fellow men."

"Here they are," she said hurriedly, placing a heavy casket in his hands. "Oh, Alaric, go quickly and tell him if he loves his suffering daughter never to give himself up to a felon's punishment."

In her trouble she never thought to inquire how Alaric Leigh had become the confidant of her broken and disgraced parent.

As she spoke the bell rang loudly.

"It is Charley!" she said gladly.

"One word more, Aurora, before I go," said Alaric. "If you ever feel that you need my friendship do not hesitate to send for me."

The girl did not hear him. She only seemed to hear the firm, light footsteps on the threshold of the parlor door, and Alaric, passing out of a door opposite, looked back for a second and saw her spring into the embrace of Charles Buckingham.

"Oh, Charley, I am so glad you have come! I am in such trouble," said Aurora, clinging to his arm as she drew him to a seat.

"Indeed, my little goddess!" drawled the exquisite. "What sort of trouble?" he asked.

"Oh, Charley, have you not heard of our terrible misfortune?" she asked. "I thought the whole city would babble it to you before you saw me," she continued.

"I have heard nothing," he returned, growing anxious.

And so she told him all, never heeding as she talked on with feverish rapidity that the face of the man who had plighted to her eternal love and constancy was assuming a smile of lofty and haughty indifference that betrayed his true character.

"And so the wedding can't be?" he observed in a tone that cut through her heart like a thrust of frosty steel. "Is that what you want to suggest, Miss Stanley? Well, you are quite right. Most girls under such circumstances would have held a poor fellow to his contract. But you are as wise as you are unselfish, and I honor you for it, Rory—'pon my soul I do."

Aurora sprang to her feet, amazed and indignant at this unparalleled act of hypocrisy and his offensive familiarity.

"Thank God, I never loved you!" she cried, and, tearing the betrothal ring from her finger, she flung it at his feet. "Go, and leave me alone! In all the world I have not a friend—not one."

"In all the world I have not a friend—not one," was the burden of Aurora's sorrow for many a weary day.

One day Aunt Hetty in her faded brown silk and ancient bonnet came for the unhappy girl.

"You must go home with me, Rory. It is a poor sort of place for a fine lady, but it is better than nothing, girlie."

So Aurara went, and when the summer came again Alaric Leigh came with it. If he still loved Aurora he never betrayed the fact by any sign whatever, and perhaps that was why, with the inconsistency of girlhood, she began to think him a paragon among men. But he did love her still, and after a long, long time he told her the truth.

"An affection like mine, Aurora," he said, in his grave, straightforward way, "never changes. I can give you a comfortable home, and if you will be my wife I shall be the happiest of husbands."

"I can't marry you for a home," she answered, and a tender quaver in her voice made his heart beat faster.

"Marry me for love, then, dear," he observed audaciously.

"Oh, blind Alaric! I have loved you always."

And that was the truth.

What a quiet little wedding it was—no satin and lace and orange blossoms, only a slim, beautiful form, robed, like the simplest village maid, in plain white muslin and crowned with white rosebuds.

KANSAS' UNIQUE SCHEME.

Children Ride to School In Closed and Heated Wagons.

One of the principal things that attracts the settler to a town is the school and then a means of getting there.

In many sections of Kansas the small boys and girls living on the farms have had to tramp from one to three miles through the mud and snow to school. Now the plan of combining small country districts about one graded school and providing comfortable transportation for the children is spreading rapidly.

The consolidated school is the dissolution of two or more districts and the formation of a large one with a graded school in the center. This makes the transportation problem an important one, and in all consolidated school districts the tax levy is made large enough to pay for hauling the children to school and back home. A wagon is often purchased by the district and a contract given to some farmer to do the hauling.

Sometimes the farmer takes a long time contract and buys his own wagon. If a farmer desires to haul his own children to school the district pays him a certain amount for doing it or neighbors may club together and turn over this money to one boy, who drives the team each day and takes care of it and sees that the children get to school all right and safely home. But the most common plan is the use of a big covered and glass inclosed wagon with an oil heater inside.

Figures compiled by the state superintendent of instruction show that the children do better work and in less time than under the old methods. The statistics on file in the office also show that even with this great hauling expense the actual cost to the taxpayers is less in consolidated than in separate districts. Better teachers are employed and higher salaries paid, but there is a larger reduction in fuel, repairs and maintenance of the larger building than in several smaller structures.

As to Friends.

A friend may be often found and lost, but an old friend can never be found, and nature has provided that he cannot easily be lost.—Samuel Johnson.

Presented With Jewel.

Mr. R. E. Sliger, who recently retired as Worshipful Master of Oakland Lodge A., F. & A. M., was presented with a Past Master's jewel last Tuesday night by members of the Caaft as a mark of their appreciation and good will. The presentation speech was made by Dr. E. H. Bartlett and was feelingly responded to by Mr. Sliger.

New Fruit Store.

"Hello, Bessie," said Nora, "I have something new to tell you."

"What do you mean? Is there anything going on? I hav'nt been down town for a good while." "Why, yes; a new fruit store has been opened in the Ravenscroft building where you may get the finest fruit of all kinds; always fresh, for the least money. You may take the fruit home with you, examine it and if not satisfactory you may return it and get your money back."

Give us a call. JOSEPH & RATHA.

MERRILL.

Rev. D. L. Reid, of Deer Park is conducting a series of revival meetings at Bond which will continue for several weeks.

Superintendent Cook, of the Cook mills met with an accident while in the woods near Bond a few days ago. A falling log struck him on the shoulder, breaking his collar bone. After receiving attention from a physician at Bond, Mr. Cook was taken to his home at Cooksburg, Pa.

Mr. Alfred Broadwater and Dr. E. M. Gaster are spending some time at Hot Springs, Ark., before proceeding to Tacoma, Wash., where they expect to take up homesteads.

Mr. Leroy Duckworth, of Westernport, has leased the G. W. Broadwater farm and is preparing to operate it on an extensive scale.

While riding home from a dance the other evening, Mr. Nimrod Grigg fell from his horse and was painfully injnred.

Mr. Oscar Broadwater has returned from the Wolf Swamp sanitarium, where he had been a patient for some time. He is greatly improved.

Mr. Peter Wilt was in Oakland recently and purchased a new pump for use on his property near here.

Mrs. David Broadwater has recovered from a severe attack of la grippe.

Mr. Charles Merrill's entire family are on the sick list this week.

Garthright's Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all who are indebted to me either on note or open account to make immediate settlement as I must close up my personal affairs. If settlement is not made within a reasonable time my books will be placed in the hands of an attorney with instructions to force settlement.

Thanking all for their patronage and soliciting a continuance of the same with the new firm, I am,

Very respectfully,
P. T. GARTHRIGHT.

Just Arrived.

A lot of Fancy Gas Shades which were shipped last September and miscarried by the Railroad Company. The mannfacturers have instructed us to close them out at cost. Regular $1.00 and 75 ct. Fancy Shades of Crystal Stripe, Red, White and Flowered designs, while they last 75 and 50 cents.

S. LAWTON & SONS.

LOCH LYNN.

Mrs. Chas. May is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Garthright, of this place.

Mr. Lawrence Crane, of Grafton spent several days with his family last week.

Miss Mae Sanders is visiting her sister Mrs. Parks.

Mrs. Shaw, who has been quite ill, is improving.

Mr. B L. Hardesty and family, who spent several weeks in California have returned home.

Rev. C. W. Hudson preached quite an interesting sermon in the Baptist church, Sunday morning, subject, "Unanswered Prayer."

Mr. Edward O'Donnell is spending a few days here this week.

Miss Ola Junkins, who spent the past winter in Pittsburg, has returned home.

Mrs. Capt. Cochran, who has been very much indisposed, is able to be out again.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mr. Asa Callis and lady friend, of Loch Lynn, were calling at D. H. Riley's Sunday last.

George DeWitt is having gas put in his house this week. A. D. Navlor is doing the plumbing.

Mr. and Mrs. Hixen, who have been visiting relatives and friends at West Newton, Pa., for the past week, have returned home.

Owing to the absence of our pastor, Rev. Musgrave, who was called to Rowlesburg, H. N. Cuppett filled his appointment and delivered a very interesting sermon at this place Sunday last.

Some of the young people of this place attended the revival at Loch Lynn Saturday evening.

Our old friend Ben DeWitt was visiting his brother George Sunday evening, and on Monday George helped him to move to Crellin.

Geo. Kerrins, who has been operating a saw mill for Stuart Hamill at Rowlesburg, is home at present.

Preaching next Sunday at 2.30 p. m., by Rev. Bowman. Everybody invited.

FRIENDSVILLE.

Snow is clearing off again after a stormy week.

Mr. Shirk, connected with the coal interests, paid this town a flying visit on Monday.

Scott Groves is moving his household goods to Selbysport where he will store them for the present.

F. G. Fox has put in a gasoline engine and dynamo at his hotel and will make his own electric light.

Miss Lucy Frankhouser is visiting friends and relatives in Morgantown, W. Va.

Salathiel Savage attended the funeral at Sandspring last Sunday of Julia Ann Shipley, daughter of Wilham Umble.

A pleasant and interesting time was spent by all that attended the institute last Saturday at the school house.

The school entertainment on Washington's birthday, given by the scholars of the upper rooms, was enjoyed by those present, but the two lower rooms were not allowed to witness it.

The beautiful temperance drama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," will be produced on Friday and Saturday of next week the 10 and 11 of March. This play will be produced in an up-to-date manner by the company who have been rehearsing it for some time and nothing has been neglected that will help to make it please the public from the time of the raising of the first curtain until the final tableaux of "Little Mary Hovering near." Mrs. Stadtler's orchestra of nine persons will dispense the music between acts. This entertainment is given for the benefit of the Band and that alone should make everybody attend but aside from that, the play will be worth many times the price of admission showing as it does the fruits of drinking liquor and what terrible things happen from its use. This play is patronized by the clergy, and all temperance organizations everywhere, so don't forget to patronize it and bring your friends.

Miss Iva Savage, daughter of W. W. Savage, leaves for Pittsburg today, accompanied by Dr. Mason, where she will be treated for appendicitis.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Dr. W. W. Davis was here several days this week arranging for the shipment of his goods and closing up his business with the Association.

Dr. and Mrs. Shelton are comfortably quartered in Assembly Hall until the superintendent's cottage is vacated by Dr. Davis.

Rev P. Z. Musgrave held the quarterly meeting at Rowlesburg last Sunday for Superintendent Reed.

Mr. H. N. Cuppett conducted the services at Wesley Chapel last Sunday in the absence of the pastor.

Rev. D L. Reid, pastor of Deer Park circuit, will have charge of the services here Saturday evening and Sunday morning, March 11th and 12th, in place of Superintendent Reed.

Preaching in the M. E. church Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m.

Mrs. J. A. Hayden returned home Monday evening after spending several days with the family of her son Grant at Westernport, Md.

Mrs. Henry May, of Hagerstown, Md., is the guest of Mrs. J. L. Echard and other friends here.

Mr. W. H. Landon has moved into the cottage he recently purchased on K street.

Garthright & Harvey received a car of flour and feed yesterday.

Dr. Talson, one of our most popular summer residents, is seriously ill in Flagler Hospital, St. Augustine, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Hayward and daughter Beatrice, who passed through a siege of la grippe, are all about well.

Mrs. Basselle and daughter, Miss Finnell, of Parkersburg, W. Va., are expected to occupy their cottage here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Echard and son, who spent the winter in Mt. Pleasant, Pa., will occupy their cottage here the last of this week.

Judge T. H. Cuppett has sold over seventy-five dozen eggs this winter.

Mr. A. W. Miller went to Bond Saturday to assist Rev. Reid in the revival services at that place.

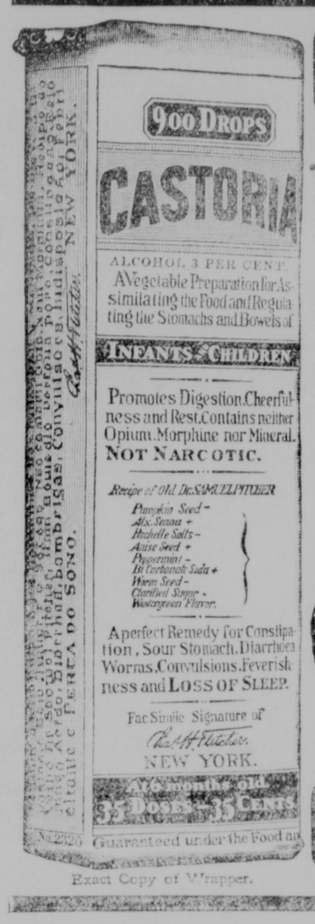
Mr. R. T. Miller, of Marietta, Ohio, a former resident ot the Park, is reported seriously ill.

Mr. E. M. Gilpin, of Cumberland was here last week looking at properties with the view of purchasing a home.

The planing mill is running full time with an outlook for a good season.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hipsley are now at home in their own cottage in "Paradise."

With the appearance of good weather there is talk of many improvements here chief among which we note the Dennett and Columbian hotels and the Allegany House. Mr. D. E. Bolden will likely have charge of the improvements on the Allegany House, which will be commenced soon.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

FROSTBURG GARAGE,
Frostburg, Maryland.
Our Motto: Square Deal for Everybody.
Agents for the Wonderful Everyman's Car.
The Great Little Brush $450.00 to $650.00 and the famous Oakland Automobiles $1600.00 up, with complete equipment. Write for literature; we can supply you.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street, Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-06-1y.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS I. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p. m.

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY, TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, all city street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proved to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 50 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT, at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 5054. 45-5m

ORDER NISI.

Wm. R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger vs. Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley, his wife. No. 1739 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 18th day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger, trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $400.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

NOTICE!
TO THE
PUBLIC.
I have moved my
MEAT MARKET
INTO THE
Nally Building,
where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.
Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.
I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am
Yours respectfully,
H. McC. SMOUSE.
The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Assignee's Sale

OF VALUABLE

Real Estate!

In Garrett County, Md.

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from Stephen Wilt and Rhoda S. Wilt, his wife, to David T. Michaels, dated the 9th day of November, 1909, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 60, folio 5, etc., one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett county, Maryland, default having occurred under the covenants contained in said mortgage, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned assignee for the purpose of foreclosure, notice is hereby given that said assignee will, on Saturday, the 25th Day of March, 1911, at the hour of 11 o'clock A. M., offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett county, Maryland, all of the following described real estate situate in Election District No. 4, in Garrett county, Maryland, on the head of Dry Run, about 6 miles north of Frankville, the same being part of a tract of land called "Swanton," and beginning for the same at a red oak stump, being the stump of the originally bounded red oak tree called for at the beginning of the land described in a deed from J. K. Anderson and wife to David T. Michaels, dated March 14, 1877, and running thence with part of the 1st line thereof North 64 East, 14 perches to the end of the 2nd line of a two-acre lot recently conveyed by said Michael's et ux. to Cora F. Gaster, then reversing it North 30¾ East, 32½ perches to the 2nd line of the aforesaid land conveyed by said Anderson and wife to said David T. Michaels, and with it N. 55 W. 16½ perches to the end of the 1st line of the land described in a deed from said D. T. Michaels and wife to Alexander Reid, dated February 18, 1886, then reversing it, South 50 West, 169 perches to the beginning thereof, then South 55 East, 26 perches to a stake and two small rock oak pointers standing at the end of the 4th line of the land described in a deed from C. M. Miller and wife to said David T. Michaels, dated November 10, 1902, then with the lines thereof, reversed, South 20 West, 165 perches to a stake and stone pile and young locust and white oak pointers, North 71¾ East 125½ perches to a stake and stone pile standing South 57 East, 14 links from a small white oak marked with six hacks, North 16 East, 48½ perches to a stake and stone pile with a chestnut tree marked as a pointer, which is the beginning of a piece of land conveyed by said Anderson and wife to John O'Haver, then with the given line thereof, reversed, North 67 West, 58 perches to the beginning,

Containing 168 Acres, more or less.

About 40 acres of this farm are cleared and under cultivation, and the land is watered by three good springs.

A large amount of Saw Timber is still standing and there is an Orchard of about 200 apple trees and other fruit.

The property is also improved by a good house and barn and is well located and will make a fine home.

TERMS OF SALE—As prescribed by said mortgage, cash on the day of sale.

For further information, address the undersigned.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
Assignee for purpose of foreclosure.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership lately subsisting between Cortez H. Jennings and the estate of B. Worth Jennings, deceased, at Jennings, Garrett county, Maryland, under the firm of Jennings Brothers, was this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the same name by Cortez H. Jennings, Ella Castle Jennings and W. Worth Jennings, at the same place. All debts owing to the old partnership are to be received by the new firm, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to the new firm for payment.

CORTEZ H. JENNINGS,
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS, Admtx. of B. Worth Jennings, deceased.
ELLA CASTLE JENNINGS,
W. WORTH JENNINGS.
January 31st, 1911.

Notice of Municipal Election

Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the town of Oakland that an election will be held on

Monday, March 13th, 1911,

for the purpose of electing—

Three persons to serve as members of the Town Council of Oakland for the term of two years.

The polls will be held in the Council Chamber, First National Bank Building, on Alder street, from eight o'clock a. m. until six o'clock p. m.

By order of the Council.

JOHN C. DUNHAM, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, Maryland, letters of administration on the estate of

JEREMIAH BITTNER,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 2nd day of September, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 2nd day of March, 1911.

NOAH BITTNER,
Administrator,
Accident Md.

New Assessment Appeals.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 17, 1910.

The County Commissioners for Garret County, Maryland, acting as a Board of Control and Review, will be at their office in the town of Oakland, to hear appeals on the new assessments on the following dates:

For District No. 1—March 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, 1911.
For District No. 10—March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20, 1911.
For District No. 4—March 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1911.
For District No. 13—March 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1911.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Commissioners' Meeting.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 16, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garrett county will meet at their office in Oakland on

Monday, March 6th, 1911,

to transact all routine business.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 35. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1911. NUMBER 2

REPUBLICANS ELECT TWO, DEMOCRATS ONE MEMBER

Of the Town Council of Monday After a Spirited Contest.

Following the call issued by the Republican Committee and published in these columns last week, quite a large number of Republicans participated last Friday evening in naming a ticket to be voted Monday for members of the Town Council of Oakland.

Mr. Fred. A. Thayer presided at the convention which named the ticket and Mr. B. H. Sincell secretary.

The ticket named by the convention was composed of Messrs. Ellsworth G. Naylor, Notley B. Browning and Bowie Johnson. These gentlemen had as their opponents Messrs. E. A. Shaffer, Thomas A. Gonder and James A. Delawder, who were named Thursday evening at a convention of Democrats.

The contest on Monday was spirited from the moment the polls opened at eight o'clock until they were closed at six o'clock, when a total of nearly three hundred ballots had been cast.

The result of the vote follows:

Republicans—C. Bowie Johnson, 184; Ellsworth G. Naylor, 175; Notley B. Browning, 76.

Democrats—Thomas A. Gonder, 156; E. A. Shaffer, 104; James A. Delawder, 81.

The successful candidates were Messrs, Naylor and Johnson, Republicans, and Mr. Gonder, Democrat.

The new members of Council will assume their office the first Monday in April when the Council will stand four Republicans and two Democrats, with Mr. Hart, Democrat, hold-over Mayor. Messrs. G. A. Fraley and J. A. Kelly are the Republican hold-over members of Council, and Mr. J. M. Stanton is the Democratic hold-over member.

Here is a Genius.

Hubert Hixon has invented and built an automobile 4½ horse power, that he runs all over the farm, and it takes the hills like a duck takes water. He built this automobile out of an old Deering binder, Wood mower, Field force pump and Shears, Sawbuck & Skinem motor. Farmers ought to save their old machinery to make autos, biplanes, monoplanes, etc.—Hancock Star.

Call for Your Letters.

G. W. Brown, Mrs. Arda.h Cole, Paul W. Cox, Virginia Clingan, William Walters, Yee Ress Co., Mr. Ringer, Ella Smith, E. W. Stewart.

MR. BROWNING EXONERATED BY STATE BOARD

Charges Dismissed Against County Superintendent Is the Report.

From an unofficial report it has been learned that the State Board of Education in session in Baltimore yesterday dismissed all the charges filed against Mr. Ed. A. Browning, County Superintendent of Public Schools of Garrett county, except that of not visiting the schools as requirrd by law and this is held as being insufficient to warrant his dismissal from office.

THE DEATH RECORD.

JOHN WEBER.

John Weber, Sr., a highly respected citizen of this city and a well known Union veteran, died at his home, 70 Goethe street, this morning aged 70 years. His wife died almost a year ago. The deceased made his home with his son George Weber. The following children survive: Mrs. Amos Mosser, Mrs. David Roth, both living near Oakland; Charles E. Weber, Lonaconing; Mrs. Geo. Coleman, Lewis Weber, George Weber and Misses Annie and Grace Weber. The deceased was a member of the Union Veteran Legion and the G. A. R. post of this city.—Cumberland News of Tuesday.

WILLIAM McLEAN.

At his home near McHenry, this morning, after several days illness of pleural-pneumonia, William McLean, aged twenty-eiget years. The deceased was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Dougald McLean and was a most exemplary young man. Besides his parents he is survived by his wife, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Glotfelty.

Notice.

A public meeting will be held in the court house at Oakland, on Friday evening, March 17th, at 7.30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a mutual fire insurance company for Garrett county and the adjoining counties of Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Everyone interested in the project should attend.

Farm at Public Auction.

I will offer at public auction on Saturday, April 1st, at 10 a. m., the Gov. Francis Thomas farm, located near Frankville. The sale to occur at the house on the place. The farm contains 600 acres; minerals and oil excepted from the sale. Terms cash.

3t-pd. D. T. MICHAELS.

INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION

Will Meet in Convention at Mountian Lake Park Sept. 1-11 Inclusive.

Mountain Lake Park, at the close of the Chautauqua season next August, will entertain one of the largest conventions ever assembled at that place when the International Bible Students' Association will meet there on September 1st and will adjourn on the 11th of that month.

The Association, as its name implies is composed of people from all parts of the world, with Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn, its president. The organization is as complete as it is possible to make it and delegates are expected to be present from every state in the Union and also from foreign countries. At the convention held in New York last year representatives of the association were present from England, India, China, Japan, Australia and other countries. The convention this year is expected to be as well attended as that of last year when about 3500 people were present.

MR. NAYLOR WILL BUILD

A Three Story Brick Building For Garage On Liberty Street.

Mr. A. D. Naylor, who owns the lot formerly belonging to the municipality located on Liberty street near the town scales, is having plans drawn for a three story solid brick building to be erected on the foundation already built on the lot. This building will be used a garage by the Hoffman and Naylor Garage Co., and by Mr. Naylor as a warehouse for the various lines of machinery and vehicles he carries in stock.

The contemplated improvement will be a noticeable one and will add greatly to the appearance of the portion of town in which the building is to be erected.

Stork News.

That noble bird, The Stork, made the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Naylor a visit Sunday afternoon, bringing with it a little son.

AND DARKNESS CAME

Storm Clouds Obscured the Sun and Darkness Fell Upon the Earth.

A remarkable occurrence took place in this section of the country last Sunday afternoon when clouds gathered in the western sky spread over the face of the heavens, and in less than five minutes afterward the earth was enveloped in darkness resembling the midnight hour. This continued for about five minutes when the clouds passed away and the sun shone out again.

A similar occurence from the same cause took place something more than twenty-five years ago when as on Sunday artificial light was resorted to.

Granted a Pension.

Mas. Mary E. Hansell, of near Lonaconing, as the widow of Wm. P. Hansell, an Garrett county soldier in the Civil war, has just been granted a pension of $12 a month from January 28 last, when claim was filed by her attorney, Mr. Jacob Brown. This was an early settlement of a just claim. Her pension certificate in No. 718,414 on the widows' lists; a list that is growing in numbers.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

Charles Mastin Erick and Lucy E. Savage, both of Kingwood, W. Va.

Lewis Vansickle and Lou Etta Kelley, both of near Friendsville.

Micaiah L. Morris, of Wilsonburg, W. Va., and Elta Baker, of Marguerita, W. Va.

Jere Johnson and Dessie Blanche Rexwood, both of Morgantown, W. Va.

William Nay Cantwell and Ella Rinehart, both of Cairo, W. Va.

John Paul Caralier, of Rinehart W. Va., and Vina Ashcraft, of Wallace, W. Va.

Robert Lee Starkey and Lina Burton Aldeman, of Weston, W. Va.

Cecil Osburn Blake, of Weston, W. Va., and Adelaide Louise Savage, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Harry Oscar Durst and Daisy Myrtle White, both of near Oakland.

John K. Taylor and Della Grace Wright, both of Chaffee, W. Va.

Charles William Buckner and Bertie DeWitt, both of Rowlesburg, W. Va.

Alonzo W. Hudkins and Opal Seese, both of Clarkeburg W. Va.

Four with request not to publish.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Naylor. 3t

NEW PLAY HOUSE

Manager Nally to Open the Empire with "Lena Rivers."

Manager Nally will have for the first opening play at the Empire Opera House, Monday evening, March 20, Beulah Poynter's beautiful play from Mary J. Holmes' novel, "Lena Rivers," with an excellent cast

Manager Nally recommends the company as strictly first class (the only kind he will open his new theatre for) and makes this guarantee: That any one not pleased with "Lena Rivers" when the show is over can have their money back.

"Lena Rivers" is without doubt one of the best comedy-dramss on the road, and is full of fun. The book is the most popular novel ever written and the play follows the lines of the novel producing all the dramatic and comedy scenes of the book, making the same real as life. Don't fail to see one, if not the best attraction ever in Oakland.

Seats on sale at Harned's Drug Store.

Engine Over Bank.

While the "pick-up" on last Friday morning was placing a car of coal on the spur switch at Everett's tunnel, above Piedmont, for use of the contractors removing the tunnel roof, in some manner the brakes on the engine and car refused to hold on the steep incline, and the car and engine began to slip and run back down the mountain. Seeing it was useless to remain aboard, as the car and engine were increasing in momentum, the crew jumped to safety and the car and engine ran off the track and down the mountain side a distance of nearly 75 yards to the Savage river bed and turned over. The car of coal was demolished and the engine lies badly wrecked buried in the mud. It will entail a great deal of time and work to recover the locomotive, which was a "snapper" of the 1800 class.

BOLDEN, BROWN & WEIMER

We think we have the Biggest and Best line of Clothing to be found in the County, consisting of the Famous Snellenburg Line and several other good makes.

The NORFOLK, JUNIOR

For the Little Fellows

is the proper thing and we have lots of them at prices to suit.

FOR LARGER BOYS

We have a big line of Knickerbocker suits in a large variety of patterns.

FOR YOUNG

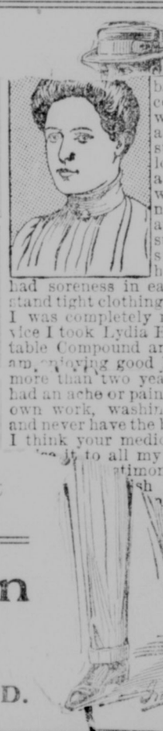
We have ever see before

Big Lin

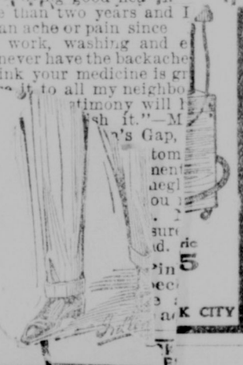
middle aged and o

Priced as

as is consistent with finest merchandise.



bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me and I would ha such dragging s sations I co: hardly bear it had soreness in each side, coul stand tight clothing, and was irr I was completely run down. vice I took Lydia E. Pinkha table Compound and Liver am enjoying good health. more than two years and I had an ache or pain since own work, washing and e and never have the backache I think your medicine is g to all my neighbo timony will h sh it."—M 's Gap,



K CITY

Bolden, Brown & Weimer

OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Garthright & Harvey

Maple Sugar and Syrup

Do you remember what we said about MAPLE SUGAR and Syrup last week? We want another ton of SUGAR and 500 gallons of SYRUP. It will be to your interest to get our price before you sell.

Potatoes

We have sold all the Potatoes we dought last fall and we can now use some nice, large Potatoes, for which we will pay the market price.

Junk

We have accepted an order for 5 cars of OLD IRON, BRASS, COPPER and GUM. It will pay you to gather it up. We will pay you a good price for it.

Flour

MASTERPIECE is sure to become the leading FLOUR in this section.

WHY?

Because every sack is guaranteed.

Garthright & Harvey,

MT. LAKE PARK, MD.

DIXON & KELSO

FOR RENT.

The Green Property

Located on Main Street.

Contains 12 good rooms, is plumbed with gas, has steam heating plant, three big lots with large garden.

Big stable and plenty nice shade.

An Ideal Summer Home.

Apply to

DIXON & KELSO,

Oakland, Maryland.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

Next June we all may long for the balmy days of January.

Possibly the pet in the cat show would enjoy more keenly life in the alley.

Some people can find a typographical error who never find an idea of their own.

We have yet to discover an egg that has been improved by the cold storage treatment.

"Gaseous imbecility" has taken its place in the hall of fame beside "Inocuous desuetude."

Higher education, too, has its dangers. An Illinois girl started for college, but got married on the way.

Chicago is to have grand opera in English next season. If Chief Steward has his way it will also have it in clothing.

In the Boston high schools 3,000 girls are taking the commercial course. The boys will have to go west or south.

A Denver surgeon was stricken with appendicitis while operating on a patient for that disease. Maybe it is catching, after all.

That Jersey architect who failed to provide a stairway for a new schoolhouse must have realized that this is the age of aviation.

Three and a half billions was the value of the foreign trade of the United States last year. Pretty big country this, isn't it?

Russia affords a big market for American typewriters. To judge from the cartoons we see, Russia is not a big market for American safety razors.

There is a powerful movement in periences those crises gave us. Great pain warns us. A wounded dog holds up its foot and so keeps out the dirt. Pain told it to do that.

The cross of Christ sheds the strongest light on the mysteries of pain. Jesus never seemed to be perplexed at the existence of pain. How great a part of his ministry consisted in banishing pain, yet Jesus and Christianity have done much to increase the pain of the world. Gethsemane and Calvary show us that in our lives as well as his the best and truest in human life comes from pain. The cross is the appeal of suffering.

The vicarious suffering of Christ is said to conflict with our sense of justice. It does not do it. We interpret it by the old view of theology, but rightly viewed it is the climax and complete expiratic— to which we owe definitely decided our race. We insane. This may vicarious su it seems as though a litishment. that sort of insanity deepest and Europe any. there were suffering t ion of wearing tight was saved. padless coats comes into Pain is li we know a great many Pain is unn brawny men who will and banish fully in appearance. and "God ders of newspapers have their eyes the meaning of those oftdeath, nei' neither sh words found at the end of for the disappearance stories: away." s have been assigned to the

Toda rate the Chicago woman who for gro rode all night on street cars edge o cuse for persons who are spiritu to stay out until the wee sma' the ho chanc

Chris ew York woman says she lost his n spect for her husband when she that him with five aces in his hand. this perfectly right. A man who to al himself to be caught that way this ves no respect. thir

Thi that Buffalo man who would not div up a counterfeit bill to an agent mo he government were to get the nit penalty of $100 and a year's imit onment he might think he had mitted some real crime. ne

We have it from a German ecoe nist that American women will n be forced to labor on farms like en. Here we have an outlet for le surplus energy of those fair damsels who seek "careers" in preference husbands.

A post-mortem examination of a Missouri lady who had a mania for heavy diet resulted in the discovery of 1,446 separate articles of hardware in her little inside. If there is any truth in theosophy the lady was either a goat or an ostrich in her previous existence.

Most of those who tell about rearing a family and saving money on $1,000 a year do not have to and hence are better able to theorize in the abstract.

A florist in New Jersey turns his hennery into a summer garden with all sorts of flowers and is getting eggs of delicate flavor and various tints, violet, rose and carnation flavors being in the lead. A hen garden of this kind might be a handsome and useful addition to a combination clubhouse for the Ananias members and the nature fakers.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl, whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip. Blakeley learns that a man named Sullivan leaped from the train near M——— and sprained his ankle. He stayed some time at the Carter place. While making inquiries at Carter's, Blakeley finds Alison and kisses her. Mrs. Conway, the woman for whom Blakeley bought the Pullman ticket, tries to make a bargain with him for the forged notes, not knowing that they are missing.

CHAPTER XXI.

McKnight's Theory.

I confess I was staggered. The people at the surrounding tables, after glancing curiously in my direction, looked away again.

I got my hat and went out in a very uncomfortable frame of mind. That she would inform the police at once of what she knew I never doubted, unless possibly she would give a day or two's grace in the hope that I would ma—ge my mind.

to sa—— the situation as I waited took a little trouble—sed me going in edge on the subject and on the first fects of alcohol on th—is hat over his tried to pass the kn— looking moodily

That people often—gination? or was ness to listen to anglied in the corner ject seems to prove—tchkiss? moderate inculgenc— on I found myself taken a hold upon—little man was for shrink from castin—terrier, ever on the learned to like it, a—about in every narcotising powers of doing without it—at the Incubator, one. They are the—orking with enthu the momentary e—icure ——over the its ultimate co— large num—worst born—ever ran taken this—groaned, without looking ject, ha—I came in. "The blankety-alcoho—hing won't blow."

—xce—punched it savagely, finally elicit—g a faint throaty croak.

"Sounds like croup," I suggested. "My sister-in-law uses camphor and goose grease for it; or how about a spice poultice?"

But McKnight never sees any jokes but his own. He flung the horn clattering into a corner and collapsed sulkily into a chair.

"Now," I said, "if you're through manicuring that horn, I'll tell you about my talk with the lady in black."

"What's wrong?" asked McKnight, languidly. "Police watching her, too?"

"Not exactly. The fact is, Rich, there's the mischief to pay."

Stogie came in, bringing a few additions to our comfort. When he went out I told my story.

"You must remember," I said, "that I had seen this woman before the morning of the wreck. She was buying her Pullman ticket when I did. Then the next morning, when the murder was discovered, she grew hysterical and I gave her some whisky. The third and last time I saw her, until to-night, was when she crouched beside the road, after the wreck."

McKnight slid down in his chair until his weight rested on the small of his back and put his feet on the big reading table.

"It's rather a facer," he said. "It's really too good a situation for a commonplace lawyer. It ought to be dramatized. You can't agree, of course; and by refusing you run the chance of jail, at least, and of having Alison brought into publicity, which is out of the question. You say she was at the Pullman window when you were?"

"Yes; I bought her ticket for her. Gave her lower eleven."

"And you took ten?"

"Lower ten."

McKnight straightened up and looked at me.

"Then she thought you were in lower ten."

"I suppose she did, if she thought at all."

"But listen, man." McKnight was growing excited. "What do you figure out of this? The Conway woman knows you have taken the notes to Pittsburg. The probabilities are that she follows you there, on the chance of an opportunity to get them, either for Bronson or herself.

"Nothing doing during the trip over or during the day in Pittsburg; but she learns the number of your berth as you buy it at the Pullman ticket office in Pittsburg and she thinks she sees her chance. No one could have foreseen that that drunken fellow would have crawled into your berth.

"Now, I figure it out this way: She wanted those notes desperately—does still—not for Bronson, but to hold over his head for some purpose. In the night, when everything is quiet, she slips behind the curtains of lower ten, where the man's breathing shows he is asleep. Didn't you say he snored?"

"He did," I affirmed. "But I tell you—"

"Now keep still and listen. She gropes cautiously around in the darkness, finally discovering the wallet under the pillow. Can't you see it yourself?"

He was leaning forward, excitedly, and I could almost see the grewsome tragedy he was depicting.

"She draws out the wallet. Then, perhaps she remembers the alligator bag and on the possibility that the notes are there, instead of in the pocketbook, she gropes around for it. Suddenly, the man awakes and clutches at the nearest object, perhaps her neck chain, which breaks.

"It is all in silence; the man is still stupidly drunk. But he holds her in a tight grip. Then the tragedy. She must get away; in a minute the car will be aroused. Such a woman, on such an errand, does not go without some sort of a weapon, in this case a dagger, which, unlike a revolver, is noiseless.

"With a quick thrust—she's a big woman and a bold one—she strikes. Possibly Hotchkiss is right about the left-hand blow. Harrington may have held her right hand, or perhaps she held the dirk in her left hand as she groped with her right. Then, as the man falls back and his grasp relaxes, she straightens and attempts to get away. The swaying of the car throws her almost into your berth, and, trembling with terror, she crouches behind the curtains of lower ten until everything is still. Then she goes noiselessly back to her berth."

I nodded.

"It seems to fit partly, at least," I said. "In the morning when she found that the crime had been not only fruitless, but that she had searched the wrong berth and killed the wrong man; when she saw me emerge, unhurt, just as she was bracing herself for the discovery of my dead body, then she went into hysterics. You remember, I gave her some whisky.

"It really seems a tenable theory. But, like the Sullivan theory, there are one or two things that don't agree with the rest. For one thing, how did the remainder of that chain get into Alison West's possession?"

"She may have picked it up on the floor."

"We'll admit that," I said; "and I'm sure I hope so. Then how did the murdered man's pocketbook get into the sealskin bag? And the dirk, how account for that, and the blood stains?"

"Now what's the use," asked McKnight aggrievedly, "of my building up beautiful theories for you to pull down? We'll take it to Hotchkiss. Maybe he can tell from the blood stains if the murderer's finger nails were square or pointed."

"Hotchkiss is no fool," I said warmly. "Under all his theories there's a good, hard layer of common sense. And we must remember, Rich, that neither of our theories includes the woman at Doctor Van Kirk's hospital, that the charming picture you have just drawn does not account for Alison West's connection with the case, or for the bits of telegram in the Sullivan fellow's pajamas pocket. You are like the man who put the clock together; you've got half of the works left over."

"Oh, go home," said McKnight, disgustedly. "I'm no Edgar Allan Poe. What's the use of coming here and asking me things if you're so particular?"

With one of his quick changes of mood he picked up his guitar.

"Listen to this," he said. "It is a Hawaiian song about a fat lady, oh, ignorant one! and how she fell off her mule."

But for all the lightness of the words, the voice that followed me down the stairs was anything but cheery.

There was a Kanaka in Balu did dwell,
Who had for his daughter a monstrous fat girl—

he sang in a clear tenor. I paused on the lower floor and listened. He had stopped singing as abruptly as he had begun.

CHAPTER XXII.

At the Boarding House.

I had not been home for 36 hours, since the morning of the preceding day. Johnson was not in sight and I let myself in quietly with my latchkey. It was almost midnight and I had hardly settled myself in the library when the bell rang and I was surprised to find Hotchkiss, much out of breath, in the vestibule.

"Why, come in, Mr. Hotchkiss," I said. "I thought you were going home to go to bed."

"So I was, so I was." He dropped into a chair beside my reading lamp and mopped his face. "And here it is almost midnight and I'm wider awake than ever. I've seen Sullivan, Mr. Blakeley."

"You have!"

"I have," he said, impressively.

"You were following Bronson at eight o'clock. Was that when it happened?"

"Something of the sort. When I left you at the door of the restaurant I turned and almost ran into a plain-clothes man from the central office. I know him pretty well; once or twice he has taken me with him on interesting bits of work. He knows my hobby.

"You know him, too, probably. It was the man Arnold, the detective whom the state's attorney has had watching Bronson."

Johnson being otherwise occupied, I had asked for Arnold myself.

I nodded.

"Well, he stopped me at once; said he'd been on the fellow's tracks since early morning and had had no time for luncheon. Bronson, it seems, isn't eating much these days. I at once jotted down the fact, because it argued that he was being bothered by the man with the notes."

"It might point to other things," I suggested. "Indigestion, you know."

Hotchkiss ignored me. "Well, Arnold had some reason for thinking that Bronson would try to give him the slip that night, so he asked me to stay around the private entrance there while he ran across the street and get something to eat. It seemed a fair presumption that, as he had gone there with a lady they would dine leisurely and Arnold would have plenty of time to get back."

"What about your own dinner?" I asked, curiously.

"Sir," he said, pompously, "I have given you a wrong estimate of Wilson Budd Hotchkiss if you think that a question of dinner would even obtrude itself on his mind at such a time as this."

He was a frail little man and tonight he looked pale with heat and over-exertion.

"Did you have any luncheon?" I asked.

"Suddenly the Man Awakes and Clutches at the Nearest Object."

He was somewhat embarrassed at that.

"I—really, Mr. Blakeley, the events of the day were so engrossing—"

"Well," I said, "I'm not going to see you drop on the floor from exhaustion. Just wait a minute."

I went back to the pantry, only to be confronted with rows of locked doors and empty dishes. Downstairs, in the basement kitchen, however, I found two unattractive looking cold chops, some dry bread and a piece of cake, wrapped in a napkin, and from its surreptitious and generally hangdog appearance destined for the coachman in the stable at the rear. Trays there were none—everything but the chairs and tables seemed under lock and key and there was neither napkin, knife nor fork to be found.

The luncheon was not attractive in appearance, but Hotchkiss ate his cold chops and gnawed at his crusts as though he had been famished, while he told his story.

"I had been there only a few minutes," he said, with a chop in one hand and the cake in the other, "when Bronson rushed out and cut across the street. He's a tall man, Mr. Blakeley, and I had hard work keeping close. It was a relief when he jumped on a passing car, although being well behind, it was a hard run for me to catch him. He had left the lady.

"Once on the car, we simply rode from one end of the line to the other and back again. I suppose he was passing the time, for he looked at his watch now and then and when I did once get a look at his face it made me—er—uncomfortable. He could have crushed me like a fly, sir."

I had brought Mr. Hotchkiss a glass of wine and he was looking better. He stopped to finish it, declining with a wave of his hand to have it refilled, and continued:

"About nine o'clock or a little later he got off somewhere near Washington circle. He went along one of the residence streets there, turned to his left a square or two, and rang a bell. He had been admitted when I got there, but I guessed from the appearance of the place that it was a boarding house.

"I waited a few minutes and rang the bell. When a maid answered it, I asked for Mr. Sullivan. Of course there was no Mr. Sullivan there.

"I said I was sorry; that the man I was looking for was a new boarder. She was sure there was no such boarder in the house; the only new arrival was a man on the third floor—she thought his name was Stuart.

"'My friend has a cousin by that name,' I said. 'I'll go up and see.'

"She wanted to show me up, but I said it was unnecessary. So after telling me it was the bedroom and sitting-room on the third floor front, I went up.

"I met a couple of men on the stairs, but neither of them paid any attention to me. A boarding house is the easiest place in the world to enter."

"They're not always so easy to leave," I put in, to his evident irritation.

"When I got to the third story I took out a bunch of keys and posted myself by a door near the ones the girl had indicated. I could hear voices in one of the front rooms, but could not understand what they said.

"There was no violent dispute, but a steady hum. Then Bronson jerked the door open. If he had stepped into the hall he would have seen me fitting a key into the door before me. But he spoke before he came out.

"'You're acting like a maniac,' he said. 'You know I can get those things some way; I'm not going to threaten you. It isn't necessary. You know me.'

"'It would be no use,' the other man said. 'I tell you I haven't seen the notes for ten days.'

"'But you will,' Bronson said, savagely. 'You're standing in your own way, that's all. If you're holding out expecting me to raise my figure you're making a mistake. It's my last offer.'

"'I couldn't take it if it was for a million,' said the man inside the room. 'I'd do it, I expect, if I could. The best of us have our price.'

"Bronson slammed the door then and flung past me down the hall.

"After a couple of minutes I knocked at the door and a tall man about your size, Mr. Blakeley, opened it. He was very blond, with a smooth face and blue eyes—what I think you would call a handsome man.

"'I beg your pardon for disturbing you,' I said. 'Can you tell me which is Mr. Johnson's room? Mr. Francis Johnson?'

"'I cannot say,' he answered, civilly. 'I've only been here a few days.'

"I thanked him and left, but I had had a good look at him and I think I'd know him readily any place."

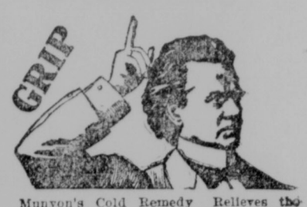
(TO BE CONTINUED.)

A High Jumper.

Horseban—You don't mean to say you came off at that bit of a fence?

Recumbent Friend—Fence? Great Scott, man, no! I caught in the telegraph wires.—Tit-Bits.

COLDS



Munyon's Cold Remedy Relieves the head, throat and lungs almost immediately. Checks Fevers, stops Discharges of the nose, takes away all aches and pains caused by colds. It cures Grip and obstinate Coughs and prevents Pneumonia. Write Prof. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa., for medical advice absolutely free.

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whetzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHETZEL, M. D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress after Eating.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA

Remedy for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. Write for FREE SAMPLE. NORTHROP & LYMAN CO. Ltd., BUFFALO, N.Y.

Ellen Terry's Joke.

When Ellen Terry was presented with a Founders' gold medal at the New theater, New York, recently—an honor conferred in recognition of her great services to dramatic art—she was asked soon to make a speech of acceptance. It so happened that the actress was exceedingly hoarse and she was therefore forced to cut her remarks short. So she told this story: "A friend of mine once bought a parrot and gave much money for it with the understanding that it could speak fluently, but when he reached home with it he found to his dismay that the bird was dumb. So he took it back. 'This parrot cannot say a word,' he said indignantly to the bird fancier. 'It can't talk at all.' 'Talk!' the dealer exclaimed. 'Come to think of it, I know it can't, but it's a devil to think.'"

Successful Life Work.

"He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others, and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration; whose memory a benediction."—President Schurman.

CHILDREN AFFECTED
By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes.

The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach.

"The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk. I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So, I quit coffee and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk.

"My husband then quit coffee and used Postum and quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach.

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

"There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

God Uses Pain to Refine Humanity

By DR. HAROLD PATTISON
Pastor of First Baptist Church, St. Paul, Minn.

The problem in Job's time was, why do the righteous suffer? but the problem in our day has broadened to why should there be any suffering at all? As we have stood near the bedside of some dear one whom we could not bear to see suffer, we have wondered how God could stand it. Personally, I do not believe that God is a being that goes about shattering our homes or breaking our hearts. It is thought that he permits such things, but it may well be said that God cannot still be good and make exceptions, here and there in the workings of the great laws of the universe, that were to put irregularities in the place of uniformity, to introduce anarchy and make confusion worse confounded. We are to remember, too, that we are inclined to mistake the part for the whole, and in the matter of pain our standard of measurement is apt to be false. The actual amount of pain in the world is only as great as that borne by any single human being.

A partial answer to this problem is found in the present uses of pain. Pain may be a punishment, but not always, for pain would seem quite as often a punishment for weakness as for wickedness. Great pain purifies. As the psalmist says: "It was good for me that I was afflicted."

Pain is power. Pain stimulates us to do our best. It is a goad and spur that discovers our best paces. We often say we learn by experience, but if we stop to think of it the experiences to which we refer are mostly painful. It takes fire to temper steel and the sword blade never yet took and held its temper without it. A California apple is large and beautiful, but tasteless like cork; it needs the frost of New England to ripen the Baldwin and pippin. We none of us want to live over again the difficult crises of our lives, yet not one of us would be willing to part with the experiences those crises gave us. Great pain warns us. A wounded dog holds up its foot and so keeps out the dirt. Pain told it to do that.

The cross of Christ sheds the strongest light on the mysteries of pain. Jesus never seemed to be perplexed at the existence of pain. How great a part of his ministry consisted in banishing pain, yet Jesus and Christianity have done much to increase the pain of the world. Gethsemane and Calvary show us that in our lives as well as his the best and truest in human life comes from pain. The cross is the appeal of suffering.

The vicarious suffering of Christ is said to conflict with our sense of justice. It does not do it. We interpret it by the old view of theology, but rightly viewed it is the climax and complete expiration of the forces to which we owe entire evolution of our race. We must not confuse vicarious suffering with vicarious punishment. When life is seen at its deepest and truest it seems as though there were nothing else but vicarious suffering through which the world was saved.

Pain is incidental. It does not last. Pain is unnatural. Jesus came to heal and banish it. Pain is not eternal, and "God shall wipe all tears from their eyes and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crime, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away."

New Opportunities.

Today we all face new opportunities for growth in grace and in the knowledge of Christ. It is only the man of spiritual pride that will not feel that the hours offer to him a new spiritual chance—a chance to be more like Christ when the sun goes down upon his newly dawned day. It must be that we fail to see the significance of this line of mercies so freely offered to all men. Each morning comes with this invitation: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters." This is simply the call to accept the divine mercies of character. Every morning is alive with that opportunity. If we do not see these mercies it is because we are spiritually blind. What unconquered regions of kindness lie before our souls! What unexplored fields of divine benevolence! What untried paths of consecration! These are the possibilities that God sets before us now. Tomorrow morning should see us setting out on the stubborn and courageous march toward our ideal. The height and breadth and depth of the love of God in Christ give us an ambition equal to the efforts of an eternity.

Pain.

Pain is actually a mental perception of nerve pressure, and your perception of it may be altogether dispelled by some sudden demand on your attention, and you may forget all about the pain—in other words, it is often true that pain depends on the amount of attention you are willing to give to the nerve pressure record. —Rev. S. N. Watson, Episcopalian, Akron, Ohio.

Man's Companion.

Woman wa smeant to be man's companion. If this idea were carried out there would be no affinities.—Rev. Lyman Abbott, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Temperance

WOMAN'S APPEAL TO WOMEN

Her Influence Is Great in Molding Child's Character for Good or Ill —Do Something.

So few of our well-to-do women seem to realize how greatly intemperance is increasing in their own ranks. Most of them can say that they know one case of a lady who takes more alcohol than is good for her, but they believe this is almost a solitary case, and that the habit cannot be at all usual. The writer can say that in the course of five days, from different sources, she heard of four cases in the town in which she lives, all of whom were far removed from the working classes, and two of them were moving in good society, says a writer in Temperance. One had appeared at a party in a state of intoxication, with her husband in the same condition; they were people who were in good circumstances. Another of the four, while in an intoxicated condition, fell over her little girl of three years and broke the child's leg and otherwise injured her. In the same place, two ladies (married women), near neighbors, put an end to their lives through the effect of alcohol on their brains; further, three ladies, living in houses of high rent in the same town, close together, were known to have died from the effects of strong drink. There are many, very many, who are not what they might and ought to be, because the alcoholic drink which they take, though it does not apparently intoxicate them, is undermining their physical, their mental, and their nervous power. The writer has often been told: "I am obliged to take alcohol for my health's sake; I cannot get on without it; I tried more than once three months, and had to take it again." A lady doctor said, when addressing a meeting recently, that three months was no test; at the end of six or nine months people would feel the benefit of abstaining, and would find that they could do well without stimulants. We women could do so much to save those of our own class, if we took a little trouble to get more knowledge on the subject of the evil effects of alcohol on the body, and then tried to pass the knowledge on.

That people often show unwillingness to listen to anything on this subject seems to prove that even a most moderate indulgence in alcohol has taken a hold upon them which they shrink from casting off. They have learned to like it, and to depend on its narcotising powers, and the thought of doing without it is not a pleasant one. They are the more concerned with the momentary enjoyment than with its ultimate consequences. A very large number of doctors, who have taken the trouble to study the subject, have come to the conclusion that alcohol does mischief and not good, except in extreme cases, when used as a drug. They say that mothers who take it not only injure themselves, but also their unborn babes, and go on to do still more harm to them if taking alcohol when nursing them. Many will say that they doubt this, for they have brought up children and nursed them on stout, and they are healthy and not inebriates. This may be true, but the doctors tell us that though stout increases the flow of milk, the quality is impoverished.

A study of the subject could not but convince anyone wishing to do the best for their babies that they would be wise to leave alcohol alone. But, apart from yourselves and your children, have you any care for, or duty to, those who are falling into intemperate ways around you? Cannot you, by example and by helping to form public opinion on the matter, do something to stem the tide of female intemperance? How will it be by-and-by, when the Judge of all asks you, "What did you do to stop the evil?" Will the reply have to be, "I liked it, and was not unselfish enough to give it up in order to help a sister?" May I tell you that it is an unselfishness which brings its own reward in better health, better nerves, better brain power, and a consciousness that you are doing right?

I could point out to you that your influence on the side of temperance is great, the greatest influence there is, for it is you who are closely related to those men who fill high positions, as statesmen, clergy, doctors; it is you who give the first impressions of right or wrong to the child and mold its character for good or ill, and it is these impressions lasting through life which affect the nation.

Christian women, I call upon you to search into the matter, and on your knees ask to be shown your duty. It is a great work, and educated women can do more than anyone else to help it on. Do not let anyone say, "It does not matter what I do." If each one said that nothing would ever be done. There is something that each one is meant to do, that can be done by no one else. See to it that you take your part in the great whole, and you will not be without your reward.

Government Encourages Temperance.

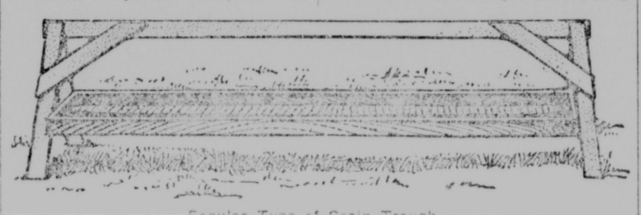
The Army Temperance association of England is allowed £500 by the government toward its working expenses. The secretary of state for war in his speech on the estimates paid a well-deserved tribute of praise to the excellent results which have followed the operations of this association both at home and abroad.

SELF-FEEDERS SAVE HAY AND CONSIDERABLE LABOR

According to Tests Made at Colorado Experiment Station Fully 20 Per Cent. of Feed Is Wasted by Old Method of Feeding.

Self-feeder racks for supplying roughage to sheep or cattle are not only the means of saving considerable labor, but, according to tests made at the Colorado experiment station, are the means of saving a great deal of hay. One lot of lambs at this station were fed whole hay in a self-feeder rack and another lot whole hay in racks on the ground, such as are in common use in many sections of the country. The average gain of these two lots was practically the same, the lot feeding from the self-feeder averaging only one pound heavier than the others, says the American Agriculturist. Also, the grain consumed varied but little, being only nine pounds more for a 100-pound gain in the first lot than in the second. The great saving came in the cost of roughage.

The lot eating from the self-feeder consumed 601 pounds of hay for each 100 pounds of gain and those eating off the ground consumed 733 pounds of hay for each 100 pounds of gain. This indicates a difference of practically 20 per cent. in favor of the self-feeder racks. It makes a difference of 42 cents in the cost securing each 100 pounds of grain. These results were secured on alfalfa valued at $5 per ton. With a higher price the difference would be correspondingly greater.



Popular Type of Grain Trough.

These self-feeding racks cost $1 per running foot completed. They had the ordinary capacity of four lambs per running foot, two on each side, not so much space being required at a self-feeder as at an ordinary rack, since all the lambs will not eat at one time. As already stated, the saving in this one experiment amounted to 42 cents per 100 pounds of gain. This is equal to about 14 cents on each lamb. Counting four lambs per running foot, this would make a saving on one season's operations of 56 cents. In other words, the rack would pay for itself in two years. It is thought that when a type of self-feeder is developed for handling chopped hay better results may be secured from it than have hitherto been possible, by reducing the waste caused by wind.

RUSSIA GAINS IN FARMING

Prevailing Impression That Little Progress Is Made in That Country Is Erroneous—Series of Readings Gratis.

(By J. B. SNODGRASS.)

The impression generally prevails that, although Russia is most generously favored by nature, little progress is being made in agriculture. This is erroneous.

As an illustration of the interest that is being manifested along these lines, and as indicative of the progressive policy that has been adopted and is now being pursued, it may be cited that the Imperial Agricultural museum, in its endeavor to popularize the study of agricultural subjects, has for the last few years conducted gratis, at the museum in St. Petersburg, a series of systematic readings on agriculture for the benfit of everyone interested. In addition to this course, popular lectures are delivered and special readings conducted for men in the lower ranks of the army.

In the experimental department of the museum the taking apart and putting together of various machinery is demonstrated by trained mechanics. Agricultural machinery in motion is also demonstrated and the use of agricultural implements is explained; experiments are also made with all classes of farm machinery, such as locomobiles, winnowers, sorters, and the like. In separate departments are demonstrated the fertilization of the fish spawn and the development of the chicken in the incubator.

The attendance at these lectures has been uninterruptedly increasing from year to year. For the past four years the attendance has been: 5,093, 17,808, 32,442, 60,346; showing great increase.

The lectures are delivered in the evening from seven to nine and on Sunday from two to three p. m. The practical work and excursions are conducted by prearrangements between the lecturers and the students, such as trips to exhibitions and farm in the suburbs, and even to stockyards and slaughter houses.

Likewise the special classes pass through practically everything pertaining to plant culture, stock raising, poultry raising, bee culture and dairy farming, with all that pertains to the latter, such as butter and cheese making.

In the present scholastic season the courses of the systematic lectures will embrace the following academic subjects: Elementary chemistry, elementary anatomy, physiology of plants, improvement and cultivation of the soil, agricultural meteorology, agricultural economy, seeds, agricultural implements, cattle raising, swine raising, etc.

On Sundays it is intended to conduct popular public readings and lectures on a variety of agricultural subjects.

Feed for Lambs.

The Wyoming experiment station, after repeated trials, concludes that corn and the bearded or Scotch barley, when fed with alfalfa, were about equal in value for mutton production. Barley in this test proved to be a shade the better. Twenty-seven per cent. less alfalfa and 28 per cent. less grain were required where barley replaced either in a ration. Grade lambs with mutton sires made greater gains, conditions being similar, than did Rambouillet lambs, though a record of food consumption for each class was not kept.

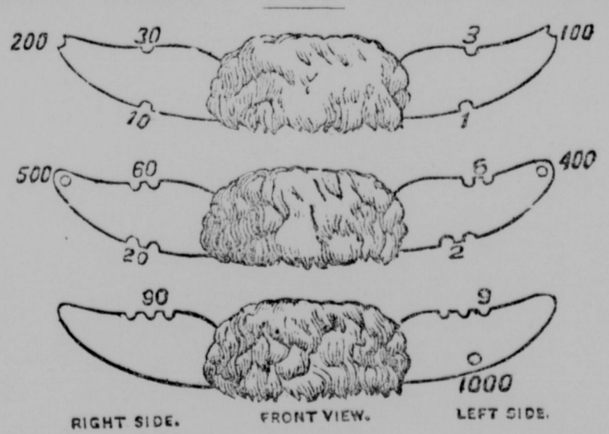
Draft Horses.

Draft horses are suitable for raising on level land, while lighter horses and mules are best adapted to hilly farms. Horses designed for the saddle and road use will develop activity and stamina on rough and hilly pasture land while they are young.

Litter for Scratching.

Every month during the winter season the poultry buildings should be well supplied with clean straw, leaves or litter of some kind into which the feed is thrown in the morning to keep the hens busy.

EAR MARKS FOR LIVE STOCK



For the numbering of polled cattle, sheep or swine to make identification sure the marking of the ear is the most satisfactory method. A system of this sort is necessary in keeping a record of registered stock. The key to the numbering is as follows:

A notch in bottom of left ear equals 1; two notches equal 2.

A notch in top of left ear equals 3; two notches, 6; three notches, 9.

A notch in bottom of right ear equals 10; two notches equal 20.

A notch in top of right ear equals 30; two notches, 60; three notches, 90.

A notch in end of left ear equals 100.

A notch in end of right ear equals 200.

A hole on end of left ear equals 400.

A hole in end of right ear equals 500.

A hole in bottom of left ear equals 1,000.

A BOON TO HUMANITY

If the Curative Virtue of Resinol Was Generally Known It Would Be Used Exclusively for the Cure of All Skin Diseases.

A grateful user writes from England as follows: "Please accept my heartfelt thanks for bringing out Resinol Ointment. Having been a sufferer for the past four years from that dreadful disease, weeping Eczema, I can now heartily recommend this great remedy for it has cured me as nothing else could. My condition was most distressing: nearly everything I ate made me worse. Since I was advised to use Resinol I have gained a new life, so to say. Surely there are thousands of suffering people who ought to know of Resinol Ointment and Soap. I certainly recommend everybody to keep a jar of this salve at hand. Gratefully yours, Lee Carter, Rutland Hall." Resinol is a skillfully made ointment with almost magical healing and soothing qualities. It is universally recommended for the relief and cure of Eczema, Herpes, Tinea, Barber's Itch, Acne, Eruption from Poison Ivy, Burns, Sores and abrasions of the skin of any kind. Itching Piles and other distressing irritations are relieved instantly by applying this salve. Resinol Ointment is sold by druggists everywhere. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

NOT UNUSUAL.

"I saw a pianist last night who can play with his toes."

"Umph!—I've got a kid 18 months old can do that!"

ALFALFA CLOVER.

Salzer's strain of hardy, luxuriant Alfalfa Clover grows everywhere and brings from two to five rousing crops annually. It's the vigorous, healthy kind planted by Ex-Gov. Hoard of Wisconsin and thousands of other successful farmers throughout the U. S. We are the largest growers of clovers, grasses, seed oats, wheat, rye, barley, potatoes, etc., in America.

For 10c in stamps we mail you:
1 Pkt. Luxuriant hardy Alfalfa Clover.
1 Pkt. Billion $ Grass—the 10 Ton wonder.
1 Pkt. Silver King Barley—173 Bu per A.
1 Pkt. Bonanza Oats—Sworn yield 259 Bu. per A, winning 4 Farms in 1910.
1 Pkt. Speltz—the cereal hay marvel.

And 5 other packages farm seed novelties or rarities, together with our big catalog, bristling with seed truths all for but 10c in stamps, or send 25c and we add a big package famous French bean coffee! John A. Salzer Seed Co., 182 South 8th St., La Crosse, Wis.

Not a Lucrative Job.

Friend: "So your friend has left college. What is he in?"

Paterfamilias: "Debt."

USE ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE
the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes your feet feel easy and comfortable and makes walking a delight. Sold everywhere, 25c. Accept no substitutes. For free trial package, address Allen S. Olmstead, LeRoy, N. Y.

It is possible to have too much of a good thing. The dog with the shortest tail runs the least danger of having tin cans tied to it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny, granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

With all our doing things for people they need most our being mean to them.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Sympathy sometimes means sitting in a ar and passing out soft words to lame folk.

Druggists everywhere sell Garfield Tea, the Herb laxative. It acts as a gentle aid to Nature.

A woman always fears she won't be in time for the bargain sale.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS

Are Often Responsible for Untold Suffering.

Mrs. August Wittenberg, 1083 Hopkins St., Milwaukee, Wis., says: "Kidney trouble came on me almost before I was aware of it. There was a constant inclination for the kidneys to act and the secretions were accompanied by burning and scalding. The headaches and giddy feelings that oppressed me were almost unbearable and life soon lost all interest. Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention at that critical time and I used them faithfully until entirely cured."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The strongest symptom of wisdom in man is his being sensible of his own follies.—Rochefoucauld.

ONLY ONE "BROMO QUININE."
That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Some men will do anything for the sake of a little newspaper notoriety.

Garfield Tea is the best remedy for constipation. Take a cup before retiring.

Intervention in love is equivalent to a declaration of war.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I was enjoying good health, more than two years and I have had an ache or pain since. I do my own work, washing and ironing, and never have the backache. I think your medicine is grand and praise it to all my neighbors. You think my testimony will help you may publish it."—Mrs. Woodall, Morton's Gap, Ky.

Backache is a symptom of kidney weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it but get permanent relief you should get at the root of the trouble. The best medicine we know of will do this so surely is Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be opened, read, answered, held confidential, and the advice is FREE.

PARISIAN HAIR RESTORER
Restores and beautifies gray hair, gives a luxuriant growth, stops falling hair, cures dandruff, itching scalp, and makes the hair soft and glossy. 50c and $1.00 at druggists.

Dr. Drops
In Western Canada
Write for Booklet on Homesteads

PISO'S CURE
IS THE NAME OF THE BEST MEDICINE for COUGHS & COLDS

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY YOUNGSTER TRY THIS

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will immediately correct the trouble.

This is not alone our opinion but that of Mrs. N. H. Mead of Freeport, Ill., whose granddaughter has been treated successfully and of Mrs. J. R. Watson of Lena, Wis., who gives it to her children and takes it herself. It is sold by every druggist at fifty cent and one dollar bottles at your nearest drug store, but if you want to test it before your family before you buy it send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will send you a supply free of charge.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Miss Bangs and Miss Whiton's School for Girls

WITHIN EASY ACCESS of all parts of the city, and of the great libraries and museums. Opportunity given for attendance at public entertainments of educational and artistic value.

THOROUGH AND CONSERVATIVE TRAINING, moral, intellectual and physical, with expert supervision in every department, thus insuring definite and certain results.

FACULTY LARGE, each teacher a specialist; and pupils assured the individual attention adapted to their respective needs.

PRIMARY, PREPARATORY AND ACADEMIC DEPARTMENTS; also a unique department known as the UPPER HOUSE, for graduate and special students desiring to spend the winter in New York in a congenial social atmosphere, under the most favorable conditions for culture of social graces and for intelligent advancement. The UPPER HOUSE is in a large degree free from the ordinary restrictions of a school.

BEST ADVANTAGES of New York available for the study of Music, Art, Elocution, Languages and Dancing.

PHYSICAL EXERCISES. Special attention given with the object of promoting health, grace and ease of motion and repose of manner. The gymnastic exercises are in charge of a graduate of Dr. Sargent, of Cambridge, Mass. SUMMER CAMP in New Hampshire.

THE SUCCESS OF THE SCHOOL has been so pronounced that it has received the highest commendation of the leading educators of the country as well as of the highest officials of the U. S. Government; Miss Bangs and Miss Whiton refer by permission to the presidents of ten colleges and universities and to President and Mrs. Taft, Ex-Vice-President and Mrs. Fairbanks, Ex-President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and the Chief Justice.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months..... .75
One copy three months..... .40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1911.

ANOTHER APPROPRIATE SUBJECT FOR DEBATE.

What contributed to the defeat of two-thirds of the Democratic ticket in Oakland Monday. Respectfully referred to "Pro Bono Publico," of the Mountain Democrat.

PENDING the decision of the State Board of Education in the matter of the charges against Ed. A. Browning, which were partially heard here on Thursday, the 2nd inst., THE REPUBLICAN, unlike its esteemed contemporary, the Mountain Democrat, will not presume to take upon itself the duties and responsibilities of the State Board by rendering a decision in the matter in advance of the official verdict of the learned gentlemen composing the State Board. After the decision of that body, however, we shall deem it our privilege to "say our say."

GETTING ALONG IN LIFE

It is better to keep a grip upon one thing than to pass along the line of enterprises seeking to get a place of ease or wealth. A man's mission in the world is to do what the world wants him to do. He has no more right to sit down and plan to be a lawyer, a merchant, a physician, or a financier than he has to seek to establish a government in counter to the one existing. The latter act would be sedition and there is a sedition against destiny that ings many a foolish individual to the k. The down-and-outs, who once ned to be in the swim, are samples wreckage wrought upon those satisfied with doing what the nts them to do, seek to make do what they want it to do.

ld is the bigger, it is the old- e shrewder, it is the more re- It is by all odds the more f the two. The philosophers to say of the world and the So has the defeat column tegory. The world is not a is an appraiser. It is not juggernauting the individual, t quick to give him a chariot er. The world has this to individual, that if he would life it matters not so much all do as that he shall get faculty of getting along is mal capacity. The world lp bring it out. The faculty long is developed by educa- ngthened by the right kind e. The faculty of getting to play common sense, bal- ent and patient forbearance outlook.

people who, when they hear usic, will run a mile to head ession that in ten minutes s the spot where they are This is the kind of action strates energy, demoralizes and warps the will. When it becomes necessary to run the sprint should be breath-taking. ldom happens that to get along e needs to do marathon stunts. s more to plug away and com- spect, to endure the testing out l service. Then he comes to ne thing and to know it well. If e right sort, in coming to know ing he will become at home in hings, for mastery in one direc- plies competency in some others. along in life means to keep one's nd not to flit from thing to thing one becomes nothing. This is a f homely counsel which, if held in , is worth more than a ton of glit- g generalities. It seldom lands into unpleasant notoriety but it gs bread to the table when the rd of the restless mover from place lace is bare.

HAT was a stupenduos effort of the mocrat's correspondent who signed mself "A Spectator," appearing in e last issue of the School Board organ, d apologist Deffinbaugh should certain- be the recipient of hearty congratula- ons upon the discovering one whose ght has been hidden for lo these many ears. As a satyrist "A Spectator" should immediately apply for a position upon the staff of Puck or Judge, the foremost papers of wit and logic published in America. There he could command a salary commensurate with his ability and make a name for himself that would go down in literary history as a bright and lustrous star.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The People are Not Deceived.

To the Editor of The Republican:

I notice in last week's issue of the Mountain Democrat that you had come up misssing since the trial of the great superintendent of our public schools. We surmise, however, that we shall hear more from you and that you will not retire from the editorship of the good old REPUBLICAN but that you will as heretofore stand up for the right.

We suppose that the editor of the Mountain Democrat thinks the school board has scored a great victory by the way he circulated sample copies of his journal last week but let metell you something, Mr. Editor of Mountain Democrat. You cannot pull the wool over the eyes of the people of Garrett county as easy as that.

We happen to know a few facts.

S.

Deer Park, Md., March 11.

A Word in Defense.

To the Editor of the Republican:

As I was not called upon to testify in answer to my summons to the County Superintendent's hearing Thursday, March 2nd, 1911, in my behalf in regard to the injustice of the school officials in awarding the Western Maryland scholarship, I hereby take this means to state a few truths in my defense and let the public generally draw their inference.

An Act of the General Assembly of Maryland enables the Western Maryland College to furnish tuition, board, fuel, light and washing free to two students (one male and one female) from each senatorial district of the state, to be appointed by the school commissioners, by and with the advice and consent of the senators in their respective district, after a competitive examination of the candidates. In order to enable the faculty to carry out fully the intention of the act of the Legislature providing for these scholarships it is highly important that the school commissioners should be careful to appoint students prepared to enter the freshman class.

How are people to know when these places are vacant? Is it not the duty of the Superintendent to publish in the county papers and make known that there are vacant scholarships and set a time for a competitive examination? Was this ever complied with? No.

As I have stated before there was no notice of a vacant scholarship published and no announcement made during the teachers' examination or institute concerning the scholarship, I investigated the matter and found to my surprise that Superintendent Browning had promised it to Miss Kellerly of Grantsville. I at once sought Miss Kellerly's advice and was instructed to write out of the school commissioners, asking them if there was a vacant scholarship to Western Maryland College, how it was obtained, and to consider me an applicant. I received a reply to my letter from Mr. Ellithorp, and all the satisfaction and information he gave me was this, "I think there is a vacancy." Does this look as if Mr. Browning, the superintendent, consults the school commissioners before he uses his authority? Does this not prove that he assumed their responsibilities and decided before they knew anything about the proceedings?

In a speech delivered by Mr. Browning last June at the institute he accused me of daring to go over his head and consult a School Commissioner about a scholarship. And also stated that he had been handed a letter from me to one of the commissioners accusing him of a falsehood concerning the publication of a scholarship. Fortunately I have in my possession the letter in reply and it certainly doesn't read like an answer to a letter accusing our illustrious superintendent of prevericating. Before he had closed his eloquent remarks he owned to the fact that he had promised the scholarship to Miss Keller, of Grantsville. He said, "I happened down in the lower end of the county, and by chance ran across Mr. Keller. He asked me about the scholarship, and I told him as there had been no other applicant his daughter might have it."

Not long after the previous storm, I had a little conversation with the superintendent and he frankly told me I had no right to the scholarship as my brother had had it, and it must be passed around. I presume this was his thought, as he had already promised it. Doesn't this prove the falsity of his statement that Miss Keller received the scholarship through merit and merit alone?

After Mr. Browning had tried every way possible to deprive me of the scholarship he arrived at the conclusion to hold an examinetion in his office, so as to make people believe he was acting fair. When the day arrived upon which the examination was to be held, I went to the school board office and met with a very cool reception. In fact they seemed very much surprised that I had come at all. Mr. Browning at once informed me that it was not necessary for me to take the examination as they were going to give Miss Keller the same list of questions that I had taken at the teachers' examination, omitting my first grade branches. Those present at the examination held in Mr. Browning's office were Miss Keller, her father, Dr. Bartlett and Mr. Browning.

If Miss Keller did received the Western Maryland scholarship through merit and merit alone, as Mr. Browning so declares, she had every opportunity of committing the questions to memory, as they were the same questions that were given at the teachers' examination, and scholarship examination was held two weeks later. And was it not also a pleasant help to Miss Keller to be permitted to have an educated father near her during the examination to soothe her cares and anxieties.

And is it not a fact that the school commissioners should be careful and appoint students prepared to enter the freshman class, so that the faculty could carry out fully the act of the Legislature. They simply ignored the fact that I held in my possession and have at the present time a card signed by Mr. Lewis, the president of the Western Maryland College, entitling me to full membership to the freshman class.

By Mr. Browning remarks he avers there is no comparison between a grade pupil and one who devotes four years in High School work and graduates.

By these few truths any one can readily see that the Western Maryland scholarship was awarded through prejudice and partiality. And more Mr. Browning has robbed me of an education and has given it to one whose parents are financially able to educate her, one who had the opportunity of attending a high school in her own town, and whose age would have permitted her to wait until I had graduated and then have plenty of time to complete her education.

ORPAH ASHBY.

Oakland, Md., March 12, 1911.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF

The First National Bank

AT FRIENDSVILLE,

In the State of Maryland, at the close of business, March 7, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts		$135,516 47
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured		434 92
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		25,000 00
Bonds, Securities, etc		66,847 60
Banking house, Furniture and Fixtures		6,466 01
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)		767 95
Due from approved Reserve Agents		23,925 51
Checks and other Cash Items		176 20
Notes of other National Banks		515 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents		345 54
Lawful Money Reserve in Bank, viz:
Specie	$3,183 50
Legal-tender notes	9,337 00	12,520 50
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)		1,250 00
Total		$273,165 70

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus fund	26,000 00
Undivided Profits, less expenses and taxes paid	4,957 58
National Bank Notes outstanding	25,000 00
Dividends unpaid	15 00
Individual deposits subject to check	82,331 65
Time certificates of deposit	109,861 47
Total	$273,165 70

State of Maryland, County of Garrett.

I, Orval A. Welch, Cashier of the above bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of March, 1911.

R. M. HOLMAN, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest: D. S. CUSTER,
W. W. SAVAGE,
L. E. FRIEND,
Directors.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF

The First National Bank

AT KITZILLERVILLE,

In the State of Maryland, at the close of business, March 7, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts		$80,511 93
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		24,990 00
Premiums on U. S Bonds		550 00
Bonds, Securities, etc		22,962 30
Banking house, Furniture and Fixtures		11,181 10
Other Real Estate owned		400 00
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)		1,192 78
Due from approved Reserve Agents		10,053 34
Checks and other Cash Items		39 65
Notes of other National Banks		1,790 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents		114 46
Lawful Money Reserve in Bank, viz:
Specie	$12,524 60
Legal-tender notes	160 00	12,684 60
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent. of circulation)		1,249 50
Total		$167,719 66

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus fund	9,000 00
Undivided Profits, less Expenses and Taxes paid	828 88
National Bank Notes outstanding	24,990 00
Due to other National Banks	460 13
Due to State and Private Banks and Bankers	30 50
Individual deposits subject to check	107,252 72
Cashier's checks outstanding	157 43
Total	$167,719 66

State of Maryland, County of Garrett.

I, E. J. Hamill, Cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

E. J. HAMILL, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this day 13th day of March, 1911.

SUE R. LAUGHLIN, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest: R. A. SMITH,
WADE SAPP,
S. S. BENDER,
Directors.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF

The Garrett National Bank,

AT OAKLAND,

In the State of Maryland, at the close of business, March 7, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Loan and discounts		$343,955 62
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
Bonds, securities, etc		134,265 00
Banking house, furniture, and fixtures		14,500 00
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)		266 58
Due from State and Private Banks and Bankers		3,127 48
Due from approved Reserve Agents		48,459 38
Checks and other cash items		1,144 82
Notes of other National Banks		1,045 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents		350 00
Lawful Money Reserve in Bank, viz:
Specie	$25,480 55
Legal-tender notes	5,045 00	30,525 55
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent. of circulation)		2,500 00
Total		$630,139 43

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$50,000 00
Surplus fund	45,000 00
Undivided profits, less expenses and taxes paid	6,397 31
National Bank notes outstanding	49,200 00
Due to other National Banks	1,628 60
Due to State and Private Banks aud Bankers	72 19
Due to Trust Companies and Savings Banks	530 38
Dividends unpaid	25 00
Individuals deposits subject to check	266,901 74
Time certificates of deposits	208,821 85
Certified checks	50 00
Cashier's checks outstanding	1,512 36
Total	$630,139 43

State of Maryland, County of Garrett,

I, S. T. Jones, Cashier of the abovenamed bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of March, 1911.

HARLAND L. JONES, Notary Public

Correct—Attest: D. E. OFFUTT,
G. S. HAMILL,
JOHN M. DAVIS,
Directors.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF

The First Natinal Bank,

AT OAKLAND,

In the State of Maryland, at the close of business, March 7, 1911.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts		$200,447 10
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured		299 56
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
U. S. Bonds to secure U. S. Deposits		1,000 00
Premium on U. S. Bonds		1,250 00
Bonds, Securities, etc		16,134 57
Banking house, Furniture and Fixtures		42,997 19
Other real estate owned		3,500 00
Due from National Banks (not reserve agent)		1,103 99
Due from State and Private Banks and Bankers		12 60
Due from approved Reserve Agents		15,936 52
Checks and other cash items		39 43
Notes of other National Banks		1,215 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickel and Cents		237 50
Lawful Money Reserve in Bank, viz:
Specie	$15,825 35
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent. of circulation)		15,825 35 2,500 00
Total		$352,498 81

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$50,000 00
Surplus fund	25,000 00
Undivided Profits, less expenses and taxes paid	1,262 92
National Bank notes outstanding	50,000 00
Due to other National Banks	1,809 49
Due to State and Private Banks and Bankers	103 16
Dividends unpaid	114 00
Individual deposits subject to check	215,768 35
Time certificates of deposit	7,251 49
Certified checks	119 40
Cashier's checks outstanding	70 00
United States deposits	1,000 00
Total	$352,498 81

State of Maryland, County of Garrett.

I, R. E. Sliger, Cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

R. E. SLIGER, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 9th day of March, 1911.

JAMES P. TREACY, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest: E. E. SOLLARS,
F. A. THAYER,
E. H. SINCELL,
Directors.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY,

TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT at company's main Office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED.

The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County.

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after a while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department takes care of your money when waiting other investments. The Money earns Interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.

Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

S. Lawton & Sons

SPACIAL CASH SALE FOR ONE WEEK.

We give S. & H. Green Trading Stamps with all Cash sales of 10c or over.

We are offering this week some extra Bargains in Pocket Knives. Values 50 cents to $1 for 30 cents to 75 cents; by mail 5 cents extra.

Extra Values Saturday in Enameled Ware. Values up to 60 cents on Saturday your choice for 25 cents.

A choice Assortment of Tinware. Values up to 25 cents, your choice Saturday for 10 cents.

Will give double Trading Stamps on Saturday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

ALSO A LARGE LOT OF TIN, GALVANIZED AND GRANITE WARE AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES THIS WEEK; ALSO A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF 5c. & 10c. GOODS. MAIL ORDERS FILLED.

REMEMBER, WE GIVE YOU 10 S. & H. GREEN TRADING STAMPS WITH EACH $1.00 CASH PURCHASE. THESE YOU CAN EXCHANGE FOR VALUABLE PREMIUMS AT THE S. & H. PREMIUM PARLORS.

Yours to please,

S. LAWTON & SONS.

J. B. WILLIAMS CO.
FROSTBURG, MD.
Cheapest place to buy
MONUMENTS
HEADSTONES AND IRON FENCING
Send for prices

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of Instruction leading to professional degree of B. S.

Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Propr

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars

Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$ 50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	50,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt	Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis	George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell	William R. Stull
Scott T Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

Makes Home Baking Easy

Royal Baking Powder helps the housewife to produce at home, quickly and economically, fine and tasty cake, hot biscuit, puddings, the frosted layer cake, crisp cookies, crullers, crusts and muffins, fresh, clean, tasty and wholesome, with which the ready-made food found at the shop or grocery does not compare. Royal is the greatest of bake-day helps.

ROYAL COOK BOOK—800 RECEIPTS—FREE

Send Name and Address.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Given Away With Davis' Steel Ranges In Connection with our Saturday Bargain Sale of Fancy China

Saturday, March 18th, is to be a Red Letter Day for the ladies at our store. With each Davis Steel Range sold or contracted for during the day we will give one 42-piece White Dinner Set of Dishes, or a 12-piece White Toilet Set.

Saturday Bargains of fancy high-grade China is a sale we have never before offered. To miss this opportunity will be a big disappointment after it is over. Hundreds of pieces are now on exhibition in our show windows and store, plainly marked at reduced prices for one day only. Remember the day and date.

Saturday, March 25th will offer 1000 pieces plain White Dishes, bought especially for our Saturday Bargains that will be sold at one-half the regular price,

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

ASHER GADE

We are having a few days that looks like spring and we are certainly glad to see some nice weather.

Mrs. Polly Barnthouse, who had been sick for sometime, died March 8, 1911. She was one of our esteemed neighbors and lived to be over 78 years of age. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Geo. W. Vansickle in the church at this place and the body was interred in the home cemetery on March 9th.

Eld. Jasper Barnthouse, son and two daughters, of Uniontown, Pa., were in this section to attend the funeral of Mrs. Barnthouse.

Wm. H. Thomas was calling on his friend, Mr. Judson Frazee, one day last week and found him in a bad way. Mr. Frazee has not been able to do any work for nine years. We that are blessed with health can certainly be thankful.

Mr. A. J. Fike, of Tissue, Pa., was in our section last week.

Mr. Jefferson Frazee is in a critical way, as he is entirely helpless and has been for some time.

Subscribed for The Republican.

Naylor sells it for less.

Mrs. M. M. VanSickle, of Terra Alta, was in Oakland Tuesday visiting Mrs. Louis Bush.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Messrs. C. A. Ashby and Will B. Miller, both of Deer Park, were in the city yesterday on business.

Tomorrow St. Patrick, the patron of Ireland, will be honored by the sons and daughters of the Emerald Isle.

Attorney Gilmor S. Hamill was in Baltimore Monday where he appeared in the United States Court as counsel.

Capt. J. M. Jarboe was in Washington D. C., last Friday and Saturday on business, returning to Oakland Saturday night.

Welsbach portico or outdoorlamp, one inverted mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. G. A. Shirer & Co 6t

Lieut. E. S. West went to Clarksburg last Friday morning where he spent the day booming Oakland as a summer and health resort.

Mr. Harry Loar, who accompanied his brother Lawson L. Loar and family, of Grafton, to Orlando, Florida, several weeks ago, returned to Oakland last Friday night.

Mr. Edward J. Hamill, cashier of the First National Bank at Kitzmiller, accompanied by Dr. H. P. Copeland, also of Kitzmiller, was in Oakland Tuesday afternoon on business.

The Mountain Democrat last week gave nearly nine columns of its valuable (?) space to the defence of Mr. Browning and then locally apologized to its readers for so doing.

Subscribe for The Republican.

Mr. Philip Willett, who spent the greater portion of the winter in England on profespional business and visiting his kindred, returned to his home at Mountain Lake Park last Friday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duckworth and Mrs. Annie Mitter, both of Bloomington, were in Oakland yesterday when they called at this office and were shown the intricacies connected with the mechanical department of a newspaper office.

Messrs. A. D. Naylor and Lee I. Hoffman, the latter of Meyersdale, Pa., have formed a copartnership for the purpose of selling automobiles and accessories. The new firm will be known as the Hoffman and Naylor Garage Company.

WANTED — Twelve waitressess, at Mountain Lake Park Hotel, June 1st; good wages will be paid. Address Proprietor Mountain Lake Hotel, Mt. Lake Park, Md. 3t

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bush will leave Oakland tomorrow for Washington, D. C., where Mr. Bush will receive treatments for an affection of his eye which has caused him more or less trouble in recent years. They expect to be absent from Oakland two or three weeks.

A pretty love story, giving rise to unbounded and wholesome fun, is a decided novelty, but this is the combination furnished in "Lena Rivers," the most brilliant comedy drama success of the season, and to be presented here Monday evening at Nally's Empire Theatre by an exceptionally clever company.

County Treasurer Robert L. Fries, who went to Washington two or three weeks ago, returned to Oakland last Thursday night and on Friday went down to his home near White Rock. While in Washington Mr. Fries was fitted with an artificial leg and has acquired proficiency in handling himself.

The storm which struck Oakland and Garrett county generally yesterday afternoon about two o'clock is still prevailing with snow piled high in drifts and the thermometer registering six degrees below zero. The storm is the most severe experienced during the entire winter and is somewhat extraordinary for this season of the year.

State Senator H. J. Speicher returned to Oakland yesterday afternoon with a pair of match four year old colts which he purchased over in Preston county this week. He will take the horses to his home at Accident this afternoon or tomorrow and get them in shape for the June sale of horses to be conducted at the Kelly stable in Oakland.

Mrs. Louis Bush, who is recovering from the effects of a broken ankle, sustained a number of months ago by tripping over a loose platform board, was surprised last Thursday by the visit of a number of the members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church, who took with them dainty refreshments and an afternoon of sociability was spent by the ladies present upon the occasion.

John D. Augustine returned home to Addison Wednesday evening after spending the day with his parents. John now has 500 head of stock cattle, two and three year olds, to dispose of this spring. He wintered these cattle on the several Augustine farms and he is now one of the largest live stock dealers in Somerset county. He now has his teams and men in readiness to start the spring work as soon as the weather will permit.—Uniontown Standard.

ANOTHER VIOLATOR BROUGHT TO TIME

Bert Coratt, Foreigner, Engaged in Illicit Selling, Arrested and Fined.

Kitzmiller, Garrett county's foremost mining centre, persists in keeping to the fore.

Monday Sheriff Shartzer went over to that town where he arrested Bert Coratt, a foreigner, who was charged in the warrant with having sold intoxicants illegally. The prisoner was brot to Oakland and held here until yesterday when his trial before Justice Teats took place. A fine of $50 and costs was assessed, which Coratt paid and was discharged from custody.

Mr. Harry Helbig, of Oakland, who recently sold his residence on Alder street to Mr. G. C. Martin, purchased on Monday the Judge Jere H. Wilson property at the intersection of the Deer Park and Hooppole roads, adjoining Oakland. The property consists of about twenty acres and is improved by a large dwelling erected a great many years ago by the late A. A. Perry. The price paid by Mr. Helbig for the place approaches $8,000.

We direct attention this week to the advertisements of Messrs. Bolden, Brown & Weimer, the Frostburg Garage, Garthright & Harvey and the Friendsville Milling Company, as well as the statements of the Garrett National and First National Banks of Oakland; the First National Bank of Friendsville and the First National Bank of Kitzmiller. To accommodate this mass of advertising considerable space is necessary, hence the lack of some reading matter that would otherwise appear.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

Headquarters for Machinery this spring.

Grain Drills:

Fairmont Favorite,	Either at $68.00.
Superior,
Pennsylvania Low

Plows:

Syracuse,	Either at $8.50.
Wizard,
Imperial,
Single Shovel Plows,	1.85.
Double " "	2.25.

Harrows:

Wood frame, 16-tooth, lined bottom and side, Oak frame, for $8.00.

Cultivators and Garden Plows.

Everything else equally as low in price, Naylor has it and sells it for less.

Yours to please,

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

Circulars for the asking.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

Ease and plenty in OLD AGE can come only from work and saving during your younger, energetic days?

Do you want to be old and poor?

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
OAKLAND, MD.

Grand Opening

EMPIRE THEATRE

Monday Even'g March 20

Wonder of the age has been the success of

"LENA RIVERS"

It has reached the hearts of millions.

By arrangement with Burt & Nicolai THOS. H. SEWELL presents the

Beulah Poynter Version

of this Great Play.

A Perfect Play—A Perfect Cast—A Perfect Production. Pure as a Lily. Sweet as the Honeysuckle.

Seats on sale at Harned's Drug Store.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	50,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.
G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.
S. T. JONES, Cashier.
G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt — Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis — George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell — William R. Stull
Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

Makes Home Baking Easy

Royal Baking Powder helps the housewife to produce at home, quickly and economically, fine and tasty cake, hot biscuit, puddings, the frosted layer cake, crisp cookies, crullers, crusts and muffins, fresh, clean, tasty and wholesome, with which the ready-made food found at the shop or grocery does not compare. Royal is the greatest of bake-day helps.

ROYAL COOK BOOK—800 RECEIPTS—FREE

Send Name and Address.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Given Away With Davis' Steel Ranges In Connection with our Saturday Bargain Sale of Fancy China

Saturday, March 18th, is to be a Red Letter Day for the ladies at our store. With each Davis Steel Range sold or contracted for during the day we will give one 42-piece White Dinner Set of Dishes, or a 12-piece White Toilet Set.

Saturday Bargains of fancy high-grade China is a sale we have never before offered. To miss this opportunity will be a big disappointment after it is over. Hundreds of pieces are now on exhibition in our show windows and store, plainly marked at reduced prices for one day only. Remember the day and date.

Saturday, March 25th will offer 1000 pieces plain White Dishes, bought especially for our Saturday Bargains that will be sold at one-half the regular price,

J. M. DAVIS & SONS,

ASHER GADE

We are having a few days that looks like spring and we are certainly glad to see some nice weather.

Mrs. Polly Barnthouse, who had been sick for sometime, died March 8, 1911. She was one of our esteemed neighbors and lived to be over 78 years of age. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Geo. W. Vansickle in the church at this place and the body was interred in the home cemetery on March 9th.

Eld. Jasper Barnthouse, son and two daughters, of Uniontown, Pa., were in this section to attend the funeral of Mrs. Barnthouse.

Wm. H. Thomas was calling on his friend, Mr. Judson Frazee, one day last week and found him in a bad way. Mr. Frazee has not been able to do any work for nine years. We that are blessed with health can certainly be thankful.

Mr. A. J. Fike, of Tissue, Pa., was in our section last week.

Mr. Jefferson Frazee is in a critical way, as he is entirely helpless and has been for some time.

Subscribed for The Republican.

Naylor sells it for less.

Mrs. M. M. VanSickle, of Terra Alta, was in Oakland Tuesday visiting Mrs. Louis Bush.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

Messrs. C. A. Ashby and Will B. Miller, both of Deer Park, were in the city yesterday on business.

Tomorrow St. Patrick, the patron of Ireland, will be honored by the sons and daughters of the Emerald Isle.

Attorney Gilmor S. Hamill was in Baltimore Monday where he appeared in the United States Court as counsel.

Capt. J. M. Jarboe was in Washington D. C., last Friday and Saturday on business, returning to Oakland Saturday night.

Welsbach portico or outdoorlamp, one inverted mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. G. A. Shirer & Co 6t

Lieut. E. S. West went to Clarksburg last Friday morning where he spent the day booming Oakland as a summer and health resort.

Mr. Harry Loar, who accompanied his brother Lawson L. Loar and family, of Grafton, to Orlando, Florida, several weeks ago, returned to Oakland last Friday night.

Mr. Edward J. Hamill, cashier of the First National Bank at Kitzmiller, accompanied by Dr. H. P. Copeland, also of Kitzmiller, was in Oakland Tuesday afternoon on business.

The Mountain Democrat last week gave nearly nine columns of its valuable (?) space to the defence of Mr. Browning and then locally apologized to its readers for so doing.

Subscribe for The Republican.

Mr. Philip Willett, who spent the greater portion of the winter in England on profesional business and visiting his kindred, returned to his home at Mountain Lake Park last Friday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duckworth and Mrs. Annie Mitter, both of Bloomington, were in Oakland yesterday when they called at this office and were shown the intricacies connected with the mechanical department of a newspaper office.

Messrs. A. D. Naylor and Lee J. Hoffman, the latter of Meyersdale, Pa., have formed a copartnership for the purpose of selling automobiles and accessories. The new firm will be known as the Hoffman and Naylor Garage Company.

WANTED—Twelve waitressess, at Mountain Lake Park Hotel, June 1st; good wages will be paid. Address Proprietor Mountain Lake Hotel, Mt. Lake Park, Md. 3t

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bush will leave Oakland tomorrow for Washington, D. C., where Mr. Bush will receive treatments for an affection of his eye which has caused him more or less trouble in recent years. They expect to be absent from Oakland two or three weeks.

A pretty love story, giving rise to unbounded and wholesome fun, is a decided novelty, but this is the combination furnished in "Lena Rivers," the most brilliant comedy drama success of the season, and to be presented here Monday evening at Nally's Empire Theatre by an exceptionally clever company.

County Treasurer Robert L. Fries, who went to Washington two or three weeks ago, returned to Oakland last Thursday night and on Friday went cown to his home near White Rock. While in Washington Mr. Fries was fitted with an artificial leg and has acquired proficiency in handling himself.

The storm which struck Oakland and Garrett county generally yesterday afternoon about two o'clock is still prevailing with snow piled high in drifts and the thermometer registering six degrees below zero. The storm is the most severe experienced during the entire winter and is somewhat extraordinary for this season of the year.

State Senator H. J. Speicher returned to Oakland yesterday afternoon with a pair of match four year old colts which he purchased over in Preston county this week. He will take the horses to his home at Accident this afternoon or tomorrow and get them in shape for the June sale of horses to be conducted at the Kelly stable in Oakland.

Mrs. Louis Bush, who is recovering from the effects of a broken ankle, sustained a number of months ago by tripping over a loose platform board, was surprised last Thursday by the visit of a number of the members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church, who took with them dainty refreshments and an afternoon of sociability was spent by the ladies present upon the occasion.

John D. Augustine returned home to Addison Wednesday evening after spending the day with his parents. John now has 500 head of stock cattle, two and three year olds, to dispose of this spring. He wintered these cattle on the several Augustine farms and he is now one of the largest live stock dealers in Somerset county. He how has his teams and men in readiness to start the spring work as soon as the weather will permit.—Uniontown Standard.

ANOTHER VIOLATOR BROUGHT TO TIME

Bert Coratt, Foreigner, Engaged in Illicit Selling. Arrested and Fined.

Kitzmiller, Garrett county's foremost mining centre, persists in keeping to the fore.

Monday Sheriff Shartzer went over to that town where he arrested Bert Coratt, a foreigner, who was charged in the warran' with having sold intoxicants illegally. The prisoner was brot to Oakland and held here until yesterday when his trial before Justice Teats took place. A fine of $50 and costs was assessed, which Coratt paid and was discharged from custody.

Mr. Harry Helbig, of Oakland, who recently sold his residence on Alder street to Mr. G. C. Martin, purchased on Monday the Judge Jere H. Wilson property at the intersection of the Deer Park and Hooppole roads, adjoining Oakland. The property consists of about twenty acres and is improved by a large dwelling erected a great many years ago by the late A. A. Perry. The price paid by Mr. Helbig for the place approaches $8,000.

We direct attention this week to the advertisements of Messrs. Bolden, Brown & Weimer, the Frostburg Garage, Garthright & Harvey and the Friendsville Milling Company, as well as the statements of the Garrett National and First National Banks of Oakland; the First National Bank of Friendsville and the First National Bank of Kitzmiller. To accommodate this mass of advertising considerable space is necessary, hence the lack of some reading matter that would otherwise appear.

ESTABLISHED 1884.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

Headquarters for Machinery this spring.

Grain Drills:

Fairmont Favorite,	Either at $68.00.
Superior,
Pennsylvania Low [illegible] wn,

Plows:

Syracuse,	Either at $8.50.
Wizard,
Imperial,
Single Shovel Plows,	1.85.
Double " "	2.25.

Harrows:

Wood frame, 16-tooth, lined bottom and side, Oak frame, for $8.00.

Cultivators and Garden Plows.

Everything else equally as low in price, Naylor has it and sells it for less.

[illegible]urs to please,

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

Circulars for the asking.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

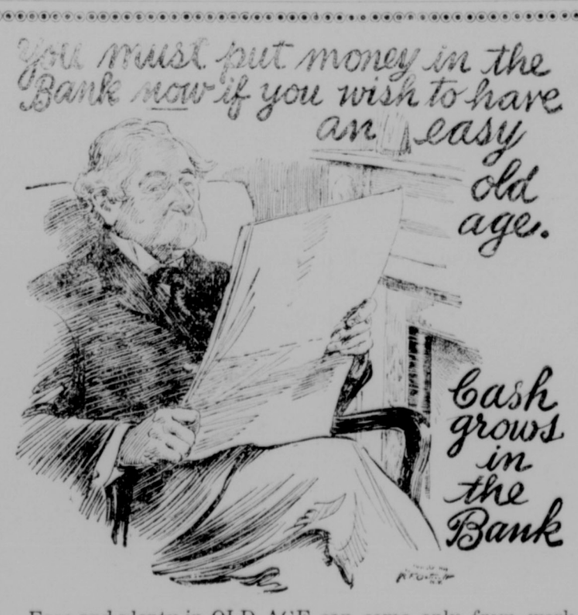
Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp P.O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.



Ease and plenty in OLD AGE can come only from work and saving during your younger, energetic days?

Do you want to be old and poor?

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

OAKLAND, MD.

Grand Opening

EMPIRE THEATRE

Monday Even'g March 20

Wonder of the age has been the success of

"LENA RIVERS"

It has reached the hearts of millions.

By arrangement with Burt & Nicolai THOS. H. SEWELL presents the

Beulah Poynter Version

of this Great Play.

A Perfect Play—A Perfect Cast—A Perfect Production. Pure as a Lily. Sweet as the Honeysuckle.

Seats on sale at Harned's Drug Store.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

A Modern Cain

A TRUE STORY OF THE SECRET SERVICE

By COL. H. C. WHITLEY Former Chief United States Secret Service

THE barren, rocky little farm in Northern Vermont, a mile or two out from the village of Newtown, near the Derby line, was suggestive mainly of hard work and small returns, to the ordinary observer. Its buildings were small and old and out of repair; its fences were sagging in places; the orchard, long past its prime, was dying out, and the lack of money to buy new trees had prevented the filling up of the vacant places. But in spite of all its drawbacks, the barren, rocky little farm was a glorified place to John Barrows that day in early spring in the fifties; for that day Jane Heath had promised to be his wife. Jane had lived alone in the little house in the village, left to her on the death of her father and mother several years before, and always the families had been friends. She was a beautiful girl, with the glossy black hair, the dark and sparkling blue eyes, the firm apple cheeks and the sunshiny nature and undaunted courage of her Irish ancestors. She had never been afraid to live alone—neither [illegible] of possible physical peril nor of [illegible] mental attitude that sometimes [illegible] more to be dreaded even than thieves or wandering beggars, by people who have too much of their own society, ever had disturbed her. She possessed a strength of character which she herself did not realize but which, in promising to marry John Barrows, meant that she gave him her undying devotion.

She had known John Barrows long and intimately—since the days when they went to the little village school together. In later years, often she had been a guest at the Barrows farmhouse, wherein the family was made up of John and his mother and his brother Andrew. Mrs. Barrows loved the sunny-faced girl as a daughter, and Andy—Andy was the one source of apprehension to the otherwise entirely happy young couple. An amicable agreement as to the division of the farm had been reached, but lately Andy had seemed moody and despondent, and often he watched the girl and John with jealous eyes. A few days [illegible]hn's proposal, Andy had [illegible] of the[illegible]e to marry him, but she had [illegible]t to s[illegible]used.

So[illegible] know why you won't marry [illegible]re in love with John. He's [illegible]tego[illegible]han I, and better favored, [illegible]is a[illegible]e fallen in love with his [illegible]jugg[illegible]face. But you're mine by [illegible]t quic[illegible]I'm the oldest I should [illegible]er. First choice. Oh, do say you [illegible]indi[illegible]ance!"

[illegible]life[illegible]ndy, you know I couldn't [illegible]all d[illegible]when you know I do not [illegible]facu[illegible]ou in that way. I'm so [illegible]mal[illegible]

[illegible]p[illegible]brb[illegible]want your pity. Ever[illegible]If [illegible]long[illegible]ive me, I love you enough [illegible]ngthe[illegible]an't you marry me? [illegible]so we'd have all the farm, [illegible]. T[illegible]eed never want for any[illegible]to play com[illegible]s

[illegible]ent ay, I don't love you, and I [illegible]outlo[illegible], and I'm not going to [illegible]peop[illegible]I'm sorry you feel so bad; [illegible]usic[illegible]e friends?

[illegible]essio[illegible]e can be friends, but even [illegible]s the[illegible]n't marry me, neither shall This marry John. Mark my

[illegible]strate[illegible]

[illegible]and[illegible] Barrows had an intimate [illegible]becom[illegible]Malcolm Thomson, a close[illegible]sprint[illegible], crafty Scot, and to him Andy [illegible]his troubles. Thompson con[illegible]ldom the matter, then advised Andy [illegible]e needlessly to his brother and thus [illegible]s morn to think that he—Andy—was [illegible]spect[illegible]led, but to bide his time.

[illegible]al serv[illegible]s for the marriage were dis[illegible]ne thir[illegible] and Thanksgiving day was de[illegible]e righ[illegible]on for the wedding. The sale [illegible]ing h[illegible]n's share of the season's crops [illegible]hings[illegible]ivestock, with the money—the [illegible]plies[illegible] account dear to the heart of [illegible] New Englander—which John [illegible]alon[illegible]n the bank, would be enough to [illegible]nd not[illegible] the little house, on the opposite [illegible]one b[illegible]of the field from the old one, [illegible]f home[illegible]which the young couple had cen[illegible], is w[illegible]d their dreams. John was work[illegible]g ge[illegible]his hardest to coax the old farm [illegible]into[illegible]yield, and hauling logs and lumber [illegible]gs br[illegible]odd hours for the new house and [illegible]rd of t[illegible], the brothers were working in the [illegible]place i[illegible]d near the house. The days were [illegible]owing shorter, and Andy suggested [illegible]HAT [illegible]at he remain in the field, working [illegible]moera[illegible]s long as there was light, and that [illegible]hn go to the house to do the chores. [illegible]mself[illegible]ohn agreed, and went to his chores [illegible]e last[illegible]with a happy heart, thinking that [illegible]ad apol[illegible]Andy hadn't really been so greatly [illegible]' be th[illegible]disappointed, after all.

[illegible]ons u[illegible] "Mother," he said, as he brought in [illegible]ght ha[illegible]the pails of foaming milk, "I believe [illegible]ears. Andy's got all over being jealous of [illegible]should[illegible]me. He's so pleasant and agreeable [illegible]upon t[illegible]lately that I can't help thinking he [illegible]foreny[illegible]has forgiven me."

[illegible]lished[illegible] "He had nothing to forgive, my [illegible]mand[illegible]son," said Mrs. Barrows; "but I'm as [illegible]abilit[illegible]glad as you are to see him in a more [illegible]that[illegible]reasonable frame of mind. I only wish [illegible]as a[illegible]there were two Janes. She is a good, sweet girl, fit to be the wife of any man."

"Bless you for saying that, mother. You don't know how happy you make me. I'll go and whistle for Andy—I see supper's nearly ready."

Andy, however, did not respond to repeated whistlings, and finally John went to the field to search for him, but could not find him and returned to the house. "I guess he's gone to the village, mother," he said, "and I suppose he will eat supper there. You know he often does that." His mother was satisfied, and Andy's absence caused no alarm. Later in the evening a haystack, that stood in the field near the place where the brothers had been at work, was discovered to be on fire. John went out to try to save it, but it seemed to be burning all over at the same time, and he could do nothing. The fire was attributed to some malicious or thoughtless boys, and no one thought of connecting it with Andy's disappearance.

Several days elapsed, and Andy did not return. His mother and brother thought he might have gone to visit his friend, Malcolm Thomson, who lived a short distance over the line in Canada. Nearly a week later Thomson appeared at the Barrows farm to get some business, he said, with [illegible]by. He seemed greatly surprised [illegible]the s[illegible]disappointed at Andy's absence. [illegible]rict, an[illegible]expressed anxiety lest some acci[illegible]of the c[illegible]had befallen him. The follow[illegible]the fa[illegible]day Thomson went to the village [illegible]ed in the stores and shops he dis[illegible]cussed the disappearance of Andy, and stirred up considerable comment among the villagers who had thought, with his mother and brother, that Andy was visiting Thomson. The Scotchman appeared much concerned and, while expressing no opinion, kept up the gossip he had started until at last suspicion was aroused. That which had been a commonplace circumstance at first became a mystery that grew deeper and deeper each hour, until finally someone suggested foul play. This suggestion rapidly took root and gathered credence until the entire neighborhood was sure that Andy Barrows had been murdered.

John Barrows and his mother, [illegible]course, were the last to hear [illegible]nese stories, and when they finally reached his ears, John started an immediate investigation, in which nearly [illegible]ll the men of the village willingly [illegible]joined. They searched every [illegible]he way place, every abandoned [illegible]if it every possible nook and cranny. We[illegible]e farm. At night the men looked [illegible]tained and were ready to go home, an[illegible] allow the search to go over until the next day, when Thomson casually mentioned the burning of the haystack.

Here the searchers were horrified to find a partly burned body. Raking in the ashes, someone found a bunch of keys and a pocketknife, which were recognized at once as having belonged to Andy Barrows. A blood-stained ax, with some light red hairs, exactly the shade of Andy's hair, adhering to the blade, was found in the grass near by. These discoveries seemed to solve the mystery of Andy's disappearance. A cowardly murder had been committed, the body hidden in the stack, and the stack burned to conceal the crime. There seemed no doubt as to the identity of the body, and the next thing was to discover the criminal.

Suspicion at once pointed to John Barrows. Who else could have committed the awful deed—who else could have had an object in doing it? Thomson, while expressing doubt as to John's guilt, said he knew there had been some misunderstanding between the brothers, but did not think it ever would reach such a stage. Several persons who had heard, or heard of, the quarrel between the brothers, came forward to tell what they knew or imagined, and things began to look pretty dark for John. He was as much puzzled as anyone by the discovery made in the ashes of the haystack, and could offer no explanation of the mystery.

John Barrows was formally charged with the murder of his brother, and a warrant was sworn out by Thomson for his arrest. Thomson took this step most unwillingly, he said, but felt he must see justice done his old friend. No denial on John's part made the slightest impression on the minds of the excited people. They wanted an immediate trial, but were compelled to wait a few weeks for court to convene, and after a brief preliminary hearing, John was taken to the county jail.

Jane Heath, when the first suspicion of her lover was made public, declared her faith in him, and told him she would stand by him and eventually would see the criminal punished. No one could shake her faith in John, and her friends regarded her as little short of demented when she declared she never would forsake John Barrows. No one else had the slightest faith in his innocence. Even his mother, although not expressing her opinion, was prostrated by the grief and the disgrace, and refused to see her son. She believed him guilty, and could not bear to see the son who had killed another son equally dear.

When the case came to trial there was little evidence in behalf of the accused. Old neighbors, ready to believe in his guilt, testified unwillingly of his previous good character, but took every possible opportunity to impress on judge and jury that circumstances were mightily against John Barrows. These old neighbors always had been his friends and were not really malicious, their action being merely the result of the well-sown seeds of distrust scattered by Malcolm Thomson. John was adjudged guilty of murder in the first degree.

Jane Heath vowed she would move Heaven and earth to free her lover, and through her efforts he was granted a short respite by the governor of the state, and he was to remain a few months in jail before the execution. With renewed hope, she determined to prove his innocence and save his life. She insisted that there was no proof whatever that Andy Barrows was not alive; that all the evidence was purely circumstantial; and she so earnestly persisted in her theory, and cast so much doubt on the guilt of John, that she finally prevailed upon the governor to commute his sentence to life imprisonment.

Soon after the trial of John Barrows, Malcolm Thomson determined to leave that neighborhood. Before doing so, he called on Miss Heath and talked to her most consolingly. But Jane was suspicious, and his professed solicitude caused her to believe his declarations of sympathy and friendship were not genuine. His talk lacked sincerity. Jane made up her mind to watch him, if possible to do so, as she believed he held the key to the mystery of Andy Barrows's disappearance.

Two years later—years in which Jane Heath, though not inactive, had accomplished practically nothing toward the release of her lover—a young soldier returned to northern Vermont from the south on a furlough. From him Jane learned that Thomson was in New Orleans. She decided to go to that city, making the long journey as did Evangeline—not to find her lover, but to accomplish his freedom. Travel by rail to New Orleans was suspended, and the city could be reached only by an ocean voyage. She secured a letter to General Ben Butler from the governor of the state, took passage on a steamer for New Orleans, and arrived there without mishap. She immediately went to General Butler's headquarters, but was refused admission by the sentinel on guard, who said his orders were to admit no civilian unless connected with headquarters affairs. I was at that time assigned to the secret service department of the United States government and was returning to headquarters, and seeing the young woman, I stopped to question her. I was interested at once in her appearance—her beautiful face and graceful figure, her air of breeding and refinement, but more than these, in her quiet dignity and evident sincerity of purpose. At my request she gave me the letter addressed to General Butler, and I took it straight to him. He glanced at it and handed it back to me, directing me to ascertain what the young woman wanted and report immediately to him. The letter introduced the bearer, approved her mission, and requested that all possible courtesies be shown her. She was seeking a permit to visit the various points of the department of the gulf where troops were stationed, and told me frankly the object of her visit.

On listening to Miss Heath's story I was convinced of its truthfulness and made up my mind to aid her, so far as was in my power, in her mission of love and fidelity. I felt sure, also, that her services could be made valuable to the government, and in aiding her I might also be aiding the cause for which I was working. I offered to employ her to pick up information in regard to the doings of the enemies of the government. This would give her a good chance to travel about within the Union lines and thus serve her own ends, so she promptly accepted the proposition. For convenience, as well as better to conceal her identity, I suggested that she assume masculine apparel. She acted at once on this suggestion, and when she appeared before me, prepared to enter on her duties, I could scarcely realize that the handsome youth was in reality a refined young woman.

Not long after this Miss Heath reported to me that she had discovered Malcolm Thomson, and was sure he was engaged in some kind of crooked business. I sent a skilled man to the neighborhood where Thomson was living, to cultivate that gentleman's acquaintance. Soon he discovered that Thomson was carrying on a thriving business smuggling goods across Lake Pontchartrain into the Confederacy. Also it was found out that Thomson was greatly afraid of detection by the federal authorities. Like all crooks he deemed everyone else crooked, and was seeking an alliance with someone who could "fix" the ruling powers. This timidity led him to take into his confidence the detective in my employ, Colonel Moncossus.

Moncossus easily arranged a partnership with Thomson, after convincing him of his—Moncossus's—great influence with the federal authorities and his ability to obtain the necessary permits for taking out goods and bringing in cotton. Thomson was to furnish the money, while Moncossus was to take charge of the little schooner employed, and manage the authorities. There also was a third partner in the scheme, a man named Hopper, who was located at Mandeville, just across Lake Pontchartrain and inside the Confederate lines. Colonel Moncossus wished to meet this partner, to whom he was a stranger, and Thomson furnished him with a photograph of the man, that there might be no trouble in identifying him. Moncossus brought the photograph to me, and I left it on my desk without thinking much about it. Miss Heath, happening in soon after, saw the photograph and recognized it as a picture of Andy Barrows. The mythical scheme that had been planned by Moncossus for the purpose of entrapping the Scotchman, on suspicion that he was an enemy of the government, had unintentionally become of paramount importance. Steps were taken at once to bring Andy Barrows before Miss Heath, and compel him to confess his part in the miserable scheme to spoil the lives of his brother and his brother's sweetheart.

A small schooner was procured and loaded. It was planned to capture Andy Barrows-Hopper, and bring him to New Orleans. General Butler, when consulted, said the plan was a crazy one, but Moncossus declared he could carry it out. It did seem a difficult undertaking, but Moncossus was willing and anxious to take the risk and abide by the consequences.

When the little boat arrived at Mandeville it was unloaded and taken a few miles distant across a bayou for the purpose of taking on bales of cotton. "Hopper" was there to superintend the delivery of the cotton. When the schooner was ready to sail he came on board, with two other men, expecting to be landed at Mandeville as the schooner passed on its way to New Orleans. The wind was blowing heavily that day, dead ahead when the boat pointed toward Mandeville, but well in favor when she was headed across the bay toward New Orleans.

Hopper's two assistants were perched upon a cotton bale with their legs hanging over the windward rail at the moment Colonel Moncossus put the helm down hard and let go the main sheet. The boom swung over with great force, the boat gave a sudden lurch, and the two men sitting on the cotton bale were knocked into the lake.

"Heave her to," shouted Hopper, at the same time drawing his revolver. The next instant he was lying on the deck. A bullet had pierced his side from the forward part of the schooner, which now was headed directly for New Orleans before a ten or twelve knot breeze. When the schooner arrived and was hauled up out of the lake into the new basin, I was awaiting its arrival and went aboard. A surgeon had been sent for to care for Hopper, but had not arrived. Hopper was badly wounded, and seemed to realize that the end was near. He appeared to be a man of some education and refinement. His high cheek bones, his coarse features and pale blue eyes, however, were indicative of his wicked nature. The tightly drawn lines about his mouth showed inflexibility of will and iron nerve to carry out whatever he undertook.

When I went forward to speak to him I recognized Hopper as a man who had been tried and convicted for passing counterfeit money at New Orleans several months before. He had been sent to the penitentiary at Baton Rouge, but had escaped during a battle at that point in which the prison was partially destroyed. He made his way across the Amite river into the Confederacy where, by standing in with the commanding Confederate officer at Mandeville, he was enabled to handle and ship out cotton.

I seated myself beside the wounded man and took his hand, and never will I forget the ghastly stare with which he regarded me as I endeavored to impress upon him the full realization of his condition and the duty incumbent upon him. My urgent appeal had its effect. Hopper admitted that his mind was burdened with a great crime, which he was willing to confess. I had set him down as a scoundrel, but was not quite prepared to be brought face to face with one whose heart was so inhuman as deliberately to plan to hang his own brother.

"A few years ago," he said, "I, with my younger brother, lived with our widowed mother on a little farm in northern Vermont. There lived near us a most estimable young woman. I paid her some attention, and in time fell madly in love with her. When I supposed I had won her affections I asked her to marry me. She refused and did not deny that she loved my brother when I charged her with that as being the reason for her refusing me. She was not to blame. She had made no promises. I had merely mistaken her sisterly regard and kindness to me for affection. I alone was responsible for the error."

Here he paused for a moment as if to gather courage for what was to follow. Up to this time he had met my eyes frankly, but now he shifted his gaze, and continued:

"When she told me she could not marry me, and made no denial of her regard for my brother, I was filled with unutterable rage. Calling her a heartless flirt, I seized my hat and left her. I was furious, desperate, and determined to be revenged. While my heart was filled with rancor and my mind with spiteful thoughts, I confided my troubles to Malcolm Thomson. He always was an evil counselor, but a cunning one. He dissuaded me from my plan for immediate revenge, and advised me to appear friendly with my brother in order better to cary out a plot which he revealed to me.

"Soon after this my brother announced his engagement to marry Miss Heath, and I wished him well with bitterness in my heart. Plans were made for the marriage, and I seemed to take an interest in them, and to have forgiven my brother and his fiancee my fancied wrongs. But I was only biding my time.

"When the time was ripe for executing the plot we had arranged, I managed to be at work with my brother in a field on our farm. On the previous night Thomson and I had placed the body of a man about my size in a haystack, which stood near where we were at work repairing a fence. Thomson had obtained the body from a pauper's burying ground on the Canadian side.

"My brother left the field that day just before dark. I remained for the purpose of completing the work. When the sun had set and it was dark, I punctured a small vein in my arm, and with the blood besmeared the bit of the ax we had been using. I cut off a lock of my hair and scattered it on the bloody blade, and then pitched the ax into the grass. Reaching beneath the body in the hay I deposited my pocketknife and bunch of keys. Then I set fire to the stack and hurried to join Thomson, who was waiting near by with a horse and buggy. We drove rapidly away, and I soon was on my way to New Orleans, where Thomson was to join me in a few weeks.

"It was agreed that Thomson should first return to the village and stir up suspicion, which would result in a search for me and the discovery of the burned body. Everything turned out thus far as we had planned. My brother was accused and convicted.

"It was my purpose, when my rival should be out of my way, to return home, and after a time renew my attentions to Miss Heath, but I put off going from time to time. I could not face my old friends and neighbors. Through Thomson I learned that my brother's sentence was commuted. I was thankful for that. No one ever will know the remorse I have suffered for my crime. My name is Andy Barrows."

Death came soon to Andy Barrows, and he was beyond the jurisdiction of mortal tribunals. Thomson, who in some way got an inkling of the turn of affairs, disappeared—he whose wicked brain had devised and managed the entire plot.

Miss Heath, with documents fully verifying the experiences through which she had passed, hastened home to lay before the governor the proofs of the truth of her intuition. A pardon was promptly issued, and she was given the well-earned privilege of carrying it to the lover whose innocence had been established by her faith and untiring devotion.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-252 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Consulted Him Often.

Mrs. Benham—Health is wealth.

Benham—At the rate you have the doctor you ought to "get rich quick."

The Chicago Fire could have been prevented with one pail of water, but the water was not handy. Keep a bottle of Hamlins Wizard Oil handy and prevent the fiery pains of inflammation.

The measure of what we love and admire is the measure of our own worth.—Dobson.

Nothing Too Good

for you. That's why we want you to take CASCARETS for liver and bowels. It's not advertising talk—but merit—the great, wonderful, lasting merit of CASCARETS that we want you to know by trial. Then you'll have faith—and join the millions who keep well by CASCARETS alone. 909

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

Kow-Kure

is not a "food"—it is a medicine, and the only medicine in the world for cows only. Made for the cow and, as its name indicates, a cow cure. Barrenness, retained afterbirth, abortion, scours, caked udder, and all similar affections positively and quickly cured. No one who keeps cows, whether many or few, can afford to be without "Kow-Kure." It is made especially to keep cows healthy. Our book "What to Do When Your Cows Are Sick" sent free. Ask your local dealer for "Kow-Kure," or send to the manufacturers.

Dairy Association Co., Lyndonville, Vt.

Hurry Ends in Indigestion

Use your teeth on your food or your stomach will suffer. Quick lunches, hurried eating, bolting food, are sure to end, sooner or later, in some form of indigestion, more or less troublesome.

Beecham's Pills

quickly relieve the distress caused by hurried eating. They act directly on the stomach nerves and actually help the food to digest and assimilate. They are particularly good for nervous dyspepsia, bloating, hiccoughs, bitter taste in the mouth, and flatulence. With reasonable care in eating, Beecham's Pills will soon

Put an End to Stomach Ills

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c.

92% IN 6 MONTHS

Our clients who acted on our advice in the purchase of only three established dividend-paying stocks made 92.1% on their investment between August 3, 1910 and February 14, 1911, or at the rate of 184.2% annually.

We have prepared a handsome booklet telling how this was done, explaining the operation of trading in the stock market, and showing how enormous profits can be made with a minimum of risk. THIS BOOKLET IS FREE FOR THE ASKING.

WRITE FOR IT TODAY

CHARLES A. STONEHAM & CO.

COMMISSION BROKERS

56 Broad Street New York City

CANNING FACTORIES FOR SALE

For Farms, Large Communities or Towns. 15 sizes. Prices $85 to $850. Capacities as high as 9,000 cans tomatoes or 20,000 cans fruits in 10 hours. TERMS: A per cent of pack, or 2 or 3 yearly payments, or for cash. Write for Booklet. THOS. H. BROWN, Springfield, Mo.

Hats and Coiffures

IT IS to be the small hats for early spring, made of exquisite, lustrous, light braids, that is light in weight. And these little hats are soft, many of them made without a wire frame, so that they sit caressingly upon the hair and conform themselves to the shape of the head. And a few people have jumped to the conclusion that because hats are small, the matter of dressing the hair will sink into one of the unimportant and negligible details of the toilette. Such a conclusion is not reached by a course of reasoning. If you have absorbed it, "I pray you gentle lady, to unthink your speaking, and to say so no more." The smal hat, even more than the large one demands a well dressed coiffure; for the coiffure is the visible means of support of the little hat. Hair, in pretty curls or fluffy waves, simply must peep out from under the edges of the hat and frame the face and neck, otherwise the wearer will look as if she were bald.

These small hats worn over a coiffure from which a few stray puffs and bobbing curls contrive to stray out, and covered with a fine floating veil of lace, are simply entrancing. These veils come in a variety of fancy weaves. Nothing is prettier than a Brussels net with a little dot or figure over the surface and a lace pattern in the border.

Two good models in small hats are shown here. In Fig. 1 the round, cap-like turban is made of silk braid in bright champagne color, the brim and crown are both made of the braid, sewed and afterward draped on the fine light frame. These hats are not for the amateur millinery, because they require a knowledge of the art of draping. The rosette and petal is made of brown velvet and gold cord. It is a beautiful color combination, and suited to almost any color in the costume.

The second hat is of an elegant braid in black and white. It is trimmed with a double collar of velvet and kid, and finished with velvet covered buttons. It is a cool and crisp combination of black and white which we can never hope to excel in elegance.

Imagine these hats on a head with the hair drawn back and not appearing about the face and neck! The pretty face and the pretty hats would both be spoiled. The importance of the coiffure with the small hat increases. They are both well worth while.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

NIGHTDRESS IN ONE PIECE

Pattern Simple in Construction and Garment Most Comfortable to Wear.

Anyone who wants to make a nightdress with little trouble should use this pattern, as it is very simple in construction and comfortable to wear; the sleeves are cut in with the body part, an opening being made down the left side; the neck is cut square and trimmed with two rows of insertion mitered at the corners, but the pattern is cut quite up to the neck, so that one row of trimming only need be used.

The sleeves are gathered into insertion-trimmed bands, and are finished with lace.

Materials required: Four yards 36 inches wide.

Two Little Hints.

Do not throw away boot polish when it has become hard through the lid being left off, but place it on top of a warm oven until it softens. I have tried it and found it worth the trouble.

To open a tin of black lead, pull away the paper and put it in front of the fire—on the fender will do. It will open quite readily and better than knocking the tin with a knife.

Care of Silk Gloves.

In trying on silk gloves cover the hands well with talcum and you will not tear the gloves. If a seam rips, do not whip it over and over. Turn the glove, catch one side of the torn part and then the opposite, going back and forth, and the work will not rip out. Do not knot the thread. Mend a "run" in a similar manner.

WILL PLEASE THE INVALID

Pretty and Useful Trifles That Will Lighten the Tedium of the Sick Room.

Among the appropriate things for the invalid are flower holders. These can be fastened to the foot of the bed, and are large enough to hold three or four carnations or roses, generally all that are to be allowed in the sick room. Another acceptable gift is a dainty piece of china—a flower bordered plate, a gruel bowl of eggshell thinness, or a fragile cup and saucer of delicate design. Never mind if these things are likely to break with their first tumble; because of their beauty, they will give enough pleasure, perhaps real benefit, to make their possible short existence well worth while. A lightweight leather writing case, provided with a screw-top bottle of ink, compartments for paper, envelopes, stamps, and pen and pencil, gives the invalid who is strong enough to write a certain feeling of independence. Some of these cases have keys which add to their usefulness. A pint or half pint vacuum bottle, for keeping liquids warm or cold, is another comfort-giving gift for the invalid and a time-saving gift for the nurse or caretaker.

SCARF OF SHETLAND WOOL

One of the Prettiest and Most Comfortable of the Season's Head Coverings.

Something more than a coat is required by the girl going forth in the evening to some gala function or other. She needs a head muffling, a throat protector of some sort, and is very well protected if she has velvet or silk overboots and long wool mittens for the thin gloves. These things make her comfortable, and if they are selected they need not be clumsy or unbecoming.

One of the cheapest and most rewarding head mufflings of the season is a Shetland wool scarf or auto veil, for these pretty things can be worn over the face. These filmy scarfs come in all colors and pure white, as well as in white with gay Scotch borders. For a dark girl who is going to have a bit of vivid color in her party get-up the Scotch-border scarfs are superb. They have a look of Mexican splendor and cost exactly one dollar and ten cents each!

Novelties.

Nets are gaining in favor as a foundation for chiffon corsages, producing a much softer effect than silk.

Large velvet bags with the personal touch of an embroidered monogram in one corner are much favored.

Among scarfs the newest material is fine silk tricot, like glove silk. These come in all the fashionable shades.

Many of the sleeves in the new evening gowns are slashed, with any other material appearing underneath

WESTERN CANADA COUNTING ITS GOLD

THE GRAIN CROP OF 1910 WAS A GOOD PAYING ONE.

Crop conditions throughout the west of Canada were not ideal, but notwithstanding there were excellent crops. Reports come from different parts to the agents of the Canadian government, whose literature tells a good part of the story, that the crops in most places were splendid.

At Castor, Alta., F. Galloway's oat crop threshed 35 bushels to the acre, machine measure, and 44 bushels by weight. Alex Robertson of Delisle, Alta., had 20 bushels to the acre on 875 acres. W. & H. Clark, 17 bushels to the acre on 77 acres. Sheldon Ramsey, 20 bushels on 160 acres. J. Lane threshed 3,500 bushels off 200 acres; J. Hamilton, 5,200 bushels off 264 acres. Mrs. Headley had an average of 25 bushels per acre on 160 acres. Chambers Bros. got 13,270 bushels off 650 acres.

Fertile Valley district, G. Rollo, had an average of 25 bushels to the acre on a total crop of 10,000 bushels. E. Brown of Pincher Creek had a yield of 33 bushels on his winter wheat; W. Walker, Miss Walker and John Goberts all had an average yield of 25 bushels; Mr. Fitzpatrick, 23, and Mr. Freebairn, 20. Charles Nelson of Bon Accord, Alberta, had threshed his crop of 5,000 bushels of grain, wheat, oats and barley, from 210 acres of old ground.

Wm. Logan of Bon Accord is reported to have threshed 400 bushels of wheat from 9 acres of new breaking. His oats it is said yielding over 100 bushels to the acre. Robert Martin of Belbeck, Sask., from 100 acres got 3,740 bushels of wheat. Geo. A. Campbell of Caron, Sask., from 130 acres summer fallow got 40 bushels per acre, and from 50 acres stubble got 24 bushels per acre. One of the farmers of Colonsay threshed out 36 bushels of wheat per acre from 150 acres summer fallow, and another 33 bushels per acre. James Glen of Drinkwater, Sask., had 36½ bushels per acre; 40 acres summer fallow, 31 bushels per acre; 40 acres stubble, 27 bushels per acre; total, 6,680 bushels off 200 acres. Abe Winters of Fleming has 39 bushels of wheat per acre. At Govan, Benjamin Armstrong had 33 bushels to the acre. John Glumlin, 34 bushels. Charles Latta, 35 bushels. J. K. Taylor, 35 bushels. W. Small, 2,060 bushels on 90 acres. J. F. Moore, 5,500 bushels on 215 acres. J. MacLean, 1,500 bushels on 63 acres. W. Hopwood, 1,750 bushels on 60 acres. W. Gray, 950 bushels on 30 acres. W. Curtin, 850 bushels on 30 acres. John Meyers, Jr., of Grand Coulee, reports 34⅜ bushels to the acre. P. P. Epp of Langham, Sask., has 35 1-3 bushels per acre. J. J. Thiessen, 31 bushels per acre. Chris Dear, 25 bushels per acre from 90 acres. Wm. Thiessen, 18½ bushels from 100 acres. P. P. Schultz, 18 bushels per acre from 100 acres. Robt. H. Wiggins of Manor, Sask., had 39 bushels wheat and 75 bushels of oats per acre. Fred Cobb, 30 bushels of wheat and 75 bushels of oats per acre. Jack Robinson, 39 bushels of wheat per acre. Wm. Kindel of Milestone, Sask., had 38 bushels of wheat per acre. R. J. Moore, 40 bushels of wheat per acre. Martin Roddy, 38 bushels of wheat per acre. J. D. Sifton of Moose Jaw had 37 bushels wheat per acre; oats, 50 bushels per acre; flax, 11 bushels to the acre. John L. Smith of New Warren had 35 bushels of wheat per acre. At Regina H. W. Laird had 35 bushels to the acre; W. H. Duncan, wheat, 22 bushels to the acre, flax, 16 bushels; G. M. Bell, wheat, 35 bushels to the acre, oats, 70 bushels; O. E. Rothwell, 25 bushels to the acre; J. McKinnis, wheat, 35 bushels summer fallow; 20 bushels stubble; oats, 80 bushels; J. S. Mooney, 31 bushels of wheat; 80 bushels oats on stubble. At Tessies, Wm. Nesbitt had 44 bushels wheat to the acre. Sep. Latrace, 34 bushels. Thos. Miller, 31 bushels. These were all on summer fallow. Major Bros.' stubble went 14. At Tuxford, Sask., C. B. Dunning had 37 bushels. James Bain, 41 bushels summer fallow. At Yellow Grass, Wm. Robson, off one half section, had 45 bushels wheat to the acre, and 40 bushels off another averaged 37 bushels to the acre. Geo. Steer, off a twenty-acre field, threshed half. M. A. Wilkinson, off 160 acres, 52 bushels wheat to the acre. His whole crop averaged over 40. Jas. A. R. Cameron's half section averaged over 36 bushels to the acre. D. McNevan, who has two farms, averaged about 40 bushels. W. A. Cooper got 47 bushels to the acre off 71 acres; his whole crop went about 40. John Murray, 35 per acre off 160 acres. Hockley Bros., 35 per acre off a half section. W. Ransom, 35 per acre of the Cathcert farm. N. Dunne, 39 to the acre. S. C. Hart, 38 per acre. T. Murray, Jr., 36 to the acre. A. E. McEwan, 38 to the acre. Mayor Taylor, 32 to the acre.

Violation.

"They have expelled my favorite waiter from his brotherhood," said one hotel patron.

"Yes," replied the other, "he accidentally smiled and said 'Thank you,' a dollar's worth for a 50-cent tip."

DISTEMPER

In all its forms among all ages of horses as well as dogs, cured and others in same stable prevented from having the disease with SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE. Every bottle guaranteed. Over 600,000 bottles sold last year. $.50 and $1.00. Any good druggist, or send to manufacturers Agents wanted. Spohn Medical Co., Specialists Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

A girl is always sure her latest love is the real thing.

LOGICAL.

Assistant Manager—What shall I do with the amount the cashier took; charge it to profit and loss?

Manager—No; put it down as running expenses.

COULD NOT STAND SUFFERING FROM SKIN ERUPTION

"I have been using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for the past three months and I am glad to say that they cured me of a most annoying skin eruption. It began by my noticing red blotches appearing on my face and scalp. Although they were rather disfiguring, I did not think anything of them until they began to get scaly and dry and to itch and burn until I could not stand the suffering. Then I began to use a different soap, thinking that my old kind might be hurting me, but that didn't seem to do any good. I went to two different doctors but neither seemed to relieve me any. I lost many nights' sleep in continual scratching, sometimes scratching till I drew the blood on my face and head. Then I started in to use the Cuticura Remedies and in two months I was entirely relieved of that awful pest. I am so delighted over my cure by Cuticura Remedies that I shall be glad to tell anybody about it." (Signed) G. M. Macfarland, 221 West 115th St., New York City, Oct. 5, 1910.

Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, for free book on skin and scalp diseases and their treatment.

Not Boasting of It.

Theatrical Manager—I understand that you played with Booth, Miss Sereleaf?

The Actress (with much spirit)—Well, I don't think it's anybody's business how old I am!

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

His Light.

Ella—He says that I am the light of his life.

Stella—That's gas.

If It's Your Eye Use Pettit's Eye Salve for inflammation, stys, itching lids, eye aches, defects of vision and sensitivity to strong lights. All druggists or Howard Bros., Buffalo, N. Y.

It is sweet to feel by what fine spun threads our affections are drawn together.—Sterne.

Garfield Tea purifies the blood, cleanses the system, clears the complexion, eradicates disease and promotes Good Health.

What women feel is more convincing to them than what men know.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

The ocean is crossed in love—by a number of bridal parties.

Better health is sure to follow the use of the natural Herb laxative, Garfield Tea. All druggists.

Dwellers in glass houses should keep out of politics.

Spring Medicine

Is

Needed Now, and the Best Is Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood as no other does. 40,366 testimonials of cures, in two years. Get it in usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs.

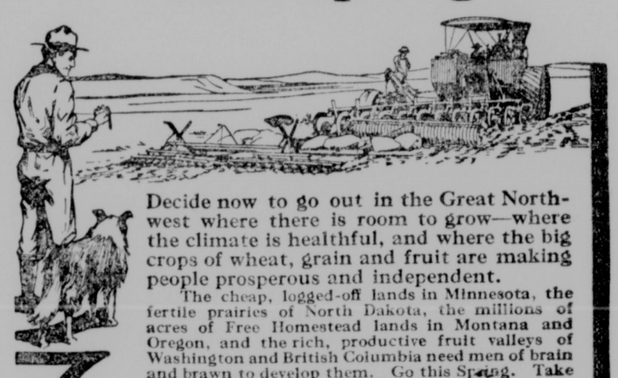
Impure Blood is common in the spring, because of the unhealthful modes of living during the winter, and it is the cause of the loss of appetite and that tired feeling as well as the sores and eruptions that occur at this time.

Be sure to take Hood's this spring.

Roots, Barks and Herbs—Hood's Sarsaparilla so combines the great curative principles of roots, barks and herbs as to raise them to their highest efficiency for the cure of all spring humors, all blood diseases, and run-down conditions.

There is no substitute for Hood's.

Go to the Northwest This Spring



Decide now to go out in the Great Northwest where there is room to grow—where the climate is healthful, and where the big crops of wheat, grain and fruit are making people prosperous and independent.

The cheap, logged-off lands in Minnesota, the fertile prairies of North Dakota, the millions of acres of Free Homestead lands in Montana and Oregon, and the rich, productive fruit valleys of Washington and British Columbia need men of brain and brawn to develop them. Go this Spring. Take advantage of the Great Northern's one-way

Special Colonist Fares

Daily, March 10 to April 10, 1911

To points in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, good for stop-over and good in Tourist Sleeping Cars on payment of berth fare. Very low settlers' fares to points in North Dakota and many points in Montana, March 14-21-28 and April 4-11-18-25, 1911.

Daily Through Tourist Sleeping Car

from Chicago, Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis to Pacific Coast. Electric lighted, leather upholstered, equipped with all conveniences so passengers can prepare their own meals. Send for free book on the state in which you are interested. Write to me for full information about fares from your town.

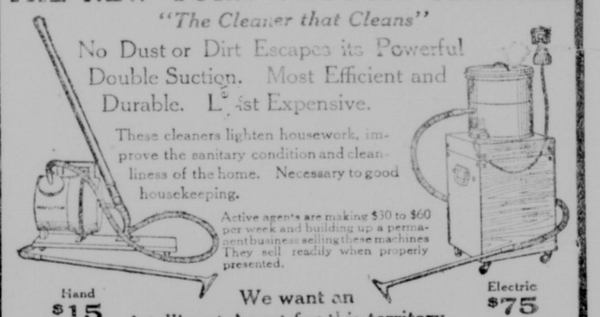
E. C. LEEDY, Gen'l Immigration Agt., St. Paul, Minn.
L. D. Kilbwell, Dist. Pass. Agt., 307 H. W. Oliver Bldg., Pittsburg, Pa.
R. J. Smith, Gen'l Agt., 411 Traction Bldg., Cincinnati.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

THE NEW YORK VACUUM CLEANER

"The Cleaner that Cleans"

No Dust or Dirt Escapes its Powerful Double Suction. Most Efficient and Durable. Least Expensive.



These cleaners lighten housework, improve the sanitary condition and cleanliness of the home. Necessary to good housekeeping.

Active agents are making $30 to $60 per week and building up a permanent business selling these machines. They sell readily when properly presented.

Hand $15 — Electric $75

We want an intelligent Agent for this territory

NEW YORK VACUUM CLEANER CO.
Marbridge Building, Broadway and 34th Street - NEW YORK CITY

Be master of your own time. Use a Gillette

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 9-1911.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures those weaknesses so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just smile and shake your head!

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cures liver ills.

Splendid Crops

in Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels of Wheat from 20 Acres

Last year was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 210. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from the FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS of Western Canada.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Land values should double in two years' time.

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts; 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest; wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to Canadian Government Agents.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.)

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results

5¢

COUPON IN EACH PACKAGE

CHEW AND SMOKE

MAIL POUCH TOBACCO

Once Try, Always Buy

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

BITTINGER.

Jacob Brenneman is offering his customers special prices on High grade fertilizers this week, all because his family was increased by the arrival of a young daughter in his home on the 6th of this month.

A specially heavy run of sugar water made it necessary for many of the owners of sugar orchards in this section to gather last Sunday.

William Kalbfliesh, residing near this place, has been laid up for some months from blood poisoning and it is reported that his family are in destitute circumstances.

Noah Brenneman was a pleasant caller in this village last Monday afternoon.

Miss Bessie Wiley entertained a number of her young friends at an old time "taffy pulling" last Saturday evening.

Misses Emma McKenzie, Estella and Carrie Reckner, of North Glade, spent last Saturday and Sunday with friends here.

Messrs. William Fitzwater, Robert and George Reckner, of North Glade, came to this place last Saturday to get a taste of maple sweets.

Truman Bittinger, of Grantsville, passed through this village last Sunday afternoon.

Adam Hetrick, of Accident, was seen in this neighborhood last Saturday.

HAUSER.

Mrs. P. J. Wade and daughter Miss Lena left last Thursday for Davis, W. Va. Rev. P. J. Wade was reported as worse.

Mr. Oscar Roth and David Bitner selected an excellent March day last week (Tuesday) for a visit to the county metropolis.

A house is being built this week on the Shaffer farm for the accommodation of the men who are working the sawmill there.

The snow Tuesday gave the farmers one more day of fairly good sledding and logs, lumber, ties and other odd jobs were attended to.

Mr. Ernest Sell, of Thomas, was visiting his wife here last week. Mrs. Sell is some better.

Mr. John Evans has been visiting among the people with a subscription paper to aid in defraying the nurse hire of Rev. P. J. Wade in the hospital at Davis, W. Va.

Mr. Obed Hamstead has purchased machinery for a new mill at Eglon, or so it is reported. It is good news and welcome.

C. E. Sherman visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Gauer Sunday.

Miss Merle Fowler, after a visit of ten days at home returned to Clarksburg, W. Va., last Monday.

Misses Maggie Beckner and Hope Gnegy visited with Mrs. Arnet Gauer and Mrs. Rosella Sell last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. J. Reed visited with Mr. and Mrs. John Sisler last Sunday. Miss Gertie Sisler is very sick at present.

Mrs. Elmer Shaffer returned from Thomas last Sunday, where she has been under the treatment of the doctor for about three weeks. She is improved in health.

Plowing is now the order of the day and nearly everyone is doing some of this useful work.

What has happened to New Germany? If any accident happened, the public should be notified.

FRIENDSVILLE.

Some days we have beautiful Spring weather and then some days we don't.

Frank Spears was running his auto around town last week. Its a dandy.

George F. Frazee, wife and son left Friday for a trip to Pennsylvania.

Harry Van Zandt was a visitor to our town last week.

Mrs. Paul and family were the guests of Mrs. Jessie Frazee for a few days, leaving for her home at Unamus on Monday.

Mrs. John W. McCullough and Mrs. Earl Statler returned home Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. E. C. Ryland is very sick and under the doctor's care.

Where are those surveyors that were to have been here a week ago? Maybe it would be a good plan to send a tracer after them.

Miss Richter, of Accident, was the guest of Mrs. Neil and daughter from Saturday until Monday.

The entertainment in the Opera House Friday and Saturday evenings was given as advertised and was a grand success. The nights could not have been better if they had been made to order. The reserved seats were all sold early in the week for both nights, and a large crowd gathered Friday night, but Saturday every available space in the house was taken, testing the strength of the house as never before, and long before the curtain went up on the first act many coming from a distance were unable to get inside the doors. The audiences both nights kept the very best of order. The play was given in a professional manner, each doing his or her part in splendid style. To mention any particular character would be wrong for all filled their parts admirably, and shows what can be accomplished if all are determined to make a success of it. Neither must we forget the orchestra who by continuous practice produced such delightful music both nights.

The town council met on Monday evening and the new Councilmen were sworn in by the Mayor, after which the Council was reorganized as follows: President, C. V. Guard; vice president, W. F. East; treasurer, L. E. Friend; street committee, F. G. Fox, James W. Friend and Alpheous Welch. Leon Hardie was reappointed police magistrate and L. M. Welch secretary. Constable Nugent was appointed policeman. The financial report was read by the Clerk and ordered posted for the benefit of the citizens. L. M. Welch was hired to look after the fire engine and will be paid by the year for doing so. The Council will meet again next Monday evening.

Miss Rebecca Wright, of Somerfield, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brown, of Confluence, and Clyde Shartzer were guests of F. G. Fox and family Saturday and Sunday.

RYAN'S GLADE.

Sugar making is in full blast in this section Quite a few people visit the sugar camps these days to sweeten up.

Our school is getting on nicely. Harold Moon is our teacher.

Our Sunday school which has been closed for the first quarter of the year, will open up the first of April.

Mr. Virgil Steyer, of Branard, was visiting his sister, Mrs. J. B. Shockey, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wotring, of near Aurora, were visiting friends in this section recently.

Misses Jessie Thompson and Ethel Neville will enter the West Virginia Wesleyan College at Buckhannon for the spring term.

Quite a surprise party was given Mr. Geo. W. Harvey on Saturday evening. Mr. Harvey has been sick and unable to work since last fall and his friends thought they would like to help him bear his burdens, so they gave him a donation of money and the necessaries of life. About fifty in number gathered at his residence and left their tokens of remembrances; which, with sixty dollars in cash and enough groceries to bring the total up to $45. Now this is what we call the Christ spirit and the old proverb "A friend in need is a friend indeed," and I am sure those who took these tokens of love to our fellowman have been more than paid for the sacrifice made, for we learn that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Mr. Harvey is very grateful, not alone for the donation, but for the fact that he has so many sympathizing friends.

The Seldom Seen Lumber Co., has finished their contract of sawing for S. G. Steyer and will soon move their mill.

The Bailwire and Hickorywith Lumber Co. are running their mill full time on the Davis farm.

Old Bullfrog.

For playing this merry game one child is seated on the ground with his legs under him while the other players form a ring round him. They then pull him about and give him little pushes, and he must try to catch one without rising from the floor.

The child who is caught takes the middle, while the frog joins the circle.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Loch Lynn will soon have a complete sewerage system, two cars of 10-inch pipe having already been received. With sewerage, water and natural gas our sister town will be a most desirable place in which to live.

The quarterly meeting services last Sunday morning was well attended, and the sermon by Rev. Reid, of Deer Park, was most interesting and instructive.

The International Bible Students' Association will hold their annual convention here September 1-11. This will be the largest conventlon ever held on these grounds and will tax the capacity our hotels and boarding houses and also those of Oakland, Deer Park and Loch Lynn as well.

Mrs. Geo. W. Cochran, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is much better.

Mr. George Cochran, son of Capt. and Mrs. Cochran, representing John S. Naylor & Co., Wheeling wholesale merchants, was visiting his parents at Loch Lynn this week.

Mr. Doman, our miller, received a car load of corn and oats last week which he will grind for his trade.

Messrs. Stevenson & Oblinger unloaded a car of lime this week. It is their intention to put several car loads on their large farm (the Jamesson farm) adjoining Loch Lynn, this spring.

Mr Thomas Barnard has moved into the Hammond cottage near the M. E. church.

Hon. Philip Willett, who spent most of the Winter in England, returned to his home here last week.

Preaching Sunday at 11 a. m. by the pastor, and at 7.30 p. m., Dr. Charles E. Shelton will deliver a lecture on Education. All invited.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Sunday school at 2:15 p. m.
Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.
Epworth League Monday 7:30 p. m.
Prayermeeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows:
Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 10:30 a. m.
Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Deer Park—Preaching at 2:30 p. m.
Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES. Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m.
Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

MT. LAKE PARK M. E.

Class meeting at 10 a. m.
Sundav school at 2.30 p. m.
Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.
Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Pastor.

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Loch Lynn—Preaching at 11 a. m.
Ferndale—Preaching at 7.30 a. m.
Deer Park—Preaching at 7:30 p. m.
Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

DEER PARK M. E. CHARGE.

Services on Deer Park charge as follows:
March 19—Dodge, quarterly meeting. Love Feast 10 a. m.; preaching, quarterly collection and Sacrament of Lord's Supper at 11 a. m. Preaching at 7.30 p. m., by Rev. P. Z. Musgrave, who will hold quarterly conference Monday (20th) at 11 a. m. Full attendance is wanted.
Armstead, preaching at 3 p. m.
Deer Park, preaching at 7.30 p. m., followed by quarterly collection and Sacrament of Lord's Supper.

D. L. REID, Pastor.

ORDER NISI.

George T. Dunlop, et al., vs. John T. Shanks, et. al.
No. 1158 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland

Ordered this 22nd day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by Edward H Sincell, Trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sales to be $100.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice To Delinquent Tax-Payers.

Notice is hereby given to all delinquent tax-payers that if taxes now due and in arrears are not paid before

JANUARY 1ST, 1911,

I will proceed by law to collect. I refer to Section 50 of Chapter 566 of Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, which provides as follows:

SECTION 50. The said Treasurer shall during the first week in December in each and every year, give notice to all delinquent tax-payers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and in hand-bills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrear will be enforced by advertisement and sale unless the same be paid before the 1st day of January next following.

Please pay promptly and save costs.

R. L. FRIES,
Treasurer of Garrett County.

ORDER NISI.

Wm. R. Offutt and J. C. Renninger vs. Joseph W. Cogley and Carrie B. Cogley, his wife.
No. 1719 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Ordered this 18th day of February, in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, sitting in equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause by William R. Offutt and J. C Renninger, trustee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 25th day of March, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper published in Garrett county, once a week for three successive weeks before the 18th day of March, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $400.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True Copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Marplany, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

JACOB W. RINGLER,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 16th of September, next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 14th day of March, 1911.

JACOB BEACHY,
Executor,
Grantsville, Md.

Notice to Creditors.

THIS is to give notice, that the subscriber of Garrett County, Md., has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters of Testamentary on the personal estate of

JOHN T. BOWERS,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 16th day of September, 1911, they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of March, 1911.

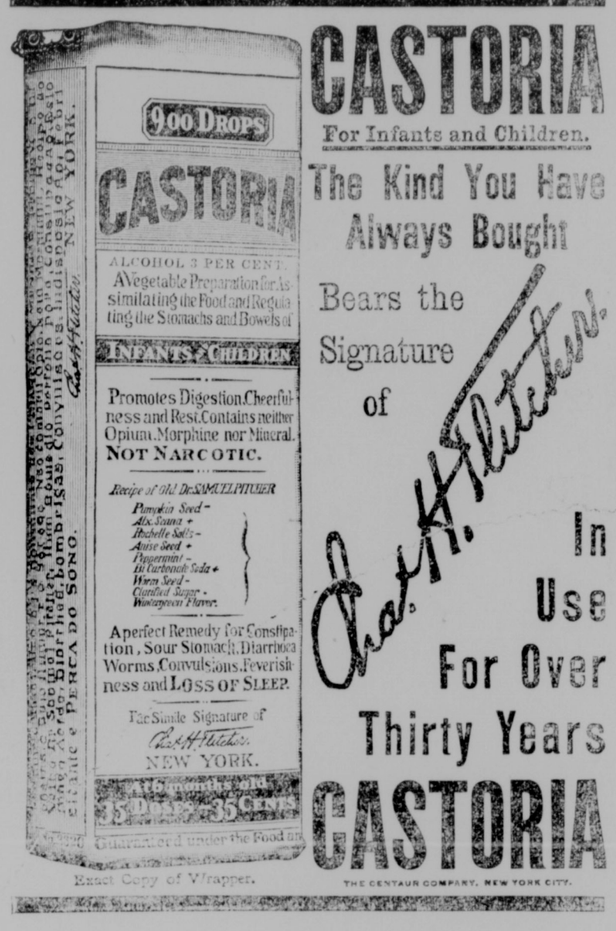
E. E. SOLLARS,
Executor,
Oakland, Md.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.

Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS J. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.

Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m



CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

FROSTBURG GARAGE,
Frostburg, Maryland.
Our Motto: Square Deal for Everybody.
A Bargain---For Sale Cheap---
A 1911 32-H. P. Four-door, Five-passenger Touring Car. Never been run. Purchaser unable to take same. Write at once.

CASH PRICES
ON
Feed and Flour

Yellow Shelled Corn, Kiln Dried, per bu. -	60c
Choice Seed Oats, - - - - - - -	45c
Pure Corn Chop, per cwt., - - r -	$1.10
Corn, Oats and Barley Chop, per cwt., -	1.10
Vienna Flour, 24½ lb. Sack, - - -	75c
Quaker Patent Flour, 24½ lb. Sack, - - - -	70c
Peerless Best Flour. 24½ lb. Sack, - -	65c

The Friendsville Milling Co.
Friendsville, Maryland.

WOOD'S HIGH-GRADE
Farm Seeds.
We are headquarters for the best in all Farm seeds.
Grass and Clover Seeds
Seed Corn, Cotton Seed,
Cow Peas, Soja Beans,
Sorghums, Kaffir Corn,
Millet Seed, Peanuts, etc.
"Wood's Crop Special" issued monthly gives timely information as to seeds to plant each month in the year, also prices of Seasonable Seeds. Write for copy, mailed free on request.
T. W. WOOD & SONS,
Seedsmen, - Richmond, Va.

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-49 ly.

NOTICE!
TO THE
PUBLIC.
I have moved my
MEAT MARKET
INTO THE
Nally Building,
where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.
Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.
I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am
Yours respectfully,
H. McC. SMOUSE.
The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, Maryland, letters of administration on the estate of

JEREMIAH BITTNER,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 2nd day of September, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 2nd day of March, 1911.

NOAH BITTNER,
Administrator,
Accident Md.

New Assessment Appeals.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 17, 1911.

The County Commissioners for Garret County, Maryland, acting as a Board of Control and Review, will be at their office in the town of Oakland, to hear appeals on the new assessments on the following dates:

For District No. 1—March 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, 1911.
For District No. 10—March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20, 1911.
For District No. 4—March 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1911.
For District No. 13—March 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1911.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

MONA G. SPEDDEN,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 9th day of September, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 9th day of March, 1911.

E. M. SPEDDEN,
Administrator,
Crellin, Md.

Order of Publication,

In accordance with Chapter 386, Section 123 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, 1910, relating to Public Education, The Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County, will at the time for making the Annual Levy for 1911, levy for High school purposes in Garrett County, the following amounts for the respective schools herein set forth.

OFFICE OF
THE BOARD OF SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS
OF GARRETT COUNTY,
Oakland, Md., March 6, 1911.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County.

Gentlemen:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 123, Chapter 386 of the Acts of 1910, we herewith submit to your honor the estimated amounts and itemized statements of costs necessary to maintain the following High Schools in Garrett County, for the scholastic year 1911-12, viz:

OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL (State)
Principal's salary	$900 00
3 Assistants, each $200	600 00
Commercial Teacher	720 00
Domestic Science Teacher	500 00
Manual Training Teacher	410 00
Fuel	115 00
Janitor	180 00
Manual Training supplies	200 00
Repairs	50 00
Commencement	25 00
Installing sanitary closets	350 00
	$3,180 00
FRIENDSVILLE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL.
Principal's salary	$865 00
3 Assistants, each $337 50	1,012 50
Fuel	50 00
Incidentals	150 00
Repairs	50 00
	$1,827 50
GRANTSVILLE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL.
Principal's salary	$865 00
2 Assistants, each $337 50	675 00
Fuel	25 00
Incidentals	75 00
Repairs	25 00
	$1,365 00

CHAS. DEFFENBAUGH, Pres.
E. A. BROWNING, Sec'y.

This levy is made in accordance with said Chapter 386, Section 123, of the Acts of 1910, said section 123, reads as follows:

"Each High School in the first group in the counties of Maryland, shall receive State aid on the basis of the cost of instruction, and in the following manner.

"The sum of six hundred dollars on account of the principal, and the sum of three hundred dollars on account of each of the first three assistants employed for regular high school work; the sum of four hundred dollars on account of each of two special teachers, who shall spend not less than two fifths of their time in the school receiving said amounts; and the sum of one hundred dollars on account of additional regular grade teacher, provided the total amount does not exceed the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars. In this article the term special teacher shall be construed to mean a teacher of Commercial, Manual Training, Domestic Science or Agricultural branches. Each high school in the counties of Maryland of Maryland of the second group shall receive State aid on the basis of the cost of instruction, and in the following manner. The sum of six hundred dollars on account of the principal; then sum of four hundred dollars on account of one assistant teacher employed for regular high school work; and the sum of four hundred dollars on account of the instructor of special subjects to be designated by the County School Board; provided that if an instructor of Manual Training or Agricultural work be required to divide his or her time among not more than four schools of this group, one hundred and fifty dollars shall be allowed on account of each of such schools; provided also, that the amount to be received by each of the four high schools of Baltimore city, shall be equal to the maximum amount received on account of any high school in the counties of the State; provided further, that the Board of County School Commissioners of each county shall submit, annually to the County Commissioners of their respective counties, at least thirty days prior to the date for making the usual county levy for school purposes, a list of all high schools of the county, including those not entitled to State aid, as well as those classified in this article, and an itemized statement of the estimated cost of maintaining same, and the said Board of County Commissioners shall make seperate levy for high school, publishing same once a week for three successive weeks prior to the date of making said levy, in one or more county papers."

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

William U. Hensel, attorney named in mortgage to the Lancaster Trust Company to make sale, vs. The Garrett Lumber Company Limited.
No. 1714 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

Ordered this 15th day of March, 1911, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, sitting in Equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause, by William U. Hensel, the attorney named to make sale, in the mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, to the Lancaster Trust Company, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 14th day of April, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper printed in Garrett county once a week for three successive weeks before the 7th day of April, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $600.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 35. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 23 1911. NUMBER 3

SEVEN OF THE CHARGES DISMISSED BY STATE BOARD

Superintendent Browning Found Guilty Upon Two Charges Against Him.

Last Wednesday afternoon, behind closed doors, in the Hotel Rennert, in Baltimore, the State Board of Education considered the testimony taken before the body in Oakland on March 2nd at the trial of Mr. Ed. A. Browning, County Superintendent of public schools of Garrett county, against whom a number of tax payers and residents of Garrett county had preferred charges.

There were nine counts in the charges and a number of the specific matters set forth in the petition for the removal of the official were not gone into very deeply by the prosecution, owing to the lack of time, hence the testimony before the State Board was not as clear as it could have been. The charges as a whole, however, were considered, and after an investigation and due consideration of the matter, Mr. Browning was exonerated of seven and found guilty of two.

The charges which the State Board decided to have been proven by the testimony were that he has failed to hold examinations at stated intervals and of not visiting the schools twice a year during his term of office. As these were not considered of sufficient importance to warrant the accusation of incompetency, the charges were dismissed.

All members of the board were present except Governor Crothers who was engaged in hearing the charges against the Police Commissioners of Baltimore City.

May Lose Sight of his Eye.

Ray Porter, aged about nineteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Porter, of near Oakland, was very seriously injured last Friday afternoon by a spike which rebounded from a plank and struck him in the eye. The young man was treated in Oakland by Dr. McComas who later sent him to Cumberland to receive treatment from a specialist. The Cumberland physician has advised the family of Mr. Porter that there is a probability that the sight of the injured eye will be permanently impaired if not entirely destroyed as a result of the injury sustained. The young man was accompanied to Cumberland by his mother and on Tuesday afternoon his sister, Miss Effie Porter, went to Cumberland to assist in nursing him.

SEN. WELLINGTON WILL LECTURE FRIDAY NIGHT

In the Court House. His Address Being to the High School.

Ex-United States Senator George L. Wellington, of Cumberland, will be the orator at the Maryland Day exercises of the Oakland High School, when he will deliver an address entitled "Distinguished Marylanders in American History," in the new court house Friday (tomorrow) evening at eight o'clock, to which all are cordially invited.

Senator Wellington's ability as a speaker is well known to almost every resident of Oakland and those who attend the lecture tomorrow evening will be well repaid.

Resolutions By Deer Park Quarterly Conference.

WHEREAS, The saloons in Oakland are not only a curse to our county town, but to the whole of Garrett county, because of the corrupting and degrading influences to our citizens, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Quarterly Conference of Deer Park charge, Methodist Episcopal church, in conference assembled at Dodge church this 20th day of March, 1911:

1st. That as a church and as christian citizens we are unalterably opposed to this lawbreaking and murderous traffic in our midst. In the language of our discipline, "It deserves neither charity nor mercy. There is no law it will keep, no pledge it will honor, no child it will not taint, no woman it will not befoul, no man it will not degrade."

2nd. We call the attention of all our members and constituency to the language of our Discipline in reference to the support of candidates for office: "We record our deliberate judgment that no candidate for any office which in any way may have to do with the liquor traffic, has a right to expect, nor ought he to receive, the support of Christian men so long as he stands committed to the liquor interests or refuses to put himself in an attitude of open hostility to the saloon. We hold that it is the duty of every Christian voter to vote for a reputable, qualified candidate upon another ticket, in preference to a disreputable or unfit one, controlled by the saloon, upon his own."

3rd. We demand of every man who becomes a candidate for any office in Garrett county by any political party whatsoever, or any independent candidate, to "put himself in an attitude of open hostility to the saloon," anywhere in Garrett county, when he asks for the votes of our people.

P. Z. MUSGRAVE, Sup't pro tem,
D. L. REID, Pastor Deer Park charge
E. C. CUPPETT, Sec'y Deer Park Quarterly Conference.

FOR RENT—Three nice rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If interested, address Lock Box 171, Oakland, Md.

MINERS' TWO-WEEKS' PAY LAW DECLARED VOID

In a Written Opinion Filed by Associate Judge Henderson.

In a written opinion, covering fourteen pages of legal cap paper, filed on Tuesday in the case of the State of Maryland vs. The Potomac Valley Mining Co., of Allegany county, the Hamill Coal and Coke Company and the Blaine Mining Company, whose works are located in the Potomac Valley near Blaine, by Associate Judge Robert R. Henderson of the Garrett county Circuit Court, the law passed at the last session of the Maryland Legislature requiring mine operators to pay their employees semi-monthly, was declared void, and the indictments returned by the grand jury at the December Term of Court against the coal companies above named, quashed.

In the opinion filed by Judge Henderson, the Court went into the question of the right of the Legislature to pass the act, in view of the provisions of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, authorities from nearly every State in the Union being quoted to strengthen the position taken by the local Court.

From Judge Henderson's opinion the following is quoted:

"The classification of corporations and individuals engaged in mining coal or fire-clay in Garrett county, for the purpose of imposing upon this class burdens not imposed upon other industries, seems to be unreasonable and arbitrary and founded upon no essential or apparent difference in conditions in this class and others engaged in mechanical or similar occupations. The act does not explain or even suggest any reason why mining companies should pay their employees twice a month, when railroads, lumbering or manufacturing concerns are not required to do so. Nor is there any reason for such classification or differentiation that occurs in the Court. With every disposition to uphold solemn acts of the legislature the Court must be mindful of the duty to protect citizens from the imposition of unequal or unwarrantable burdens, and after a full consideration of this act I have reached the conclusion that it is not proper exercise of police power and that it violates the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States and must be struck down, unless it be upheld, as far as corporations are concerned, by an act amending the charters of all mining companies."

The case has been appealed to the Court of Appeals by Mr. Renninger, representing the State. Messrs. E. H. Sincell and G. S. Hamill are attorneys for the coal companies.

MARCH TERM OF CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Robert R. Henderson Presided Over a Two Days' Session.

The March Term, a non-jury session of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, was in session Monday and Tuesday with Associate Judge Robert R. Henderson on the bench.

In a number of uncontested cases judgments were entered and the following trials took place.

David Griff vs. Alex. Kitzmiller, an appeal case; verdict for Kitzmiller for $24 and costs. Renninger & Offutt—Thayer.

Yonker Bros. vs. Cuppett, Leighton & Co., also an appeal. Verdict for the appelles for $48 and costs. Thayer—Hamill.

Same vs. D. M. Lower; appeal; verdict held sub curia. Thayer—Hamill.

Frank Tolio, a foreigner arrested at Kitzmiller, charged with criminal assault, was admitted to bail in the sum of $300.

In the case of the State vs. Younker Bros., charged with polluting a stream, the verdict of the Court was not guilty.

Freeland Tibbetts, of Kitzmiller, entered a plea of guilty of selling liquor without a license and was fined $20 and costs.

A Story—That's All.

He was up against it—as many a fellow has been before him—in trouble which only the coin of the realm could cure. After calling a mental mass meeting of all those likely and best able to help him over the hump, he wrote letters in which he told his story. Both men thus addressed promptly replied. One envelope contained the information that the writer was awfully sorry and would pray for him—the other a draft for the amount he had said he must have and the comforting assurance that he was a blamed fool and always had been, but that there was more where this came from, in case he discovered later that he had made a mistake in his figures. After you've made up your mind as to which of the two is the better man, just imagine that this paragraph is a puzzle-picture—and find the friend!

BOLDEN, BROWN & WEIMER

We think we have the Biggest and Best line of Clothing to be found in the County, consisting of the Famous Snellenburg Line and several other good makes.

The NORFOLK,
JUNIOR
For the Little Fellows
is the proper thing and we have lots of them at prices to suit.

FOR LARGER BOYS

We have a big line of Knickerbocker suits in a large variety of patterns.

FOR YOUNG MEN

We have the best line we have ever had. Come and see before you buy.

AND A

Big Line of Suits
FOR THE middle aged and older men, and Priced as Low
as is consistent with honest merchandise.

Bolden, Brown & Weimer
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Garthright & Harvey

Our buyer is in the Eastern cities this week buying our

SPRING LINE

which will be on display next week.

We cordially invite YOU to inspect our line before you buy.

Respectfully,

GARTHRIGHT & HARVEY,
Mt. Lake Park, Md.

Garthright & Harvey,
MT. LAKE PARK, MD.

HOUSES ENTERED BY BURGLARS

Monday Night in Oakland But Little Carried Away.

The festive burglar is again, or was abroad, in Oakland last Monday night, when the residences of Mr. R. E. Sliger on Second street, and that of Mr. Chas. F. Hammond on Wilson street, were entered and in each instance the lower floors of the buildings were ransacked in the evident search for money as jewelry and silver ware in both houses were gone over without being molested.

Entrance was gained to the houses by side windows and after making exploration of the kitchens, dining and other rooms, the burglar departed with but twenty cents to repay him for his labor and trouble, this amount being obtained at the home of Mr. Sliger.

The home of Mr. G. A. Fraley was also visited by the burglar but he did not gain entrance, as Mr. Fraley's two sons were aroused and going to a window they saw the man try to screen himself behind a tree growing in the adjoining yard. He was invited at the point of a revolver to move off and he went.

Tuesday an effort was made to run the burglars down, when a blood hound from Terra Alta was brought to Oakland. The dog picked up a scent at Mr. Sliger's residence and went out Hoop-pole road for some distance when the scent was lost. Next a scent was taken up at Mr. Hammond's residence and the dog went on the railroad track as far as Hutton, when this, too, was lost.

The petty theiving on the part of the individual who is guilty of the crimes has gotten upon the nerves of a great many Oakland people and it is fair to presume that if it is persisted in he will meet his Waterloo sooner or later, as nearly every householder has prepared to give the robber a warm reception should the opportunity present itself.

DIXON & KELSO

DIXON & KELSO,

Have a big stock of the following seasonable goods:

Prime Timothy Seed, bu.	-	-	$ 6.00
Other Good "	"	-	- 5.50
Red Clover "	"	-	- 10.00
Best Grade Mammoth Clover Seed,			11.00

Have two Cars Portland Cement $1.40 bbl. in small lots; better price in quantities

Big supply FERTILIZERS at prices ranging from $14.00 to $22.00 per ton.

We unloaded another Big Car WIRE this week which we bought in January when prices were lowest which advantage we will give our customers.

Yours to Please. DIXON & KELSO.

The Republican.

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Publisher

OAKLAND, - - MARYLAND

For the time being gasoline is the favorite perfume.

People who keep their sidewalks clean deserve at least honorable mention.

If one swallow doesn't make a summer, what don't three robins make? Spring?

Manuel is to get $39,600 a year. Perhaps there is something in the king business after all.

When rats are not disseminating the bubonic plague they are engaged in other nefarious practices.

All the world loves a lover, but as to these noblemen who seek American girls with money it is merely curious.

If those New Jersey people think that "'hello' verges on profanity" what must they think of "line is busy"?

Think how many hen's eggs young McLean could have bought with the money he paid for that Hope diamond!

Paris is making a move to elevate the moral tone of its literature and its art. There is room for the exercise of its efforts.

A Colorado couple who were divorced in 1875 have just been married again. Sometimes second thoughts come a long time afterward.

A Chicago girl captured a bandit who tried to grab her pocket book. Bandits will learn in time to confine their operations to the less resourceful male sex.

If they take the exaggerated shoulders away from the men and the rats away from the women hotel mattresses might achieve additional softness.

A Boston theologian declares that the story of Adam and Eve is merely a parable. But the old Adam, who blamed everything on his wife, is nobody's fiction.

Thirty per cent. of the students at the University of Wisconsin are round shouldered. Another argument against the over development of gray matter in our youth.

A man was sent to a hospital in New York for examination as to his sanity because he thought himself a fish. Maybe somebody told him he was in the swim.

Asheville, N. C., has a "Jack the Kisser" scare, but we dimly perceive that this may only be an advertisement for the place as a summer resort for old maids.

The aeroplane has been developed far enough to warrant less enthusiasm in offering prizes for flights and more attention to the development of a practical parachute.

One marriage out of every three in San Francisco ends in divorce, according to one who delves in such things. Apparently matrimonial earthquakes are common there, too.

Innovating dressmakers may try to banish the waist line from the feminine form divine; but enterprising man will continue to seek, locate and restore it with his strong right arm.

Not content with the hobble skirt, those Parisian intriguers have sprung the "trouser gown" on us. Possibly the pantaloon effect is expected to make a hit with suffragettes.

Corset coats for men are reported to be recommended by the fashionable tailors. Evidently the fashionable tailors have faith in the theory that men are turning from foolishness.

And now a physician blames the spread of infantile paralysis on fleas. What? Fleas on pitty itty tootsie wootsie? Let the doctor prepare for an onslaught of highly insulted mothers.

A beauty expert says that to keep their mouths beautiful, women must shut them. Here is the sex confronted with the most harrowing alternative ever presented to distracted human choice.

An educator asserts that aeroplanes will abolish war. Which looks like working up a movement to have the Carnegie Peace board use a half million a year in subsidizing aeroplane factories.

New York women say that the feminine throat loses its beautiful contour in making the hissing "s" sound so characteristic of English. As in "Yes?"

The Aero Club of America has acted commendably in taking steps looking to lessening of danger in aviation. One proposition is that machines shall be examined more closely before any attempt at flying is permitted. This is a simple precaution which should be easily taken.

A New York physician tells us that he can cure old age. We have also heard of men who thought they had discovered the secret of perpetual motion. Strange to say, the physician is not in Matteawan.

MARVELS of THE EARTH

CURIOUS, ODD AND INTERESTING OBJECTS AND PLACES

Finest Gopuram In All India

The Meenarchi temple at Madura, India, is conceded to be the finest gopuram or steeple in that country and is visited by many American tourists every year. It towers to a great height and is most elaborately carved from base to apex with countless figures of religious symbolism.

COLLAR FOR CATTLE THIEF

When a cattle thief is caught in Siam, a long wooden framework is fixed round his neck, which effectively prevents any attempt to run away in wood, by catching against the trees. Many minor offenses in Siam are punished with flogging. The man's hands and feet are loosely fastened to a bamboo framework, and he is then thrashed on the bare back with a rattan rod. Murderers about to be beheaded also have their necks fastened to a bundle of bamboos.

KING FOR A DAY OR TWO

Visitors at one of the large hotels at Carlsbad recently were much surprised at the treatment one of the guests received from the hotel staff. Every time the gentleman left the hotel a green carpet was rolled down before him, and the staff stood on each side with uncovered heads and bowed profoundly. This was only one item among many by which they showed him reverence. The strange part of it all was that the man himself was unable to explain the procedure. This went on for a couple of days or so, when it occurred to one gentleman to look at the printed register. There he found an entry which ran: "James the First, King of Buffalo, N. Y." It was the printer's interpretation of the American visitor's name, which was "James I. King of Buffalo, N. Y."

TRAGEDY OF A BIG DRINK

Prince Wladimir Terepakoff, a penniless nobleman, sacrificed his life at Moscow the other week in an attempt to win a strange wager. Count Waldig, a wealthy landowner, made a bet with him that he would not drink a gallon of liquor at a draught. The prince's reward if he accomplished the feat was to be the title deeds of a valuable estate.

The prince ate nothing all day with the exception of a salt herring, and in the evening, in the presence of the count and four witnesses, he raised a gallon jar to his lips and drank steadily until he set it down empty.

The title-deeds of the estate were handed to him, but hardly had he received them when he sunk to the ground and died in a few moments.

Ju-Ju Mountain In the Niger

Southern Nigeria, which has been a British protectorate for eleven years, has made rapid progress in development, but the officials still have to contend with the superstitions and the hostility of the various tribes that inhabit the country. Both of these elements are fostered by a secret federation known as "the Silent Ones," whose headquarters are on the picturesque Ju-Ju mountain on an island in the Niger river.

HUNTING WITH A STEER

Farmers in a number of counties lying on both sides of the Sacramento river, in the central portion of California, are frequently much harassed during the winter by the depredations of countless flocks of wild geese that swarm over the broad grain fields and destroy the young, sprouting grain stalks. So serious are these annual invasions that many of the farms have employees who regularly patrol the fields and do nothing else but keep the feathered pests on the wing.

One of the most novel blinds or stalkers ever used in that section, or and other, for the purpose of destroying the geese, is that of an ingenious farmer of Colusa, who lives on the bank of the Sacramento. He employs a big red steer trained to stalk geese. The steer walks round a flock of geese in an ever-decreasing circle, his master, armed with a repeating shotgun, walking beside him, but on the further side from the flock. The geese have become used to seeing animals grazing near that they pay no attention to them, so that the farmer is enabled to get within shotgun distance and pour a broadside into the flock while it is feeding on the ground and two more shots before the birds are out of range when they rise.

ROQUEFORT AND ITS CHEESE

The village of Roquefort, France, has only 900 inhabitants, but its industry is probably the oldest in the world. It was mentioned by Plineus 2,000 years ago. The cheese is ripened in natural stone grottos, artificially widened and prepared, which grottos are forever agitated by a moist wind from the rock below. Roquefort cheese was highly esteemed in ancient Rome and has been exported for centuries. At the end of the seventeenth century 500,000 pounds per year were made. In the year 1866, 6,000,000 pounds were made and sold. Nowadays the village earns 30,000,000 francs per year by supplying the world with cheese.

WHERE THREE NATIONS MEET

The rulers of three nations could meet by the stones shown in the accompanying illustration, says Popular Mechanics, and hold a conference, each ruler standing on his own territory. The stone on the left marks the limit of Germany, and the one on the right is on neutral ground. The stone in front of the center is in Holland and the one at the back of the center is in Belgium. A person starting from the stone marked neutral territory could visit three nations by taking only a few steps.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

FOOD DERANGES A STOMACH

Culinary Responsibility From a Temperance Standpoint—Creates Liquor Thirst.

The whole territory of the drink question lies contiguous to that of the food question. It overlaps it in many places. Bad cookery is the unexpected cause of many an aching heart, the insidious destroyer of many a happy home. It incites domestic discord, induces intemperate habits and scatters broadcast the seeds of disease. It is a powerful ally of the saloon and the brothel, and one of the most formidable evils with which civilization and Christianity have to contend.

The largest portion of the daily fare of the American people is inharmoniously prepared or improperly cooked. Consequently, it is indigestible, innutritious and unsatisfying. Such food deranges the stomach, and a deranged stomach is responsible for more misdeeds and sins than a carnal heart, writes Mrs. Emma Ewing in an exchange. Poor coffee induces an unnatural thirst for lager beer. Badly prepared, innutritious food drives thousands to drinking dens, and the recruiting offices of crime are filled with stragglers from poorly provisioned homes.

There is no more important organ in a human being than the stomach, and its needs should be treated with thoughtful consideration. Drunkenness often has its origin in the food one eats. It is safe to say that of the 60,000 drunkards who die annually in the United States, a large proportion have the appetite for intoxicating drinks aggravated, if not implanted, by improper food. When people are compelled to live day after day on slack baked bread, heavy pancakes, grease-soaked meats, watery vegetables, sloppy coffee, and a long list of wretchedly cooked articles, is it any wonder that a great many of them resort to stimulants for temporary relief from the discomforts and ailments engendered by their diet? A deranged stomach always longs for stimulants, and with such horrible dietetic and culinary conditions as exist everywhere in this country at the present time, why should we be surprised at the prevalence of the drink habit? Bad food has a pernicious influence upon all classes of society, through all the various relations of life; and it is almost impossible for human beings, with appetites depraved and stomachs deranged by such food to lead clean, pure lives.

Good, nutritious, properly prepared food is essential for the production of healthy, well-developed men and women. It is a prominent factor in the development of a high type of Christian life. Eaten in proper quantities, at proper times, it satisfies a healthy stomach perfectly, and leaves no hankering for candy or chewing gum, no longing for cigars or tobacco, no desire for beer or brandy.

A fearful responsibility rests upon the heads of those who have charge of the culinary department of a nation, and it seems to me that along the line of Christian work of every description, but especially along the lines of temperance work, reformatory efforts must prove comparatively fruitless, until a long step has been taken in the direction of better cookery.

ROBBING SALOONS IS LATEST

Dramshop, Where Much of Crime Is Fostered, Being Made Victim of Murderous Bandits.

The robbing of saloons is, so far as we have ever had opportunity to observe, a new thing under the sun. The saloon has instigated robberies enough; the "chalice," with a draught more bitter than its own nauseous beer, has never before been "commended to its own lips." Just now in Chicago this is being done. After all, it is chickens coming home to roost. Never till now, surely, was this quaint similitude more appropriate in application. Upon the other hand, changing the metaphor, so to speak, once more, it is a very ungrateful proceeding on the part of the robber himself. When he compels the bartender to "hold up his hands" while he empties the till, it is pointing the revolver at the breast which nursed him.

The saloon is his alma mater. He graduated from there to enter his course of burglary, murder and crimes less nameable, on his way to the penitentiary and the gallows. That he should also victimize those who still are undergraduates, surprising them in the midst of their cups and compelling them to stand ignominiously in a row with their backs against the wall, while he empties their pockets, this, surely, cannot be justified. Was there ever a more contemptible exhibition of human shiftlesness and depravity than upon the one hand the toleration of the saloon, and on the other, the saloon itself?—Chicago Standard.

Saloons Are Not Necessary.

Bishop Farthing of Montreal recently declared that no man could justify the present-day drinking saloon. It is absolutely unnecessary that these drinking places should exist. They are dangers to the community.

INFLAMMATION AND PAIN

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I was troubled for a long time with inflammation, pains in my side, sick headaches and nervousness. I had taken so many medicines that I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. A friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to health. I have no more pain, my nerves are stronger and I can do my own work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after everything else had failed, and I recommend it to other suffering women." —Mrs. Wm. Seals 605 W. Howard St., Creston, Iowa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

YOU CAN BUY OR SELL

any Real Estate in Central States thru us, without commission. New way. Write us.

OHIO REALTY SERVICE, Lima, Ohio

A COUNTRY SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

in New York City. Best features of country and city life. Out-of-door sports on school park of 35 acres near the Hudson River. Academic Course Primary Class to Graduation. Upper class for Advanced Special Students. Music and Art. Write for catalogue and terms.

Miss Bangs and Miss Whitin, Riverside Avenue, near 155th St., West, N. Y.

NO STOP.

Ticket Collector—We don't stop here, sir.

Montague Swank (who has just given up a ticket)—Stop where?

Ticket Collector—At the pawnbroker's.

Consumption Spreads in Syria.

Consumptives in Syria are treated today much in the same way as the lepers have been for the last 2,000 years. Tuberculosis is a comparatively recent disease among the Arabs and Syrians, but so rapidly has it spread that the natives are in great fear of it. Consequently when a member of a family is known to have the disease, he is frequently cast out and compelled to die of exposure and want. A small hospital for consumptives has been opened at Beyrout under the direction of Dr. Mary P. Eddy.

When the fight begins within himself, a man's worth something.—Browning.

The Taste Test—

Post Toasties

Have a dainty, sweet flavour that pleases the palate and satisfies particular folks.

The Fact—that each year increasing thousands use this delicious food is good evidence of its popularity.

Post Toasties are ready to serve direct from the pkg. with cream or milk—a convenient, wholesome breakfast dish.

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

BAD TEETH VS. GOOD HEALTH

BY J. J. McCARTY, M.D.

COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUB. CO.

EXAMINING THE TEETH OF CHILDREN IN A GRAMMAR SCHOOL

THE "BOLTING OF FOOD" IS ONE OF THE MOST SERIOUS CONDITIONS OF OUR MODERN LIFE

EFFECT OF SUCKING FINGERS WHEN A BABY, AND ITS CURE ✦ EFFECT OF BREATHING THROUGH THE MOUTH, AND THE CURE

A CLASS BEING TESTED FOR INCREASED MENTAL EFFICIENCY AFTER TEETH HAVE BEEN PUT IN ORDER

THERE are in this country eight factories devoted to the manufacture of artificial teeth. Last year the manufacturers sold over 60,000,000 of these teeth and this year they expect to sell between 78,000,000 and 80,000,000; and every one of these teeth goes to replace a natural tooth which, if given proper care and attention, should last out one's lifetime. Unclean mouths and teeth are responsible for these conditions, for it is a fact fully established that less than eight per cent. of the American people use a toothbrush or make any effort to keep their teeth and mouths clean. In order to have good health we must have sound teeth, yet we are permitting our teeth to decay at a pace that is alarming, which, if unchecked, will lead to a nation of broken-down, dyspeptic men and women.

The first of the permanent teeth, the first molar, usually appears about the sixth year and for that reason has been designated as the "sixth year's molar." These molars are by far the most important of the permanent teeth, performing the duties of grinders of all foods that enter the mouth. From the seventh to the eighth year the incisors appear and perform the functions of dividing the food. The bicuspid teeth begin to make their appearance between the ninth and tenth year and the canine from the twelfth to the fourteenth year. Around the twelfth year the second set of permanent molars appears, followed by the third or wisdom teeth, whose appearance varies from the seventeenth to the twenty-fifth years. These teeth, assisted by the muscles of mastication which control the movements of the jaws, perform the important function of preparing our food for proper assimilation by means of the saliva of the mouth, which contains a ferment called ptyalin, that has the property of changing carbohydrate foods, such as vegetables and cereals, into starch. By a thorough mastication with this ferment the food is prepared so that when it reaches the gastric juices of the stomach digestion can be more readily advanced, and certain portions given off to supply the daily needs of our marvelous system with proper nutrition.

During the days when baby is wrestling with its first teeth the young mother seeks aid in such contrivances as rubber rings and pacifiers, permitting the little one to chew them ad libitum, believing that they promote nature's efforts and assist the child during the dentition period. Her good neighbors have told her all about these adjuncts to teeth cutting and the wonderful results that they have obtained through their use. The mother does not realize that all these contrivances are danagerous to the health and well-being of her child, often being the means of introducing some serious contagious or infectious disease of a most dangerous character. It has been found that rubber rings or pacifiers are bacteria carriers, being loaded with germs of a most virulent type. Even if cleaned and sterilized, there is another reason why they should never be used. They deform the mouth. The dental tissues of the infant are soft and yielding and the use of rings and pacifiers often distorts the mouth and gums, frequently resulting in what is known as mal-occlusion of the teeth, a condition where the upper and lower sets do not properly meet.

The sixth year molar is the most important of all teeth. It is often lost because parents frequently think that it is one of the temporary set. This error is due to the fact that it is cut while most of the first set of teeth are in the mouth. When this tooth is lost nature makes an attempt to close the space, with the result that the entire articulation is destroyed. The space thus created between the teeth is difficult to keep clean, due to the food particles being forced into these spaces. Its loss is also one of the chief causes of irregularities of the other erupting teeth. It is the belief of the entire dental profession that the early loss of this tooth is responsible for more misplaced teeth and ill-shaped jaws than any other condition of the mouth.

Every mother should become familiar with the location of this important tooth. Beginning at the center in front and counting backward on either side, above and below, it is the sixth tooth cut. The mother should carefully watch for any defects found in this tooth, and if cavities are located they should be repaired at once in order that the usefulness of the tooth can be saved.

The great American habit, the "bolting of food," is one of the most serious conditions of our modern life. Dr. Osler has said that the American nation could be divided into two classes, bolters and chewers, with the bolters leading by a large majority. Dr. H. C. Sexton of Shelbyville, Ind., at a meeting of the Indiana Dental association, delivered an interesting address in which he deplored this habit, and advised that a national movement should be organized to be known as the "chewing movement." He said: "The education of the average man, woman and child has been sadly neglected. They have not been taught to use their teeth. When we bolt our food we ignore one of the most important ferments, ptyalin, in our saliva, that has much to do in the process of digestion. But the American habit is to spit, and Americans are the greatest spitters of the world. Between meals they will spit out the invaluable saliva, then when they eat they wash down every unchewed bolus of food with copious draughts of water, coffee, or in summer iced tea. What a foolish, disgusting habit it is and more than foolish, more than disgusting, it is killing in its hurtfulness.

It has been stated that fully 75 per cent. of the people of this country bolt their food. This habit is usually acquired during the early years of childhood and carried on during one's whole life.

It should be the duty of all parents to make their children eat slowly and chew their food properly. Nature has placed these teeth in our mouth for a purpose, a very valuable purpose, too, and if we neglect to properly use them we are inviting conditions that seriously threaten our health and general welfare.

Diseases of the nose and mouth have a great influence upon the dental arch of the mouth, particularly adenoid growths in the nose. If the nose is filled up with these adenoids the free passage of air along the nasal membranes becomes obstructed and results in the child becoming what is known as a "mouth breather." In this change from the normal physiological nasal breathing the dental arch is deformed and irregular teeth is the result. Many of these cases are deplorable, for it not only impairs the ability of the individual to masticate food properly, but it interferes with the voice and changes the whole facial appearance of the person. Another deplorable condition due to these nasal growths is the effect they may have on the mentality of the child. They become stupid, forgetful, inattentive and lack the power of mental concentration. This is caused by these growths obstructing the lymphatic circulation of the brain, preventing the proper supply of nutrition so essential to its development. These adenoid growths not only affect the dental arch of the mouth, but they are the frequent causes of deafness in children. Dr. W. A. Mills of Baltimore, discussing this subject at a recent meeting of Washington dentists, said, "one-half our idiots and insane in our institutions today are so as the result of deformed dental arches due to adenoids in the nose."

Is insanity in many cases due to defective teeth? That is a question that has aroused much interest in the profession due to an interesting series of experiments made by Dr. Henry S. Upson, professor of neurology in the Western Reserve Medical school, Cleveland, Ohio. He found among the insane in the asylums of Cleveland and Columbus many cases of dementia precox and melancholia, these patients all showing dental impaction of the teeth. Taking nine of these unfortunate creatures, Dr. Upson had them operated on dentally and the results obtained were sensational in the extreme. Six of these have fully recovered, two much improved and one showed no mental change at all.

The common cause of all our dental troubles is decay of the teeth, known technically as dental caries. t is a disease known to have existed for centuries. In the British museum is a skull of a mummy dated 2800 B. C., showing evidences of well-marked caries. Dr. L. M. Waugh of Buffalo, quoting from Guerni's "History of Dentistry," calls attention to a collection of Egyptian writings dating back to 1550 B. C., in which are mentioned a number of remedies for this disease. Decay or caries of the teeth is largely due to neglect or failure to keep the mouth and particularly the teeth properly cleaned. If food particles lodge between the teeth and are not removed they eventually ferment. During this fermentation process the mouth bacteria acting on the carbohydrate foodstuffs produce acid fermentation. These acids dissolve the lime salts of the teeth, exposing the dentine to the action of microbes which rapidly destroy the tooth structure. It is the general supposition that teeth always decay from the outside; as a matter of fact the change takes place from within outward and goes on rapidly until there is quite a large cavity. Frequently toothache or extreme sensitiveness to hot or cold food or drink are the first intimations that decay has taken place. Sometimes there is no pain at all and a chance examination discloses the cavity in the tooth.

These tooth cavities are ideal incubators for all kinds of bacteria. Many of the pathogenic bacteria require heat and moisture for their development and the unclean mouth and teeth offer all these conditions. It is not uncommon to find the pus-producing organisms, the bacillus of diphtheria and tuberculosis, in these tooth cavities.

The cases of unclean mouths are legion; not only among children, but among adults. It is estimated that only eight per cent. of the people in this country take care of their teeth.

In a recent paper read before the Society of Medical Inspectors of New York, and commenting on the condition of children's teeth, Dr. Merritt said: "It may be said without fear of contradiction that if the teeth of the coming generation are to be saved it must be done during their school life. In the city of New York there are in this year of 1910 over 600,000 school children, a very large percentage of whom are in need of dental treatment. Few of them ever make use of a tooth brush; their mouths are filthy beyond belief, and most of them have one or more decayed teeth."

Dr. William H. Potter of Boston, at the solicitation of the school board of Brookline, Mass., recently examined the mouths of the school children in that exclusive suburb of Boston and found that 58 per cent. of the children had diseased and defective mouths and teeth.

The school inspectors of Cleveland, Ohio, examined 33,000 children last year and discovered 77 per cent. of them to have defective teeth. It has been estimated that there are over 9,000,000 children in the United States who have defective and diseased teeth and 5,000,000 with enlarged glands and 7,000,000 with defective breathing, due to adenoid growths in the nose.

Dental caries frequently originates during pregnancy and should receive immediate attention. There is an old and true saying, "a tooth for every child," but this can be avoided if the prospective mother will follow the instructions of her physician and her dentist.

THE MOTHER DOES NOT REALIZE THAT THESE CONTRIVANCES ARE DANGEROUS TO THE HEALTH OF HER CHILD

The teeth should never be neglected. It is as essential to keep them clean as it is necessary for us to eat. They should be thoroughly brushed with a medium bristle brush three times a day. Most people brush them in a very perfunctory sort of way, applying the brush horizontally. This does not remove the small particles of food between the teeth and fermentation and decay results. The proper way is to first rinse the mouth with water that has been slightly warmed. This washes away many of the food particles that adhere to the teeth. Next use the brush without any powder or paste to dislodge any food that may still remain on the teeth; then apply your powder or paste by means of the tooth brush and thoroughly use it along the teeth with the cross motion usually applied with the brush to the teeth. You must also brush upward and downward, inward and outward, then backward and forward. In this way all foreign substances are removed. In order to be sure that no particles remain even after this treatment, it is necessary to pass silk dental floss between the teeth. Very frequently if the floss becomes ragged or breaks, it is a guide to some defect existing in the tooth surfaces. In selecting a tooth paste or powder be sure to secure a product free from acid or grit.

In order to obtain a clean mouth and have good teeth and health it is necessary that you should have your dentist look over your teeth at least twice a year. You are not able to locate small cavities with your hand mirror and your dentist has every appliance for doing so. Do not think that because a tooth has decayed it cannot be saved; the roots of teeth do not decay, and the dentist, with the aid of fillings and crowns, can repair these structures and give you much comfort. Missing teeth greatly impair the proper chewing of food. It is here that the dentist can be of important service to you.

Many mothers think that it is useless to take care of baby's temporary teeth, but this is a grievous error. Their permanent teeth have begun formation up in the gums during the temporary period and are ready to make their appearance at the proper physiological time. If care is taken with the temporary set, the permanent ones will appear with some regularity and be formed to produce correct occlusion. Mothers should clean the baby's teeth every day with a weak solution of boracic acid; a soft cloth dipped in this solution should be gently drawn across the teeth and gums at least twice a day. When a child reaches the age of 2½ years it should be examined by the dentist. This is done to insure that the teeth and gums are in good condition.

A MINISTER SPEAKS.

His Statement Should Convince the Most Skeptical.

Kidney sufferers should take fresh courage in reading the statement of Rev. Marion S. Foreman of Greenfield, Ind., given below. He speaks for the benefit of suffering humanity. Says he: "I had kidney trouble in a bad form and was unable to get relief until I began the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They did such good work that I strongly recommend them. I hope my testimonial will prove of benefit to other kidney sufferers."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers, 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Terrible End.

"He met with a hard death."

"How was that?"

"Suffocated by his own hot air in a telephone booth."

For constipation, biliousness, liver disturbances and diseases resulting from impure blood, take Garfield Tea.

Many a man who swears at a big monopoly is nourishing a little one.

Big Assets

Four hundred thousand people take a CASCARET every night—and rise up in the morning and call them blessed. If you don't belong to this great crowd of CASCARET takers you are missing the greatest asset of your life. 916

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

Cured Splint

"I have used Sloan's Liniment on a fine mare for splint and cured her. This makes the third horse I've cured. Have recommended it to my neighbors for thrush and they say it is fine. I find it the best Liniment I ever used. I keep on hand your Sure Colic Cure for myself and neighbors, and I can certainly recommend it for Colic."—S. E. SMITH, McDonough, Ga.

Cured Thrush.

MR. R. W. PARISH, of Bristol, Ind., R. No. 2, writes:—"I have used lots of your Liniment for horses and myself. It is the best Liniment in the world. I cured one of my horses of thrush. Her feet were rotten; the frogs came out; she laid down most of the time. I thought she would die, but I used the Liniment as directed and she never lies down in the daytime now."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

should be in every stable and applied at the first sign of lameness. You don't need to rub, it penetrates.

Will kill a spavin, curb or splint, reduce wind puffs and swollen joints, and is a sure and speedy remedy for fistula, sweeney, founder and thrush.

Price, 50c. and $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

Quick Relief

for an upset stomach, hiccoughs, a sick headache, constipated bowels, or a bilious attack is secured by using

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Sold Everywhere. In boxes 10c. and 25c.

92% IN 6 MONTHS

Our clients who acted on our advice in the purchase of only three established dividend-paying stocks made 92.1% on their investment between August 3, 1910 and February 14, 1911, or at the rate of 184.2% annually.

We have prepared a handsome booklet telling how this was done, explaining the operation of trading in the stock market, and showing how enormous profits can be made with a minimum of risk. THIS BOOKLET IS FREE FOR THE ASKING. WRITE FOR IT TODAY.

CHARLES A. STONEHAM & CO.
COMMISSION BROKERS
56 Broad Street New York City

PISO'S
THE BEST MEDICINE
for COUGHS & COLDS

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, EDITOR.

Entered at the Postoffice in Oakland Md., as Second-class matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION:

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at the following rates:

One copy one year.....$1.25
One copy six months.....75
One copy three months.....40

Advertising Rates made known upon Application.

Remittances may be made by Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft and addressed to

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1911.

BANS ON MATRIMONY.

In matters pertaining to the regulation of the human aggregation little Delaware is continually manifesting a variance of opinion from the usual standards. Arguments, persuasions, taunts and jeers have all in turn failed to shake the three-county state loose from that cherished institution, the whipping post. Occasionally some misguided reformer introduces a bill in the Delaware legislature which proposes to abolish the cat-o'-nine-tails institution, but such a measure never has the ghost of a chance of passing.

It looks now as though matrimonial enterprises are to be as drastically dealt with in Delaware as penal offenses. On Tuesday, with but one dissenting vote, a bill hedging about matrimony in Delaware with unusual barriers to approach passed the House of the legislature with but one dissenting vote. The almost unanimous passage in the House presages the passage in the Senate. The prospective law not only specifies what classes and conditions of people shall not be permitted to marry, but provides that marriage can only be performed by a regularly ordained minister or by the mayor of Wilmington; that in case the woman is under eighteen or the man under twenty-one the licenses shall not be issued without the ascertained consent of parent or guardian, and that when application is made for a license to any official authorized by the state to issue licenses a string of questions under oath shall be answered by the applicant.

The regulations contemplated are, there is reason to believe, needful to the purpose of preventing clandestine or unwise marriages—that is to say, they would be commendable if they have this effect. Attempts to hedge about matrimony with unusual difficulties have rarely accomplished the results aimed at, however. And as to Delaware, it is an easy matter for eloping couples to move across a boundary line. Chester, Pa., is only about fifteen minutes away from Wilmington, and there is even a trolley line connection between the two cities.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The School Question Heard and Determined.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Congratulations may be exchanged upon the ending, for a while at any rate, of the School Board discussions. Evidence has been taken and arguments heard before the tribunal vested with jurisdiction, and whose opinion, it is understood, will be held sub justice until March 15th, 1911.

Since weeks prior to the last Primary Election by private talk and public point busy advocates have kept this subject alive, accentuating its disparaging features before the public mind from their point of view. For an issue thus created this court of final judgment was sought and had. But it should refresh our confidence and deepen our respect for each other to note how pronounced declarations from the out side softened and diminished under the sobering solemnity of an oath administered at the witness rail. That the interest aroused and excitement exhibited had extended in waves to the most distant reaches of the county bounds was made manifest by the crowd of spectators filling every seat and packing every space of the ample room of the Circuit Court.

With judical dignity five members of the State Board of Education occupied the chairs on the judges' stand and presided patiently and becomingly throughout the protrated sitting.

Mr. R. T. Semmes, known among lawyers for his skill in the profession and his pugnacious traits in clashes at the bar, represented the plaintiffs, displaying more than customary zeal to get out his points and baffle his foes. Attorneys William R. Offutt and Albert Doub commanded the fortress of defense, and right royally did they checkmate each movement and beat back every attack. This was the initiatory appearance of Mr. Doub in a Garrett court and his admirable restraint, sound logic and ready ability in every crisis of a case challenged general admiration.

Demands upon the time of the five gentlemen convened as a court required the contestants to begin in the morning and end not later than four o'clock in the afternoon of that day. Certainly a most generous part of the limited time was awarded to the plaintiffs to make good their charges and clear their claims, so generous indeed was this award as to leave comparatively but a brief while for Mr. Browning and members of his board (excluding all their other witnesses) for a hurried rebuttal. However, at this juncture in the drift of procedure the conviction was strong that the web-work of the plaintiff's contention had been too imperfectly woven, and their allegations had been so stripped of support, as to make further testimony unnecessary. Soon after the hour of four the court adjourned, holding decision for subsequent announcement as above stated.

To the indiscrimite observer the testimony taken indicated that the prime charge against the superintendent is an alleged violation of the law as to school visitations. Has any superintendent of Garrett strictly complied with this provision of the law? With schools so sparsely distributed not only over a mountainous but the most extensive territory of any county in the state; with roads obstructed a large part of the winter and difficult to traverse, can a superintendent make the prescribed visits without injurious neglect to more needful duties? The question has been weighed and examined often in the history of the school Act. More than twenty years back, while a member of the school board, this writer perplexed by the task confronting this law, met State Superintendent Newell in Cumberland and talked this matter over fully with him. My memery is that Prof. Newell deliberately stated that, at that time, not one county of the State could faithfully observe this requirement of the School Act, and he advised the best performance conditions would permit, visiting particularly the schools most needing official supervision. The complaint next in gravity it appeared was an alleged assumption by Browning of the function of the entire board. Now the opinion prevails, I am sure, that a superintendent is a member of the board without the right to vote. Does it not strike the thoughtful man as reasonable and judicious for a well regulated board to freely discuss and consider with its superintendent measures and designs to a public usefulness? In fact, seeking a wise and businesslike solution, why not consult with any one capable of supplying desired information? And, is it an extravagant indulgence to infer that the framers of the School Act intended that the mass of work should devolve on the superintendent as they provided for him an ample salary while they specified a mere pittance to defray the actual cost to the members?

Agitations of this order are to be viewed less as evidence of incompetency then as natural out comes even from the precinct organization to the highest station of State affairs. In a period of grave doubt and consuming depression during the war of the Revolusion, ignoble plots were whispered from conclave to conclave for the removal of General Washington—the central star in the firmament of our glory—and the elevation of the presumptions General Gates to supreme command. At Gettysburg, it is thought, General Longstreet was more than willing to see General Lee involved in a decisive defeat, with the hope the government at Richmond would act upon the example of the government at Washington, in deposing a defeated chief, and in that way, Longstreet being next in rank, would rise to the head of the armies. But "There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will." And we are ever finding that divinity frustrating all such designs, clearing the atmosphere and extending the range of vision.

This writer has been, more than a casual observer of Mr. Browning during the incumbency of his position, seeing him constantly in his going out and in while discharging the varying duties imposed by the office, and with a single exception, regards him, educationally and individually, equal to any one of his predecessors. His administration of school affairs has been temperate, progressive and successful. In the formation, enbodiment and conduct of his Teachers Institutes and conventions he has excelled all former superintendents and marked for Garrett an advancement for the increase of knowledge with a modernization of instructive methods. To these assemblages of teachers he has brought specialists and instructors, some of them, of the best attainments and the most matured conceptions found either in the field of development or in the walks of learning. RELLIM.

Road Conditions Leading Into Oakland Should be Improved.

To the Editor of The Republican:

President McCrea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, made a speech at a banquet given in Baltimore recently, and he told Baltimoreans not to advertise the defects of the City, but to talk, rather, of its many advantages and bring them well to the front.

A Baltimorean who makes frequent visits to Oakland and who is ever ready to dilate upon its many beauties and advantages as a place of business and residence, drove into Oakland last Sunday, and on account of the condition of the road leading from Deer Park to Oakland was constantly reminded of a lake of mucilage. Aside from dragging the wagon in which he was riding, the horses had all they could do to raise their feet after plunging them into the mucilage that covered the road from side to side.

He thinks the merchants of Oakland should know of this, and be appraised of what others think about it. The road improvements now going on in Deer Park, under the immediate eye and supervision of Mayor William Hennen of that place, should show Oakland what is done elsewhere, and what can be done to the roads leading into Oakland. The State road will help Oakland immeasurably, but this is not all. The other roads should have attention. It would not be surprising if the road improvements in and about Deer Park, now going on, brought trade to its merchants that now goes to Oakland. The farmer will go to the town to make his purchases that has the best roads leading to it. GOOD ROADS ADVOCATE

March 20, 1911.

He Advises Young Men to Stay East.

To the Editor of The Republican:

DEAR SIR:—I have been a reader of THE REPUBLICAN for some time and enjoy reading the news about my old friends and thought I would send you a few lines.

Some of your articles have impressed me very much. In last week's paper you had an article "Advising Young Men to Come East." I think the advice is very good and in the overdone condition of many things in Southern California it would be a good thing for many young men here to go east. If one has no capital to start with he would find hard work to get a start. As for labor, that is very much overdone and the young man has not the same chance to start here as in the east.

Southern California is a good place for climate, being like Summer nearly all the year around. To anyone with plenty of time and money to spend, they would find this an ideal spot.

I am planning to come back on quite an extensive visit about May 1st.

Yours respectfully.

BENJ. SHEPP.

PASADENA, Cal., March 16th, 1911.

Church Services.

ST PAUL'S M. E.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Sunday school at 2:15 p. m.
Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.
Epworth League Monday 7:30 p. m.
Prayermeeting Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

G. R. WILLIAMSON, Pastor.

ST. MARK S LUTHERAN.

Services next Sabbath as follows:
Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Preaching 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.
Luther League Wednesday 7:30 p. m.
Everybody welcome.

E. MANGES, Pastor.

ST. MATTHEW'S P. E.

Service every Sunday at 11 a. m.
Sunday School at 2:30 p. m.

W. H. SHEARER

BAPTIST.

Services next Sunday as follows:
Loch Lynn—Preaching at 11 a. m.
Deer Park—Preaching at 7:30 p. m.
Everybody invited.

C. W. HUDSON, Pastor.

DEER PARK M. E. CHARGE.

Services on Deer Park charge as follows:

Saturday, March 25—North Glade at 8 p. m.

Sunday, March 24—North Glade at 11 a. m., Sacrament; Thayerville at 3 p. m., Sacrament; Dodge at 7.30 p. m., revival meeting.

D. L. REID, Pastor.

BITTINGER.

Rev. C. H. Schull, of Massillon, Ohio, preached trial sermons to the different congregations constituting the Bittinger charge, with a view to taking up the work permanently.

Leonard Stark, of Chaffee, W. Va., is spending this week with his parents here.

Amos H. Reckner, of North Glade, spent a few days last week among his old neighbors here.

William Bowers, of the Backwoods settlement, was a pleasant caller in this village last Monday afternoon.

John Legeer purchased a fine cow from Patterson Engle last week.

On Wednesday night of last week the mercury went down to eight degrees below zero, and a high wind continued all night, causing more suffering from cold than any other period of the winter.

Patterson Engle has already shipped some choice maple sugar and syrup to his regular customers in Baltimore.

Jacob Brenneman has secured orders for a larger quantity of fertilizer this season than ever before.

Silas Platter and family were visiting in Jennings last Sunday afternoon.

Call for Your Letters.

M. L. Jarboe, Lucretia Wilson, Mr. Marthen, Lushian Bucklew, George Fomker, Paul W. Cox, Gertrude McIndoe, Margret Monger, C. W. Evans, Kathryn O'dell, H. R. Jones, J. R. Stevens.

Farm at Public Auction.

I will offer at public auction on Saturday, April 1st, at 10 a. m., the Gov. Francis Thomas farm, located near Frankville. The sale to occur at the house on the place. The farm contains 600 acres; minerals and oil excepted from the sale. Terms cash.

3t-pd. D. T. MICHAELS.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, Maryland, letters of administration on the estate of

JEREMIAH BITTNER,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 2nd day of September, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 2nd day of March, 1911.

NOAH BITTNER,
Administrator,
Accident Md.

New Assessment Appeals.

OFFICE OF THE
COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR GARRETT CO.,
OAKLAND, MD., Feb. 17, 1910.

The County Commissioners for Garret County, Maryland, acting as a Board of Control and Review, will be at their office in the town of Oakland, to hear appeals on the new assessments on the following dates:

For District No. 1—March 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, 1911.
For District No. 10—March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20, 1911.
For District No. 4—March 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, 1911.
For District No. 13—March 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1911.

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters testamentary on the estate of

MONA G. SPEDDEN,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof duly authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 9th day of September, 1911; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 9th day of March, 1911.

E. M. SPEDDEN,
Administrator,
Crellin, Md.

Order of Publication,

In accordance with Chapter 386, Section 123 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, 1910, relating to Public Education, The Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County, will at the time for making the Annual Levy for 1911, levy for High School purposes in Garrett County, the following amounts for the respective schools herein set forth,

OFFICE OF
THE BOARD OF SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS
OF GARRETT COUNTY,
Oakland, Md., March 6, 1911.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County.

Gentlemen:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 123, Chapter 386 of the Acts of 1910, we herewith submit to your honor the estimated amounts and itemized statements of costs necessary to maintain the following High Schools in Garrett County, for the scholastic year 1911-12, viz:

OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL (State):
Principal's salary	$650 00
3 Assistants, each $200	600 00
Commercial Teacher	200 00
Domestic Science Teacher	500 00
Manual Training Teacher	410 00
Fuel	115 00
Janitor	100 00
Manual Training supplies	200 00
Repairs	50 00
Commencement	25 00
Installing sanitary closets	350 00
	$3,189 00
FRIENDSVILLE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL.
Principal's salary	$565 00
3 Assistants, each $337 50	1,012 50
Fuel	50 00
Incidentals	150 00
Repairs	50 00
	$1,827 50
GRANTSVILLE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL.
Principal's salary	$565 00
2 Assistants, each $337 50	675 00
Fuel	25 00
Incidentals	75 00
Repairs	25 00
	$1,365 00

CHAS. DEFFENBAUGH, Pres.
E. A. BROWNING, Sec'y.

This levy is made in accordance with said Chapter 386, Section 123, of the Acts of 1910, said Section 123, reads as follows:

"Each High School in the first group in the counties of Maryland, shall receive State aid on the basis of the cost of instruction, and in the following manner.

"The sum of six hundred dollars on account of the principal, and the sum of three hundred dollars on account of each of the first three assistants employed for regular high school work; the sum of four hundred dollars on account of each of two special teachers, who shall spend not less than two fifths of their time in the school receiving said amounts; and the sum of one hundred dollars on account of additional regular grade teacher, provided the total amount does not exceed the sum of twenty five hundred dollars. In this article the term special teacher shall be construed to mean a teacher of Commercial, Manual Training, Domestic Science or Agricultural branches. Each high school in the counties of Maryland of Maryland of the second group shall receive State aid on the basis of the cost of instruction, and in the following manner. The sum of six hundred dollars on account of the principal; then sum of four hundred dollars on account of one assistant teacher employed for regular high school work; and the sum of four hundred dollars on account of the instructor of special subjects to be designated by the County School Board; provided that if an instructor of Manual Training or Agricultural work be required to divide his or her time among not more than four schools of this group, one hundred and fifty dollars shall be allowed on account of each of such schools; provided also, that the amount to be received by each of the four high schools of Baltimore city, shall be equal to the maximum amount received on account of any high school in the counties of the State; provided further, that the Board of County School Commissioners of each county shall submit annually to the County Commissioners of their respective counties, at least thirty days prior to the date for making the usual county levy for school purposes, a list of all high schools of the county, including those not entitled to State aid, as well as those classified in this article, and an itemized statement of the estimated cost of maintaining same, and the said Board of County Commissioners shall make a seperate levy for high school, publishing same once a week for three successive weeks prior to the date of making said levy, in one or more county papers."

By order of the Board,
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ORDER NISI.

William U. Hensel, attorney named in mortgage to the Lancaster Trust Company to make sale, vs. The Garrett Lumber Company Limited.

No. 1711 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

Ordered this 15th day of March, 1911, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, sitting in Equity, that the sale made and reported in the above cause, by William U. Hensel, the attorney named to make sale, in the mortgage from the Garrett Lumber Company, Limited, to the Lancaster Trust Company, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary be shown on or before the 14th day of April, 1911; provided a copy of this order be published in some newspaper printed in Garrett county once a week for three successive weeks before the 7th day of April, 1911.

The report states the amount of sale to be $600.00.

E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

True copy—Test:
E. Z. TOWER, Clerk.

The Lonaconing Savings Bank Of Allegany County.

Stands First among the State Banks of Maryland

Capital Stock . $20,000
Surplus and Undivided Profits . $60,000
Deposits . . $625,000

3 PER CENT. Interest Paid Upon all Savings Accounts.

GIVE THEM A START

This would be a good time for you to start your young folks on the road to Success.

Early training in the practice of self-denial; instruction as to the use and value of money; opportunities for earning and saving money; all these tend to fix and fasten the children in the ways of thrift and prosperity.

We most gladly assist the young people in getting started.

One Dollar opens an account and entitles the depositor to one of our Savings Banks.

We shall be pleased to have our Garrett County friends call and open an account with us.

JAMES M. SLOAN, President. DUNCAN R. SLOAN, Treasurer.

Capital - $25,000
DEPOSITS, - $193,000

The First National Bank

Friendsville, Md.

Surplus Fund, . $26,000
Undivided Profits, 4,818

OFFICERS:

L. E. FRIEND, President,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres't
R. C. McCANDLISH, Vice-Pres't
ORVAL A. WELCH, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

L. E. FRIEND, Merchant,
J. W. McCULLOUGH, Lumber and Coal
W. W. SAVAGE, Merchant,
D. S. CUSTER, Merchant,
H. M. RUMBAUGH, Farmer,
W. H. H. FRIEND, Pension Agent and Surveyor,
HORACE R. DEWITT, Treasurer of Garrett County, Md.
R. C. McCANDLISH,
JOHN T. GEARY.

THREE GOOD THINGS TO KEEP: Your Temper, Your Secrets, Your Money

Your money kept with us will earn you 4 Per Cent. Interest compounded semi-annually. Keep it here and after while it will keep you.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES FOR RENT.

CAPITAL $25,000.00

The First National Bank

Of Grantsville, Md.

Safe deposit vault boxes for rent.

SURPLUS $13,500.00

The Savings Department

Takes care of your money when waiting other investment. The money earns interest from the day it is deposited. It can be withdrawn at any time.

Its Advantages

Any amount from One Dollar up can be deposited, and interest added to principal twice a year. Pass books are issued to every depositor.

We Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest.
Open Daily except Sundays and Holidays. 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OFFICERS.

C. H. JENNINGS, - - President
U. M. STANTON, - Vice-President
J. EDW. WINTERS, - - Cashier

DIRECTORS.

C. H. Jennings, U. M. Stanton,
W. A. Hitchens, Frank Watts,
W. E. Stanton, W. T. Stanton.

EXECUTOR'S SALE OF A Valuable Farm AND Personal Property

Near Oakland, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of the authority to the undersigned executor contained in the last will and testament of John T. Bowers, late of Garrett county, Maryland, deceased, and duly of probate and record in the Orphans' Court for Gaarett county aforesaid, I will on Thursday, April 6. 1911,

beginning at the hour of nine o'clock a. m., offer at public auction, upon the premises located two and a half miles south of Oakland, to the highest bidder all the personal property belonging to the estate of the said John T. Bowers, deceased, consisting of a large quantity of household and kitchen Furniture, Farming Implements, Wagons, Harrows, Sleds, Mower, Buckeye Binder, Grain Drill, 1 Yearling Bull, 1 Sow and 5 Pigs, 1 Sow and 7 Pigs, 1 Boar, 8 Cows, 10 Yearlings, 2 Sorrel Horses, about 6 tons of Baled Hay, 12 tons Baled Straw, 1 lot Shingles, about 1000 bushels of Oats, 115 bushels Wheat, 250 bushels Ear corn, a large lot of Double and Single Harness and many other articles too numerous to mention and such as are usually found upon a well stocked and well equipped farm.

At the hour of 1 o'clock p. m. of said day I will offer the farm of the said John T. Bowers at public auction to the highest bidder. This property is located about two and a half miles south of Oakland on the road leading from Oakland to the Big Yough River at Forman's, and all improved and under fence; well watered. The buildings consist of a New Barn and commodious Dwelling House and the necessary outbuildings. Upon the farm is a fine orchard of apple trees and the farm is in a high state of cultivation.

Contains 250 Acres,

This farm is considered to be one of the best grain growing farms in Garrett county.

Terms of sale upon which the farm will be sold are as follows: One-third cash on day of sale and the balance in two equal annual payments bearing interest from the day of sale and secured by the bonds of the purchaser. Legal title will be retained until all the purchase money is fully paid.

Terms of sale of the personal property are as follows: A credit of six months will be given upon all sums of $10 and upward to be secured by the notes of the purchasers with security satisfactory to the undersigned executor; all sums under $10 must be paid in cash on the day of sale, and no property is to be removed until the terms of sale are complied with.

EDWARD E. SOLLARS.
Executor.

DR. J. G ROBINSON, DENTIST,
OAKLAND MD.
Office at residence on Liberty street.
GAS ADMINISTERED

The man Who Makes A STUDY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Is the man who best appreciates the detail of the tailoring we turn out The workmanship passes without a question, the fit is naturally a matter of course, but the shape we mould into the garments give them a character that finishes them off and makes the satisfaction of the owner complete.

All this is a bid for your next tailoring order. We know we can make you the best clothes you ever wore. We want you to know it. That order is the best and only sure way to settle the question.

JAMES BROCK,
Dixon Building,
Oakland, Maryland.

The Maryland Agricultural College

COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND.

Maryland's School of Technology

Fifty-fourth year begins Sept. 15.

Entrance examinations 13, 14.

Eight courses of Instruction leading to professional degree of B. S.

Agricultural, Horticural, General, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Biological and Chemical.

The College has a close association with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. College students are permitted to visit the Experiment Farms at Arlington and Beltsville and thus secure an additional equipment for their professional career.

The demand of the age is for men for life's activities. Positions assured to those who have worked with a will.

Each department supplied with the most modern and approved apparatus. Practical work emphasized in all departments. Graduates qualified to enter at once upon life's work. Boarding department supplied with all modern improvements. Bath room, steam heat, electric lights. Location unsurpassed for health.

Tuition, books, heat, light, laundry, board, medical attention, annual deposit, chemical and athletic fees all included in the annual charge of $60.00 per quarter, payable in advance.

Sanitorium for issolation of contagious disease, resident physician and trained nurse in attendance.

Catalog giving full particulars on application. Attention is called to the Two Years Courses in Agriculture and Horticulture. Failure to report promptly means loss of opportunity to student.

Early application necessary for admittance. Write for particulars.

R. W. SYLVESTER President.

Oakland Pharmacy

JOS. E. HARNED, Propr

Drugs, Chemicals, Stationery, Cigars
Cameras and Photo Supplies

Subscribe for THE REPUBLICAN

THE OLD RELIABLE

Garrett National

Bank

OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Commenced business November 14, 1888.

CAPITAL, ...	$50,000
SURPLUS AND PROFITS, .	50,000

OFFICERS:

D. E. OFFUTT, President.

G. S. HAMILL, Vice President.

S. T. JONES, Cashier.

G. A. FRALEY, Assistant Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Daniel E. Offutt	Gilmor S. Hamill
John M. Davis	George W. Legge
John T. Mitchell	William R. Stull
Scott T. Jones

Interest at the rate of 3% per annum paid on Time Certificates of Deposits and Savings Accounts.

Safe Deposit Boxes for rent at reasonable rates.

Naylor sells it for less.

Mr. D. H. Shank, of southern West Virginia, is home for a short visit to his family.

Mr. Scott T. Jones spent a few hours in Terra Alta, W. Va. yesterday on business.

Mr. Elisha Harvey, of near Deer Park, made this office a business visit yesterday.

Mrs G. H. Hocking, of Meyersdale, Pa., arrived in Oakland Monday afternoon to visit her daughter Mrs. Wm. A. Sturgiss.

Mr and Mrs. C. F. Schroeder, of Grafton, spent a few days in Oakland last week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis.

Mr. Oliver Heyward, of Mountain Lake Park, who is just recovering from a severe attack of the grip, was in the city Tuesday on business.

Mr. Charles J. Newman has rented the Green property at the head of Second street, from Mr. D. M. Dixon, and will move into the house April 1st.

Welsbach portico or outdoorlamp, one inverted mantle, is guaranteed the best and cheapest and will consume less gas. G. A. Shirer & Co. 6t

Rev. D. L. Reid, of Deer Park, who is holding a revival meeting at the Dodge church, north of Oakland, was in the city yesterday on business when he made this office a visit.

Mr. T. J. Pickings and son Rigg, who was recently discharged from the hospital in Oakland after being treated for a fracture of the skull, were visiting friends in Oakland Saturday.

Mr. John J. Sweeney, who recently suffered an injury to his foot which rendered him helpless for two weeks or more, has recovered and is now able to be about without the aid of crutches.

Mr. Grant Hershberger, foreman for one of the coal mining interests located near Bloomington, was in Oakland Tuesday on business, this being Mr. Hershberger's first visit to Oakland in three years.

Mr. F. O. Glotfelty went to McHenry last Friday where on Saturday he attended the funeral of his brother-in-law, the late William McLean, mention of whose death was made in these columns last Thursday.

Mrs. C. F. Schroeder left Thursday afternoon for Oakland, where tonight she will sing a solo at a concert given by the First M. E. church of that place. She will remain over Sunday.—Friday's Grafton Sentinel.

Miss Alma Turney returned to her home here last Friday from a visit of several months to relatives residing in Douglas, Wyoming, and Dallas, South Dakota. She expects to return to the west early during the coming summer.

WANTED — Twelve waitressess, at Mountain Lake Park Hotel, June 1st; good wages will be paid. Address Proprietor Mountain Lake Hotel, Mt. Lake Park, Md. 3t

Messrs. Hamill and Nally, who recently erected and equipped a moving picture theatre at Rowlesburg, disposed of their property Tuesday when they sold it at private sale to a resident of Rowlesburg. The former owners of the theatre realized a good profit on the sale of their property.

Mr. Gilmore Bittinger, who recently moved to Grafton from Crellin with his family, was in Oakland yesterday Mr. Bittinger is just recuperating from an eight weeks' attack of typhoid-pneumonia and will visit his father near Mountain Lake Park until he is sufficiently strong to return to his work at Grafton.

YOU CANNOT successfully fight the business battles of life without money. Have you ever said to yourself. "If I only had $1,000 NOW."

Make OUR Bank YOUR Bank.

We pay liberal interest consistent with safety—3 per cent.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.
OAKLAND, MD.

Makes Home Baking Easy

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

NO ALUM. NO LIME PHOSPHATE

Mr. W. H. Crane, of Baltimore, a prominent coal dealer of that city, accompanied by Mr. Walter Townshend, secretary of the Maryland State Senate, who resides in Baltimore county, have been in Oakland for a day or two on business.

Robert Sliger and Louise Harned recently celebrated their anniversaries by entertaining a large number of their youthful friends. Both were recipients of beautiful tokens of friendship and the guests upon each occasion were served with delicious refreshments.

Mr. William M. McCullough, of Donaldsonville, Louisiana, cousin of ex-State Senator W. McCullough Brown, of Garrett county, spent a day or two in Oakland on business this week, going from here to Baltimore yesterday where he will visit Senator Brown for a short time before returning to his home in the South.

Dr. Henry W. McComas was called to Baltimore Sunday afternoon owing to the extreme illness of his father, Dr. J. Lee McComas, who is residing in that city this winter. On Tuesday Mrs. McComas left for Baltimore to accompany her husband and father-in-law to Oakland as soon as the state of the latter's health will permit.

Mr. Charles S. Davis, patentee of the Davis' Steel Range, left Oakland Monday morning for a trip through the southern counties of Pennsylvania where he will endeavor to introduce the ranges among the merchants of that portion of the country. Mr. Davis has a valuable patent and a great improvement upon the ordinary steel range.

Messrs. E. G. Naylor and William Byrd are erecting a garage on the vacant plot of ground fronting the electric lighting plant. The building will have ample space for a large number of cars and the owners will cater to the requirements of autoists who have neither the time nor inclination to keep their cars in repair. Mr. Bird, as well as Mr. Naylor, are both excellent mechanics and will endeavor to render satisfactory service.

Miss Ellen Connell and Miss Cathell, milliners, who visited Baltimore and Pittsburg where the spring stock for the Baltimore Store was purchased, returned to Oakland Monday afternoon. The goods purchased have arrived and are being placed in stock preparatory to the opening which will occur about April 1st. Mrs. Margaret Connell, who visited her daughter at Terra Alto during Miss Ellen Connell's absence, also returned to Oakland Monday afternoon.

Ground on the west side of the Empire Theatre and fronting on Second street, is being cleaned off by Mr. S. A. Nally, the owner, who is preparing to erect a solid concrete building to be used as an automobile garage. The building will have a frontage of thirty-five feet on Second street and a depth of about fifty feet. It will be thoroughly equipped for the automobile business and a competent manager will be in charge as soon as the building is completed.

Ex-Senator Richard T. Browning, of Lake Brown, who was ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Norman R. Sanner, in Oakland, for several weeks, has so much improved in health that he returned to his home at Lake Brown Tuesday, being accompanied thence by Mrs. Browning, who has been in Oakland nursing her husband since he was taken ill. Mr. Browning's restoration to health is gratifying to his many friends throughout the county and various portion of the State.

Since Sunday a gang of construction men working on the B. & O. West of Oakland, have been in Oakland endeavoring to make the town dry, but the funds brought here by the visitors has become exhausted and now they are making the rounds of back doors for something to eat. The saloonkeepers have reaped a harvest and householders as a result of the visits made to their kitchen doors by the gangs are correspondingly poorer. The State's officers have threatened the arrest of the drunks as well as one of the saloonists who persist in selling to them while intoxicated and this may have a good effect and the town cleared of the undesirables.

Eye Operation Successful.

Mr. Louis Bush, of Oakland, who was accompanied to Washington last Friday by Mrs. Bush, underwent an operation on Tuesday to relieve an affection which attacked the sight of his left eye some months ago. The operation was eminently successful and Mr. and Mrs. Bush expect to return to Oakland within the next week or ten days.

Wanted a Farmer

To run large farm. Good wages. See D. M. Dixon, or write Carl B. White, Uniontown, Pa. 3-2t

Mrs. Carney Hartley, nee Miss Kate Leary, of Oakland, arrived here last Saturday from her home in Denver, Colorado, where Mr. Hartley is engaged in the banking business. Mrs. Hartley was accompanied by her step-son, a bright little lad of ten years, and they will remain here a few days on a visit to relatives and friends.

Mr. Edward E. Sollars, executor of the last will and testament of the late John T. Bowers, deceased, gives notice elsewhere in this paper today of the sale of the real and personal property of the deceased, which will occur on the farm lying south of Oakland on Thursday, April 6th, beginning at nine o'clock a. m. The personal property inventory returned by the appraisers amount to more than $3,000. The farm is a magnificent one containing 250 acres, all of which is improved and enclosed under new fencing, the value being variously estimated at from $10,000 to $14,000.

In the Oakland election Monday the democrats, losing a member, the new council comprising four republicans and two democrats. Three to three last year, the republicans did not agitate tariff revision—not even upward, nor did the democrats raise the question of Canadian reciprocity. This year both are in a worse fix. If the republicans revise higher, a democratic mayor for free trade, the motion never will be "put." "In status quo" is therefore, the classic situation in Oakland for at least one more year—unless the Browning case remains unsettled.—Frostburg Journal.

Postal Savings Banks Not a Success.

Ten postal savings banks out of the sixty-eight established Jan. 3rd, show smaller deposits than Grafton, W. Va., according to a statement issued by the postmaster general. Grafton, according to this statement, had on Feb. 28th, when the system had been in operation about two months, twenty six depositors, with deposits aggregating $545, or an average of $20.96. Leadville, Col., leads with 362 depositors, $21,253 on deposit, with an average of $57.21 to the depositor. Newberry, S. C., has the smallest deposits, the total being but $199, and Clifton Forge, Va., has the lawest average to the depositor, $9.07.

Big Engine Pulled a Hundred Yards Up the Mountain.

Last Friday B. and O. engine No. 1800, that went over the mountain side and rolled 300 feet at 39 curve on the Seventeen Mile Grade, was recovered. Three cranes had been working on it for four days. Before the long haul could be made big trees had to be cut and big rocks dynamited out of the way and even then the cables were not effective as usual on account of extreme length. The engine is stripped of all gearing, and looks like a tank car. Engineer James Johnson was making a siding when he felt the track yielding and jumped before the engine toppled over, and this saved his life.

West Virginia Towns Wet.

Saturday last Fairmont voted wet by a majority of 143, and on Monday Grafton followed suit by a majority of nearly 350. The fight made by the opposing forces was hot from start to finish.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk E. Z. Tower since our last report:

Philip Francis Phillips and Ella Freeland, both of Underwoood, W. Va.

Ezra Edson McCoy, of Cross Fork, Pa., and Edith Juniatta Kerling, of Friendsville, Md.

Stoke Cromer Nicholson, of Wolf Summit, W. Va., and Mittie Mondell Skidmore, of Lost Creek, W. Va.

Roscoe Moore, of Salem, W. Va., and Nellie Gillespie, of Weston, W. Va.

Charles B. Manges and Ollie Elizabeth Coughenour, both of Fairhope, Pa.

Whole Town Goes to Sunday School.

The attendance last Sunday in the town Sunday schools aggregated 877, thirteen more than the total population of the place as given by the last census. The U. B. Sunday school had an attendance of 606 and the Hott class in that school had 269. The attendance at the other schools was: Methodist, 166; Presbyterian, 40; Episcopal, 25; Catholic, 20; and Mt. Pizgah M. E., 20.—Berkeley Springs News.

Great Revival at Kitzmiller.

The revival held at Kitzmiller, this county, and conducted by Rev. R. C. Weidler, of the M. E. church, is now in its fourth week. So far one hundred and seven have been converted, eighty-four having united with the church. On Sunday a class numbering seventy-three were received at one time. The Sunday school has an average attendance of 160, or twice its average six month ago.

HAUSER.

Mr. Ernest Sell, of Thomas, W. Va., was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Gauer Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. D. O. Roth and Mrs. Mary Mosser returned home after an extended visit to their father Mr. John Weber at Cumberland. Mr. Weber was laid to rest last Thursday. He leaves several sons and daughters that have already taken their place in the ranks of citizens. They have the heartfelt sympathy of this entire neighborhood where Mr. Weber was well and favorably known.

Rev. P. J. Wade has so far improved that he is now visiting in Thomas, W. Va. His daughter Miss Lena who is with him, fell and is quite severely injured, and Mrs. Wade left Eglon last Monday for Thomas. Every one of their many friends here are grieved to learn of this accident and are anxiously watching and waiting their return to our midst in good health.

Mr. Robt. Lathrum returned home last Friday quite ill with la grippe and a bad cold which threatened pneumonia.

Mrs. Will Hauser, of Stemple Ridge, W. Va., visited relatives here Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Forrest Hauser has been employed by Robt. Lathrum to work on the farm. Mr. Lathrum will continue his employment in the Dobbin saw mill.

Mr. Seymour Hamstead spent Saturday and Sunday in attendance at a Sunday School Convention.

Mr. Isaac Arnold has moved into the new house built near the saw mill on the Shaffer farm.

Miss Gertie Sisler is reported as very sick again.

Many reports of severe colds among the children but happily all are again reported able to be out enjoying the bright sunshine.

Four room cottage with gas and water for rent. Apply to A. D. Nay-

ESTABLISHED 1884.

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

Headquarters for Machinery this spring.

Grain Drills:

Fairmont Favorite, Superior, Pennsylvania Low Down,	Either at $68.00.

Plows:

Syracuse, Wizard, Imperial,	Either at $8.50.
Single Shovel Plows,	1.85.
Double " "	2.25.

Harrows:

Wood frame, 16-tooth, lined bottom and side, Oak frame, for $8.00.

Cultivators and Garden Plows.

Everything else equally as low in price, Naylor has it and sells it for less.

Yours to please,

A. D. NAYLOR & CO.

Circulars for the asking.

H. CREUTZBURG.

SEE MY FALL LINE OF

Dress Goods, Outing Flannels, Etc.

Ladies', Children's, Men's and Boys' Shoes.

Rain Coats for Ladies and Children. Rubber Boots & Shoes.

Full Line of MEN'S AND BOYS CLOTHING.

See my Special Pure Wool $10.00 Black Thibet Suits for Men

Boys Suits $2.50 and up.

Hand-Made Wisconsin Shoes for Men and Boys.

Full Line Groceries,

Meat Market in Connection,

ALL AT THE RIGHT PRICE.

H. CREUTZBURG, Opp P. O., Oakland, Md.

Pay Market Price for Produce.

THE GREATEST SALE OF

Gas Stoves, Heaters

AND TINWARE

In the history of Oakland.

We have on sale at our show rooms the largest and best selection of Gas Stoves, Heaters and Ranges, and Coal Stoves, Ranges and Heaters ever exhibited in Oakland, and at prices that cannot be beaten.

These goods were bought early in the spring at prices away below the present market, and will be sold so as to give our customers the benefit.

In addition to our line of Stoves and Heaters we quote special low prices on Tin Cans, Agate Ware, Tinware, Hods, Reflex Gas Lamps, Galvanized Tubs and Buckets.

Gas Fitting, Roofing and Spouting

A SPECIALTY.

Call upon us, get our prices and compare them with others.

G. A. SHIRER & CO.

The MAN in LOWER TEN

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by a picture of a young girl, whom the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. They go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her grip and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip. Blakeley learns that a man named Sullivan leaped from the train near M—— and sprained his ankle. He stayed some time at the Carter place. While making inquiries at Carter's, Blakeley finds Alison and kisses her. Mrs. Conway, the woman for whom Blakeley bought the Pullman ticket, tries to make a bargain with him for the forged notes, not knowing that they are missing. An amateur detective thinks he has found Sullivan.

CHAPTER XXII—Continued.

I sat for a few minutes thinking it over. "But what did he mean by saying he hadn't seen the notes for ten days? And why is Bronson making the overtures?"

"I think he was lying," Hotchkiss reflected. "Bronson hasn't reached his figure."

"It's a big advance, Mr. Hotchkiss and I appreciate what you have done more than I can tell you," I said. "And now, if you can locate any of my property in this fellow's room we'll send him up for larceny and at least have him where we can get at him. I'm going to Cresson to-morrow, to try to trace him a little from there. But I'll be back in a couple of days and we'll begin to gather in these scattered threads."

Hotchkiss rubbed his hands together delightedly.

"That's it," he said. "That's what we want to do, Mr. Blakeley. We'll gather up the threads ourselves; if we let the police in too soon they'll tangle it up again. I'm not vindictive by nature, but when a fellow like Sullivan not only commits a murder, but goes to all sorts of trouble to put the burden of guilt on an innocent man—I say hunt him down, sir!"

"You are convinced, of course, that Sullivan did it?"

"Who else?" He looked over his glasses at me with the air of a man whose mental attitude is unassailable.

"Well, listen to this," I said.

Then I told him at length of my encounter with Bronson in the restaurant, of the bargain proposed by Mrs. Conway and finally of McKnight's new theory. But, although he was impressed he was far from convinced.

"It's a very vivid piece of imagination," he said, drily; "but while it fits the evidence as far as it goes, it doesn't go far enough. How about the stains in lower seven, the dirk and the wallet? Haven't we even got motive in that telegram from Bronson?"

"Yes," I admitted, "but that bit of chain—"

"Pooh," he said, shortly. "Perhaps, like yourself, Sullivan wore glasses with a chain. Our not finding them does not prove they did not exist."

And there I made an error; half confidences are always mistakes. I could not tell of the broken chain in Alison West's gold purse.

It was one o'clock when Hotchkiss finally left. We had by that time arranged a definite course of action—Hotchkiss to search Sullivan's rooms and if possible find evidence to have him held for larceny, while I went to Cresson.

Strangely enough, however, when I entered the train the following morning, Hotchkiss was already there. He had bought a new notebook and was sharpening a fresh pencil.

"I changed my plans, you see," he said, bustling his newspaper aside for me. "It's no discredit to your intelligence, Mr. Blakeley, but you lack the professional eye, the analytical mind. You legal gentlemen call a spade a spade, although it may be a shovel."

A primrose by the river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And nothing more!

I quoted as the train pulled out.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Night at the Laurels.

I slept most of the way to Cresson, to the disgust of the little detective. Finally he struck up an acquaintance with a kindly faced old priest on his way home to his convent school, armed with a roll of dance music and surreptitious bundles that looked like boxes of candy. From scraps of conversation I gleaned that there had been mysterious occurrences at the convent—ending in the theft of what the reverend father called vaguely "a quantity of undermuslins." I dropped asleep at that point and when I roused a few moments later, the conversation had progressed. Hotchkiss had a diagram on an envelope.

"With this window bolted and that one inaccessible and if, as you say, the —er—garments were in a tub here at X, then, as you hold the key to the other door—I think you said the convent dog did not raise any disturbance? Pardon a personal question, but do you ever walk in your sleep?"

The priest looked bewildered.

"I'll tell you what to do," Hotchkiss said, cheerfully, leaning forward, "look around a little yourself before you call in the police. Somnambulism is a queer thing. It's a question whether we are most ourselves sleeping or waking. Ever think of that? Live a saintly life all day, prayers and matins and all that, and the subconscious mind hikes you out of bed at night to steal undermuslins! Subliminal theft, so to speak. Better examine the roof."

I dozed again. When I wakened Hotchkiss sat alone and the priest, from a corner, was staring at him dazedly over his breviary.

It was raining when we reached Cresson, a wind-driven rain that had forced the agent at the news stand to close himself in and that beat back from the rails in parallel lines of white spray. As he went up the main street Hotchkiss was cheerfully oblivious of the weather, of the threatening dusk, of our generally draggled condition. My draggled condition, I should say, for he improved every moment—his eyes brighter, his ruddy face ruddier, his collar newer and glossier. Sometime, when it does not encircle the little man's neck, I shall test that collar with a match.

I was growing steadily more depressed: I loathed my errand and its necessity. I had always held that a man who played the spy on a woman was beneath contempt. Then, I admit I was afraid of what I might learn. For a time, however, this promised to be a negligible quantity. The streets of the straggling little mountain town had been clean washed of humanity by the downpour. Windows and doors were inhospitably shut and from around an occasional drawn shade came narrow strips of light that merely emphasized our gloom. When Hotchkiss' umbrella turned inside out, I stopped.

"I don't know where you are going," I snarled, "and I don't care. But I'm going to get under cover inside of ten seconds. I'm not amphibious."

I ducked into the next shelter, which happened to be the yawning entrance to a livery stable, and shook myself, dog fashion. Hotchkiss wiped his collar with his handkerchief. It emerged gleaming and unwilted.

"This will do as well as any place," he said, raising his voice above the rattle of the rain. "Got to make a beginning."

I sat down on the usual chair without a back, just inside the door, and stared out at the darkening street. The whole affair had an air of unreality. Now that I was there I doubted the necessity or the value of the journey. I was wet and uncomfortable. Around me, with Cresson as a center, stretched an irregular circumference of mountain, with possibly a ten-mile radius, and in it I was to find the residence of a woman whose first name I did not know and a man who, so far, had been a purely chimerical person.

Hotchkiss had penetrated the steaming interior of the cave and now his voice, punctuated by the occasional thud of horses' hoofs, came to me.

"Something light will do," he was saying. "A runabout, perhaps." He came forward rubbing his hands, followed by a thin man in overalls. "Mr. Peck says," he began—"this is Mr. Peck of Peck & Peck—says that the place we are looking for is about seven miles from the town. It's clearing, isn't it?"

"It is not," I returned, savagely. "And we don't want a runabout, Mr. Peck. What we require is an hermetically sealed diving suit. I suppose there isn't a machine to be had?" Mr. Peck gazed at me in silence: machine to him meant other things than motors. "Automobile," I supplemented. His face cleared.

"None but private affairs. I can give you a good buggy with a rubber apron. Mike, is the doctor's horse in?"

I am still uncertain as to whether the rawboned roan we took out that night over the mountains was the doctor's horse or not. If it was, the doctor may be a good doctor, but he doesn't know anything about a horse. And furthermore, I hope he didn't need the beast that miserable evening.

While they harnessed the horse Hotchkiss told me what he had learned.

"Six Curtises in the town and vicinity," he said. "Sort of family name around here. One of them is telegraph operator at the station. Person we are looking for is—was—a wealthy widow with a brother—named Sullivan! Both supposed to have been killed on the Flier."

"Her brother," I repeated, stupidly.

"You see," Hotchkiss went on, "three people, in one party, took the train here that night, Miss West, Mrs. Curtis and Sullivan. The two women had the drawing room, Sullivan had lower seven. What we want to find out is just who these people were, where they came from, if Bronson knew them, and how Miss West became entangled with them. She may have married Sullivan, for one thing."

I fell into gloom after that. The roan was led unwillingly into the weather, Hotchkiss and I eclipsed behind the blanket. The liveryman stood in the doorway and called directions to us. "You can't miss it," he finished. "Got the name over the gate anyhow, 'The Laurels.' The servants are still there: leastways, we didn't bring them down." He even took a step into the rain as Hotchkiss picked up the lines. "If you're going to settle the estate,"

Another Mile Saw Us, If Possible, More Despondent.

he bawled, "don't forget us, Peck & Peck. A half-bushel of name and a bushel of service."

Hotchkiss could not drive. Born a clerk, he guided the roan much as he would drive a bad pen. And the roan spattered through puddles and splashed ink—mud, that is—until I was in a frenzy of irritation.

"What are we going to say when we get there?" I asked after I had finally taken the reins in my one useful hand. "Get out there at midnight and tell the servants we have come to ask a few questions about the family? It's an idiotic trip anyhow; I wish I had stayed at home."

The roan fell just then and we had to crawl out and help him up. By the time we had partly unharnessed him our matches were gone and the small bicycle lamp on the buggy was wavering only too certainly. We were covered with mud, panting with exertion and even Hotchkiss showed a disposition to be surly. The rain, which had lessened for a time, came on again, the lightning flashes doing more than anything else to reveal our isolated position.

Another mile saw us, if possible, more despondent. The water in our clothes had had time to penetrate; the roan had sprained his shoulder, and drew us along in a series of convulsive jerks. And then through the rain-spattered window of the blanket, I saw a light. It was a small light, rather yellow, and it lasted perhaps 30 seconds. Hotchkiss missed it, and was inclined to doubt me. But in a couple of minutes the roan hobbled to the side of the road and stopped, and I made out a break in the pines and an arched gate.

It was a small gate, too narrow for the buggy. I pulled the horse into as much shelter as possible under the trees, and we got out. Hotchkiss tied the beast and we left him there, head down against the driving rain, drooping and dejected. Then we went toward the house.

It was a long walk. The path bent and twisted, and now and then we lost it. We were climbing as we went. Oddly there were no lights ahead, although it was only ten o'clock—not later. Hotchkiss kept a little ahead of me, knocking into trees now and then, but finding the path in half the time I should have taken. Once, as I felt my way around a tree in the blackness, I put my hand unexpectedly on his shoulder and felt a shudder go down my back.

"What do you expect me to do?" he protested, when I remonstrated. "Hang out a red lantern? What was that? Listen."

We both stood peering into the gloom. The sharp patter of the rain on leaves had ceased and from just ahead there came back to us the stealthy padding of feet in wet soil. My hand closed on Hotchkiss' shoulder and we listened together, warily. The steps were close by, unmistakable. The next flash of lightning showed nothing moving: the house was in full view now, dark and uninviting, looming huge above a terrace, with an Italian garden at the side. Then the blackness again. Somebody's teeth were chattering: I accused Hotchkiss but he denied it.

"Although I'm not very comfortable, I'll admit," he confessed; "there was something breathing right at my elbow here a moment ago."

"Nonsense!" I took his elbow and steered him in what I made out to be the direction of the steps of the Italian garden. "I saw a deer just ahead by the last flash; that's what you heard. By Jove, I hear wheels."

We paused to listen and Hotchkiss put his hand on something close to us. "Here's your deer," he said. "Bronze."

As we neared the house the sense of surveillance we had in the park gradually left us. Stumbling over flower beds, running afoul of a sundial, groping our way savagely along hedges and thorny barrs, we reached the steps finally and climbed the terrace.

It was then that Hotchkiss fell over one of the two stone urns which, with tall boxwood trees in them, mounted guard at each side of the door. He didn't make any attempt to get up. He sat in a puddle on the brick floor of the terrace and clutched his leg and swore softly in government English.

The occasional relief of the lightning was gone. I could not see an outline of the house before me. We had no matches and an instant's investigation showed that the windows were boarded and the house closed. Hotchkiss, still recumbent, was ascertaining the damage, tenderly peeling down his stocking.

"Upon my soul," he said finally, "I don't know whether this moisture is blood or rain. I think I've broken a bone."

"Blood is thicker than water," I suggested. "Is it sticky? See if you can move your toes."

There was a pause: Hotchkiss moved his toes. By that time I had found a knocker and was making the night hideous. But there was no response save the wind that blew sodden leaves derisively in our faces. Once Hotchkiss declared he heard a window sash lifted, but renewed violence with the knocker produced no effect.

"There's only one thing to do," I said, finally. "I'll go back and try to bring the buggy up for you. You can't walk, can you?"

Hotchkiss sat back in his puddle and said he didn't think he could stir, but for me to go back to town and leave him, that he didn't have any family dependent on him and that if he was going to have pneumonia he had probably got it already. I left him there and started back to get a horse.

If possible, it was worse than before. There was no lightning and only by a miracle did I find the little gate again. I drew a long breath of relief, followed by another, equally long, of dismay. For I had found the hitching strap and there was nothing at the end of it! In a lull of the wind I seemed to hear, far off, the eager thud of stable-bound feet. So for the second time I climbed the slope to the Laurels and on the way I thought of many things to say.

I struck the house at a new angle, for I found a veranda, destitute of chairs and furnishings, but dry and evidently roofed. It was better than the terrace, and so, by groping along the wall, I tried to make my way to Hotchkiss. That was how I found the open window. I had passed perhaps six, all closed, and to have my hand grope for the next one and to find instead the soft drapery of an inner curtain was startling, to say the least.

I found Hotchkiss at last around an angle of the stone wall, and told him that the horse was gone. He was disconcerted, but not abased; maintaining that it was a new kind of knot that couldn't slip and that the horse must have chewed the halter through! He was less enthusiastic than I had expected about the window.

"It looks uncommonly like a trap," he said. "I tell you there was some one in the park below when we were coming up. Man has a sixth sense that scientists ignore—a sense of the nearness of things. And all the time you have been gone, some one has been watching me."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Their Own Race the Enemy.

It has been found in Nova Scotia that the lobster's chief enemy is not the dogfish but the lobster.

THE HAND OF GOD

By REV. STEPHEN PAULSON

TEXT—The hand of God is upon all them that seek him for good.—Ezra 8:22.

These words were spoken by Ezra the king Artaxerxes of Babylon. Ezra was sent back to Jerusalem with great stores of gold and silver for the temple. The king offered him a military guard for the journey, but Ezra declares it unnecessary, for, he says, "The hand of God is upon all them for good, that seek him."

Ezra here announces a fact which often passes out of our reckoning. There was a time when fatalism was the general creed and it still lingers in many minds. It is a dreary faith to live by and not true to facts. There is a more beautiful creed and more comforting, and that is the personal providence of a loving father—the hand of God upon all them for good that seek him.

First let us recognize that divine government in our lives is a fact. No one can live and defy God's laws with impunity. Many men seem to think that no notice is taken of their actions, and they go on in their evil ways and apparently prosper. Occasionally one may escape from the justice of human law, but there is no escape from divine law.

The hand of God is a disturbing element. You may be perfectly satisfied with yourself, but God is not satisfied with you. Only to one did he say, "This is my beloved son in whom I am well pleased." There are so many things in our lives that God is not pleased with if his hand is upon us for good. So God never allows us to remain in peace. You would not expect God's government in our lives to be one of indifference and tranquillity.

Do you think, for instance, that God is satisfied with social and moral and political conditions as they are? No, he is not. And therefore God is continually stirring up good men and influences to battle against evil and oppression and to spread the principles of his kingdom, and there are those who resent this divine interference and make his servants bear the brunt of their displeasure.

The gospel of Jesus Christ is a disturbing element wherever it comes, for it cannot exist side by side with evil and oppression, without striving to oppose and overcome them. That was what Jesus had reference to when he said, "I am not come to send peace upon the earth, but a sword."

China lived in self-satisfied ignorance and darkness. Progress was an unknown word and not desired. The same customs and practices and the same primitive methods had obtained for 2,000 years. Then came the man with the gospel and it proved a disturbing element. Missionaries have sometimes been accused by short-sighted persons of causing disturbance and dissension. The charge is true in so far as they are true to the gospel they preach. It is the eternal and inevitable conflict between light and darkness, between truth and falsehood, between good and evil, between Christ and Satan.

The hand of God in human lives is a progressive element. God disturbs our lives to move them on to something better. With him there is never retrogression. If God asks me to strike my tent today to move yonder, it is because yonder there is a higher possibility, a more glorious outlook.

Progress is not necessarily pleasant. Notice how Moses speaks of the departure from Horeb, where many of Israelites were most willing to remain: "And when we departed from Horeb we went through all the great and terrible wilderness which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Ammorites." It was progress, but it was not pleasant. It was through the great and terrible wilderness. It was difficult progress, but the goal was Canaan, the land of promise.

There is a beautiful illustration of the hand of God in human lives in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy: "As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, taketh them, beareth them on her pinions, so the Lord did lead him."

The picture is full of poetry, full of life and truth and beauty. Think over it. The nest is upon a rocky height. The mother eagle comes and takes the eaglets and flings them out of the nest. They scream with fright and begin to fall to the ground. But having stirred up her nest, the eagle "spreadeth abroad her wings." She swoops beneath them, "beareth them on her pinions." She drops them again and again they struggle, but this time not so helplessly. They begin to understand what she means. She is teaching them to fly.

Perhaps circumstances have flung you out until you felt lost in an element that was new and strange to you. Look unto God, who is the help of all who seek him. He spreads out the wings of his omnipotence to protect you. He is teaching you to use the gifts which he has bestowed upon you. There is a purpose in the great wings of the eagle. It is flight. There is a purpose in your life, O child of God. It is flight Godward, sunward, heavenward.

Right Paternalism.

Let us have the right kind of paternalism, which shall not protect infant industries, but protect infants from industry.—Rev. S. S. Wise, Hebrew, New York City.

Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

For sale by all leading druggists. Price 50 cents per bottle.

It is more disgraceful to distrust than to be deceived.—Rochefoucauld.

A cup of Garfield Tea before retiring will insure that all-important measure, the daily cleaning of the system.

What sculpture is to a block of marble, education is to a human soul.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Civic Rivalry.

Squire Durzitt—We're goin' to have a newspaper in Lonelyville.

Uncle Welby Gosh (of Drearyhurst)—Where are ye goin' to git it printed?

Resinol Ointment Is Used in Every Country of the World as the Best Remedy for Itching Piles.

I was terribly annoyed with itching Piles for twenty-five years. I found such great relief with the first application of Resinol Ointment that in future I would not think of being without it. An occasional application is all that is necessary.—Christopher Holmes, Brookline, Mass.

Reason Enough.

A negro near Xenia, O., had been arrested for chicken stealing. He had stolen so many that his crime had become grand larceny.

He was tried and convicted, and brought in for sentence.

"Have you any reason to offer why the judgment of the court should not be passed upon you?" he was asked.

"Well, jedge," he replied, "I cain't go to jail now, nohow. I'm buildin' a shack out yonder, an' I jus' cain't go till I git it done. You kin sholy see dat."—Philadelphia Sunday Evening Post.

Give a Woman a Chance.

Compulsory military service for men, urges a German female advocate of women's right, should be offset by compulsory domestic service for women. On the theory that life in barrack and drill in the manual of arms have benefitted German manhood, she asks, why will not life in the kitchen and exercise in the use of pots and pans similarly raise German womanhood?

If Germany ever organizes a standing army of cooks it may force all Europe to follow its lead. Culinary conscription is a severe measure, but when enforced in Germany other nations might be expected to adopt it. There would be more reason in doing so than in following Germany's lead in militarism. There is more real need of cooks the world over than of soldiers. It is possible to get along without fighting, but not without eating.

HONEST CONFESSION

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

A case in point is that of a practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does.

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

"There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

ANGORA GOATS VALUABLE AS PASTURE SCAVENGERS

One Animal to Acre Will Keep Briers, Weeds and Bushes Completely Subdued on Land That Is Inclined to Grow Up in Wood.

Angora Goat and Does.

My experience with the Angora goat for the past five years has proved that one goat to the acre will keep the briars, weeds and bushes completely subdued in land that is inclined to grow up in blackberry briars and hickory, oak, red bud, dogwood, sumac and similar growths, writes Rufus Lester of Wayne county W. Va., in the Orange Judd Farmer. At the same time, the land will yield as much pasture for horses, cattle, hogs or sheep as it would if the goats were not on it. All kinds of stock seem to do well in the same pasture with the goats.

For the goat to be of best service the underbrush should be cut out or fire should run through the woods, so as to kill the small timber. The large timber should be girdled so as to kill it, and the goats will then keep the sprouts down until the roots of the timber die out and blue grass will sod the land. This will require about three years.

The Angora goat is not afraid of dogs and can protect itself well against their attacks. They are fond of butting each other in play, but I never saw one attempt to fight other stock.

It requires some kind of fence to keep the goat in which he cannot stand on the top of or climb up. The best fence for Angora goats is the woven wire fence. This fence need not be over 40 or 42 inches high. The fence must be close to the ground, so they cannot crawl under. When their hair is long enough to protect them goats will often crawl through a barbed wire fence, if the wires are not very close or the posts close together with the wires well stretched. Goats will not jump over any fence, they want to climb up, and then they will jump down, or they will jump up on top of the fence and then down; but they never jump over a fence like a mule or steer.

FRUIT TREE PLANTING POINTS

Should be Placed in Ground While Dormant in Well Drained Soil With Hole Large Enough to Spread Roots.

(By PROF. JOHN W. LLOYD, Illinois Farmers' Institute.)

1. When to plant fruit trees: While they are dormant; while the ground is in a workable condition; late in the fall after growth has stopped, or early in the spring before it has begun.

2. Where? In well-drained soil.

3. How? Dig an ample hole; spread the roots out in their natural position and pack fine earth around them. It is handy to separate the clods from the fine soil in digging.

There is always a balance between the roots and branches of a tree, so if many roots have been cut off in digging the tree from the nursery, a corresponding amount of the top must come off. If trees are planted in the fall some precaution should be made against their being heaved out of the ground by alternate freezing and thawing. This can be done by spreading a thick layer of straw or manure around the tree.

There are four essential points in the care of fruit trees. They are: 1. Tillage. 2. Fertilization. 3. Pruning. 4. Protection from enemies.

Tillage is just as necessary in tree raising as in corn raising, and for the same reasons: To avoid the competition of other plants, to conserve moisture and to render plant food available.

Intelligent pruning is also very necessary to raising fruit. Each bud on a tree is capable of giving rise to a branch, and if every branch is allowed to grow the tree will become too dense. We must thin out the branches in the tree tops or we will have little fruit. It takes moisture to develop an apple and sunlight to color it; so the foliage must not be too thick. Pruning is also employed to make the tree assume the desired shape. It should also distribute the large branches equidistantly, as nearly as possible. It is always best to grow a good strong branch on the southwest side of the tree, where the hot suns and strong winds come from.

In pruning, we should cut the limb in such a way that it will heal quickly. To do this the limb should always be cut as close to the body as possible and parallel with it. A saw should be used, and the wound must be coated over with white paint or something similar, to prevent weathering and infection from bacteria or fungus growths. Another important thing is to keep trimming off the ends of the limbs on young trees.

There are three kinds of enemies that trees must be protected from. The first of these includes rabbits, mice, etc. A tall piece of heavy paper tied around the base of the young tree, or a piece of wire screening will settle this matter. The second class of enemies contains the insects, of which the scale insects are the most dangerous. The scale insect can be controlled by spraying with a lime-sulphur wash and the chewing insects by spraying with paris green. The third class of enemies consists of fungus diseases. These can be controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture, which is composed as follows: Four pounds copper sulphate, four pounds lime, 50 pounds water.

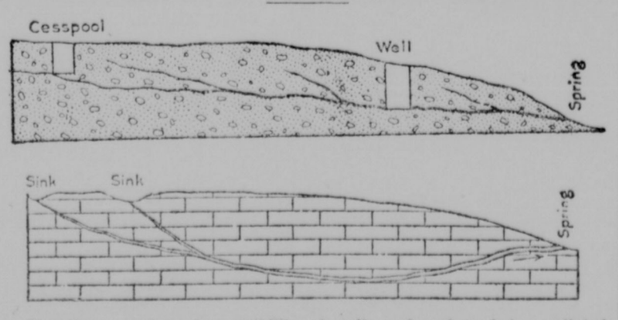
Best Lubricant for Machinery.

Where the pressure is heavy the lubricant should be thick in order to resist being squeezed out under the load. For light pressures oil should be used. Thus for a wagon heavy grease is best, while for a cream separator of high speed a thin oil is necessary in order that its viscosity will not add to the friction. Solid substances in a finely divided state, such as graphite, are often used effectively to reduce friction. This is regarded as a good practice in handling the bearings of a windmill, which can only be looked after occasionally.

Peaches on Grape Vines.

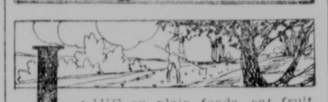
It is reported that near Greensburg, Ind., a large grape vine in some manner became inoculated with a seeding or shoot from a peach tree and last season grew a half dozen well-formed small peaches.

UNSUSPECTED WATER DANGERS



The diagrams show the possibility of wells and springs being polluted by material conducted through tubular water passages in clay soils or even through limestone rocks.

The KITCHEN CABINET



LIVE on plain foods, eat fruit, drink water freely and skip a meal now and then.

Liquid Foods for Invalids.

There is a mistaken idea among many people that beef extracts are very nourishing; they are more stimulating than nourishing, but should always be included in the invalid's diet. Those who know, say that many people have been starved to death being fed on beef extract. Beef essence and tea may be made in the home at less expense and are of greater value as a food.

Beef tea contains albuminous matter, extractives, salts and a small amount of fat. The fiber which remains after these substances are removed contains much proteid matter, which is a valuable food. Although the meat is tasteless, with the addition of seasoning it may be used as a wholesome food.

Beef Essence.—Use a pound of round steak from the top of the round. Wipe and remove all fat, cut in small pieces. Place in a glass jar with a cover, put on a trivet in a kettle and surround with cold water. Allow the water to heat slowly, keeping it at a temperature of 130 degrees Fahrenheit. Let it stand two hours, then press the meat to obtain all the juices. Salt to taste.

Cracker Gruel.—Scald a cup of milk and add half a soda cracker rolled and sifted. Cook five minutes in a double boiler. Season with a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt.

Oatmeal Gruel.—This is a gruel that is cheap and very nutritious. Add a half cup of oatmeal and a teaspoonful of salt to three cupfuls of boiling water and cook three hours in a double boiler. Force through a strainer and dilute with milk or cream; reheat and strain a second time.

Barley Gruel.—Mix three teaspoonfuls of barley flour with cold water to form a thin paste. Add a cup of boiling water and boil 15 minutes; then add half a cup of milk, a fourth of a teaspoon of salt; reheat and strain.

Indian Gruel.—Mix two tablespoonfuls of corn meal, a tablespoon of flour and half a teaspoon of salt together; add cold water to make a thin paste. Add gradually to three cups of boiling water and cook gently one hour. Dilute with milk or cream. A richer gruel may be made by using milk instead of water and cooking three hours in a double boiler.

DISCOURAGEMENT is the biggest mortgage a person can carry. —John Bower.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life goes by like a song,
But the one worth while
Is the one with a smile
When everything goes dead wrong.

Discouragement.

There are women all over this broad land who are growing old and stooped with the burden of discouragement. Convictions are never so bad that they could not be worse, and we can always find those who are not as comfortable as we are and are also carrying the same load of discouragement.

We cannot expect the boys and girls to be self-reliant, to cultivate self-restraint and stick-to-itiveness and grit when they see the mother and father sit down and give up.

There are hard places in all lives, disappointments, reverses and discouragements are bound to come some time or other in all lives, so that it is necessary that in early youth the right value of things should be taught.

The boy or girl who learns to appreciate the processes of nature that are every day going on under the eye, to enjoy the beauty of a sunrise or a sunset, to see God in everything, has a power that no amount of book learning could ever give.

Far too many of both men and women have an idea that to be rich in the possession of money is the chief aim of life.

Money is truly a necessity and one that we cannot do without; but the riches of a well-stored mind cannot be compared to a full purse.

Discouragement and worry often are the result of tired, over-worked nerves. Get out into the open air, take a brisk walk, call on a less fortunate neighbor, forget self and unpleasant thoughts will fly away.

If we could remember that we live but a moment at a time and that often the bridges of discouragement and failure are but mirages that fade away as we approach, life could be much fuller and sweeter.

Nellie Maxwell.

Is an Expensive Affair.

The child welfare exhibit in New York, which will be open for a month, will give every possible information in regard to the home and the child. The cost of putting in the temporary structures in which the exhibits are shown was $15,000, and besides this the sum of $60,000 has been raised to carry on the exhibition. Many of the prominent men and women in New York are interested in the work, and have contributed liberally toward it. One of the largest contributors was Mrs. Russell Sage.

A Generous Gift

Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful, useful and complete almanac. It contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable.

It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the Munyon Remedy Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

A FASHION PUZZLE.

This is merely two ladies of fashion endeavoring to identify each other.

FRENCH BEAN COFFEE, 1 CENT A POUND

It will grow in your own garden. Ripening here in Wisconsin in 90 days. Splendid health coffee and costing to grow about one cent a pound. A great rarity; a healthful drink.

Send us today 15 cents in stamps and we will mail you package above coffee seed with full directions and our mammoth seed and plant catalog free. Or send us 31 cents and we add 10 packages elegant flower and unsurpassable vegetable seeds, sufficient to grow bushels of vegetables and flowers. Or make your remittance 40 cents and we add to all of above 10 packages of wonderful farm seed specialties and novelties. John A. Salzer Seed Co., 182 S. 8th St., La Crosse, Wis.

FEARED THE SCREECH OWL

Woman Was Not Superstitious, but She Cut Short Her Visit to the Country.

"I'm not a bit superstitious, not in the least bit, but—I don't ever want to hear another screech owl in the night," said a woman who remained in the country until the holidays. "Positively, I believe I should go mad if I ever heard that blood-curdling sound again.

"You know they say in the country that if a screech owl comes crying around the house it's a sure sign of death. Of course, I've no faith in that sort of nonsense, but all the same the coachman's mother died after the owl's first appearance.

"The owl came back and one of the employees died. It came back again and I decided that, after all, I didn't want to spend Christmas in the country and lighted back to town. The coachman said something about 'the old rule,' and I just naturally packed up my duds and bought a ticket for New York.

"Ugh-h-h! I shiver now whenever I think of that owl in the apple tree."

HEAD SOLID MASS OF HUMOR

"I think the Cuticura Remedies are the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass; a running sore. It was awful, the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis Lund, Plain City, Utah, Sept. 19, 1910. Send to the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., for free Cuticura Book on the treatment of skin and scalp troubles.

Give a girl a present, and she will not worry about the future.

Take This to Heart.

Some men work harder trying to get out of doing a thing than it would take them to do it.—Exchange.

LADIES CAN WEAR SHOES
one size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy. Refuse substitutes. For Free trial package, address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

People seldom improve when they have no model but themselves to copy after.—Goldsmith.

Sore Throat is no trifling ailment. It will sometimes carry infection to the entire system through the food you eat. Hamlins Wizard Oil cures Sore Throat.

The entire object of true education is to make people not merely do the right thing, but enjoy the right thing.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

Common sense in an uncommon degree is what the world calls wisdom.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

A mind content both crown and kingdom is.—Robert Greene.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

The reward of a thing well done is to have done it.—Emerson.

Garfield Tea has brought good health to thousands! Unequaled for constipation.

Some women are good to look at, but bad to be tied to.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Will purify your blood, clear your complexion, restore your appetite, relieve your tired feeling, build you up. Be sure to take it this spring.

Get it in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs. 100 Doses $1.

Don't Persecute your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal—harsh—unnecessary. Try CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Biliousness. Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.

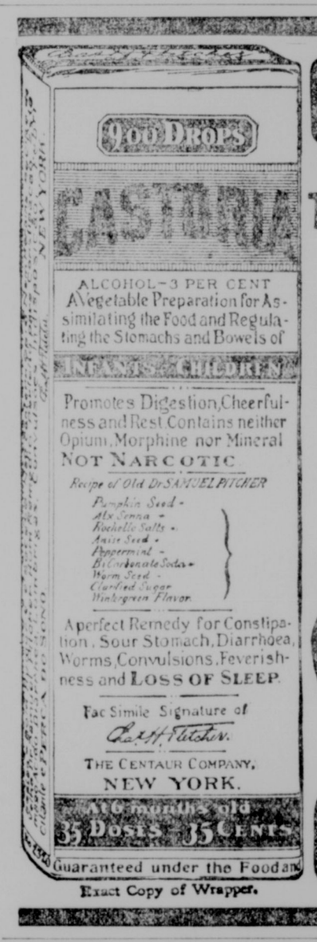
Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

ASTHMA CURED TO STAY CURED

No relapse. No return of choking spells or other asthmatic symptoms. Whetzel system of treatment approved by best U. S. medical authorities as the only system known to permanently cure the disease. FREE TEST TREATMENT including medicines, prepared for any one giving a full description of the case and sending names of 2 asthmatic sufferers. Address FRANK WHETZEL, M. D. Dept. Z, American Express Building, Chicago.



ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral NOT NARCOTIC

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK.

At 6 Months Old
35 DOSES 35 CENTS

Guaranteed under the Foodan

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any stage are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue; acts on the Blood and Glands, expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Chickens in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among horses, cattle and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle, $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special Agents wanted.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

W. L. DOUGLAS
ESTAB. 1876 $2.50 $3 $3.50 & $4 SHOES FOR MEN & WOMEN

W. L. Douglas shoes cost more to make than ordinary shoes, because higher grade leathers are used and selected with greater care. These are the reasons why W. L. Douglas shoes are guaranteed to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other shoes you can buy.

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES.

The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom, which guarantees full value and protects the wearer against high prices and inferior shoes.

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES CLAIMED TO BE 'JUST AS GOOD'

If your dealer cannot supply you with the genuine W. L. Douglas shoes, write for Mail Order Catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W. L. Douglas, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass. $2.00, $2.50 & $3.00

BOYS' SHOES

DEFIANCE Cold Water Starch makes laundry work a pleasure. 16 oz. pkg. 10c.

PATENTS Fortunes are made in patents. Protect your ideas. Our 64 page book free. W. T. Fitzgerald & Co., Washington, D. C.

W. N. U., CLEVELAND, NO. 10–1911.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre, 76, 80 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As big as 122 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Land Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3 per acre are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

Write us to-day for best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (36)

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AGENT
Gardner Building Toledo, Ohio
(Use address nearest you.)

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

R. V. Pierce M.D.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

AT THE COUNTRY STORE.

Three Cornered Repartee Over an Order For Chicken Feed.

"Do you keep chicken feed?" inquired the customer. The grocer grinned brightly.

"No," he said; "we sell it." The customer received the shock well.

"Do you want some?" the grocer asked.

"No," said the customer; "I don't. But I guess I'll have to have it."

"What kind do you use?" asked the grocer. The customer scowled.

"I don't use it," he remarked. "I feed it to chickens."

"Oh, rats!" said the grocer. "Quit your kidding. Get down to facts. I'm busy today. You came here for chicken feed, didn't you?"

"Not much I didn't," said the customer. "I came here for a plug of tobacco. I want the chicken feed sent to the house."

"Where do your chickens live?" the grocer inquired. "I've forgotten the number." He grinned brightly again.

"They live in a chicken house," said the customer with great precision. "It's a whitewashed chicken house at the rear of 223 Johnson street. Don't trouble to knock. Just ask for Mr. Plymouth Rock." The grocer scowled in turn.

"Say," he said, "quit this foolishness, will you? There's people waiting on me."

"Wish there was somebody waiting on me," said the customer. "Hurry up! Put that order down. What time will you have it there?"

"I won't have it there," explained the grocer. "I'll have it here and you'll have it there." Then the customer took a handful of crackers from a barrel and departed.—Galveston News.

The Manchu's Dogs.

At a country club near Washington some members were swapping rather "tall" stories touching the intelligence of their respective dogs when a reserved chap in the corner spoke up. Said he:

"Those are good stories, but the best story I ever heard was of Chinese origin. I'll tell it as I got it at Shanghai, where I was stationed for some time.

"A Manchu had three dogs. Returning home on one occasion, he found them on his couch of teakwood and marble. He whipped the dogs and drove them forth.

"The next evening when the Manchu came home the dogs were lying on the floor. But he placed his hands on the couch and found that it was warm from their bodies. Therefore he whipped the dogs again.

"The third night, returning home a little earlier than usual, he found the dogs sitting before the couch blowing on it to cool it!"—Pittsburg Press.

A Suggestion.

The great suffragette leader towered above the platform.

"The time has come," she shouted, "when I want my name in every feminine mouth in the country!"

"Every feminine mouth!" echoed the small boy who had sneaked in unseen. "Hully gee! Why don't yer have a new chewing gum named after yer?"—Judge's Library.

The Private View.

Lady Goldberg—Well, general, what were you and your charming daughter saying about my portrait?

Gallant General (who prides himself on his tremendous tact)—My dear lady, I make it an invariable rule on these occasions never to remark on any portrait. There is too great a chance of the orginal being within earshot.—New York Mail.

In Outline.

"Have you prepared the speech you are going to deliver?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "I have taken several large sheets of paper and written 'laughter' and 'applause' at regular intervals. Now all I have to do is to fill in the stories or epigrams as needed."—Washington Star.

SHORT RUN.

Not seeing any items from this place for quite a while, we will try to pen a few of the latest happenings.

We wonder what has become of "Pat," that we never hear from her any more.

The farmers here are busy operating their sugar camps. They report a very good season. There has been a great bit of talk and several attempts at inventing some patent to prevent the wind from blowing the pails off the trees, but so far nothing important has been accomplished. One wise farmer suggested that the most convenient way would be to stop the wind from blowing, but we know that to be impossible or "Mr. Bowser" would have accomplished that long ago. But one of the most remarkable patents is an evaporator that by using a few extra shovels full of coal on Saturday evenings will keep the pans boiling the remainder of the night and all the next day. We believe it will pay all sugar makers to purchase this kind of evaporator before another season.

The general health of the people here is very good considering the changeable weather. This I presume is due to the wide distribution of Dr. Harvey's "Native Herbs."

Miss Blanche Chance and Wright Moon, of Gormania, were visiting J. W. Wilson Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Kitzmiller, spent last week here visiting relatives.

Mr. Charles Harvey, of Hendrick, W. Va., spent one day last week at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Harvey, formerly of Elk Garden, W. Va., have recently moved on the "Mountain farm" near here.

Granville Harvey spent several days last week visiting his folks near Deer Park.

C. W. Junkins and Clarence Davis, of Keyser, W. Va., Sundayed at Jas. Wilson.

Supt. Browning visited the school here last week.

Mrs. George White spent last week visiting relatives here.

Fred, the little son of Claude Harvey had his face very badly burned a few days ago, by falling against a hot stove, but we are glad to say he is improving at this writing.

With best wishes to THE REPUBLICAN.

A NEW ONE.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

A quilting party given last week by Mrs. C. J. Rathbun was quite an enjoyable occasion. Among those present were Mesdames C. W. Hudson, E. O. Fouch, John Baker, Rachel White, Smith Lish, U. G. Ford, H. N. Cuppett, Mary Rathbun, Julia Jarboe, Julia Virgin, B. F. Crane, Jas. G. Jarboe and E. E. Kesner.

Mrs. Weems and daughter, after spending most of the winter in Oakland, are again occupying their cottage here.

Dr. Shelton delivered a lecture-sermon on education to the delight of a large audience in the M. E. church Sunday evening last.

Rev. P. Z. Musgrave preached at the Dodge church on the Deer Park circuit Sunday evening last.

Fishing fever has broken out among our boys and even some of the older boys are showing symptoms of the disease.

Mrs. N. J. Haymond left here Tuesday morning for Fairmont where she will spend some time among relatives and friends.

Messrs. Henry Harvey and A. T. White, of the firm of Garthright & Harvey, are in the eastern cities buying the spring stock for that firm.

Rev. Jacob Cuppett, of Bayard, was here this week among relatives.

We are sorry to lose Mr. A. R. Sperry from the station and the community. He has acted as B. & O. agent here for thirty years. His promotion to the position of cashier at Harper's Ferry is well earned. We wish him success in his new field. Mrs. Sperry and daughter Louise will remain here for the summer. Miss Louise has accepted the position of stenographer in the Association office.

Mr. Howard Stuck, of Newburg, has charge of the station here until an agent is appointed.

Mrs. Julia Jarboe left Tuesday morning for Holiday's Cove, W. Va., to be with relatives for several months.

Mr. Gay W. Hayden of the Creedmore Hotel, Grafton, spent Sunday here with his parents.

Mr. Miller, who has the contract to repair the Allegany House, commenced the work Monday, with Messrs. Thos. Schooley and Albert Schrock assisting.

Mr. Oliver Hayward is able to be out and attend to business.

Miss Jennie Lee, of Mountain Lake Park, visited Misses Mary and Welthea Evans, West Union street, this week.—Frostburg Journal.

Dr. Shelton, our new superintendent, is engaged on the preperation of an advance program for the coming season which he hopes to have ready for distribution by the middle of next month. This will prove a much better advertising medium than the programs heretofore which were not distributed until too late in the season to be much advantage to advertisers.

Tax collector R. G. Richardson was here today for the receipt of the 1910 community tax.

Mr. Reedy, one of our telegraph operators, has been notified that a large consignment of young trout will be shipped to him in the near future for distribution in nearby streams under the direction of Mr. John Hipsley, one of our game wardens.

The season for cleaning up and removing the accumulation of leaves has come and it is to be hoped that this work this spring may be more general than for the past several years. The Association, residents and non-residents and owners of vacant lots should all, early in the season, attend to this work which contributes so much to the attractiveness of the Park. Many residents are forced to remove the leaves from their premises several times every spring on account of the neglect of others who allow the leaves to remain on their lots and are carried by every gust of wind onto the premises of their neighbors.

FRIENDSVILLE.

It is not often we get such severe wind storms as prevailed last week.

Why don't someone write to headquarters and find out the reason that the engineers have not shown up to survey the proposed new road.

Dr. Greenwood, our local dentist, slipped on some icy boards Sunday morning and seriously injured his hip and arm and sprained his hand.

Delpha Male is performing the services of nurse to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick, Sr.

Tom Fike went to Baltimore on Monday where he will visit his mother. Milton J. Forsythe is acting as clerk at the Bear Creek Co. store during Mr. Fike's absence.

Mrs. Salathiel Savage has been very ill. We trust she may soon recover.

George F. Frazee moved into the house lately occupied by F. G. Fox and family, on Monday last.

The band members are expecting to purchase uniforms shortly.

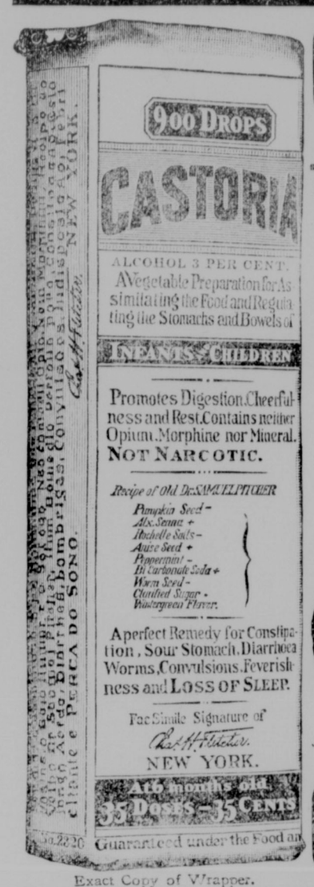
This town would make a good location for a canning factory. The farming community in this vicinity could raise all the vegetables necessary for one or two factories and then see what a nice source of income they would derive from it, besides what a business help it would be to the town. Get together, fellow citizens, and talk it over.

M. E. Frazee will move to Cove where he has bought the Phillip Miller farm. We will be sorry to see him go from among us.

Mrs. Howard Wolf is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ami Frankhouser.

Mr. W. H. H. Friend entertained his Sunday school class Saturday evening at his home on Maple street. The evening was spent in music after which an excellent lunch was served.

W. McLane, of Hoyes, died Wednesday last at his father's home of pneumonia.



Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

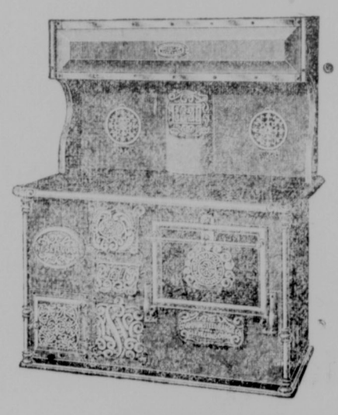
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

THIS HIGH GRADE STEEL RANGE COSTS YOU NOTHING



as compared with any other range of any make whatsoever, that you might buy.

¶ Any other range; any range you ever saw takes its draft through the front end, next to the fire and right underneath the grate.

¶ This air is about 50 to 70 degrees in temperature. The range must burn enough coal to bring the temperature up to 700 degrees, or baking heat

¶ Notice that-ordinary ranges have to burn enough coal to raise the air from 70 to 700 or 630 degrees.

CHAMPION RANGES

take the draft in at the opposite end, pass it under the bottom before it goes under the grate, and the air picks up enough from the waste heat under the bottom to reach about 250 degrees.

¶ The fire has to burn only enough coal to raise it from 250 to 700—450 degrees, as against 630 in ordinary ranges.

¶ CHAMPION RANGES save about 1-3 in fuel, every day they are used. This will pay the full cost of ther ange in 3 to 5 years, making it cheaper to you than any other.

¶ No experiment; been made and used for 18 years by thousands. Patented; can only be had from our agents. Guaranteed as represented or money back.

Send For Free Stove Book No. 5.

THE CHAMPION STOVE CO. CLEVELAND OHIO

SOLD BY

S. LAWTON & SONS, Oakland Md.

NOTICE!

TO THE

PUBLIC.

I have moved my

MEAT MARKET

INTO THE

Nally Building,

where I will conduct an up-to-date meat market.

Beef, Veal, Lamb, Mutton and Pork.

I wish a share of your patronage and thanking you for past favors, I am

Yours respectfully,

H. McC. SMOUSE.

The Up-To-Date Meat Market.

FROSTBURG GARAGE,

Frostburg, Maryland.

Our Motto: Square Deal for Everybody.

A Bargain---For Sale Cheap---

A 1911 32-H. P. Four-door, Five-passenger Touring Car. Never been run. Purchaser unable to take same. Write at once.

CASH PRICES

ON

Feed and Flour

Yellow Shelled Corn, Kiln Dried, per bu. -	60c
Choice Seed Oats, - - - - - - - -	45c
Pure Corn Chop, per cwt., - - - -	$1.10
Corn, Oats and Barley Chop, per cwt., -	1.10
Vienna Flour, 24½ lb. Sack, - - -	75c
Quaker Patent Flour, 24½ lb. Sack, - - -	70c
Peerless Best Flour, 24½ lb. Sack, - -	65c

The Friendsville Milling Co.

Friendsville, Maryland.

WOOD'S HIGH-GRADE

Farm Seeds.

We are headquarters for the best in all Farm seeds.

Grass and Clover Seeds
Seed Corn, Cotton Seed,
Cow Peas, Soja Beans,
Sorghums, Kaffir Corn,
Millet Seed, Peanuts, etc.

"Wood's Crop issued Special" monthly gives timely information as to seeds to plant each month in the year, also prices of Seasonable Seeds. Write for copy, mailed free on request.

T. W. WOOD & SONS,
Seedsmen, - Richmond, Va.

GREATEST BARGAINS

EVER OFFERED IN THIS CITY.
TO BE POSITIVELY SOLD BY ORDER OF THE

CONSOLIDATED CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

400 Horses and Mares 400
200 Young Broke Mules 200
HORSES $25 TO $65 UP.
MULES $75 TO $100 A PAIR UP.

Ages 5 to 8 years, weighing 1000 to 1500 pounds, all good serviceable stock, right out hard work; also 20 BIG, YOUNG, FAT MARES, slightly street sore, will come sound in the country, and 2 MARES that have proven to be in foal, very cheap. P. S.—This is a great opportunity to merchants, contractors and farmers that are in need of good acclimated Horses and Mules ready for immediate use. N. B.—To be sold at the rate of 30 head weekly. Halter, collar and blanket given free with every horse and mule. See SUPERINTENDENT at company's main office and Stables, 513-515 West Franklin Street, between Paca and Greene streets, BALTIMORE, MD. C. & P. Phone, Mt. Vernon 3053. 45-5m

Notice to Creditors.

This is to give notice, That the subscriber of Garrett County Marpiany, hath obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett county, in Maryland, letters Testamentary on the personal estate of

JACOB W. RINGLER,

late of Garrett County, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the day 16th of September next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 14th day of March, 1911.

JACOB BEACHY,
Executor,
Grantsville, Md.

Notice to Creditors.

THIS is to give notice, that the subscriber of Garrett County, Md., has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Garrett County, in Maryland, Letters of Testamentary on the personal estate of

JOHN T. BOWERS,

late of Garrett county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with vouchers thereof legally authenticated to the subscriber, on or before the 16th day of September, 1911, they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

Given under my hand this 12th day of March, 1911.

E. E. SOLLARS,
Executor,
Oakland Md.

DR. EDWARD E. SOLLARS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
DEER PARK, MD.
Prompt attention given all ca day or night.
Garrett County Telephone. 24-1yr.

DR. LOUIS I. PREVOST,
VETERINARY SURGEON,
MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, MD.
Office Hours in Oakland from 2 to 5 o'clock p m

EDWARD H. SINCELL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.
Will practice in the Courts of Garrett and Allegany counties, the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and the adjoining counties of West Virginia.

DR. W. W. GRANT,
DENTIST.
Office, McComas Building, Second street Oakland, Md.
Bridge and Crown Work a Specialty.
Gold and Silver Fillings. 21-09-1y.

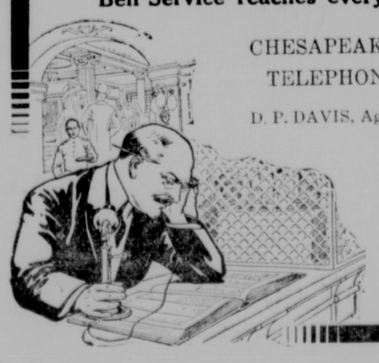
Stuart F. Hamill, George Legge, Jr.
HAMILL & LEGGE
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
OAKLAND, MARYLAND.

Do You Travel?

Good accommodations are easily obtained by

Bell Telephone

Call hotel, railroad and steamship offices and be assured of every comfort. The Bell Service reaches everywhere.



CHESAPEAKE & POTOMAC TELEPHONE COMPANY

D. P. DAVIS, Agent, Keyser, W. Va

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO. AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES — LOCAL AND LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE — BELL SYSTEM

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 35. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 30 1911. NUMBER 4

ANOTHER LIQUOR VIOLATOR WAS FINED $150 AND COSTS

Representative of Independent Brewing Co. Arrested at Kitzmiller.

Of all the open violations of the liquor laws of Garrett county the most flagrant was that of the Independent Brewing Company of Pittsburg, when that concern consigned a car load of their product to Kitzmiller, along with a horse and wagon with which to make deliveries to their customers, some two or three weeks ago.

Last Saturday the representative of the concern, a Bohemian, named Apolinary Jagmin, was arrested at Kitzmiller by Sheriff Shartzer, who brought him to Oakland where he was tried on three charges before Justice Teats on Tuesday and finded $50 and costs in each case, amounting to $181.45. Yesterday the fine and costs were settled and Jagmin was released from jail. Eleven other cases were held against Jagmin and if he again attempts to sell liquor these will be pushed and the fines according to law will be assessed.

AFTERMATH OF COCKFIGHT

Participants at Kitzmiller Plead Guilty and Fined by Justice Teats.

The last chapter in the cocking main held at Kitzmiller some weeks ago when the opera house where the fight was being held, was raided by Sheriff Shartzer and a half hundred participants arrested and placed under forfeits for their appearance in Oakland, has been written and the matter so far as the law is concerned has been closed.

Monday morning Justice A. S. Teats, accompanied by State's Attorney Julius C. Renninger, and Sheriff Shartzer, went over to Kitzmiller and held court when about twenty-five of those who had been arrested on the night of the raid appeared before the Justice and entered pleas of guilty. They were each fined $1 and costs, except in the case of three of the accused who were assessed $3 each and costs. The approximate amount collected by the sheriff in costs and fines amounted to about $125.

Guilty of Murder in Second Degree.

Jim Pschino, an Italian, who lived in Oakland for a year or more and who was arrested some weeks ago charged with murdering a fellow-countryman at Davis four or five years ago, was found guilty of murder in the second degree at Parsons, W. Va., yesterday.

Meyersdale Commercial Sold.

The printing plant of the Meyersdale Commercial was sold to Attorney A. L. G. Hay, of Somerset, the price, brought at public sale, being $2,500. What the future conduct of the paper will be has not been made public, but it is supposed that the Commercial will continue to make its weekly appearance as in the past. The library and other personal effects of the late editor, Lou A. Smith, were also disposed of at public sale.

LADIES TO ORGANIZE A CIVIC CLUB IN OAKLAND

Meeting For the Purpose to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon.

For some weeks past a number of the ladies of Oakland have been considering the project of organizing a civic club in Oakland which will have for its purpose the improvement of the town by creating an interest in keeping the streets, alleys, yards and town generally clear of litter and to beautify it in every practical manner.

To this end a meeting of the ladies of the town has been called for Friday (tomorrow) afternoon at 3 o'clock at the court house for the purpose organizing the club. All who are interested in such an organization are earnestly requested to be present.

Five Big Mallet Engines Arrive at Cumberland.

The five Mallet type locomotives built for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad by the American Locomotive works at Schenectady, arrived in Cumberland Sunday, where they will be fitted up and placed in service. They were dismantled for shipment and had no smokestacks or steam domes. The cabs were on flat cars.

The engines, Nos. 2401, 2402, 2403, 2405 and 2406, are of massive construction. They are an improved type of the first Mallet, "Old Maude," which for several years was used as a helper on the Connellsville division. The engines are more than 91 feet in length and have eight driving wheels in a set instead of six, as on the original Mallet. Each locomotive has 16 driving wheels. There are no pony wheels.

The locomotives were brought from Schenectady by way of Buffalo. It is expected two of them will be assigned to the Connellsville division for work on the Sand Patch Hill, the others helping freights over the steep grades of the Third division between Cumberland and Grafton.

Hobson's Great Temperance Lecture Free.

Congressman Richmond P. Hobson's celebrated temperance lecture "The Great Destroyer," has been made a public document and can be sent out under his frank, postage free, without any cost save printing and addressing.

The Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, 802 American Building, Baltimore, has arranged to have a copy of this great address, which makes a pamphlet of 20 pages, sent absolutely free to any resident of Maryland who asks for it.

This address of Capt. Hobson is a purely scientific discussion of the effect of alcohol and entirely free from prejudice. It gives the result of the latest scientific experiments and explodes many of the commonly accepted ideas about the use of liquor, moderate drinking, etc., and is worthy of the consideration of every thoughtful person.

Naylor sells it for less.

CREAMERY COMPANY TO BEGIN OPERATIONS FRIDAY

Milk Routes Have Been Established and Customers Will Be Supplied.

With the establishment of the Oakland Dairy Association and the beginning of operations by the corporation tomorrow morning, a new era in so far as the milk and butter consumers of Oakland and vicinity are concerned, will be marked, for all shall feel that when the butter man fails to make his weekly appearance none will have to eat their buckwheat cakes for breakfast or hot biscuit for supper butterless, as it is the intention and will be the endeavor of the management of the creamery to have a plentiful supply of the product of the gentle bovine always on hand to supply the wants of the public.

A milk route has been established by the creamery company and a wagon will be placed on the route within the present week to supply customers in Oakland and Mountain Lake Park with milk, cream, ice cream and other products of the creamery at a charge commensurate with the quality of the articles delivered to the customers.

The president of the company, Lieut. E. S. West, has prepared and mailed to dairymen and farmers within a radius of fifteen miles of Oakland the following letter, which is self-explanatory:

The Oakland Dairy Association takes pleasure in furnishing you the following information, which, we trust, will be of interest to you:

